Section 11–751a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., enacted by the act of Oct. 23, 1962, is also cited as one of the sources of this section, as section 11–751a changed the name of the Municipal Court for the District of Columbia to the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions.

References to "any action at law" and "his declaration" are changed to "any civil action" and "his complaint" to comply with present procedure under the rules.

In the 1901 Code, as continued in D.C. Code, 1961 ed., there were two groups of sections relating to attachment and garnishment. One group was Chapter 13, Attachments, of the 1901 Code and Chapter 3, Attachment and Garnishment, of Title 16 of the 1961 edition and is set out in this subchapter. The other group was in Chapter 26, Execution, of the 1901 Code and Chapter 3, Proceedings in Aid of Execution, of Title 15 of the 1961 edition, and is set out as subchapter II of this chapter, relating to attachment and garnishment after judgment in aid of execution.

Logically it would seem that, except for provisions governing the grounds for issuance of the writ and its relationship to the proceedings in the action in which it is issued, the procedure in attachment should be the same whether it is the usual attachment issued before judgment or an attachment issued after judgment in aid of execution, and therefore, that the provisions of subchapter I of this chapter would apply to attachment after judgment unless an inconsistent provision appears in subchapter II. But subchapter II, as enacted in 1901, contains a number of sections that repeat the provisions of sections of subchapter I, which would lead to the contrary assumption that subchapter II, relating to attachment after judgment, was intended to be complete in itself without reference to subchapter I. The difficulty is that some sections in subchapter I which would be expected to apply to attachment either before or after judgment are not repeated in subchapter II. For example, see section 16–528 of subchapter I which is from section 16–325 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., and provides that a judgment of condemnation against the garnishee protects him against a claim by the defendant for the property or credits condemned.

If these two subchapters were originally intended to be independent of each other, additional problems arise with respect to subsequent acts which amend one subchapter without amending the corresponding section of the other, and acts which do not specify whether they apply to attachments before or after judgment or both. For examples, see sections 16–513, 16–514, 16–521, 16–533, and 16–551 herein.

Since the scope of this revision is limited to improvements in arrangement and phraseology, without changing the substance of the law, it is not possible to resolve these questions here. However, the provisions relating to the two types of attachments have been carried into this one chapter so that the corresponding provisions and the court decisions under them may be more easily read together.

Subchapter III of this chapter is derived from a 1959 act, as indicated in the notes under the individual sections therein.

The provisions of this chapter are continued in force by rule 64 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure under which certain provisional and final remedies, including attachment and garnishment are available under the circumstances and in the manner provided by the law of the "state" in which the district court is held, subject to certain qualifications.

Changes are made in the arrangement and phraseology of this section.

1. Affidavits

Affidavit which was filed after motion to quash attachment and which stated that the defendant was foreign corporation did not cure defect in original affidavit on which attachment before judgment was issued and which contained no averment that defendant was foreign corporation. Graham Associates, Inc., etc. v. B. J. Fell (D.C. App. 1963, 192 A. 2d 129).

Affidavit is basis for issuing attachment before judgment and cannot be supplied after the attachment has been issued. Id.

Verification of complaint describing defendant as Maryland corporation was not so fatally defective as to require quashing of attachment issued against defendant before judgment. Id.

Requirement that party seeking attachment before judgment must file an affidavit showing grounds of claim and setting forth that he has a just right to recover that which is claimed is not complied with by statement of a conclusion, but affidavit must state facts out of which claim arises and method of computing amounts said to be due must be set forth in detail. Petroni v. Bass et ano. (1960, 186 F. Supp. 759).

In action for debt for work, labor, and material furnished by plaintiff to defendants in repair and improvement of building, affidavit of plaintiff, who sought remedy of attachment before judgment, that plaintiff had a just right to recover on such cause of action did not sufficiently allege details of the claim, and, therefore, it was not sufficient to warrant such attachment. Id.

Affidavit preliminary to attachment before judgement, which stated the grounds for plaintiff's claim, a just right to recover, a prescribed type of action, and that defendant was a nonresident, was sufficient. Morfessis v. Thomas (D.C. Mun. App. 1952, 91 A. 2d 833).

In action by nonresident plaintiff to recover debt wherein nonresident defendant claimed that situs of debt was in Maryland but made no affidavit and submitted no proof in support thereof, Municipal Court for the District of Columbia did not abuse its discretion in refusing to quash writ of attachment before judgment under the rule of forum non conveniens. Rice v. Salnier (D.C. Mun. App. 1952, 86 A. 2d 175).

Affidavits in an attachment proceeding become a part of the record on appeal. Barbour v. Paige Hotel Co. (2 App. D.C. 174).

An affidavit fully complies with the statute which states the ultimate fact substantially in its terms, without stating in connection therewith the probative facts which may be necessary to be shown in case of traverse. The same rule applies also to the allegation of the intent with which the act may have been done. Wielar v. Garner (4 App. D.C. 329).

It is ordinarily sufficient in an affidavit for attachment to follow the words of the statute substantially without stating the probative facts which go to show the ultimate conclusion. Cissell v. Johnston (4 App. D.C. 335).

Though the affidavit preceding the issuance of the writ may be so defective as to warrant a reversal of the judgment by an appellate court, such defect will not deprive the court of the jurisdiction acquired by the writ levied upon defendant's property. The proceeding being in rem, the levy of the writ "is the one essential requisite to jurisdiction." Moses v. Hayes (36 App. D.C. 194).

Affidavit in attachment before judgment required need not employ the precise language of this section, but words must be sufficiently similar to those of this section to allow drawing of conclusion which is called for by the exact language of this section. Rieffer v. Home Indem. Co. (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 61 A. 2d 26, modified or other grounds 62 A. 2d 371).

Affidavit in support of attachment before judgment alleging that defendant left the District of Columbia at a time shown by affidavit to be within six months before filing of affidavit, that defendant's present whereabouts were unknown, and that defendant had temporarily withdrawn himself from district, was fatally defective for not alleging that defendant was evading the service of ordinary process by his withdrawal. Id.

2. Amendment of garnishment

It was proper for court to allow amendment of garnishments so as to correctly designate corporate name of garnishee where use of incorrect name had neither prejudiced nor mislead it. Hotel Windsor Park, Inc. v. Arco Contractors, Inc. (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 134 A. 2d 322).

3. Amount of recovery

Where plaintiffs in attachment filed bond in accordance with the statute and after dismissal of action defendant in attachment brought suit to recover on bond which provided that surety should make good to defendant all costs and damages which he might sustain by reason of wrongful suing out of said attachment, defendant in attachment was not automatically entitled to recover full penal sum therein named but was limited to such costs and damages as he could show were sustained because of detention of property. Davis v. Peerless Ins. Co. et al. (1958, 255 F. 2d 534, 103 U.S. App. D.C. 125).

4. Appealable orders

Under statute limiting jurisdiction of Municipal Court of Appeals for District of Columbia to hear appeals from interlocutory order to orders whereby possession of property is changed or affected, order denying motion to quash writ of attachment is not appealable. Clark v. District Discount Co. (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 151 A. 2d 198).

To be appealable, an interlocutory order must be one which, if carried into effect, would change or affect possession by changing the status quo ante the order, under statute limiting jurisdiction of Municipal Court of Appeals for District of Columbia to review interlocutory orders to those orders whereby possession of property is changed or affected. Id.

Order overruling motion to quash service is not final and not appealable. Id.

5. Application for judgment against garnishee

The rule requiring applications for judgment against garnishees to be filed within four weeks after their answers relates to garnishment after judgment and had no application to garnishments served before judgment where action was not determined within such period, in view of statute forbidding judgment against garnishee until determination of action. Hotel Windsor Park, Inc. v. Arco Contractors, Inc. (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 134 A. 2d 322).

6. Bonds

Where an attachment is issued against the property of one of several defendants, the bond properly runs to him and not to the other defendants against whom attachment did not issue. Bradford v. Brown (22 App. D.C. 455).

If the bond is defective, the defendant may move to quash the attachment. Moses v. Hayes (36 App. D.C. 194). See, also, Hayes v. Conger (36 App. D.C. 202).

Bond is sufficient if it is twice the amount sued upon; "uncertain costs and interest which may accrue during litigation are no part of a plaintiff's claim at the date of suit." Rhodes v. Bowling Green White Stone Co. (43 App. D.C. 298).

A surety on a bond given under section 454 of the Code (§ 16–310) can not object, except in case of fraud, to defects in original affidavits which render the attachment merely voidable. National Surety Co. v. Poates (43 App. D.C. 334).

The requirements of this section as to the filing of a bond are not superseded by the act of April 19, 1920 (41 Stat. 564), section 479a of the Code (§ 28–2403). Tri-State Motor Corp. v. Standard Steel Car Co. (1922, 276 F. 631, 51 App. D.C. 109).

7. Breach of contract

Where defendant did not sound his case in tort, as he might have done, but sued specifically for breach of the lease agreement, charging that defendant had damaged the premises in breach of the lease agreement, such allegations brought his claim within the provisions of the attachment statute. Fink v. Katz (D.C. Mun. App. 1949, 68 A. 2d 813).

8. Burden of proof

To sustain writ of attachment, plaintiff had burden of proving that defendant was a nonresident. D'Elia & Marks Co. v. Lyon (1943, 31 A. 2d 647).

9. Construction

Remedy of attachment before judgment is purely statutory, is in derogation of the common law, and is a very drastic proceeding, and, therefore, this section permitting such an attachment should not receive a liberal construction, and strict compliance therewith should be required. Petroni v. Bass et ano. (1960, 186 F. Supp. 759).

In order for an attachment before judgment to be issued, the defendant must not be a resident of the District. The statute clearly prescribes residence, as distinguished from domicile, as the controlling factor. A man's residence is where he actually dwells and must be a fixed and permanent abode. Fink v. Katz (D.C. Mun. App. 1949, 68 A. 2d 813).

10. Evidence of indebtedness

In proceeding wherein company which had installed rink in hotel, at request of non-resident entertainers engaged by hotel, garnished hotel to attach sums allegedly due entertainers so as to acquire jurisdiction of them to recover for services in installing rink, and wherein hotel disclaimed that it was indebted to entertainers on date of service of garnishment though it later made payments to them, evidence on whether it was so indebted sustained trial court's ruling against it. Hotel Windsor Park, Inc. v. Arco Contractors, Inc. (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 134 A. 2d 322).

11. Executors and administrators

"Neither executors nor administrators are named in the section as subject to attachment, and as the attachment of the property of an estate is obviously inconsistent with the law of administration, nothing less, we think, than express authorization would warrant." Jordan v. Landram (35 App. D.C. 89).

12. Foreign corporation

Corporation, which had an office in the District of Columbia, was subject in the District of Columbia to garnishment of credits in its hands belonging to an employee, who was a resident of Maryland, who performed his work in Maryland, and whose wages were payable in Maryland. Marvins Credit, Inc. v. General Motors Corp. (D.C. Mun. App. 1956), 119 A. 2d 447).

A foreign corporation, notwithstanding its exclusive engagement in business in the District, its organization for that purpose only, and the continuous presence of its secretary and treasurer therein, is a nonresident and subject to attachment as such. Barbour v. Paige Hotel Co. (2 App. D.C. 174).

13. Interest in trust

In suit by divorced wife of trust beneficiary to establish interest in trust fund, wife could not recover fund due as alimony or for the benefit of creditors, in absence of personal service on beneficiary or an attachment of his equitable interest in fund after execution of bond. Buchanan v. National Sav. & Trust Co. (1945, 146 F. 2d 13, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 278).

14. Jurisdiction

In a garnishment proceeding in the District of Columbia, it is the person of the garnishee and not the res which confers jurisdiction, and when garnishment is served suit becomes suit in personam and judgment against garnishee becomes personal judgment against him. Western Urn Manufacturing Co. v. American Pipe and Steel Corporation (C.A.D.C. 1960, 284 F. 2d 279).

When debtor leaves city taking all cash with him and leaves no information as to where he is going or when he will return, a creditor after making unsuccessful attempts to locate him is justified in assuming that he left for the purpose of evading the process and a writ of attachment will lie. Wilkins & Co. v. Hillman (8 App. D.C. 469).

The question of the jurisdiction of the court to issue the attachment must be decided solely upon the sufficiency of the declaration, regardless of defenses available to defendant since these are waived by its motion to dissolve the attachment. Orenstein & Koppel, Aktiengesellschaft v. Koppel Industrial Car Equipment Co. (1930, 38 F. 2d 532, 59 App. D.C. 221, certiorari dismissed 51 S. Ct. 106, 282 U.S. 906, 75 L. Ed. 798).

15. Member of Congress

A member of Congress, present in the District to attend its sessions, is to be regarded (in the absence of a plain, unequivocal statement to the contrary) as a resident of the state which he represents, and therefore a nonresident of the District within the meaning of the attachment statute. Howard v. Citizens' Bank & Trust Co. (12 App. D.C. 222).

16. Nonresident

Were nonresident corporations brought action in District of Columbia against nonresident corporation and filed bond, writ of attachment was directed to defendant's attorney to whom funds of defendant were paid as shown by return of bank, and personal service upon attorney was had in District of Columbia, if attorney had possession of assets of defendant, he was properly subject to service of writ and action became one in personam against attorney, but if he did not possess defendant's assets, he was not properly subject to service of writ. Western Urn Manufacturing Co. v. American Pipe and Steel Corporation (C.A.D.C. 1960, 284 F. 2d 279).

For purposes of attachment before judgment on ground that defendant is a nonresident, residence is the test, and the fact that a defendant had an established office in the District of Columbia and presumably was available for personal services was not material. National Brick & Supply Co. v. Bradshaw (D.C. Mun. App. 1952, 91 A. 2d 833).

Under this section providing that in action for recovery of debt, clerk shall issue writ of attachment if plaintiff files affidavit stating that defendant is not a resident of the District of Columbia, plaintiff who was nonresident of the District was entitled to implement his suit by writ of attachment before judgment. Rice v. Salnier (D.C. Mun. App. 1952, 86 A. 2d 175).

"Nonresident", as used in this section, must be taken in its ordinary and usual signification. D'Elia & Marks Co. v. Lyon (1943, 31 A. 2d 647).

Whether defendant was subject to attachment as a nonresident would be determined as of time of issuing and serving writ of attachment. Id.

That defendant had an established office in the District of Columbia and presumably was available for personal service was not material in determining whether he was a "nonresident" within this section. Id.

Evidence that physician with office in District of Columbia boarded up his Maryland home and, with his family, moved to expensive apartment in the District of Columbia under one-year lease, intending to move back to Maryland when he could afford it, authorized quashing of attachment of physician's property on ground that physician was not a "nonresident" of the District of Columbia. Id.

Where nonresident taxicab operator's taxicab driver was lured into the District of Columbia in order that taxicab might be attached there the court would in order to protect its process quash the attachment and direct return of cash deposit which was made in lieu of bond to perform judgment of the court. Guardian Management Corp. v. Huffman (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 61 A. 2d 472).

That defendant as a common carrier regularly sent its taxicabs into the District of Columbia would not change the effect of procuring the presence of defendant's taxicab in the District by misrepresentation in order that the taxicab might be attached. Id.

17. Previous decisions, effect of

Where one of several creditors who had judgments of condemnation against debtor, filed traverse to garnishee's answer in attachment and offered to prove that creditor's attachment lien was entitled to preference over claims garnishee was attempting to treat in his answer as preferred liens previous decision in same case which merely set forth order of payment of creditors having judgments of condemnation and which did not determine issue as to preferences did not eliminate creditor's right to have trial of issue as to such alleged preferences at present trial. Troshinsky v. Feldman (D.C. Mun. App. 1951, 81 A. 2d 91).

18. Property attached

Attachment may be levied against property of the defendant in the possession of the plaintiff. Harriman v. Richardson (1921, 273 F. 752, 51 App. D.C. 24).

Under this and following sections credits may be attached as well as chattels. United States Fidelity & Guar. Co. v. Wrenn (1937, 89 F. 2d 838, 67 App. D.C. 94).

19. Quashing writ of attachment

Court did not abuse its discretion in denying motion to quash order of condemnation of funds attached and to set aside default judgment, where defendant had filed no responsive pleadings after its motions to strike complaint and to quash attachment were denied and after unsuccessful negotiations to reach a settlement. Union Storage Company, Inc. v. Maury Young et al. (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 183 A. 2d 760).

Defendant who, in traversing attachment before judgment obtained on the ground of nonresidency, admitted that his home was in Maryland and denied that he owed the amount claimed and averred that statements in the plaintiff's affidavit for attachment were not true, traversed only main issue in complaint and was not entitled to have attachment quashed. National Brick & Supply Co., Inc. v. Bradshaw (D.C. Mun. App. 1952, 91 A. 2d 838).

20. Removal of property

A mere suspicion that the defendant intends to remove his property from the District is not sufficient to justify an attachment. McKenzie v. Crouse (35 App. D.C. 291).

21. Reversion interest in trust funds

Where divorced wife sued husband for payment of money due by reason of property settlement incorporated into divorce decree and husband was not resident of District of Columbia and divorced husband had created a District of Columbia trust and he possessed a vested reversion and in May, 1960, he would receive a portion of the trust assets on partial termination of the trust, divorced wife could assert jurisdiction over the property and the husband under District of Columbia Code which provides substantially as to service and the matter thereof on nonresident defendant who has personal property within the jurisdiction against which a claim of a plaintiff is asserted and also under District of Columbia statute relating to attachment before judgment. King, etc. v. Fay et al. (1958, 169 F. Supp. 934).

22. Right of attachment

Fact that plaintiff may not prevail when case comes to trial does not mean he had no right of attachment before judgment. Morfessis v. Thomas (D.C. Mun. App. 1952, 91 A. 2d 833).

23. Spendthrift trust

A spendthrift trust may under some circumstances be subjected to the obligation to support a wife or child, but enforcement of such obligation requires either personal service on beneficiary or an attachment of his equitable interest in the fund after execution of bond. Buchanan v. National Sav. & Trust Co. (1945, 146 F. 2d 13, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 278).

24. Statement of damages

Attachment statute is not only meant to apply to those actions for damages for breach of contract which are precisely liquidated and ascertained. The object of the statute is to require such a statement of the damages suffered as will be informing to the defendant and enable him to prepare himself to meet the issue tendered. Suter v. Lockwood Dental Co. (45 App. D.C. 92).

25. Trial of main issue

A defendant, in traversing an attachment before judgment, may deny by affidavit any of the specific statutory grounds alleged, but he may not by a motion to quash an attachment achieve a trial of the main issue in the case unless it is determined that issues raised by the motion shall be tried at same time as issues raised by the pleadings. Morfessis v. Thomas (D.C. Mun. App. 1952, 91 A. 2d 833).

26. Wrongful suing out of attachment

Where action was brought and attachment issued, failure of plaintiff's suit resulted in a "wrongful suing out of attachment" authorizing property owner to bring suit on bond. Davis v. Peerless Ins. Co. et al. (1958, 255 F. 2d 534, 103 U.S. App. D.C. 125).

(a) A writ issued pursuant to section 16–501 shall require the marshal to serve a notice on the defendant, if he is found in the District, and on any person in whose possession any property or credits of the defendant may be attached, to appear in the court on or before the twentieth day, exclusive of Sundays and legal holidays after service of the notice, and show cause, if any there be, why the property so attached should not be condemned and execution thereof had. The marshal's return shall show the fact of the service.

(b) If the defendant is returned "Not to be found," the notice shall be given by publication to the following effect, namely:

In the United States District Court (District of Columbia Court of General Sessions) for the District of Columbia.

A B, plaintiff,
versus
C D, defendant,
} Civil Action No. ———.

The object of this suit is to recover (here state it briefly) and to have judgment of condemnation of certain property of the defendant levied on under an attachment issued in this suit to satisfy the plaintiff's claim.

It is, therefore, this —— day of ————, ordered that the defendant appear in this court on or before the fortieth day, exclusive of Sundays and legal holidays, after the day of the first publication of this order, to defend this suit and show cause why the condemnation should not be had; otherwise the suit will be proceeded with as in case of default.

By the court:

————— ————, Judge.

(c) The order shall be published at least once a week for three successive weeks or oftener, or for such further time and in such manner as the court orders. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 544, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–302 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 446, 31 Stat. 1259; June 25, 1936, ch. 804, 49 Stat. 1921; June 25, 1948, ch. 646, § 32(b), 62 Stat. 991; May 24, 1949, ch. 139, § 127, 63 Stat. 107).

In the form of notice set out in subsec. (b), a parenthetical reference to the Court of General Sessions is inserted for the purpose of completeness.

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Credits 1
Legislative intent 2
Parties 3
Property in safe-deposit box 4

1. Credits

Distinction that would permit the attachment of chattels and not of credits, see United States Fidelity & Guar. Co. v. Wrenn (1937, 89 F. 2d 838, 67 App. D.C. 94).

2. Legislative intent

One purpose of this section is to protect the rights of third parties in whose possession the property may be. Harriman v. Richardson (1921, 273 F. 752, 51 App. D.C. 24).

3. Parties

Under this and following sections, the Attorney General must be made a party in suit to compel the payment of a judgment of condemnation, where such officer has succeeded the Alien Property Custodian. United States ex rel. Ordmann v. Cummings (1936, 85 F. 2d 273, 66 App. D.C. 107).

4. Property in safe-deposit box

Property in a safe-deposit box in a trust company is subject to garnishment. Washington Loan & Trust Co. v. Susquehanna Coal Co. (26 App. D.C. 149).

§ 16–503. Attachment for debts not due.

A creditor may maintain an action and have an attachment against his debtor's property and credits, where his debt is not yet due and payable, if the plaintiff, his agent, or attorney files in the clerk's office, at the commencement of the action, an affidavit, supported by testimony of one or more witnesses, showing the amount and justice of the claim and the time when it will be payable, and also setting forth that the defendant has removed or is removing or intends to remove a material part of his property from the District with the intent or to the effect of defeating just claims against him if only the ordinary process of law is used to obtain judgment against him, and if he also complies with the condition as to filing a bond prescribed by section 16–501. The plaintiff may not have judgment before his claim becomes due. If the attachment is quashed the action shall be dismissed, but without prejudice to a future action. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 545, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–306 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 450, 31 Stat. 1260).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–504. Additional attachments.

Upon the application of the plaintiff, his agent, or attorney, other attachments founded on the original affidavits may be issued from time to time, to be directed, executed, and returned in the same manner as the original, and without further publication, against a nonresident or absent defendant, and without additional bond, unless required by the court. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 545, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

§ 16–505. Sufficiency of plaintiff's bond.

The defendant or any other person interested in the proceedings who is not satisfied with the sufficiency of the surety or with the amount of the penalty named in the bond filed pursuant to section 16–501, may apply to the court for an order requiring the plaintiff to give an additional bond in such sum and with such security as may be approved by the court. If the plaintiff fails to comply with any such order the court may order the attachment to be quashed and any property attached or its proceeds to be returned to the defendant or otherwise disposed of, as to the court may seem proper. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 545, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. In general

Defendant has the right when not satisfied with the sufficiency of the surety on the bond or amount of its penalty to apply for order requiring plaintiff to give additional bond or, if the bond is defective, move to quash the writ. Moses v. Hayes (36 App. D.C. 194).

§ 16–506. Traversing affidavits—Quashing writ of attachment—Trial of issues.

If the defendant files affidavits traversing the affidavits filed by the plaintiff the court shall determine whether the facts set forth in the plaintiff's affidavits as ground for issuing the attachment are true, and whether there was just ground for issuing the attachment. When, in the opinion of the court, the proofs do not sustain the affidavit of the plaintiff, his agent, or attorney, the court shall quash the writ of attachment. This issue may be tried by the court or a judge at chambers after three days' notice. The issue may be tried as well upon oral testimony as upon affidavits. If the court deems it expedient, a jury may be impaneled to try the issue. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 545, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Evidence 1
Joinder of defendants 2
Jury trial 3
Purpose 4
Review 5
Service of process 6

1. Evidence

Evidence sustained finding that fraud relied on as basis for attachment of automobile had not been proved and that the attachment should be quashed. Davis v. Trumbull (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 61 A. 2d 622).

2. Joinder of defendants

A single defendant may move to quash an attachment even though he is not joined by other defendants. Davis v. Trumbull (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 61 A. 2d 622).

3. Jury trial

The right to trial by jury is governed by this section and not by rule of Municipal Court dealing with right to trial by jury. Davis v. Trumbull (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 61 A. 2d 622).

Where defendant filed an affidavit traversing plaintiff's affidavit on which writ of attachment was issued and request for jury trial was made on a Saturday, and judge offered to set motion for jury trial on the following Monday, and plaintiff's counsel said he could not be ready until the following Wednesday or Thursday, whereupon the judge ordered the hearing to proceed without a jury, there was no improper exercise of discretion. Id.

4. Purpose

The purpose of the traverse of an attachment before judgment is to present to the court for determination the issue of whether the facts set forth in the plaintiff's affidavit as ground for issuing the attachment are true, and whether there is just ground for issuing the attachment. Morfessis v. Thomas (D.C. Mun. App. 1952, 91 A. 2d 833).

5. Review

The credibility of witnesses and the weight to be given to their testimony could not be determined on appeal from order of Municipal Court quashing writ of attachment. Davis v. Trumbull (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 61 A. 2d 622).

6. Service of processs

Where motion to vacate judgment and quash attachment rested on claim that service on defendant had not been made and that Small Claims Branch of District of Columbia Municipal Court acquired no jurisdiction over defendant, motion was sufficiently broad to include by implication an attack on service of process, and irregularlity was curved by subsequent filing of motion to quash service, and filing of motion to vacate judgment and quash attachment was "special" and not "general appearance", and going to trial on merits after denial of such motion did not preclude defendant from raising jurisdictional question on appeal. Ellerbe v. Goldberg (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 60 A. 2d 232).

16–507. Property subject to attachment—Liens—Priorities.

(a) An attachment may be levied on the lands and tenements, and personal chattels of the defendant not exempt by law, whether in the defendant's or a third person's possession, and whether the defendant's title to the property is legal or equitable, and upon his credits in the hands of a third person, whether due and payable or not, and upon his undivided interest in a partnership business.

(b) An attachment shall be a lien on the property attached from the date of its delivery to the marshal. When different persons obtain attachments against the same defendant the priorities of the liens of the attachments shall be according to the dates when they were so delivered to the marshal. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 545, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

1. Chattels subject to deed of trust

Attachment is proper against chattels which are subject to a deed of trust as the deed of trust is in favor of the plaintiff in the suit in which the attachment is issued. Richmond v. Cake (1 App. D.C. 447).

2. Deposits

Where judgment creditor to collect judgment attached judgment debtor's deposit account, evidence sustained judgment rejecting debtor's contention that the funds attached were trust funds not subject to attachment. Laughlin v. Bank of Commerce & Savings (1943, 134 F. 2d 530, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 312).

3. Payment on account

Where judgment debtor has made a deposit with company on account of the purchase price under another contract, such funds may not be reclaimed by the judgment debtor without the seller's consent, and, being payable upon a contingency, is not subject to garnishment by the judgment creditor. Wheeler v. Thomas (31 F. Supp. 702).

4. Proceeds of sale

Proceeds of the sale of property in the hands of a purchaser from a foreign receiver who brought the property into this jurisdiciton (and was vested with title and a right to sell the same) are not subject to attachment by domestic creditor of original owner. Jenkins v. Purcell (29 App. D.C. 209, 9 L.R.A., N.S. 1074).

5. Rents accruing after service

Rents which accrued after service of the garnishment constituted a contingent liability when the garnishment was levied and was not subject to garnishment. United States Fidelity & Guar. Co. v. Wrenn (1937, 89 F. 2d 838, 67 App. D.C. 94).

6. Safe-deposit box

Attachment may be levied against safe-deposit box. Washington Loan & Trust Co. v. Susquehanna Coal Co. (26 App. D.C. 149).

7. "Third person" may be plaintiff

Attachment may be levied against property of the defendant in the possession of the plaintiff. Harriman v. Richardson (1921, 273 F. 752, 51 App. D.C. 24).

8. Trust funds

Trust funds coming into possession of Chief Probation Officer of Federal District Court in criminal cases in which defendant is placed on probation on condition of making restitution or paying maintenance are not subject to garnishment. Manley v. Butterfield (1953, 111 F. Supp. 783).

Where defendant was not placed on probation and money which he informally gave to Probation Officer was not received to make restitution to aggrieved parties for actual damages or loss caused by offenses for which he had been convicted and court who sentenced defendant made no order in respect to restitution, money was subject to garnishment. Id.

9. Waiver of exemption

Funds of an individual in possession of District of Columbia or its officers are not subject to attachment or garnishment in an ordinary proceeding to recover on a debt or other like claim, but exemption is allowed only for convenience of municipality and may be claimed by it alone and not by another, and the District of Columbia may waive it. Montgomery v. Montgomery (1946, 153 F. 2d 634, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 344).

The exemption of District of Columbia from attachment or garnishment, in an ordinary proceeding to recover on a debt or other like claim against an individual whose funds are held by the District, is waived by a failure or refusal to claim the exemption. Id.

§ 16–508. Attachment of real property.

An attachment is sufficiently levied on the lands and tenements of the defendant by:

(1) mentioning and describing the property in an indorsement on the attachment, made by the officer to whom it is delivered for service, to the following effect:

"Levied on the following estate of the defendant, A B, to wit: (Here describe) this —— day of ————. C D, Marshal."; and

(2) serving a copy of the attachment, with the indorsement, and the notice required by section 16–502, on the person, if any, in possession of the property.

(Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 546, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–309 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 453, 31 Stat. 1260).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–509. Attachment of personal property—Undertaking by defendant or person in possession.

(a) An attachment shall be levied upon personal chattels by the officer taking them into his possession and custody, unless the defendant gives the officer his undertaking to be filed in the cause, with sufficient security, substantially in the form set forth in subsection (b) of this section, or unless the person in whose possession the property is attached gives the officer his undertaking to be filed in the cause substantially in the form set forth in subsection (c) of this section. In cases where such undertakings are given, the attachment is sufficiently levied by the taking of the undertaking.

(b) An undertaking by the defendant shall contain the substance of the following form:

A B, plaintiff,
C D, defendant. } Civil Action No. —.

The defendant and ———, his surety, in consideration of the discharge from the custody of the marshal of the property seized by him, upon the attachment sued out against the defendant, on the ——— day of ———, anno Domini nineteen hundred ———, in the above entitled cause, appear, and submitting to the jurisdiction of the court, hereby undertake, for themselves and each of them, their and each of their heirs, executors, and administrators, or successors or assigns, to abide by and perform the judgment of the court in the premises in relation to the property, which judgment may be rendered against any or all the parties whose names are hereto signed.

(Signed) C D.
E F.

(c) An undertaking by the person in whose possession the property is attached shall contain the substance of the following form:

A B, plaintiff,
versus
C D, defendant. } Civil Action No. —.

Whereas by virtue of an attachment issued in the above-entitled suit, the United States marshal for the District of Columbia has attached certain property in the hands of the undersigned E F, as gar-nishee, namely, (here describe) of the value of ——— dollars; and now, therefore, E F and G H, as surety, appearing in the action, and submitting to the jurisdiction of the court, hereby undertake for themselves and each of them, their and each of their heirs, executors, and administrators to abide by the judgment of the court in relation to said property, and that if the same shall be condemned to satisfy the claim of the plaintiff, judgment may be rendered against all the undersigned for the value of the property and costs, to be executed against them, and each of them, unless the property shall be forthcoming to satisfy the judgment of condemnation.

(Signed)

E F.
G H.

The recital of the undertaking in this subsection shall contain a sufficient description of the property and its value ascertained by an appraisement to be made under direction of the officer and returned with the writ. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 546, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Constitutionality 1
Waiver 2

1. Constitutionality

This section was not unconstitutional. United Surety Co. v. American Fruit Product Co. (1915, 35 S. Ct. 828, 238 U.S. 140, 59 L. Ed. 1238).

2. Waiver

Where non-resident taxicab owner procured release of attached taxicab by cash deposit instead of giving bond as required by this section such irregularity was waived and case was required to be disposed of as if bond had been given to perform judgment of the court. Guardian Management Corp. v. Huffman (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 61 A. 2d 472).

(a) Either the defendant or the person in whose possession the property is attached may obtain a release of the property from the attachment, after it has been taken into the custody of the marshal and the writ has been returned, by giving the undertaking required of him by section 16–509, with security to be approved by the court.

(b) The plaintiff may except to the sufficiency of the undertaking accepted by the marshal and, if the exceptions are sustained, the court shall require a new undertaking, with sufficient surety, by a day to be named, in default of which the marshal shall be liable to the plaintiff on his official bond for any loss sustained by the plaintiff through the default.

(c) Either the defendant or the person in whose possession credits are attached may obtain a release of the credits from the attachment by filing an undertaking with security to be approved by the court. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 547, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Amount of recovery 1
Constitutionality 2
Duty to obtain release 3
Remedy against surety 4
As warranting release 6

1. Amount of recovery

Where plaintiffs in attachment filed bond in accordance with the statute and after dismissal of action defendant in attachment brought suit to recover on bond which provided that surety should make good to defendant all costs and damages which he might sustain by reason of wrongful suing out of said attachment, defendant in attachment was not automatically entitled to recover full penal sum therein named but was limited to such costs and damages as he could show were sustained because of detention of property. Davis v. Peerless Ins. Co. et al. (1958, 255 F. 2d 534, 103 U.S. App. D.C. 125).

2. Constitutionality

This section was not unconstitutional. United Surety Co. v. American Fruit Product Co. (1915, 35 S. Ct. 828, 238 U.S. 140, 59 L. Ed. 1238).

3. Duty to obtain release

When the plaintiff's car was taken from him, he could have procured its return immediately by giving an undertaking under this section, and it was his duty to do so and thus to reduce the defendant's liability, except if he were financially unable to do so. Moses v. Lockwood (1924, 295 F. 936, 54 App. D.C. 115, 33 A.L.R. 1467).

4. Remedy against surety

Bond given under this section to obtain release of attached property is binding upon defendant's surety notwithstanding the fact that defendant was declared bankrupt within four months thereafter. Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland v. Shepherd (1926, 11 F. 2d 563, 56 App. D.C. 177).

In taking judgment solely against the main defendant, together with the subsequent step against the garnishee as outlined, defendant in error waived his right to pursue his remedy against the surety. Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland v. Hurley (1934, 72 F. 2d 927, 63 App. D.C. 377).

5. Undertaking

Under this section, right to release of attachment by filing an undertaking is granted solely where the attachment is made before judgment. Bank of Commerce & Savings v. Laughlin (1941, 38 F. Supp. 755).

Where judgment debtor tendered an undertaking with security to perform outstanding judgment against him, and asked court to release attachment, the request was properly denied, since this section authorizes release of attachment before judgment but not after judgment. Laughlin v. Bank of Commerce & Savings (1943, 134 F. 2d 530, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 312).

6. —— As warranting release

Where judgment debtor tendered an undertaking with security to perform outstanding judgment against him, the judgment debtor was not prejudiced by court's refusal to release attachment of money, since it could make no difference to the judgment debtor whether he paid the amount out of the attached funds or out of the security which he tendered with his undertaking. Laughlin v. Bank of Commerce & Savings (1943, 134 F. 2d 530, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 312).

§ 16–511. Attachment of credits or partnership interest—Retention of property or credits by garnishee.

(a) An attachment shall be levied upon credits of the defendant, in the hands of a garnishee, by serving the garnishee with a copy of the writ of attachment and of the interrogatories accompanying the writ, and a notice that any property or credits of the defendant in his hands are seized by virtue of the attachment, besides the notice required by section 16–502. The undivided interest of the defendant in a partnership business may be levied upon by a similar service on the defendant's partner or partners.

(b) Where the property or credits attached or sought to be attached are held by the garnishee in the name of or for the account of a person other than the defendant, the garnishee shall retain the property or credits during the period pending determination by the court of the propriety of the attachment or the rightful owner of the property or credits. During that period, the garnishee shall incur no liability for the retention. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 547, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–312 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 456, 31 Stat. 1262; Apr. 5, 1939, ch. 37, § 8(a), 53 Stat. 567; Dec. 20, 1944, ch. 610, § 4, 58 Stat. 819; Aug. 4, 1959, Pub. L. 86–130, § 5, 73 Stat. 277).

Section is from part of section 16–312 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. The remainder of the section is set out in §§ 16–512 and 16–513 herein.

Similar provisions as to attachment after judgment are found in section 16–546 herein.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Advance payments 1
Alien Property Custodian 2
Effect of service 3
Money payable upon contingency or condition 4
Personal service required 5
Property in safe-deposit box 6
Timely service of writ 7

1. Advance payments

Evidence is quite clear that employer did not make an advance payment to employee on last working day and hence this section does not apply. American Nat. Red Cross v. Jameson (1949, 178 F. 2d 717, 85 U.S. App. D.C. 390).

Under this section and § 13–103 to effect that advance payment of salary for purpose of avoiding garnishment shall be void as to attaching creditors and that all process against foreign corporations doing business in District may be served by leaving copy at corporation's principal place of business in District, wife, who had obtained decree for separate maintenance and served writ of attachment at Illinois corporation's District of Columbia office, was entitled to judgment of condemnation against corporation for a month's salary paid to husband on day of service, notwithstanding fact that husband and corporation in Illinois had entered into contract providing for payment of salary in advance to avoid garnishment and that such contracts are legal in Illinois. Welch v. Welch Jr. (1958, 166 F. Supp. 539, reconsideration denied 166 F. Supp 960).

2. Alien Property Custodian

The writ of attachment and interrogatories served upon Alien Property Custodian whose office was later abolished and whose duties descended to Attorney General were not binding upon Attorney General. United States ex rel. Ordmann v. Cummings (1936, 85 F. 2d 273, 66 App. D.C. 107).

3. Effect of service

Court cites Washington Loan & Trust Co. v. Susquehanna Coal Co. (26 App. D.C. 149) and says the effect of the service of the writ of garnishment was to place the property of the judgment debtor in the garnishee's hands in custodia legis. International Finance Corp. v. Jawish (1959, 271 F. 2d 985, 63 App. D.C. 262).

4. Money payable upon contingency or condition

Money payable upon a contingency or condition is not subject to garnishment until the contingency has happened or the condition has been fulfilled. Wheeler v. Thomas (31. F. Supp. 702).

5. Personal service required

Where writ of garnishment was served on garnishee's bookkeeper as agent of garnishee and personal service was not had on garnishee, entire garnishment proceeding was a nullity for want of jurisdiction, and judgment creditor had no right to press any further garnishment proceedings and subpoena directing bookkeeper to appear for oral examination and to bring with him specified employment records was properly quashed. Hollywood Credit Clothing Co. v. Ben Hundley (D.C. Mun. App. 1955, 118 A. 2d 515).

The procedures to which a garnishee is subjected under statute can only become operative and enforceable after personal service on garnishee. Id.

6. Property in safe-deposit box

"Property of a defendant in a safe-deposit box of a trust company is either in the possession of the defendant or in the possession of the trust company. If it is in the possession of the defendant, under the code, it appears liable to attachment and execution. If it is in the possession of the trust company, such company may be garnisheed therefor, as in possession of personal property of the defendant capable of being seized and sold on execution." Washington Loan & Trust Co. v. Susquehanna Coal Co. (26 App. D.C. 149).

7. Timely service of writ

Where employer entered into Illinois contract with employee for payment of employee's salary in advance for purpose of avoiding attachment by wife, who had obtained decree for separate maintenance, subsequently, in July, 1956, a writ of attachment had been served on employer which had answered that it had no funds, employer, in action by wife for judgment of condemnation with respect to salary payment to husband in June 1958, was not entitled to defense that writ of attachment was not served in time. Welch v. Welch Jr. (1958, 166 F. Supp. 539, reconsideration denied 166 F. Supp. 960).

In action by wife for judgment of condemnation against husband's employer based on writ of attachment served on employer on same day that employer paid to husband a month's salary in advance, evidence established that with due diligence, had employer wished to comply with writ of attachment, it could have answered writ for sum in question. Id.

An attachment issued under section 16–501 solely on the ground that the defendant is not a resident of the District of Columbia and levied upon wages as defined in section 16–571 shall be subject to the provisions of subchapter III of this chapter; except that the employer-garnishee shall pay over the wages withheld pursuant to that subchapter only pursuant to the order of the court which has jurisdiction of the case. In applying the provisions of that subchapter to any such attachment, the term "judgment debtor", as used therein, means the defendant in the case in which the attachment is issued; and the term "judgment creditor", as used therein, means the plaintiff in such case. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 547, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–312 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854 § 456, 31 Stat. 1262; Apr. 5, 1939, ch. 37, § 8(a), 53 Stat. 567; Dec. 20, 1944, ch. 610, § 4, 58 Stat. 819; Aug. 4, 1959, Pub. L. 86–130, § 5, 73 Stat. 277).

Section is from part of section 16–312 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. The remainder of the section is set out in §§ 16–511 and 16–513 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–513. Advance payment of wages to avoid attachment or garnishment.

It is unlawful for an employer to pay salary or earnings to an employee in advance of the time they are due and payable, for the purpose of avoiding or preventing an attachment or garnishment against the earnings or salary of the employee, and such an advance payment, as to the attaching creditor, is void.

After the service of one writ of attachment or garnishment on a judgment against an employer, any payment of salary or earnings thereafter before the time when the salary or earnings are due and payable made within a period of six months after the date of service of the writ or before the earlier satisfaction of the judgment, whichever is the earlier, is as to such attaching creditor presumed to be in violation of this section and casts upon the employer the burden of proving that the advance payment or payments were not for the purpose of avoiding the attachment of the salary or earnings. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 548, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–312 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 456, 31 Stat. 1262; Apr. 5, 1939, ch. 37, § 8(a) 53 Stat. 567; Dec. 20, 1944, ch. 610, § 4, 58 Stat. 819; Aug. 4, 1959, Pub. L. 86–130, § 5, 73 Stat. 277).

Section is from part of section 16–312 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. The remainder of the section is set out in §§ 16–511 and 16–512 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–514. Credits or property held for two or more persons or in representative capacity.

When a writ of attachment is served on a garnishee, and the garnishee holds a credit or property for two or more persons, including the person whose credit or property is sought to be attached, or holds a credit or property for a person as agent or trustee or in any other representative capacity without designation of the principal or beneficiary, the credit or property is not subject to withdrawal by any person, but shall be held by the garnishee until the attachment is dismissed or otherwise disposed of by the court. If the credit or property is condemned, payment or delivery thereof as ordered by the court is a complete discharge of the garnishee from all liability to any person in respect of the credit or property. The provisions of this section do not apply to a credit or property of a partnership. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 548, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–333 (May 15, 1928, ch. 568, § 3, 45 Stat. 534).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–515. Attachment of judgments and money or property in hands of marshal.

(a) An attachment may be levied upon debts due to the defendant upon a judgment or decree by a service similar to that directed by section 16–511 upon the debtor owing the debts. Execution may issue for the enforcement of the judgment or decree, notwithstanding the attachment, but the money collected upon the execution shall be paid into court to abide the event of the proceedings in attachment and applied as the court directs.

(b) An attachment may be levied upon money or property of the defendant in the hands of the marshal. It binds the money or property from the time of service, and is a legal excuse to the officer for not paying or delivering the same as he would otherwise be bound to do. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 548, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Agent, attachment against 1
Judgment rendered in another court 2

1. Agent, attachment against

Attachment of money or property in the hands of an agent or custodian of an executor. Frank v. Malone (1942, 126 F. 2d 651, 75 U.S. App. D.C. 296).

2. Judgment rendered in another court

Money judgment secured by dry dock company against the United States Shipping Board could not be attached by another corporation which held a money judgment against the dry dock company, because the debt was evidence by a judgment rendered in another court. United States Shipping Board Merchant Fleet Corp. v. Hirsch Lbr. Co. (1930, 35 F. 2d 1010, 59 App. D.C. 116).

§ 16–516. Attachment of money or property in hands of executor or administrator.

An attachment may be levied upon money or property of the defendant in the hands of an executor or administrator, and binds the same from the time of service. If the executor or administrator makes return to the writ that he can not certainly answer whether the defendant's share of the money or property in his hands will prove sufficient to pay the plaintiff's debt, a judgment of condemnation may not be rendered as against the executor or administrator until the passage by the Probate Court of his final or other account showing money or property in his hands to which the defendant is entitled. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 548, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Section is from part of section 16–313 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. For remainder of such section, see tables.

Similar provisions as to attachment after judgment are found in section 16–549 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–517. Attachment of other property in replevin action.

Where the action is to replevy specific personal property and it has not been replevied, other property may be attached in the action to recover damages and costs, and if a judgment is rendered for damages and costs, it shall carry the same rights as other judgments. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 549, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–321 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854 § 465, 31 Stat. 1263).

Words "and if a judgment is rendered for damages and costs, it shall carry the same rights as other judgments" are substituted for "and if the same be adjudged, the proceedings shall be the same as herein provided in other cases of money claims" for the purpose of clarification.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–518. Preservation of property—Sale—Receiver.

The court may make all orders necessary for the preservation of the property attached during the pendency of the action. When the property is perishable, or for other reasons a sale of it appears expedient, the court may order that the property be sold and its proceeds paid into court and held subject to its order on the final decision of the case.

When it seems expedient, the court may appoint a receiver to take possession of the property. The receiver shall give bond for the due performance of his duties, and, under the direction of the court, shall have the same powers and perform the same duties as a receiver appointed according to the practice in civil actions. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 549, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Phrase "the practice in equity" is changed to "the practice in civil actions" pursuant to rule 2 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

Similar provisions as to attachment after judgment are found in section 16–550 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. Restraining sale

This section quoted in full and applied in suit to restrain sale of property to satisfy original trust thereon. Jackson v. Finance Corp. of Washington (1930, 41 F. 2d 103, 59 App. D.C. 309, certiorari denied 51 S. Ct. 29, 282 U.S. 851, 75 L. Ed. 754).

§ 16–519. Defenses by garnishee.

A garnishee in an attachment proceeding may make any defense available to the defendant in the action in which the garnishment is issued. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 549, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–315 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 459, 31 Stat. 1262).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–520. Defending against the attachment—Trial of Issues.

A defendant, any garnishee, party to a forthcoming undertaking, or an officer who might be adjudged liable to the plaintiff by reason of the undertaking being adjudged insufficient, or a stranger to the action who may make claim to the property attached, may file an answer defending against the attachment. The answer may be considered as raising an issue without any reply, and any issue of fact made may be tried with a jury if any party so desires. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 549, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Attaching creditors right to hearing 1
Constitutionality 2
Judgment of condemnation 3

1. Attaching creditors right to hearing

Where creditor of debtor who had sold his business to garnishee attached money which was in garnishee's hands and which represented part of purchase price, and other creditors subsequently made garnishee a party to action against debtor and garnishee consented to judgment against him and voluntarily paid other creditors, attaching creditor was entitled to hearing on issue of whether money was subject to his attachment or exempt under Bulk Sales Law. Smith v. Anderson (D.C. Mun. App. 1954, 107 A. 2d 126).

2. Constitutionality

Sections 16–310, 16–311, providing that surety submits to the jurisdiction of the court, and to a joint judgment, do not deprive surety of property without due process of law. United Surety Co. v. American Fruit Product Co. (1915, 35 S. Ct. 828, 238 U.S. 140, 59 L. Ed. 1238).

3. Judgment of condemnation

Where creditor of debtor selling his business to garnishee attached money in the garnishee's hands representing part of the purchase price and other creditors subsequently made garnishee a party to action against debtor, evidence justified judgment of condemnation against the garnishee. Anderson v. Smith (D.C. Mun. App. 1958, 137 A. 2d 715).

(a) In any case in which a writ of attachment is issued, the plaintiff may submit interrogatories in writing, in such form as may be allowed by the rules or special order of the court, to be served on any garnishee, asking about any property of the defendant in his possession or charge, or indebtedness of his to the defendant at the time of the service of the attachment, or between the time of service and the filing of his answers to the interrogatories. The garnishee shall file his answers under oath to the interrogatories within ten days after service upon him.

(b) In addition to the answers to written interrogatories required of him, the garnishee may, on motion, be required to appear in court and be examined orally, under oath, touching any property or credits of the defendant in his hands. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 549, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–303 (Mar 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 447, 31 Stat. 1259).

Section 16–552 herein, which formerly contained provisions similar to this section applicable to attachment after judgment, was amended in 1954 to provide that the garnishee's answers should be verified by a written declaration that they are made under the penalties of perjury; but no change was made in this section which requires answers under oath. Whether or not it is desirable to have different forms of verification of the garnishee's answers, depending upon whether the attachment is before or after judgment, is a question beyond the scope of this revision. See note under section 16–501 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Answer by corporation 1
Failure to answer in time 2
Notice 3
Oral examination 4
Safe-deposit box 5

1. Answer by corporation

Quaere: Where a corporation garnishee may answer per alium through an agent or must answer per se, through its officers. Particularly when no effort was made to examine deponent orally as to the scope of his authority. International Seal Co. v. Beyer (33 App. D.C. 172). Compare Moses v. Hayes (36 App. D.C. 194), as to authority of agent to execute bond.

An affidavit signed by the president, secretary, or other proper officer of a corporation is prima facie to be considered the act of the corporation. Id.

A corporation garnishee may make answer, subscribed and sworn to by a representative of the corporation as "associate counsel." Mutual Ben. Life Ins. Co. of Newark, N.J. v. Flynn (1931, 48 F. 2d 1020, 60 App. D.C. 108).

2. Failure to answer in time

Upon failure of garnishee to answer within time limit adverse party must apply to enforce such default. A failure to do so is a tacit consent to an extension of time within which the answer may be filed. Banville v. Sullivan (11 App. D.C. 23).

It is not necessary to secure leave of court to file the answer after expiration of time limit, when no steps have been taken to enforce default. Id.

Limitation is not for the benefit of the pleader, but for his opponent, and, if the opponent fails to take advantage of the default, failure to plead in time will be deemed waived. Shannon & Luchs Constrn. Co. v. Reichelderfer (1932, 57 F. 2d 402, 61 App. D.C. 36).

3. Notice

When the garnishment is served on the garnishee, the suit becomes a suit in personam against the garnishee and he is entitled to notice. United States ex rel. Ordmann v. Cummings (1936, 85 F. 2d 273, 66 App. D.C. 107).

4. Oral examination

This section permits of an oral examination of the garnishee as broad as the one in writing and can be invoked although garnishee has not admitted in his written answers that in fact he has property or credits of the defendant in his hands. Fidelity Sav. Co. v. Security Sav. & Commercial Bank (1925, 3 F. 2d 351, 55 App. D.C. 180).

A traverse of the answer is not a condition precedent to the exercise of the right to require oral examination. Flynn v. Potomac Elec. Power Co. (1931, 47 F. 2d 978, 60 App. D.C. 82).

5. Safe-deposit box

Trust company must answer interrogatory as to whether or not defendant has a safe-deposit box. Washington Loan & Trust Co. v. Susquehanna Coal Co. (26 App. D.C. 149).

§ 16–522. Traverse of garnishee's answers—Trial of issue—Costs and attorney's fee.

If any garnishee answers to interrogatories that he does not have property or credits of the defendant, or has less than the amount of the plaintiff's claim, the plaintiff may traverse the answer as to the existence or amount of the property or credits, and the issue thereby made may be tried as provided by section 16–520. In such a case, where judgment is rendered for the garnishee, the plaintiff shall be adjudged to pay to the garnishee, in addition to the taxed costs, a reasonable attorney's fee. If the issue is found for the plaintiff, judgment shall be rendered for him in accordance with the finding. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 549, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–317 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 461, 31 Stat. 1262).

Similar provisions as to attachment after judgment are found in section 16–553 herein.

1. Attaching creditors right to hearing

Where creditor of debtor who had sold his business to garnishee attached money which was in garnishee's hands and which represented part of purchase price, and other creditors subsequently made garnishee a party to action against debtor and garnishee consented to judgment against him and voluntarily paid other creditors, attaching creditor was entitled to hearing on issue of whether money was subject to his attachment or exempt under Bulk Sales Law. Smith v. Anderson (D.C. Mun. App. 1954, 107 A. 2d 126).

2. Attorney's fee

This section providing that in all cases where judgment shall be entered for garnishee, plaintiff shall be adjudged to pay to garnishee, in addition to taxed costs, a reasonable counsel fee, is not limited to services of counsel rendered in trial court but includes services rendered in appellate court, but allowance for such services should be made by trial court. Lincoln Loan Service v. Motor Credit Co. (D.C. Mun. App. 1951, 83 A. 2d 332).

3. Judgment of condemnation

Where creditor of debtor selling his business to garnishee attached money in the garnishee's hands representing part of the purchase price and other creditors subsequently made garnishee a party to action against debtor, evidence justified judgment of condemnation against the garnishee. Anderson v. Smith (D.C. Mun. App. 1958, 137 A. 2d 715).

4. Previous decisions, effect of

Where one of several creditors who had judgments of condemnation against debtor, filed traverse to garnishee's answer in attachment and offered to prove that creditor's attachment lien was entitled to preference over claims garnishee was attempting to treat in his answer as preferred liens previous decision in same case which merely set forth order of payment of creditors having judgments of condemnation and which did not determine issue as to preferences did not eliminate creditor's right to have trial of issue as to such alleged preferences at present trial. Troshinsky v. Feldman (D.C. Mun. App. 1951, 81 A. 2d 91).

5. Procedure for interrogatories

The procedure permitted by section 16–303 is not limited or modified by this section. Fidelity Sav. Co. v. Security Sav. & Commercial Bank (1925, 3 F. 2d 35, 55 App. D.C. 180).

6. Time for return

"In the absence of a statutory limitation, an attachment return must be made within a reasonable time, or it will be held to be discontinued." Simpson v. Minnix (30 App. D.C. 582).

Where attachment had been outstanding for 11 years, and no issue joined on garnishee's return, it will be deemed abandoned and the action discontinued, and a scire facias may issue to revive the judgment. Id.

7. Traverse not necessary for oral examination

Court cites Fidelty Sav. Co. v. Security Sav. & Commerical Bank (55 App. D.C. 180, 3 Fed. (2d) 351), and says it was not necessary for the plaintiff to traverse the answer of the garnishee, in order to exercise the right of examining the garnishee orally under oath. Flynn v. Potomac Elec. Power Co. (1931, 47 F. 2d 978, 60 App. D.C. 82).

§ 16–523. Claims to attached property.

Any person may file his motion and affidavit in the cause, at any time before the final disposition of the property attached or its proceeds, except where it is real property, setting forth a claim thereto or an interest in or lien upon the same, acquired before the levy of the attachment. The court, without other pleading, shall try the issues raised by the claim, with a jury if either party so requests, and make all orders necessary to protect any rights of the claimant. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 550, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–318 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 462, 31 Stat. 1262).

Similar provisions as to attachment after judgment are found in section 16–554 herein.

Reference to "motion and affidavit in the cause" is substituted for "petition in the cause, under oath", to conform more nearly with modern practice. The use of petitions is now rare and archaic.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Agency 1
Oral agreements 2
Recovery after "final disposition" 3

1. Agency

Where landlord brought suit against tenant for unpaid rent and caused writ of attachment before judgment to be sued out, and, under writ, money, which had been received by auctioneer from sale of tenant's mortgaged furniture and furnishings, was seized, and tenant moved to quash writ, and agent of chattel mortgagee intervened, claiming that the money was not subject to attachment because of alleged oral agreement with tenant that sum realized from sale of furniture and furnishings should be paid to mortgagee in full settlement of mortgaged debt, it was within province of trial judge to find that tenant was not the agent of the agent of the mortgagee in having furniture and furnishings sold. Thurm v. Wall (D.C. Mun. App. 1954, 104 A. 2d 835).

2. Oral agreements

Where landlord brough suit against tenant for unpaid rent and caused writ of attachment before judgment to be sued out, and, under writ, money, which had been received by auctioneer from sale of tenant's mortgaged furniture and furnishings, was seized, and tenant moved to quash writ, and agent of chattel mortgagee intervened, claiming that the money was not subject to attachment because of alleged oral agreement with tenant that sum realized from sale of furniture and furnishings should be paid to mortgagee in full settlement of mortgaged debt, alleged oral agreement was without force or effect under statute of frauds to defeat rights of landlord. Thurm v. Wall (D.C. Mun. App. 1954, 104 A. 2d 835).

3. Recovery after "final disposition"

In a replevin action against the United States marshal to recover goods seized under writ of attachment, a plea that the plaintiff should have proceeded under this section comes too late when made after close of plaintiff's case. Splain v. B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co. (1923, 290 F. 275, 53 App. D.C. 300).

§ 16–524. Judgment generally—Condemnation of attached property.

(a) If the defendant in the action has been served with process, final judgment may not be rendered against the garnishee until the action against the defendant is determined.

(b) If in such an action judgment is rendered for the defendant, the garnishee shall be discharged and shall recover his costs, and the property attached or its proceeds shall be restored to the garnishee or to the defendant, as the case may require.

(c) If in such an action judgment is rendered in favor of the plaintiff against the defendant, and it appears that the plaintiff is entitled to a judgment of condemnation of the property attached, the court shall proceed to enter such judgment in the attachment as is directed by sections 16–525 to 16–527. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 550, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Application for judgment against garnishee 2
Evidence of indebtedness 3
Garnishment is suit in personam 4
Judgment 5
Prior determination against debtor 6
Release of assets 7
Trading with the enemy 8

1. Amendment of garnishment

It was proper for court to allow amendment of garnishments so as to correctly designate corporate name of garnishee where use of incorrect name had neither prejudiced nor mislead it. Hotel Windsor Park, Inc. v. Arco Contractors, Inc. (D.C. Mun App. 1957, 134 A. 2d 322).

2. Application for judgment against garnishee

The rule requiring applications for judgment against garnishees to be filed within four weeks after their answers relates to garnishment after judgment and had no application to garnishments served before judgment where action was not determined within such period, in view of this section forbidding judgment against garnishee until determination of action. Hotel Windsor Park, Inc. v. Arco Contractors, Inc. (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, A. 2d 322).

3. Evidence of indebtedness

In proceeding wherein company which had installed rink in hotel, at request of non-resident entertainers engaged by hotel, garnished hotel to attach sums allegedly due entertainers so as to acquire jurisdiction of them to recover for services in installing rink, and wherein hotel disclaimed that it was indebted to entertainers on date of service of garnishment though it later made payments to them, evidence on whether it was so indebted sustained trial court's ruling against it. Hotel Windsor Park, Inc. v. Arco Contractors, Inc. (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 134 A. 2d 322).

4. Garnishment is suit in personam

In garnishment proceeding, it is person of garnishee, not res, which confers jurisdiction, and when garnishment is served, suit becomes suit in personam against garnishee, and in absence of such personal jurisdiction, a judgment against garnishee is a nullity. Hollywood Credit Clothing Co. v. Hundley (D.C. Mun. App. 1955, 118 A. 2d 515).

5. Judgment

Where no judgment has been rendered against defendant a judgment by default against garnishee is void. James E. Colliflower & Co. v. McCallum-Sauber Co. (1933, 63 F. 2d 366, 61 App. D.C. 390).

6. Prior determination against debtor

Judgment should not be entered against garnishee until action against principal debtor is determined. Marvins Credit, Inc v. General Motors Corp. (D.C. Mun. App. 1956, 119 A. 2d 447).

7. Release of assets

Judgment of condemnation before ultimate determination of all claims in case has been had does not, in all circumsances, operate to permit garnishee, without risk of liability, to release balance of assets garnished, and matter depends on determination as to which of the parties, plaintiff or garnishee, was at fault in permitting situation to develop. J. M. Zamoiski Co. v. Discount Sales Co. (1960, 187 F. Supp. 663).

Where garnishee, before it was called on to pay out any attached money, received letter from plaintiff's counsel stating that plaintiff had moved for summary judgment in certain amount, and that such sum would be condemned as soon as judgment was entered, and that it would be necessary for garnishee to hold balance of attached funds until determination of case, and thereafter partial judgment and judgment of condemnation had thereon both recited that the judgment was a partial judgment, and garnishee inadvertently released balance of attached funds before final judgment was entered for plaintiff, plaintiff was entitled to satisfaction of the final judgment by condemnation. Id.

8. Trading with the enemy

Section 30 of the Trading with the Enemy Act, 50 Appendix, U.S. Code § 30, providing that money or property in the hands of the Alien Property Custodian should be subject to attachment in accordance with the provisions of the Code of the District of Columbia, was construed to authorize a decree of condemnation against such money or property, notwithstanding the further provision in section 30 that "nothing in this section shall be construed as authorizing the taking of actual possession, by any officer of the court, of any money or other property held by the Alien Property Custodian or by the Treasurer of the United States." Sutherland v. Kreisch (1930, 41 F. 2d 974, 59 App. D.C. 351).

§ 16–525. Condemnation and sale of property—Proceeds of sale under interlocutory order.

In any form of action, where specific property has been attached and remains under the control of the court, judgment of condemnation of the property shall be entered, and as much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the demand of the plaintiff shall be sold under fieri-facias. If the property was sold under interlocutory order of the court, the proceeds, or as much thereof as may be necessary, shall be applied to the plaintiff's claim by order of the court. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 550, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. May disregard attached property

Where there are two judgments, one a personal judgment and the other one of condemnation, "it would be unreasonable to hold that the plaintiff must look for his satisfaction to the latter alone. He is entitled to realize his personal judgment out of any property of the judgment debtor which he finds available for the purpose; and he may wholly disregard the attached property, if he so desires." Adriance, Platt & Co. v. Heiskell (8 App. D.C. 240).

(a) When a garnishee has admitted credits in his hands, in answer to interrogatories served upon him, or the credits have been found upon an issue made as provided by this chapter, judgment shall be entered against him for the amount of credits admitted or found, not exceeding the plaintiff's claim, less a reasonable attorney's fee to be fixed by the court, and costs, and execution may be had thereon. When the credits are not immediately due and payable, execution shall be stayed until they become due.

(b) When the garnishee has failed to answer the interrogatories served on him, or to appear and show cause why a judgment of condemnation should not be entered, judgment shall be entered against him for the whole amount of the plaintiff's claim, and costs, and execution may be had thereon. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 550, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

1. Attaching creditors right to hearing

Where creditor of debtor who had sold his business to garnishee attached money which was in garnishee's hands and which represented part of purchase price, and other creditors subsequently made garnishee a party to action against debtor and garnishee consented to judgment against him and voluntarily paid other creditors, attaching creditor was entitled to hearing on issue of whether money was subject to his attachment or exempt under section 28–1701 et seq. Smith v. Anderson (D.C. Mun. App. 1954, 107 A. 126).

2. Attorney's fee

In garnishment proceedings, where trial court had question whether an attorney's fee should be allowed garnishee before it, in a motion to amend its judgment to provide therefor, but before reaching a decision thereon an appeal was noted, after mandate is received by the trial court, counsel for appellant may renew his request for such fee under the statute. Anderson v. Smith (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 137 A. 2d 715).

3. Failure to appear and show cause

The lower court was without power to enter judgment against the garnishee unless it failed to appear and show cause, or to answer. Mutual Ben. Life Ins. Co. of Newark, N.J. v. Flynn (1931, 48 F. 2d 1020, 60 App. D.C. 108).

4. Motion to vacate

Motion to vacate default judgment against garnishee was addressed to discretion of trial court. Ray v. Bruce (1943, 31 A. 2d 693).

In considering merits of garnishee's motion to vacate default judgment, garnishee's conduct is for court's consideration in determining whether delay in answering writ was due to inadvertence or indifference. Id.

Where motion to vacate default judgment against garnishee was based on grounds of misunderstanding that garnishee was required to answer garnishment in ten days after service, and advice of counsel that garnishment did not have to be answered until trial of another suit, but neither motion nor its amendment was verified or accompanied by affidavit and record did not disclose that evidence was offered to support the allegations, denial of motion was not an abuse of discretion. Id.

5. Rents accruing after service not credits

Rents not accrued before service of garnishment are not credits but merely contingent liabilities. United States Fidelity & Guar. Co. v. Wrenn (1937, 89 F. 2d 838, 67 App. D.C. 94).

6. Review

Appellate court cannot reverse trial court's denial of garnishee's motion to vacate default judgment against garnishee unless denial of motion was an abuse of discretion. Ray v. Bruce (1943, 31 A. 2d 693).

Order denying motion, filed within term at which judgment was entered, to vacate default judgment against garnishee, is not an "appealable order". Id.

(a) When property or credits attached are released upon an undertaking given as provided by sections 16–509 and 16–510, and judgment in the action is rendered in favor of the plaintiff, it is a joint judgment against both the defendant and all persons in the undertaking for the appraised value of the property or the amount of the credits.

(b) When the property attached has been delivered to or retained by a garnishee, upon his executing an undertaking as provided by section 16–509, judgment of condemnation of the property shall be rendered as provided by section 16–525, and judgment shall also be entered that the plaintiff recover from the garnishee and his surety or sureties the value of the property, not exceeding the plaintiff's claim, the judgment to be entered satisfied if the property is forthcoming and delivered to the marshal, undiminished in value, within ten days after the judgment; otherwise, execution thereon may be had against the garnishee and his surety or sureties; and if the property is so delivered to the marshal the same shall be sold by him under fieri facias to satisfy the judgment of condemnation. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 550, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §§ 16–311, 16–324 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, §§ 455, 468, 31 Stat. 1261, 1263; June 30, 1902, ch. 1329, 32 Stat. 530; Apr. 19, 1920, ch. 153, 41 Stat. 564).

Section consolidates part of section 16–311 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., with section 16–324 of such Code. The remainder of section 16–311 is set out in section 16–510 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–528. Judgment protects garnishee.

A judgment of condemnation against a garnishee, and execution thereon, or payment by the garnishee in obedience to the judgment or an order of the court, is a sufficient defense to any action brought against him by the defendant in the action in which the attachment is issued, for or concerning the property or credits so condemned. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 551, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–325 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 469, 31 Stat. 1263).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–529. Attachment in actions for fraudulent conveyances.

(a) Where the ground upon which an attachment is applied for is that the defendant has assigned, conveyed, or disposed of his property with intent to hinder, delay, or defraud his creditors, the attachment may be levied upon the property alleged to be so assigned or conveyed in the hands of the alleged fraudulent assignee or transferee, as a garnishee.

(b) The garnishee may have the same benefit of section 16–506 as the defendant in the action. If the court is of the opinion, upon the hearing of the affidavits filed, that the attachment ought not to have issued or to have been levied on the property claimed by the garnishee, the attachment may be quashed as to the garnishee and the levy set aside.

(c) If the levy is not set aside, the garnishee may answer that he was a bona fide purchaser from the defendant for value without notice of any fraud on the part of the defendant, and the answer shall be held to make an issue, without any further pleading in reply thereto; and issue may be tried as directed by section 16–520.

(d) When the issue is found in favor of the garnishee, judgment shall be rendered in his favor for his costs and a reasonable attorney fee. When the issue is found against the garnishee, but judgment in the action is rendered in favor of the defendant, the attachment shall be dissolved, and garnishee shall recover his costs.

(e) When the issue is found against the garnishee and judgment in the action is rendered in favor of the plaintiff against the defendant, or the defendant, not being found, has failed to appear in obedience to the order of publication against him, and when it appears upon the verdict of a jury that the claim of the plaintiff against the defendant is well founded, a judgment of condemnation of the property attached shall be rendered, as directed by section 16–524(c). (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 551, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §§ 16–326 to 16–330 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, §§ 470 to 474, 31 Stat. 1264).

Section consolidates sections 16–326 to 16–330 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed.

Changes are made in phraseology.

Constitutionality 2
Counsel fee not allowed 3
Counsel fees 4
Disclosure of safe-deposit box 5
In general 1
Issue made 6
Presumption of intent 7
"Reasonable counsel fee" 8

1. In general

This section provides that if the levy shall not be set aside, the garnishee may plead that he was a bona fide purchaser without notice of any fraud on the part of the defendant, and said plea shall make an issue to be tried by the court or by the jury if either party desires it. Morimura v. Samaha (25 App. D.C. 189).

2. Constitutionality

This provision is constitutional. Morimura v. Samaha (25 App. D.C. 189).

3. Counsel fee not allowed

Attorney's fee not allowed when issue found against garnishee. Morimura v. Samaha (25 App. D.C. 189).

Garnishee was not entitled to award of counsel fee for successfully opposing judgment creditor's motion for judgment. Hollywood Credit Clothing Co., Inc. v. Autoscope, Inc. (D.C. App. 1963, 193 A. 2d 733).

4. Counsel fees

Where there is no finding by the court in favor of the garnishee upon the issue made between him and the plaintiff, and by agreement sale was made and distributed, garnishee is not entitled to counsel fee. Russell v. Moderns Restaurant (1936, 80 F. 2d 533, 65 App. D.C. 90).

5. Disclosure of safe-deposit box

Upon an allegation that defendant has made a fraudulent assignment to his wife and son to defraud his creditors, a garnishee may be compelled to disclose whether the wife or son has rented a safe-deposit box from it. Washington Loan & Trust Co. v. Susquehanna Coal Co. (26 App. D.C. 149).

6. Issue made

An issue may be made between the attaching creditor and the garnishee as to whether the attachment should have been issued and levied on the property. Russell v. Moderns Restaurant (1936, 80 F. 2d 533, 65 App. D.C. 90).

7. Presumption of intent

"Where an instrument contains provisions, the necessary legal effect of which is to work a fraud upon creditors, the assignor is conclusively presumed to have intended the reasonable consequences of his own act," and the property in his hands is subject to attachment. Cissell v. Johnston (4 App. D.C. 335).

8. "Reasonable counsel fee"

What is a reasonable fee in a particular case is within the discretion of the court. Morimura v. Samaha (25 App. D.C. 189).

§ 16–530. Time for trial of issues.

All issues raised by answers to the attachment, in any case, may be tried at the same time as the issues raised by the pleadings in the action, or separately, as may be just. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 551, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–331 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 475, 31 Stat. 1264).

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. Trial of main issue

A defendant, in traversing an attachment before judgment, may deny by affidavit any of the specific statutory grounds alleged, but he may not by a motion to quash an attachment achieve a trial of the main issue in the case unless it is determined that issues raised by the motion shall be tried at same time as issues raised by the pleadings. Morfessis v. Thomas (D.C. Mun. App. 1952, 91 A. 2d 883).

The clerk of the court shall keep an attachment docket, in which, as well as in the regular docket, shall be entered all attachments levied upon real estate, with a description, in brief, of the real estate so levied upon. The attachments shall be indexed in the names of the defendant and of any person in whose possession the estate may have been levied upon. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 551, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–334 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 477, 31 Stat. 1264).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–532. Other remedies of judgment creditor.

Nothing herein contained deprives a judgment creditor of the right to file a civil action to enforce his judgment against an equitable interest in real or personal estate of the judgment defendant, or to have a conveyance of the real or personal estate by the defendant, made with intent to hinder, delay, and defraud his creditors, set aside. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 552, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–332 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 476, 31 Stat. 1264).

Reference to "a bill in equity" is changed to "a civil action" pursuant to rule 2 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

Changes are made in phraseology.

The provisions of this Code relating to attachments apply to attachment proceedings in the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 552, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1).

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §§ 11–733, 11–751a, 16–335 (Mar. 3, 1921, ch. 125, § 9, 41 Stat. 1312; Oct. 23, 1962, Pub. L. 87–873, § 1, 76 Stat. 1171; July 8, 1963, Pub. L. 88–60, § 1, 77 Stat. 77).

Section consolidates sections 11–733 and 16–335 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., which were from the same provision of the 1921 act.

Section 11–751a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., enacted by the act of Oct. 23, 1962, is also cited as one of the sources of this section, as section 11–751a changed the name of the Municipal Court for the District of Columbia to the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions.

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Generally 1
Attachment against executor 2

1. Generally

The provisions of this section regarding attachment and garnishment are applicable in municipal court. Frank v. Malone (1942, 126 F. 2d 651, 75 U.S. App. D.C. 296).

2. Attachment against executor

In action in municipal court of District of Columbia wherein writ of attachment is directed to an executor, in connection with an action against a third party who claims an interest in the estate, the interest of other persons in the estate and the exclusive jurisdiction of district court in probate proceedings are fully protected by statutory provision that, if executor is in doubt whether defendant's share of estate will prove sufficient to pay plaintiff's debt, no judgment shall be entered against the executor until passage by probate court of his final or other account showing money or property in his hands to which defendant is entitled. Frank v. Malone (1942, 126 F. 2d 651, 75 U.S. App. D.C. 296).

SUBCHAPTER II.—ATTACHMENT AND GARNISHMENT AFTER JUDGMENT IN AID OF EXECUTION

As used in this subchapter, "judgment" includes an unconditional decree for the payment of money, and this subchapter is applicable to such a decree. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 552, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Section 15–218 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., cited above, provided, as follows:

"The aforegoing provisions (this chapter) shall be applicable to an unconditional decree in equity for the payment of money. Such decree may be revived by scire facias, and the same writs of execution may be issued thereon within the same time and have the same effect as liens, and shall be executed and returned in the same manner as if issued upon a common-law judgment.".

In the above-quoted provisions, the parenthetical reference "(this chapter)" referred to chapter 2 of Title 15 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., in which sections 15–218 and 15–201 to 15–217 thereof, relating to execution of judgment were set out. None of the provisions, relating to attachment and garnishment after judgment, which are carried into this subchapter (sections 15–301 to 15–312 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed.), was set out in such chapter 2. They were set out in chapter 3. However, in the original statute (Code of 1901), the provisions in both of the chapters, including section 1104 thereof, on which section 15–218 was based, were set out in one chapter (ch. 26, §§ 1074–1104, 31 Stat. 1358–1362). Therefore, it would seem that section 1104 made, not only the provisions relating to execution on judgment, but also those relating to attachment after judgment, (this subchapter), applicable to unconditional decrees ("in equity") for the payment of money. Therefore, section 15–218 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., in addition to being carried into chapter 3 of Title 15 of this revised Part, relating to executions, is carried into this subchapter.

However, it is apparent that all the above-quoted provisions following "scire facias," related only to executions and not to attachments, and accordingly are omitted from this section. Further, the reference to revival by scire facias is omitted for the same reason stated in revision note under section 15–101 herein. Revival of judgments and decrees is now had by motion and hearing. See rules 54(a) and 81(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, and rule 30 of the local rules of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia.

Words "in equity", which followed "unconditional decree", are omitted as obsolete, in view of the merger of law and equity procedure by the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. See rule 2 thereof, also rule 2 of the civil rules of the Court of General Sessions.

The remaining provisions are reworded, but without change of substance.

§ 16–542. Issuance of attachment after judgment—Costs.

An attachment may be issued upon a judgment either before or after or at the same time with a fieri facias. If costs are unnecessarily multiplied thereby they shall be charged to the party causing the attachment to be issued. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 552, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 15–301 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1086, 31 Stat. 1359).

For discussion as to the relationship between this subchapter and subchapter I of this chapter, see revision note under section 16–501 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology.

Oral examination 2

1. Executors and administrators

The code provides expressly for actions and judgments against executors and administrators and for the issuance of writs of fieri facias thereon, and there is no reason to doubt that this contemplates the use of attachment and garnishment. Fishel v. Kite (1940, 101 F. 2d 685, 69 App. D.C. 360, certiorari denied 59 S. Ct. 645, 306 U.S. 656, 83 L. Ed. 1054).

2. Oral examination

One does not have to file a traverse to garnishee's answer in Municipal Court before being entitled to oral examination. Ourisman Chevrolet Inc. v. Pohanka Service, Inc. (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 138 A. 2d 668).

§ 16–543. Revival of judgment unnecessary.

Attachment may be issued at any time during the life of the judgment, without issuing an order reviving the judgment previously thereto. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 552, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 15–302 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1087, 31 Stat. 1359).

Words "an order reviving the judgment" are substituted for "scire facias" pursuant to rule 81(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, which abolished the writ of scire facias. See, also, rule 30 of the local rules of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia.

An attachment may be levied upon the judgment debtor's goods, chattels, and credits. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 552, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Property subject to attachment generally, see section 16–507 herein.

Only one attachment upon goods, chattels, and credits of a judgment debtor may be satisfied at one time. Where more than one such attachment issued against the same judgment debtor is served on a garnishee the attachments shall be satisfied in the order in which they were served upon the garnishee. This section does not apply with respect to an attachment upon wages to which subchapter III of this chapter applies. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 552, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Changes are made in phraseology.

Priority of the liens of attachments, see section 16–507 herein.

§ 16–546. Attachments of credits.

An attachment shall be levied upon credits of the defendant, in the hands of a garnishee, by serving the garnishee with a copy of the writ of attachment and of the interrogatories accompanying the writ, and a notice that any property or credits of the defendant in his hands are seized by virtue of the attachment. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 552, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Personal property in hands of trust company 1
Retention by garnishee 2
Subsequent creditor 3

1. Personal property in hands of trust company

Personal property in the hands of a trust company may be garnished. International Finance Corp. v. Jawish (1934, 71 F. 2d 985, 63 App. D.C. 262).

2. Retention by garnishee

Where garnishments were dismissed and no steps were taken to preserve lien, lien was extinguished and garnishee could pay funds to owner immediately. Mandel v. Lofton (D.C. Mun. App. 1952, 89 A. 2d 880).

3. Subsequent creditor

To rule that after writ of attachment has been served on garnishee a subsequent attaching creditor might seize the property so garnished would be inconsistent with the intent and purpose of the law. International Finance Corp. v. Jawish (1934, 71 F. 2d 985, 63 App. D.C. 262).

§ 16–547. Retention of property or credits by garnishee.

Where the property or credits attached or sought to be attached are held by the garnishee in the name of or for the account of a person other than the defendant, the garnishee shall retain the property or credits during the period pending determination by the court of the propriety of the attachment or the rightful owner of the property or credits. During that period the garnishee shall incur no liability whatsoever for the retention. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 552, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

(a) An attachment may be levied upon debts due to the defendant upon a judgment or decree by a service similar to that prescribed by section 16–546 upon the debtor owing the debts.

(b) An attachment may be levied upon money or property of the defendant in the hands of the marshal. It binds the money or property from the time of service, and is a legal excuse to the officer for not paying or delivering the same as he would otherwise be bound to do. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 553, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Defendant 1
Retention of seized money subject to tax lien 2

1. Defendant

The "defendant" referred to is one who has a right to money in the hands of an administrator or executor of an estate which is subject to a judgment against him. Sanford v. Sanford (1923, 286 F. 777, 52 App. D.C. 315).

2. Retention of seized money subject to tax lien

District court, in a proceeding on motion for return of property and suppression of property as evidence could, after suppressing evidence, direct that money be retained in custody subject to federal tax lien and a final disposition thereof. Welsh v. United States (1955, 220 W. 2d 200, 95 U.S. App. D.C. 93).

An attachment may be levied upon money or property of the defendant in the hands of an executor or administrator, and binds the same from the time of service. If the executor or administrator makes return to the writ that he can not certainly answer whether the defendant's share of the money or property in his hands will prove sufficient to pay the plaintiff's debt, a judgment of condemnation may not be rendered as against the executor or administrator until the passage by the Probate Court of his final or other account showing money or property in his hands to which the defendant is entitled. § 16–550. Preservation of property—Sale.

The court may make all orders necessary for the preservation of the property attached. When the property is perishable, or for other reasons a sale of it appears expedient, the court may order that the property be sold and its proceeds paid into court and held subject to its order on the final decision of the case. § 16–551. Defending against the attachment—Trial of issues.

A garnishee or stranger to the action who may make claim to the property attached may file an answer defending against the attachment. The answer may be considered as raising an issue without any reply, and any issue of fact thereby made may be tried with a jury if any party so desires. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 553, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Admission of ownership 1
Attorney's lien 2
Oral examination 3
Ownership of fund 4
Validity of judgment 5

1. Admission of ownership

Where answers of bank disclosed deposits in the names of appellants individually, and appellants in their affidavits in support of their motion to quash as well as in their verified pleas averred that the said deposits belonged to them, they can not complain if court takes their statements as true and condemns such deposits to satisfy a default judgment against them personally. Ostrow v. McNeal (1938, 93 F. 2d 228, 68 App. D.C. 69, certiorari denied 58 S. Ct. 410, 302 U.S. 764, 82 L. Ed. 593).

2. Attorney's lien

In garnishment proceeding, garnishee's assertion of lien for attorney's services would not furnish basis for setting aside District Court's judgment of condemnation, in view of fact that assertion was not made in manner required by District of Columbia law. Draisner et al. v. Liss Realty Co., Inc. (1956, 228 F. 2d 48, 97 U.S. App. D.C. 77).

3. Oral examination

One does not have to file a traverse to garnishee's answer in Municipal Court before being entitled to oral examination. Ourisman Chevrolet Inc. v. Pohanka Service, Inc. (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 138 A. 2d 668).

4. Ownership of fund

Neither the answer of the garnishee nor the information obtained in the oral examination is conclusive upon the court in respect of the true ownership of the fund. Young v. Nicholson (1940, 107 F. 2d 177, 70 App. D.C. 351).

5. Validity of judgment

Where judgment debtor's partners were not made parties to garnishment proceeding, and did not voluntarily enter such proceeding, condemnation judgment which was against credits and properties in hands of one trustee, as garnishee, or which might affect both trustees as garnishees, would be good only to extent of judgment debtor's interest alone. Draisner et al. v. Liss Realty Co., Inc. (1956, 228 F. 2d 48, 97 U.S. App. D.C. 77).

(a) In any case in which a writ of attachment is issued, the plaintiff may submit interrogatories in writing, in such form as may be allowed by the rules or special order of the court, to be served upon any garnishee, asking about any property of the defendant in his possession or charge, or indebtedness of his to the defendant at the time of the service of the attachment or between the time of service and the filing of his answers to the interrogatories. The garnishee shall file his answers, verified by a written declaration that the answers are made under the penalties of perjury, to the interrogatories within ten days after service upon him.

(b) In addition to the answers to written interrogatories required of him, the garnishee may, on motion, be required to appear in court and be examined orally, under oath, touching any property or credits of the defendant in his hands.

(c) Whoever willfully makes and subscribes a return, statement, or other document, pursuant to this section, that contains, or is verified by, a written declaration that it is made under the penalties of perjury, and that he does not believe to be true and correct as to every material matter, is subject to the penalties prescribed for perjury. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 553, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Form 2
In general 1
Judgment against garnishee 3
Judgment of condemnation 4
Oral examination 5

1. In general

Statute contemplates (1) "the garnishee answering interrogatories, (2) oral examination of the garnishee, supplementing the answers to the interrogatories, (3) traverse by plaintiff of the garnishee's answer, after the oral examination, and (4) the determination of the issue joined by traverse" and when the record shows only the first of these steps the trial court is correct in denying the motion for summary judgment. Dickinson v. Brooks (1940, 108 F. 2d 4, 71 App. D.C. 106).

When the usual written interrogatories were directed to the garnishee and she answered that she was indebted to defendant in the principal suit and that this indebtedness, in the amount of $300, had been established by stipulation filed in an equity suit between her and the defendant then pending in the District Court, and when the stipulation was filed as an exhibit and recited that the named amount was "in compromise of all the various claims and counterclaims between the parties" and if plaintiff was not satisfied with this answer, he had means of testing its accuracy and truthfulness. Id.

2. Form

A garnishee is not excused from answering a proper question merely because it is inaptly combined with improper queries in a single interrogatory where the proper question is clear and easily separable. Ostrow v. McNeal (1938, 93 F. 2d 228, App. D.C. 69, certiorari denied 58 S. Ct. 410, 302 U.S. 764, 82 L. Ed. 593).

3. Judgment against garnishee

Where garnisher had obtained a judgment of condemnation against garnishee, garnisher was not required to make a demand for payment before issuing an attachment against garnishee's bank account, and could not be liable to garnishee for wrongful attachment and malicious abuse of process for attaching bank account without first giving notice or demanding payment. District Credit Clothing, Inc. v. Square Deal Trucking Company (D.C. Mun. App. 1960, 163 A. 2d 822).

Where University which received part of its support from the United States, had the right to hire and fire any employee without consulting any branch of federal government, and salary of furniture repairmen was fixed by University, repairman was an employee of the University, and his salary was owed by the University, and thus was subject to garnishment, even though University intended to pay repairman from funds furnished by government and by a United States Treasury check. Marvins Credit, Inc. v. Howard University (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 101 A. 2d 247).

4. Judgment of condemnation

Where traverse was not filed to garnishee's answer in Municipal Court, judgment of condemnation immediately following oral examination of garnishee was not proper, and could only be entered when credits were found upon an issue made pursuant to statute. Ourisman Chevrolet Inc. v. Pohanka Service, Inc. (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 138 A. 2d 668).

5. Oral examination

The provision in this section and § 15–309 do not affect the right of the plaintiff to examine the garnishee orally under oath, without waiting for a traverse of the answer. Flynn v. Potomac Elec. Power Co. (1931, 47 F. 2d 978, 60 App. D.C. 82).

The right to oral examination supplementing the information obtained in the garnishee's answer is permitted in express statutory terms. Young v. Nicholson (1940, 107 F. 2d 177, 70 App. D.C. 351).

Where the garnishee's answer on its face shows the uncertainty as to the ownership of deposits, it is error to refuse plaintiff the right to examine the garnishee orally. Id.

One does not have to file a traverse to garnishee's answer in Municipal Court before being entitled to oral examination. Ourisman Chevrolet Inc. v. Pohanka Service, Inc. (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 138 A. 2d 668).

The purpose of oral examination of garnishee in open court as a supplement to his answers to plaintiff's written interrogatories is to enable an attaching plaintiff to test accuracy of such answers and determine whether to challenge garnishee for formal traverse. Seaboard Finance Co. v. Ruppert (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 100 A. 2d 454).

In garnishment proceedings against employer of plaintiff's judgment debtor, plaintiff had right to examine garnishee orally respecting his written answers to plaintiff's interrogatories, where such answers were contradictory as to garnishee's method of paying defendant's salary. Id.

If a garnishee answers to interrogatories that he does not have property or credits of the defendant, or has less than the amount of the plaintiff's judgment, the plaintiff may traverse the answer as to the existence or amount of the property or credits, and the issue thereby made may be tried as provided by section 16–551. In such a case, where judgment is rendered for the garnishee, the plaintiff shall be adjudged to pay to the garnishee, in addition to the taxed costs, a reasonable attorney's fee. If the issue is found for the plaintiff, judgment shall be rendered for him in accordance with the finding. (Dec. 23, 1963, 79 Stat. 554, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Costs 1
Counsel fees 2
Oral examination 3
Plaintiff may traverse 4

1. Costs

Where judgment creditor issued garnishment to employer of alleged judgment debtor, and alleged judgment debtor demanded trial right of property claiming that he was not same person as judgment debtor, and judgment creditor then entered a praecipe releasing attached credits alleged judgment debtor was entitled to costs. Hunter v. Hollywood Credit Clothing Co., Inc. (D.C. Mun. App. 1951, 77 A. 2d 317).

2. Counsel fees

Garnishee was not entitled to award of counsel fee for successfully opposing judgment, creditor's motion for judgment. Hollywood Credit Clothing Co. Inc. v. Autoscope, Inc. (D.C. App. 1963, 193 A. 2d 733).

Evidence supported finding that garnishee in whose favor judgment had been entered after trial on traverse to his answer had incurred obligation to pay for legal services furnished. A. A. Peikin v. C. Williams (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 167 A. 2d 355).

Good faith in issuance of garnishment and traversing of garnishee's answer could be taken into consideration in fixing reasonable counsel fee recoverable by successful garnishee but was not absolute bar to grant of counsel fee. Id.

Award to garnishee, in whose favor judgment had been entered after trial on traverse to his answer, of attorney's fee in amount of $300 was not unreasonable although the attachment was for only $600. Id.

3. Oral examination

One does not have to file a traverse to garnishee's answer to Municipal Court before being entitled to oral examination. Ourisman Chrevolet Inc. v. Pohanka Service, Inc. (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 138 A. 2d 668).

The purpose of oral examination of garnishee in open court as a supplement to his answers to plaintiff's written interrogatories is to enable an attaching plaintiff to test accuracy of such answers and determine whether to challenge garnishee for formal traverse. Seaboard Finance Co. v. Ruppert (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 100 A. 2d 454).

In garnishment proceedings against employer of plaintiff's judgment debtor, plaintiff had right to examine garnishee orally respecting his written answers to plaintiff's interrogatories, where such answers were contradictory as to garnishee's methods of paying defendant's salary. Id.

4. Plaintiff may traverse

The plaintiff may traverse the garnishee's answer, and the issue thereby made may be tried before the court or by a jury if either party so desire. Young v. Nicholson (1940, 107 F. 2d 177, 70 App. D.C. 351).

If plaintiff is not satisfied with answer to written interrogatories, he has means of testing its accuracy and truthfulness. Dickinson v. Brooks (1940, 108 F. 2d 4, 71 App. D.C. 106).

§ 16–554. Claims to attached property.

Any person may file his motion and affidavit in the cause, at any time before the final disposition of the property attached or its proceeds, except where it is real property, setting forth a claim thereto or an interest in or lien upon the same. The court, without other pleadings, shall try the issues raised by the claim, with a jury if either party so requests, and may make all orders necessary to protect any rights of the claimant. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 554, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 15–310 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1096, 31 Stat. 1360).

Similar provisions as to attachment generally are found in section 16–523 herein.

Reference to "motion and affidavit in the cause" is substituted for "petition in the cause, under oath,", to conform more nearly with modern practice. The use of petitions is now rare and archaic.

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Admission of ownership 1
Attorney's lien 2
Equitable interest 3
Evidence of notice 4
Independent proceeedings 5
Petition asserting ownership 6
Validity of judgment 7

1. Admission of ownership

Where appellants have stated in affidavits and in verified pleadings that deposits in bank belonged to them absolutely, they can not complain that the issue as to such credits was not determined as provided in this section. Ostrow v. McNeal (1938, 93 F. 2d 228, 68 App. D.C. 69, certiorari denied 58 S. Ct. 410, 302 U.S. 764, 82 L. Ed. 593).

2. Attorney's lien

In garnishment proceeding, garnishee's assertion of lien for attorney's services would not furnish basis for setting aside District Court's judgment of condemnation, in view of fact that assertion was not made in manner required by District of Columbia law. Draisner et al. v. Liss Realty Co., Inc. (1956, 228 F. 2d 48, 97 U.S. App. D.C. 77).

3. Equitable interest

Where conditional sales agreement for sale of restaurant equipment was recorded in District of Columbia, and thereafter judgment creditor of buyer issued execution and seized part of equipment, seller had right to file petition in cause in which attachment was made, asserting ownership and demanding order for return thereof. Cutler v. Cooper (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 96 A. 2d 360).

4. Evidence of notice

On buyer's petition to recover automobile retained by vendor and which was attached by vendor's judgment creditor before recording of transfer of title, evidence established that attaching marshal had no notice of transfer of title and consequently statute providing that unrecorded transfer of title was invalid as to parties not having actual knowledge of transfer when seller retained possession of goods was applicable. Barlow v. Langlands (D.C. Mun. App. 1955, 110 A. 2d 688).

5. Independent proceedings

When petition by alleged judgment debtor for trial right of attached property is filed, proceeding independent of main action is commenced with alleged judgment debtor as plaintiff and attaching party as defendant. Hunter v. Hollywood Credit Clothing Co., Inc. (D.C. Mun. App. 1951, 77 A. 2d 317).

6. Petition asserting ownership

Where conditional sales agreement for sale of restaurant equipment was recorded in District of Columbia, and thereafter judgment creditor of buyer issued execution and seized part of equipment; rule of municipal court for District of Columbia did not displace or supersede seller's long established statutory remedy of filing a petition in proceedings in which attachment had been made, asserting ownership and demanding an order for return thereof. Cutler v. Cooper (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 96 A. 2d 360).

7. Validity of judgment

Where judgment debtor's partners were not made parties to garnishment proceeding, and did not voluntarily enter such proceeding, condemnation judgment which was against credits and properties in hands of one trustee, as garnishee, or which might affect both trustees as garnishees, would be good only to extent of judgment debtor's interest alone. Draisner et al. v. Liss Realty Co., Inc. (1956, 228 F. 2d 48, 97 U.S. App. D.C. 77).

§ 16–555. Condemnation and sale of property—Proceeds of sale under interlocutory order.

Where the attachment has been levied upon specific property, on the return by the marshal, judgment of condemnation of the property may be entered, and as much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the plaintiff's judgment may be sold under a fieri facias. If the property was sold under interlocutory order of the court, the proceeds, or so much thereof as may be necessary, shall be applied to the plaintiff's claim by order of the court. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 554, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

(a) Subject to the provisions of subchapter III of this chapter, if a garnishee has admitted credits in his hands, in answer to interrogatories served upon him, or the credits have been found upon an issue made as provided by this chapter, judgment shall be entered against him for the amount of credits admitted or found, not exceeding the amount of the plaintiff's judgment, and costs, and execution shall be had thereon not to exceed the credits in his hands. When the credits are not immediately due and payable, execution shall be stayed until they become due.

(b) When the garnishee has failed to answer the interrogatories served on him, or to appear and show cause why a judgment of condemnation should not be entered, judgment shall be entered against him for the whole amount of the plaintiff's judgment and costs, and execution may be had thereon. 1. Amendment of garnishment

It was proper for court to allow amendment of garnishments so as to correctly designate corporate name of garnishee where use of incorrect name had neither prejudiced nor mislead it. Hotel Windsor Park, Inc. v. Arco Contractors, Inc. (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 134 A. 2d 322).

2. Answers to interrogatories

The garnishee, wife of the judgment debtor, may not be compelled to answer interrogatories that would compel her to testify against her husband. Commercial Credit Co. v. McReynolds (1934, 68 F. 2d 990, 63 App. D.C. 42).

Appellants having failed to make answer to the proper and separable portion of the third interrogatories within the time limited, judgment was properly entered against them. Ostrow v. McNeal (1938, 93 F. 2d 228, 68 App. D.C. 69, certiorari denied 58 S. Ct. 410, 302 U.S. 764, 82 L. Ed. 593).

This section, providing that judgment shall be entered against garnishee if garnishee shall have failed to answer interrogatory served on him or to appear and show cause why judgment of condemnation should not be entered, is not mandatory as applied to situation where garnishee has appeared and shown several reasons why no judgment of condemnation or of recovery should be entered. Horad v. Yee (D.C. Mun. App. 1951, 82 A. 2d 916).

3. Application for judgment against garnishee

The rule requiring applications for judgment against garnishees to be filed within four weeks after their answers relates to garnishment after judgment and had no application to garnishments served before judgment where action was not determined within such period, in view of statute forbidding judgment against garnishee until determination of action. Hotel Windsor Park, Inc. v. Arco Contractors, Inc. (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 134 A. 2d 322).

4. Attorney's lien

In garnishment proceeding, garnishee's assertion of lien for attorney's services would not furnish basis for setting aside District Court's judgment of condemnation, in view of fact that assertion was not made in manner required by District of Columbia law. Draisner et al. v. Liss Realty Co., Inc. (1956, 228 F. 2d 48, 97 U.S. App. D.C. 77).

5. Default

The lower court may not enter judgment by default against the garnishee unless it failed to appear and show cause, or to answer. Mutual Ben. Life Inc. Co., Newark, N.J. v. Flynn (1931, 48 F. 2d 1020, 60 App. D.C. 108).

6. Discretion of court

Under this section providing that if a garnishee fails to answer interrogatory served on him in connection with issuance of writ of attachment or fails to appear and show cause why a judgment of condemnation should not be entered, such judgment "shall" be entered against garnishee for whole amount of plaintiff's judgment and costs, the quoted word is not mandatory and court is not without discretion in the matter. Pastor v. Republic Savings and Loan Ass'n. (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 153 A. 2d 813).

Municipal Court has discretionary power after entering judgment of recovery against garnishee to set it aside for good cause shown, and such power to set aside a judgment presupposes power to refuse to enter it in the first instance for good cause shown. Horad v. Yee (D.C. Mun. App. 1951, 82 A. 2d 916).

In garnishment procedings, where garnishee appeared and showed several reasons why no judgment of condemnation or recovery should be entered, including garnishee's failure to understand nature of proceedings, his lack of indebtedness to judgment defendant, and right of judgment defendant to claim exemptions, there was no error in municipal court's use of judicial discretion in refusing to grant judgment of recovery against garnishee. Id.

7. Entry of judgment

Without valid judgment of record against principal debtor, municipal court has no right to enter judgment of recovery against garnishee. Horad v. Yee (D.C. Mun. App. 1951, 82 A. 2d 916.)

8. Failure to answer

Where judgment creditor caused a writ of attachment to issue on judgment addressed to savings and loan association as garnishee, requiring it to answer whether it was indebted to judgment debtor and notifying association that answer was required within ten days after service and that failure to answer might result in judgment being entered against association, and writ was served on assistant secretary-treasurer, who examined account of judgment debtor and found that account had been closed out and who concluded that no action was required and therefore placed writ in a file, court did not abuse its discretion in denying judgment creditor's motion for judgment against association for failure to answer. Pastor v. Republic Savings and Loan Ass'n. (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 153 A. 2d 813).

9. Oral examination

One does not have to file a traverse to garnishee's answer in Municipal Court before being entitled to oral examination. Ourisman Chevrolet Inc. v. Pohanka Service, Inc. (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 138 A. 2d 668).

10. Trust funds

In proceeding to enforce child support judgment against children's father's interest as beneficiary of trust, trial court could stay execution, as to that portion of trust fund not immediately due, until same became due. Seidenberg et al. v. Seidenberg (1957, 249 F. 2d 123, 101 U.S. App. D.C. 367).

11. Vacation of judgment

Where garnishee made a motion to vacate default judgment more than six months after entry of judgment, and garnishee claimed that it had mailed its answer to the garnishment to the court, and it was possible that answer had been received by court but had been inadvertently misplaced or misfiled, court, if it should find that garnishee had mailed an answer to the court, could, in its discretion, vacate the default judgment against the garnishee, but was not compelled to vacate the default judgment, in view of fact that garnishee failed to appear and contest motion for judgment. Fort Stevens Pharmacy v. Hollywood Credit Clothing Co. (D.C. Mun. App. 1956, 126 A. 2d 309).

In vacating default judgment against principal debtor and placing case on calendar for trial, municipal court, by same stroke of pen obliterated any right of creditor under vacated judgment to demand judgment against garnishee as to credits in favor of vacated-judgment debtor in such garnishee's hands. Horad v. Yee (D.C. Mun. App. 1951, 82 A. 2d 916).

12. Validity of judgment

Under District of Columbia law, default judgment against garnishee on ground that he had not answered interrogatories was void where record did not disclose that interrogatories had been served on garnishee, despite court's recital that marshal had served interrogatories. C. Austin v. O. Smith (1962, 312 F. 2d 337, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 97).

Default judgment against garnishee, grounded on his failure to answer interrogatories, was void, although failure to appear and show cause was alternative ground for default and record did not show that garnishee appeared and showed cause. Id.

District of Columbia statute permitting default judgment against garnishee is in derogation of common law and should be construed strictly against party who invokes it, and judgment based upon such statute should also be construed strictly against garnisher. Id.

Where judgment debtor's partners were not made parties to garnishment proceeding, and did not voluntarily enter such proceeding, condemnation judgment which was against credits and properties in hands of one trustee, as garnishee, or which might affect both trustees as garnishees, would be good only to extent of judgment debtor's interest alone. Draisner et al. v. Liss Realty Co., Inc. (1956, 228 F. 2d 48, 97 U.S. App. D.C. 77).

SUBCHAPTER III.—ATTACHMENT AND GARNISHMENT OF WAGES, ETC.

(a) As used in this subchapter, "wages" means:

(1) wages, salary, commissions, or other remuneration for services performed by an employee for his employer, including any such remuneration measured partly or wholly by percentages or share of profits, or by other sums based upon work done or results produced, whether or not the employee is given a drawing account; and

(2) any drawing account made available to an employee by his employer.

(b) The term "wages" does not include any amount paid or payable to an employee who is not a resident of the District of Columbia as remuneration for services performed within the District of Columbia, if the period for which the employee is engaged by the employer to perform such services within the District of Columbia is less than 15 consecutive days' duration; and any such amount shall be subject to attachment without regard to this subchapter. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 554, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 15–317 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1104A (d), (e), (f), as added Aug. 4, 1959, Pub. L. 86–130, § 1, 73 Stat. 276).

Section is derived from subsec. (c) of section 15–317 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., which was subsec. (f) of section 1104A of act Mar. 3, 1901, as added by section 1 of act Aug. 4, 1959, both cited above. Remainder of section 15–317 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., is incorporated in this subchapter.

Minor changes are made in phraseology, and changes are made in arrangement.

Notwithstanding any other provision of subchapter II of this chapter, where an attachment is levied upon wages due a judgment debtor from an employer-garnishee, the attachment shall become a lien and a continuing levy upon the gross wages due or to become due to the judgment debtor for the amount specified in the attachment to the extent of:

(1) 10 per centum of so much of the gross wages as does not exceed $200 due or to become due to the judgment debtor from the employer-garnishee for the pay period or periods ending in any calendar month; plus

(2) 20 per centum of so much of the gross wages as exceeds $200 but does not exceed $500 due or to become due to the judgment debtor from the employer-garnishee for the pay period or periods ending in any calendar month; plus

(3) 50 per centum of so much of the gross wages as exceeds $500 due or to become due to the judgment debtor from the employer-garnishee for the pay period or periods ending in any calendar month.

The levy shall be a continuing levy until the judgment, interest, and costs thereof are fully satisfied and paid, and in no event may moneys be withheld, by the employer-garnishee from the judgment debtor, in amounts greater than those prescribed by this section. Only one attachment upon the wages of a judgment debtor may be satisfied at one time. Where more than one attachment is issued upon the wages of the same judgment debtor and served upon the same employer-garnishee, the attachment first delivered to the marshal shall have priority, and all subsequent attachments shall be satisfied in the order of priority set forth in section 16–507. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 555, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 15–314 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1104A(a), as added Aug. 4, 1959, Pub. L. 86–130, § 1, 73 Stat. 275).

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. Waiver of misnomer

Garnishee corporation, which was served in its business name, waived any defect in garnishment respecting name when it answered without objection. Hollywood Credit Clothing Co, Inc. v. Autoscope, Inc. (D.C. App. 1963, 193 A. 2d 733).

§ 16–573. Employer's duty to withhold and make payments—Percentage.

(a) Except as provided in subsection (b) of this section, an employer upon whom an attachment is served, and who:

(1) at the time is indebted for wages to an employee who is the judgment debtor named in the attachment; or

(2) becomes so indebted to the judgment debtor in the future—

shall, while the attachment remains a lien upon such indebtedness, withhold and pay to the judgment creditor, or his legal representative, within 15 days after the close of the last pay period of the judgment debtor ending in each calendar month, that percentage of the gross wages payable to the judgment debtor for the pay period or periods ending in such calendar month to which the judgment creditor is entitled under the terms of this section until the attachment is wholly satisfied.

(b) Upon written notice of any court proceeding attacking the attachment or the judgment on which it is based, the employer shall make no further payments to the judgment creditor or his legal representative until receipt of an order of court terminating the proceedings.

(c) Any payments made by an employer-garnishee in conformity with this section shall be a discharge of the liability of the employer to the judgment debtor to the extent of the payment.

(d) Under this section the employer-garnishee shall not withhold or pay over more than 10 per centum of the gross wages payable to the judgment debtor for any pay period ending in any calendar month until the total amount of gross wages paid or payable to the judgment debtor for all pay periods ending in such calendar month equals $200, nor more than 20 per centum of the gross wages in excess of $200 payable to the judgment debtor for any pay period ending in any calendar month until the total amount of gross wages paid or payable to the judgment debtor for all pay periods ending in such calendar month equals $500. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 555, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 15–315 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1104A(b), as added Aug. 4, 1959, Pub. L. 86–130, § 1, 73 Stat. 275).

Changes are made in phraseology and arrangement.

§ 16–574. Judgment creditor to file receipts, in court, of amount collected.

(a) The judgment creditor shall:

(1) file with the clerk of the court, every three months after the serving of an attachment upon an employer-garnishee, a receipt showing the amount received and the balance due under the attachment as of the date of filing;

(2) file a final receipt with the court and furnish a copy thereof to the employee-garnishee; and

(3) obtain a vacation of the attachment within 20 days after the attachment has been satisfied.

(b) If the judgment creditor fails to file any of the receipts prescribed by subsection (a) of this section, an interested party may move the court to compel the defaulting judgment creditor to appear in court and make an accounting forthwith. The court may, in its discretion, enter judgment for any damages, including a reasonable attorney's fee suffered by, and tax costs in favor of, the party filing the motion to compel the accounting. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 556, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 15–316 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1104A(c), as added Aug. 4, 1959, Pub. L. 86–130, § 1, 73 Stat. 276).

Changes are made in phraseology and arrangement.

§ 16–575. Judgment against employer-garnishee for failure to pay percentages.

If the employer-garnishee fails to pay to the judgment creditor the percentages prescribed in this subchapter of the wages which become payable to the judgment debtor for any pay period, judgment shall be entered against him for an amount equal to the percentages with respect to which the failure occurs. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 556, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 15–317 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1104A (d), (e), (f), as added Aug. 4, 1959, Pub. L. 86–130, § 1, 73 Stat. 276).

Section is derived from subsec. (a) of section 15–317 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., which was subsec. (d) of section 1104A of act Mar. 3, 1901, as added by section 1 of act Aug. 4, 1959, both cited above. Remainder of section 15–317 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., is incorporated in this subchapter.

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–576. Lapse of attachment upon resignation or dismissal of employee.

If a judgment debtor resigns or is dismissed from his employment while an attachment upon his wages is wholly or partly unsatisfied, the attachment shall lapse and no further deduction may be made thereon unless the judgment debtor is reinstated or reemployed within 90 days after the resignation or dismissal. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 556, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 15–317 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1104A (d), (e), (f), as added Aug. 4, 1959, Pub. L. 86–130, § 1, 73 Stat. 276).

Section is derived from subsec. (b) of section 15–317 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., which was subsection (e) of section 1 of act Mar. 3, 1901, as added by section 1 of act Aug. 4, 1959, both cited above. Remainder of section 15–317 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., is incorporated in this subchapter.

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–577. Applicability of per centum limitations to judgments for support.

The per centum limitations prescribed by section 16–572 do not apply in the case of execution upon a judgment, order, or decree of any court of the District of Columbia for the payment of any sum for the support or maintenance of a person's wife, or former wife, or children, and any such execution, judgment, order, or decree shall, in the discretion of the court, have priority over any other execution which is subject to the provisions of this subchapter.

In the case of execution upon such a judgment, order, or decree for the payment of such sum for support or maintenance, the limitation shall be 50 per centum of the gross wages due or to become due to any such person for the pay period or periods ending in any calendar month. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 556, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 15–318 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1104A(g), as added Aug. 4, 1959, Pub. L. 86–130, § 1, 73 Stat. 276).

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–578. Court of General Sessions judgments—Lapse—Validity.

An attachment issued by the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions upon a judgment of that court duly docketed in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia, and levied within six years from the date of the judgment upon the wages due or to become due to the judgment debtor from the employer-garnishee, shall not lapse or become invalid prior to complete satisfaction solely by reason of the expiration of the period of limitation set forth in section 15–132(a). (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 557, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §§ 11–751a, 15–319 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1104A (h), (i), (j), as added Aug. 4, 1959, Pub. L. 86–130, § 1, 73 Stat. 277; Oct. 23, 1962, Pub. L. 87–873, § 1, 76 Stat. 1171; July 8, 1963, Pub. L. 88–60, § 1, 77 Stat. 77).

Section is derived from subsec. (a) of section 15–319 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., which was subsec. (h) of section 1104A of act Mar. 3, 1901, as added by section 1 of act Aug. 4, 1959, both cited above. Remainder of section 15–319 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., is incorporated in this subchapter.

Section 11–751a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., enacted by the act of Oct. 23, 1962, is also cited as one of the sources of this section, as section 11–751a changed the name of the Municipal Court for the District of Columbia to the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions.

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

Chapter 6.—BONDS AND UNDERTAKINGS

Sec.
16–601. Undertaking in lieu of fiduciary's bond.

A bond required from an executor, administrator, administrator cum testamento annexo, administrator de bonis non, guardian, committee, collector, trustee, receiver, assignee for the benefit of creditors, or other fiduciary appointed or confirmed by the United States District Court for the District of Columbia, or a judge thereof, or a bond required from a party to a cause or proceeding pending in that court, shall be in the form of an undertaking, under seal, in a maximum amount to be fixed by the court, conditioned as required by law, the surety or sureties therein submitting themselves to the jurisdiction of the court and undertaking for themselves and each of them, their and each of their heirs, executors, administrators, successors, and assigns to abide by and perform the judgment or decree of the court in the premises; and further agreeing that, upon default by the principal in any of the conditions thereof, the damages may be ascertained in such manner as the court directs and the court may give judgment thereon in favor of any person thereby aggrieved against the principal and sureties for the damages sustained by him, and that judgment may be rendered against all or any of the parties whose names are thereto signed.

The United States District Court for the District of Columbia has jurisdiction to enter such judgments and decrees against the principal and surety or sureties, or any of them, upon the undertaking, as law and justice require. This section does not deprive a party having a claim or cause of action under or upon the undertaking from electing to pursue his ordinary remedy by civil suit.

The provisions of this Code relating to actions, remedies and proceedings upon bonds of fiduciaries apply to such undertakings to the same extent as if undertaking had been expressly mentioned and referred to therein. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 678, Pub. L. 88–509, § 3(c)(1).)

AMENDMENT

1964—Section 3(c)(1) of act Aug. 30, 1964, amended title 16, by adding chapter 6 thereto.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Action on bond 2
Amount of recovery 3
Attorneys fees 4
In general 1

1. In general

This section does not repeal section 16–301, relative to attachment bonds. Tri-State Motor Corp. v. Standard Steel Car Co. (1922, 276 F. 631, 51 App. D.C. 109).

A bond executed to the United States is valid, although there is no previous statutory authorization therefor. United States v. Pumphrey (11 App. D.C. 44).

2. Action on bond

Action to recover on bond for damages from wrongful suing out of an attachment is maintainable under this section providing that when a bond is referred to in statutes it signifies an obligation in a certain sum or penalty subject to condition on breach of which bond becomes absolute and is enforceable by action. Davis v. Peerless Ins. Co. et al. (1958, 255 F. 2d 534, 103 U.S. App. D.C. 125).

Where action was brought and attachment issued, failure of plaintiff's suit resulted in a "wrongful suing out of attachment" authorizing property owner to bring suit on bond. Id.

3. Amount of recovery

Where plaintiffs in attachment filed bond and after dismissal of action defendant in attachment brought suit to recover on bond which provided that surety should make good to defendant all costs and damages which he might sustain by reason of wrongful suing out of said attachment, defendant in attachment was not automatically entitled to recover full penal sum therein named but was limited to such costs and damages as he could show were sustained because of detention of property. Davis v. Peerless Ins. Co. et al. (1958, 255 F. 2d 534, 103 U.S. App. D.C. 125)

4. Attorneys fees

Where executor appropriated to his own use an amount greatly in excess of his approved commission and estate had no assets to pay approved fee due attorney for estate, surety on executor's bond was liable for amount of the fee. In re Estate of P. M. Oberly (1964, 228 F. Supp. 665).

16–707. Disposition of fines.
16–708. Penalties for wrongful conversion of forfeitures and fines.
16–709. Executions on forfeited recognizances and judgments.
16–710. Suspension of imposition or execution of sentence.

§ 16–701. Rules and regulations.

The District of the Columbia Court of General Sessions may make rules and regulations deemed necessary and proper for conducting business in the criminal division of the court. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 557, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §§ 11–748a, 11–751a, 11–755 (June 17, 1870, ch. 133, 16 Stat. 153; Mar. 3, 1891, ch. 536, 26 Stat. 848; Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 48, 31 Stat. 1197; Apr. 1, 1942, ch. 207, §§ 1, 4, 56 Stat. 190, 192; June 25, 1948, ch. 646, § 32 (b), 62 Stat. 991; May 24, 1949, ch. 139, § 127, 63 Stat. 107; June 29, 1953, ch. 159, § 410, 67 Stat. 108; Sept. 14, 1961, Pub. L. 87–242, § 1, 75 Stat. 513; Oct. 23, 1962, Pub. L. 87–873, §§ 1, 2, 76 Stat. 1171; July 8, 1963, Pub. L. 88–60, §§ 1, 2, 77 Stat. 77, 78).

Section is derived from the last part of the first sentence of section 11–748a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed.

Section 11–755 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., is also cited as one of the sources of this section because, in connection with the merger, by the act of Apr. 1, 1942, of the Police Court and the Municipal Court, to form a new Municipal Court, subsec. (a) thereof provided, among other things, that the court thus formed, and the judges thereof, should have and exercise the same powers and jurisdiction theretofore had and exercised by the Police Court and the judges thereof.

Section 11–751a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., enacted by the act of Oct. 23, 1962, is also cited as one of the sources of this section, as section 11–751a changed the name of the Municipal Court for the District of Columbia to the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions.

Reference to "criminal division" of the court is inserted because, since the above-mentioned merger, the Municipal Court (now the Court of General Sessions) has exercised its civil jurisdiction and powers through a civil division, and its criminal jurisdiction and powers through a criminal division. The above-cited section 11–755 (subsec. (a)) of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., provided that the court should consist of a civil branch and a criminal branch (among others). See, also, rule 1 of the Rules Regulating Practice Before the "Criminal Division" of the Court.

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

The power of the Court of General Sessions to prescribe rules governing practice and procedure, generally, in the court, are set out in section 13–101 herein. For remainder of sections 11–748a and 11–755 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., see tables.

§ 16–702. Information, prosecution by.

Prosecutions in the criminal division of the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions shall be by information by the proper prosecuting officer. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 558, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §§ 11–715a, 11–751a, 11–755 (June 17, 1870, ch. 133, 16 Stat. 153; Mar. 3, 1891, ch. 536, 26 Stat. 848; Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 44, 31 Stat. 1196; Mar. 3, 1925, ch. 443, § 4, 43 Stat. 1120; Apr. 1, 1942, ch. 207, §§ 1, 4, 56 Stat. 190, 192; June 25, 1948, ch. 646, § 32(b), 62 Stat. 991; May 24, 1949, ch. 139, § 127, 63 Stat. 107; Sept. 14, 1961, Pub. Section is derived from the first sentence of section 11–715a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed.

Sections 11–751a and 11–755 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., are also cited as sources of this section, and "criminal division of the Court of General Sessions" is substituted for "municipal court" for the same reasons stated in revision note under section 16–701 herein.

A minor change in phraseology.

For remainder of sections 11–715a and 11–755 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., see tables.

Although police court could try criminal cases on information, there was no presumption that it would sentence one to hard labor so as to deprive it of jurisdiction. Cleveland v. Mattingly (1923, 287 F. 948, 52 App. D.C. 374, certiorari denied 43 S. Ct. 521, 262 U.S. 744, 67 L. Ed. 1211).

One guilty of changing the name of a licensee appearing on a motor vehicle operator's permit, whereupon he was sentenced to pay a fine of $275, and in default to be committed to the Washington Asylum and Jail for 60 days; it was proper and within the jurisdiction of the court. Dorsey v. Peak (1928, 24 F. 2d 892, 58 App. D.C. 54, 57 A.L.R. 865).

While other courts of the United States may commit for an indefinite period, a defendant in default of payment of a fine, the police court of the District was limited to one year. Dodd v. Peak (1931, 47 F. 2d 430, 60 App. D.C. 68).

The alternative sentence of imprisonment in default of payment of fine is not imposed as a part of the penalty but as a means of compelling payment of the fine. Peeples v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1950, 75 A. 2d 845).

Where the statute provides a fine but no imprisonment, an alternative prison sentence may be imposed, and where a fine or imprisonment or both may be imposed, and both are imposed, the weight of authority is that in default of payment of fine, the defendant may be commited for an additional term after expiration of the term for which sentenced. Id.

2. Constitutionality

A person charged with having committed the crime of conspiracy in the District of Columbia is entitled to a jury trial; and to accord the accused a right to be tried by jury in an appellate court, after he has been once fully tried, otherwise than by a jury, in the court of original jurisdiction and sentenced to pay a fine or be imprisoned, does not satisfy the requirements of the Constitution. Callan v. Wilson (1888, 8 S. Ct. 1301, 127 U.S. 540, 32 L. Ed. 223).

Constitutional requirement that trial of all crimes shall be by jury is to be interpreted in the light of the common law, according to which petty offenses might be proceeded against summarily before a magistrate sitting without a jury. District of Columbia v. Colts (1930, 51 S. Ct. 52, 282 U.S. 63, 75 L. Ed. 177).

This act does not violate either the Fifth or Sixth Amendments. United States v. Wood (1936, 57 S. Ct. 177, 299 U.S. 123, 81 L. Ed. 78, rehearing denied 57 S. Ct. 319, 299 U.S. 624, 81 L. Ed. 89).

3. Cumulative sentences

Section 934 of 1901 Code, relative to cumulative sentences, does not apply to sentences imposed upon different informations, after separate convictions at different times, nor does it apply to a sentence to pay a pecuniary fine, followed by imprisonment in default of payment, as provided in this section. Harris v. Lang (27 App. D.C. 84, 7 Ann. Cas. 141, 7 L.R.A., N.S., 124). See, also, Harris v. Nixon (27 App. D.C. 94, certiorari denied 26 S. Ct. 761, 201 U.S. 645, 50 L. Ed. 903).

4. Findings of court

Under this section the finding and judgment entered by the police court were entitled to the same force and effect in all respects as if entered and pronounced upon the verdict of a jury. District of Columbia v. Kendall (1927, 20 F. 2d 287, 57 App. D.C. 271).

5. Fines and imprisonment

Where defendant, convicted of being drunk in a public park and unable to pay fine, was imprisoned, his argument that general authority given by former §§ 11–606 and 11–616 was limited by the later § 25–128, is without merit, since the general statute existed before the special one and Congress must have been aware of the older ones, and had it intended to modify the earlier, would have done so, and accordingly, his imprisonment must be affirmed. Peeples v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1950, 75 A. 2d 845).

A note of warning should be addressed to the trial court that the alternative sentence is a mode of compelling payment of a fine and its use should be confined to such and should not be used for the purpose of imposing a longer term of imprisonment than is permitted by law. Id.

Statute authorizing court to commit defendant in default of payment of fine for term not exceeding one year provides means of enforcing punishment as distinguished from punishment provided by statute defining crime. D. Henderson v. United States (D.C. App. 1963, 189 A. 2d 132).

Alternative sentence of imprisonment for failure to pay fine is not to be considered a part of the penalty for the crime. Id.

Defendant was not entitled to relief from sentence imposed upon failure to pay fine imposed in addition to maximum imprisonment authorized as punishment on any theory that if she were indigent, alternative sentence coupled with primary sentence would be tantamount to sentence in excess of that authorized and that court should have, as part of sentencing procedure, inquired into her ability to pay where record revealed nothing as to her financial resources, she did not claim inability to pay fine, and there was nothing to indicate that court used alternative sentence to accomplish imprisonment for term longer than permitted by statute. Id.

6. Mandamus

The District of Columbia Municipal Court had jurisdiction to direct that charge of practicing healing arts without license should be tried by jury, and an erroneous decision on the question would not constitute such unlawful exercise of authority as would entitle Government to writ of mandamus directing Municipal Court to expunge jury trial order from the record. United States v. Kronheim (D.C. Mun. App. 1951, 80 A. 2d 280).

The fact that ruling of District of Columbia Municipal Court granting jury trial in prosecution for practicing healing arts without a license could not be reviewed in the regular course of appeal was not such an exceptional circumstance as would call for issuance of writ of mandamus expunging order from record. Id.

7. Municipal ordinance

One charged with the violation of a municipal ordinance, the maximum penalty for which is a fine not exceeding $40, is not entitled to a trial by jury. Bowles v. District of Columbia (22 App. D.C. 321).

8. Record on appeal

Record on appeal from conviction for possessing and selling obscene literature and pictures failed to disclose any abuse of discretion on part of trial court, with respect to sentence imposed in default of payment of fine, in sentencing defendant to one year and fine of $300 and in default of payment to be imprisoned for an additional year. Hankins v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1956, 120 A. 2d 590).

9. Review

Where defendant, who had been sentenced by Municipal Court for District of Columbia to one year and a fine of $300, and in default of payment to be imprisoned for an additional year, for possessing and selling obscene literature and pictures, contended only that sentence imposed in default of payment of the fine was to severe, Municipal Court of Appeals could not reduce sentence in absence of showing of abuse of discretion on part of lower court. Hankins v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1956, 120 A. 2d 590).

Statutes providing that defendant upon whom fine has been imposed may, in default of payment, be committed for such term as court thinks proper not to exceed one year, gives broad discretion in imposing imprisonment in default of payment of fine. Id.

10. Right to jury trial

Congress in the exercise of its general and exclusive power of legislation over the District, could provide for the trial of civil causes of moderate amount by a justice of the peace, or, in his presence, by a jury of 12, or of any less number, and allowing either party an appeal. Capital Traction Co. v. Hof (1899, 19 S. Ct. 580, 174 U.S. 1, 43 L. Ed. 873).

Where the accused would be entitled to a jury trial under the Constitution, trial shall be by jury unless waived, but petty offenses may be tried without jury. District of Columbia v. Colts (1930, 51 S. Ct. 52, 282 U.S. 63, 75 L. Ed. 177).

The right of trial by jury does not extend to every criminal proceeding. District of Columbia v. Clawans (1937, 57 S. Ct. 66, 300 U.S. 617, 81 L. Ed. 843).

Constitutional provisions with relation to jury trial apply, first, in all cases, especially in all cases where as here there is no election of right and no appeal of right, in which the offense charged was an indictable offense under the common law, without regard to the measure of punishment; and, second, in all cases without regard to the nature of the offense, where the punishment which may be inflicted under the statute involves a sentence as severe as confinement in jail for 90 days. Clawans v. District of Columbia (1936, 84 F. 2d 265, 66 App. D.C. 11, affirmed 57 S. Ct. 660, 300 U.S. 617, 81 L. Ed. 843).

A single offense of using premises for a purpose other than a single family dwelling without an occupancy permit or of operating a rooming house without a license, is a petty offense not involving moral turpitude nor indictable at common law, and therefore a jury trial is not demandable as of right. Savage v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1947, 54 A. 2d 562, affirmed 169 F. 2d 889, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 401, certiorari denied 60 S. Ct. 654, 336 U.S. 924, 93 L. Ed. 1086, rehearing denied 68 S. Ct. 810, 336 U.S. 947, 93 L. Ed. 1103).

Under this section providing for right to jury trial in cases in which fine or penalty may be more than $300, trial by jury should be had if penalty of more than $300 may be imposed on any one offense, but consolidation for trial of nine petty offenses did not amount to one greater offense, and, therefore, possibility that general sentence exceeding $300 could be imposed would not require trial by jury upon defendant's demands. Scott, Jr. v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1956, 122 A. 2d 579).

The District of Columbia Municipal Court acting on demand for jury trial in prosecution for practice of healing arts without license was performing a judicial function, and not a ministerial act which could be controlled by mandamus. United States v. Kronheim (D.C. Mun. App. 1951, 80 A. 2d 280).

11. Soliciting prostitution

Soliciting prostitution, punishable by jail sentence of 90 days, is a crime which is of right tried by a jury. Blackburn v. United States (1936, 84 F. 2d 269, 66 App. D.C. 15).

Neither the nature of the offense of soliciting prostitution nor the amount of the punishment brought the prosecution within the limits of the constitutional guaranty of a jury trial. Bailey v. United States (1938, 98 F. 2d 306, 69 App. D.C. 25).

12. Violation of traffic regulations

One charged with operating a motor vehicle in violation of statute not only recklessly but so as to endanger property and individuals, has a constitutional right to a jury trial. District of Columbia v. Colts (1930, 51 S. Ct. 52, 282 U.S. 63, 75 L. Ed. 177).

13. Waiver of jury trial

Trial by jury may be waived. Shick v. United States (1904, 24 S. Ct. 826, 195 U.S. 65, 49 L. Ed. 99).

Where defendant who was not unfamiliar with criminal procedure and who had had the experience of two prior jury trials, had demanded jury trial, but his attorney informed judge that defense desired to waive jury trial, judge immediately informed jury of this fact, counsel returned to talk to accused about matter, and accused raised no objection until after adverse decision by judge, even if accused did not initiate the waiver of jury, he ratified the waiver, and thus made the waiver his personal act, and he was not deprived of jury trial without legal and intelligent waiver of the same. Hensley v. United States (C.A.D.C. 1960, 281 F. 2d 605).

Where defendant was arraigned and pleaded not guilty to assault charge and demanded trial by jury, and a month later case was called for jury trial, and defendant was present, and, after completion of voir dire examination, defendant's attorney approached bench and informed trial judge that defense desired to waive jury trial and take trial by court, and prosecution voiced no opposition, and trial judge told jury in open court that defense preferred trial by court and that jury would be relieved from sitting in case, there was a valid waiver of jury trial by defendant under statute. Hensley v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 155 A. 2d 77).

§ 16–703. Process of criminal division—Fees.

(a) The criminal division of the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions may issue process for the arrest of persons against whom an information is filed or complaint under oath is made.

(b) Process shall:

(1) be under the seal of the court:

(2) bear teste in the name of a judge of the court; and

(3) be signed by the clerk.

(c) In cases arising out of violations of any of the ordinances or laws of the District, process shall be directed to the Chief of Police, who shall execute the process and make return thereof in like manner as in other cases.

(d) In criminal cases cognizable in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia the process issued by the Court of General Sessions shall be directed to the United States marshal, except in cases of emergency, when it may be directed to the Chief of Police.

(e) For services pursuant to subsection (d) of this section the marshal shall receive the fees prescribed by section 15–709(b)(2). (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 558, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §§ 11–748a, 11–748b, 11–748c, 11–748d, 11–751a, 11–755 (June 17, 1870, ch. 133, 16 Stat. 153; R.S.D.C. §§ 1065–1067; Mar. 3, 1891, ch. 536, 26 Stat. 848; Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 48, 31 Stat. 1197; June 25, 1936, ch. 804, 49 Stat. 1921; Apr. 1, 1942, §§ 1, 4, 56 Stat. 190, 192; June 25, 1948, ch. 646, § 32 (b), 62 Stat. 991; May 24, 1949, ch. 139, § 127, 63 Stat. 107; June 29, 1953, ch. 159, § 410, 67 Stat. 108; Sept. 14, 1961, Pub. L. 87–242, § 1, 75 Stat. 513; Oct. 23, 1962, Pub. L. 87–873, §§ 1, 2, 76 Stat. 1171; July 8, 1963, Pub. L. 88–60, §§ 1, 2, 77 Stat. 77, 78).

Section consolidates first clause of section 11–748a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., and sections 11–748b to 11–748d thereof.

Section 11–755 of the Code is cited above as one of the sources of this section for the reasons stated in revision note under section 16–701 herein.

Section 11–751a of the Code is cited as one of the sources of the section because section 11–751a changed the name of the Municipal Court for the District of Columbia to the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions.

Subsec. (a) of this section is based on the first clause of section 11–748a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., which empowered the Municipal Court (now Court of General Sessions) to issue the process described. The reference "criminal division of the Court of General Sessions" is subtituted for the reference to the municipal court, in view of the enactment, in 1942, of section 11–755 (a) of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., and the 1962 amendment of that section. See revision note under section 16–701 herein. The additional provision in the first clause of section 11–748a that the court should have power to compel the attendance of witnesses is omitted as having been superseded by a provision in section 11–756(c) of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., that is carried into another section of this revised Part (see tables).

Sections 748b to 748d of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., which are carried into subsecs. (c), (d), and (b), respectively, of this section, were made applicable to the criminal division of the Municipal Court (now Court of General Sessions) pursuant to section 11–755(b) of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., which provided that service of process in the criminal division of the Municipal Court should be had as provided under existing law for the Police Court of the District of Columbia.

References to the major and superintendent of police are changed to Chief of Police pursuant to Reorganization Order No. 46, set out in Appendix to Title 1 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed.

Under section 4–138 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., a warrant for search or arrest may be executed in any part of the District by any member of the police force.

Rule 13 of the Rules Regulating Practice Before the Criminal Division of the court provides: "The Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure shall apply to all proceedings in the criminal division of this court in which the judges are acting as committing magistrates." Therefore, in addition to this section, process of the Court of General Sessions in criminal cases cognizable in the United States District Court is governed by the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure and by 18 U.S.C § 3041.

Subsec. (e) of this section is new, but states no new law, being in the nature of a cross reference. It is inserted for the purpose of completeness.

Changes are made in phraseology.

For remainder of sections 11–748a and 11–755 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., see tables.

§ 16–704. Bail—Collateral security.

(a) A person charged with an offense triable in the criminal division of the Court of General Sessions may give security for his appearance for trial or for further hearing, either by giving bond to the satisfaction of the court or by depositing money as collateral security with the appropriate officer at the court or the station keeper of the police precinct within which he is apprehended. When a sum of money is deposited as collateral security as provided by this section it shall remain, in contemplation of law, the property of the person depositing it until duly forfeited by the court. When forfeited, it shall be, in contemplation of law, the property of the United States of America or of the District of Columbia, according as the charge against the person depositing it is instituted on behalf of the United States or of the District. Every person receiving any sum of money deposited as provided by this section shall be deemed in law the agent of the person depositing it or of the United States or the District, as the case may be, for all purposes of properly preserving and accounting for money.

(b) This section does not affect the ultimate rights under existing law of the Washington Humane Society of the District of Columbia, in or to any forfeitures collected in the criminal division of the Court of General Sessions. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 558, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §§ 11–748a, 11–751a, 11–755 (June 17, 1870, ch. 133, 16 Stat. 153; Mar. 3, 1891, ch. 536, 26 Stat. 848; Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 48, 31 Stat. 1197; Apr. 1, 1942, ch. 207, §§ 1, 4, 56 Stat. 190, 192; June 25, 1948, ch. 646, § 32 (b), 62 Stat. 991; May 24, 1949, ch. 139, § 127, 63 Stat. 107; June 29, 1953, ch. 159, § 410, 67 Stat. 108; Sept. 14, 1961, Pub. L. 87–242, § 1, 75 Stat. 513; Oct. 23, 1962, Pub. L. 87–873, §§ 1, 2, 76 Stat. 1171; July 8, 1963, Pub. L. 88–60, §§ 1, 2, 77 Stat. 77, 78).

Section is derived from the first and second sentences of the second paragraph of section 11–748a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., and part of the proviso at the end thereof.

Sections 11–751a and 11–755 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., are also cited as sources of this section, and "criminal division of the Court of General Sessions" is subtituted for "municipal court", for the same reasons given in revision note under section 16–701 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology.

For remainder of sections 11–748a and 11–755 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., see tables.

For rules governing the execution of bonds in the criminal division of the Court of General Sessions, see rule 5 of the court's rules regulating practice and procedure in that division.

(a) In a criminal prosecution within the jurisdiction of the Court of General Sessions in which, according to the Constitution of the United States, the accused would be entitled to a jury trial, the trial shall be by jury, unless the accused in open court expressly waives trial by jury and requests to be tried by the judge. In the latter case, the trial shall be by the judge, and the judgment and sentence shall have the same force and effect in all respects as if they had been entered and pronounced upon the verdict of a jury.

(b) In any case where the accused would not by force of the Constitution of the United States be entitled to a trial by jury, the trial shall be by the court without a jury, unless it is a case wherein the fine or penalty may be more than $300, or imprisonment as punishment for the offense may be more than ninety days and the accused demands a trial by jury. In the latter case the trial shall be by jury.

(c) The jury for service in the criminal division of the court shall consist of twelve persons, unless the parties, with the approval of the court and in the manner provided by rules of the court, agree to a number less than twelve. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 558, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §§ 11–715a, 11–716a, 11–751a, 11–755 (June 17, 1870, ch. 133, 16 Stat. 153; Mar. 3, 1891, ch. 536, 26 Stat. 848; Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, §§ 44, 45, 31 Stat. 1196, 1197; Mar. 3, 1925, ch. 443, §§ 4, 5, 43 Stat. 1120; Aug. 22, 1935, ch. 604, 49 Stat. 681; June 25, 1936, ch. 804, 49 Stat. 1921; Apr. 1, 1942, ch. 207, §§ 1, 4, 56 Stat. 190, 192; June 25, 1948, ch. 646, § 32(b), 62 Stat. 991; May 24, 1949, ch. 139, § 127, 63 Stat. 107; Sept. 14, 1961, Pub. L. 87–242, § 1, 75 Stat. 513; Oct. 23, 1962, Pub. L. 87–873, §§ 1, 2, 76 Stat. 1171; July 8, 1963, Pub. L. 88–60, §§ 1, 2, 77 Stat. 77, 78).

Section consolidates the second sentence of the first paragraph, and the first sentence of the second paragraph, of section 11–715a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., with the first clause of the first sentence of section 11–716a thereof.

Sections 11–751a and 11–755 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., are also cited as sources of this section; and in subsec. (a), "Court of General Sessions" is substituted for "said court" (which, as used in section 11–715a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., referred to the municipal court), and in subsec. (c), "criminal division of the court" is substituted for "said court" (which, as used in section 11–716a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., also referred to the municipal court), for the same reasons stated in revision note under section 16–701 herein.

In subsec. (c) of this section, which, as indicated above, is from section 11–716a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., words "unless the parties, with the approval of the court and in the manner provided by rules of the court, agree to a number less than twelve" are inserted to conform with present practice in the criminal division of the Municipal Court as expressed in the criminal rules of the court. Section II(a) of rule 14 of such rules provides in part that at any time before a verdict the parties may stipulate in writing with the approval of the court that the jury shall consist of any number of persons less than 12. For other provisions relating to jury trials, including those relating to automatic waiver of the right to demand a jury, see other provisions of that rule.

Changes are made in phraseology.

For remainder of sections 11–715a, 11–716a, and 11–755 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., see tables.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. Right to jury trial

Defendant must have knowledge of penalty he may receive inasmuch as his right to jury trial depends on severity of punishment. A. Dobkin v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1963, 194 A. 2d 657).

§ 16–706. Enforcement of judgments—Commitment upon nonpayment of fine.

The Court of General Sessions may enforce any of its judgments rendered in criminal cases by fine or imprisonment, or both. Except as otherwise provided by law, in any case where the criminal division of the court imposes a fine, the court may, in default of the payment of the fine imposed, commit the defendant for such a term as the court deems right and proper, not to exceed one year. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 559, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §§ 11–715a, 11–748a, 11–751a, 11–755 (June 17, 1870, ch. 133, 16 Stat. 153; Mar. 3, 1891, ch. 536, 26 Stat. 848; Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, §§ 44, 48, 31 Stat. 1196, 1197; Mar. 3, 1925, ch. 443, § 4, 43 Stat. 1120; Apr. 1, 1942, ch. 207, §§ 1, 4, 56 Stat. 190, 192; June 25, 1948, ch. 646, § 32(b), 62 Stat. 991; May 24, 1949, ch. 139, § 127, 63 Stat. 107; June 25, 1953, ch. 159, § 410, 67 Stat. 108; Sept. 14, 1961, Pub. L. 87–242, § 1, 75 Stat. 513; Oct. 23, 1962, Pub. L. 87–873, §§ 1, 2, 76 Stat. 1171; July 8, 1963, Pub. L. 88–60, §§ 1, 2, 77 Stat. 77, 78).

Section consolidates part of the first sentence and all of the second sentence of the first paragraph of section 11–748a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., with the second sentence of the second paragraph of section 11–715a thereof. The second sentence of the first paragraph of section 11–748a, and the second sentence of the second paragraph of section 11–715a thereof, were identical.

Sections 11–751a and 11–755 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., are also cited as sources of this section; the words "Court of General Sessions may enforce any of its judgments rendered in criminal cases" are substituted for "to enforce any of its judgments"; and the words "criminal division of the court" are substituted for "said court" (which referred to the municipal court), for the reasons stated in revision note under section 16–701 herein.

The exception phrase is inserted at the beginning of the second sentence, to avoid conflict between that sentence and other laws. For example, see section 22–109 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., as amended in 1953, wherein the maximum term of imprisonment upon failure to pay a fine imposed upon conviction of certain specified offenses is six months for each such offense.

Changes are made in phraseology.

For remainder of sections 11–715a, 11–748a, and 11–755 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., see tables.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Abuse of discretion 1
Fines and imprisonment 2
Imprisonment for nonpayment 3
Limitation of jurisdiction 4
Payment of fine precluding appeal 5
Record on appeal 6

1. Abuse of discretion

Where defendant, who had been sentenced by Municipal Court for District of Columbia to one year and a fine of $300, and in default of payment to be imprisoned for an additional year, for possessing and selling obscene literature and pictures, contended only that sentence imposed in default of payment of the fine was too severe, Municipal Court of Appeals could not reduce sentence in absence of showing of abuse of discretion on part of lower court. Hankins v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1956, 120 A. 2d 590).

This section providing that defendant upon whom fine has been imposed may, in default of payment, be committed for such term as court thinks proper not to exceed one year, gives broad discretion in imposing imprisonment in default of payment of fine. Id.

2. Fines and imprisonment

Where defendant, convicted of being drunk in a public park and unable to pay fine, was imprisoned, his argument that general authority given by this section and section 11–715a is limited by the later § 25–128, is without merit, since the general statute existed before the special one and Congress must have been aware of the older ones. Had the Congress intended later to modify the earlier, it would have done so. Accordingly, judgment of conviction affirmed. Peeples v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1950, 75 A. 2d 845).

A note of warning should be addressed to the trial court that the alternative sentence is a mode of compelling payment of a fine and its use should be confined to such and should not be used for the purpose of imposing a longer term of imprisonment than is permitted by law. Id.

The alternative sentence of imprisonment in default of payment of fine is not imposed as a part of the penalty but as a means of compelling payment of the fine. Id.

Where the statute provides a fine but no imprisonment, an alternative prison sentence may be imposed, and where a fine or imprisonment or both may be imposed, and both are imposed, the weight of authority is that in default of payment of fine, the defendant may be committed for an additional term after expiration of the term for which sentenced. Id.

3. Imprisonment for nonpayment

Where trial imposed a money fine against defendant operator of automobile body works for failure to file monthly Sales and Use tax returns as required by statute, trial court under this section could enforce payment of fine by ordering defendant in the alternative to serve a jail sentence. Perlich v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1952, 90 A. 2d 227).

Sentences imposing fines or term in jail in default of paying fines were not illegal as jail sentences. Savage v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1947, 54 A. 2d 562, affirmed 169 F. 2d 889, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 401, certiorari denied 69 S. Ct. 654, 336 U.S. 924, 93 L. Ed. 1086, rehearing denied 69 S. Ct. 810, 336 U.S. 947, 93 L. Ed. 1103).

A defendant convicted for violation of Female Eight Hour Law, § 36–301 et seq., could be sentenced to prison in event of default in payment of fines, notwithstanding that § 36–309 provided for fines only, in view of this section authorizing commitment of defendant in default of payment of fine imposed. Anderson v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1946, 48 A. 2d 710).

4. Limitation of jurisdiction

Police court was an "inferior court" or "limited jurisdiction." It had original jurisdiction concurrently with the District Court, except as otherwise provided, of all crimes in the District not capital or infamous, and all offenses against municipal ordinances. It had the power to examine, commit, or hold to bail, but had no power to admit attorneys nor suspend an attorney on charge of solicitation. Mullen v. Canfield (1939, 105 F. 2d 47, 70 App. D.C. 168).

5. Payment of fine precluding appeal

Where defendant on conviction was sentenced to pay a fine of $25 or serve 25 days, and he paid fine without attempting to stay judgment and without making protest or giving notice of intent to appeal, the payment which was voluntary, satisfied the judgment, rendered case "moot" and precluded defendant from appealing. Hanback v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1944, 35 A. 2d 189).

6. Record on appeal

Record on appeal from conviction for possessing and selling obscene literature and pictures failed to disclose any abuse of discretion on part of trial court, with respect to sentence imposed in default of payment of fine, in sentencing defendant to one year and fine of $300 and in default of payment to be imprisoned for an additional year. Hankins v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1956, 120 A. 2d 590).

§ 16–707. Disposition of fines.

(a) All fines payable and paid under judgment of the criminal division of the Court of General Sessions shall, upon their payment, immediately become, in contemplation of law, the property of the United States or the District of Columbia, according to the charge upon which the fine may be adjudged. Every person receiving such a fine shall be deemed in law an agent of the United States or the District, as the case may be.

(b) This section does not affect the ultimate rights under existing law of the Washington Humane Society of the District of Columbia, in or to any fines paid in the criminal division of the Court of General Sessions. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 559, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §§ 11–748a, 11–751a, 11–755 (June 17, 1870, ch. 133, 16 Stat. 153; Mar. 3, 1891, ch. 536, 26 Stat. 848; Mar 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 48, 31 Stat. 1197; Apr. 1, 1942, ch. 207, §§ 1, 4, 56 Stat. 190, 192; June 25, 1948, ch. 646, § 32(b), 62 Stat. 991; May 24, 1949, ch. 139, § 127, 63 Stat. 107; June 29, 1953, ch. 159, § 410, 67 Stat. 108; Sept. 14, 1961, Pub. L. 87–242, § 1, 75 Stat. 513; Oct. 23, 1962, Pub. L. 87–873, §§ 1, 2, 76 Stat. 1171; July 8, 1963, Pub. L. 88–60, §§ 1, 2, 77 Stat. 77, 78).

Section is derived from that part of the third sentence of the second paragraph of section 11–748a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., that preceded the first semicolon in the paragraph, and the proviso at the end of the paragraph. Insofar as the paragraph also related to forfeitures, it is carried into section 16–704 herein.

Sections 11–751a and 11–755 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., are also cited as sources of this section, and "criminal division of the Court of General Sessions" is substituted for "said municipal court", for the same reasons stated in revision note under section 16–701 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology.

For remainder of sections 11–748a and 11–755 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., see tables.

§ 16–708. Penalties for wrongful conversion of forfeitures and fines.

Whoever, being an agent as contemplated and defined by section 16–704(a), or by section 16–707(a), wrongfully converts to his own use any money received by him as provided therein, is guilty of embezzlement, and shall be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned not more than five years, or both. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 559, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–748a (June 17, 1870, ch. 133, 16 Stat. 153; Mar. 3, 1891, ch. 536, 26 Stat. 848; Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 48, 31 Stat. 1197; Apr. 1, 1942, ch. 207, § 1, 56 Stat. 190; June 29, 1953, ch. 159, § 410, 67 Stat. 108).

Section is derived from a clause in the third sentence of the second paragraph of section 11–748a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. For remainder of such section 11–748a, see tables.

As herein set out, the provisions relate to wrongful conversion of forfeitures and fines collected or paid in the criminal division of the Court of General Sessions, formerly designated the municipal court. See revision note under section 16–701 herein.

Words "and upon conviction thereof", which followed "embezzlement," are omittted as surplusage.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–709. Executions on forfeited recognizances and judgments.

The Court of General Sessions may issue execution on all recognizances forfeited in its criminal division, upon motion of the prosecuting officer; and all writs of fieri facias or other writs of execution on judgments issued by the criminal division shall be directed to and executed by the United States marshal. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 559, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §§ 11–724a, 11–751a, 11–755 (June 17, 1870, ch. 133, 16 Stat. 153; Mar. 3, 1891, ch. 536, 26 Stat. 848; Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 57, 31 Stat. 1199; Apr. 1, 1942, ch. 207, § 4, 56 Stat. 192; June 25, 1948, ch. 646, § 32(b), 62 Stat. 991; May 24, 1949, ch. 139, § 127, 63 Stat. 107; Sept. 14, 1961, Pub. L. 87–242, § 1, 75 Stat. 513; Oct. 23, 1962, Pub. L. 87–873, §§ 1, 2, 76 Stat. 1171; July 8, 1963, Pub. L. 88–60, §§ 1, 2, 77 Stat. 77, 78).

Section is derived from section 11–724a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed.

Sections 11–751a and 11–755 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., are cited as sources of this section; "Court of General Sessions" is substituted for "said court" (which referred to the municipal court); words "recognizances forfeited in its criminal division" are substituted for "forfeited recognizances"; and the reference "the criminal division" is substituted for "said court" where the latter term appeared for the second time in section 11–724a, for the reasons stated in revision note under section 16–701 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology.

For remainder of section 11–755 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., see tables.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. Remission of penalty

R.S. § 1020 (U.S.C. title 18, former § 601), conferred authority on court to remit penalty of forfeited recognizance in certain cases. United States v. Von Jenny (39 App. D.C. 377).

§ 16–710. Suspension of imposition or execution of sentence.

In criminal cases in the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions, the court may, upon conviction, suspend the imposition of sentence or impose sentence and suspend the execution thereof, for such time and upon such terms as it deems best, if it appears to be the satisfaction of the court that the ends of justice and the best interests of the public and of the defendant would be served thereby. In each case of the imposition of sentence and the suspension of the execution thereof, the court may place the defendant on probation under the control and supervision of a probation officer. The probationer shall be provided by the clerk of the court with a written statement of the terms and conditions of his probation at the time when he is placed thereon. He shall observe the rules prescribed for his conduct by the court and report to the probation officer as directed. A person may not be put on probation without his consent. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 559, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §§ 11–751a, 11–757, 24–102 (June 25, 1910, ch. 433, § 2, 36 Stat. 864; June 18, 1953, ch. 128, § 1, 67 Stat. 65; June 20, 1958, Pub. L. 85–463, § 2, 72 Stat. 216; Oct. 23, 1962, Pub. L. 87–873, § 1, 76 Stat. 1171; July 8, 1963, Pub. L. 88–60, § 1, 77 Stat. 77).

Section consolidates sections 11–757 and 24–102 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed.

Section 11–751a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., enacted by the act of Oct. 23, 1962, is also cited as one of the sources of this section, as section 11–751a changed the name of the Municipal Court for the District of Columbia to the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions.

The provisions from which section 11–757 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., was derived (the above-cited section 1 of act June 18, 1953) were also set out in that Code as section 11–942a thereof because they referred, not only to the Municipal Court (now the Court of General Sessions), but also to the Juvenile Court. In this section, the provisions that related to the Juvenile Court are omitted, as they are set out in section 16–2383 herein.

Section 11–757 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., provided that in each case of the imposition of sentence and the suspension of the execution thereof, the Municipal Court (now, the Court of General Sessions) might, in its discretion, place the defendant on probation "as provided by section 24–102". Section 24–102, as enacted in 1910, conferred power upon both the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia (later redesignated the District Court) and the former police court (of which the Municipal Court was the successor) to place defendants on probation, and prescribed certain conditions and procedures to be followed. Insofar as the District Court was concerned, that section was repealed by act June 20, 1958, Pub. L. 85–463, § 2, 72 Stat. 216, since probation matters in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia are now covered by Title 18, United States Code, section 3651 et seq., in view of the amendment of section 3651 thereof by section 1 of the 1958 act. Section 2 of the 1958 act, in repealing section 24–102, D.C. Code, 1961 ed., insofar as it related to the District Court, contained a saving clause, as follows: "but nothing contained in this act shall be construed to amend or repeal the provisions of the act entitled 'An act to provide for the suspension of the imposition or execution of sentence in certain cases in the Municipal Court for the District of Columbia and in the Juvenile Court of the District of Columbia', approved June 18, 1953 (67 Stat. 65)". However, section 24–102 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., never related to the Juvenile Court, and, as amended by the 1958 act to strike out the reference to the District Court, it related solely to the Municipal Court (now, the Court of General Sessions). Therefore, it is consolidated with section 11–757 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., to form this revised section. The 1953 act cited in the above-quoted provisions of the 1958 act was classified to section 11–757, and, insofar as it related to the Juvenile Court, to section 11–968 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed.. which is carried into section 16–2383 herein. The 1953 act did not provide that the Juvenile Court, in placing defendants on probation, should do so "as provided by section 24–102".

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. Appeal after suspension of sentence

Defendant convicted of indecent assult had a right of appeal notwithstanding that imposition of sentence was suspended and that defendant was required to give his personal recognizance or bond not to repeat the offense. Thomas v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 129 A. 2d 852).

Defendant who was convicted of indecent assualt and whose sentence was suspended with requirement that defendant give his personal recognizance or bond not to repeat the offense could appeal as a matter of right rather than by application for appeal, notwithstanding statute providing that where penalty imposed is less that $50 review shall be by application. Id.

As used in this chapter, "court" means the Domestic Relations Branch of the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 560, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Section is new, but states no new law. It is inserted for the purpose of clarification. At the time of the enactment, in 1901, of the provisions carried into this chapter, the term "court", as used in the provisions, referred to the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, the name of which was changed in 1936 to the "District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia", and in 1948 to the "United States District Court for the District of Columbia". Jurisdiction of actions for divorce or annulment of marriage, legal separation from bed and board, and related matters, continued to be vested in that court until the enactment of the act Apr. 11, 1956, ch. 204, § 101 et seq., 70 Stat. 111–113 (D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 758 et seq.). Since that time, it has been vested in the Domestic Relations Branch of the Municipal Court, the name of which was changed by act Oct. 23, 1962, Pub. L. 87–873, § 1, 76 Stat. 1171, to the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions. See section 11–1141 herein.

A decree of nullity of marriage or divorce may not be rendered in favor of anyone who has not been a bona fide resident of the District of Columbia for at least one year next before the application therefor, and a divorce may not be decreed in favor of any person who has not been a bona fide resident of the District for at least two years next before the application therefor for any cause that has occurred out of the District and prior to residence therein. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 560, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–401 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854 § 971, 31 Stat. 1345; Aug. 7, 1935, ch. 453, § 2, 49 Stat. 539).

1. Abandonment of abode

Where wife abandons her abode in District of Columbia and establishes a new abode in Virginia, if at any time during her stay in Virginia she forms the intention of remaining there indefinitely, she acquires a domicile in Virginia and is no longer a resident of District of Columbia for purposes of filing divorce complaint, notwithstanding that she may have a floating intention to return to the District at some future time. Adams v. Adams, Jr. (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 136 A. 2d 866).

2. Accrual of right of action

Both separation and desertion are continuing acts and right of action for divorce incident to them is not perfected until required period of time has elapsed. Oatley v. Oatley (D.C. Mun. App. 1960, 161 A. 2d 834).

For purposes of this section requiring two years' residence within district as prerequisite to divorce for cause which occurred out of district and prior to residence therein, voluntary separation or desertion as basis for divorce occurs when time element required by this section lapses rather than when parties initially separate. Id.

3. "Application" defined

Residential requirement of this section providing that no decree of nullity of marriage or divorce shall be rendered in favor of anyone who has not been a bona fide resident of District of Columbia for at least one year next before application therefor, and no divorce shall be decreed in favor of any person who has not been a bona fide resident of the district for at least two years next before "application" therefor for any cause which shall have occurred out of the district and prior to residence therein relates to the beginning of a suit for divorce, and motion for enlargement of judgment for divorce from bed and board to absolute divorce does not require such residence, since word "application" as used in statute dealing with enlargement of divorce from bed and board to absolute divorce, means no more than "motion." Bottomley v. Bottomley (1958, 262 F. 2d 23, 104 U.S. App. D.C. 311).

4. Bona fide resident

Even though a marriage is void ab initio without being so decreed for reason that husband had a previous undissolve marriage, where a judicial decree of nullity is sought in District of Columbia, the petitioning party is required to establish that she has been a bona fide resident of District for at least one year preceding the petition for annulment. Koonin, next friend of Hornsby v. Hornsby (D. C. Mun. App. 1958, 140 A. 2d 309).

5. Construction

The provision of this section, that no divorce shall be granted to anyone who has not been a bona fide resident of District for at least one year before application therefor did not require Federal District Court to refuse to entertain wife's amended cross-complaint, charging husband's commission of adultery with one named therein as co-respondent and cross-defendant, in husband's divorce suit, even if cross-complainant lost her District domicile by moving to Maryland before filing amended cross-complaint. Daniels v. Souders (1952, 195 F. 2d 780, 90 U.S. App. D.C. 298).

Exclusionary provisions of this section are in the conjunctive and cause of action for divorce must have occurred both outside of district and prior to residency in district before longer period of residence is required. Oatley v. Oatley (D.C. Mun. App. 1960, 161 A. 2d 834).

6. Cross-complaint

Where cases adopting view, in other jurisdictions than District of Columbia that divorce may be granted nonresident of state of forum on cross-petition in divorce action by resident thereof, though this section requires plaintiff in divorce action to be resident of such state for designated time, clearly indicate that plainest principles of equity furnished impulse for such view, it will be adopted by Court of Appeals for District of Columbia in construing District Code prohibiting divorce decree in favor of one who has not been bona fide resident of District for at least one year before application therefor. Daniels v. Souders (1952, 195 F. 2d 780, 90 U.S. App. D.C. 298).

7. Domicile

In divorce action instituted by wife of North Carolina serviceman one year after she and her husband began living in Washington, D.C., but only a month and a half after date of their separation, evidence sustained finding that there was no intent on part of husband to abandon his former domicile and establish one in Washington, and therefore court did not have jurisdiction of suit. Stephenson v. Stephenson (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 134 A. 2d 105).

8. Evidence

"The statute in no way changes the rules of evidence but is designed primarily to prevent this jurisdiction from becoming a haven for those seeking divorce." Creel v. Creel (43 App. D.C. 82).

Evidence supported finding that wife, suing for divorce, was a resident of New York, and not of the District of Columbia, and justified decree dismissing suit. Metcalf v. Metcalf (1944, 142 F. 2d 102, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 51).

9. Foreign decrees

A divorce granted in any State according to its laws by a court having jurisdiction of the cause and of both the parties is valid and effectual everywhere. Sears v. Sears (1937, 92 F. 2d 530, 67 App. D.C. 379).

10. Goood faith

Residence for purpose of divorce must be in good faith. Downs v. Downs (23 App. D.C. 381).

11. Instructions

An instruction in a prosecution for perjury committed in a divorce action that "residence required does not necessarily mean the technical, legal domicile, but does mean that locality where the social life of the parties is lived, and that locality where the greatest publicity will be given by litigation concerning his status" was erroneous and standing alone would require reversal. McFarland v. U.S. (1949, 174 F. 2d 538, 85 U.S. App. D.C. 19).

12. Jurisdiction

Statutory jurisdiction of United States District Court for the District of Columbia in law and equity between parties, both or either of which shall be resident or be found within the district, extends also to application for enlargement of judgment of divorce from bed and board to a judgment for absolute divorce. Bottomley v. Bottomley (1958, 262 F. 2d 23, 104 U.S. App. D.C. 311).

The federal District Court for District of Columbia had jurisdiction of husband's action for divorce on ground of adultery committed by wife outside District, though plaintiff did not allege his residence therein for two years, where wife's acts of adultery were alleged to have been committed within period of over a year for which complaint alleged that plaintiff was a resident of District. Orlans v. Orlans et al. (1956, 238 F. 2d 31, 99 U.S. App. D.C. 170).

This section does not require two years residence where cause for divorce occurs outside District during period in which plaintiff is bona fide resident of District. Id.

The voluntary appearance of the defendant in such cases does not confer jurisdiction. Winston v. Winston (1921, 271 F. 551, 50 App. D.C. 321).

Jurisdiction in divorce suit not shown, by reason of nonresidence. Rollings v. Rollings (1932, 53 F. 2d 917, 60 App. D.C. 305). See, also, Marcum v. Marcum (1933, 62 F. 2d 871, 61 App. D.C. 332); Ridgeway v. Ridgeway (1933, 63 F. 2d 458, 61 App. D.C. 395).

Where wife's former marriage to another had been annulled by decree of chancery court of Mississippi wherein the other but not the wife was then domiciled, and wife was not served with process there or anywhere else except by publication and entered no appearance, regardless of whether the annulment was entitled to full faith and credit in District of Columbia, it was within power of district court to recognize it in wife's suit for limited divorce against husband by subsequent marriage. Shima v. Shima (1942, 130 F. 2d 809, 75 U.S. App. D.C. 370).

District Court was without jurisdiction of a bill for divorce where plaintiff had not been a bona fide resident of the District of Columbia for at least one year before filing her complaint. Clark v. Clark (1948, 79 F. Supp. 722).

If court does not have jurisdiction of the original bill for divorce, it is without jurisdiction of the cross-bill and it will be treated as a mere auxiliary suit or as a dependency upon the original bill, and, when the original bill is dismissed for lack of jurisdiction, the cross-bill must also be dismissed. Id.

In wife's divorce suit, it was proper for trial court at conclusion of wife's case to make finding of fact as to whether wife was bona fide resident of District of Columbia for one year preceding filing of her complaint, as required by this section. Adams v. Adams, Jr. (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 136 A. 2d 866).

In divorce suit by wife who lived in District of Columbia at time of her marriage and for a year thereafter when she moved to Arlington, Virginia, where she lived for nearly two years prior to bringing suit against husband who was in armed services and who had remained in District only a few days after the marriage, evidence sustained trial court's finding of fact that wife was not bona fide resident of District for one year preceding filing of her complaint as required by this section. Id.

13. Law applicable

When Congress has enacted a complete set of divorce and marriage laws for the District of Columbia, it is to these laws, rather than to those preserved out of the past relationship with the State of Maryland, that must be looked to for guidance and control in the determination of a question. Hoage v. Murch Bros. Constr. Co. (1931, 50 F. 2d 983, 60 App. D.C. 218).

14. Locus of acts

Where the parties are residents of the District and sue for a divorce for acts committed therein it is not error to introduce evidence showing acts of cruelty commenced in another jurisdiction and culminating in this District. Creel v. Creel (43 App. D.C. 82).

Where offense was committed beyond the District of Columbia plaintiff must affirmatively aver in the bill, and prove as a fact at the trial, a bona fide residence here for a period of three years; and such averment and proof is jurisdictional. Winston v. Winston (1921, 271 F. 551, 50 App. D.C. 321).

15. Permanency of residence

Where parties were married in Virginia on June 27, 1953, in October, 1956 while they were living in West Virginia they separated, wife remained there until November 1, 1956, when she came to District of Columbia having obtained employment there, she had been working and living there continuously ever since and paid taxes in the District as her home, wife was resident of District for more than two years prior to filing of her suit for divorce on grounds of desertion notwithstanding that for a while wife was willing to resume marital relations with husband out of District if and when he provided a satisfactory home for her, which he never did, since the law did not require that wife when she moved to District intended to remain in District permanently. Heater v. Heater (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 155 A. 2d 523).

In action by husband for divorce on ground of wife's desertion in Virginia where husband had formerly lived with wife, testimony of husband, who had moved to District of Columbia more than two years prior to commencement of action, that husband did not intend to make his home permanently in District because his employer was transferring him back to Virginia in near future did not, by itself, deprive trial court of jurisdiction and trial court erred in dismissing complaint for lack of jurisdiction. Jones v. Jones (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 136 A. 2d 580).

16. Residence

One who was married in the District of Columbia and resided there for 14 years does not lose such residence by temporarily residing in another state, without intending to abandon the domicile here. Stewart v. Stewart (1923, 286 F. 987, 52 App. D.C. 323).

Naval officer who was born and lived in Washington, D.C., may obtain divorce in that jurisdiction although he was a registered voter in New Jersey. Dennett v. Dennett (1934, 71 F. 2d 975, 63 App. D.C. 252).

In wife's action for divorce where proof showed that parties were married in the District of Columbia in October 1939, and had obtained license upon representation that both resided there, and husband had lived in the District continuously since 1935, and testified that he meant to remain in District so long as he could work and make a living, and there was no evidence that husband had a fixed and definite intent to return to state of his former residence, proof showed that plaintiff was a "bona fide resident" of the District for the year preceding the filing suit for divorce. Rogers v. Rogers (1942, 130 F. 2d 905, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 297).

Persons are "domiciled" in the District of Columbia who live there and have no fixed and definite intent to return and make their homes where they were formerly domiciled. Id.

Under this section "residence" means "domicile" Rogers v. Rogers (1942, 130 F. 2d 905, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 297). See, also, Koonin, next friend of Hornsby v. Hornsby (D.C. Mun. App. 1958, 140 A. 2d 309; Jones v. Jones (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 136 A. 2d 580); Adams v. Adams, Jr. (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 136 A. 2d 866).

Where wife, suing for divorce, had been absent from her former home in District of Columbia since 1923, in meantime she had been in China, Massachusetts, and New York, and had recently voted in New York and had continued to reside in New York City, but she testified that she had never abandoned her domicile in the District of Columbia, in deciding the issue of fact with regard to her intention, the court properly gave substantial weight to all of the facts. Metcalf v. Metcalf (1944, 142 F. 2d 102, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 51).

In action by husband for divorce, finding that husband had been for the required period a bona fide resident of the District of Columbia was not clearly erroneous. Jeffe v. Jeffe (App. D.C. 1946, 152 F. 2d 24).

Plaintiff could not at the same time qualify as a legal voter of New York and sue for divorce in the District of Columbia as a resident of the city of Washington. Moritz v. Moritz (D.C. Sup. 1948, 80 F. Supp. 267).

For purposes of this section providing that no divorce shall be decreed in favor of any person who has not been a bona fide resident of the District for at least two years next before the application therefor for any cause which shall have occurred out of District and prior to residence therein, the term "residence" means domicile. Heater v. Heater (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 155 A. 2d 523).

District of Columbia Court of General Sessions did not have jurisdiction of suit for annulment of marriage brought by husband who became a resident only about three months before the complaint was filed. J. A. Gullo v. M. A. Gullo etc. (D.C. App. 1963, 192 A. 2d 126).

"Residence" as used in statute concerning granting of a divorce or annulment of a marriage means "domicile". Id.

A decree annulling the marriage as illegal and void may be rendered on any of the grounds specified by sections 30–101 and 30–103 as invalidating a marriage. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 560, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Fraud 1
Jurisdiction 2
Legislative intent 3
Lunatic 4
Parties 5

1. Fraud

Fraud in its procurement will vitiate the contract upon which marriage is based as well as any other contract, and will justify its annulment by the courts. Lenoir v. Lenoir (24 App. D.C. 160).

2. Jurisdiction

The court of the domicile of the parties has jurisdiction to annul a marriage contracted elsewhere, but, in determining whether such a decree will be rendered, the court of the forum will be governed by principles of marriage law of state which, under the appropriate conflicts of law rule, determine validity of marriage in question, and marriages in violation of strong "public policy" of the domiciliary state can be declared void in a proceeding there. Hitchens v. Hitchens (1942, 47 F. Supp. 73).

3. Legislative intent

Plain purpose of the law is to prohibit divorce or annulment of marriage upon the mere statement of one of the parties without corroborative evidence. Lenoir v. Lenoir (24 App. D.C. 160).

4. Lunatic

A person who has been allured or entrapped into a marriage with an insane person is not required to procure an adjudication of such insanity in an independent proceeding before he or she could be permitted to institute a suit directly for the annulment of the marriage. Mackey v. Peters (22 App. D.C. 341).

5. Parties

Proceeding in equity on behalf of a lunatic to annul a marriage contracted during infancy is properly brought by his next friend; however, the committee should be made a party defendant. Mackey v. Peters (22 App. D.C. 341).

§ 16–904. Grounds for divorce, legal separation and annulment.

(a) A divorce from the bond of marriage or a legal separation from bed and board may be granted for:

(1) adultery;

(2) desertion for two years;

(3) voluntary separation from bed and board for five consecutive years without cohabitation; or

(4) final conviction of a felony involving moral turpitude and sentence for not less than two years to a penal institution that is served in whole or part.

A legal separation from bed and board may also be granted for cruelty; and where a final decree of divorce from bed and board is or has been granted and the separation of the parties continues or has continued for two years after date of decree, the decree may be enlarged into a decree of absolute divorce from the bond of marriage upon application of the innocent spouse.

(b) Marriage contracts may be declared void where:

(1) the marriage was contracted while either of the parties thereto had a former wife or husband living, unless the former marriage had been lawfully dissolved;

(2) the marriage was contracted during the lunacy of either party, unless there has been voluntary cohabitation after the lunacy, or was procured by fraud or coercion;

(3) either party was matrimonially incapacitated at the time of marriage and the incapacity has continued; or

(4) either party had not arrived at the age of legal consent to the contract of marriage, unless there has been voluntary cohabitation after coming to legal age, but only on the action of the party not capable of consenting.

1. Admissibility of evidence

In wife's action for annulment of marriage on ground of husband's matrimonial incapacity, psychiatrist who had examined husband should have been permitted to answer question as to whether husband was matrimonially incapacitated at time of marriage as result of phychogenic causes, notwithstanding that his diagnosis as to husband's impotence would rest largely upon history and symptoms described to him by husband. Kaufman v. Kaufman (1948, 164 F. 2d 519, 82 U.S. App. D.C. 397).

2. Adultery

Foundation principle underlying connivance, and essential to its establishment, is that plaintiff must have consented, either expressly or impliedly, to the adultery. Bateman v. Bateman (42 App. D.C. 230).

Husband's suspicions of wife, his failure to put obstacles in her way, and his desire for divorce did not amount to "connivance", so that finding that wife committed adultery without her husband's connivance was based on sufficient evidence. Shima v. Shima (1942, 130 F. 2d 809, 75 U.S. App. D.C. 370).

3. Amendment of complaint

Where husband sued wife for absolute divorce on ground of voluntary separation but evidence pointed to constructive desertion on part of wife and uncontradicted evidence seemed to justify divorce for desertion, husband was entitled to amend complaint to conform to evidence showing desertion. Slone v. Slone (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 134 A. 2d 585).

4. Annulment

In proceedings to annul a void marriage, especially where it is so declared by statute, the rule of pari delicto and the equitable principle of "clean hands" are inapplicable, since in such cases the State becomes a third party. Simmons v. Simmons (1927, 19 F. 2d 690, 57 App. D.C. 216, 54 A.L.R. 75).

5. Antenuptial agreement

Agreement prior to and at time of marriage that purpose of marriage was to give child born legal name and that if parties were not satisfied with marriage, divorce could be obtained, did not constitute "collusion" in legal sense and did not bar husband from obtaining divorce on ground of voluntary five years' separation. L. R. Davis, Jr. v. A. L. Davis (D.C. App. 1963, 191 A. 2d 138).

Agreement prior to entering into marriage that parties may voluntarily separate, end marriage, and be divorced, is nothing more than recognition of rights given by statute and is not contrary to law. Id.

6. Application defined

Residence requirement of this section providing that no decree of nullity of marriage or divorce shall be rendered in favor of anyone who has not been a bona fide resident of District of Columbia for at least one year next before application therefor, and no divorce shall be decreed in favor of any person who has not been a bona fide resident of the district for at least two years next before "application" therefor for any cause which shall have occurred out of the district and prior to residence therein relates to the beginning of a suit for divorce, and motion for enlargement of judgment for divorce from bed and board to absolute divorce does not require such residence, since word "application" as used in this section dealing with enlargement of divorce from bed and board to absolute divorce, means no more than "motion". Bottomley v. Bottomley (1958, 262 F. 2d 23, 104 U.S. App. D.C. 311).

7. Burden of proof

In divorce suit based on voluntary separation for five years, party contending that a voluntary separation ceased to be voluntary has burden of proving that contention. Bowers v. Bowers (1944, 143 F. 2d 158, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 146).

8. Capacity

Matrimonial incapacity as result of impotence as ground for annulment may be result of psychogenic causes as well as result of physical defects. Kaufman v. Kaufman (1948, F. 2d 519, 82 U.S. App. D.C. 397).

In action by husband for annulment of marriage on ground that his wife was incapable of entering into married state due to psychogenic causes, evidence was insufficient to sustain finding that failure to consummate marriage was due to stubborn disposition on part of wife to deny husband matrimonial intercourse. Jwaideh v. Jwaideh (D.C. Mun. App. 1958, 140 A. 2d 303).

9. "Cohabitation" construed

"Cohabitation," as used in statute specifying as a ground for divorce voluntary separation without cohabitation, means sexual intercourse, and therefore wife who lived separately from her husband for five consecutive years but who engaged in sexual relations with him approximately once a month during such period could not be granted a divorce on ground of voluntary separation. G. B. Dottelis v. M. S. Dottelis (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 187 A. 2d 128).

10. Common-law marriage

Evidence that the parties never expressly agreed to be husband and wife, and that the defendant made a promise to marry the plaintiff which he never kept, was insufficient to establish a common-law marriage. M. M. Toye v. Leo A. Toye (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 170 A. 2d 778).

Where ceremonial marriage of parties was void because it occurred before annulment of husband's former marriage to another had become final, but the parties continued their cohabitation after the annulment became final, there was a valid common law marriage, and wife was not entitled to annulment because of the invalidity of the ceremonial marriage. Utterback v. Utterback (1947, 71 F. Supp. 231).

Action to annul ceremonial marriage on ground that at time of marriage, annulment of husband's prior marriage to another had not become absolute, was required to be considered in the light of the fact that the District of Columbia was a common law marriage jurisdiction. Id.

11. Consent

Consent necessary to bar a divorce for desertion must be found in some affirmative conduct by complainant amounting to a participation in the conduct of the opposite spouse; silent acquiescence or mere acceptance of fixed determination to leave or failure to object to departure or to exert physical force or other importunity to prevent departure do not constitute "consent". Betty L. Marcey v. Melvin L. Marcey (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 130 A. 2d 918).

In wife's action for divorce on ground of husband's desertion for more than two years, evidence warranted finding that wife did not consent to husband leaving home of parties even though she did not make an affirmative protest. Id.

12. Construction

There is no provision in this section which permits the application of the doctrine of revival after condonation prior to institution of suit for divorce. Stea v. Stea (1949, 83 F. Supp. 625).

13. Corroboration

In husband's suit for divorce on ground of voluntary separation from bed and board for five consecutive years without cohabitation, ruling requiring corroboration of plaintiff's testimony was erroneus. Moore v. Moore (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 135 A. 2d 643).

Where husband sued wife for absolute divorce on ground of voluntary separation from bed and board for five consecutive years without cohabitation and husband's testimony supported allegations of the complaint, trial court's dismissal of complaint on ground that such testimony was without corroboration constituted reversible error. Henderson v. Henderson (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 134 A. 2d 581).

In uncontested divorce action by husband on ground of five years voluntary separation from wife, corroboration of husband's testimony that he and his wife had not cohabited for five years was unnecessary. Weber v. Weber (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 134 A. 2d 323).

Corroboration of husband's testimony that wife deserted him was not necessary as a matter of law in action by husband for divorce on ground of desertion. Stevens, Jr. v. Stevens (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 134 A. 2d 111).

Corroboration of testimony is not required in divorce action. Johnson v. Johnson (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 134 A. 2d 109).

In an uncontested action for absolute divorce alleging desertion, where plaintiff's evidence tended to prove constructive desertion, corroboration of plaintiff's testimony was not required. Brett v. Brett (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 133 A. 2d 927).

14. Cruelty

Mental cruelty as well as physical cruelty must be such as to endanger and impair the wife's health. Kimmel v. Kimmel (1949, 171 F. 2d 340, 84 U.S. App. D.C. 177).

"It is difficult to lay down any definite rule as to what constitutes cruelty within the provisions of this statute. It is clear, we think, that it is not necessary that the conduct be limited to such physical treatment as would endanger life or health. * * * The conduct of the offending party, in the absence of assault, may be such as to make life intolerable and thereby amount to such cruel treatment as to justify a decree of separation. * * * It is sufficient if the evidence, in the absence of physical violence, establishes conduct which creates a state of mind which operating upon the physical system produces bodily injury." Waltenberg v. Waltenberg (1924, 298 F. 842, 54 App. D.C. 383). See, also, Snow v. Snow (48 App. D.C. 448, certiorari denied 39 S. Ct. 492, 250 U.S. 641, 63 L. Ed. 1185).

Evidence did not establish cruelty warranting a divorce. Trice v. Trice (1925, 5 F. 2d 543, 55 App. D.C. 328).

"Cruelty" may be shown, without physical violence, but not by mere incompatibility. Taylor v. Taylor (1934, 67 F. 2d 582, 62 App. D.C. 316). See, also, Holt v. Holt (1935, 77 F. 2d 538, 64 App. D.C. 280).

A limited divorce may be granted for cruelty. Helvestine v. Helvestine (1937, 89 F. 2d 970, 67 App. D.C. 121).

False accusations of adultery, maliciously made, without probable cause or reasonable grounds for belief, and producing requisite degree of anguish, suffering, and danger to health constitute sufficient cause to warrant limited divorce for "cruelty". Bostick v. Bostick (D.C. Mun. App. 1960, 163 A. 2d 817).

Cruelty within divorce statute must depend largely on circumstances of each case. Schreiber v. Schreiber (D.C. Mun. App. 1958, 139 A. 2d 278).

15. Decisions of District Court

The Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia would accord great weight to findings of District Court in a divorce action. Cocci v. Cocci (1951, 185 F. 2d 898, 88 U.S. App. D.C. 43).

16. Definitions

While statute does not declare length of time drunkenness, cruelty, or desertion must continue, "there is no difficulty in arriving at the legal definition of the terms employed." Maschaur v. Maschaur (23 App. D.C. 87).

17. Denial of intercourse

"The wife's denial to the husband of matrimonial intercourse is not, of itself, ground for divorce." Underwood v. Underwood (1921, 271 F. 50 App. D.C. 323).

18. Desertion

"Desertion" means a voluntary separation of one party from the other without justification, with no intention to return and the absence of consent of connivance of other party. W. Mitchell v. W. R. Mitchell (D.C. App. 1963, 194 A. 2d 828).

In absence of two year statutory period of continued, uninterrupted desertion by wife, judgment for absolute divorce granted to husband on ground of desertion was improper. Id.

Decree granting legal separation ended possibility of a charge of further or continuing desertion against the wife. Id.

Evidence justified denial of divorce to the wife on the ground of desertion. G. R. Bowles v. C. H. Bowles (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 178 A. 2d 434).

Wife was entitled to divorce on ground of desertion where husband had left, more than two years before initiation of action, for no good or stated reason and without wife's consent. V. Gaskins v. F. L. Gaskins (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 175 A. 2d 783).

Right of wife to divorce on ground of desertion was not lost; although, more than four years after husband left, she did not offer to mend situation by taking him back. Id.

Testimony of wife, corroborated in part, that husband left, taking most of his belongings, and did not say where he was going, that she could not locate him, and that about two months later he came to get rest of belongings and told her she could get divorce but did not say where he was going, was not inherently incredible. Id.

Where trial court which granted husband divorce on ground of desertion made no specific finding of fact as to whether it had been purpose and intent of husband, in entering into separation agreement, to consent or acquiesce in separation, case would be remanded for proper consideration of issue. Lort v. Lort (1952, 198 F. 2d 598, 91 U.S. App. D.C. 118, 34 A.L.R. 2d 951).

One unjustifiably deserted need not seek a reconcilement. Underwood v. Underwood (1921, 271 F. 553, 50 App. D.C. 323).

Ill temper and differences over financial matters are not sufficient to justify desertion. "Acts justifying desertion must be such as would support a decree for divorce." Id.

"No definite period of desertion is prescribed. Intent, therefore, plays an important part in determining the question. While actual separation and intention to desert must exist together to constitute desertion, it is apparent that they need not be identical in their commencement. Thus, if the departure antedates the intention to desert, the period of desertion dates from the time such intention was formed (Hitchcock v. Hitchcock (15 App. D.C. 81)), while if the intention to desert antedates the departure, the period commences to run from the time of the latter." Moncure v. Moncure (1922, 278 F. 1005, 51 App. D.C. 292). See, also, Blandy v. Blandy (20 App. D.C. 535).

The present law of the District authorizes absolute divorce for desertion. Atkinson v. Atkinson (1936, 82 F. 2d 847, 65 App. D.C. 241).

An unrevoked separation agreement in the absence of other circumstances bars a divorce on the ground of desertion but where other circumstances are present, the agreement becomes merely one of the factors to be considered and the question must be determined upon its merits in each case. The important consideration is whether the separation of the parties was consented to or acquiesced in by the innocent party, who except for such consent or acquiescence would have been privileged to secure a divorce upon the ground of desertion. Parks v. Parks (1938, 98 F. 2d 235, 68 App. D.C. 363).

Desertion for a period before the passage of this act may be added to time subsequent, before institution of absolute divorce proceedings, to make up the two years provided for herein. Richardson v. Richardson (1940, 112 F. 2d 19, 72 App. D.C. 67).

Dismissal of wife's action for divorce on ground of desertion was unauthorized where husband, without wife's consent, left home following a quarrel and wife had done nothing which would justify a divorce by husband and had unsuccessfully urged husband to return. Miller v. Miller (1940, 114 F. 2d 596, 72 App. D.C. 348).

Generally, a husband is guilty of "desertion" if he lives apart from wife without her consent, unless wife is guilty of acts which would justify a divorce. Id.

Where separation of husband and wife occurred in February, 1936, but full and complete marital relations were reestablished in February, 1940, and the reestablished relation was again terminated after February 23, 1940, alleged desertion of wife was not continuous for a period of more than two years next preceding the commencement of action by husband for absolute divorce on September 10, 1940, and therefore complaint was required to be dismissed. Bledsoe v. Bledsoe (1942, 43 F. Supp. 784).

Wife, who did not prove that conduct of husband amounted to cruelty which would warrant a limited divorce on that ground, was not entitled to absolute divorce on ground that by reason of husband's conduct she was forced to leave him and that husband therefore was guilty of constructive desertion. Schreiber v. Schreiber (D.C. Mun. App. 1958, 139 A. 2d 278).

Under this section allowing innocent party an absolute divorce in case of desertion for two years, word "desertion" contemplates a voluntary separation without justification or an intention to return, and without consent or connivance on part of other party; the separation and intent must concur to meet requirements of desertion. Betty L. Marcey v. Melvin L. Marcey (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 130 A. 2d 918).

19. Drunkenness

Cruelty resulting from excessive drinking, which will justify a spouse in leaving the other and thereby make the other guilty of constructive desertion, will justify a limited divorce. R. W. Potts v. J. H. Potts (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 171 A. 2d 263).

When facts show occasional instances, within the three years, of disgusting and sometimes protracted intoxication, it falls short of establishing the state of habitual drunkenness required by the statute. Acker v. Acker (22 App. D.C. 353).

20. Enlargement of final decree

Where separation continued for more than two years since the date of the separation decree, but prior to an application of enlargement for a final decree of divorce, the parties resumed marital relations and thereafter the relationship was again severed and more than two years elapsed before the filing of the application herein, the motion for absolute divorce is not available as a basis because separation had not continued for two years since the date of such decree. Stea v. Stea (1949, 83 F. Supp. 625).

21. Felony involving moral turpitude

Violation of the Harrison Act, although said act was passed as an exercise of the government's taxing power, involved control of narcotics and was a felony involving moral turpitude within meaning of this section. Menna v. Menna (1939, 102 F. 2d 617, 70 App. D.C. 13).

Where husband was convicted on plea of guilty to charge of obtaining money by false pretenses with intent to defraud and was sentenced to imprisonment for maximum of three years, and he began serving sentence and did not appeal, and seven months after conviction, wife brought suit for absolute divorce under this section authorizing divorce in case of final conviction of a felony involving moral turpitude, and a week after husband was served in divorce action he filed in criminal case a motion for new trial, it could not be said as a matter of law that husband, by lodging motion for new trial in criminal case, destroyed right of wife to divorce. Katz v. Katz (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 136 A. 2d 261).

22. Foreign decree

When petitioner presented to the Virginia court the grounds on which he sought release, gave notice to the respondent of the suit, and when she appeared, especially as she maintains and raised the question whether he had standing to sue, it would be unreasonable to hold that his domicile in Virginia was not sufficient to entitle him to obtain a divorce having the same force in the District as in that State. Davis v. Davis (1938, 59 S. Ct. 3, 305 U.S. 32, 83 L. Ed. 26).

Virginia decree, lawfully obtained, constitutes a valid divorce a vinculo, entitled to full faith and credit in the Supreme Court of the District when there drawn in question. Bloedorn v. Bloedorn (1935, 76 F. 2d 812, 64 App. D.C. 199).

Divorce obtained in Maryland on grounds not recognized in the District, which was the matrimonial domicile, would be held valid. Atkinson v. Atkinson (1936, 82 F. 2d 847, 65 App. D.C. 241).

A divorce obtained by a person legally domiciled in the District who leaves it and goes into a state solely for the purpose of obtaining a divorce and with no purpose of residing there permanently, is invalid, and the District, being the bona fide residence, may forbid the enforcement within its borders of a decree of divorce so procured. Sears v. Sears (1937, 92 F. 2d 530, 67 App. D.C. 379).

23. Fraud

Concealing pregnancy at time of marriage, fraud. Lenoir v. Lenoir (24 App. D.C. 160). See, also, Alexander v. Alexander (36 App. D.C. 78).

24. Husband's choice of domicile

Generally, a husband has the right to choose the place where the family will live; and if the husband acts reasonably, the unjustified failure or refusal of wife to follow him is desertion, which, if it persists for statutory period of two years, is grounds for divorce. Snyder v. Snyder (D.C. Mun App. 1957, 134 A. 2d 587).

25. Insanity

This section authorizing divorce for voluntary separation for five consecutive years requires that continued separation depend upon the continued intention, so that a period of insanity suffered by the wife must be excluded in computing the statutory period. Dorsey v. Dorsey (1952, 195 F. 2d 567, 90 U.S. App. D.C. 284).

26. Jurisdiction

Statutory jurisdiction of United States District Court for the District of Columbia in law and equity between parties, both or either of which shall be resident or be found within the district, extends also to application for enlargement of judgment of divorce from bed and board to a judgment for absolute divorce. Bottomley v. Bottomley (1958, 262 F. 2d 33, 104 U.S. App. D.C. 311).

27. Laches and estoppel

Wife's delay of 21 years after separation before her first demand for support did not constitute laches barring her from permanent alimony in husband's divorce acton on ground of five years' voluntary separation, in absence of showing of prejudice to husband, where wife had wished to be independent but her health deteriorated, and particularly where, during 12 of those years, she was mentally incompetent. J. N. Samuels, Jr. v. D.C. Samuels (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 173 A. 2d 214).

In wife's divorce action, where at conclusion of hearing on husband's motion for new trial on ground of invalidity of marriage because of invalidity of wife's prior foreign divorce decree from another, court ordered wife's complaint dismissed on theory that prior marriage had not been terminated and wife's motion to vacate judgment and for new trial was not timely made, overruling of wife's motion could not be considered a determination against the wife of issues of laches and estoppel presented by her motion since it was assumed that the trial court properly overruled the motion on the ground that the motion was too late and did not pass on the merits of the motion. Ruppert v. Ruppert (1943, 134 F. 2d 497, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 65).

Under marriage and divorce statutes of District of Columbia, in determining the effect to be given irregular foreign divorce decree, the doctrines of "laches" and "estoppel" may be applied not only in annulment actions but also in divorce action where attack upon marriage by a party thereto is made by way of defense. Id.

Generally suits to annul marriages on ground of incapacity must be brought within a reasonable time after discovery of defect, and if action is not instituted promptly it will be barred by laches. Jwaideh v. Jwaideh (D.C. Mun. App. 1958, 140 A. 2d 303).

Where husband discovered wife's incapacity to enter into married state due to psychogenic causes within a year following marriage, but after initial treatment parties did nothing more to correct the trouble until some six years later, husband's action for annulment of marriage was barred by laches. Id.

28. Legislative intent

Congress intended by the enactment of 1935 (§§ 16-401, 16-403, 16-409, 16-421) to liberalize and enlarge the divorce laws of the District of Columbia, both as to existing and prospective conditions. Tipping v. Tipping (1936, 82 F. 2d 828, 65 App. D.C. 222).

In passing the act of August 7, 1935 (§§ 16-401, 16-403, 16-409, 16-421), it was the intention of Congress to liberalize the grounds for divorce. Helvestine v. Helvestine (1937, 89 F. 2d 970, 67 App. D.C. 121).

The purpose of liberalizing amendment to divorce statute was to permit termination of law of certain marriages which have ceased to exist in fact. Vanderhuff v. Vanderhuff (1944, 144 F. 2d 509, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 153). See, also, Boyce v. Boyce (1946, 153 F. 2d 229, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 355).

29. Legitimacy

While the courts of the District will refuse a husband or wife relief from a remarriage willfully contracted in violation of the laws of the District, and will not enforce the obligations of the marital status so assumed, if such enforcement will result in benefit or advantage to the wrongdoer only, judicial cognizance may be taken of such status in order to preserve and protect the rights of children and innocent persons. Olverson v. Olverson (1924, 293 F. 1015, 54 App. D.C. 48).

The courts do not look with favor on the construction of a law, if not unavoidable, which declares children illegitimate. Thomas v. Murhpy (1940, 107 F. 2d 268, 71 App. D.C. 69).

30. Limited divorce

Under particular circumstances the trial court should grant a limited divorce although there is no specific prayer for such decree. O'Neil v. O'Neil (1924, 299 F. 914, 55 App. D.C. 40).

31. Lunatic

Suit to annul marriage of lunatic may be filed by next friend, and need not be filed by his committee, although in such case the committee should be made a defendant. Mackey v. Peters (22 App. D.C. 341).

32. Maintenance

To entitle a wife, seeking a limited divorce, to a temporary allowance for maintenance, she must live separate and apart from her husband. Cooper v. Cooper (1940, 30 F. Supp. 151).

Where parties enter into a ceremonial marriage and live together for 19 years, the wife, having every right to assume that her former husband from whom she had heard nothing for more than 10 years before her marriage was dead, may sue for separate maintenance upon separation. It could not be presumed that the former husband had remained alive for the 30 years, and the circumstances would establish a common-law marriage upon the death of the former husband in case he was alive at the time of the second ceremonial marriage. Williams v. Williams (1940, 33 F. Supp. 612). See, also, Parrella v. Parrella (1940, 33 F. Supp. 614).

33. Medical services

Municipal court has no power to compel a husband to provide funds for his wife's separate maintenance. Accordingly judgment obtained by physician for professional services rendered to wife against husband must be dismissed. Irwin v. Hawfield (D.C. Mun. App. 1949, 62 A. 2d 926).

34. Period of desertion

A limited divorce may not be granted on ground of desertion for period of less than two years. Scott v. Scott (D.C. Mun. App. 1958, 140 A. 2d 312).

35. Pleading

A suit for a limited divorce and alimony or, in the alternative, for separate maintenance, states two causes of action, distinct not only in the nature of the relief sought but also in the statutory causes for which it may be granted. Pedersen v. Pedersen (1940, 107 F. 2d 227, 71 App. D.C. 26).

36. Presumptions

That wife, in good faith continually attempted to bring about reconciliation from beginning of separation until 18 months later gave rise to a presumption, applicable in husband's action for divorce on grounds of five years' voluntary separation, that wife's continued efforts during five year period relied on had also been in good faith. Roberts v. Roberts (1955, 222 F. 2d 408, 95 U.S. App. D.C. 382).

Where wife voluntarily left husband and there was no evidence or contention that wife afterwards changed her mind and wished to return, law presumes that she did not wish to do so. Buford v. Buford (1946, 156 F. 2d 567, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 169).

37. Prima facie case

In action by husband for divorce on ground of desertion on theory that wife refused to accompany him to new residence, even though action was uncontested, because testimony raised an inference of possible justification of wife's conduct, husband had burden of making out at least a prima facie case and explaining away any apparent justification for wife's conduct. Snyder v. Snyder (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 134 A. 2d 587).

38. Prior decree

Where wife, on November 2, 1953, obtained a limited divorce, on ground of husband's desertion, which court found began June 2, 1948, and continued more than two years, and on January 29, 1954, husband brought action for divorce on ground of voluntary separation for five consecutive years, husband's action was barred by the 1953 decree, since desertion and voluntary separation cannot exist at the same time, and there was therefore not a voluntary separation of five years when husband brought action. Pratt v. Pratt (1957, 240 F. 2d 639, 99 U.S App. D.C. 401).

39. Prior divorce invalid

In wife's divorce action, husband's motion for new trial on ground that wife's divorce decree from another was invalid because of fraud perpetrated on court in respect of wife's residence presented a "question of fact" and decision granting new trial was not so wanting in evidential support as to be arbitrary. Ruppert v. Ruppert (1943, 134 F. 2d 497, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 65).

A divorce to a husband in Virginia being invalid, his subsequent marriage was void, his wife acquired no rights, nor his children, except to have their legitimacy declared. Frey v. Frey (1932, 59 F. 2d 1046, 61 App. D.C. 232).

40. Proceedings

A proceeding for absolute divorce may be either by a new suit or by a petition in an old suit for a limited divorce in which the defendant has been brought in by rule to show cause. Stern v. Stern (D.C. Sup. 1948, 80 F. Supp. 266).

41. Purpose

The purpose of this section making voluntary separation from bed and board for five consecutive years ground for divorce is to permit termination in law of marriages which have ceased to exist in fact. Hawkins v. Hawkins (1951, 191 F. 2d 344, 89 U.S. App. D.C. 147).

42. Question of fact

In divorce proceeding, question whether as result of conduct of husband wife suffered requisite impairment of health to justify granting of divorce on ground of cruelty was question of fact. Schreiber v. Schreiber (D.C. Mun. App. 1958, 139 A. 2d 278).

43. Recrimination

Recrimination is not an absolute bar to a divorce. Vanderhuff v. Vanderhuff (1944, 144 F. 2d 509, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 153).

A husband's invalid marriage to another did not preclude husband and lawful wife from ending their separation and resuming life together, and the remarriage was immaterial to action for divorce by husband under five-year provisions of this section, since recrimination is no longer a defense to a divorce suit. Buford v. Buford (1946, 156 F. 2d 567, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 169).

44. Remarriage

District law, forbidding remarriage of guilty party (provision subsequently eliminated from law by amendment) to divorce, does not render invalid subsequent remarriage in Florida. Loughran v. Loughran (1934, 54 S. Ct. 684, 292, U.S. 216, 78 L. Ed. 1219, rehearing denied 54 S. Ct. 861, 292 U.S. 615, 78 L. Ed. 1474).

A remarriage elsewhere in disregard of the statute, even when both parties remained domiciled in the District, is not void ab initio, but, at most, voidable, and a voidable marriage cannot be annulled after death of either spouse. Id.

Provision that after divorce for adultery the innocent party only may remarry was eliminated by 1935 amendment. Thomas v. Murphy (1940, 107 F. 2d 268, 71 App. D.C. 69).

45. Separation agreement

Order, dismissing wife's complaint because of belief that separation agreement barred right to absolute divorce on ground of two years' desertion, was reversed and cause remanded for new trial. E. S. Coles v. W. W. Coles (D.C. App. 1964, 200 A. 2d 193).

Evidence supported finding that wife had acted voluntarily in entering into separation agreement with husband, who was suing for divorce on ground of 5-year voluntary separation and who had made lengthy negotiations with wife's lawyer who had thereafter prepared the agreement. R. C. Clement v. H. G. Clement (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 179 A. 2d 433).

The validity of separation agreement depended on whether it was fairly and voluntarily made, if intended as complete and final settlement, and if so made, it was binding and barred further claims by wife. B. LeBert-Francis v. M. P. LeBert-Francis (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 175 A. 2d 602).

Evidence sustained finding that husband had, by his acts as well as by execution of separation agreement with his wife, confirmed and consented to separation already existing between parties, and did not carry his burden, showing desertion. G. N. Keller v. D. W. Keller (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 171 A. 2d 511).

Generally, an unrevoked separation agreement, in absence of other circumstances, bars a divorce on ground of desertion, but where other circumstances appear, agreement becomes one of factors to be considered and question must be determined upon the merits, important considerations being whether separation of parties was consented to or acquiesced in by innocent party who except for such consent or acquiescence would have been privileged to secure divorce on ground of desertion. Lort v. Lort (1952, 198 F. 2d 598, 91 U.S. App. D.C. 118, 34 A.L.R. 2d 951).

If parties to a marriage separated by agreement without cohabitation for more than eight years under the old law and one month under the new law, the actual status of the parties should be recognized and the separation be regarded as a ground for divorce rather than require separation should continue for four years and eleven months more before a divorce could be granted. Tipping v. Tipping (1936, 82 F. 2d 828, 65 App. D.C. 222).

46. Separation from bed and board

Husband and wife who, though they sometimes eat at the same table, never eat together with any decent degree of socialibility are "separated from board" within meaning of this section making separation from bed and board for five consecutive years ground for divorce. Hawkins v. Hawkins (1951, 191 F. 2d 344, 89 U.S. App. D.C. 147).

Sharing a "board" within meaning of this section connotes eating together with some decent degree of sociability. Id.

The fact that husband and wife, after separation, continued to live under the same roof and shared in the use of the same dining table did not establish that there was no "separation from bed and board," where they did not occupy the same room and alternated in the use of the table to avoid friction. Boyce v. Boyce (1946, 153 F. 2d 229, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 355).

Legal separation from bed and board is authorized for various grounds including cruelty. Pedersen v. Pedersen (1940, 107 F. 2d 277, 71 App. D.C. 26).

Under this section as amended in 1935, a divorce a mensa et thoro establishes a permanent status which can be changed only by revocation of the decree or by absolute divorce for cause arising since the decree or by the enlargement of the decree into a decree of absolute divorce upon the application of the innocent spouse. Parks v. Parks (1948, 79 F. Supp. 919, reversed on other grounds 116 F. 2d 556, 73 App. D.C. 93).

The phrase "legal separation from bed and board" is a synonymous term with divorce a mensa et thoro. Maschaur v. Maschaur (23 App. D.C. 87).

Divorce a vinculo matrimonii is final, while separation from bed and board is only a partial divorce. Id.

47. Standard of proof

That wife, who was sued by husband for desertion, failed to substantiate her counterclaim for divorce for husband's constructive desertion on basis that his cruelty had forced her to leave did not entitle husband to absolute divorce because wife admitted leaving marital abode. J. M. Stephenson v. V. Stephenson (D.C. App. 1963, 191 A. 2d 248).

1935 Amendments to Code did not lesson standard of proof required to sustain divorce on one of statutory ground. Id.

Admissions of both counsel at end of trial, in which both husband and wife sought divorce on ground of desertion, that neither party objected to the other's obtaining divorce on ground of desertion did not lend strength to proof of desertion of either side. Id.

Willingness of parties to have bonds of matrimony severed is not substitute for evidentiary showing required to establish statutory grounds for divorce. Id.

48. Status of divorce from bed and board

A judgment of divorce from bed and board in the District of Columbia leaves the parties in the continuing status of husband and wife, with inherent possibility that a further motion for absolute divorce will be made, and the action therefore remains open for further action as though it were an equity injunction. Bottomley v. Bottomley (1958, 262 F. 2d 23, 104 U.S. App. D.C. 311).

49. Sufficiency of evidence

In husband's divorce action on ground of five years' voluntary separation, evidence whether wife's attempts to effect a reconciliation during five year period relied on had been in good faith did not support finding that separation had been voluntary. Roberts v. Roberts (1955, 222 F. 2d 408, 95 U.S. App. D.C. 382).

Evidence sustained judgment denying husband a divorce under this section. Butler v. Butler (1946, 154 F. 2d 203, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 26).

Evidence, consisting of wife's uncontradicted testimony as to husband's impotence at time of marriage, corroborated by record of prior annulment suit against husband in which a former wife obtained an annulment upon ground of fraudulent misrepresentation of his matrimonial capacity, was sufficient to require judgment of annulment on ground of matrimonial incapacity. Kaufman v. Kaufman (1948, 164 F. 2d 519, 82 U.S. App. D.C. 397).

Evidence justified denial of limited divorce for cruelty to either husband or wife. O'Neal v. O'Neal (1948, 80 F. Supp. 538).

There was sufficient evidence to find cruelty, taking into consideration that appellant was and is an admittedly nervous woman. Kimmell v. Kimmell (1949, 171 F. 2d 340, 84 U.S. App. D.C. 177).

A wife seeking a divorce under the District Code is not required to live separate and apart from the husband further than to segregate herself from him so as to avoid condoning acts which she charges as the basis for divorce. The essential thing is not separate roofs but separate lives so as to abandon with apparent permanency of intention the relation of husband and wife. Hurd v. Hurd (1950, 179 F. 2d 68, 86 U.S. App. D.C. 62).

That the parties to a divorce continue their residence in the same dwelling is merely a fact which is evidentiary on the question as to whether they are living together as husband and wife. Id.

Where appellant attacked a limited divorce granted for cruelty upon the ground of insufficient evidence, and testimony showed no physical violence or abuse and no evidence that the wife's health had suffered by reason of husband's mistreatment and neglect, the charge of cruelty was not proved and the judgment awarding the divorce should be reversed. Moore v. Moore (1950, 179 F. 2d 38, 86 U.S. App. D.C. 16).

The evidence was sufficient to support the granting of a limited divorce for cruelty in favor of appellee. Reilly v. Reilly (1950, 182 F. 2d 108, 86 U.S. App. D.C. 345, certiorari denied 71 S. Ct. 90, 340 U.S. 865, 95 L. Ed. 632).

In action for divorce by wife who alleged that by reason of her husband's conduct which amounted to cruelty she was forced to leave him and that he therefore was guilty of constructive desertion, evidence sustained finding that wife's health was not affected by husband's conduct. Schreiber v. Schreiber (D.C. Mun. App. 1958, 139 A. 2d 278).

In action by wife for a limited divorce on grounds of cruelty and for maintenance for support of herself and five minor children of the marriage, evidence supported judgment denying divorce but granting wife separate maintenance and custody. Divers v. Divers (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 134 A. 2d 332).

50. Termination of decree

Final divorce decree, which changes the fundamental relationship of parties, terminates wife's right to receive alimony under a preceding separation decree predicated on her status as a wife. Holmes v. Holmes (1946, 155 F. 2d 737, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 132, 166 A.L.R. 1000).

Alimony, awarded in decree for divorce a mensa et thoro subject to further order of court, was automatically terminated by decree a vinculo matrimonii in which no provision for or reference to payment of alimony was made, even though the decree a vinculo was obtained pursuant to provisions of local rules for enlargement of decree. Id.

51. Vacation of residence

Where court denied limited divorce for cruelty to either party, and wife purchased residential property with her own funds, and continued presence of the husband therein constituted a threat to wife's health, and the parties had already voluntarily separated, court would compel the husband to move from the residence upon the petition of the wife. O'Neal v. O'Neal (1948, 80 F. Supp. 538).

52. Voidable marriages

Where boy who was of the age of 16 years and 7 months and girl who was of the age of 15 years and 10 months were domiciled in District of Columbia, and boy obtained father's consent to marry by falsely representing that girl was pregnant and obtained Virginia marriage license by falsely representing that he was age 18 and that she was age 17, and after their marriage in Virginia they lived together in District of Columbia in their own home as man and wife for about six months and then separated, under the District of Columbia statutes the marriage, although forbidden, was not void ab initio, but was merely void when declared so by court decree, and court had judicial discretion to refuse to grant annulment, and under the circumstances such refusal was not abuse of discretion. Duley, etc. v. Duley (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 151 A. 2d 255).

To establish ground for divorce under this section plaintiff must prove that spouse had affirmatively agreed to separation through its duration, that spouse had silently acquiesced during period relied upon, or that spouse did not actually in good faith manifest a desire to continue marriage relation, thus justifying a conclusion of acquiescence. Roberts v. Roberts (1955, 222 F. 2d 408, 95 U.S. App. D.C. 382).

Marriages which, because of long separation, have ceased in fact to exist, may, for that reason, be legally ended only where separation has been continuously voluntary on part of both parties for statutory period. Id.

Where separation of wife and husband was voluntary originally, and shortly thereafter wife was committed to mental institution as insane, time spent by wife in the institution could not be counted as time spouses were voluntarily separated so as to entitle husband to an absolute divorce on ground that spouses were voluntarily separated for five years notwithstanding that wife in visits to her home manifested no change of attitude regarding the separation. Dorsey v. Dorsey (1952, 195 F. 2d 567, 90 U.S. App. D.C. 284).

Evidence that husband and wife, while continuing to live in the same house, had for twenty years occupied separate bedrooms, had no marital relations or social life together and, though they sometimes ate together, did not speak to each other, established voluntary "separation from bed and board" as ground for absolute divorce. Hawkins v. Hawkins (1951, 191 F. 2d 344, 89 U.S. App. D.C. 147).

Where husband and wife for twenty years occupied separate bedrooms, had no marital relations or social life together and did not speak to each other, in absence of anything to suggest that they did not intend to do what they did and regardless of whether they knew the legal effect of their conduct, their separation was "voluntary" within meaning of this section making voluntary separation from bed and board for five consecutive years ground for divorce. Id.

In divorce action evidence was insufficient to establish that wife had during the statutory five year period made any effort to get in touch with her husband so as to effect a reconciliation, and therefore separation of parties must be deemed to have been voluntary within meaning of this section. Cocci v. Cocci (1951, 185 F. 2d 898, 88 U.S. App. D.C. 43).

In divorce action, whether conversations which wife stated she had with her husband did occur, and whether they constituted substantial efforts on her part, made in good faith to effect a reconciliation, as bearing on whether 5 years' separation of husband and wife was voluntary within this section, were questions of fact. Farish v. Farish (1951, 185 F. 2d 425, 87 U.S. App. D.C. 329).

This section authorizing divorce on voluntary separation for five years without cohabitation, retroactively applied, was valid. Tipping v. Tipping (1936, 82 F. 2d 828, 65 App. D.C. 222). See, also, Parks v. Parks (1941, 116 F. 2d 556, 73 App. D.C. 93).

Record justified decree awarding husband absolute divorce on ground of five years' voluntary separation, notwithstanding wife had previously obtained limited divorce or separation, with maintenance, in New York, on ground, among others, of cruelty which made it unsafe and improper for her to cohabit with her husband. Clemens v. Clemens (1944, 143 F. 2d 24, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 116, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 76, 323 U.S. 736, 89 L. Ed. 590).

The fact that separation resulted from husband's fault was not a defense to husband's suit for absolute divorce under this section. Parks v. Parks (1941, 116 F. 2d 556, 73 App. D.C. 93).

Where husband deserted wife, without cause, on April 18, 1932, and parties did not live together thereafter, and husband filed suit on May 6, 1938, for absolute divorce, and wife, although wishing that husband would return, silently acquiesced in separation, husband was entitled to divorce, since wife's asquiescence made separation "voluntary", within less than a year after it began, within contemplation of this section. Id.

That wife had obtained a limited divorce from husband did not prevent husband from subsequently obtaining an absolute divorce on ground of separation or of voluntary separation. Id.

A separation agreement signed by husband and wife after husband deserted wife was no defense to husband's suit for absolute divorce where separation had been voluntary for more than five years before commencement of suit. Id

A deserted spouse need not make attempts to end the separation in order to obtain a divorce, and even actual unwillingness on her part to take the deserter back does not prevent her from obtaining a divorce. Id.

A husband was entitled to divorce on ground of voluntary separation for five years, where separation was originally voluntary on both sides and wife failed to establish that her subsequent requests that husband return to her were made in good faith. Bowers v. Bowers (1944, 143 F. 2d 158, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 146).

Under this section authorizing divorce for voluntary separation for five consecutive years, divorce is authorized if both parties voluntarily and continuously acquiesce in separation during five years, even though separation was not originally voluntary on both sides. Id.

Under this section authorizing divorce for voluntary separation for five consecutive years, divorce is unauthorized if either party does not voluntarily and continuously acquiesce in separation during five years, even though separation was originally voluntary on both sides. Id.

Under this section authorizing absolute divorce on ground of five years' voluntary separation without cohabitation, if wife's leaving of husband was influenced by unkindness or even cruelty that is immaterial under this section, since provocation or justification for an act is not to say that the act is involuntary. Buford v. Buford (1946, 156 F. 2d 567, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 169).

When separation is continued more than five years and neither party has tried to end it, a divorce should be granted. Id.

Husband's silent acquiescence in continued separation made the separation "voluntary" in the statutory sense less than six months after it began. Id.

For plaintiff to be entitled to a divorce under this section, it must be established that the separation was voluntary at the outset, or that the defendant's silent acquiescence made the separation voluntary, in the statutory sense. Butler v. Butler (1946, 154 F. 2d 203, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 26).

Where husband and wife after separation continued to occupy separate rooms under the same roof, but had no marital relations, and ate at different times, although using the same table, and husband silently acquiesced therein for more than five years, wife was entitled to divorce under this section on ground of voluntary separation from bed and board for five consecutive years without cohabitation. Boyce v. Boyce (1946, 153 F. 2d 229, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 355).

Under provision of this section authorizing an absolute divorce on ground of voluntary separation from bed and board for five consecutive years without cohabitation, where the separation was not voluntary on part of wife for the full term of five consecutive years, fact that the court also found that the parties for all practical purposes had been unmarried since 1939 did not entitle the husband to a divorce. Martin v. Martin (1947, 160 F. 2d 20, 82 U.S. App. D.C. 40).

Under provision of this section authorizing an absolute divorce on the ground of voluntary separation from bed and board for five consecutive years without cohabitation, "voluntary" connotes an agreement and unless the parties agreed to live apart, separation is not voluntary. Id.

This section authorizing divorce for voluntary separation for five consecutive years requires a physical separation plus a mental disposition which gives a voluntary character to the separation, and the initial character of separation is not determinative of voluntariness of separation. Dorsey v. Dorsey (1951, 94 F. Supp. 917, affirmed 195 F. 2d 567, 90 U.S. App. D.C. 284).

Action for absolute divorce on the ground of voluntary separation for five years, brought approximately three years after defendant was granted a divorce a mensa et thoro, was premature. Parks v. Parks (1948, 79 F. Supp. 919, reversed on other grounds 116 F. 2d 556, 73 App. D.C. 93).

A separation for five consecutive years between husband and wife is "voluntary" under the evidence so as to entitle plaintiff to divorce notwithstanding that separation was originally caused by desertion by plaintiff husband. Helfgott v. Helfgott (1950, 179 F. 2d 39, 86 U.S. App. D.C. 409).

In action by husband for divorce on ground of voluntary separation for five years, evidence was insufficient to establish that separation of the parties, even though 20 years in duration, was voluntary on part of wife, notwithstanding the fact that in answer to an interrogatory as to whether wife was willing to attempt to effect a reconciliation with her husband, she stated that she was not so willing Maur etc. v. C. Ciavarro (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 154 A. 2d 366).

In action by husband for divorce on ground of five years' voluntary separation, evidence sustained finding that separation had not been voluntary on part of wife after original separation. Scott v. Scott (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 147 A. 2d 449).

53. Voluntary separation

Husband was properly denied divorce on ground of five years' voluntary separation, where trial court found, on conflicting testimony of husband and wife, that husband had failed to prove that separation was voluntary. O. O. Taylor v. Lola C. Taylor (D.C. App. 1963, 191 A. 2d 140).

In action for absolute divorce on ground of voluntary separation from bed and board for five consecutive years without cohabitation, evidence sustained finding that the parties had not been voluntarily separated from bed and board without cohabitation for the five years next preceding the filing of the complaint. Talbert v. Talbert (1955, 223 F. 2d 347, 96 U.S. App. D.C. 55).

54. Waiver

Separation agreement which required parties, in event of decree of divorce or of separation, to request no sum for maintenance, alimony, property settlement, costs or attorney fees except as provided therein, did not constitute waiver of attorney's fees to wife's counsel in husband's unsuccessful divorce action. G. N. Keller v. D. W. Keller (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 171 A. 2d 511).

The court may revoke its decree of divorce from bed and board at any time, upon the joint application of the parties to be discharged from the operation of the decree. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 561, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–404 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 969, 31 Stat. 1345).

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. Repeal

The 1935 amendment to sections 401, 403, 409, 421 of this title did not affect the repeal of this section providing for a revocation of a decree of divorce a mensa et thoro upon joint application of the parties. Parks v. Parks (1948, 79 F. Supp. 919, reversed on other grounds 116 F. 2d 556, 73 App. D.C. 93).

§ 16–906. Causes for absolute divorce arising after decree for separation.

Where a divorce from bed and board has been decreed the court may afterwards decree an absolute divorce between the parties for any cause arising since the first decree and sufficient to entitle the complaining party to the second decree. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 561, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

A minor change is made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. Enlargement of final decree

The motion for enlargement of the decree of limited divorce into one of absolute divorce is denied but without prejudice to an independent action by the plaintiff for an absolute divorce if she has grounds therefor in accordance with § 16–405. Stea v. Stea (1949, 83 F. Supp. 625).

§ 16–907. Legitimacy of issue of annulled marriage contracted while another in force.

If any marriage is declared by decree to be void because either party has a former wife or husband living, and it appears that the marriage was contracted in good faith by the other party and in ignorance of the obstacle to the marriage, the court shall so find and declare in its decree, and the issue of the marriage shall be deemed to be the legitimate issue of the parent who was capable of contracting. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 561, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–406 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 972, 31 Stat. 1346).

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. Marriage—when void

When divorce decree was obtained in Virginia through falsehood, any subsequent marriage by either party is void. Frey v. Frey (1932, 59 F. 2d 1046, 61 App. D.C. 232).

§ 16–908. Legitimacy of issue of annulled marriage with lunatic.

If a marriage is declared null and void because of the idiocy or lunacy of either party at the time of the marriage the issue of the marriage shall be deemed legitimate. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 561, Pub. L. 88–241, §1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–407 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 973, 31 Stat. 1346).

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–909. Legitimacy of issue of divorced marriage.

A divorce for a cause provided for by this chapter does not affect the legitimacy of the issue of the marriage dissolved by the divorce, but the legitimacy of the issue, if questioned, shall be tried and determined according to the course of the common law. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 561, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–408 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 974, 31 Stat. 1346).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–910. Dissolution of property rights—Jurisdiction of court.

Upon the entry of a final decree of annulment or absolute divorce, in the absence of a valid antenuptial or postnuptial agreement in relation thereto, all property rights of the parties in joint tenancy or tenancy by the entirety shall stand dissolved and, in the same proceeding in which the decree is entered, the court may award the property to the one lawfully entitled thereto or apportion it in such manner as seems equitable, just, and reasonable. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 561, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–409 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 974a, as added Aug. 7, 1935, ch. 453, § 3, 49 Stat. 540).

Changes are made in phraseology.

1. Antenuptial agreements

Under this section permitting husband and wife to retain incidents of tenancy by entireties by valid antenuptial or postnuptial agreement "in relation" thereto, property settlement agreement must be made "in relation" to property rights of parties rather than "in relation" to the divorce and consequently any agreement which preserves those property rights of parties is sufficient. Heath v. Heath (1951, 189 F. 2d 697, 89 U.S. App. D.C. 68).

2. Authority to partition property held by the entirety

District court, refusing a divorce, has no power or authority to partition or award to one spouse real property which is titled by the entireties. Hogan v. Hogan (1958, 250 F. 2d 412, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 87).

3. Discretion of court

Denial to wife, divorced on ground of adultery, of any share of home property held by husband and wife as tenants by entirety was not abuse of discretion. P. C. Pearsall and R. H. Hill v. H. C. Pearsall (D.C. App. 1964, 197 A. 2d 269).

Where in annulment proceedings, trial court excluded evidence of wife's contribution toward the purchase of a house and where the record shows that husband's counsel, without having offered evidence, expressly rested except for the identification of the parties, there was no error or abuse or discretion in the court's subsequent ruling that it was too late for counsel of husband to make a proffer of testimony. Nelson v. Nelson (1949, 171 F. 2d 1021, 84 U.S. App. D.C. 167).

4. Duty of court

District court has the right and duty to exercise a sound judicial discretion in adjusting the property rights of the parties. Slaughter v. Slaughter (1949, 171 F. 2d 129, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 301).

5. Inapplicability of statute

In a suit for limited divorce for cruelty, this section does not apply since its provision for apportionment relates only to property in which a tenancy, joint or by entireties, dissolves through a decree for absolute divorce or nullity of marriage. Reilly v. Reilly (1950, 182 F. 2d 108, 86 U.S. App. D.C. 345, certiorari denied 71 S. Ct. 90, 340 U.S. 865, 95 L. Ed. 632).

6. Jurisdiction

This section does not deprive district court of jurisdiction to determine ownership of property in District of Columbia formerly held in tenancy by entirety by persons divorced by a foreign decree, there being no agreement or other decree respecting the property. Scholl v. Scholl (1946, 152 F. 2d 672, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 292).

Where ownership of house, proceeds from its occupancy under lease executed by defendant, and disposition of furniture were issues presented by complaint for divorce, but defendant pleaded that she had been granted an absolute divorce from plaintiff by a foreign decree, court had jurisdiction to resolve disputed ownership of rents and furniture notwithstanding court dismissed action for divorce because of foreign divorce decree. Id.

Where decree in proceeding for annulment of marriage incorporated by reference purported property settlement agreement which defendant claimed provided for alimony, error, if any, was in decreeing a sum over and above amount of property settlement itself, and such error, if any, did not oust court of jurisdiction to enter the decree. Moran v. Moran (1947, 160 F. 2d 925, 82 U.S. App. D.C. 107).

7. Procedure

This section permitting a husband and wife to retain ceeding should have power to award or apportion property owned jointly is concerned solely with matters of procedure and not with substantive powers of court. Wheeler v. Wheeler (1951, 188 F. 2d 31, 88 U.S. App. D.C. 193).

8. Property rights

Ordinarily, decree forfeiting wife's interest in entireties property because of adultery is effective as of date of its entry, unless it expressly provides earlier date. M. Schultze v. G. H. Schultze (1962, 300 F. 2d 917, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 162).

Decree forfeiting wife's interest in entireties property because of adultery was effective as of date of Maryland divorce judgment, which found adultery and on basis of which forfeiture was directed, although forfeiture decree did not fix date of effect. Id.

Wife whose interest in entireties property was declared forfeited because of adultery was not entitled to share in rents accruing after effective date of forfeiture, nor to conveyance of one-half of property. Id.

Where property was conveyed to husband and wife as joint tenants and they entered into separation agreement providing that real estate jointly owned by parties should thereafter remain as joint property of parties in joint tenancy, conveyance using words creating joint tenancy actually gave husband and wife tenancy by entireties and incidents of tenancy by entirety would be retained after dissolution of marriage by reason of separation agreement, notwithstanding fact that separation agreement referred to estate as property held in joint tenancy. Heath v. Heath (1951, 189 F. 2d 697, 89 U.S. App. D.C. 68).

This section permitting a husband and wife to retain the incidents of a tenancy by the entirety after their marriage is dissolved if they so agreed but terminating such estate in the absence of agreement and authorizing court to award or apportion property involved applies to property settlement agreement when foreign divorce has been obtained. Id.

This section providing that, upon entry of divorce decree, property rights of parties in joint tenancy or tenancy by the entirety shall stand dissolved and court shall have power to award or apportion property does not empower court to award wife an interest in property owned by husband alone. Wheeler v. Wheeler (1951, 188 F. 2d 31, 88 U.S. App. D.C. 193).

Where wife has interest in husband's property, court in divorce proceeding may adjudicate property rights and award wife the property which belongs to her. Id.

Under this section, giving the court the right to adjudicate the title to property held in common, the court did not abuse its discretion in awarding to the husband, on his application for divorce, sole ownership of real estate which was purchased from a joint account established by him, the wife having been guilty of breaching the marriage vows. Richardson v. Richardson (1940, 112 F. 2d 19, 71 App. D.C. 26).

While the court has the right and duty to exercise a sound judicial discretion in adjusting the property rights of the partics, it is an abuse of discretion, upon awarding the husband a divorce, to fail to award to the husband ownership of property when the wife furnished no part of the money necessary to acquire the property and has completly forfeited her interest in it by failure to live up to the marriage covenants. Oxley v. Oxley (1947, 159 F. 2d 10, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 346).

District Court for District of Columbia had power in annulment proceeding to settle property rights of parties even if there had been no agreement between parties. Moran v. Moran (1947, 160 F. 2d 925, 82 U.S. App. D.C. 107).

It does not necessarily follow that the court would have abused its discretion if it had awarded appellant more than the amount she had contributed to the purchase of the house, and there was certainly no abuse thereof in limiting her to that amount. Slaughter v. Slaughter (1949, 171 F. 2d 129, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 301).

Property conveyed to spouses by entireties can be ordered partitioned or sold, or disputes can otherwise be adjudicated, by District Court for District of Columbia in cases where limited divorce decree is in existence; and, likewise, property held by entireties can be awarded in part, or in its totality, to one tenant, depending upon facts, evidence, etc., in case; and District Court has such power of partition or award even though divorce was granted by Municipal Court. Hipp v. Hipp (1960, 191 F. Supp. 299).

District Court for District of Columbia had power to determine property rights of divorced parties after entry of foreign divorce. Curles v. Curles et al. (1956, 136 F. Supp. 916, affirmed 241 F. 2d 448, 100 U.S. App. D.C. 43).

Where realty owned by husband and wife as tenants by the entirety was not referred to in final divorce decree, and wife died before decree could become effective to terminate marriage by expiration of six months, the proceedings in divorce action abated by death of plaintiff, and divorce court would not determine whether husband was entitled to property as sole surviving tenant by entirety or whether on entry of decree the husband and wife became owners as tenants in common with interest of wife passing to her heirs at law on her death Brown v. Brown (1951, 97 F. Supp. 237).

This section giving Domestic Relations Branch of Municipal Court, on grant of an absolute divorce, power to award property held by parties jointly or by entireties to one or the other of the parties, or to apportion it, was not applicable to wife's claim against her husband for individual property. Posnick v. Posnick (D.C. Mun. App. 1960, 160 A. 2d 804).

Under amendment to section 11–762 of Domestic Relations Branch Act, giving Domestic Relations Branch of Municipal Court jurisdiction over determinations and adjudications of property rights, both real and personal, in any divorce action irrespective of any jurisdictional limitation imposed on the Municipal Court, Domestic Relations Branch of Municipal Court has authority, on granting a limited divorce, to award, or partition the property, real or personal, held by the parties jointly or by entirety, in the same manner in which it may act on granting an absolute divorce. Id.

9. Review

Where trial court could not properly have awarded wife an interest in husband's property in divorce case unless wife had an interest in property, and reviewing court could not ascertain from findings and conclusions whether that was the case, the portion of award relating to that property was set aside and case remanded for further findings. Wheeler v. Wheeler (1951, 188 F. 2d 31, 88 U.S. App. D.C. 193).

Where divorce case was being remanded on issue of award to wife of an interest in husband's property and it appeared that District Court might desire to change allowances as to alimony and counsel fees, reviewing court would not pass on award with respect to those matters. Id.

Where evidence was conflicting in suit for divorce, Municipal Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia would not be justified in reversing findings of Municipal Court for the District of Columbia, Domestic Relations Branch, which had opportunity to hear witnesses and observe their demeanor. Bostick v. Bostick (D.C. Mun. App. 1960, 163 A. 2d 817).

10. Sufficiency of evidence

An award of real property to plaintiff wife in divorce proceeding on finding that she had purchased the property from proceeds of sale of a lot and premises, title to which was in her name and which she had previously purchased out of her own funds was sustained by the evidence. Bilsborough v. Bilsborough (1947, 160 F. 2d 933, 82 U.S. App. D.C. 115).

11. Tenancy by the entirety

Where husband and wife held realty as tenants by the entirety, and wife obtained a decree of absolute divorce that did not expressly deal with realty, and wife died five months and four days after decree was signed so that decree did not become final, divorce proceedings were properly declared abated under statutes of District of Columbia, and daughter of the deceased wife was not entitled to an interest in the realty by descent on ground that the wife was a tenant in common thereof at time of her death. Wesley v. Brown (1952, 196 F. 2d 859, 90 U.S. App. D.C. 351).

During the pendency of an action for divorce, or an action by the husband to declare the marriage null and void, where the nullity is denied by the wife, the court may:

(1) require the husband to pay alimony to the wife for the maintenance of herself and their minor children committed to her care, and suit money, including counsel fees, to enable her to conduct her case, whether she is the plaintiff or the defendant, and enforce any order relating thereto by attachment and imprisonment for disobedience;

(2) enjoin any disposition of the husband's property to avoid the collection of the allowances so required;

(3) if the husband fails or refuses to pay the alimony or suit money, sequestrate his property and apply the income thereof to such objects; and

(4) determine who shall have the care and custody of infant children pending the proceedings.

1. In general

Court may award alimony pendente lite without passing on merits of litigation. Sparks v. Sparks (25 App. D.C. 356). See, also, Lesh v. Lesh (21 App. D.C. 475).

Suit to set aside divorce and for maintenance in personam, and wife may not create jurisdiction by seizure of property and notice by publication. Bliss v. Bliss (1931, 50 F. 2d 1002, 60 App. D.C. 237).

This section purports to authorize an award pendente lite only as incident to a suit for divorce or one for annulment. Pedersen v. Pedersen (1940, 107 F. 2d 227, 71 App. D.C. 26).

2. Abatement

Divorce action abated upon wife's death, and, therefore, court lacked power to compel surviving husband to pay wife's counsel fees for services prior to wife's death. B. F. Fitzgerald, Jr., et ano. v. M. Williams (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 170 A. 2d 777).

3. Absconding husband

This section authorizes the rendering and enforcement of personal decrees for temporary alimony and it may well be extended to include the case of an absconding husband when the matrimonial domicile of husband and wife is within jurisdiction of the court. Thompson v. Tanner (1923, 287 F. 980, 53 App. D.C. 3).

4. Annulment

When suit was for the annulment of the marriage, and not for a divorce, the court might allow alimony pendente lite, but it had no power to award to the defendant permanent alimony. Alexander v. Alexander (36 App. D.C. 78). See, also, Payne v. Payne (1924, 295 F. 970, 54 App. D.C. 149).

5. Basis for commitment

Where neither underlying order for payment of money for maintenance of minor children nor order adjudging defendant to be in contempt for failure to obey underlying order and committing defendant to jail rested upon necessary finding that defendant had failed or refused to maintain his wife and minor children although able to do so, order of commitment was invalid. Lundergan v. Lundergan (1958, 252 F. 2d 823, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 259).

When validity of commitment for contempt for nonpayment of money judgment is questioned, court will look behind commitment order to money judgment itself, and if that judgment is invalid on its face as a basis for commitment then commitment will not be sustained, and rule that decree of court, assuming jurisdictional basis, must be obeyed until set aside by judicial process, is not applicable. Id.

6. Collection after dismissal

Installments of alimony pendente lite previously accruing are collectible after entry of a final judgment dismissing action for divorce. Cole v. Cole (1946, 67 F. Supp. 134, reversed on other ground 161 F. 2d 883, 82 U.S. App. D.C. 155).

7. Contempt

Divorced husband's remarriage and acquisition of second set of children whom he must support and the attainment of majority by children of first marriage did not justify refusal to hold husband in contempt for failure to pay monthly installments which divorce decree required husband to pay for support of wife and children of first marriage. Kephart v. Kephart (1952, 193 F. 2d 677, 89 U.S. App. D.C. 373, certiorari denied 72 S. Ct. 557, 342 U.S. 944, 96 L. Ed. 702).

A wife's delay in seeking to enforce payment of alimony does not destroy or affect the husband's obligation to obey the court's order, and that obligation does not depend upon the payee's diligence in trying to collect, and contempt is shown by an inexcusable failure to pay what the court ordered and is not limited to a failure to pay sums which the wife promptly demands. Id.

8. Costs and counsel fees

Award of counsel fees to unsuccessful wife in divorce action is discretionary. M. M. P. Ritz v. B. A. Ritz (D.C. App. 1964, 197 A. 2d 155).

It requires extremely strong showing to convince reviewing court that award of counsel fees to unsuccessful wife is so arbitrary as to constitute abuse of discretion. Id.

In determining amount of award of counsel fees to unsuccessful wife in divorce suit, trial court is not bound by any mathematical computation of time consumed multiplied by some hourly rate. Id.

In determining amount of award of counsel fees to unsuccessful wife in divorce action, consideration should be given to many factors, including quality and nature of services performed, necessity for such services, results obtained from services, and husband's ability to pay. Id.

Trial court did not abuse its discretion in awarding unsuccessful wife only $1,500 as counsel fees, though divorce trial lasted eight days. Id.

"Without regard to whether or not the wife succeeds in her litigation, we think that under section 975 of the Code (this section) she is entitled to reasonable attorney's fees for services rendered in prosecuting her case and to costs of the suit." Towson v. Towson (1919, 258 F. 517, 49 App. D.C. 45).

Counsel fees of a husband who was plaintiff in divorce proceedings cannot be allowed against the corespondent. Eichelberger v. Symons (1923, 288 F. 654, 53 App. D.C. 116).

The wife was entitled to present her case, and the court may compel a husband to pay counsel fee for the wife, while refusing because of her misconduct to compel the payment of alimony. Myers v. Myers (1925, 4 F. 2d 300, 55 App. D.C. 224).

Although there had been no lawful marriage between the parties, either under the statutes or at common law, because plaintiff had a legal husband living, the court was authorized to require defendant to pay a reasonable counsel fee to plaintiff's counsel for their services. Tendler v. Tendler (1926, 12 F. 2d 831, 56 App. D.C. 296, certiorari denied 47 S. Ct. 96, 273 U.S. 637, 693, 71 L. Ed. 843).

The fact that the court found against the wife did not affect the rightfulness of the allowance for counsel fees. Friedenwald v. Friedenwald (1927, 16 F. 2d 509, 57 App. D.C. 13).

Order for "suit money" could not be entered after divorce suit had abated by reason of the plaintiff's death. Bailey v. Scott (1927, 18 F. 2d 184, 57 App. D.C. 142).

The court is not required to hear and pass upon the evidence relating to the final issues involved before granting allowance to wife for suit money and counsel fees. Martin v. Martin (1927, 18 F. 2d 823, 57 App. D.C. 173).

Counsel fees to wife in divorce proceedings; enforced by contempt proceedings. Boardman v. Carey (1933, 65 F. 2d 600, 62 App. D.C. 152).

Upon dismissal of complaint the allowance of costs and counsel fees is within the discretion of the trial court. Shellman v. Shellman (1938, 95 F. 2d 108, 68 App. D.C. 197).

Where husband appealing from judgment in divorce action granting a divorce to husband but giving custody of two children to wife and awarding wife alimony, counsel fees, and suit money, filed notice of appeal on June 27, 1940, and on July 2, 1940, the husband filed a supersedeas bond, the district court had jurisdiction on that date, to enter an order allowing suit money and counsel fees to wife in respect of appeal. Jaffe v. Jaffe (1942, 124 F. 2d 233, 74 App. D.C. 394).

If counsel for wife knowingly participates to husband's injury in wife's wrongful or inequitable conduct in connection with a divorce suit, counsel should not be assisted by the court in collecting a fee from the injured husband. Shima v. Shima (1944, 139 F. 2d 533, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 265, 150 A.L.R. 1179).

An attorney who conducts a wife's divorce case properly has a claim of his own against the husband for fees independent of and superior to any claim of the wife. Id.

Since attorney's liens are of an equitable nature, the court's action in forcing a husband to pay the fees of his wife's attorney in a divorce suit should be limited by equitable considerations. Id.

Where, on appeal from order denying divorced husband's motion to set aside a previous order of court appointing a sequestrator for pension payments due from District of Columbia to husband who had failed to make payments directed by divorce decree, application was made for allowance of counsel fees to wife's attorney, allowance of $200 would be reasonable. Montgomery v. Montgomery (1946, 153 F. 2d 634, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 344).

Where dismissing on her own motion a wife's complaint for divorce, the District court acted within its discretion in denying fees to her attorney. Neudecker v. Philpot (1949, 174 F. 2d 668, 85 U.S. App. D.C. 28).

9. Custody of children

Welfare of the child is a matter of paramount consideration at all times and under all circumstances. Slack v. Perrine (9 App. D.C. 128, error dismissed 17 S. Ct. 79, 169 U.S. 452, 41 L. Ed. 510).

Courts, looking principally to the welfare and happiness of the children, will award their care and custody to the one party or the other as will best promote child's interest and general welfare. Wells v. Wells (11 App. D.C. 392).

When custody of children is involved "the courts do not act to enforce the right of either parent, but to protect the interest and general welfare of the children." Stickel v. Stickel (18 App. D.C. 149).

Interest of infants is even paramount to the claim of both parents. Seeley v. Seeley (30 App. D.C. 391, 12 Ann. Cas. 1058, certiorari denied 28 S. Ct. 570, 209 U.S. 544, 52 L. Ed. 919).

This section authorizes the court to determine who shall have the care and custody of infant children pending proceedings for divorce. Since the court had jurisdiction of the appellant and of the subject-matter, it was his duty to obey the order, irrespective of whether or not it was erroneous. Early v. Early (1920, 261 F. 1003, 49 App. D.C. 123).

Equity will interfere to protect children from cruelty or from immoral influences, and may even deprive parents of the care of their own children. Church v. Church (1921, 270 F. 359, 50 App. D.C. 237).

Disposition of the custody of the child rests in the sound discretion of the court, subject to the rule that its welfare is the paramount thing to be considered. Snow v. Snow (1922, 280 F. 1013, 52 App. D.C. 39).

A father who is a party to divorce proceedings cannot, by contract or otherwise, avoid, or relieve himself from, his primary obligation to maintain a minor child. Emrich v. McNeil (1942, 126 F. 2d 841, 75 U.S. App. D.C. 307, 146 A.L.R. 1146).

Other things being equal, a child's mother should be preferred to its grandmother in determining the matter of custody, and mother's actual custody should not be disturbed while divorce suit was pending. Kirk v. Kirk (1945, 150 F. 2d 589, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 183).

In child custody case, where district court, acting through different judges, had on four or five previous occasions found wife an unsuitable person to have custody, order requiring that custody be delivered to divorced husband was not abuse of discretion. Steele v. Steele (1948, 168 F. 2d 562, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 254).

In child custody case, either party is entitled to have his evidence presented through mouths of his witnesses rather than by affidavits. Id.

In child custody case, where plaintiff's counsel, in order to obtain hearing at early date and out of order, agreed to submit case on affidavits, court's refusal of request at trial to hear testimony of child, then nine years of age, was not error, not only because matter was in trial court's sound discretion, but also because to have granted request would have violated conditions on which case was set down for hearing, particularly where stenographic transcript of child's evidence given in police court was before trial court for consideration. Id.

10. Discretion of court

A divorced wife's motion to hold husband in contempt for failure to pay alimony should not be treated as though it were a citation for contempt, and motion should not be denied after considering husband's affidavit filed in defense, but if motion is supported by wife's affidavit showing arrearages in alimony then after notice of motion has been given to husband a hearing should be had in open court or on affidavits and counteraffidavits and court should determine whether there was deficiency and if so whether husband had shown an excuse for nonperformance sufficient to cause the court in exercise of sound discretion to refrain from punishing him. Kephart v. Kephart (1952, 193 F. 2d 677, 89 U.S. App. D.C. 373, certiorari denied 72 S. Ct. 557, 342 U.S. 944, 96 L. Ed. 702).

"The granting of alimony pendente lite is a matter within the sound discretion of the trial court." Dunnington v. Dunnington (45 App. D.C. 277). See, also, Jacobi v. Jacobi (45 App. D.C. 442).

The trial court may in its discretion award counsel fees to wife regardless of the outcome of her divorce suit, and right of wife's attorney to fees is not vitiated by wife's wrongful conduct. Shima v. Shima (1944, 139 F. 2d 533, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 265, 150 A.L.R. 1179).

The entry of final judgment pending special appeal which challenged District Court's right to refuse to consider a motion for alimony pendente lite because movant had declined to appear before Domestic Relations Commissioner did not foreclose matter of allowance of alimony pendente lite, and refusal of motion for the reason stated having been improper, District Court had power, upon return of the case to exercise a sound judicial discretion as to whether a pendente lite allowance should be made and, if so, as to the amount. Kernan v. Kernan (1948, 165 F. 2d 232, 82 U.S. App. D.C. 382).

11. Enforcement of order

An order for alimony and attorney's fees pendente lite in a divorce proceeding is in effect a personal decree, and can only be enforced in a foreign jurisdiction after personal service upon the defendant, regardless of the statutory provisions in the state or jurisdiction where the divorce proceeding is pending. Publication may be substituted for personal service of process upon any defendant in a divorce proceeding in this District. Johnston v. Johnston (1935, 74 F. 2d 774, 64 App. D.C. 87).

Failure to make payments for maintenance of minor children not enforceable by imprisonment for contempt. Rapeer v. Colpoys (1936, 85 F. 2d 715, 66 App. D.C. 216).

Order requiring payments for maintenance of children is enforceable against father, who is not divorced, by imprisonment. Ebert v. Ebert (1945, 148 F. 2d 226, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 69).

In divorce action, defendant could be cited for contempt for noncompliance with maintenance order by service of motion on his counsel, since contempt proceedings are incidental to pending cause. Id.

After entry of final judgment dismissing wife's action for divorce, husband would be adjudged guilty of contempt of court for failure to pay installments of alimony pendente lite accruing before entry of such judgment. Id.

This section providing that, in event a husband fails or refuses to pay alimony, court may sequester his property and apply the income to its payment, is applicable to pension payments due husband from District of Columbia. Montgomery v. Montgomery (1946, 153 F. 2d 634, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 344).

Where divorce decree directed husband to make monthly payments to wife for her maintenance and support of minor child but husband moved from District of Columbia and stopped making payments and District did not appeal from order appointing a sequestrator for pension payments due to the husband from District and was making no claim to exemption, the husband should not be permitted to make the claim of exemption. Id.

Under this section providing that during pendency of suit for divorce court shall have power to require husband to pay alimony to wife and to enforce obedience to order by attachment and imprisonment for disobedience, only so long as divorce suit is pending does court have authority to require husband to pay alimony and to enforce obedience by attachment and imprisonment. Cole v. Cole (1947, 161 F. 2d 883, 82 U.S. App. D.C. 155).

Failure to pay installments of alimony which had accrued under a pendente lite order could not be punished by contmpt proceedings after suit for divorce, in which temporary allowance was made, had been dismissed by order containing no reference to unpaid installments. Id.

12. Excuse for nonpayment of alimony

When husband shows justifiable cause for failing to comply with court order for support or willingness to pay or reduce arrearages, court, in exercise of its discretion may refrain from punishing him. V. A. Johnson v. L. Johnson (D.C. App. 1963, 195 A. 2d 406).

Burden is upon husband sought to be held in contempt for failure to make support payments to show by competent evidence a reasonable excuse for his nonperformance and where he offers no valid reason for his default, wife is entitled to aid of court in enforcement of its order by imprisonment, unless husband purges himself of arrears. Id.

Husband who neither offered to pay support arrearages nor presented evidence upon which court could predicate finding that he was justified in failing to comply with support order was in contempt. Id.

13. Exemptions

Payments of disability insurance are not exempt under § 35–717 from liability for alimony and support of divorced wife. Schlaefer v. Schlaefer (1940, 112 F. 2d 177, 71 App. D.C. 350, 130, A.L.R. 1014).

14. Imprisonment

Inasmuch as acknowledged father of illegitimate children did not have status of husband, his disobedience of order directing him to support children, though contemptuous, could not be punished by imprisonment. C. Johnson v. E. Johnson et al. (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 183 A. 2d 916).

One may not be imprisoned to compel obedience to court order directing payment of money except in those cases especially provided for. Lundergan v. Lundergan (1958, 252 F. 2d 823, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 259).

15. Judgment against property

Court may, in case of the husband's failure or refusal to pay such alimony and suit money, sequestrate his property and apply the income to such object but when husband does not default in paying installment of alimony when due, a writ will not lie. Stewart v. Stewart (1923, 286 F. 987, 52 App. D.C. 323).

An order to sequestrate property of the absent defendant, within the immediate jurisdiction of the court, is quasi in rem, issued to satisfy a personal claim on specific property. Thus the court acquires jurisdiction to render a judgment essentially in rem affecting such property, notwithstanding the absence of the owner from the state. Thompson v. Tanner (1923, 287 F. 980, 53 App. D.C. 3).

16. Jurisdiction of equity

Equity is ancillary and not antagonistic to the law, and where a statute precludes the authority to make an allowance, equity can not be invoked to aid in its circumvention. Eichelberger v. Symons (1923, 288 F. 654, 53 App. D.C. 116).

Independent of statute, a court of chancery has jurisdiction over the custody and maintenance of a minor child. Emrich v. McNeil (1942, 126 F. 2d 841, 75 U.S. App. D.C. 307, 146 A.L.R. 1146).

17. Laches

Where 1936 District of Columbia divorce decree required husband to pay $75 per month for support of wife and two infant daughters, and in 1937 husband paid amount then due and subsequently paid occasional small amounts until March 22, 1940, after which date he paid nothing, and wife was ill and poor and had difficulty in obtaining counsel, and husband had resided in Maryland after the divorce, wife's delay until 1949 to file motion that husband be held in contempt for failure to pay alimony was explained and excused and did not amount to laches. Kephart v. Kephart (1952, 193 F. 2d 677, 89 U.S. App. D.C. 373, certiorari denied 72 S. Ct. 557, 342 U.S. 944, 96 L. Ed. 702).

18. Liability of husband

Decree awarding alimony pendente lite is a final order, and husband is liable therefor although he finally prevail. Lynham v. Hufty (44 App. D.C. 589).

"In a divorce proceeding the husband is primarily liable for the costs." Id.

19. Multiple contempt motions

That husband's failure to pay support arrearages had been held to be justifiable in one contempt proceeding did not preclude court in later contempt proceeding from finding that his continued failure to pay those arrearages was contemptuous. V. A. Johnson v. L. Johnson (D.C. App. 1963, 195 A. 2d 406).

More than one contempt motion may be brought with respect to same support arrearages. Id.

That delinquent husband may on one occasion justify his failure to comply with court support order does not permanently protect him from enforcement procedures available in contempt proceeding and there is nothing to prevent court, upon successive motions by wife seeking to collect same arrearages, from committing husband when he presents no mitigating circumstances justifying his continued failure to discharge them. Id.

20. Multiple executions

Wife seeking enforcement order for support may execute on each maturing installment as upon any other judgment for money or may seek to hold husband in contempt. V. A. Johnson v. L. Johnson (D.C. App. 1963, 195 A. 2d 406).

21. Property

In making provision for the wife's sustenance, the term "property" requires a liberal interpretation. Schlaefer v. Schlaefer (1940, 112 F. 2d 177, 71 App. D.C. 350, 130 A.L.R. 1014).

22. —— Subject to payment

A decree for payment of alimony against a non-resident brought before the court by constructive or extra-territorial service is void except as to property which is within the court's jurisdiction, and which has been specifically proceeded against in the divorce action. Gaines v. Gaines (1946, 157 F. 2d 521, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 260).

Order of District Court of District of Columbia directing resident of Virginia who was personally served in Virginia, to pay alimony pendente lite, was "in personam" and void for lack of jurisdiction, in absence of any acts by non-resident to subject himself to court's authority, and in absence of a claim of, right to, or lien on any personality in District of Columbia. Id.

23. Punishment for contempt

This section's authority to punish for contempt a failure to pay permanent alimony awarded to wife in divorce decree is not required to be invariably exercised, and when a proper defensive showing is made by a delinquent husband, such as unavoidable casualty, the court may refuse to punish him, but such refusal does not release the delinquent from civil liability to pay the amounts which have become due. Kephart v. Kephart (1952, 193 F. 2d 677, 89 U.S. App. D.C. 373, certiorari denied 72 S. Ct. 557, 342 U.S. 944, 96 L. Ed. 702).

24. Recovery back of payments

An order for payment of alimony pendente lite is in effect a final order enforceable by immediate execution, and though it is revocable and may be rescinded by court and may wholly fall by a final decision on the merits adverse to petitioner, as long as it remains in effect to the extent to which it has been enforced by payment or execution, it is an absolute finality and money so paid cannot be recovered back. Cole v. Cole (1946, 67 F. Supp. 134, reversed on other grounds 161 F. 2d 883, 82 U.S. App. D.C. 155).

25. Repayment of unauthorized fee

Where order, denying husband's motion pending determination of referred question as to husband's damages from wife's suing out an injunction tying up husband's funds, to stay condemnation of his attached funds, for his wife's counsel fees in dismissed divorce suit, was reversed and the fees had been paid from the attached funds, the District Court would be authorized to require counsel to repay the fees if he were not entitled to retain them, notwithstanding such counsel had not been made a party to husband's appeal from the order. Shima v. Shima (1944, 139 F. 2d 533, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 265, 150 A.L.R. 1179).

26. Sequestration of pension payments

Where divorced husband was entitled to pension payable out of Policeman's and Fireman's Relief Association of District of Columbia, divorced wife was not entitled to appointment of sequestrator to collect pension from disbursing officer of the District for payment to wife in satisfaction of her alimony claim. Rone v. Rone (1944, 141 F. 2d 23, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 369).

27. Set off

Where judgment dismissing wife's suit for divorce and taxing husband with wife's counsel fees determined neither the facts nor the law with regard to husband's right to set off, against claim for counsel fees, damages sustained by wife's suing out of an injunction tying up husband's funds, husband would be allowed to set off such damage against the claimed fees if wife's attorney knowingly participated in wrongful issuance of injunction, notwithstanding allowance of fees had become final. Shima v. Shima (1944, 139 F. 2d 533, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 265, 150 A.L.R. 1179).

Where District Court dismissed wife's suit for divorce and taxed husband with her counsel fees, if court should find that wife's attorney knowingly participated in wrongful suing out of injunction by wife to tie up husband's funds, husband would be allowed to set off his damage from the injunction against the claim for counsel fees. Id.

28. Statutory policy

The policy underlying alimony statutes is not punishment for a wrongdoing husband, but is to insure that where wife is entitled to support, she will receive it and not become a public charge. Wheeler v. Wheeler (1951, 188 F. 2d 31, 88 U.S. App. D.C. 193).

29. Subsequent obligations

A divorced husband's voluntary assumption of new obligation by marrying a second time does not excuse him from the primary obligations imposed by the court's award of alimony to first wife. Kephart v. Kephart (1952, 193 F. 2d 677, 89 U.S. App. D.C. 373, certiorari denied 72 S. Ct. 557, 342 U.S. 944, 96 L. Ed. 702).

30. Writ of execution

An award of alimony is a judgment for money on which execution may issue, and it is perhaps convenient and certainly not improper for the court to enter a new judgment establishing of record the accrued installments which are unpaid when the wife draws the facts to the court's attention, but such procedure is not essential, and the installments which have become due are easily calculated from the terms of the original decree and a look at the calendar, and wife's application for writ of execution accompanied by her affidavit as to nonpayment should move the issuance of the writ, and if an issue is raised concerning the amount due the court can determine it. Kephart v. Kephart (1952, 193 F. 2d 677, 89 U.S. App. D.C. 373, certiorari denied 72 S. Ct. 557, 342 U.S. 944, 96 L. Ed. 702).

When a divorce is granted to the wife, the court may decree her permanent alimony sufficient for her support and that of any minor children whom the court assigns to her care, and secure and enforce the payment of the alimony in the manner prescribed by section 16–911, and may, if it seems appropriate, retain to the wife her right of dower in the husband's estate; and the court may, in similar circumstances, retain to the husband his right of dower in the wife's estate. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 562, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–411 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 976, 31 Stat. 1346).

The provision for retention of the husband's right of dower in the wife's estate, in similar circumstances, is added, to conform with section 18–201a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., which, as amended by act Sept. 14, 1961, Pub. L. 87–246, § 3, 75 Stat. 515 (Supp. II, 1963), not only restored the wife's right of dower (which had been abolished by act Aug 31, 1957, Pub. L. 85–244, § 3, 71 Stat. 560), but established a statutory right of dower in the husband as well, in the estate of his wife, and provided that all other laws in force in the District of Columbia relating to the right of dower and its incident should, on and after the effective date of such act (Mar. 15, 1962), be construed to be applicable to both husband and wife. The 1961 act also amended sections 18–101, 18–204, 18–211 and 30–201 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. See, also, section 16–2921 et seq. of this revised Part.

Changes are made in phraseology.

1. Amount

An allowance to wife of permanent alimony sufficient for her support and that of the minor children whom the court may assign to her care is alimony payable to the wife and is not contingent on minority of the children. Kephart v. Kephart (1952, 193 F. 2d 677, 89 U.S. App. D.C. 373, certiorari denied 72 S. Ct. 557, 342 U.S. 944, 96 L. Ed. 702).

Husband who had abandoned his wife and child and who was earning $6,000 a year was directed to pay $200 a month for the maintenance of wife and child and $500 attorney's fees. Noffsinger v. Noffsinger (1943, 50 F. Supp. 810).

In divorce suit, order requiring husband to pay wife $30 on the 6th and 21st day of each month until court's further order was clear, although court stated that payments would apply on previous New York judgment for maintenance. Clemens v. Clemens (1944, 143 F. 2d 24, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 116, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 76, 323 U.S. 736, 89 L. Ed. 590).

Where divorced husband's income is large, divorced wife is entitled not merely to subsistence but to maintenance in manner which station of life of parties makes appropriate, but court should not make award so high as to cause financial difficulties and personal embarrassment on part of husband which would impair his earning capacity. Russell v. Russell (1944, 142 F. 2d 753, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 44, 153 A. L. R. 1037).

Amount of alimony award above average level of income should not be set without safeguards against improvident expenditures which impair future security of divorced wife or children. Id.

Alimony, when allotted, measures the husband's duty of support. Irwin v. Hawfield (D.C. Mun. App. 1949, 62 A. 2d 926).

2. Arrears

No contempt where arrears are due to personal injuries. Caffrey v. Caffrey (1925, 4 F. 2d 952, 55 App. D.C. 285).

A husband who had income of $160 per month was properly punished for contempt for failure to pay $45 per month alimony awarded to wife, where only excuse offered for alleged inability to pay alimony was that husband voluntarily contributed to support of his mother and his invalid brother and therefore had no funds with which to make the payments. Kelly v. Kelly (1943, 137 F. 2d 254, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 97).

One who has no money or tangible property may be punished for contempt for failure to pay alimony award, if he makes no honest effort, considering his physical and mental capabilities, to work and earn money to pay alimony. Id.

On wife's motion to adjudicate arrears of alimony, trial court acted properly in enforcing full payment of accrued alimony notwithstanding children who were minors when award was made had reached majority at time default in payment commenced. Lockwood v. Lockwood (1947, 160 F. 2d 923, 82 U.S. App. D.C. 105).

3. Award

Provision in 1901 Code, § 978 (§ 16–413) that a case where permanent alimony has been awarded under 1901 Code, § 976 (this section) shall still be considered open for any further orders operates only prospectively, and the court can not set aside or reduce sums determined and past due. Biscayne Trust Co. v. American Security & Trust Co. (1927, 20 F. 2d 267, 57 App. D.C. 251).

4. Contempt

Where husband had been ordered to pay support money and attorney's fees, contempt order committing husband until he paid an amount greater than that due for support alone was erroneous in so far as it committed husband for failure to pay attorney's fees. Berman v. Berman (1953, 202 F. 2d 812, 92 U.S. App. D.C. 77).

Divorced husband's remarriage and acquisition of second set of children whom he must support and the attainment of majority by children of first marriage did not justify refusal to hold husband in contempt for failure to pay monthly installments which divorce decree required husband to pay for support of wife and children of first marriage. Kephart v. Kephart (1952, 193 F. 2d 677, 89 U.S. App. D.C. 373, certiorari denied 72 S. Ct. 557, 342 U.S. 944, 96 L. Ed. 702).

A wife's delay in seeking to enforce payment of alimony does not destroy or affect the husband's obligation to obey the court's order, and that obligation does not depend upon the payee's diligence in trying to collect, and contempt is shown by an inexcusable failure to pay what the court ordered and is not limited to a failure to pay sums which the wife promptly demands. Id.

5. Discretion of court

A divorced wife's motion to hold husband in contempt for failure to pay alimony should not be treated as though it were a citation for contempt, and motion should not be denied after considering husband's affidavit filed in defense, but if motion is supported by wife's affidavit showing arrearages in alimony then after notice of motion has been given to husband a hearing should be had in open court or on affidavits and counteraffidavits and court should determine whether there was deficiency and if so whether husband had shown an excuse for nonperformance sufficient to cause the court in exercise of sound discretion to refrain from punishing him. Kephart v. Kephart (1952, 193 F. 2d 677, 89 U.S. App. D.C. 373, certiorari denied 72 S. Ct. 557, 342 U.S. 944, 96 L. Ed. 702).

In awarding alimony, limited discretion of court is based on standards which are necessarily vague, but where income of divorced husband is small the problem only involves giving the wife a decent subsistence if it is possible. Russell v. Russell (1944, 142 F. 2d 753, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 44, 153 A.L.R. 1037).

Both award of alimony and amount to be awarded are matters placed in trial court's discretion, and exercise of such discretion will not be disturbed on appeal except for clear abuse. Shelton v. Shelton (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 153 A. 2d 663).

Where, at time of divorce action, 47-year-old wife, who had been a school teacher elsewhere, but who was unable to qualify for such position in the District of Columbia, was unemployed and was being supported by her brother, while her 40-year-old husband was earning $4,640 a year, award of $25 per week as alimony to wife did not constitute a manifest abuse of trial court's discretion. Id.

6. Divorced father

Section 16–415, which defines the power of a court to make a support-money order against a husband for the benefit of a wife and minor child, does not embrace the case of an order against a divorced father. Rapeer v. Colpoys (1936, 85 F. 2d 715, 66 App. D.C. 216).

7. Effective date

Any allowance of alimony which is to be effective after suit for divorce has ceased to pend must be made under this section regarding permanent alimony. Cole v. Cole (1947, 161 F. 2d 883, 82 U.S. App. D.C. 155).

8. Increase of alimony

Where, in a petition for an increase in an alimony award, the petitioner alleged that she was without knowledge of the provisions of the decree awarding alimony, and that she had accepted the monthly payments provided therefor under protest, an affidavit asserting that petitioner was present in court when the decree was signed, when undenied, was sufficient to overcome petitioner's allegation that she had no knowledge of the provisions of the decree. Moran v. Moran (1940, 31 F. Supp. 227).

A claim for an increase in alimony, based on an allegation that the decree was entered by mistake, will be denied, where the motion was not made until more than six months after the judgment was taken. Id.

Where divorce decree required husband to pay wife $900 a month for alimony and $100 for support of one of their two children who required special schooling, award amounted to between 40 and 50 percent of husband's entire income, husband had remarried, and his position as an executive required certain standards which, if not maintained, would impair his usefulness to his employer, and pleadings indicated that his living standards were not as high as those of his divorced wife, an increase in award was not justified, even though wife was required to pay income tax on alimony which she received. Russell v. Russell (1944, 142 F. 2d 753, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 44, 153 A.L.R. 1037).

Any decrease in divorced wife's net income because of taxes or any other reason which brings it below what is necessary for her station in life may be considered in granting an increase in alimony, but increase must be based on examination of needs of wife in light of present size of divorced husband's income, not on theory of equitable tax adjustment. Id.

Where alimony award to divorced wife is above average level of income, the moral obligations of husband, such as obligation to his mother-in-law, by second marriage, as well as legal obligations of husband, should be considered in determining divorced wife's petition for increase in alimony. Id.

If divorced wife's application for increase in alimony was to be decided against husband without a hearing, all controverted issues and all legitimate inferences raised by the pleadings were required to be resolved in his favor. Id.

9. Laches

Where 1936 District of Columbia divorce decree required husband to pay $75 per month for support of wife and two infant daughters, and in 1937 husband paid amount then due and subsequently paid occasional small amounts until March 22, 1940, after which date he paid nothing, and wife was ill and poor and had difficulty in obtaining counsel, and husband had resided in Maryland after the divorce, wife's delay until 1949 to file motion that husband be held in contempt for failure to pay alimony was explained and excused and did not amount to laches. Kephart v. Kephart (1952, 193 F. 2d 677, 89 U.S. App. D.C. 373, certiorari denied 72 S. Ct. 557, 342 U.S. 994, 96 L. Ed. 702).

In divorce action, evidence, which revealed that wife had waited for four years after she had been deserted by husband before asserting her claim for alimony and that wife could have sued for separate maintenance immediately following the desertion but could not sue for divorce until desertion had continued for two years, was sufficient to sustain trial court's finding that wife was not guilty of laches which would bar her claim for alimony. Shelton v. Shelton (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 153 A. 2d 663).

10. Presumptions

Where moving party comes before court asking for enlargement of a limited divorce decree and for final severance of bonds of matrimony, movant must be presumed to be requesting the full relief to which she believes herself entitled. Holmes v. Holmes (1946, 155 F. 2d 737, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 132, 166 A.L.R. 1000).

11. Property rights

In absence of some right or element of ownership, legal or equitable, on part of wife in husband's property, court in divorce case is without power to order transfer of that property to her, and no such power is included in an authorization to grant alimony. Wheeler v. Wheeler (1951, 188 F. 2d 31, 88 U.S. App. D.C. 193).

This section authorizing court in divorce case to grant permanent alimony to wife and to retain to wife her right of dower in husband's estate does not empower court to award real property of one spouse to the other. Id.

12. Punishment for contempt

This section's authority to punish for contempt a failure to pay permanent alimony awarded to wife in divorce decree is not required to be invariably exercised, and when a proper defensive showing is made by a delinquent husband, such as unavoidable casualty, the court may refuse to punish him, but such refusal does not release the delinquent from civil liability to pay the amounts which have become due. Kephart v. Kephart (1952, 193 F. 2d 677, 89 U.S. App. D.C. 373, certiorari denied 72 S. Ct. 557, 342 U.S. 944, 96 L. Ed. 702).

13. Remission of installment

Decree as to alimony is final as to installments of alimony in arrears, and court cannot remit them. Caffrey v. Caffrey (1925, 4 F. 2d 952, 55 App. D.C. 285).

14. Res judicata

Order of District Court in divorce action denying motion to modify judgment confirming stipulation of parties whereby husband agreed to pay permanent alimony and determining that the stipulation was a contract but that divorce judgment approving stipulation did not award alimony was res judicata precluding relitigation of the question in the Municipal Court in a suit to enforce the stipulation. Woodruff v. Woodruff (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 60 A. 2d 538, affirmed 176 F. 2d 72, 85 U.S. App. D.C. 424).

15. Review

Record on appeal in husband's divorce action did not support his contention that trial judge had used erroneous standard in computing alimony award, although judge's summary of considerations in that respect omitted certain proper considerations, there having been testimony relating to those considerations. O. Cole v. E. Cole (D.C. App. 1963, 193 A. 2d 76).

Where trial court could not have awarded wife an interest in husband's property in divorce case unless wife had an interest in property, and reviewing court could not ascertain from findings and conclusions whether that was the case, the portion of award relating to that property was set aside and case remanded for further findings. Wheeler v. Wheeler (1951, 188 F. 2d 31, 88 U.S. App. D.C. 193).

Where divorce case was being remanded on issue of award to wife of an interest in husband's property and it appeared that District Court might desire to change allowances as to alimony and counsel fees, reviewing court would not pass on award with respect to those matters. Id.

16. Sequestration of pension payments

This section providing that in event a husband fails or refuses to pay alimony, court may sequester his property and apply the income to its payment, is applicable to pension payments due husband from District of Columbia. Montgomery v. Montgomery (1946, 153 F. 2d 634, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 344).

Where divorce decree directed husband to make monthly payments to wife for her maintenance and support of minor child but husband moved from District of Columbia and stopped making payments and District did not appeal from order appointing a sequestrator for pension payments due to the husband from District and was making no claim to exemption, the husband should not be permitted to make the claim of exemption. Id.

17. Statutory policy

The policy underlying alimony statutes is not punishment for a wrongdoing husband, but is to insure that where wife is entitled to support, she will receive it and not become a public charge. Wheeler v. Wheeler (1951, 188 F. 2d 31, 88 U.S. App. D.C. 193).

18. Subsequent obligations

A divorced husband's voluntary assumption of new obligation by marrying a second time does not excuse him from the primary obligations imposed by the court's award of alimony to first wife. Kephart v. Kephart (1952, 193 F. 2d 677, 89 U.S. App. D.C. 373, certiorari denied 72 S. Ct. 557, 342 U.S. 944, 96 L. Ed. 702).

19. Termination of prior alimony decree

Final divorce decree, which changes the fundamental relationship of parties, terminates wife's right to receive alimony under a preceding separation decree predicated on her status as a wife. Holmes v. Holmes (1946, 155 F. 2d 737, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 132, 166 A.L.R. 1000).

Alimony, awarded in decree for divorce a mensa et thoro subject to further order of court, was automatically terminated by decree a vinculo matrimonii in which no provision for or reference to payment of alimony was made, even though the decree a vinculo was obtained pursuant to provisions of local rules for enlargement of decree. Id.

20. Writ of execution

An award of alimony is a judgment for money on which execution may issue, and it is perhaps convenient and certainly not improper for the court to enter a new judgment establishing of record the accrued installments which are unpaid when the wife draws the facts to the court's attention, but such procedure is not essential, and the installments which have become due are easily calculated from the terms of the original decree and a look at the calendar, and wife's application for writ of execution accompanied by her affidavit as to nonpayment should move the issuance of the writ, and if an issue is raised concerning the amount due the court can determine it. Kephart v. Kephart (1952, 193 F. 2d 611, 89 U.S. App. D.C. 373, certiorari denied 72 S. Ct. 557, 342 U.S. 944, 96 L. Ed. 702).

§ 16–913. Alimony when divorce is granted on husband's application.

When a divorce is granted on the application of the husband, the court may require him to pay alimony to the wife, if it seems just and proper. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 562, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–412 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 977, 31 Stat. 1346; June 30, 1902, ch. 1329, 32 Stat. 537).

1. Alimony award

Alimony may be awarded to a wife even though the divorce was granted on the application of the husband, if it would seem just and proper to the court. Quarles v. Quarles (1950, 179 F. 2d 57, 86 U.S. App. D.C. 41).

2. Amount of award

Where husband who was awarded a divorce on ground of wife's adultery, had a substantial business and an income of about $12,000 a year, wife, who had not been repaid $2,000 which she had advanced to husband for purchase of family home, was without means, and trial lasted five days and required considerable preparation, sums of $2,000 in cash, $50 a week alimony for support of wife and two minor children, or $75 if wife ceased to occupy husband's house free of rent, $825, in addition to $175 previously paid, as wife's counsel fees in district court, and $150 suit money and $300 counsel fees in respect of husband's appeal directed to be paid to wife by husband were reasonable. Jaffe v. Jaffe (1942, 124 F. 2d 233, 74 App. D.C. 394).

That wife's counsel represented co-respondent as well as wife in trial of husband's divorce action based on ground of adultery did not show that award to wife of $825, in addition to $175 previously paid, as counsel fees in the district court and $300 counsel fees in respect of husband's appeal were excessive. Id.

The record does not support the award of alimony to wife when there is no evidence that she contributed either her funds or her industry in the accumulation of the property by her husband, and no loss either financial or by way of security, or status, was suffered by reason of her marriage, and upon consideration of other compelling factors of an equitable nature. Quarles v. Quarles (1950, 179 F. 2d 57, 86 U.S. App. D.C. 41).

Judgment of the trial court in determining whether an award of alimony to a guilty defendant is just and proper will not be disturbed unless an abuse of discretion is made, manifested by the record. Evidence here was sufficient to sustain monthly payment of $65.00 for alimony. Schulz v. Schulz (1950, 179 F. 2d 59, 86 U.S. App. D.C. 43).

3. Custody of children

A court may in its discretion award custody of children to the unsuccessful defendant in a divorce action. Jaffe v. Jaffe (1942, 124 F. 2d 233, 74 App. D.C. 394).

4. Effect of agreement

Where the court did not require husband to pay alimony, but only approved an agreement by which the parties adjusted their respective property rights and all claims for alimony, the decree cannot be considered open for a future order in that respect, at least in the absence of fraud or mistake. Heckman v. Heckman (1949, 83 F. Supp. 687).

5. Retention of jurisdiction

Jurisdiction may be retained to enter further orders respecting alimony and care and custody of child. Davis v. Davis (1932, 57 F. 2d 414, 61 App. D.C. 48).

6. Scope of review

Ordinarily, the trial court's determination of the propriety of the award under all the circumstances will not be disturbed unless an abuse of discretion is shown. Quarles v. Quarles (1950, 179 F. 2d 57, 86 U.S. App. D.C. 41).

7. Waiver of appeal

Right to appeal is lost by acceptance of alimony. Harris v. Harris (1936, 89 F. 2d 829, 67 App. D.C. 85).

Where judgment granted plaintiff husband an absolute divorce but also awarded alimony and counsel fees to wife, and after entry of judgment husband paid monthly to wife the alimony as well as the counsel fees, appeal by wife was subject to dismissal upon ground that, having accepted benefits of judgment, she was precluded from appealing therefrom. Stein v. Stein (1948, 170 F. 2d 162, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 286).

After the issuance of a decree of divorce granting alimony and providing for the care and custody of children, the case shall still be considered open for any future orders relating to those matters. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 562, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

1. Arrears

Decree as to alimony is final as to installments of alimony in arrears. Caffery v. Caffery (1925, 4 F. 2d 952, 55 App. D.C. 285).

Provision in § 978 (this section) that a case where permanent alimony has been awarded under § 976 (§ 16–411) shall still be considered open for any further orders operates only prospectively, and the court can not set aside or reduce sums determined and past due. Biscayne Trust Co. v. American Security & Trust Co. (1927, 20 F. 2d 267, 57 App. D.C. 251).

2. Care and custody of children

Phrase "care and custody of children," includes maintenance, since plainly a child cannot be cared for without being fed, clothed, and otherwise maintained. Elkins v. Elkins (1924, 299 F. 690, 55 App. D.C. 9). See, also, Evans v. Evans (1941, 36 F. Supp. 12).

Marriage of a daughter may constitute a good and sufficient reason for modification of a previous order for support and maintenance. Davis v. Davis (1938, 96 F. 2d 512, 68 App. D.C. 240).

The District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia may, independently of statute, provide for care and custody of children in divorce cases. Evans v. Evans (1941, 36 F. Supp. 12).

Where the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia acquired jurisdiction over custody and maintenance of child of parties to divorce suit, the court's jurisdiction continued for all proper purposes concerning the custody and maintenance of the child. Emrich v. McNeil (1942, 126 F. 2d 841, 75 U.S. App. D.C. 307, 146 A.L.R. 1146).

After submitting themselves to jurisdiction of court in divorce proceedings, parents cannot by their agreement deprive court of power to control custody and maintenance of child. Id.

In divorce proceeding the court must retain a continuing jurisdiction with respect to custody and maintenance of minor child. Id.

A child's claim against his father for maintenance is not subsidiary to that of the mother. Id.

Where District Court of United States for District of Columbia granting divorce failed to make provision regarding custody or maintenance of minor child, but parties filed stipulation for maintenance and support giving mother custody but requiring father to make payments for support, fact that mother had supported the child and the child had had support did not affect the duty of the father to render it, relieve him of the burden, or deprive the court of power to compel him to discharge it or to force him to reimburse the mother for what she had expended on that account. Id.

Where stipuation for support of infant child was made part of record in divorce proceeding in District Court of United States for District of Columbia, the district court had continuing and exclusive jurisdiction over custody and maintenance of child and the municipal court did not have jurisdiction of action to recover amount alleged to be due under the stipulation. Id.

Courts jurisdiction, having attached to child custody case, continued undisturbed to final conclusion of case. Steele v. Steele (1948, 168 F. 2d 562, 82 U.S. App. D.C. 254).

3. Counsel fees

An order for payment of counsel fees in connection with the collection of alimony and support, is an order "in those respects" within the meaning of this section, and the case was "open" for the purposes of this order. Junghans v. Junghans (1940, 112 F. 2d 212, 72 App. D.C. 129).

4. Discretion of court

Trial court has large discretion in awarding custody of minor child and cause will remain open for any further orders found to be proper. Warner v. Warner (1928, 24 F. 2d 609, 58 App. D.C. 34).

Alimony within trial court's discretion. Dependent on circumstances. Garrett v. Garrett (1963, 62 F. 2d 471, 61 App. D.C. 309).

5. Increase of alimony

Where agreement of parties incorporated in divorce decree provided for division of property and for monthly payments to wife "as maintenance for her support", although both provisions were included in same instrument, they were separable so that if parties intended monthly payments to be an alimony award, provision concerning monthly payments would be subject to modification. Rogers v. Rogers (1953, 203 F. 2d 61, 92 U.S. App. D.C. 97).

Where divorce decree incorporated agreement of husband and wife which contained provisions for division of property and monthly payments to wife "as maintenance for her support" to cease on her remarriage and court retained jurisdiction to enforce compliance with agreement and all matters pertaining thereto, but parties' intent as to whether monthly payments were alimony was not apparent from agreement, order denying, for lack of jurisdiction, motion for increase in alimony would be reversed and case would be remanded for evidence of intention. Id.

6. Jurisdiction of court

Where the court did not require the husband to pay alimony, but only approved an agreement by which the parties adjusted their respective property rights and all claims for alimony, the decree cannot be considered open for a future order in that respect, at least in the absence of fraud or mistake. Heckman v. Heckman (1949, 83 F. Supp. 687).

7. Modification or remission of installment

Under this section, the United States District Court for the District of Columbia cannot modify or remit installments of alimony which have become due. Kephart v. Kephart (1952, 193 F. 2d 677, 89 U.S. App. D.C. 373, certiorari denied 72 S, Ct. 557, 342 U.S. 944, 96 L. Ed. 702).

8. Proceeding in personam

Claim for maintenance is essentially a proceeding in personam and there can be no attachment, seizure, or taking of the property until after the decree has passed. Bliss v. Bliss (1931, 50 F. 2d 1002, 60 App. D.C. 237).

9. Property rights

Where husband and wife's agreement incorporated in divorce decree settles only property rights, its inclusion in judgment does not confer jurisdiction to modify it. Rogers v. Rogers (1953, 203 F. 2d 61, 92 U.S. App. D.C. 97).

10. Stipulations

In divorce suit, it was duty of court to act for the protection of minor child and where parties filed stipulation, for maintenance and support of the child, it was proper to assume that the official duty of the court was performed. Emrich v. McNeil (1942, 126 F. 2d 841, 75 U.S. App. D.C. 307, 146 A.L.R. 1146).

Even though stipulation for maintenance and support of child was not incorporated in divorce decree, it would be granted equal effectiveness as if it had been incorporated in decree to extent that it received the tacit approval of the court and was carried out by the parties. Id.

In a divorce suit where court approves stipulation for maintenance and support of child, it is better practice to incorporate stipulation into the decree. Id.

Court ratification and confirmation of a stipulation for permanent alimony as a contract for support and maintenance does not convert the stipulation into a decree for alimony. Woodruff v. Woodruff (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 60 A. 2d 538, affirmed 176 F. 2d 72 85 U.S. App. D.C. 424).

Where stipulation for permanent alimony was ratified and confirmed by the court as a contract for support and maintenance, husband could not after stipulation was filed and submitted on behalf of both parties resist enforcement on the ground that he did not intend to be bound by the agreement. Id.

Stipulation for alimony whereby husband, who had deserted his wife and was under legal and moral obligation to provide for her support, agreed to pay permanent alimony in consideration of which wife refrain from seeking court award of alimony and counsel fees was amply supported by consideration. Id.

11. Termination of separation decree

Alimony, awarded in decree for divorce a mensa et thoro subject to further order of court, was automatically terminated by decree a vinculo matrimonii in which no provision for or reference to payment of alimony was made, even though the decree a vinculo was obtained pursuant to provisions of local rules for enlargement of decree. Holmes v. Holmes (1946, 155 F. 2d 737, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 132, 166 A.L.R. 1000).

The power under this section which district court has to award permanent alimony in case of a proceeding for final divorce, whether it is on original complaint or on petition for enlargement of limited decree, is discretionary with trial court. Id.

In granting a divorce from the bond of marriage, the court may restore to the wife her maiden or other previous name. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 562, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–414 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 979, 31 Stat. 1346).

The only change is the insertion of a comma after "marriage".

When a husband fails or refuses to maintain his wife and minor children, if any, although able so to do, the court, on application of the wife, pendente lite and permanently, may decree that he shall pay her, periodically, such sums as would be allowed to her as pendente lite or permanent alimony in case of divorce for the maintenance of herself and the minor children, if any, committed to her care by the court. The court may enforce the payment thereof in the same manner as directed in regard to the payment of permanent alimony. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 562, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–415 (Mar. 3, 1961, ch. 854, § 980, 31 Stat. 1346; June 20, 1949, ch. 228, 63 Stat. 213).

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

1. In general

Under this section "the power of the court to grant separate maintenance can be exercised only where the 'husband shall fail or refuse to maintain his wife and minor children,' if any, although able so to do." Towson v. Towson (1919, 258 F. 517, 49 App. D.C. 45).

This section does not require that husband and wife live "separate and apart." Pedersen v. Pedersen (1940, 107 F. 2d 227, 71 App. D.C. 26).

2. Admissibility of evidence

Proof regarding motivation of husband's conduct, justification for wife's departure from family home, and the necessity, if any, for her maintenance apart from her husband, is admissible in action of wife for separate maintenance. Gill v. Gill (1945, 147 F. 2d 154, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 357).

3. Amount of award

Evidence was sufficient to sustain an order of $150 per month for the support and maintenance of wife and three children. Wedderburn v. Wedderburn (1924, 295 F. 1014, 54 App. D.C. 193).

Lower court, having first obtained jurisdiction of the parties under the bill for maintenance, had the power and the right to enter a decree for maintenance and as shown in the circumstances the allowance of the amount of alimony should be sustained as a proper allowance. Marcum v. Marcum (1933, 62 F. 2d 871, 61 App. D.C. 332).

4. Arrears

An unfair burden would be imposed upon appellee if, after he had contributed directly to the support of his children and had otherwise acted in accordance with assurance that appellant wanted no money from him, he were now to be required to pay her large accumulations of arrears for maintenance. Franklin v. Franklin (1949, 171 F. 2d 12, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 385).

5. Award pendente lite

This section makes no provision for an award pendente lite as an incident to a suit for separate maintenance. Pedersen v. Pedersen (1940, 107 F. 2d 227, 71 App. D.C. 26).

6. Basis for award

Under statute to effect that court may award maintenance to wife if husband fails or refuses to maintain her, wife makes out prima facie case by proving husband failed to maintain her and was able to do so, but husband may offer evidence that wife left him without just cause or that separation was brought about largely or in part by wife's cruelty or act of unkindness or indignity and such proof may justify denial or abatement of maintenance. F. L. Miller v. B. Miller (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 180 A. 2d 888).

Wife's misconduct may bar her claim from maintenance or, despite misconduct, she may be entitled to award but in lesser amount than would otherwise be awarded. Id.

Finding that wife, who has left husband, was justified in living separate and apart from husband should be prerequisite to award of maintenance to wife. Id.

7. Contempt

Where neither underlying order for payment of money for maintenance of minor children nor order adjudging defendant to be in contempt for failure to obey underlying order and committing defendant to jail rested upon necessary finding that defendant had failed or refused to maintain his wife and minor children although able to do so, order of commitment was invalid. Lundregan v. Lundregan (1958, 252 F. 2d 823, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 259).

When validity of commitment for contempt for nonpayment of money judgment is questioned, court will look behind commitment order to money judgment itself, and if that judgment is invalid on its face as a basis for commitment then commitment will not be sustained, and rule that decree of court, assuming jurisdictional basis, must be obeyed until set aside by judicial process, is not applicable. Id.

8. Counsel fees

Wife who brought proceeding to affirm marriage and set aside foreign divorce decree was entitled to counsel fees. E. Gherardi de Parata v. B. Gherardi de Parata; B. Gherardi de Parata v. E. Gherardi de Parata (D.C. App. 1963, 193 A. 2d 213).

Wife's proceeding to affirm marriage and set aside foreign decree was equitable in nature and District of Columbia Court of General Sessions had power to award counsel fees to wife. Id.

Where husband had been ordered to pay support money and attorney's fees, contempt order committing husband until he paid an amount greater that that due for support alone was erroneous in so far as it committed husband for failure to pay attorney's fees. Berman v. Berman (1953, 202 F. 2d 812, 92 U.S. App. D.C. 77).

The District Court has authority to award counsel fees in a wife's action for separate maintenance. Melvin v. Melvin (1942, 129 F. 2d 39, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 56).

In action by wife for separate maintenance, evidence of cruelty of husband is relevant on question of how much maintenance the husband should be required to pay. Gill v. Gill (1945, 147 F. 2d 154, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 357).

Wife's attorney's fee of $125 was ordered paid by husband in wife's maintenance action, where husband's income was not ample to justify more, notwithstanding services of wife's counsel warranted a higher amount. Hodge v. Hodge (1948, 80 F. Supp. 379).

9. Custody of children

In action by wife for maintenance and support, exclusive custody of minor children of the parties should not have been awarded to wife where husband and wife and the children remained living together in the same household. R. L. Clements v. R. Clements (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 184 A. 2d 195).

Where first order required husband to pay wife for maintenance of children, and second order after husband and wife were divorced replaced earlier order and required husband to pay a greater amount for such maintenance, husband failing to pay the amount provided for in the second order was in contempt, but husband could not be imprisoned inasmuch as the second order was entered after the divorce. Queen v. Queen (1951, 188 F. 2d 624, 88 U.S. App. D.C. 157).

10. Discharge of order

"The amount and the continuation of the allowance will remain subject to the control of the equity court," and should the parties be reconciled or should the husband provide a suitable home and invite the wife to occupy it, the order for maintenance will be discharged. Bernsdorff v. Bernsdorff (26 App. D.C. 520). See, also, Marschalk v. Marschalk (45 App. D.C. 455).

11. Discretion of court

Broad discretionary power is vested in trial court to award maintenance to a wife when the husband has failed or refuses to support her, and if she has need thereof and he has the ability to pay, a judgment of maintenance will not be disturbed except upon a clear showing of abuse. C. T. Rutherford v. E. S. Rutherford (D.C. App. 1963, 189 A. 2d 124).

Statute providing that court may award maintenance to wife if husband has failed to support her although able to do so does not compel award but leaves it within discretion of trial court. S. W. Foley v. J. D. Foley (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 184 A. 2d 853).

Wife's financial condition is relevant consideration and may limit award of maintenance or defeat it altogether. Id.

Where a bill for maintenance makes out a prima facie case, the complainant is entitled to an allowance pendente lite for support, the amount of which is within the sound discretion of the trial court. Tolman v. Tolman (1 App. D.C. 299).

Matter of granting or refusing temporary alimony is committed to sound discretion of trial court, and will not be disturbed by reviewing court, unless discretion has been abused. Reed v. Reed (1922, 280 F. 1009, 52 App. D.C. 35). See, also, Howard v. Howard (1940, 112 F. 2d 44, 72 App. D.C. 145).

In wife's suit for maintenance, awards of maintenance pendente lite and suit money were within District Court's discretion under its general equity powers. Bates v. Bates (1944, 141 F. 2d 723, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 14).

12. Dismissal

A motion to dismiss a complaint for maintenance was required to be denied notwithstanding defendant introduced affidavit and a supplemental answer disclosing that defendant had obtained an absolute divorce from plaintiff in Arkansas wherein he claimed to have obtained a legal residence, since court could consider only facts set forth in complaint which disclosed an existing marriage of parties who were residents of Maryland and that defendant was temporarily within the District. Brandenburg v. Brandenburg (1948, 80 F. Supp. 562).

13. Effect of award under reciprocal laws

Award for separate maintenance and support for minor children obtained under reciprocal enforcement of Support Act did not preclude later statutory action for maintenance and support. A. E. Figliozzi v. J. Figliozzi (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 173 A. 2d 904).

14. Effect of divorce

For purposes of jurisdiction in suits to enforce support, divorced wife is to be deemed a wife. W. P. Christian v. J. C. Christian (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 187 A. 2d 126).

Right to support acquired by marriage is incident of marriage which survives an ex parte divorce decree. Id.

1951 Maryland ex parte divorce obtained by husband remained ex parte decree even though wife in 1960 attempted to vacate decree by motion which was never passed upon and which was withdrawn by consent without prejudice, and proceeding did not bar subsequent suit by wife in District of Columbia for separate maintenance. Id.

Where husband filed suit for divorce against wife in the District of Columbia, and wife filed a counterclaim for separate maintenance, and husband then moved to Texas and procured a divorce in Texas, court in District of Columbia properly dismissed counterclaim for separate maintenance, since there could be no award of maintenance after divorce decree became effective. Meredith v. Meredith (1953, 204 F. 2d 64, 96 U.S. App. D.C. 351).

This section defines the power of a court to make a support-money order against a husband for the benefit of a wife and minor children, but does not embrace the case of an order against a divorced father. Rapeer v. Colpoys (1936, 85 F. 2d 715, 66 App. D.C. 216).

15. Effect of post-divorce agreement

Post-divorce agreement providing that in consideration for payment of $5,000, husband would be discharged from all claims arising out of and during marital relationship with exception of obligation to supoprt children and that wife released all present and future claims to husband's property and all claims for alimony and support for herself, failed to extinguish rights of children to continued support and District Court had jurisdiction to determine whether support provided for children was adequate even though husband had presented a substantial showing that he had been affording children full measure of support. Harrison et al. v. Harrison (1957, 248 F. 2d 631, 101 U.S. App. D.C. 309).

Where parties had entered into post-divorce agreement providing that in consideration for payment of $5,000, husband would be discharged from all claims arising out of and during marital relationship with exception of obligation to support children and that wife released all present and future claims to husband's property and all claims for alimony and support for herself, wife had released all claims to separate maintenance for herself. Id.

16. Equity jurisdiction

Equity will compel a husband to support his wife, quite apart from apparent restrictions on such obligation in statute. Meredith v. Meredith (1955, 226 F. 2d 257, 96 U.S. App. D.C. 355).

United States District Court for the District of Columbia has general equity powers, which are not supplanted by this section providing that whenever any husband shall fail to maintain his wife, court, on application of wife, may order him to pay as maintenance such sums as would be allowed in case of divorce, and which are broad enough in appropriate circumstances to support a grant of maintenance after an ex parte divorce. Hopson v. Hopson (1955, 221 F. 2d 839, 95 U.S. App. D.C. 285).

This section providing that whenever any husband shall fail to maintain his wife, court, on application of wife may order him to pay as maintenance such sums as would be allowed in case of divorce, is merely a specific authorization to enter a maintenance decree and is not a limitation on court's general equitable powers to enter such a decree. Id.

Equity has jurisdiction to grant maintenance as an independent relief. Rhodes v. Rhodes (36 App. D.C. 261). See, also, Lesh v. Lesh (21 App. D.C. 475); Tolman v. Tolman (1 App. D.C. 299).

Where father was worth over a million dollars, $50 a month was not adequate for care and education of son of 18, custody of whom had been awarded to mother by Nevada divorce decree, and it was duty of court to compel father to provide adequate support under its general equity powers. Schneider v. Schneider (1944, 141 F. 2d 542, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 383).

Suits for maintenance have been regarded in the District as equitable rather than legal. Franklin v. Frankiln (1949, 171 F. 2d 12, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 385).

The power of the court of equity to adopt its remedial relief to existing conditions and circumstances should not be curtailed. Id.

17. Evidence

Sufficient competent evidence supported findings and judgment of trial court granting separate maintenance. C. T. Rutherford v. E. S. Rutherford (D.C. App. 1963, 189 A. 2d 124).

Evidence in separate maintenance action supported finding that husband's misconduct had justified wife in leaving him. G. M. Johnson v. C. D. Johnson (D.C. Mun. App. 1962 (179 A. 2d 720).

In wife's suit for maintenance, defended on ground that she had been guilty of adultery and had, accordingly, forfeited her right to support, evidence supported decree granting permanent maintenance. Smith v. Smith (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 137 A. 2d 221).

18. Foreign decree

Decree of divorce obtained by husband in Virginia barred wife's action for maintenance in the courts of the District of Columbia. Thompson v. Thompson (1913, 33 S. Ct. 129, 266 U.S. 551, 57 L. Ed. 347).

A Texas court's decree, granting husband a divorce after dismissal of his complaint for divorce by federal District Court for District of Columbia on his motion because of his removal to Texas, did not destroy wife's personal financial right to claim maintenance, for which she filed counterclaim in District of Columbia court before filing of husband's Texas divorce suit, where wife did not appear in such suit, as Texas court had no jurisdiction over her. Meredith v. Meredith (1955, 226 F. 2d 257, 96 U.S. App. D.C. 355).

Ex parte foreign divorce procured by husband did not operate as a bar, under the full faith and credit clause, Art. 4, § 1, of the federal Constitution, to subsequent suit by wife in the District of Columbia for support and maintenance for herself and child. Hopson v. Hopson (1955, 221 F. 2d 839, 95 U.S. App. D.C. 285).

A grant of maintenance in a suit filed after an ex parte foreign divorce is consistent with the full faith and credit clause, Art. 4, § 1, of the federal Constitution. Id.

A Florida divorce decree obtained by husband who went to Florida solely for purpose of obtaining the divorce, and with no bona fide intention of remaining therein permanently or indefinitely, was not entitled to full faith and credit in the District of Columbia, so as to bar wife's action for maintenance. White v. White (1945, 150 F. 2d 157, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 156).

In absence of any showing of invalidity, Florida judgment granting absolute divorce to husband barred right of wife to maintenance, notwithstanding wife had instituted suit for maintenance in District Court for District of Columbia and had obtained an order granting temporary maintenance prior to time husband instituted Florida divorce suit. Gullet v. Gullet (1945, 149 F. 2d 17, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 73). See, also, Gullet v. Gullet (1947, 71 F. Supp. 378, affirmed 174 F. 2d 531, 85 U.S. App. D.C. 12).

Where husband took 40-hour annual leave from Washington job and went to Mexico for divorce, remaining there for not more than eight days, returning to Washington before decree was signed, husband was not a bona fide resident of Mexico, and decree obtained by him was not binding on District Court for District of Columbia in wife's subsequent action for support and maintenance. Hodge v. Hodge (1948, 80 F. Supp. 379).

Maryland court's judgment of acquittal in bigamy prosecution following husband's remarriage after Mexican divorce did not settle question of validity of divorce in wife's action for maintenance brought subsequent to both Maryland judgment and Mexican divorce. Id.

19. Imprisonment

Inasmuch as acknowledged father of illegitimate children did not have status of husband, his disobedience of order directing him to support children, though contemptuous, could not be punished by imprisonment. C. Johnson v. E. Johnson et al. (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 183 A. 2d 916).

One may not be imprisoned to compel obedience to court order directing payment of money except in those cases especially provided for. Lundregan v. Lundregan (1958, 252 F. 2d 823, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 259).

Under this section, authorizing imprisonment for enforcement of permanent maintenance and §§ 16–410, 16–411, for enforcement of alimony during pendency of divorce suit and § 11–327, permitting enforcement of interlocutory orders by same process as final decrees, court had no power to imprison husband for failure to pay awards of maintenance pendente lite and suit money, in wife's suit for maintenance. Bates v. Bates (1944, 141 F. 2d 723, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 14).

20. Judgment

Where wife brought action for divorce from bed and board, or, in alternative, for separate maintenance, judgment for separate maintenance was a finality as to every matter which was offered and received to sustain or defeat the case. Gill v. Gill (1945, 147 F. 2d 154, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 357).

A judgment for separate maintenance requires some basis for its support. Id.

20.50. Jurisdiction

Where mother's custody of children was not in issue, court had jurisdiction to award money for support of children residing in New York with mother against father living and employed in District of Columbia and it was error not to do so. N. G. Sheridan v. G. T. Sheridan (D.C. App. 1964, 202 A. 2d 653).

21. Legitimacy of child

The presumption of legitimacy of a child, corroborated by the mother's sworn statement that her husband, defendant in suit for maintenance, was the father of the child, and affidavits of third parties detailing circumstances strongly corroborative of the claim, is not overcome by the husband's denial of paternity, supported by the professional opinion of a physician, based on an examination of defendant more than a year later, that he was sterile at the time conception occurred. Howard v. Howard (1940, 112 F. 2d 44, 72 App. D.C. 145).

22. Maintenance as alimony

Where wife was denied a divorce because of insufficiency of her proof of cruelty, but was awarded "alimony", the "alimony" was in fact an award of "maintenance", which was within the power of the court, upon a proper showing, even though there was no ground for divorce. Brooker v. Brooker (1954, 211 F. 2d 648, 94 U.S. App. D.C. 38).

This section authorizing award of maintenance to a wife in such sums as would be allowed as permanent alimony in case of divorce assimilates maintenance, at least as regards amount, to alimony within rule that alimony is largely discretionary and may be granted to a wife who is at fault or denied against a husband who is at fault and that its amount is elastic. Melvin v. Melvin (1942, 129 F. 2d 39, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 56).

22.50. Marriage validity

Although Virginia marriage was void because one of parties thereto had just been divorced and six months' period for divorce to become final had not elapsed, a subsequent religious marriage ceremony more than a year after the divorce decree created a valid husband-wife relationship as basis for separate maintenance award. C. L. Morse v. S. W. Morse (D.C. App. 1964, 200 A. 2d 375).

In wife's suit for separate maintenance, evidence established that wife was justified in leaving the marital abode, that husband failed to support her and that $75 a month was a reasonable allowance. Id.

23. Measure of support

Alimony, when allotted, measures the husband's duty of support. Irwin v. Hawfield (D.C. Mun. App. 1949, 62 A. 2d 926).

24. Nonresident parties

Where parents and children were residents of Maryland and at time wife's separate maintenance suit was filed the husband was working in District of Columbia where personal service was had upon him but at time of trial he was employed in Maryland, District of Columbia court properly declined to award custody to either parent. I. Z. Schiller v. C. Schiller (D.C. App. 1963, 194 A. 2d 665).

Where wife failed to prove that husband had failed or refused to maintain her and court declined to award either husband or wife custody of children in wife's separate maintenance suit for lack of jurisdiction, court properly declined to award support for the children. Id.

Where complaint for maintenance states an existing marriage and that plaintiff and defendant are residents of Maryland and that defendant husband is temporarily within the District, practice is for the District Court for the District of Columbia, to take jurisdiction. Bradenburg v. Bradenburg (1948, 80 F. Supp. 562).

25. Permanent alimony

Question of permanent alimony could be judicially considered only on the granting of a divorce or on application of the wife for maintenance. Payne v. Payne (1924, 295 F. 970, 54 App. D.C. 149).

In view of this section providing for the allowance of money for the maintenance of a wife upon her application therefor whenever the husband fails or refuses to maintain her, permanent alimony may be granted in an annulment action. Parrella v. Parrella (1941, 120 F. 2d 728, 74 App. D.C. 161).

26. Proceeding in personam

When suit is for maintenance it is a proceeding in personam, and wife could not by attachment or seizure take the property until after the decree has passed. Bliss v. Bliss (1931, 50 F. 2d 1002, 60 App. D.C. 237).

27. Res judicata

A judgment in prior action between same parties is res judicata on the points and matters in issue and adjudicated in such action. Gill v. Gill (1945, 147 F. 2d 154, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 357).

Even if subsequent action is for different cause of action, a right, question, or fact determined in prior action must, as between same parties, be taken as conclusively established, so long as judgment in prior action remains unmodified. Id.

Decree on wife's cross-complaint denying divorce, but allowing temporary and permanent alimony and dismissing both husband's divorce complaint and wife's cross-complaint, was not res judicata precluding subsequent action by wife for support and maintenance. Hodge v. Hodge (1948, 80 F. Supp. 379).

An issue of how much defendant should pay his wife for necessaries litigated in District Court was res judicata between husband and wife and District Court alone had the power to reopen and modify decree. Irwin v. Hawfield (D.C. Mun. App. 1949, 62 A. 2d 926).

28. Separate maintenance

A wife makes out a prima facie case for separate maintenance when she proves that her husband has failed or refused to maintain her and that he is able to do so. I. Z. Schiller v. C. Schiller (D.C. App. 1963, 194 A. 2d 665).

A husband may defeat a wife's claim for separate maintenance by showing that she left without cause or reason or that separation was brought about by her misconduct. Id.

Wife was not entitled to separate maintenance based on claim that husband failed to support her when she left marital abode and secreted herself so that it was impossible for husband to do so, particularly when it was admitted that prior to departure husband had supported his family commensurate with his earning ability and had remained willing to continue such support if wife returned with children to marital abode. Id.

Statute providing that court "may" award maintenance to wife if husband fails or refuses to support her though able to do so does not compel award but leaves it to discretion of trial judge whose judgment will not be disturbed except on clear showing of abuse. O. S. DeSipio v. J. DeSipio (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 186 A. 2d 624).

Support may be granted to wife who is at fault, and it may in proper case be denied against husband who is at fault, and amount is elastic. Id.

Misconduct of wife may defeat her claim to support, but if husband asserts her misconduct as defense, he must plead and prove it. Id.

Though duty of husband to meet reasonable needs of wife within his financial capabilities in absolute and remains unimpaired as long as marital relationship exists, court, in enforcing obligation, must remain equally mindful of welfare of husband and avoid penalizing him by imposition of harsh financial terms. Id.

Court was unauthorized to deny wife all support on ground that she was presently or would very soon be in position where she could use her education and experience in gainful employment. Id.

Wife who was living under the same roof with her husband although refusing to share his bed was not entitled to an award of separate maintenance merely because she contributed to living expenses by purchasing groceries with money she earned, where such arrangement was voluntary, and husband paid rent, telephone, electricity, and contributed to the cost of groceries and clothing of minor children of the parties. R. L. Clements v. R. Clements (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 184 A. 2d 195).

Although an award of separate maintenance may be made to a wife in fact living a separate life, although under the same roof with her husband, such situation should be given careful scrutiny to discourage litigation between husbands and wives who are actually living together. Id.

Wife makes out case for separate maintenance by establishing that husband failed or refused to support her, although able to do so; no allegation of cruelty is necessary. G. M. Johnson v. C. D. Johnson (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 179 A. 2d 720).

Where evidence clearly and uncontrovertedly established that husband and wife had in fact been living separate lives though under the same roof, even though such situations generally invite careful scrutiny of courts, there was no reason to withhold an award of maintenance money to wife suing for separate maintenance. Lutz v. Lutz (D.C. Mun. App. 1960, 166 A. 2d 489).

Municipal Court has no power to compel a husband to provide funds for his wife's separate maintenance. Accordingly, judgment obtained by physician against husband for professional services rendered to wife must be reversed. Irwin v. Hawfield (D.C. Mun. App. 1949, 62 A. 2d 926).

29. Sufficiency of allegations

Wife suing for limited divorce and failing to establish any dereliction on the part of the husband is not entitled to maintenance under section 980, D.C. Code of 1901 (this section). Towson v. Towson (1919, 258 F. 517, 49 App. D.C. 45).

Although cruelty was alleged in bill for maintenance on ground of failure to support, it was sufficient. Cissell v. Cissell (1933, 61 F. 2d 679, 61 App. D.C. 271).

A wife may state a cause of action for maintenance when she alleges that her husband has failed or refused to maintain her, although able to do so, and an allegation of cruelty is not necessary. Gill v. Gill (1945, 147 F. 2d 154, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 357).

30. Suit by nonresident wife

A suit for maintenance may be maintained by a nonresident wife against a resident husband. Tolman v. Tolman (1 App. D.C. 299).

The District Court for the District of Columbia properly accepted jurisdiction of wife's action for maintenance where the parties had lived together in the District for ten years, then moved to Maryland, just over the District line, where they lived until separation, and husband then moved back to the District, where he had since lived and worked, except for period of temporary residence in Florida, where he attempted to obtain divorce. White v. White (1945, 150 F. 2d 157, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 156).

31. Support of child

A child's claim to paternal support, unlike a claim by a wife in separate maintenance and support proceedings, is not affected by the merits of the controversy between the spouses. A father's obligation to contribute to the support of a child born of marriage is unqualified, and maintenance pendente lite for the child must be provided. Howard v. Howard (1940, 112 F. 2d 44, 72 App. D.C. 145).

A child's claim for maintenance is not subsidiary to that of the mother. Id.

Where domicile of father and minor son was in District of Columbia, duty imposed by this section on father to provide adequate support for his son existed in spite of Nevada divorce decree containing inadequate support provisions. Schneider v. Schneider (1944, 141 F. 2d 542, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 383).

A suit by mother as next friend of minor son is proper proceeding to enforce duty of father to provide adequate support for his minor son. Id.

The measure of father's duty to provide adequate support for minor son was present needs of son and ability of father to provide for him. Id.

§ 16–917. Co-respondents as defendants—Service of process.

In a divorce case where adultery is charged, the person or persons with whom the adultery is charged to have been committed shall be made defendant or defendants and brought in by personal service of process or by publication as in other cases. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 562, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

In general 1

1. In general

Bill alleging adultery with two persons without making them party to suit, was not maintainable. Nelson v. Nelson (1931, 49 F. 2d 680, 60 App. D.C. 156).

2. Counsel fees

Counsel fees of husband plaintiff cannot be assessed against the co-respondent as costs. Eichelberger v. Symons (1923, 288 F. 654, 53 App. D.C. 116).

3. Defense by co-respondent

Quaere: Whether co-respondent can plead condonation by plaintiff. Holden v. Matteson (38 App. D.C. 128).

4. Identity unknown

It is not necessary to make co-respondent a party if his identity cannot be determined or he is known only by a fictitious name. McLarren v. McLarren (45 App. D.C. 237, 1 A.L.R. 1412).

§ 16–918. Assignment of counsel in uncontested cases—Compensation.

In all uncontested divorce cases, and in any other divorce or annulment case where the court deems it necessary or proper, a disinterested attorney shall be assigned by the court to enter his appearance for the defendant and actively defend the cause. The attorney shall receive such compensation for his services as the court determines to be proper, which shall be paid by the parties as the court directs. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 562, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–418 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 982, 31 Stat. 1374; June 20, 1949, ch. 229, 63 Stat. 213).

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Compensation 1
Contempt 2

1. Compensation

Under this section authorizing Domestic Relations Court to assign counsel in uncontested cases, and providing that counsel shall receive such compensation for his services as the court determine to be proper, to be paid by parties as the court may direct, court had authority in default divorce action by wife to require fee of counsel appointed to defend to be paid by the wife, even though she was the aggrieved party and prevailed in the action. Sutton v. Sutton et al. (D.C. Mun. App. 1960, 164 A. 2d 477).

In action by wife for divorce, where husband defaulted, court appointed attorney to defend, and, after proof of case, ordered wife to pay fee of appointed attorney, and where wife failed to pay such fee for period of three months, judge notified wife's attorney that unless fee was paid within week, appointed counsel waived fee, or plaintiff filed an affidavit of impecuniosity, action would be dismissed, and fee was not waived or paid, and wife did not file an affidavit, court properly dismissed action for failure to comply with order of the court. Id.

2. Contempt

Municipal court had summary jurisdiction over attorneys who had represented plaintiff in unsuccessful divorce action in which court ordered payment of attorney fees to counsel appointed for defendant, and such summary power could be invoked to punish such attorneys for contempt when they failed to pay over to defendant's counsel a sum which the court had found had been entrusted to them for payment of such fees. In re E. L. Ferrell and N. A. Perry (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 172 A. 2d 555).

Failure of attorneys to comply with order requiring them to pay over funds found to have been entrusted to them by their client for payment of attorney fees awarded opponent constituted "contempt of court". Id.

Trial court had authority to award counsel fees for attorney appointed by court to represent husband in wife's uncontested divorce action dismissed for lack of jurisdiction and lack of proof. Id.

In divorce action, where an attorney was appointed for defaulting defendant and final decree granting divorce ordered defendant to pay a fee to attorney but this section providing compensation for attorney so appointed, made no provision for enforcement of payment of compensation, attorney could not enforce payment of his fee by way of contempt proceeding. Robinson v. Robinson (1948, 80 F. Supp. 397).

A decree for a divorce, or a decree annulling a marriage, may not be rendered on default, without proof; and an admission contained in the answer of the defendant may not be taken as proof of the facts charged as the ground of the application, but shall be proved by other evidence in all cases. (Dec. 23 1963, 77 Stat. 562, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Admissions 1
Confessions 2
Corroboration 3
Nature of proof required 4
Penalty for failure to give deposition 5
Purpose 6
Striking of pleading in divorce action 7
Summary judgment 8
Witness 9

1. Admissions

Admissions of adultery by wife, having been freely made, were rightly received in evidence against her. Holden v. Matteson (38 App. D.C. 128).

The testimony of a party to a divorce suit need not be corroborated when it is undisputed, the suit is contested and no collusion appears, though testimony is necessary and admissions in pleadings are not enough. Buford v. Buford (1946, 156 F. 2d 567, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 169).

In husband's action for annulment of marriage to wife who was in armed forces at time of marriage and who refused to join husband after she obtained discharge from service, admissions of wife made in letters and telephone calls to husband that she did not intend to join husband were properly received in evidence. Farrington v. Farrington (D.C. Mun. App. 1958, 140 A. 2d 921).

2. Confessions

"In Michalowicz v. Michalowicz (25 App. D.C. 484) it was ruled that this provision [this section] of the code is declarative of the general rule of practice in such cases and was not intended to prohibit all evidence of confessions that may have been made by a party. 'But,' said the court, 'to warrant a decree of divorce the confessions must be well established, direct, and certain, free from suspicion of collusion, and corroborated by independent facts and circumstances.'" Cogswell v. Cogswell (1919, 258 F. 287, 49 App. D.C. 31).

3. Corroboration

Rule requiring corroboration of plaintiff's testimony in divorce cases was a rule of ecclesiastical courts and disappeared in common-law courts; and, in absence of statutory requirement for corroboration, divorce can be granted on uncorroborated testimony of complainant in uncontested divorce action. Schroeder v. Schroeder (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 133 A. 2d 470).

4. Nature of proof required

In divorce proceedings, evidence of wife's adultery must be clear and convincing. Mere circumstances of suspicion are not sufficient. Krous v. Krous (41 App. D.C. 200). See, also, Symons v. Symons (1922, 275 F. 1015, 51 App. D.C. 69); Stewart v. Stewart (1923, 286 F. 987, 52 App. D.C. 323); McKitrick v. McKitrick (1920, 261 F. 451, 49 App. D.C. 109); Topham v. Topham (1921, 269 F. 1013, 50 App. D.C. 229).

Proof of an adulterous disposition and opportunity to commit offense warrant a finding of adultery. Allen v. Allen (1923, 285 F. 962, 52 App. D.C. 228).

Where testimony is in conflict, "the finding of the lower court will not be disturbed, unless it is palpably wrong." Cole v. Cole (1923, 286 F. 764, 52 App. D.C. 302). See, also, Church v. Church (1921, 270 F. 359, 50 App. D.C. 237).

"But that rule does not require proof beyond the possibility of doubt, nor does it necessarily require proof by eye witnesses of the actual offense. Nor do we overlook the rule that the testimony of hired detectives in such cases should be scrutinized with great caution." Stewart v. Stewart (1923, 286 F. 987, 52 App. D.C. 323). See, also, Allen v. Allen (1923, 285 F. 962, 52 App. D.C. 228).

5. Penalty for failure to give deposition

Where husband had failed to appear for the taking of his deposition concerning alimony pendente lite in divorce action, trial judge properly refused to allow husband to testify at preliminary hearing concerning temporary support. Hipp v. Hipp (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 134 A. 2d 493).

6. Purpose

It is the purpose of law of District of Columbia to require caution in granting of uncontested divorces and to prevent the granting of default decrees, without proof. Stone v. Stone (1943, 136 F. 2d 761, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 5).

7. Striking of pleading in divorce action

Rule that pleadings may be stricken if person willfully fails to appear before officer for deposition purposes is permissive and does not require that it be done and was not applicable in divorce case since only purpose for striking an answer would be to proceed as if in default, but this section specifically forbids the grant of divorce on default. Hipp v. Hipp (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 134 A. 2d 493).

8. Summary judgment

Divorce should not be granted by judgment on the pleadings or by summary judgment. Rea v. Rea (1954, 124 F. Supp. 922).

Public is third party in every divorce case and has interest in preservation of the marriage bond, and therefore, divorce should not be granted until after the court hears evidence. Id.

Even if issue, on which moving party relied as basis for its application for summary judgment in divorce proceeding on ground that such issue was res judicata due to prior litigation between the parties, had been established by court's finding in prior action, summary judgment for divorce would not be granted, but taking of evidence would be required. Id.

9. Witness

"In the case of Bergheimer v. Bergheimer (17 App. D.C. 381), we held that in divorce cases the parties to a suit are not competent to testify as witnesses in their own behalf. Therein we followed the ruling of the general term of the Supreme Court of the District in the case of Burdette v. Burdette (2 Mackey (13 D.C.) 469) and the uniform rule of practice in this District. And this rule, we think, is not affected by section 1068 of the Code (§ 14–306). * * * This section must be taken as qualified by section 964 of the Code (this section), which provides a special rule of evidence for divorce cases." Lenoir v. Lenoir (24 App. D.C. 160).

This section has no relation to the competency of the witnesses of the parties to the suit. Early v. Early (1920, 261 F. 1003, 49 App. D.C. 123).

The parties to a divorce suit are competent witnesses. Buford v. Buford (1946, 156 F. 2d 567, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 169).

A final decree annulling or dissolving a marriage is not effective to annul or dissolve the marriage until the expiration of the time allowed for taking an appeal, and until the final disposition of any appeal taken, and every final decree shall expressly so recite. Every decree for absolute divorce shall contain the date thereof and may not be absolute and take effect until the expiration of six months after its date. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 563, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–421 (Apr. 19, 1920, ch. 153, § 983a, 41 Stat. 567; Aug. 7, 1935, ch. 453, § 4, 49 Stat. 540).

Assault during coverture 2
Death 3
Defense in collateral proceeding 4
Defense to polygamy 5
Effect of foreign decree 6
In general 1

1. In general

Meaning and purpose of this provision is to prevent the remarriage of and preserve the status quo of the parties until the losing party may have his or her full legal rights and the law should be satisfied when that result is accomplished. Tillinghast v. Tillinghast (1928, 25 F. 2d 531, 58 App. D.C. 107).

2. Assault during coverture

Action against former husband for assault committed after decree of absolute divorce had been entered, but before expiration of six months' period when decree would become effective, could be maintained as against contention that a married woman may not sue for assault committed on her by her husband during coverture. Steele v. Steele (1946, 65 F. Supp. 329).

3. Death

Widow was entitled to share in the estate of her husband, as widow, where husband died within six months after entry of a decree of divorce from widow but before that decree has become final. B. H. Saunders, Executor etc. et al. v. A. B. B. Hanson (1964, 327 F. 2d 889, 117 U.S. App. D.C. 191).

Death of one of the parties during six-month period following entry of an absolute divorce decree abates the action for all purposes. Id.

Where husband and wife held realty as tenants by the entirety, and wife obtained a decree of absolute divorce that did not expressly deal with realty, and wife died five months and four days after decree was signed so that decree did not become final, divorce proceedings were properly declared abated, and daughter of the deceased wife was not entitled to an interest in the realty by descent on ground that the wife was a tenant in common thereof at time of her death. Wesley v. Brown (1952, 196 F. 2d 859, 90 U.S. App. D.C. 351).

4. Defense in collateral proceeding

A divorced husband, marrying another woman in Maryland while both of them were domiciled in District of Columbia within six months after entry of divorce decree in court of such district, was not estopped to plea invalidity of second marriage under District Code as ground for vacation of order against him for support of second wife's minor child, whose paternity he denied, especially in view of statutory provision that nullity of bigamous marriage may be shown in any collateral proceeding. Oliver v. Oliver (1951, 185 F. 2d 429, 87 U.S. App. D.C. 334).

5. Defense to polygamy

Since plaintiff had been legally divorced in the District while the parties were domiciled there, and the decree became effective unconditionally and irrevocably, she was thereafter an unmarried woman and could not be guilty of polygamy. Loughran v. Loughran (1934, 54 S. Ct. 684, 292 U.S. 216, 78 L. Ed. 1219, rehearing denied 54 S. Ct. 861, 292 U.S. 615, 78 L. Ed. 1474).

6. Effect of foreign decree

A Virginia decree of absolute divorce issued May 14, 1958 and not appealed finally dissolved the plaintiff's marriage to a federal employee upon its issuance and hence she was no longer the wife of the employee on July 8, 1958, the date of his death, and was not entitled as his widow to receive the proceeds of federal group life insurance on his death and the parents of the employee were entitled to such proceeds. Dillard v. Dillard (1960, 275 F. 2d 878, 107 U.S. App. D.C. 214).

§ 16–921. Validity of marriage, action to determine.

When the validity of an alleged marriage is denied by either of the parties thereto the other party may institute an action for affirming the marriage, and upon due proof of the validity thereof the court shall decree it to be valid. The decree shall be conclusive upon all parties concerned. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 563, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–422 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 981, 31 Stat. 1346).

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Finding by court in advisory action 1
Jurisdiction 1.50
Maintenance of action 2
Remarriage before appeal date 3
Validity of foreign divorce 4

1. Finding by court in advisory action

Where trial court properly disclaimed jurisdiction of action by alleged wife against alleged husband for declaration as to marital status, as only an advisory opinion was sought, it was error for trial court to find as fact that marriage was invalid. Gardner v. Gardner (1956, 233 F. 2d 23, 98 U.S. App. D.C. 144).

1.50. Jurisdiction

Where woman sued by alleged common-law wife for order declaring validity of common-law marriage filed counterclaim seeking declaration that, as lawful wife, she was entitled to interest in property owned by male defendant, defendant woman was not entitled to thereafter contend that court was limited to determination of marital status of plaintiff. I. M. Lee v. G. M. Lee and G. V Lee (D.C. App. 1964, 201 A 2d 873).

2. Maintenance of action

Under this section providing that where validity of alleged marriage is denied by either party, other party may institute suit for affirming marriage, action by alleged wife against alleged husband for declaration as to marital status could not be maintained where she alleged neither validity nor invalidity of marriage and husband answered that he could neither admit nor deny her allegations concerning doubt as to marital status, in view of fact that marriage was not asserted by one party and denied by other. Gardner v. Gardner (1956, 233 F. 2d 23, 98 U.S. App. D.C. 144).

3. Remarriage before appeal date

A wife's remarriage before time had expired for taking appeal from husband's annulment decree, was valid. Tillinghast v. Tillinghast (1928, 25 F. 2d 531, 58 App. D.C. 107).

4. Validity of foreign divorce

Alabama divorce decree was subject to challenge in the District of Columbia for lack of jurisdiction over the res, or over either of the parties, where husband merely flew into Alabama, signed a complaint and affidavit, and 4 or 5 hours later flew back to his home and business in Washington, D.C., even though wife signed an acceptance of service of process and answer and waiver. E. G. DeParata v. B. G. DeParata (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 179 A. 2d 723).

This chapter does not invalidate any marriage solemnized according to law before January 1, 1902, or any decree or judgment of divorce pronounced before that date. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 563, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

16–1152. Order to produce life tenant—Service of order.
16–1153. Failure to produce as ordered—Subsequent proceedings—Commissioners—Presumption of death—Right of possession.
16–1154. Investigation outside the District—Report to court—Presumption of death—Right to possession.
16–1155. Restoration of property to life tenant.
16–1156. Recovery of profits by person evicted.
16–1157. Preservation of life tenant's rights if living at time of return.
16–1158. Persons holding over after life estate—Damages.

SUBCHAPTER I.—EJECTMENT

§ 16–1101. Parties defendant—Joint tenants and tenants in common.

(a) A civil action based upon a cause of action in ejectment, may be brought against:

(1) the person actually occupying the premises claimed, either in person or by tenant; or

(2) both the claimant and his tenant, or other occupant claiming under him; or

(3) if the premises are not actually occupied, a person exercising acts of ownership thereon adversely to the plaintiff.

When a lessee is made a defendant at the suit of a party claiming against the title of the lessee's landlord, the landlord may appear and be made a party defendant in the place of his lessee.

Any person claiming to be in possession may, on motion, be admitted to defend the action.

(b) Joint tenants shall sue jointly in ejectment, but tenants in common may sue either jointly or separately, and any number of tenants in common, less than the whole number entitled, may sue jointly in reference to their undivided interests. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 564, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Section consolidates sections 16–501 and 16–510 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed.

At the beginning, words "A civil action, based upon a cause of action in ejectment," are substituted for "Every action of ejectment" to conform the terminology more closely with rule 2 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, which provides, with respect to civil cases, that there shall be only one form of action, to be known as a "civil action". See, also, rule 2 of the civil rules of the Court of General Sessions.

The provision of section 16–501 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., that the action "shall be brought in the name of the real claimant" is omitted as covered by the first clause of rule 17(a) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, which provides that "Every action shall be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest". See, also, the first clause of rule 17(a) of the civil rules of the Court of General Sessions.

For procedural provisions relating to necessary, permissive, misjoinder, or nonjoinder of parties, and interpleader, see rules 19–22, respectively, of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, and the civil rules of the Court of General Sessions.

Changes are made in phraseology and arrangement.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Equity 1
Estoppel 2
Historical 3
Pleading 4
Possession 5
Presumption as to judgment 6
Proof of title 7
Right of action 8
Right of tenant in common 9

1. Equity

When equity has jurisdiction to enjoin prosecution of an action of ejectment involving three tracts of land, so far as two tracts are concerned, on ground that defendants have no adequate remedy at law, it will assume jurisdiction as to the third tract to terminate the litigation even though the defendants would have a remedy as to said third tract. Camp v. Boyd (35 App. D.C. 159, affirmed 33 S. Ct. 785, 229 U.S. 530, 57 L. Ed. 1317).

2. Estoppel

Strict rules of estoppel are present when the parties in both actions are the same, when they are parties in interest, not only asserting in both instances the right of possession, but the title to the property. Lyon v. Bursey (36 App. D.C. 235).

3. Historical

The abolition of fictions in pleading in the District of Columbia by act June 1, 1870 (16 Stat. 146, ch. 115) and providing that all actions for the recovery of real estate in the District should be commenced in the name of the real party in interest, did not abolish the action of ejectment or make any other alteration in the form of the action, or extend limitations. Hogan v. Kurtz (1876, 94 U.S. 773, 4 Otto 773, 24 L. Ed. 317).

British statutes prohibiting conveyance of lands held adversely are obsolete in this District. Chesapeake Beach R. Co. v. Washington, P. & C. R. Co. (23 App. D.C. 587, affirmed 26 S. Ct. 25, 199 U.S. 247, 50 L. Ed. 175).

4. Pleading

It seems to be unnecessary to plead the statute of limitations where the general issue has been pleaded in actions of ejectment. McMillan v. Fuller (41 App. D.C. 384).

Where defendant pleads the general issue, and was found in possession of the land demanded, his plea must be construed as making defense for the whole. Marine R. & Coal Co. v. United States (1920, 265 F. 437, 49 App. D.C. 285, affirmed 42 S. Ct. 32, 257 U.S. 47, 66 L. Ed. 124).

5. Possession

"Where in ejectment a party in possession has been ejected from the premises under a judgment found upon appeal or writ of error to be erroneous, the party so dispossessed is entitled to restitution of the premises." Wilson v. Newburgh (42 App. D.C. 407).

The court is without jurisdiction to permit the plaintiff to retain possession under such reversed judgment, conditioned upon paying the original occupant a monthly rental pending further litigation. Id.

6. Presumption as to judgment

The doctrine as to the inconclusiveness of judgments of ejectment has been abrogated by section 1002 of the Code (§ 16–518). Lyon v. Bursey (36 App. D.C. 235).

7. Proof of title

For exceptions to the rule that plaintiff in ejectment must recover on strength of his own title, see Chesapeake Beach R. Co. v. Washington, P. & C. R. Co. (23 App. D.C. 587, affirmed 26 S. Ct. 25, 199 U.S. 247, 50 L. Ed. 175).

Marshal's deed of land which shows levy upon and sale of property under judgment is not sufficient to show title to the land in the grantee, but the grantee must prove the judgment and the execution. Rowlett v. Nash (38 App. D.C. 598).

One in peaceable possession of property, either in person or by tenant, is presumed to be in lawful possession, and "he was entitled to recover possession from a mere trespasser without further proof of title." Nash v. Rawlett (41 App. D.C. 456). See, also, Bradshaw v. Ashley (1901, 21 S. Ct. 297, 180 U.S. 59, 45 L. Ed. 423); Chesapeake Beach R. Co. v. Washington, P. & C. R. Co. (23 App. D.C. 587, affirmed 26 S. Ct. 25, 199 U.S. 247, 50 L. Ed. 175); Robinson v. Hillman (36 App. D.C. 576).

8. Right of action

Where party occupying landowner's premises had not right to possession but his original entry had been lawful, and where action under forcible entry and detainer statute was not available because relation of landlord and tenant had not existed, ejectment was only appropriate remedy. Shapiro v. Christopher (1952, 195 F. 2d 785, 90 U.S. App. D.C. 114).

Action of ejectment may be commenced by a claimant to property against anyone occupying the premises, either in person or by tenants, or against any person exercising acts of ownership adversely to the plaintiff. Spruill v. Brooks (D.C. Mun. App. 1908, 68 A. 2d 204).

9. Right of tenant in common

Where decedent died intestate, left no children or no descendants of children or father or mother, plaintiff as a child of one of the deceased sisters of the decedent became a tenant in common with other heirs of realty owned by the decedent and had a right to maintain proceedings for recovery or possession of the realty in her own name. Bagby v. Honesty (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 149 A. 2d 786).

§ 16–1102. Failure of tenant to give notice to landlord.

If a tenant, on whom a complaint in ejectment is served, fails to give notice thereof, without delay, to his landlord or the agent of the landlord, he shall forfeit and pay to the landlord the value of three years' full rent of the premises, to be recovered by a civil action. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 564, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–502 (11 Geo. 2, ch. 19, § 12, 1738; Kilty Rep., p. 251; Alex. Br. Stat., p. 737; Comp. Stat. D.C., p. 332, § 61).

Section 16–502 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., which, as indicated above, was based upon one of the British statutes in force in the District, provided, as follows:

"Every tenant, to whom any declaration in ejectment shall be delivered for any lands, tenements, or hereditaments, shall forthwith give notice thereof to his or her landlord or landlords, or his, her, or their bailiff or receiver, under penalty of forfeiting the value of three years improved or rack rent of the premises so demised or holden in the possession of such tenant, to the person of whom he or she holds; to be recovered by action of debt.".

As set out in this revised section, the provisions are re-written to modernize the language, but without change of substance. Further, "complaint" is substituted for "declaration", and "civil action" is substituted for "action of debt" to conform the terms with rules 2 and 7(a), respectively, of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, and the civil rules of the Municipal Court.

In his complaint in ejectment, the plaintiff shall:

(1) describe the premises claimed with reasonable certainty; and

(2) set forth distinctly the nature and quantity of the estate claimed by him in the premises.

It is sufficient for the plaintiff to state, in addition, that:

(1) he was possessed of the premises, and while he was so possessed the defendant entered wrongfully into possession thereof, and withholds the possession of the premises from the plaintiff, or wrongfully detains possession; or

(2) the defendant is wrongfully exercising acts of ownership over the premises.

However, except as provided by this chapter, acts of ownership do not amount to an adversary possession, so as to make it necessary for the plaintiff to sue in order to avoid the bar of the statute of limitations. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 564, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–503 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 985, 31 Stat. 1347).

The term "complaint" is substituted for "declaration" to conform with rule 7(a) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, and rule 7(a) of the civil rules of the Court of General Sessions.

Changes are made in phraseology and arrangement.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. Conforming pleadings to proof

Where only issue as to right of possession raised and tried in landowner's action against occupant was whether parties had intended lease of adjacent lot to cover also the premises in issue, and it appeared that occupant was not entitled to possession, although his entry had been lawful, landowner was not concluded by his allegation describing occupant as a "tenant by sufferance", in view of fact that complaint also alleged that occupant held "without right"; and if there was any doubt in trial judge's mind as to sufficiency of complaint as one in ejectment, it was his duty to permit plaintiff to amend by withdrawing allegations concerning tenancy by sufferance and clearly stating cause of action in ejectment in conformity with facts. Shapiro v. Christopher (1952, 195 F. 2d 785, 90 U.S. App. D.C. 114).

(a) Except as provided by subsection (b) of this section, in an action of ejectment it is sufficient to entitle the plaintiff to relief to show that he is entitled, as against the defendant, to the immediate possession of the premises claimed, and that the defendant is:

(1) in possession of the premises, and is holding adversely to the plaintiff; or

(2) exercising acts of ownership over the premises, adversely to the plaintiff.

(b) In an action pursuant to this chapter by one or more joint tenants or tenants in common against their cotenants, the plaintiff shall be required to prove an actual ouster or some other act amounting to a denial of the plaintiff's title and his exclusion from the enjoyment of the property. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 565, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–505 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 988, 31 Stat. 1347).

Changes are made in phraseology and arrangement.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Defense 1
Disclaimer of other part 2
Ouster not presumed 3
Proof of title 4
Tenants in common 5

1. Defense

Defense of adverse possession was established. Holtzman v. Douglas (1897, 18 S. Ct. 65, 168 U.S. 278, 42 L. Ed. 466).

2. Disclaimer of other part

Where plaintiff claims only a portion of the land sued for, he may, under this section, disclaim as to the other part. Robinson v. Hillman (36 App. D.C. 576).

3. Ouster not presumed

"Ouster will not be presumed, but there must be a showing of positive acts of hostility." Lyon v. Bursey (42 App. D.C. 519).

4. Proof of title

Where plaintiff and defendant do not claim through common source of title, plaintiff must "show a complete chain of title from the sovereign, either the English crown, the State of Maryland, or the United States," particularly when neither plaintiff nor those under whom he claims was ever in possession of the property. Bursey v. Lyon (30 App. D.C. 597). See, also, Anderson v. Reid (10 App. D.C. 426); Scott v. Herrell (27 App. D.C. 395); Robinson v. Hillman (36 App. D.C. 576).

5. Tenants in common

"One tenant in common is not liable to his cotenant for use and occupation, unless there has been an actual ouster of the cotenant, or acts amounting to that." Lyon v. Bursey (42 App. D.C. 519).

§ 16–1105. Legal title in mortgagee or trustee—Possession.

It is not a bar to the plaintiff's recovery in an action of ejectment that the legal title to the property claimed is outstanding in another as mortgagee or trustee under a mortgage or deed of trust to secure a debt, unless the mortgagee or trustee, or those claiming under him, has taken possession of the premises, or unless the defendant claims under the mortgagor or grantor in the deed of trust. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 565, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–506 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 989, 31 Stat. 1347; June 30, 1902, ch. 1329, 32 Stat. 537).

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–1106. Performance of contract by vendee as precluding vendor from recovery.

Where real property has been sold under a written contract executed by the vendor, and there has been such a performance of its terms by the vendee as would entitle him to a decree for a conveyance of the legal title, without condition, the vendor may not recover the property from the vendee. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 565, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–507 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 990, 31 Stat. 1348).

Words "in equity", which followed "decree", are omitted; and words "the vendor may not recover" are substituted for "such vendor shall not be entitled at law, any more than in equity, to recover", in view of the merger of law and equity procedure by the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, and the civil rules of the Court of General Sessions.

A minor change is made in phraseology.

§ 16–1107. Several judgments against defendants occupying distinct parcels.

When it appears on the trial in an action of ejectment that some of the defendants occupy distinct parcels of the property claimed, in severalty, the plaintiff, if entitled to recover, may in the discretion of the court, have several judgments against the respective parties, according to the proof of occupancy. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 565, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–508 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 992, 31 Stat. 1348; June 30, 1902, ch. 1329, 32 Stat. 537).

A minor change is made in phraseology.

§ 16–1108. Recovery of less than is claimed.

The plaintiff, under a claim to certain described premises, may recover less than the whole property claimed, and, under a claim to an entire property, may recover an undivided part thereof. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 565, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

§ 16–1109. Recovery of mesne profits and damages—Separate count.

(a) The plaintiff may embody in his complaint, in a separate count, a claim for the:

(1) mesne profits received by the defendant from the property sued for; or

(2) clear value of the use and occupation of the property sued for—extending to the time of the verdict, and also damages for waste or injury to the premises during that period.

(b) If the jury find for the plaintiff, they may, at the same time, find and assess the mense profits, or the value of the use and occupation and the amount of damages, specified by subsection (a) of this section. Except in the case provided for by section 16–1116, there shall be rendered, besides a judgment for the recovery of the property, a judgment against the defendant for the amount so found by the jury. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 565, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–511 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 995, 31 Stat. 1348; June 30, 1902, ch. 1329, 32 Stat. 537).

The term "complaint" is substituted for "declaration" to conform with rule 7(a) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, and rule 7(a) of the civil rules of the Court of General Sessions.

Changes are made in phraseology and arrangement.

For permissive joinder of claims and remedies, see rule 18 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, and rule 18 of the civil rules of the Court of General Sessions.

§ 16–1110. Recovery, by landlord, of furniture, arrears in rent, and damages—Separate counts.

(a) In an action in ejectment against his tenant, a landlord may embody in his complaint, in separate counts, claims for:

(1) furniture, if leased with the realty;

(2) arrears of rent due at the termination of the tenancy;

(3) double rent in cases authorized by this Code from the termination of the tenancy to the verdict for possession; and

(4) damages for waste or injury to the premises or furniture during the defendant's occupancy of the premises and before commencement of the action.

(b) If the jury find for the landlord, they may, at the same time, find the amounts due for arrears of rent and for double rent and for damages, as provided by subsection (a) of this section, and judgment shall be rendered accordingly. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 566, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–512 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 996, 31 Stat. 1348).

The term "complaint" is substituted for "declaration" to conform with rule 7(a) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, and rule 7(a) of the civil rules of the Court of General Sessions.

Changes are made in phraseology and arrangement.

For permissive joinder of claims and remedies, see rule 18 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, and rule 18 of the civil rules of the Court of General Sessions.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. Amount of verdict

In action for rent, where defendant admitted liability for a fixed amount and claimed a credit for repairs made, and the evidence was conflicting, some items of defense were hard to prove, and jury had no purely mathematical basis upon which to rest its verdict, a verdict for less than amount demanded, but for more than amount admitted by defendant, would not be disturbed. Shlopak v. Davison (D.C. Mun. App. 1943, 34 A. 2d 126).

In action for rent where defendant admitted liability for a limited amount, and jury returned a verdict for less than amount demanded, but more than amount admitted to be due by defendant, and verdict was accepted by plaintiff, defendant was in no position to complain that verdict should have been a verdict for all or nothing. Id.

§ 16–1111. Separate action for rent or damages.

The plaintiff in ejectment is not required to join his claim for rent or damages with his claim for the recovery of the land and his omission to do so does not prevent him from bringing his action for rent or damages separately. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 566, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–513 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 997, 31 Stat. 1348).

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Concurrent actions 1
Nature of possessory action 2

1. Concurrent actions

A landlord could maintain action against tenant in District of Columbia District Court for arrears of rent and an action against tenant in the municipal court for possession of leased premises. Service Parking Corp. v. Trans-Lux Radio City Corp. (D.C. Mun. App. 1946, 47 400).

2. Nature of possessory action

A landlord's action for possession of leased premises for nonpayment of rent is statutory substitute for the ancient remedy of ejectment. Service Parking Corp. v. Trans-Lux Radio City Corp. (D.C. Mun. App. 1946, 47 A. 2d 400).

§ 16–1112. Expiration of title pending suit—Damages.

If the title of the plaintiff in ejectment expires after the commencement of his action but before the trial, and but for the expiration he would have been entitled to recover, the verdict shall find the facts, and the plaintiff may recover his damages sustained by the wrongful withholding of the possession. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 566, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–514 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 998, 31 Stat. 1349).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–1113. Defense of adverse possession—Enclosure.

In an action to recover vacant and unimproved lots of ground it is not necessary, in order to maintain the defense of adversary possession, to show that the premises in controversy had been enclosed; but if it appears that the property had been assessed for taxation to the defendant, or those under whom he claims, and that he or they had regularly paid the taxes on the property and were the only persons who had exercised control over the property for a period of fifteen years before the bringing of the action, the facts shall be the equivalent of possession by actual enclosure. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 566, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–515 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 999, 31 Stat. 1349).

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Effectiveness of title so secured 2
Limitations 3
In general 1
Occupation by mistake 4
Persons within section 5
Possession by inclosure 6
Presumption that possession followed title 7
Public highway 8
Purpose 9
Recovery against trespasser 10
Tax payments and acts of control 11

1. In general

Defense of adverse possession was established by payment of taxes on lot and collection of rent from one who used it as stoneyard. Holtzman v. Douglas (1897, 18 S. Ct. 65, 168 U.S. 278, 42 L. Ed. 466).

"The evidence on behalf of the defendant made out a clear case of actual, exclusive, continuous, open, and adverse possession of the premises for more than 20 years by her and those under whom she claimed, and had the effect to create in her a good and sufficient title." Briel v. Jordan (27 App. D.C. 202).

2. Effectiveness of title so secured

When title is secured by adverse possession an attempted dedication by the record owner is ineffectual to vest title in the District of Columbia. Rudolph v. Peters (35 App. D.C. 438, Ann. Cas. 1912A, 446).

3. Limitations

This section referred to section 201 of Title 12, and plaintiff could establish title to such lands by adverse possession upon proof of payment of taxes regularly for 15-year period, even though the period did not immediately precede the bringing of the action. Faulks v. Schrider (1940, 114 F. 2d 587, 72 App. D.C. 308).

4. Occupation by mistake

Where one entitled to eight acres of land by mistake takes eleven acres, and occupies the entire tract adversely, such error can not be held to operate against his acquisition by such adverse possession of the three wrongfully occupied acres. Johnson v. Thomas (23 App. D.C. 141, appeal dismissed 25 S. Ct. 797, 197 U.S. 619, 49 L. Ed. 909).

Occupation by grantee, although by mistake, of land beyond boundaries as specified in deed vests in him an indefeasible title if his possession has been actual, open, notorious, exclusive, and adverse for the statutory period. Rudolph v. Peters (35 App. D.C. 438, Ann. Cas. 1912A, 446).

5. Persons within section

Congress, in enacting this section, did not intend to limit the substantive effects of the section to specific procedural situation described, and the section was applicable to plaintiff who claimed land by adverse possession and brought action to obtain payment of a condemnation award which had been made in favor of plaintiff and was deposited in registry of court when defendants asserted title to the condemned land. Faulks v. Schrider (1940, 114 F. 2d 587, 72 App. D.C. 308).

6. Possession by inclosure

Congress, in enacting this section which provided that proof of facts specified should be the equivalent of "possession by actual inclosure", intended to make proof of such facts sufficient for creation of title by adverse possession. Faulks v. Schrider (1940, 114 F. 2d 587, 72 App. D.C. 308).

Under Maryland law, the phrase "possession by inclosure" embraced all possessory elements necessary for adverse possession, and the court would assume that such meaning was carried over to this section, which provided that proof of certain facts should be the equivalent of "possession by inclosure", in view of fact that the provision was drawn with a view to Maryland law. Id.

7. Presumption that possession followed title

Where railroad tracks were on the land, and when plaintiff exhibits a series of deeds purporting to convey the property, the last one to itself, it is to be presumed that possession followed the title until dispossession by the defendant took place. Chesapeake Beach R. Co. v. Washington, P. & C. R. Co. (23 App. D.C. 587 affirmed 26 S. Ct. 25, 199 U.S. 247, 50 L. Ed. 175).

8. Public highway

Quaere: Whether one may acquire title by adverse possession of a portion of a public highway outside of the boundary of the city of Washington. Rudolph v. Peters (35 App. D.C. 438, Ann. Cas. 1912A, 446).

9. Purpose

The purpose of this section was to make proof of facts specified therein, not only the equivalent of possession by actual inclosure, but also of intent to claim adversely. Faulks v. Schrider (1940, 114 F. 2d 587, 72 App. D.C. 308).

This section was not intended as revenue-enforcing measure nor as measure which would make acquisition of title by adverse possession more difficult than it had been previously, and the obvious purpose of the provision was to dispense with necessity for showing that acts of dominion other than assessment and payment of taxes had been continuous throughout the limitation period when no other person had exercised control within it. Id.

This section was intended to modify and not merely to codify the previously existing common law. Id.

10. Recovery against trespasser

One in adverse possession for less than statutory period, and who has never voluntarily relinquished possession, may recover as against a subsequent trespasser. Bradshaw v. Ashley (14 App. D.C. 485 affirmed 21 S. Ct. 297, 180 U.S. 59, 45 L. Ed. 423). See, also, Staffan v. Zeust (10 App. D.C. 260).

11. Tax payments and acts of control

Title to vacant and unimproved land is established by "adverse possession" where claimant shows that for 15 years the land was assessed to him or his predecessors in claim, and that he or they regularly paid the taxes, and exercised other acts of dominion over the property, though not necessarily continuously during the entire period, and that no one else including the legal title holder had done so. Faulks v. Schrider (1940, 114 F. 2d 587, 72 App. D.C. 308).

Proof that plaintiff and his predecessors held vacant and unimproved land openly, notoriously, exclusively, and adversely for statutory period, and during that period paid taxes on the land established title in plaintiff by "adverse possession" without proof that acts of ownership other than assessment to and payment of taxes by the plaintiff and his predecessors were exercised by them continuously during the period prescribed by this section. Id.

§ 16–1114. Verdict—Judgment—Costs—Future actions.

(a) In an action of ejectment, if the plaintiff's title is established by proof, the verdict of the jury shall be generally for the plaintiff as to the whole or part of the property or interest claimed in the complaint, as the case may be. If the plaintiff fails to make satisfactory proof of title, the verdict shall be for the defendant as to the whole or part of the property, as the case may be. The verdict may be for the plaintiff as to part and for the defendant as to other part thereof. Except as provided by this chapter, judgment shall be rendered according to the verdict.

(b) When it appears on the trial that the defendant did not wrongfully enter into possession of the property sued for, or exercise acts of ownership over the same adversely to the plaintiff, the verdict of the jury shall be that the defendant is not guilty. Thereupon, judgment shall be rendered in favor of the defendant against the plaintiff for the costs of the action, but the judgment is not a bar to a future action by the plaintiff against the defendant for the recovery of the property. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 566, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Section consolidates sections 16–516 and 16–517 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed.

The term "complaint" is substituted for "declaration" to conform with rule 7(a) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, and rule 7(a) of the civil rules of the Court of General Sessions.

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. Judgment for part of property

Under this section, plaintiff may recover a less portion than the whole sued for. Robinson v. Hillman (36 App. D.C. 576).

§ 16–1115. Conclusiveness of final judgment.

A final judgment rendered in an action of ejectment is conclusive as to the title thereby established as between the parties to the action and all persons claiming under them since the commencement of the action. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 567, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–518 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1002, 31 Stat. 1349).

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Common law abrogated 1
Final judgment 2
Jurisdiction of municipal court 3

1. Common law abrogated

The section, making any final judgment rendered in action of ejectment conclusive as to title thereby established as between parties to action and all parties claiming under them since commencement of action, was enacted to abrogate doctrine of common law as to inconclusiveness of judgment of ejectment and was not intended to change remedy of injectment from one well defined as possessory in character to one in which title is automatically in issue. Shapiro v. Christopher (1952, 195 F. 2d 785, 90 U.S. App. D.C. 114).

"The doctrine of the common law as to the inconclusiveness of judgments of ejectment has been abrogated in this District" by code section 984 (§ 16–501) and this section. Lyon v. Bursey (36 App. D.C. 235).

2. Final judgment

A judgment in ejectment, appealed from, is a final judgment. Reed v. Allen (1932, 52 S. Ct. 532, 286 U.S. 191, 76 L. Ed. 1054, 81 A.L.R. 703).

3. Jurisdiction of municipal court

Plaintiff's title is not "in issue", in ejectment cases, when it is expressly conceded or not denied, and in such cases municipal court has jurisdiction; but, whenever it becomes apparent in action of ejectment in municipal court that plaintiff's title must be tried and determined, that court should take no further cognizance of cause, but should stop short. Shapiro v. Christopher (1952, 195 F. 2d 785, 90 U.S. App. D.C. 114).

In an action of ejectment, at any time before the trial, the defendant may give notice that if the verdict of the jury is in favor of the plaintiff's title the defendant will claim the benefit of permanent improvements that may have been placed on the property by the defendant or those under whom he claims, and offer evidence at the trial tending to show that he or those under whom he claims had peaceably entered into possession of the premises in controversy under a title which he or they had reason to believe and did believe to be good, and had erected valuable and permanent improvements on the property, which were begun in good faith before the commencement of the action. The court shall then direct the jury, in case they find in favor of the plaintiff's title and also find that the permanent improvements were made by the defendant, or those under whom he claims, under the circumstances described in this section, to assess the:

(1) damages of the plaintiff, being the clear value over and above taxes and necessary expenses of the use and occupation of the property, exclusive of the improvements, during the whole period of the occupation of the property to the date of the verdict, and any damage done to the property, by waste or otherwise, by the parties during the occupation;

(2) present value of any permanent improvements that may have been placed on the premises by the defendant or those under whom he claims;

(3) present value of the property of the plaintiff without and exclusive of the improvements.

(Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 567, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–519 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1003, 31 Stat. 1349; June 30, 1902, ch. 1329, 32 Stat. 538).

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. Occupation in good faith

This section "is limited to those who enter into possession of the premises under a title which they had reason to believe, and did believe, to be good, and erect valuable and permanent improvements in good faith." Robinson v. Hillman (36 App. D.C. 576). See, also, Armstrong v. Ashley (22 App. D.C. 368), holding that grantee of an occupant in good faith can have no better right than his grantor had to an equitable lien for improvements, citing Anderson v. Reid (14 App. D.C. 54) and stating that the rule therein announced "has now, at least to some extent, been modified by the code in section 1003 (this section)."

§ 16–1117. New trial as to assessment.

Either party who feels aggrieved by the assessment provided for by section 16–1116, may, within four days after the verdict, move to set the assessment aside, and the court may, for good cause shown, set the verdict aside and order another jury to be empaneled in the cause to make a new assessment. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 567, Pub. L. 88–567, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–520 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1004, 31 Stat. 1350; June 30, 1902, ch. 1329, 32 Stat. 538).
Minor changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–1118. Judgment for damages in excess of improvements.

When the damages of the plaintiff, assessed as provided by section 16–1116, exceed the value of the permanent improvements as ascertained by the jury, the plaintiff shall be entitled to a judgment for the excess in like manner as directed by section 16–1109. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 567, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–521 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1005, 31 Stat. 1350).
Minor changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–1119. Judgment when improvements and damages are equal.

When the value of the improvements, ascertained as provided by this chapter, equal but do not exceed the plaintiff's damages, as found by the jury, the plaintiff shall be entitled to judgment only for the recovery of the property sued for and costs. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 567, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–522 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1006, 31 Stat. 1350).
Minor changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–1120. Election of plaintiff if value of improvements exceeds damages.

If the value of the improvements referred to in this chapter is found by the jury to exceed the damages of the plaintiff, the plaintiff may elect either to pay to the defendant the amount of the excess or to demand of the defendant the value of the plaintiff's property, without the improvements, as fixed by the jury, and tender to the defendant a deed for the property, with all the plaintiff's right, title, and interest therein. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 567, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–1121. Judgment and writ of possession after payment for improvements.

When the plaintiff pays to the defendant, within the time fixed therefor by the court, or, in case of the defendant's refusal to accept the payment, pays into court for the defendant's use the amount of the excess of the value of the improvements over the damages of the plaintiff, the plaintiff shall be entitled forthwith to a judgment and writ of possession. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 568, Pub. L. 88–241, §1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–524 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1008, 31 Stat. 1350).
Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–1122. Judgment and writ of possession after tender of deed and defendant's refusal to pay.

If the plaintiff tenders to the defendant a deed as provided by section 16–1120 and demands the value of his property without the improvements, as found by the jury, and the defendant fails or refuses to pay the value within the time fixed therefor by the court, the plaintiff shall, in like manner, be entitled to a judgment and writ of possession; and if the plaintiff is a minor, the court may authorize the deed to be executed by his guardian. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 568, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–525 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1009, 31 Stat. 1350).
Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–1123. Judgment for defendant after plaintiff's refusal to pay excess or tender deed.

If the plaintiff fails or refuses either to pay the defendant the excess of the value of the improvements over the amount of the plaintiff's damages, or, as provided by the chapter, to tender a deed to the defendant and accept from him the value of the plaintiff's property, exclusive of the improvements, the defendant may pay the value into court for the use of the plaintiff. Thereupon, the defendant shall be entitled to a judgment in his favor, but without costs, which judgment shall be a bar to any future action by the plaintiff against the defendant to recover the property for cause theretofore existing. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 568, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–526 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1010, 31 Stat. 1350).
Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–1124. Ejectment for non-payment of rent—Time limitation on relief from judgment—Set-off—Dismissal upon payment.

(a) In a case between landlord and tenant, where one-half year's rent or more is in arrear and unpaid, and the landlord or lessor to whom the rent is due has the right by law, in default of a sufficiency of goods and chattels whereon to distrain for the satisfaction of the rent due, to re-enter for non-payment of the rent, he may, without any formal demand or re-entry, commence a civil action in ejectment for the recovery of the demised premises.

(b) When a judgment is given for the plaintiff in an action pursuant to this section, and execution is had on the judgment, before the rent in arrear and costs of suit are paid, the lease of the property shall cease and be determined, unless the judgment is reversed on appeal or certiorari or, within six months after execution on the judgment, the defendant or a person who has succeeded to his interest, or a mortgagee of the lease or of any party thereof who was not in possession when final judgment was rendered, applies to the court for an order granting equitable relief from the judgment, which is subsequently granted.

(c) When possession of the property recovered has been delivered to the plaintiff under execution issued upon a judgment in an action pursuant to this section, and, in connection with the application for equitable relief from the judgment, the defendant or other person referred to in subsection (b) of this section, has, prior to or at the time of his application, paid or tendered to the plaintiff or his legal representative or successor in interest, or paid into court for the use of the person entitled thereto, the amount of rent in arrear, as stated in the judgment and costs of suit and all damages sustained by the plaintiff, the order for restoration of possession of the property to the person who made the payment shall provide for setting off the sum that the plaintiff has made, or that he might, without fraud, deceit, or willful neglect, have made, of the property, during his possession, against the rent accruing after the judgment was rendered, and for reimbursement to the applicant of the balance, if any, of the sum paid into court by him, after making the set-off prescribed by this subsection.

(d) At any time before the trial of an action pursuant to this section, the defendant may pay or tender to the plaintiff, or pay into court, the amount of all the rent then in arrear, and costs of suit. Thereupon, the action shall be dismissed. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 568, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §§ 16–532, 16–533, 16–534 (4 Geo. 2, ch. 28, §§ 2, 3, 4, 1731; Kilty's Rept., p. 249; Alex. Br. Stat., pp. 705–707; Comp. Stat. D.C., pp. 326–328, §§ 46, 47, 48).

Section consolidates sections 16–532, 16–533, and 16–534 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed.

The three sections of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., cited above, were derived, as above indicated, from three sections of a British statute of the year 1731, and the text thereof is set out immediately below exactly as it appeared in D.C. Code, 1961 ed.

Sec. 16–532 (4 Geo. 2, ch. 28, § 2)

"In case the lessee or lessees, his, her, or their assignee or assignees, or other person or persons claiming or deriving under the said leases, shall permit and suffer judgment to be had and recovered on ejectment, and execution to be executed thereon, without paying the rent and arrears, together with full costs and without filing any bill or bills for relief in equity, within six calendar months after such execution executed; then, and in such case, the said lessee or lessees, his, her, or their assignee or assignees, and all other persons claiming and deriving under the said lease, shall be barred and foreclosed from all relief or remedy in law or equity, and the said landlord or lessor shall from thenceforth hold the said demised premises discharged from such lease; and if on such ejectment verdict shall pass for the defendant or defendants, or the plaintiff or plaintiffs shall be nonsuited therein, then in every such case such defendant or defendants shall have and recover his, her, and their full costs: provided always, that nothing herein contained shall extend to bar the right of any mortgagee or mortgagees of such lease, or any part thereof, who shall not be in possession, so as such mortgagee or mortgagees shall and do, within six calendar months after such judgment obtained, and execution executed, pay all rent in arrear, and all costs and damages sustained by such lessor, person or persons entitled to the remainder or reversion, as aforesaid, and perform all the covenants and agreements, which on the part and behalf of the first lessee or lessees are and ought to be performed.".

Sec. 16–533 (4 Geo. 2, ch. 28, § 3)

"In case the said lessee or lessees, his, her, or their assignee or assignees, or other person or persons, claiming any right, title, or interest, in law or equity, of, in, or to the said lease, shall, within the time aforesaid, file one or more bill or bills, for relief in any court of equity. such person or persons shall not have or continue any injunction, against the proceedings at law on such ejectment, unless he, she, or they do or shall within forty days next after a full and perfect answer shall be filed by the lessor or lessors of the plaintiff in such ejectment, bring into court, and lodge with the proper officer such sum and sums of money, as the lessor, or lessors of the plaintiff in the said ejectment shall, in his, her, or their answer, swear to be due and in arrear, over and above all just allowances, and also the costs taxed in the said suit, there to remain till the hearing of the cause, or to be paid out to the lessor or landlord, on good security, subject to the decree of the court; and in case such bill or bills shall be filed within the time aforesaid, and after execution is executed, the lessor or lessors of the plaintiff shall be accountable only for so much, and no more, as he, she, or they shall really and bona fide, without fraud, deceit, or wilful neglect, make of the demised premises, from the time of his, her, or their entering into the actual possession thereof, and if what shall be so made by the lessor or lessors of the plaintiff, happen to be less than the rent reserved in the said lease, then the said lessee, or lessees, his, her, or their assignee or assignees, before he, she, or they shall be restored to his, her, or their possession or possessions, shall pay such lessor or lessors or landlord or landlords, what the money so by them made, fell short of the reserved rent, for the time such lessor or lessors of the plaintiff, landlord or landlords, held the said lands.".

Sec. 16–534 (4 Geo. 2, ch. 28, § 4)

"If the tenant or tenants, his, her, or their assignee or assignees, do or shall, at any time before the trial in such ejectment, pay or tender to the lessor or landlord, his executors or administrators, or his, her, or their attorney in that cause, or pay into the court where the same cause is depending, all the rent and arrears, together with the costs, then, and in such case, all further proceedings on the said ejectment shall cease, and be discontinued; and if such lessee or lessees, his, her, or their executors, administrators, or assigns, shall, upon such bill filed as aforesaid, be relieved in equity, he, she, and they, shall have, hold, and enjoy the demised lands, according to the lease thereof made, without any new lease to be thereof made to him, her, or them.".

A study of these provisions reveals that not all of section 2 of the British statute was carried into section 16–532 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., and, if the provisions are to be preserved, apparently they are meaningless unless enough of the missing part is restored to the text to indicate the basis of the action by the landlord or lessor. This missing part of section 2 of the British statute, which was the beginning thereof, and which was also contained in the above-cited section 46 of Comp. Stat. D.C., p. 326, provided:

"And whereas great inconveniences do frequently happen to lessors and landlords, in cases of re-entry for nonpayment of rent, by reason of the many niceties that attend re-entries at common law; and forasmuch as when a legal re-entry is made, the landlord or lessor must be at the expense, charge, and delay of recovering in ejectment, before he can obtain the actual possession of the demised premises; and it often happens that after such a re-entry made, the lessee or his assignee, upon one or more bills filed in the court of equity, not only holds out the lessor or landlord, by an injunction, from recovering the possession, but likewise, pending the said suit, do run much more in arrear, without giving any security for the rents due, when the said re-entry was made, or which shall and do afterwards incur: For remedy whereof:

"Be it enacted, That in all cases between landlord and tenant, as often as it shall happen that one half year's rent shall be in arrear, and the landlord or lessor, to whom the same is due, hath right by law to re-enter for the nonpayment thereof, such landlord or lessor shall and may, without any formal demand or re-entry, serve a declaration in ejectment for the recovery of the demised premises, or in case the same cannot be legally served, or no tenant be in actual possession of the premises, then to affix the same upon the door of any demised messuage, or in case such ejectment shall not be for the recovery of any messuage, then upon some notorious place of the lands, tenements, or hereditaments, comprised in such declaration in ejectment, and such affixing shall be deemed legal service thereof, which service, or affixing such declaration in ejectment, shall stand in the place and stead of a demand and re-entry; and in case of judgment against the casual ejector, or nonsuit for not confessing lease, entry, and ouster, it shall be made to appear to the court where the said suit is depending, by affidavit, or be proved upon the trial, in case the defendant appears, that half a year's rent was due before the said declaration was served, and that no sufficient distress was to be found on the demised premises, countervailing the arrears then due, and that the lessor or lessors in ejectment had power to re-enter; then, and in every such case, the lessor or lessors in ejectment shall recover judgment and execution, in the same manner as if the rent in arrear had been legally demanded, and a re-entry made; and [here commence the provisions set in section 16–532 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed.]".

The above-quoted provisions, including those contained in the missing part of section 2 of the British statute, are, in modified and modernized form, statutory law in other jurisdictions. See New York Civil Practice Act, § 997 et seq., and Ill. Rev. Stat. 1955, ch. 80, § 4.

In this revised section, the provisions, including those contained in the missing part of section 2 of the British statute, are consolidated. The language is modernized, and surplusage is omitted. Also omitted, are all provisions which are obsolete, or which can have no present application because of the merger, by the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and the procedural Rules of the Court of General Sessions, of procedure in law and equity, and because there are no separate courts of equity in the District. Both the District Court and the Court of General Sessions have equitable as well as legal jurisdiction, and presumably whatever equitable relief is granted the defendant lessee or other persons mentioned under subsecs. (b) and (c) of this revised section, would be by application to the same court that had rendered judgment in favor of the plaintiff. Subsec. (b) provides for such an application (for an order), and all references to restoration of the property to the lessee, or to an injunction to stay the plaintiff's proceedings, by a separate "court of equity", are omitted.

Another provision of section 2 of the British statute, that was within the provisions carried into section 16–532 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., but that was omitted from the latter section, followed the words (with respect to the defendant) "shall be barred and foreclosed from all relief or remedy in law or equity,", and read "other than by writ of error, for reversal of such judgment, in case the same shall be erroneous,". In subsec. (b) of this revised section, "appeal or certiorari" is substituted for "writ of error" in conformity with present procedure.

The provision in section 16–532 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., for awarding costs to the defendant if "verdict shall pass" for him, or if plaintiff is nonsuited, is omitted, as this is a matter that is subject to rules of court. See rules 41 and 54(d) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, and of the civil rules of the Court of General Sessions.

It is not intended that this section should confer upon the tenant or other person mentioned in subsec. (b), an absolute right, after execution on the plaintiff's judgment in ejectment, to have possession of the property restored to him if, within 6 months after the execution, he makes the payment or tender referred to in subsec. (c) and applies for an order granting relief from the judgment. Nor was this the purpose of the British statute. Prior to its enactment, where the ejectments after judgments in common-law courts were merely because of nonpayment of rent, courts of equity had been restoring tenants to possession on payment of arrears and interest. To such an extent had this practice been carried, that, in the British statute, the power of Equity to relieve, if it so wished in such cases, was restricted to a period of 6 months after the landlord had recovered the premises in ejectment. This is the object of subsecs. (b) and (c) of this section.

SUBCHAPTER II.—PROCEEDINGS TO DISCOVER THE DEATH OF A TENANT FOR LIFE

§ 16–1151. Petition by person entitled to claim—Form and contents.

(a) A person entitled to claim real property, after the death of another person who has a prior estate therein, may, not oftener than once a year, petition the court for an order directing the production of the tenant for life, as prescribed by this subchapter, by a person, named in the petition, against whom a civil action in ejectment to recover the real property can be maintained if the tenant for life is dead, or, if there is no such person, by the guardian, trustee, or other person who has, or is entitled to, the custody of the person of the tenant for life, or the care of his estate.

(b) A petition prescribed by subsection (a) of this section shall be verified by the affidavit of the petitioner, and shall contain an averment that the petitioner has cause to believe that the person, upon whose life the prior estate depends, is dead, and that his or her death is being concealed by the person named in the petition. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 569, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–527 (6 Ann, ch. 18, § 1, 1707; Kilty's Rept., p. 247; Alex. Br. Stat., p. 675; Comp. Stat. D.C., p. 356, § 6).

This section and sections 16–1152 and 16–1153 herein are based upon different parts of section 16–527 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., cited above, which, as indicated above, was derived from a British statute of 1707, and which provided, as follows:

"Any person or persons who hath or shall have any claim or demand in or to any remainder, reversion or expectancy or in to any estate, after the death of any person within age, married woman, or any other person whatsoever, upon affidavit made in the court of chancery, by the person so claiming such estate, of his or her title, and that he or she hath cause to believe that such minor, married woman, or other person is dead, and that his or her death is concealed by such guardian, trustee, husband, or any other person, shall and may once a year, if the person aggrieved shall think fit, move the chancellor to order, and they are hereby authorized and required to order such guardian, trustee, husband, or other person, concealing or suspected to conceal such person, at such time and place as the said court shall direct, on personal or other due service of such order, to produce and shew to such person and persons (not exceeding two) as shall in such order be named by the party or parties prosecuting such order, such minor, married woman, or other persons, aforesaid; and if such guardian, trustee, husband, or such other person, as aforesaid, shall refuse or neglect to produce or shew such infant, married woman, or such other person, on whose life any such estate doth depend, according to the directions of the said order, that then the court of chancery is hereby authorized and required to order such guardian, trustee, husband, or other person, to produce such minor, married woman, or other person concealed, in the said court of chancery, or otherwise, before commissioners to be appointed by the said court, at such time and place as the court shall direct, two of which commissioners shall be nominated by the party or parties prosecuting such order, at his, her or their costs and charges; and in case such guardian, trustee, husband, or other person, shall refuse or neglect to produce such infant, married woman, or other person so concealed, in the court of chancery, or before such commissioners, whereof return shall be made by such commissioners, and that return filed, in either or any of the said cases, the said minor, married woman, or such other person so concealed, shall be taken to be dead, and it shall be lawful for any person claiming any right, title or interest in remainder or reversion, or otherwise after the death of such infant, married woman, or such other person so concealed, as aforesaid, to enter upon such lands, tenements and hereditaments, as if such infant, married woman, or other person, so concealed were actually dead."

In this section and sections 16–1152 and 16–1153 herein, and in sections 16–1154 to 16–1158, inclusive, herein, which are from other provisions of the same British statute, the language is modernized and every effort is made to conform the provisions with present practice under rules of court, and to simplify the meanings and implications of the older provisions, even to the extent of inserting material technically not contained in those sections (but implied therein), but without change of substance. The revised provisions are patterned to some extent upon some of the provisions of New York Real Property Law, § 570 et seq., that apparently were derived from the same original source.

In this section, "petition" is substituted for "affidavit", but subsec. (b) provides that the petition shall be verified by affidavit of the petitioner. It would seem that this would be in conformity with present practice, and yet would meet the requirements of the older law. Rule 7(a) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, and rule 7(a) of the civil rules of the Court of General Sessions, provide, among other things that in ordinary civil actions (see rules 2, respectively, thereof) there shall be a "complaint". However, even under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, the term "petition" is used in connection with certain special proceedings. See, for example, rule 27 thereof, regarding the perpetuation of testimony. As the proceeding provided for herein is special in nature, resulting, not in a judgment, but in a court order, it is considered that "petition", rather than "complaint", is the proper term.

Words in this section, "by a person named in the petition, against whom a civil action in ejectment to recover the real property can be maintained if the tenant for life is dead", were not contained in section 11–527 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., but they place no limitation on the proceeding which does not exist at present, and they are inserted for the purpose of clarification.

Throughout sections 16–1151 to 16–1158 herein, "court" is substituted for "court of chancery", as the latter is an obsolete term. Both the United States District Court for the District of Columbia, and the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions, have both law and equity jurisdiction, and law and equity procedure were merged by the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, and the civil rules of the Court of General Sessions.

§ 16–1152. Order to produce life tenant—Service of order.

Upon the presentation of the petition and affidavit prescribed by section 16–1151, the court shall issue an order to the person named in the petition to produce and show to the persons named in the order by the petitioner not exceeding two in number, at such time and place as the court directs, the person upon whose life the prior estate depends. A certified copy of the order shall be served upon the person required to produce the tenant for life in the manner provided by applicable rules of court. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 569, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on the D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–527 (6 Ann, ch. 18, § 1, 1707; Kilty's Rept., p. 247; Alex. Br. Stat., p. 675; Comp. Stat. D.C., p. 356, § 6).

This section and sections 16–1151 and 16–1153 herein are based upon different parts of section 16–527 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., cited above, which, as indicated above, was derived from a British statute of 1707. For the complete text of section 11–527, see revision note under section 16–1151 herein, and see that note also for explanation of the policy followed in restating the provisions carried into sections 16–1151 to 16–1158, inclusive, herein.

Section 16–527 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., provided merely for "personal or other due services" of the order referred to. For the purpose of clarification, and to conform with applicable rules of court, this revised section provides that a certified copy of the order shall be served upon the person required to produce the tenant for life in the manner provided by applicable rules of court. See rules 4 and 5, respectively, of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, and the same numbered rules of the civil rules of the Court of General Sessions.

(a) If a person upon whom an order, as prescribed by section 16–1152, is served, refuses or neglects to produce the person upon whose life the prior estate depends in the manner provided by the order, the court shall order him to produce the person in court or before commissioners appointed by the court, at such time and place as the court directs. Two of the commissioners shall be nominated by the petitioner, and they shall serve at his expense. A certified copy of the order shall be served upon the person required to produce the tenant for life in the manner provided by applicable rules of court. The commissioners appointed shall make and file with the court a return showing the results of their investigation and their conclusions.

(b) If the person upon whom the second order prescribed by subsection (a) of this section is served refuses or neglects to produce, in court, or before the commissioners, as the case may be, the person upon whose life the prior estate depends, it shall be presumed that the latter person is dead, and the court shall issue an order permitting the petitioner to take possession of the property, as if that person were actually dead. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 569, Pub L. 88–241, § 1.)

This section and sections 16–1151 and 16–1152 herein are based upon different parts of section 16–527 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., cited above, which, as indicated above, was derived from a British statute of 1707. For the complete text of section 11–527, see revision note under section 16–1151 herein, and see that note also for explanation of the policy followed in restating the provisions carried into sections 16–1151 to 16–1158, inclusive, herein.

Section 16–527 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., provided for service of the order referred to in section 16–1152 herein, but was silent with respect to service of the second order, that is, the order referred to in subsec. (a) of this section. Obviously, however, the second order would have to be served, and subsec. (a) of this section, in providing for such service, provides that a certified copy of it shall be served in the manner provided by rules of court. See revision note under section 16–1152.

Further, while section 16–527 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., provided that if the life tenant was not produced, as required, it would be "lawful" for the petitioner to enter upon the property claimed, it did not provide for entry after order of court. It would seem that such an order would be a prerequisite to the entry, and, for the purpose of clarification, subsec. (b) of this revised section provides for it.

If before, or at the time of, the presentation of the commissioners' return provided for by section 16–1153, or, where commissioners are not appointed, at any time before a final order is made, the party upon whom the first or second order is served presents to the court presumptive proof, by affidavit, that the person, whose death was in question, is, or lately was, at a place certain, without the District of Columbia, the petitioner, at his own expense, may send one or both of the persons named in the first order to view him. If the person concealing or suspected of concealing the person upon whose life the prior estate depends, or the fact of his death, refuses or neglects to produce him or to procure him to be produced to the personal view of the persons sent for that purpose, the persons sent to view him shall make a true return of the refusal or neglect to the court, and the return shall be filed in the court. Thereupon, it shall be presumed that the tenant for life is dead, and the court shall issue an order permitting the petitioner to take possession of the real property, as if that person were actually dead. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 570, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–528 (6 Ann, ch. 18, § 2, 1707; Kilty's Rept., p. 247; Alex. Br. Stat., p. 675; Comp. Stat. D.C., p. 356, § 7).

As indicated above, section 16–528 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., on which this section is based, was derived from a British statute of 1707. Section 16–528 provided, as follows:

"If it shall appear to the said court by affidavit, that such minor, married woman, or other persons, mentioned in section 16–527, for whose life such estate is holden, is, or lately was at some certain place beyond the seas in the said affidavit to be mentioned, it shall and may be lawful for the party or parties prosecuting such order, as aforesaid, at his, her, or their costs and charges, to send over one or both the said persons appointed by the said order, to view such minor, married woman, or other person, for whose life any such estate is holden; and in case such guardian, trustee, husband or other person concealing or suspected to conceal such persons, as aforesaid, shall refuse or neglect to produce or procure to be produced to such person or persons, a personal view of such infant, married woman, or other person, for whose life any such estate is holden, that then and in such case such person or persons are hereby required to make a true return of such refusal or neglect to the court of chancery, which return shall be filed, and thereupon such minor, married woman, or other person, for whose life any such estate is holden, shall be taken to be dead; and it shall be lawful for any person claiming any right, title or interest, in remainder, reversion or otherwise, after the death of such infant, married woman, or other person, for whose life any such estate is holden, to enter upon such lands, tenements and hereditaments, as if such infant, married woman, or other person, for whose life any such estate is holden, were actually dead".

For explanation of the policy followed in restating the provisions carried into this section and sections 16–1151 to 16–1153 and 16–1155 to 16–1158 herein, all of which are from provisions of the same British statute, see revision note under section 16–1151 herein.

While the provisions, as set out in this section, are completely rewritten, they do not make any change in substance, although, to clarify the provisions, words "without the District of Columbia" are substituted for "beyond the seas".

§ 16–1155. Restoration of property to life tenant.

The possession of real property that has been awarded to a petitioner pursuant to this subchapter, upon the presumption of the death of the person upon whose life the prior estate depends, shall be restored, by an order of the court, to the person evicted, or to his heirs, or legal representatives, upon the petition of the latter, and proof, to the satisfaction of the court, that the person presumed to be dead is living. The proceedings upon such a petition are the same as those prescribed by this subchapter to be followed upon the petition of the person to whom possession is awarded. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 570, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

This section and section 16–1156 herein are based upon different parts of section 16–529 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., cited above, which, as indicated above, was derived from a British statute of 1707, and which provided, as follows:

"If it shall afterwards appear upon proof, in any action to be brought pursuant to sections 16–527, 16–528, that such infant, married woman, or other person, for whose life any such estate is holden, were alive at the time of such order made, then it shall be lawful for such infant, married woman, guardian or trustee, or other person having any estate or interest, determinable upon such life, to reenter upon the said lands, tenements or hereditaments, and for such infant, married woman, or other person, having any estate or interest determinable upon such life. their executors, administrators or assigns, to maintain an action against those who, since the said order, received the profits of such lands, tenements or hereditaments, or their executors or administrators, and therein to recover full damages for the profits of the same received, from the time that such infant, married woman, or other person, having any estate or interest determinable upon such life, were ousted of the possession of such lands, tenements or hereditaments".

For explanation of the policy followed in restating the provisions carried into sections 16–1151 to 16–1158, inclusive, herein, all of which are based upon different provisions of the same British statute, see revision note under section 16–1151 herein.

Section 16–529 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., as indicated above, in providing for restoration of the property to the life tenant upon proof that the person presumed to be dead was still living, provided merely that it would be "lawful" for the person evicted to re-enter on the property. Presumably, however, an order of court would be a prerequisite to reentry, and the provisions, as herein revised, so provide.

The provisions, as herein set out, are completely rewritten, but they do not make any change in substance.

§ 16–1156. Recovery of profits by person evicted.

A person evicted, as prescribed by this subchapter, may, when the presumption upon which he is evicted is erroneous, maintain a civil action against the person who has occupied the property, or his executor or administrator, to recover the full profits of the property during the occupation, while the person, upon whose life the prior estate depends, is or was living. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 570, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–529 (6 Ann, ch. 18, § 3, 1707; Kilty's Rept., p. 247; Alex. Br. Stat., p. 676; Comp. Stat. D.C., p. 357, § 8).

This section and section 16–1155 herein are based upon different parts of section 16–529 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., cited above, which, as indicated above, was derived from a British statute of 1707. For the complete text of section 16–529, see revision note under section 16–1155 herein, and for explanation of the policy followed in restating the provisions carried into sections 16–1151 to 16–1158, inclusive, herein, all of which are based upon different provisions of the same British statute, see revision note under section 16–1151 herein.

The provisions, as set out herein, are completely rewritten, but they do not make any change in substance.

§ 16–1157. Preservation of life tenants' rights if living at time of return.

When a guardian, trustee, or other person holding an estate or interest determinable upon the life of another person, shows by affidavit or otherwise, to the satisfaction of the court, that:

(1) he has used his utmost efforts to procure the tenant for life to appear in the court or elsewhere, according to the order of the court;

(2) he can not procure or compel him so to appear; and

(3) the tenant for life is or was living at the time of the return made and filed, as prescribed by this subchapter—

he may continue in the possession of the estate, and receive the rents and profits for and during the infancy of the infant, or for and during the life of any other person on whose life the estate or interest depends. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 570, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–530 (6 Ann, ch. 18, § 4, 1707; Kilty's Rept., p. 247; Alex. Br. Stat., p. 677; Comp. Stat. D.C., p. 357, § 9).

As indicated above, section 16–530 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., on which this section is based, was derived from a British statute of 1707. Section 16–530 provided, as follows:

"If any such guardian, trustee, husband or other person or persons, holding or having any estate or interest, determinable upon the life or lives of any other person or persons, shall by affidavit or otherwise, to the satisfaction of the said court of chancery, make appear, that he, she or they have used his, her, or their utmost endeavours to procure such infant, married woman, or other person or persons, on whose life or lives such estate or interest doth depend, to appear in the said court of chancery, or elsewhere, according to the order of the said court in that behalf made; and that he, she or they can not procure or compel such infant, married woman, or other person or persons so to appear, and that such infant, married woman, or other person or persons, on whose life or lives such estate or interest doth depend, is, are or were living at the time of such return made and filed, as aforesaid, then it shall be lawful for such person or persons to continue in the possession of such estate, and receive the rents and profits thereof for and during the infancy of such infant, and the life or lives of such married woman, or other person or persons, on whose life or lives such estate or interest doth or shall depend".

For explanation of the policy followed in restating the provisions carried into sections 16–1151 to 16–1158, inclusive, herein, all of which are based upon different provisions of the same British statute, see revision note under section 16–1151 herein.

The provisions, as set out herein, are rewritten, but they do not make any change in substance.

§ 16–1158. Persons holding over after life estate—Damages.

A guardian or trustee for an infant, or other person having an estate determinable upon life or lives, who, after the determination of the particular estate or interest, without the express consent of the person or persons who is or are next and immediately entitled thereto, holds over and continues in possession of the real property, is a trespasser. Any person entitled to the real property upon or after the determination of the particular estate or interest, or his executor or administrator, may recover in damages against the person so holding over, or his executor or administrator, the full value of the profits received during the wrongful possession. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 571, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–531 (6 Ann, ch. 18, § 5, 1707; Kilty's Rept., p. 247; Alex. Br. Stat., p. 677; Comp. Stat. D.C., p. 357, § 10).

As indicated above, section 16–531 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., on which this section is based, was derived from a British statute of 1707. Section 16–531 provided, as follows:

"Every person who, as guardian or trustee for any infant, and every husband seized in right of his wife only, and every other person having any estate determinable upon any life or lives, who after the determination of such particular estates or interests, without the express consent of him, her or them, who are or shall be next, and immediately entitled, upon and after the determination of such particular estates or interests, shall hold over and continue in possession of any manors, messuages, lands, tenements or hereditaments, shall be and are hereby adjudged to be trespassers; and every person and persons, his, her and their executors and administrators, who are or shall be entitled to any such manors, messuages, lands, tenements and hereditaments, upon or after the determination of such particular estates or interests, shall and may recover in damages against every such person or persons so holding over, as aforesaid, and against his, her or their executors or administrators, the full value of the profits received during such wrongful possession, as aforesaid".

For explanation of the policy followed in restating the provisions carried into sections 16–1151 to 16–1158, inclusive, herein, all of which are based upon different provisions of the same British statute, see revision note under section 16–1151 herein.

The provisions, as set out herein, are rewritten, but they do not make any change in substance.

SUBCHAPTER I.—GENERAL PROVISIONS

§ 16–1301. Jurisdiction of District Court.

The United States District Court for the District of Columbia has jurisdiction of all proceedings for the condemnation of real property authorized by this chapter, with full power to hear and determine all issues of law and fact that may arise in the proceedings. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 572, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §§ 16–601, 16–615, 16–616, 16–619 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 483, 31 Stat. 1265; Mar. 1, 1929, ch. 416, § 1, 45 Stat. 1415; Mar. 1, 1929, ch. 439, 45 Stat. 1437; Apr. 11, 1935, ch. 57, §§ 4, 5, 59 Stat. 153; June 25, 1936, ch. 804, 49 Stat. 1921; June 25, 1948, ch. 646, § 32(b), 62 Stat. 991; May 24, 1949, ch. 139, § 127, 63 Stat. 107).

Sections 16–601, 16–615, and 16–616 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., did not contain jurisdictional language, but section 16–601, which is carried into section 16–1311 herein, provided that the condemnation proceedings referred to therein should be brought in the District Court; section 16–615, which is carried into section 16–1336 herein, provided that the condemnation proceedings referred to therein should be in accordance with section 16–601 et seq.; and section 16–616, which is carried into section 16–1337 herein, provided that the condemnation proceedings referred to therein should be in accordance with section 16–619 et seq.

Only the jursidictional provisions of section 16–619 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., are carried into this section. The remainder of section 16–619 is carried into section 16–1351 and 16–1352 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–1302. Assignment of judge for condemnation cases.

The chief judge of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia shall assign from time to time, and for such periods as he determines, one of the judges of the court to hear cases involving the condemnation of real property in the District of Columbia. In case of the disability of the judge so assigned, or for any other reason, the chief judge may assign any judge of the Court for service in condemnation cases. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 572, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–301 (Mar. 3, 1863, ch. 91, § 1, 12 Stat. 762; Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 60, 31 Stat. 1199; Dec. 20, 1928, ch. 41, 45 Stat. 1056; June 19, 1930, ch. 537, 46 Stat. 785; June 25, 1936, ch. 804, 49 Stat. 1921; May 31, 1938, ch. 290, § 5, 52 Stat. 584; June 25, 1948, ch. 646, §§ 24, 32(b), 62 Stat. 990, 991; May 24, 1949, ch. 139, § 127, 63 Stat. 107).

The provision that only when the judge assigned to condemnation cases is "not engaged in such cases" shall he be subject to assignment to the other business of the court is omitted. It is the practice to assign one of the civil nonjury judges to hear condemnation proceedings, and the judge so assigned gives priority to condemnation proceedings over other cases. Ordinarily, however, condemnation proceedings are not sufficient to take the entire time of a judge, and to require him to do no other work while assigned to condemnation proceedings is wasteful and inefficient. This is a matter of internal administration and should not be governed by statute.

SUBBCHAPTER II.—REAL PROPERTY FOR DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

§ 16–1311. Condemnation proceedings by Board of Commissioners.

When real property in the District of Columbia is needed by the Board of Commissioners of the District for sites of schoolhouses, fire or police stations, or for a right of way for sewers, or for any other municipal use authorized by Congress, and it can not be acquired by purchase from the owners thereof at a price satisfactory to the officers of the District authorized to negotiate for the property, a complaint may be filed in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia in the name of the Board for the condemnation of the property or right of way and the ascertainment of its value. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 572, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–601 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 483, 31 Stat. 1265; Mar. 1, 1929, ch. 439, 45 Stat. 1437; June 25, 1936, ch. 804, 49 Stat. 1921; June 25, 1948, ch. 646, § 32(b), 62 Stat. 991; May 24, 1939, ch. 139, § 127, 63 Stat. 107).

The term "complaint" is substituted for "petition" to conform with the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. See, particularly, rules 7(a) and 71A(c) thereof.

1. Abandonment of proceedings

The Commissioners have the right to discontinue and abandon a condemnation proceeding; and such abandonment need not be in toto, but may be in parte. Johnson & Wimsatt v. Reichelderfer (1933, 66 F. 2d 217, 62 App. D.C. 237).

2. Appropriation not made

The fact that Congress has made no appropriation for payment of the land condemned at the time condemnation proceedings are instituted is no defense. MacFarland v. Elverson (32 App. D.C. 81).

3. Commissioners

Commissioners of the District have no power to acquire land by condemnation, except by express authority of Congress. Dougherty v. Galliher (1928, 26 F. 2d 538, 58 App. D.C. 166).

Where power to condemn property for public use has been conferred on municipal offices, it rests with such officers to determine whether it shall be exercised and when and to what extent it shall be exercised, and so long as they do not abuse the power delegated to them, courts are powerless to inquire into motives which actuate them or the propriety of the contemplated improvement. O'Hara v. District of Columbia (1945, 147 F. 2d 146, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 302, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1183, 325 U.S. 855, 89 L. Ed. 1975).

4. Construction

The words "authorized by Congress" limit only the preceding phrase "or for other municipal purposes," and have no reference to the preceding phrases. MacFarland v. Elverson (32 App. D.C. 81).

This statute must be strictly construed; if doubt exists as to authority of commissioners to condemn it must be resolved in favor of the landowner. Id.

5. Discretion of municipal officers

An appellate court will not interfere with the report of Commissioners to correct the amount of damages, except in cases of gross error, showing prejudice or corruption. Hence, for an error in the judgment of Commissioners in arriving at the amount of damages there can be no correction, especially where the evidence is conflicting. Seufferle v. Macfarland (28 App. D.C. 94).

When power of condemnation is vested in municipal officers "it rests with such officers to determine whether it shall be exercised, and when and to what extent it shall be exercised." MacFarland v. Elverson (32 App. D.C. 81).

6. Fee simple estate

Where land is condemned for school purposes, in absence of special circumstances, it would be reasonable to presume that no estate less than obsolete title is sufficient. O'Hara v. District of Columbia (1945, 147 F. 2d 146, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 302, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1183, 325 U.S. 855, 89 L. Ed. 1975).

7. High school athletic field

Land to be condemned for high school athletic field is to be used for "educational" purposes within the meaning of the zoning regulations, and such field may be located in a residential district. Commissioners of District of Columbia v. Shannon & Luchs Constr. Co. (1927, 17 F. 2d 219, 57 App. D.C. 67).

Appropriation for school athletic field authorizes condemnation proceedings by District. Id.

8. Historical

On Mar. 1, 1929, Congress changed the method of procedure in condemnation cases in the District of Columbia and different methods were provided for the United States (§§ 16–601 to 16–619). Willis v. United States (1938, 99 F. 2d 362, 69 App. D.C. 129).

9. Petitions, sufficiency of

Where District of Columbia's petition in condemnation proceeding alleged that land was necessary for purpose of acquiring a site for school purposes, error, if any, in failure to declare that fee simple estate was being condemned could not be raised by collateral attack on order of condemnation, in absence of record affirmatively showing that a lesser estate than a fee simple would have served the public purpose for which the land was sought. O'Hara v. District of Columbia (1945, 147 F. 2d 146, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 302, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1183, 325 U.S. 855, 89 L. Ed. 1975).

10. School sites

To condemn land for school sites, district assessor may not testify as expert witness. Johnson & Wimsatt v. Reichelderfer (1931, 50 F. 2d 336, 60 App. D.C. 186).

11. Widening street

Under the provisions of this section, condemnation proceedings may be instituted for widening any street. Nealy v. Hazen (1934, 71 F. 2d 692, 63 App. D.C. 239, certiorari denied 55 S. Ct. 119, 293 U.S. 602, 79 L. Ed. 694).

§ 16–1312. Jury—Special list—Qualifications—Procedure for drawing.

(a) For the purposes of this subchapter, the jury commission shall:

(1) prepare a special list of persons who have the qualifications of jurors, as prescribed by section 11–2301, and who, in addition, are owners of real property in the District;

(2) from time to time, as may be necessary, write the names contained in the special list on separate and similar pieces of paper, which shall be so folded or rolled that the names can not be seen, and place them in a special box to be provided for the purpose;

(3) thereupon, seal and lock the special box, and, after thoroughly shaking the box, deliver it to the clerk of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia for safekeeping.

The box may not be unsealed or opened except by the jury commission.

(b) From time to time, as ordered by the court, the jury commission shall publicly break the seal of the box provided for by subsection (a) of this section, and proceed to draw therefrom by lot, without previous examination, the names of such number of persons as the court directs, to serve in condemnation proceedings brought pursuant to section 16–1311, and certify the names so drawn to the clerk of the court. At the time of each drawing, there shall be in the box the names of not less than one hundred persons possessing the qualifications prescribed by subsection (a) of this section.

(c) Except as provided by this section, chapter 23 of Title 11, in so far as it may be applicable, governs the qualifications of jurors in cases under section 16–1311 and the duties and conduct of the jury commissioners under this section.

(d) A person who has so served within one year may not serve as a condemnation juror under this section. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 572, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–603 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, §484a, as added Apr. 19, 1920, ch. 153, § 1, 41 Stat. 555 (565); Mar. 1, 1929, ch. 439, 45 Stat. 1437; June 25, 1936, ch. 804, 49 Stat. 1921; June 25, 1948, ch. 646, § 32(b) 62 Stat. 991; May 24, 1939, ch. 139, § 127, 63 Stat. 107).

While the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure now govern procedure in condemnation cases in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia (see, particularly rule 71A thereof), it would seem that if local law (in the case of the District of Columbia, federal law applied in the District) requires a jury trial of issues, that requirement shall be followed. Therefore, this section providing for the qualifications of, and manner of drawing, jurors, in connection with condemnation of real property for the use of the District, is retained. See rules 71A (h), (k) and 81(e) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

Changes are made in phraseology and arrangement.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Duty of court 1
Jury, definition of 2
Powers of discretion 3
Preparation of jury lists 4

1. Duty of court

The court has the duty of guiding and directing the jury commission to the end that proper representation is had of all eligible citizens on general juries and also on the special panels in eminent domain proceedings. In re Condemnation of Lots Nos. 2, 27, 803, etc., in Square 3960 (1945, 58 F. Supp. 832).

2. Jury, definition of

The "jury" in eminent domain proceedings in the District of Columbia is an inquest or commission appointed by the court under this section and differs from an ordinary jury in that its members must be freeholders, need not be unanimous, and may number more or less than 12. In re Condemnation of Lots Nos. 2, 27, 803, etc., in Square 3960 (1945, 58 F. Supp. 832).

3. Powers of discretion

This section requiring the jury commission to prepare for eminent domain proceedings a special list of freeholders of the District of Columbia having the qualifications of jurors imports a broad discretion in the commission. In re Condemnation of Lots Nos. 2, 27, 803, etc., in Square 3960 (1945, 58 F. Supp. 832).

4. Preparation of jury lists

The jury commission should prepare with great care not only the general jury lists but also the lists of jurors for eminent proceedings and keep the lists fluid so that some persons will not be frequently re-called while others, including Negroes, are not called. In re Condemnation of Lots Nos. 2, 27, 803, etc., in Square 3960 (1945, 58 F. Supp. 832).

§ 16–1313. Selection of jury—Oath of jurors.

In each action brought pursuant to this subchapter, the court shall appoint, from among the persons whose names are drawn pursuant to section 16–1312, a jury of five capable and disinterested persons, and shall administer to the persons so drawn an oath or affirmation that they:

(1) are not interested in any manner in the real property to be condemned;

(2) are not related to the parties interested in the property; and

(3) without favor or partiality, and to the best of their judgment, will appraise the value of the respective interests of all persons concerned in the property.

(Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 573, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–604 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 485, 31 Stat. 1265; Apr. 19, 1920, ch. 153, 41 Stat. 555 (565); Mar. 1, 1929, ch. 439, 45 Stat. 1437).

Words "The said court holding a District Court of the United States" are omitted as obsolete. They had reference, originally, to the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, which court, under prior law, held certain "special terms", one of which was designated the "district court of the United States". The court was redesignated the "District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia" by act June 25, 1936, ch. 804, 49 Stat. 1921. The District of Columbia was made a judicial district upon the enactment, in 1948, of Title 28 of the United States Code, and the correct name of the court is now "United States District Court for the District of Columbia." In this revised section, only the term "the court" is used. This is sufficient, in view of the provisions of sections 16–1311 and 16–1312 herein, in which the full name of the court is used.

The provision "shall thereupon cite all the owners and others persons interested to appear in said court, at a time to be fixed by the court, to answer said petition;", is omitted as covered by rule 71A (c)(2), (d) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure; and the provision "and if it shall appear to the court that there are any owners or other persons interested who are under disability, the court shall give public notice of the time at which it will proceed with the matter of condemnation; and at such time, if it shall appear that there are any persons under disability who have appeared or who have not appeared, the court shall appoint a guardian ad litem for each such person," is omitted as covered by rule 71A of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. See, particularly subd. (g) thereof. See, also, rule 17(c) of such rules.

The remaining provisions of section 16–604 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., relating to selection of the jury, and oath of jurors, are retained for the same reason stated in revision note under section 16–1312 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology and arrangement.

§ 16–1314. Declaration of taking—Contents—Deposit—Transfer of title—Determination—Interest.

(a) In an action pursuant to this subchapter, the plaintiffs may file in a cause, with the complaint or at any time before judgment, a declaration of taking, signed by the members of the Board of Commissioners, declaring that the property is thereby taken for use of the District of Columbia. The declaration of taking shall contain or have annexed thereto a—

(1) statement of the authority under which and the public use for which the property is taken;

(2) description of the property taken sufficient for the identification thereof;

(3) statement of the estate or interest in the property taken for public use;

(4) plan showing the property taken; and

(5) statement of the sum of money estimated by the Commissioners to be just compensation for the property taken.

(b) Notwithstanding section 16–1319, upon the filing of the declaration of taking and the deposit in the registry of the court, to the use of the persons entitled thereto, of the amount of the estimated compensation stated in the declaration, title to the property in fee simple absolute, or such less estate or interest therein as is specified in the declaration, shall vest in the District of Columbia, and the property shall be deemed to be condemned and taken for the use of the District, and the right to just compensation therefor shall vest in the persons entitled thereto. The compensation shall be ascertained and awarded in the proceedings and established by judgment therein, and the judgment shall include, as part of the just compensation awarded, interest at the rate of 6 per centum per annum on the amount finally awarded as the value of the property as of the date of taking, from that date to the date of payment. Interest may not be allowed on as much thereof as has been paid into the registry. A sum so paid into the registry may not be charged with commissions or poundage. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 573, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–605 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 485a, as added July 8, 1932, ch. 462, 47 Stat. 647).

Section is based on part of section 16–605 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. Remainder of section 16–605 is carried into sections 16–1315 and 16–1316 herein.

The term "plaintiffs" is substituted for "petitioners", and the term "complaint" is substituted for "petition", to conform with the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. See rule 71A thereof.

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Abandonment 1
Nonuse, effect of 2
Use, immediately after taking 3

1. Abandonment

Where a fee simple estate is acquired in condemnation proceeding, the doctrine of abandonment does not apply. O'Hara v. District of Columbia (1945, 147 F. 2d 146, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 302, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1183, 325 U.S. 855, 89 L. Ed. 1975).

2. Nonuse, effect of

Where District of Columbia's petition in condemnation proceeding alleged that land was necessary for purpose of acquiring a site for school purposes, the District obtained a fee simple absolute upon deposit in court of the damages awarded to the owners and title to premises did not revert back to the original owners because of nonuse by the District for school purposes. O'Hara v. District of Columbia (1945, 147 F. 2d 146, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 302, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1183, 325 U.S. 855, 89 L. Ed. 1975).

3. Use, immediately after taking

Congress intended to allow public use to proceed immediately upon taking in condemnation proceeding. B. M. Scholl et al. v. District of Columbia (1964, 331 F. 2d 1018, —— U.S. App. D.C. ——).

§ 16–1315. Distribution of money deposited on declaration of taking—Judgment for deficiency or overpayment—Execution.

After the filing of the declaration of taking, and the deposit of the money in the registry of the court, as provided for by section 16–1314, the court, upon the application of the parties in interest, may order that the money so deposited, or any part thereof, be paid forthwith for or on account of the just compensation to be awarded in the proceeding. Upon the final award of compensation, the court shall enter judgment for the amount of any deficiency or overpayment in the manner provided by subdivision (j) of rule 71A of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. A writ of execution may be issued on the judgment within the same time, and it shall have the same effect as a lien, and shall be executed and returned in the same manner, as if issued on any other judgment. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 573, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–605 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 485a, as added July 8, 1932, ch. 462, 47 Stat. 647).

Section is based on part of section 16–605 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. Remainder of section 16–605 is carried into sections 16–1314 and 16–1316 herein.

The provision that, after the final award, judgment shall be entered for the amount of any deficiency or overpayment in the manner provided by subdivision (j) of rule 71A of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure is substituted for the detailed provisions relating thereto in section 16–605 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. The latter were substantially similar to those in subdivision (j) of rule 71A, and the latter governs on that point.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–1316. Time for surrender of possession under declaration of taking—Adjustment of charges.

Upon the filing of the declaration of taking provided for by section 16–1314, the court may fix the time within which and the terms upon which the parties in possession shall be required to surrender possession to the plaintiffs. The court may make such orders in respect of incumbrances, liens, rents, taxes, assessments, insurance, and other charges, if any, as it deems just and equitable. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 574, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–1317. Objections to jurors—Appraisement.

The court, before accepting the jury in a condemnation proceeding pursuant to this subchapter, shall hear any objections that may be made to any member thereof, and may pass upon any objection, and may excuse any juror or cause any vacancy in the jury, when empaneled, to be filled. After the jury is organized and have viewed and examined the land and premises affected by the condemnation proceeding, they shall proceed, in the presence of the court, to hear and receive any evidence offered or submitted on behalf of the District of Columbia and by any person having an interest in the proceeding. When the hearing is concluded, the jury, or a majority of them, shall return to the court, in writing, their appraisement of the value of the interests of all persons, respectively, in the real property, where the appraisement shall be recorded. In making their decision, the jury shall take into consideration, when a part only is taken, the benefit to the remainder of the tract, and shall give their appraisement accordingly. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 574, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Instructions 1
Payment as condition precedent 2
Persons in interest 3
Witnesses 4

1. Instructions

In condemnation proceeding, instruction authorizing jury to appraise property at its full market value is not appropriate if anything less than fee is condemned. O'Hara v. District of Columbia (1945, 147 F. 2d 146, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 302, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1183, 325 U.S. 855, 89 L. Ed. 1975).

2. Payment as condition precedent

Owner cannot be divested of his property until payment has been made. MacFarland v. Elverson (32 App. D.C. 81).

3. Persons in interest

In the proceeding before the appraisal commissioners, the District has a right to be heard and therefore is one of the "persons in interest" therein mentioned. Beyer v. Brownlow (1922, 276 F. 460, 51 App. D.C. 92).

4. Witnesses

It was error to allow a District assessor to testify as an expert witness in proceedings to condemn land for school sites, and certain other municipal purposes. Johnson & Wimsatt v. Reichelderfer (1931, 50 F. 2d 336, 60 App. D.C. 186).

§ 16–1318. Objections or exceptions to appraisement—New jury.

(a) Objections or exceptions to an appraisement of the jury pursuant to section 16–1317 may be filed within twenty days after the return of the appraisement to the court. The court shall hear and determine any objections or exceptions so filed, and may vacate and set aside the appraisement, in whole or in part, when satisfied that it is unjust or unreasonable. If the appraisement is vacated and set aside, the court shall order the jury commission to draw from the special box the names of as many persons as the court directs, and, from among the persons so drawn, shall thereupon appoint a new jury of five capable and disinterested persons, who shall proceed as in the case of the first jury. The appraisement of the new jury shall be final when confirmed by the court.

(b) When an appraisement is vacated in part, the residue thereof as to the property condemned is not affected thereby. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 574, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

This section is mandatory and was intended by Congress to require a party in a condemnation proceeding to bring his objections and exceptions to the attention of the court within twenty days, the time limit prescribed, or else be taken to have waived them. Walker v. Hazen (1937, 90 F. 2d 502, 67 App. D.C. 188, certiorari denied 58 S. Ct. 44, 302 U.S. 723, 82 L. Ed. 559).

This section provides for the summoning of a jury by the marshal and requires the jury to take certain benefits into consideration in returning their verdict. Beyer v. Brownlow (1922, 276 F. 460, 51 App. D.C. 92).

It was the intent of Congress to make these proceedings adversary throughout and allow either party to invoke the jury hearing provided by this section. Id.

2. Appeal

Pending an appeal, the lower court may prevent removal or disturbance of improvements until after a view thereof may be had by the jury impaneled or to be impaneled in a condemnation case. In re Acquisition of Original Lot 14, and Assessment and Taxation Lot in Washington, D.C. (1931, 50 F. 2d 981, 60 App. D.C. 216).

3. Appraisal by jury

Jury award of almost $2,000 less than the lowest estimate of the District experts was unjust and unreasonable and sufficient grounds for authorizing reversal for new appraisal. Branson v. Reichelderfer (1933, 65 F. 2d 280, 62 App. D.C. 129).

It was the province of the jury to weigh the evidence after seeing and hearing all the witnesses and viewing the premises, and trial court did not abuse its discretion in refusing to set aside verdict. Willis v. United States (1938, 99 F. 2d 362, 69 App. D.C. 129).

4. Interested parties

The words "any of the parties interested" in this section were not to be given such a restricted meaning as to include only owners of the land and to exclude the party equally interested in the proceeding, namely, the District. Beyer v. Brownlow (1920, 276 F. 460, 51 App. D.C. 92).

5. Setting aside verdict

In condemnation proceeding, the court does not have the power to set aside the verdict of a jury in the absence of plain errors of law, misconduct, or grave error of fact indicating plain partiality or corruption. Johnson & Wimsatt v. Hazen (1938, 99 F. 2d 384, 69 App. D.C. 151).

§ 16–1319. Payment of award—Transfer of title.

If the appraisement of the jury pursuant to section 16–1317 is not objected to by the parties interested, it shall be confirmed by the court, or, if the appraisement of the new jury is confirmed by the court, the Board of Commissioners shall pay the amount awarded by the jury out of the appropriation made therefor or deposit it in the manner as directed by section 7–215, and thereupon the title to the property condemned shall vest in the District of Columbia. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 574, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–608 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 488, 31 Stat. 1266; Mar. 1, 1929, ch. 439, 45 Stat. 1438).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–1320. Fixing time for return of verdict.

In every case involving the condemnation of real property under this subchapter, at the close of the hearing thereof, the court shall fix a time in which the jury shall return its verdict or the report to the court the reasons why the verdict or appraisement can not be returned by the time fixed. The court has discretion to extend the time for the return of the verdict or appraisement. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 575, Pub. L. 88–241 § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–609 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 489, 31 Stat. 1266; Mar 1, 1929, ch. 439, 45 Stat. 1438).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–1321. Abandonment of proceedings—Liability.

In a condemnation proceeding pursuant to this subchapter, it is optional with the Board of Commissioners to abide by the verdict of the jury and occupy the property appraised by them, or, within a reasonable time to be fixed by the court in its order confirming the verdict, to abandon the proceeding. If the proceeding is abandoned, the court shall award to the owner or owners of the property involved therein such sum or sums as will in the opinion of the court reimburse the owner or owners for all reasonable costs and expenses, including reasonable counsel fees, incurred by him or them in the proceeding. The sum or sums so awarded constitute a judgment or judgments against the District of Columbia. An owner is not entitled to the reimbursement in any case where the proceeding is abandoned at the request, or with the consent, of the owner of the property. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 575, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–610 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 490, 31 Stat. 1266; Mar. 1, 1929, ch. 439, 45 Stat. 1439; July 11, 1947, ch. 228, 61 Stat. 312).

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. Abandonment of proceeding

This section makes it optional with the Commissioners to abide by the verdict of the jury or, within a reasonable time to be fixed by the court, to abandon the proceeding. Beyer v. Brownlow (1922, 276 F. 460, 51 App. D.C. 92).

SUBCHAPTER III.—EXCESS PROPERTY FOR DEVELOPMENT OF SEAT OF GOVERNMENT

§ 16–1331. Acquisition of property in excess of needs.

In order to promote the orderly and proper development of the seat of government of the United States, the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia, and agencies of the United States authorized by law to acquire real property may acquire, in the public interest, by gift, dedication, exchange, purchase, or condemnation, fee simple title to land, or rights in or on land or easements or restrictions therein, within the District, for public uses, works, and improvements authorized by Congress, in excess of that actually needed for and essential to their usefulness, in order to preserve the view, appearance, light, and air and to enhance their usefulness to prevent the use of private property adjacent to them in such a manner as to impair the public benefit derived from the construction thereof, or to prevent inequities or hardship to the owners of adjacent private property by depriving them of the beneficial use of their property. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 575, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–612 (Apr. 11, 1935, ch. 57, § 1, 49 Stat. 152).

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–1332. Sale of excess property—Restrictions on use—Fair market value—Disposition of moneys.

(a) The Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia and agencies of the United States authorized by law to acquire real property may, upon completion of public improvements:

(1) subdivide, and sell, at public or private sale, or exchange, any excess real property acquired pursuant to this subchapter; and

(2) to carry out such purposes, convey any property acquired in excess of that actually needed and which is not essential to the usefulness of the public works—with such reservations concerning the future use and occupation of the property as, in their discretion, may be necessary to protect the public improvements.

(b) Property sold under this section shall be sold at not less than the fair market value at the time sold, as determined by appraisement of the assessor of the District of Columbia.

(c) Moneys received from sales or transfers of properties pursuant to this subchapter shall be covered into the Treasury of the United States, and where the property sold was acquired under an appropriation authorized for the use of the District of Columbia, moneys received from the sale shall be deposited in the Treasury to the credit of the revenues of the District of Columbia. Changes are made in phraseology.

When real property is purchased pursuant to this subchapter in excess of that needed for a particular project or improvement, appropriations available for the payment of the purchase price, costs, and expenses incident to the project or improvement may be used in the payment of the purchase price, costs, and expenses of excess real property purchased in connection with the project or improvement, as provided by this subchapter. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 576, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–614 (Apr. 11, 1935, ch. 57, § 3, 49 Stat. 153).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–1336. Condemnation of excess real property by Board of Commissioners—Payment of awards, damages, and costs—No assessments for benefits.

(a) When, pursuant to this subchapter, excess real property is condemned by the Board of Commissioners, the condemnation proceedings for the acquisition of the property shall be in accordance with subchapter I of this chapter, sections 7–202 to 7–212, 7–213a, 7–214, 7–215, or sections 7–301 to 7–305, 7–313 to 7–318, 7–320, 7–321 and 7–323.

(b) Appropriations available for the payment of awards, damages, and condemnation proceedings pursuant to subchapter I of this chapter may be used in the payment of awards, damages, and costs in condemnation proceedings under the sections referred to by subsection (a) of this section for the acquisition of excess real property, as provided by this subchapter.

(c) Appropriations available for the payment of awards, damages, and costs in condemnation proceedings pursuant to subchapter I of this chapter or sections 7301 to 7–305, 7–313 to 7–318, 7–320, 7–321 and 7–323 may be used in the payment of awards, damages, and costs in condemnation proceedings thereunder for the acquisition of excess real property as provided by this subchapter.

(d) In all cases where excess real property is condemned, assessments for benefits may not be levied by the jury in respect to the acquisition of the property. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 576, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–615 (Apr. 11, 1935, ch. 57, § 4, 49 Stat. 153).

In subsec. (a), the reference to section 7–213a (of D.C. Code, 1961 ed.) is substituted for the references in section 16–615 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., to sections 7–213 and 7–322 (of that Code), as the latter two sections were repealed in 1951 by the same act that enacted section 7–213a, which related to the same subject (compensation of jurors in condemnation cases). It was the legislative intent that any references in other laws to the provisions set out in sections 7–213 and 7–322 should, after the repeal thereof, mean the provisions set forth in section 7–213a.

Changes are made in phraseology and arrangement.

§ 16–1337. Condemnation of excess real property by United States agencies—Payment of awards, damages, and costs.

When excess real property is condemned by agencies of the United States, other than the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia, as provided by this subchapter, the condemnation proceedings for the acquisition of the property shall be in accordance with subchapter IV of this chapter, or any laws in effect at the time of the commencement of condemnation proceedings for the acquisition of real property in the District of Columbia for the use of the United States.

Appropriations available for the condemnation of property pursuant to subchapter IV of this chapter may be used in the payment of awards, damages, and costs in condemnation proceedings pursuant to that subchapter for the acquisition of excess real property as provided by this subchapter. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 577, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–616 (Apr. 11, 1935, ch. 57, § 5, 49 Stat. 153).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–1338. Construction of subchapter.

This subchapter does not repeal any provisions of existing law pertaining to the condemnation or acquisition of streets, alleys, or land, or the law or laws relating to the subdividing of lands in the District of Columbia. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 577, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–617 (Apr. 11, 1935, ch. 57, § 7, 49 Stat. 154).

Changes are made in phraseology.

SUBCHAPTER IV.—REAL PROPERTY FOR UNITED STATES

§ 16–1351. Definition.

As used in this subchapter, "acquiring authority" means the head of an executive department or agency of the United States, or other officer of the United States, or board or commission of the United States, authorized by law to acquire real property in the District of Columbia for the construction of public building or work, or for parks, parkways, public playgrounds, or other public purpose. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 577, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–619 (Mar. 1, 1929, ch. 416, § 1, 45 Stat. 1415).

Section is based on part of section 16–619 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. Remainder of section 16–619 is carried into sections 16–1301 and 16–1352 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Commission's authority to condemn 1
Constitutionality 2
Just compensation 3
Principles of equity in condemnation 4
Sites for government buildings 5
Summary judgment 6

1. Commission's authority to condemn

The acts of Congress establishing the National Capital Planning Commission constituted authority for acquisition by the Commission by condemnation of property for comprehensive development of the park, parkway and playground system of the National Capital. United States v. Lots 800 in Square 1928 etc., et al. (1959, 169 F. Supp. 904).

2. Constitutionality

Act permitting head of executive department to obtain realty in the District of Columbia for public buildings is constitutional as against the contention that it is invalid in that "it does not provide for the payment of damages to the owner of the land and the vesting of title in the United States contemporaneously." Potomac Elec. Power Co. v. United States (1936, 85 F. 2d 243, 66 App. D.C. 77, certiorari denied 57 S. Ct. 27, 299 U.S. 565, 81 L. Ed. 416).

3. Just compensation

United States government's right to take over private property under its power of eminent domain is subject to constitutional requirement that private property shall not be taken for public use without just compensation. United States v. One Parcel of Land etc. (1955, 131 F. Supp. 443).

4. Principles of equity in condemnation

Determination of issues in a condemnation case rests upon broad principles of equity which go beyond technical requirements of local landlord and tenant law. United States v. One Parcel of Land etc. (1955, 131 F. Supp. 443).

Fifth Amendment of the federal Constitution contemplates that monies paid into common treasury by taxpayer shall be jealously guarded as a public trust against unfounded and unjust claims, but it also guarantees that government shall have regard for rights and welfare of its citizens and respect for restraints on its authority and shall deal fairly and equitably with each of them. Id.

5. Sites for government buildings

Under authority of this section and sections 16–620 to 16–644 and other acts the Secretary of the Treasury was authorized to acquire site for Department of Interior building. Potomac Elec. Power Co. v. United States (1936, 85 F. 2d 243, 66 App. D.C. 77, certiorari denied 57 S. Ct. 27, 299 U.S. 565, 81 L. Ed. 416).

6. Summary judgment

In government's action for taking of property, government's motions in the alternative for judgment on pleadings, to dismiss the answer for failure to state a claim, to strike the answer except one paragraph, or for summary judgment would be treated as a motion for summary judgment. United States v. Lot 800 In Square 1928, etc., et al. (1959, 169 F. Supp. 904).

In proceeding by the United States at the request of National Capital Planning Commission to condemn property for park, parkway and playground system of National Capital, wherein the United States filed a motion for summary judgment, and fact issues claimed to exist were not properly set forth in answer or by means of affidavit but were merely listed on a page of defendant's memoranda, and list did not consist of specific allegations or statements of fact but contained speculative questions as to what procedures might or might not have been followed by Commission in instituting the action, by reason of their source and their nature, such questions did not form a sound basis for determining that a genuine issue of material fact existed so as to preclude granting of summary judgment. Id.

When, for the purposes specified by section 16–1351, it is deemed necessary or advantageous to do so, the acquiring authority may acquire real property in the District of Columbia in the name of the United States by condemnation under judicial process. The Attorney General of the United States, upon the request of the acquiring authority, shall institute a proceeding for the condemnation of the property in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 577, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–619 (Mar. 1, 1929, ch. 416, § 1, 45 Stat. 1415; June 25, 1936, ch. 804, 49 Stat. 1921; June 25, 1948, ch. 646, § 32(b), 62 Stat. 991; May 24, 1994, ch. 139, § 127, 63 Stat. 107).

Section is based on part of section 16–619 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. Remainder of section 16–619 is carried into sections 16–1301 and 16–1351 herein.

Words with reference to institution of the proceeding in the District Court, "holding a special term as a District Court of the United States,", are omitted as obsolete. Terms of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia are now governed by sections 138—141 of Title 28, United States Code.

The provision that the condemnation proceeding shall be "in rem" is omitted as unnecessary, as any proceeding to condemn property is a proceeding in rem. See, for example, note of the Advisory Committee on subdivision (g) of rule 71A of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, which rule was formulated by that committee.

Changes are made in phraseology.

Discretionary authority 1
Tort actions 2

1. Discretionary authority

Statute authorizing District of Columbia Redevelopment Land Agency to acquire property in the name of the United States by condemnation under judicial process whenever in the opinion of the Authority it was necessary or advantageous to do so, was a grant of discretionary authority as to time of taking. C. R. Goddard v. District of Columbia Redevelopment Land Agency etc. (1961, 287 F. 2d 343, 109 U.S. App. D.C. 304).

2. Tort actions

The District of Columbia Redevelopment Land Agency is a Federal agency within the meaning of the Federal Tort Claims Act, and suits based on torts allegedly committed by the Agency or its employees acting in an official capacity are maintainable, if at all, under the Tort Claims Act, and must name the United States as defendant. C. R. Goddard v. District of Columbia Redevelopment Land Agency etc. (1961, 287 F. 2d 343, 109 U.S. App. D.C. 304).

(a) In an action pursuant to this subchapter, the plaintiff may file in the cause, with the complaint or at any time before judgment, a declaration of taking signed by the acquiring authority empowered by law to acquire the property described in the complaint, declaring that the property is thereby taken for the use of the United States. The declaration of taking shall contain or have annexed thereto a—

(1) statement of the authority under which and the public use for which the lands are taken;

(2) description of the lands taken sufficient for the identification thereof;

(3) statement of the estate or interest in the lands taken for public use;

(4) plan showing the lands taken; and

(5) statement of the sum of money estimated by the acquiring authority to be just compensation for the property taken.

Upon the filing of the declaration of taking and of the deposit in the registry of the court, to the use of the persons entitled thereto, of the amount of the estimated compensation stated in the declaration, title to the property in fee simple absolute, or such less estate or interest therein as is specified in the declaration, vests in the United States of America, and the property shall be deemed to be condemned and taken for the use of the United States, and the right to just compensation therefor vests in the persons entitled thereto. The compensation shall be ascertained and awarded in the proceedings and established by judgment therein, and the judgment shall include, as part of the just compensation awarded, interest at the rate of 6 per centum per annum on the amount finally awarded as the value of the property as of the date of taking, from that date to the date of payment. Interest may not be allowed on as much thereof as has been paid into the registry. A sum so paid into the registry may not be charged with commissions or poundage. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 577, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–628 (Mar. 1, 1929, ch. 416, § 10, 45 Stat. 1417).

Section is based on part of section 16–628 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. Remainder of section 16–628 is carried into sections 16–1354 and 16–1355 herein.

The term "plaintiff" is substituted for "petitioner", and the term "complaint" is substituted for "petition", to conform with the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. See rule 71A thereof.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Constitutionality 1
Controlling statute 2
Declaration of taking 3
Effectiveness of declaration 4
Judgment against United States 5
Liability for local assessment 6
Summary judgment 7

1. Constitutionality

Section permitting the advance taking of property for public use and providing for judgment against the United States with six per cent, interest until paid does not violate the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution. Lee v. United States (1932, 58 F. 2d 879, 61 App. D.C. 153).

2. Controlling statute

Section 16–619 relating to acquisition of property for public purposes, and not the Act Aug. 30, 1890, 26 Stat. 412 which had been eliminated from the Code as being obsolete and superseded, was controlling for purpose of authorizing National Capital Planning Commission to condemn property for park, parkway and playground system of the National Capital and such statute authorized declaration of taking by the Commission. United States v. Lot 800 In Square 1928, etc., et al. (1959, 169 F. Supp. 904).

3. Declaration of taking

Where government has not filed a declaration of taking, and judgment has not been entered nor has payment or deposit been made of an award of just compensation, title has not vested in the United States, and United States is free to abandon the taking or reduce the estate at any time, even if it has taken possession, and be liable only for actual use and occupancy or premises involved and for restoration damage. United States v. One Parcel of Land etc. (1955, 131 F. Supp. 443).

Where United States had been in possession of apartment building for more than three years, and title had vested in earlier proceeding by which such possession had been obtained, and judgment entered therein served as fair indication of amount of rental as might be expected to be awarded as just compensation, and United States had defined terms whereby it could terminate the estate, United States could not abandon the estate except pursuant to terms of the taking. Id.

Where, in notices by government to terminate estate obtained in prior proceeding in regard to use and occupancy of apartment building, there was uncertainty on part of government regarding plans to surrender premises, such notices were not effective. Id.

4. Effectiveness of declaration

A declaration of taking by National Capital Planning Commission was not ineffective on ground that commission did not presently have appropriated fund in order to convert land for authorized public purposes, where there was on deposit in registry of court a sum which was the amount of money estimated by the commission to be just compensation for the property taken, which money undoubtedly was intended by Congress for purchase of land involved. United States v. Lot 800 In Square 1928, etc., et al. (1959, 169 F. Supp. 904).

5. Judgment against United States

Judgment may be obtained against the United States in condemnation case, not enforceable by execution and levy. Lee v. United States (1932, 58 F. 2d 879, 61 App. D.C. 153).

6. Liability for local assessment

Where landowners contended that while proceeding to condemn land for street purposes instituted by District of Columbia was pending, Federal Government filed declaration of taking against their property and took title thereto whereupon compensation was paid to them by the Federal Government and that thereafter land was no longer subject to assessment for benefits by District of Columbia, issue thus tendered was not appropriate for decision in the condemnation proceeding. Brown v. District of Columbia (1944, 143 F. 2d 374, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 148).

7. Summary judgment

Claim by property owner that action of District of Columbia redevelopment land agency was arbitrary and capricious in that purpose for which her property was seized was not a public purpose and that the taking was therefore illegal, presented no issue of fact precluding the granting of summary judgment. Mamer v. District of Columbia Redevelopment Land Agency (C.A.D.C. 1960, 284 F. 2d 221).

After the filing of the declaration of taking, and the deposit of the money in the registry of the court, as provided for by section 16–1353, the court, upon the application of the parties in interest, may order that the money so deposited, or any part thereof, be paid forthwith for or on account of the just compensation to be awarded in the proceeding. Upon the final award of compensation, the court shall enter judgment for the amount of any deficiency in the manner provided by rule 71A(j) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedures. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 578, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Section is based on part of section 16–628 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. Remainder of section 16–628 is carried into sections 16–1353 and 16–1355 herein.

The provision that, after the final award, judgment shall be entered for the amount of any deficiency in the manner provided by subdivision (j) of rule 71A of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure is substituted for the provision that "If the compensation finally awarded in respect of said lands or any parcel thereof shall exceed the amount of the money so received by any person entitled, the court shall enter judgment against the United States for the amount of the deficiency". Subdivision (j) of rule 71A now governs on this point.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–1355. Time for surrender of possession under declaration of taking—Adjustment of charges.

Upon the filing of a declaration of taking provided for by section 16–1353, the court may fix the time within which and the terms upon which the parties in possession shall be required to surrender possession to the plaintiff. The court may make such orders in respect of encumbrances, liens, rents, taxes, assessments, insurance, and other charges, if any, as it deems just and equitable. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 578, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–628 (Mar. 1, 1929, ch. 416, § 10, 45 Stat. 1417).

Section is based on part of section 16–628 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. Remainder of section 16–628 is carried into sections 16–1353 and 16–1354 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–1356. Setting date for trial.

In a proceeding pursuant to this subchapter, after all defendants have been served with notice, and there has been return of service, as provided by rule 71A(d) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, and after defendants have appeared or answered in the manner provided by rule 71A(e) thereof, either personally or by their guardians ad litem or other legal representatives, or are in default, the case shall be regarded as ready for trial, and, upon the application of any party to the proceeding, the court shall forthwith set an early date to be fixed by it, not less than ten nor more than twenty days from the date of the application, for the trial of the issues of law and fact raised in the case, and the ascertainment of the compensation or damages to be awarded for the taking of the property to be condemned. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 578, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Section is based on the first sentence of section 16–629 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. Remainder of section 16–629 is carried into section 16–1357 herein.

In order to conform the provisions with the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, which apply to condemnation proceedings in all United States district courts, the provisions of this section from the beginning to and through the word "default" are substituted for the following provisions of section 16–629 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed.: "When all the persons who have been summoned or published against in said case, as hereinbefore provided, have either answered or are in default as aforesaid, and all persons under legal disability have answered by their guardians ad litem, or in the judgment of the court ample opportunity has been given for the same". The words "as herein before provided", and "as aforesaid", in the preceding quoted provisions, refer to provisions of sections of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., which in this revision are omitted as superseded by some of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. Sections 16–621 to 16–624 thereof related to public notice of the proceeding by order of citation, contents of the order, publication, and notice thereof. These matters are now covered by rule 71A of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, and other rules thereof to which that rule refers. Sections 16–625 and 16–626 of the Code related to default in appearance, presumption of consent to the condemnation, and appearance after default, and were superseded by those rules (see particularly, rules 24, 55, and 71A(e) thereof). Section 16–627 of the Code related to the appointment of guardians ad litem for infants or incompetent persons, and was also superseded by the rules. See, particularly, rules 17(c) and 71A(g).

This section retains the provisions of section 16–629 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., relating to the fixing of the date of trial, as they are not covered by the above-mentioned rules. Rule 40 relates to assignment of cases for trial, but the second sentence thereof provides that precedence shall be given to actions entitled thereto by any statute of the United States.

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. Valuation of property

Instruction was proper which stated that recent bona fide sales under fair market conditions, or recent contracts of sale under like conditions of any lot or lots, parcel or parcels within the limits of the area to be condemned, or in the vicinity thereof, or so situated as to have a bearing upon the market value of the land to be condemned, may be considered by the jury in so far as such sales or sale contracts may reasonably be regarded as throwing light upon the fair market value of the land to be condemned. Loughran v. United States (1933, 64 F. 2d 555, 62 App. D.C. 57).

§ 16–1357. Drawing of jurors, and selection of jury—Qualifications.

When the date for trial has been set, as provided by section 16–1356, the court shall thereupon order the jury commission to draw from the special box provided for by law the names of as many persons, not less than twenty, as the court directs, and to certify the names to the clerk of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia as a panel of prospective jurors. The persons so certified shall be thereupon summoned by the United States marshal for the District of Columbia to appear in the court on the day specially fixed for the trial of the cause. Before selecting or impaneling the jury, the court may cause a second, third, or other further list of prospective jurors to be drawn, certified and summoned in like manner. From the persons so certified and summoned, the court, after examination on oath and in open court as to their qualifications, shall select and impanel a jury of five capable and disinterested persons who have the qualifications of jurors as prescribed by law for the courts of the District of Columbia, and in addition thereto are real property owners in the District and are not in the service or employment of the United States or of the District of Columbia. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 578, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–629 (Mar. 1, 1929, ch. 416, § 11, 45 Stat. 1418; June 25, 1936, ch. 804, 49 Stat. 1921; June 25, 1948, ch. 646, § 32(b), 62 Stat. 991; May 24, 1949, ch. 139, § 127, 63 Stat. 107).

Section is based on all of section 16–629 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., except the provisions thereof that are carried into section 16–1356 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–1358. Oath of jurors.

The jurors selected and impaneled, as provided by section 16–1357, shall take an oath or affirmation, administered by the court, that they:

(1) are not interested in any manner in the property to be condemned;

(2) are not, to their knowledge, related to any person interested in the property; and

(3) will, impartially and to the best of their judgment, ascertain, appraise, and award just compensation for the property to be condemned and taken in the proceeding.

(Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 579, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–630 (Mar. 1, 1929, ch. 416, § 12, 45 Stat. 1418).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–1359. Inspection of property by jury—Presence of parties.

After being selected, impaneled, and sworn, as provided by sections 16–1357 and 16–1358, and before hearing the evidence, the jury, in order to inspect the property to be acquired, shall be taken upon the property by the United States marshal at a time fixed by the court. All parties in interest, their attorneys, and representatives have the right to be present at the inspection. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 579, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–631 (Mar. 1, 1929, ch. 416, § 13, 45 Stat. 1418).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–1360. Trial—Evidence—Measure of compensation.

After the inspection provided for by section 16–1359, and the jury has returned to the court, the trial of the cause shall be proceeded with before the court and jury. Any person who has appeared in the cause claiming any right, title, interest, or estate in the land to be taken, or compensation on account of its taking, has the right to submit evidence concerning the value of the property, parcel by parcel, the nature and extent of his right, interest, or estate therein, and the compensation justly due for the taking of the property. A new structure or substantial alteration of a permanent nature, the purpose or natural effect of which is to enhance the value of the property to be taken, erected, or made thereon after the institution of the condemnation proceedings may not be taken into consideration in assessing and awarding compensation for the property. When the property to be valued has been taken by virtue of a declaration of taking, as provided by section 16–1353, it shall be valued for the purposes of compensation as of the date of the taking. When, by act of the owner or other party claiming to be entitled to compensation, the value of the property for the use for which it is to be taken has been diminished, as by cutting trees, excavating, grading, or otherwise altering its physical condition, allowance, if the plaintiff so elects, shall be made in accessing compensation for the diminution in value. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 579, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

The term "plaintiff" is substituted for "petitioner" to conform with terminology in the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, which, under rule 71A thereof, generally apply in condemnation proceedings.

The final sentence of section 16–632 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., provided as follows: "Every party, whether petitioner or respondent, may except to any ruling of the court admitting or excluding evidence, granting, rejecting, or modifying prayers for instruction, or other ruling made in the cause in like manner as in other civil trials". This sentence is omitted as obsolete and superseded by rule 46 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, which provides that: "Formal exceptions to rulings or orders of the court are unnecessary; but for all purposes for which an exception has heretofore been necessary it is sufficient that a party, at the time the ruling or order of the court is made or sought, makes known to the court the action which he desires the court to take or his objection to the action of the court and his grounds therefor; and, if a party has no opportunity to object to a ruling or order at the time it is made, the absence of an objection does not thereafter prejudice him". This rule, under rule 71A, applies to condemnation proceedings, as well as to other civil actions.

Changes are made in phraseology.

Additional provisions relating to the right to the presentation of evidence are contained in subdivision (e) of rule 71A of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, referred to above, which among other things provides that a defendant waives all defenses and objections not presented in his answer, but that "at the trial of the issue of just compensation, whether or not he has previously appeared or answered, he may present evidence as to the amount of the compensation to be paid for his property, and he may share in the distribution of the award".

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Burden of proof 1
Evidence 2

1. Burden of proof

In a condemnation proceeding, the party who offers evidence to prove the price paid for parcels other than those involved following negotiation and purchase, has the burden of establishing as a preliminary fact that purchase was made without compulsion, coercion, or compromise. Hannan v. U.S. (1943, 131 F. 2d 441, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 118).

2. Evidence

In proceeding to condemn property under urban redevelopment plan, evidence sustained amount of verdict. Brabner-Smith v. District of Columbia Redevelopment Land Agency (C.A.D.C. 1960, 284 F. 2d 229).

In condemnation proceeding for acquisition of land in the District of Columbia for use of the United States, opinion evidence concerning whether price paid by defendant for one lot in issue was reasonable was properly excluded, where evidence related to a sale made 15 years before commencement of proceeding, and record failed to reveal witness' qualifications to testify concerning changed conditions or to give other than hearsay testimony. Hannan v. U.S. (1943, 131 F. 2d 441, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 118).

In a condemnation proceeding, the reception of evidence offered to prove the price paid for parcels other than those involved following negotiation and purchase calls for the exercise of discretion by the trial court. Id.

In condemnation proceeding for acquisition of land in the District of Columbia for use of the United States, exclusion of evidence of an offer to purchase made to property owner by a third person was not error where consideration offered consisted in part of other property and consequently involved collateral issues concerning its value. Id.

In condemnation proceeding for acquisition of land in the District of Columbia for use of the United States, even if evidence offered to prove price paid by the United States following negotiation and purchase for parcels other than those of defendants was admissible, exclusion of that evidence was not error where defendants did not establish as a preliminary fact that purchase was made without compulsion, coercion, or compromise. Id.

§ 16–1361. Verdict.

At the close of the evidence in a proceeding pursuant to this subchapter, the court shall charge the jury and furnish them with a written form to be used in returning their verdict. The members of the jury may separate when not engaged in the consideration of their verdict. When the jury, or a majority thereof, have agreed upon their verdict they shall, through their foreman, so notify the court, which shall thereupon pass an order setting a day for the return of the verdict in open court. The verdict shall be in writing subscribed by the jurors concurring therein, and shall set forth, parcel by parcel, the compensation to be paid for the taking of the lands to be condemned. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 579, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1951 ed., § 16–633 (Mar. 1, 1929, ch. 416, § 15, 45 Stat. 1419).

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Motion for new trial 1
Permissive nature of proceedings 2

1. Motion for new trial

Where in a proceeding by the United States to condemn property in the District of Columbia, appellant did not file motion for a new trial, but objected to the finding of the jury as if action had been brought by the District; said objection was treated as motion for new trial. Willis v. United States (1938, 99 F. 2d 362, 69 App. D.C. 129).

2. Permissive nature of proceedings

The provisions appearing in § 16–634 et seq. relating to acquisition of land in the District of Columbia for use of the United States concerning motions for new trial and other proceedings after verdict are "permissive", in sharp contrast to corresponding provisions appearing in § 16–607 relating to acquisition of land for the District of Columbia. Hannan v. U.S. (1943, 131 F. 2d 441, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 118).

§ 16–1362. Fixing date for new trial—New jurors.

If a verdict rendered pursuant to section 16–1361, or any award contained therein, is set aside or vacated, the court shall—

(1) grant a new trial with respect to the property as to which the verdict or award is set aside or vacated;

(2) fix a date for the new trial; and

(3) order a new panel of prospective jurors to be drawn, certified, or summoned as provided by section 16–1357.

The court shall then proceed with the cause as if a verdict or award had not been rendered. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 580, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–634 (Mar. 1, 1929, ch. 416, § 16, 45 Stat. 1419).

The first sentence of section 16–634 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., provided, as follows: "The court shall have power to set aside or vacate the verdict of the jury, or any award contained therein, and to grant a new trial upon the same grounds as in other trials at law and upon the ground that said verdict, or any award contained therein is, in the judgment of the court, grossly excessive, or inadequate, or otherwise unreasonable or unjust". This sentence is omitted as covered by the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, which under rule 71A thereof, generally apply to condemnation proceedings. See, particularly, rules 50, 58–62.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–1363. Judgment.

Judgment upon a verdict returned pursuant to section 16–1361 or any award contained therein shall be entered against the United States in favor of the parties entitled for the sums awarded as just compensation, respectively, for the property condemned for the use of the United States. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 580, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Words "Judgment upon a verdict returned under section 16–1361 or any award contained therein shall be entered against" are substituted for words "In the event that any verdict or any award contained therein shall become final by lapse of time or that any motion filed to set aside or vacate the same or to grant a new trial in respect thereof shall have been denied, or overruled, the court shall enter judgment against" as the time for entry of judgment, and other matters relating thereto, are now covered by the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure which, under rule 71A thereof, now generally apply to condemnation proceedings. See rule 58 of the rules. See, also, rules 59—62 thereof relating to new trials, amendments to judgments, relief from judgment or order, harmless error, and stay of proceedings to enforce a judgment.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–1364. Force and effect of judgment—Payment.

A final judgment rendered against the United States pursuant to this subchapter has like force and effect as a money judgment rendered against the United States by the Court of Claims in a suit in respect of which the United States has expressly consented to be sued. The amount of the final judgment shall be paid out of any specific appropriation applicable to the case. If a specific appropriation does not exist, the judgment shall be paid in the same manner (except with respect to interest) as judgments rendered by the Court of Claims in cases under its general jurisdiction. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 580, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–637 (Mar. 1, 1929, ch. 416, § 19, 45 Stat. 1420).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–1365. Appeal—Deficiency judgment.

A party aggrieved by a final judgment in a proceeding pursuant to this subchapter may appeal therefrom to the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit. The appeal, or any bond or undertaking given therein, does not operate to prevent or delay the vesting of title to the property in the United States, but upon the filing of a declaration of taking, or, if a declaration of taking is not filed, upon payment to the party entitled, or deposit in the registry of the court, of the amount awarded by the judgment, title vests in the United States, saving to all parties their right to just compensation. If the compensation finally awarded and adjudged for the property exceeds the amount awarded and adjudged by the judgment appealed from, the court shall enter judgment for the deficiency with interest as provided by this subchapter. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 580, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–638 (Mar. 1, 1929, ch. 416, § 20, 45 Stat. 1420; June 7, 1934, ch. 426, 48 Stat. 926).

The provision that, upon the appeal, the U.S. Court of Appeals should have power to review the judgment and affirm, reverse, or modify the same as on appeals in other actions at law, is omitted as unnecessary and covered by section 2106 of Title 28, United States Code.

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. Right to appeal

Defendants were not foreclosed from maintaining an appeal from judgment entered in condemnation proceeding by their failure to move to set aside the verdict and for a new trial, where proceeding was brought to acquire land in the District of Columbia for use of the United States. Hannan v. U.S. (1943, 131 F. 2d 441, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 118).

Payment into the registry of the court for the use of the parties entitled of the sum adjudged to be just compensation for the property to be condemned and taken, or for any parcel thereof, or any interest therein, pursuant to this subchapter, constitutes payment of the compensation. Upon the payment, the plaintiff is entitled to an order declaring that the title to the property in respect of which the compensation is so paid is vested in the United States of America. The money so paid into the registry of the court shall be deemed to be vested in the persons owning or interested in the property, according to their respective estates and interest, and the money shall take the place and stand in lieu of the property condemned. The court, upon the application of the plaintiff or of any party in interest, may determine and direct who is entitled to receive payment of the money so paid into the registry, and, in its discretion, order a reference to the auditor of the court or a special master to ascertain the facts on which the determination and direction are to be made. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 580, Pub L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–639 (Mar. 1, 1929, ch. 416, § 21, 45 Stat. 1420).

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. Interest

Where judgment was entered June 30 ratifying condemnation award returned by jury on June 28 but full amount of award was not deposited in registry of court until October 20 and owners continued to hold title as well as possession of property and receive income from it until that time, and proceedings were taken under statute which did not vest title in government until payment of award was made into registry of court, owners were not entitled to have interest added as part of just compensation to amount awarded by jury. K. Gould et al. v. United States (1962, 301 F. 2d 557, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 233).

Where possession has not been awarded pursuant to a declaration of taking, and the adjudged compensation has been paid into the registry as directed by the judgment of the court and a certified copy of the judgment, with a certificate of the clerk of the court showing the payment, has been served upon the person in possession of the property, he shall, upon demand, deliver possession thereof to the plaintiff. If possession is not delivered when so demanded, the plaintiff may apply to the court without notice, unless the court requires notice to be given, for a writ of assistance, and the court, upon proof of the service of the copy of the final order or judgment and certificate of the clerk showing payment as referred to in this section, shall thereupon cause the writ to be issued, which shall be executed in the same manner as when issued in other cases for the delivery of possession of real property. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 581, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–640 (Mar. 1, 1929, ch. 416, § 22, 45 Stat. 1421).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–1368. Additional powers of court.

Where the mode or manner of conducting a proceeding pursuant to this subchapter is not expressly provided for by law or rules of court in force under authority of law, the court may make all necessary orders and give all necessary directions to carry into effect the object and intent of this subchapter or any other laws conferring authority to acquire real property for the use of the United States. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 581, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–642 (Mar. 1, 1929, ch. 416, § 24, 45 Stat. 1421).

Words "or rules of court in force under authority of law" are inserted because, under rule 71A of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, those rules now generally apply in condemnation proceedings. Rule 71A, itself, contains a number of provisions relating to practice and procedure in such proceedings. Further, rule 83 of the rules permits district courts to make and amend rules governing their practice and to regulate their practice in any manner, not inconsistent with the said Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

Changes are made in phraseology.

Chapter 15.—FORCIBLE ENTRY AND DETAINER

Sec.
16–1501. Definition—Summons.
16–1502. Service of summons.
16–1503. Judgment and execution for possession.
16–1504. Certification to District Court upon plea of title—Undertaking.
16–1505. Conclusiveness of judgment.

§ 16–1501. Definition—Summons.

When a person detains possession of real property without right, or after his right to possession has ceased, the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions, on complaint under oath verified by the person aggrieved by the detention, or by his agent or attorney having knowledge of the facts, may issue a summons to the party complained of to appear and show cause why judgment should not be given against him for the restitution of possession. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 581, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §§ 11–735, 11–751a (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 20, 31 Stat. 1193; Apr. 19, 1920, ch. 153, § 1, 41 Stat. 555; June 18, 1953, ch. 130, § 1, 67 Stat. 66; Oct. 23, 1962, Pub. L. 87–873, § 1, 76 Stat. 1171; July 8, 1963, Pub. L. 88–60, § 1, 77 Stat. 77).

Section 11–751a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., enacted by the act of Oct. 23, 1962, is also cited as one of the sources of this section, as section 11–751a changed the name of the Municipal Court for the District of Columbia to the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions.

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

1. Agreements as precluding recovery

Where tenant agreed to rent basement to landlord's grantee, entry of landlord's grantee into basement was not forcible so as to authorize tenant to recover, against landlord's grantee as for forcible entry. Bedrosian v. Wong Kok Chung (D.C. Mun. App. 1943, 33 A. 2d 811).

In owner's action to recover apartment from former tenant's estranged wife who had moved out of apartment during marital difficulties and who had resumed occupancy after tenant had surrendered his tenancy, evidence relating to manner in which wife re-entered apartment warranted finding that wife's re-entry and detention of possession was "forcible" within this section. Tate v. Brawner (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 58 A. 2d 307).

2. Appeal

Proceedings in appeal in cases of forcible entry and detainer, which are regulated by §§ 1232, 1233 of the 1901 Code, are different from those which govern appeals in ordinary cases. Dowling v. Buckley (27 App. D.C. 205).

The complaint should be sufficient to advise the tenant of the breach which the landlord claims gives him a right to recover possession of the property, and if the complaint states only one ground, the landlord must be confined to that ground on appeal. Davis v. Taylor (1922, 276 F. 619, 51 App. D.C. 97).

In forcible entry and detainer action, exclusion of witnesses was discretionary with the trial judge, and, where it was not shown that denial of motion was prejudicial to appellant, there was no basis for review by appellate court. Bedrosian v. Wong Kok Chung (D.C. Mun. App. 1943, 33 A. 2d 811).

3. Bond

Defendant, in order to perfect his appeal from justice of peace, in landlord and tenant case, need not give supersedeas bond. Dowling v. Buckley (27 App. D.C. 205).

Bond given on appeal from justice of peace in a landlord and tenant case must be entered by two sureties in order to operate as a supersedeas. Id.

4. Concurrent actions

A landlord could maintain action against tenant in District of Columbia District Court for arrears of rent and an action against tenant in the municipal court for possession of leased premises. Service Parking Corp. v. Trans-Lux Radio City Corp. (D.C. Mun. App. 1946, 47 A. 2d 400).

5. Construction of prior law

Code provision applicable, although title is claimed under instrument executed prior to adoption of code. Green v. McIntire (42 App. D.C. 250).

6. Counterclaims

Court should not have entertained the counterclaims of defendant in suit in which possession was sought on the grounds of unlawful entry and detainer. Though it has been held that where a tenant is sued for possession for nonpayment of rent, he may defend by an equitable defense sufficient to defeat the claim for rent or may defend by way of recoupment for a total or partial failure of consideration in order to avoid circuity of action, and where, as here, the suit was not for nonpayment and the counterclaim sounded in tort, this rule does not apply. Bellmore v. Baum (D.C. Mun. App. 1949, 68 A. 2d 588).

7. Damages

Quaere: Whether landlord can recover damages for loss of rental of entire building when tenant leases only a part thereof. Such action, however, cannot be maintained under this section. Desio v. Hutchinson (36 App. D.C. 68).

8. Directed verdict

Where subtenant claimed in opening statement that tenant in consideration of increased rent had orally agreed that subtenant might remain in possession as long as tenant's lease remained in effect, and that subtenant had thereafter paid such increased rent and had made certain substantial improvements on the premises, direction of verdict for tenant was error. De Grazia v. Anderson (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 62 A. 2d 194).

9. Discretion of court

In forcible entry and detainer action against a Chinese, appointment of principal defendant's niece as his interpreter rested in trial court's discretion. Bedrosian v. Wong Kok Chung (D.C. Mun. App. 1943, 33 A. 2d 811).

In forcible entry and detainer action against a Chinese, trial court did not abuse its discretion in appointing principal defendant's niece as his interpreter when his testimony had no substantial bearing upon the factual issues. Id.

10. Emergency Rent Control Act

The effect of Emergency Rent Control Act, § 45–1605, restricting landlord's right to recover possession of housing accommodations is to create a noncontractual statutory right of possession in tenant, continuing at his option beyond expiration of his lease or rental agreement by depriving landlord, unless he claims under one of the permitted grounds, of right to maintain an action for possession. Warthen v. Lamas (D.C. Mun. App. 1945, 43 A. 2d 759).

Under the Emergency Rent Control Act, § 45–1605, the procedure in landlord's action against tenant for possession of premises, except for restrictions as to ground upon which landlord may claim right of possession, remains the same as it was previously. Id.

A roomer, although a tenant under Emergency Rent Control Act, § 45–1611(f), who had allegedly failed to pay rent could be evicted without institution of court proceedings for possession, in absence of any reference to roomers in this section relating to summary proceedings for possession. Tamamian v. Gabbard (D.C. Mun. App. 1947, 55 A. 2d 513).

11. Equitable relief

Equity will relieve against a forfeiture caused by nonpayment of rent unless it is unjust or was inequitable to do so; the only condition precedent to such relief being the tender or payment of the arrears with accrued interest and tender, here, avoided forfeiture of the lease. Burrows Motor Company v. Davis (D.C. Mun. App. 1950, 76 A. 2d 163).

12. Evidence

Evidence in eviction proceeding supported finding that defendant was a roomer, rather than a tenant, and thus subject to eviction by summary proceeding. Levy v. Parks et ano. (D.C. Mun. App. 1960, 157 A. 2d 462).

In forcible entry and detainer action by tenant against landlord's grantee, tenant's denial that he had made any "agreement" with agent of landlord's grantee to rent basement to him was a "conclusion" insufficient to contradict testimony of landlord's grantee. Bedrosian v. Wong Kok Chung (D.C. Mun. App. 1943, 33 A. 2d 811).

Evidence supported finding that there was no unlawful delegation of authority to vice president of real estate company serving as agent of insurance company in managing building owned by insurance company by president of insurance company in authorizing vice president of realty company to verify complaint in action to recover one of storerooms in building from tenant after expiration of lease. Fowei v. Continental Life Ins. Co. (D.C. Mun. App. 1947, 55 A. 2d 205).

13. Force, necessity of

In action brought under this section giving Municipal Court for District of Columbia jurisdiction of action brought against person charged with having forcibly entered and detained real property, there must be actual force employed in the entry or in detention of possession or such threats and menaces of personal violence as will prevent one through fear from asserting his rights. Thurston v. Anderson (D.C. Mun. App. 1945, 40 A. 2d 342).

14. Forfeiture of leasehold

Forfeiture of a leasehold for conditions broken, and restrictions upon the right to assign are looked upon with disfavor. Burrows Motor Company v. Davis (D.C. Mun. App. 1950, 76 A. 2d 163).

The transfer of a portion of a tenant corporation's stock did not constitute an assignment of its lease in violation of its covenant not to assign without the lessor's consent, and judgment awarded to landlord must be reversed. Id.

15. Improvements

Where tenant of a row house, shortly before expiration of a five-year lease, made improvements on the property at a cost of more than $200, but the only improvement landlord was cognizant of was the painting of front porch by tenant, such repairs were not sufficient to have bound tenant for a renewal term of five years, and hence did not constitute notice to landlord that tenant was exercising option contained in lease to renew for a five-year period, and landlord was at liberty, after expiration of lease, to terminate the tenancy and recover possession for landlord's personal occupancy. Warthen v. Lamas (D.C. Mun. App. 1945, 43 A. 2d 759).

16. Issues triable

Landlord's suit for possession of leased premises on ground of nonpayment of rent under this section is statutory substitute for ancient action of ejectment, and issue to be tried is the right to possession. Shipley v. Major (D.C. Mun. App. 1945, 44 A. 2d 540).

17. Jurisdiction

Municipal court had jurisdiction of subject-matter involved in landlord and tenant proceeding and also over the person of defendant in the case, who appeared and made a defense, and the judge was not liable in civil action for the issuance of writ of restitution. Spruill v. O'Toole (1934, 74 F. 2d 559, 64 App. D.C. 85, certiorari denied 55 S. Ct. 406, 294 U.S. 707, 79 L. Ed. 1242, rehearing denied 55 S. Ct. 510, 294 U.S. 732, 79 L. Ed. 1261).

The jurisdiction of Municipal Court for District of Columbia to render judgment for possession of real estate is limited to those cases provided for by this section. Thurston v. Anderson (D.C. Mun. App. 1945, 40 A. 2d 342).

The District of Columbia Municipal Court has jurisdiction to try actions involving possession of realty. Service Parking Corp. v. Trans-Lux Radio City Corp. (D.C. Mun. App. 1946, 47 A. 2d 400, modified on other grounds, 54 A. 2d 144).

The jurisdiction of the Municipal Court over summary suits to recover possession of real property under this section is limited explicitly to actions by landlords against tenant. Spruill v. Brooks (D.C. Mun. App. 1949, 68 A. 2d 204).

Municipal court should not reject jurisdiction unless and until it is made to appear that the title to land is necessarily directly in issue between the parties, since this is a mandatory requirement provided for by statute. Mindell v. Glenn (D.C. Mun. App. 1949, 65 A. 2d 340, affirmed 74 A. 2d 835).

18. Liability for marshal's negligence

If United States Marshal, acting within order of Municipal Court for District of Columbia issuing writ of restitution, negligently damaged property of tenant in moving it to sidewalk, neither landlord nor landlord's agent would be liable for the results of this negligence unless landlord or its agent participated in the wrongful act. O'Neill Wilson v. Bittinger et al. (1958, 262 F. 2d 714, 104 U.S. App. D.C. 403).

19. "Lodger," "tenant," distinguished

Where apartment hotel had been licensed as a "hotel" by superintendent of licenses, full hotel service was furnished all occupants without extra charge, all rates were by the day with discount in case an apartment was occupied a week or more, and when defendant rented first furnished apartment he signed usual type of registration card used by hotels agreeing to pay certain sum per day, and thereafter moved to another furnished apartment without signing a new registration card and agreed to pay an increased rate, status of defendant was that of a "lodger" rather than a "tenant" and hence he was not entitled to notice to quit because of nonpayment. Davis v. Francis Scott Key Apartments (D.C. Mun. App. 1958, 140 A. 2d 188).

20. Merits

Where there was a voluntary dismissal by landlord of his action to recover possession of leased premises, prior to trial, and no issue was adjudicated, intervenor was not entitled to a judgment on the merits. Schwaner v. George (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 56 A. 2d 161).

21. Money judgment

The recovery of a money judgment for rent in landlord's action for possession of leased premises on ground of nonpayment of rent is but incidental to the main action, which remains basically one for possession. Shipley v. Major (D.C. Mun. App. 1945, 44 A. 2d 540).

22. Nature of possessory action

A landlord's action for possession of leased premises for nonpayment of rent is statutory substitute for the ancient remedy of ejectment. Service Parking Corp. v. Trans-Lux Radio City Corp. (D.C. Mun. App. 1946, 47 A. 2d 400, modified on other grounds 54 A. 2d 144).

23. Notice

Tenant is entitled to 30-day notice to quit before institution of summary proceedings for possession. Thornhill v. Atlantic Life Ins. Co. (1934, 70 F. 2d 846, 63 App. D.C. 184).

Where landlord served notice to quit on tenant but shortly thereafter commenced suit for possession before such notice had run its statutory time, and suit was dismissed on tenant's motion for failure to give notice to quit, dismissal of action did not prevent bringing of subsequent action based on said notice. Royall v. Weitzman (D.C. Mun. App. 1956, 125 A. 2d 680).

Sufficient notice of termination of a month to month tenancy does not in and of itself allow institution of an action for possession, since notice merely cuts off future expectancy of a continuation of the tenancy for one or more terms, and thereupon a tenancy for the terminal month runs its course, and upon the occurrence of both events landlord may maintain action for possession, as tenant is then holding over. Zoby v. Kosmadakes (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 61 A. 2d 618).

A notice to quit is a condition precedent to filing of action by landlord to recover possession of premises from tenant, but is not jurisdictional. Zindler v. Buchanon (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 61 A. 2d 616).

24. Parties

A realty dealer acting as owner's rental agent for percentage of rents is not a party in interest such as is entitled to conduct a landlord and tenant proceeding. Heiskell v. Mozie (1936, 82 F. 2d 861, 65 App. D.C. 255).

In action by purchaser of dwelling house against vendors to recover possession, wherein certain persons living in the house intervened, claiming to be tenants, intervenors to establish their right to intervene, as well as their defense, were required to prove that they were tenants, since, if they were merely roomers, they had no standing in action. Taylor v. Dean et al. (D.C. Mun. App. 1951, 78 A. 2d 382).

Where husband and wife own property by the entireties, a possessory action against a tenant may be brought by either, and a judgment in such an action inures equally to benefit of both. Zoby v. Kosmadakes (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 61 A. 2d 618).

In owner's action to recover possession of apartment rented by defendant's husband, defendant was a proper party and owner was not required to name husband as a party defendant, where husband had surrendered key after defendant removed furniture and left apartment at time of marital difficulties and had stated to owner's representative that husband was finished with apartment and owner in reliance thereon had rented apartment to third party. Tate v. Brawner (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 58 A. 2d 307).

25. Person aggrieved

Where lessees under concurrent lease, which had been executed by lessors during continuance of monthly tenancy under prior lease of same premises and simultaneously with assignment of prior lease to the new lessees, gave notice to monthly tenant pursuant to provisions of prior lease, such lessees were entitled to possession of premises, and were therefore "persons aggrieved" who were by statute entitled to bring summary proceedings to obtain possession Gulf Motors Inc. et ano. v. Fenner et ano. (D. C. Mun. App. 1955, 114 A. 2d 543).

One suing under this section for recovery of leased premises was only obliged to establish that he was the person aggrieved by tenant's failure to vacate. J. & J. Slater, Inc. v. Brainerd (D.C. Mun. App. 1945, 43 A. 2d 714).

Provision in lease for abatement of rent if lessor should be unable to deliver possession did not prevent lessor from being "person aggrieved" who could sue former tenant for possession, in absence of evidence that lessor had yielded right to sue to new tenant or had done anything to extinguish his own title. Id.

Owner was proper party to maintain suit against tenant to recover business premises at expiration of term lease, since he was a "person aggrieved" within this section authorizing municipal court to issue summons on complaint under oath of "person aggrieved" to recover premises detained, notwithstanding lease was made in the name of owner's agent. Bell v. Westbrook (D.C. Mun. App. 1947, 50 A. 2d 264).

26. Petition

Complaint alleging that defendant obtained possession of premises by fraud and had trespassed thereon and that he had refused to surrender possession, but not alleging that defendant entered by actual force or that he retained possession by force, or by menaces or other acts legally equivalent to force, did not state a case of forcible entry and detainer within jurisdiction of Municipal Court for District of Columbia. Thurston v. Anderson (D.C. Mun. App. 1945, 40 A. 2d 342).

27. Pleading

Although proceedings in landlord and tenant actions are informal, tenant is entitled to be informed by complaint of nature of recovery sought against him. Shipley v. Major (D.C. Mun. App. 1945, 44 A. 2d 540).

If a landlord seeks a money judgment for rent in action to recover leased premises on ground of nonpayment of rent, he must set forth his claim for such in his complaint. Id.

Where action by husband and wife as landlords for possession of housing accommodations was brought as a summary proceeding, the verification of complaint by husband, for himself and as agent for his wife, was authorized by this section providing that complaint shall be verified by person aggrieved or by his agent or attorney having knowledge of the facts. Wynn v. Washington (D.C. Mun. App. 1947, 53 A. 2d 275).

28. Purpose

This section giving Municipal Court for District of Columbia jurisdiction of actions of forcible entry and detainer is intended to provide a summary remedy in definitely limited classes of cases, and is not a substitute for action of ejectment. Thurston v. Anderson (D.C. Mun. App. 1945, 40 A. 2d 342).

29. Reentry without legal process

This section providing that whenever any person shall detain possession of realty without right, or after his right to possession shall have ceased, it shall be lawful for municipal court, on complaint under oath verified by person aggrieved by such detention or by his agent or attorney having knowledge of the facts, to issue a summons to party complained of to appear and show cause why judgment should not be given against him for restitution of possession, does not abolish the common law right of a landlord, when tenant's right to possession has ceased, to enter on leased premises and take possession thereof without use of legal process. Snitman v. Goodman et al. (D.C. Mun. App. 1955, 118 A. 2d 394).

30. Res judicata

Where suit filed on March 17, 1942, was essentially one for trespass with conversion of personal property laid in aggravation of damages, in subsequent statutory action to recover possession allegedly withheld since April, 1942, evidence was insufficient to sustain defendant's plea of res judicata based on judgment in the former suit. Kincade v. Wah (D.C. Mun. App. 1944, 38 A. 2d 112).

A consent judgment awarding plaintiff husband possession of premises, in action brought by husband alone against defendant as tenant of property owned by husband and wife as tenants by the entireties, which judgment necessarily determined defendant's status as a tenant, was res judicata on that issue in subsequent suit brought by husband and wife against defendant to recover rent. David v. Nemerofsky (D.C. Mun. App. 1945, 41 A. 2d 838).

Where husband and wife owned realty as tenants by the entireties, as respects doctrine of res judicata, the wife should be regarded as in "privity" with husband, which denotes mutual or successive relationship to the same rights of property. Id.

31. Right to possession

Where party occupying landowner's premises had no right to possession but his original entry had been lawful, and where action under this section was not available because relation of landlord and tenant had not existed, ejectment was only appropriate remedy. Shapiro v. Christopher (1952, 195 F. 2d 785, 90 U.S. App. D.C. 114).

Where plaintiff sued for possession of property, which it had purchased at foreclosure sale, against defendant who had previously owned the property but had defaulted on the second trust note, the defense that, when the deed of trust was foreclosed, defendants automatically became tenants at will under § 45–822 and could not be ousted by reason of § 45–1605, is not applicable where premises are not housing accommodations within the meaning of § 45–1611. Surratt v. Real Estate Exchange, Inc. (D.C. Mun. App. 1950, 76 A. 2d 587).

32. Summary proceedings

Summary proceedings under R.S., D.C. 684, cannot be maintained unless conventional relation of landlord and tenant exists between the parties. Willis v. Eastern Trust & B. Co. (1898, 18 S. Ct. 347, 169 U.S. 295, 42 L. Ed. 752).

Under this section providing that whenever any person shall retain possession of realty without right, or after his right to possession shall have ceased, Municipal Court of District of Columbia may issue summons to party complained of to appear and show cause why judgment should not be given against him for restitution of possession, remedy is summary in character, and the issue to be tried in such cases is the right of possession. Rudder v. U.S.A. (D.C. Mun. App. 1954, 105 A. 2d 741, reversed on other grounds, 226 F. 2d 51, 96 U.S. App. DC 329).

33. Surrender of tenancy

Where wife removed furniture and left apartment and husband, who was the tenant, surrendered his tenancy, wife had no further rights in premises and her forcible re-entry and detention of possession was unlawful so as to entitle owner to recover possession under this section. Tate v. Brawner (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 58 A. 2d 307).

34. Tenant in common

Where decedent died intestate, left no children or no descendants of children or father or mother, plaintiff as a child of one of the deceased sisters of the decedent became a tenant in common with other heirs of realty owned by the decedent and had a right to maintain proceedings for recovery or possession of the realty in her own name. Bagby v. Honesty (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 140 A. 2d 786).

35. Title not issue

If complaint were forcible entry and detainer, a claim of title by the defendant would be a proper defense to the action. Loring v. Bartlet (4 App. D.C. 1).

In proceedings for forcible entry and detainer, the title is not tried and is not at issue, but solely the right to the possession. Brown v. Slater (23 App. D.C. 51).

Right to possession of alleged purchaser at trustee's sale, not proved where tenant under 5-year lease continued to comply with said lease and dealt throughout with the same agent and knew nothing of the sale. Capital Apartment Corp. v. Vassos (1933, 65 F. 2d 482, 62 App. D.C. 136).

36. Trespass, action for

The action of trespass to realty contemplated by section 11–704 is one for damages, and said section was not applicable to give Municipal Court for District of Columbia jurisdiction of action to obtain possession of realty. Thurston v. Anderson (D.C. Mun. App. 1945, 40 A. 2d 342).

Forcible entry and detainer is not a substitute for trespass, and the actions are not the same. Id.

37. Verification

Where affidavit in action for possession of realty purported to be the affidavit of plaintiff corporation, affidavit contained no mention of any individual, making the affidavit as agent for the corporation, and signature of officer was not made as officer's individual signature, but as signature of corporate officer, the affidavit was fatally defective. Strand Restaurant Co. v. Parks Engineering Co. (D.C. Mun. App. 1952, 91 A. 2d 711).

§ 16–1502. Service of summons.

The summons provided for by section 16–1501 shall be served seven days, exclusive of Sundays and legal holidays, before the day fixed for the trial of the action. If the defendant has left the District of Columbia, or cannot be found, the summons may be served by delivering a copy thereof to the tenant, or by leaving a copy with some person above the age of sixteen years residing on or in possession of the premises sought to be recovered, and if no one is in actual possession of the premises, or residing thereon, by posting a copy of the summons on the premises where it may be conveniently read. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 581, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–736 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 21, 31 Stat. 1193).

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Challenging service of process 1
Confession of judgment 2
Construction 3
Delay in motion to vacate judgment 4
Posting on door 5
Return 6
Substantial compliance 7
Substitute service 8
Voluntary appearance 9

1. Challenging service of process

It is a general rule, with limited exceptions, that the question of defective service can be raised only by one on whom the attempted service was made and that one defendant has no standing to question the service on a co-defendant. Therefore, a motion to quash service made by one not even a party ought not to be heard. Everett v. Miller (D.C. Mun. App. 1949, 67 A. 2d 399).

2. Confession of judgment

A judgment in favor of landlord suing tenant for possession of leased premises was void for failure of court to acquire jurisdiction over tenant who was not served with process and who did not voluntarily appear, notwithstanding that tenant had signed "confession of judgment", where "confession of judgment" did not purport to contain a power of attorney authorizing landlord's attorney to appear for tenant and confess judgment. Sandler v. Kass Realty Co. (D.C. Mun. App. 1946, 48 A. 2d 617).

3. Construction

For the purpose of this section, a person below the age of sixteen years does not come within the term "any one". Dewey v. Clark (1950, 180 F. 2d 766, 86 U.S. App. D.C. 137).

Requirements of the statutory phrase "cannot be found" were met by the deputy marshal in posting summons on door. Id.

4. Delay in motion to vacate judgment

Where extenant's motion to vacate default judgment in action for possession of property was filed more than a year after she had been evicted pursuant to the judgment and writ of restitution, trial court was justified in denying motion. Renshaw v. Swift et ano. (D.C. Mun. App. 1956, 123 A. 2d 618).

5. Posting on door

In suit to recover possession of house, process was not defective on ground that marshal, without using diligent effort to obtain personal service, posted summons on door, where record disclosed service in strict compliance with this section. Gordon v. Tino (D.C. Mun. App. 1946, 50 A. 2d 593).

Where deputy marshal returned to premises three times with no response, and finally fastened the two summonses flat against the door, valid service was made, since defendant was not to be found and no one over sixteen could be said to be in possession. Dewey v. Clark (1950, 180 F. 2d 766, 86 U.S. App. D.C. 137).

6. Return

Where a valid service had been effected in landlord's action against tenant for possession of realty, either by delivery of copy to one in possession of realty, or by posting copy on realty, service was valid regardless of whether marshal's return correctly showed the method by which the service was effected. Etelson v. André (D.C. Mun App. 1948, 61 A. 2d 806).

7. Substantial compliance

Service of summons by leaving a copy with a person over 16 years of age in possession of the premises and a return to that effect by the marshal was a substantial compliance with this section. Bliss v. Duncan (44 App. D.C. 93). See, also, Settlemier v. Sullivan (1878, 97 U.S. 444, 7 Otto 444, 24 L. Ed. 1110).

8. Substitute service

Where marshal returned in afternoon after receiving no response when he had rung bell several times on morning visit, and maid refused to take paper marshal requested her to take, and marshal tacked it on the door, failure to make more than two attempts to effect personal service was not as a matter of law a lack of due diligence to effect personal service so as to invalidate substituted service under this section prescribing methods of service available in summary actions for possession of realty. Etelson v. André (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 61 A. 2d 806).

9. Voluntary appearance

The voluntary appearance of tenant, through its attorney, gave the court jurisdiction to enter judgment in favor of landlord suing for possession of leased premises, notwithstanding that tenant was not served with process. Crescent Cafe Co. v. Kass Realty Co. (D.C. Mun. App. 1946, 48 A. 2d 618).

§ 16–1503. Judgment and execution for possession.

When, upon a trial in a proceeding pursuant to this chapter, it appears that the plaintiff is entitled to the possession of the premises, judgment and execution for the possession shall be awarded in his favor, with costs; and if the plaintiff becomes nonsuit or fails to prove his right to the possession, the defendant shall have judgment and execution for his costs. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 581, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Attorney's fee 1
Intervention 2
Law governing 3
Mandatory 4

1. Attorney's fee

Where landlord in his suit for possession of leased premises on ground of nonpayment of rent made no claim in his complaint for a money judgment, trial court was justified in denying landlord's claim for attorney's fee pursuant to provision in lease. Shipley v. Major (D.C. Mun. App. 1945, 44 A. 2d 540).

Attorney's fees were not taxable as costs in landlord's action to recover possession of leased premises on ground of nonpayment of rent. Id.

2. Intervention

Where landlord took a voluntary nonsuit in a summary proceeding by landlord against tenant, intervenor who, though not specifically allowed to intervene as a defendant, intervened for the purpose of contesting landlord's right to possession, was entitled as a matter of law to judgment for her costs. Schwaner v. George (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 56 A. 2d 161).

3. Law governing

Where there was a conflict between Landlord and Tenant Rule 6 and this section dealing with costs in a summary proceeding between landlord and tenant, this section would prevail. Schwaner v. George (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 56 A. 2d 161).

4. Mandatory

This section providing that if it appears that plaintiff is entitled to possession of leased premises in summary proceeding between landlord and tenant, judgment and execution for possession shall be awarded in plaintiff's favor with costs, and that if plaintiff becomes nonsuit or fails to prove his right to possession, defendant shall have judgment and execution for his costs, is mandatory. Schwaner v. George (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 56 A. 2d 161).

§ 16–1504. Certification to District Court upon plea of title—Undertaking.

When, upon a trial in a proceeding pursuant to this chapter, the defendant pleads title to the premises, in himself or in another under whom he claims, setting forth the nature of the title, under oath, and enters into an undertaking, with sufficient surety, to be approved by the court, to pay all intervening damages and costs and reasonable intervening rent for the premises, the court shall certify the proceedings to the United States District Court for the District of Columbia, and the proceeding shall be further continued in the District Court according to its rules. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 482, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Estoppel 2
Jurisdiction 3
Rejection of jurisdiction 4
Review 5
Special plea, necessity for 6
Undertaking 7

1. Directed verdict

Where claimant, who sought possession of commercial property, alleged that tenant held possession under expired leasehold, and tenant filed sworn answer denying claimant was entitled to possession and alleging that tenant was entitled to title and possession because of valid contract to purchase property which was entered into prior to alleged sale of premises to claimant, and tenant requested that case be certified to District Court for trial, directing verdict in claimant's favor on opening statements was improper since tenant's sworn answer was sufficient claim of title to entitle tenant to present such evidence of title so that trial court might determine whether title to real estate was necessarily involved in case. Nickles v. Sullivan (D.C. Mun. App. 1951, 83 A. 2d 283).

2. Estoppel

Where defendant in ejectment action claimed right of possession under lease from plaintiff, he was thereby estopped to deny plaintiff's title. Shapiro v. Christopher (1952, 195 F. 2d 785, 90 U.S. App. D.C. 114).

3. Jurisdiction

District of Columbia Court of General Sessions lacked jurisdiction of action for possession of certain realty allegedly held without right by defendant and defendant denied that the plaintiff had any right, title, or interest in the property. A. A. Zabarah v. Yemen Arab Republic (D.C. App. 1964, 198 A. 2d 906).

The Municipal Court of the District of Columbia has no jurisdiction to try title to real property. Ourisman Chevrolet, Inc. v. Suber (D.C. Mun. App. 1954, 104 A. 2d 252).

4. Rejection of jurisdiction

The Municipal Court of the District of Columbia should not reject jurisdiction in cases involving title to realty unless and until it is made to appear that title to land is necessarily and directly in issue between the parties. Nickles v. Sullivan (D.C. Mun. App. 1951, 83 A. 2d 283).

Generally, the municipal court will not reject jurisdiction until it is made to appear that the title to land is necessarily and directly in issue between the parties. Knowles v. Mosher (D.C. Mun. App. 1946, 45 A. 2d 755).

5. Review

In suit in municipal court for District of Columbia for possession of realty, where question of title was interjected by defendant by attaching to his motion for a stay a copy of his complaint in district court for specific performance of alleged contract to purchase disputed property and such interjection was in violation of plaintiff's right to have title pleaded in method prescribed by this section, stay order of Municipal Court was appealable. Ourisman Chevrolet, Inc. v. Suber (D.C. Mun. App. 1954, 104 A. 2d 252).

In suit in Municipal Court for District of Columbia for possession of realty, where defendant attempted to put title in issue but failed to comply with mandatory provisions of this section requiring plea under oath accompanied by an undertaking, plaintiff had right to a trial of his claim for possession, and stay of proceeding pending final disposition of defendant's suit in District Court for specific performance of alleged contract to purchase disputed property was error. Id.

6. Special plea, necessity for

The statute providing that title in action for possession of realty must be put in issue by plea under oath, accompanied by an undertaking, is mandatory; if defendant fails to perform any of the requirements the court is without authority to dismiss for lack of jurisdiction and must proceed to hear case on issue of possession. S. V. Watwood v. W. W. Morrison et ano. (D.C. App. 1963, 193 A. 2d 71). Defendant sued for possession of realty did not adequately plead title, where defendant failed to furnish undertaking and her plea was merely an assertion of undermined rights under contract. Id.

The question of title is not automatically in issue in every action for possession of real estate; it becomes an issue only when plaintiff's title is challenged by the defendant; such challenge must follow statutory requirements. Id.

Plea of title purportedly filed by defendant sued for possession of realty did not serve to oust court of jurisdiction under statute dealing with actions for trespass or injury to realty and not with possessory actions. Id.

Pendency in District Court of suit for specific performance of contract of sale of residential property did not deprive Court of General Sessions of jurisdiction in action for possession of the residential property. Id.

This section, prescribing procedure to be followed when title is put in issue by defendant in summary proceeding for possession of real property and requiring that the litigant must file written plea setting forth nature of title claimed, accompanied by an undertaking, is mandatory, and question of title can enter case only by special plea of defendant and if not perfected in accordance with statutory requirements, court is without authority to dismiss for lack of jurisdiction, but must proceed to hear case on issue of possession. Sayles v. Eden (D.C. Mun. App. 1958, 144 A. 2d 895).

This section providing that title in summary proceedings shall be put in issue by plea under oath, accompanied by an undertaking, is mandatory and if not complied with, no question of title can be brought into case. Ourisman Chevrolet, Inc. v. Suber (D.C. Mun. App. 1954, 104 A. 2d 252).

If tenant holding over after expiration of lease wished to dispute purchaser's title in suit instituted by purchaser in Municipal Court to obtain possession of dwelling for use as a residence, a special plea was required to be filed and undertaking given whereupon the case would be certified to district court. Miller v. Prophet (D.C. Mun. App. 1944, 37 A. 2d 450).

In a summary proceeding brought in municipal court, question of title can enter the case only by special plea but defendant in such a plea must comply with this section, and if no plea of title is filed the court is free to proceed and try the issue of possession. Knowles v. Mosher (D.C. Mun. App. 1946, 45 A. 2d 755).

This section providing that title in summary proceedings be put in issue by plea under oath, accompanied by an undertaking, is mandatory, since in such action the issue to be tried is one of possession and not of title. Id.

Questions of title can enter the case only by special plea of the defendant and such a plea must comply with this section, and if no plea of title is filed, there is no question of title, and the court is free to proceed to try the issue of possession. Mindell v. Glenn (D.C. Mun. App. 1949, 65 A. 2d 340, affirmed 74 A. 2d 835).

7. Undertaking

Statute providing that if defendant pleads title to premises to which plaintiff claims right of possession, defendant must file undertaking and case must be certified to United States District Court applies only to cases wherein defendant injects question of title into case, not where plaintiff commences action requiring him as essential element of his claim of possession to prove title. A. A. Zabarah v. Yemen Arab Republic (D.C. App. 1964, 198 A. 2d 906).

Rule requiring that defendant who claims title to premises in a possessory action "accompany" his plea with an undertaking and that action then be certified to the United States District Court does not preclude Municipal Court from allowing an enlargement of 4-day period for filing such undertaking. J. G. Sutton v. E. B. Jones (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 180 A. 2d 470).

Provisions of this section relating to certification of case involving title to realty to federal district court are mandatory, and defendant filing such a plea must comply with this section, and if plea of title is not perfected in compliance with this section, the municipal court has no alternative except to try the issue of possession. Nickles v. Sullivan (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 97 A. 2d 920).

Municipal Court of District of Columbia did not abuse discretion in requiring $7,500 undertaking to be posted by defendant who sought certification of case involving title to realty to federal district court. Id.

The amount of undertaking required in order to obtain certification of case involving title to realty to federal district court is a matter within sound discretion of Municipal Court of District of Columbia, and is not subject to reversal unless abuse of discretion is shown. Id.

Where defendant, in action for recovery of possession of realty, put title in issue and sought certification of case to federal district court, but failed to post undertaking required by District of Columbia Code, municipal court did not err in striking plea of title and in refusing to certify case. Id.

§ 16–1505. Conclusiveness of judgment.

A judgment of the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions in a proceeding pursuant to this chapter is not a bar to any afteraction brought by either party, and does not conclude any question of title between them, where title is not pleaded by the defendants. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 582, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §§ 11–739, 11–751a (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 24, 31 Stat. 1193; Feb. 17, 1909, ch. 134, 35 Stat. 623; Mar. 3, 1921, ch 125, § 12, 41 Stat. 1312; Oct. 23, 1962, Pub. L. 87–873, § 1, 76 Stat. 1171; July 8, 1963, Pub. L. 88–60, § 1, 77 Stat. 77).

Section 11–751a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., is also cited as one of the sources of this section, as section 11–751a, enacted by the act of Oct. 23, 1962, changed the name of the Municipal Court for the District of Columbia to the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions.

Changes are made in phraseology.,

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. Termination of tenancy

An agreement whereby property was conveyed to holder of a deed of trust did not affect lease of the premises previously made by owner, but the title taken was subject to the lease, in absence of foreclosure of the deed of trust, even though the lease was not of record, and to terminate the tenancy it was necessary that notice to quit expire on the day on which the tenancy commenced to run. Knowles v. Mosher (D.C. Mun. App. 1946, 45 A. 2d 755).

Chapter 17.—GAMING TRANSACTIONS

Sec.
16–1701. Invalidity of gaming contracts.
16–1702. Recovery of losses at gaming.
16–1703. Relief from further penalty upon discovery and repayment of losses.
16–1704. Cheating at gambling.

(a) A thing in action, judgment, mortgage, or other security or conveyance made and executed by a person in which any part of the consideration is for money or other valuable things won by playing at any game whatsoever, or by betting on the sides or hands of persons who play, or for the reimbursement or payment of any money knowingly lent or advanced for the purpose, or lent or advanced at the time and place of the play or bet, to a person so playing or betting or who, during the play, so plays or bets, is void except as provided by subsection (b) of this section.

(b) If the mortgage, security, or other conveyance affects real property, it shall inure to the sole benefit of, and devolve upon, the persons who might have, or be entitled to, the property, as if the person who executed the instrument had died immediately after its execution, or as if the instrument had been made to the persons so entitled after the death of the person who executed it. A grant or conveyance made for the purpose of preventing the real property from coming to, or devolving upon, the persons intended by this section to enjoy the property as herein provided is fraudulent and void.

(c) This section does not affect the validity of negotiable instruments embraced by chapters 1 to 10 of Title 28. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 582, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–701 (9 Ann, 14, § 1, 1710; Kilty's Rept., p. 248; Alex. Brit. Stat., p. 689; Comp. Stat. D.C., p. 243, § 12).

The provisions set out in subsec. (c) are inserted for the purpose of clarification. See the case of Wirt v. Stubblefield, 17 App. D.C. 283.

Changes are made in phraseology and arrangement.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Credit transactions 1
Effect of negotiable instruments law 2

1. Credit transactions

Contracts growing out of gaming transactions are declared by law to be void, but credit transactions could not be deemed gaming within the meaning of this section in absence of rule of law which says that one who sells on credit has no standing in court because he knew or should have known that the purchaser was a bad credit risk. Universal Jewelry Company, Inc. v. McIver (D.C. Mun. App. 1949, 68 A. 2d 226).

2. Effect of negotiable instruments law

Insofar as this chapter may or would, if in force, affect the validity of negotiable instruments embraced by the Negotiable Instruments Law they are inconsistent with the provisions of the last-mentioned act, and are to that extent repealed and are no longer, as to negotiable instruments in force in the District of Columbia. Wirt v. Stubblefield (17 App. D.C. 283).

A person who, at any time or sitting, by playing at cards, dice or any other game, or by betting on the sides or hands of persons who play, loses to a person so playing or betting, a sum of money, or other valuable thing, amounting to $25 or more, and pays or delivers the money or thing, or any part thereof, may, within three months after the payment or delivery, sue for and recover the money, goods or other valuable thing, so lost and paid or delivered, or any part thereof, or the full value thereof, by a civil action, from the winner thereof, with costs.

If the person who loses the money or other thing, does not, within three months actually and bona fide, and without collusion, sue, and with effect prosecute, therefor, any person may sue for, and recover treble the value of the money, goods, chattels, and other things, with costs of suit, by a civil action against the winner, one-half to the use of the plaintiff, the remainder to the use of the District of Columbia. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 582, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–702 (9 Ann, ch. 14, § 2, 1710; Kilty's Rept., p. 248; Alex. Brit. Stat., p. 690; Md. Act 1781, ch. 16, § 1; Comp. Stat. D.C., p. 244, § 13; R.S., D.C., § 837; Md. Act 1777, ch. 6, § 1).

The amount of "twenty-six dollars and sixty-seven cents" is rounded to the amount of $25, which is the approximate American equivalent of the British sum specified by the original statute.

The term "civil action" is substituted for "action of debt" to conform with rule 2 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and of the civil rules of the Court of General Sessions; and words "in which actions or suits no more than one imparlance shall be allowed; in which actions it shall be sufficient for the plaintiff to allege, that the defendant or defendants are indebted to the plaintiffs, or received to the plaintiff's use, the monies so lost and paid, or converted the goods won by the plaintiff's to the defendant's use, whereby the plaintiff's action accrued to him, according to the form of this section, without setting forth the special matter" are omitted as covered or superseded by, or inconsistent with, rules of pleading as set forth in rules of court. See, particularly, rules 7–9 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, and of the civil rules of the Court of General Sessions, and rule 4 of the small claims rule of Court of General Sessions.

The provision that the action may "be prosecuted in any court of record" is omitted as inconsistent with provisions governing civil jurisdiction of the District Court and the Court of General Sessions. See sections 11–521 (a) (1), 11–961, and 11–1341 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–1703. Relief from further penalty upon discovery and repayment of losses.

Upon the discovery and repayment of the money or other thing to be discovered and repaid as provided by section 16–1702, the person who so discovers and repays shall be acquitted, indemnified, and discharged from any further or other punishment, forfeiture, or penalty, that he may have incurred by the playing for, or winning, the money or other thing so discovered and repaid. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 583, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–703 (9 Ann, ch. 14, § 4, 1710; Kilty's Rept., p. 248; Alex. Brit. Stat., p. 691; Comp. Stat. D.C., p. 244, § 15).

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–1704. Cheating at gambling.

Whoever, at any one time or sitting, by fraud or false pretense, while playing any game, or while having a share in a wager played for, or while betting on the sides or hands of persons who play, wins, or acquires to himself or to any other person, above the sum or value of $25, shall, upon conviction of the offense, forfeit five times the value of the sum of money or other thing so won, and shall be deemed infamous.

The penalty prescribed by this section may be recovered in a civil action by the persons specified by, and in the manner provided by, section 16–1702. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 583, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–704 (9 Ann, ch. 14, § 5, 1710; Kilty's Rept., p. 248; Alex. Brit. Stat., p. 691; Md. Act 1780, ch. 23, § 3; Md. Act 1781, ch. 16, § 1; Comp. Stat. D.C., p. 245, § 16).

Surplusage is omitted, and changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–1901. Petition to District Court—Issuance of writ.

A person committed, detained, confined, or restrained from his lawful liberty within the District, under any color or pretense whatever, or a person in his behalf, may apply by petition to the United States District Court for the District of Columbia, or a judge thereof, for a writ of habeas corpus, to the end that the cause of the commitment, detainer, confinement, or restraint may be inquired into. The court or the judge applied to, if the facts set forth in the petition make a prima facie case, shall forthwith grant the writ, directed to the officer or other person in whose custody or keeping the party so detained is, returnable forthwith before the court or judge. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 583, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–801 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1143, 31 Stat. 1372; June 25, 1936, ch. 804, 49 Stat. 1921; June 25, 1948, ch. 646, § 32 (a), (b), 62 Stat. 991; May 24, 1949, ch. 139, § 127, 63 Stat. 107).

1. Aliens

Immigration officers have jurisdiction to exclude an alien who is not entitled under some statute or treaty to come into the United States, yet if the alien is entitled, of right, by some law or treaty, to enter this country, but is nevertheless excluded by such officers, the latter exceed their jurisdiction; and their illegal action, if it results in restraining the alien of his liberty, presents a judicial question for the decision of which the courts may intervene upon a writ of habeas corpus. Lem Moon Sing v. United States (1895, 15 S. Ct. 967, 158 U.S. 538, 39 L. Ed. 1082).

A petition for habeas corpus ought not to be entertained unless the court is satisfied that the petitioner can make out at least a prima facie case. United States v. Sing Tuck (1904, 24 S. Ct. 621, 194 U.S. 161, 48 L. Ed. 917).

Habeas corpus will lie to test the legal authority of the Secretary of Labor to deport alien contract laborers and to revoke the permit of entry. Bata Shoe Co. v. Perkins (1940, 33 F. Supp. 508).

2. Allegations of petition

Habeas corpus petition alleging unlawful confinement of petitioner because he was incompetently represented by counsel who advised him to plead guilty due to arrangement for a light sentence, but not alleging that petitioner misunderstood the nature of the charges or that he did not knowingly plead guilty or was coerced by judge or prosecutor to enter the plea, was properly dismissed. Thomson v. Huff (1945, 149 F. 2d 842, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 165).

If prior application for writ of habeas corpus has been made, in same case, by petitioner or in his behalf, petition should so state and such other facts and documents should be set out as will allow judge properly to determine whether issues presented by present petition were decided in former proceeding. Dorsey v. Gill (1945, 148 F. 2d 857, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 9, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1580, 325 U.S. 890, 89 L. Ed. 2003).

Mere general assertions of incompetency or disinterest on part of counsel do not constitute prima facie showing required by this section to support a petition for writ of habeas corpus. Id.

Petition for writ of habeas corpus should state by what authority respondent purports to detain petitioner, and, if that authority is a warrant of commitment, a copy of it, together with the transcript of record, or its essential parts, in proceeding which resulted in the commitment should be attached to or set out in the petition. Id.

Mere mistakes of counsel cannot be reviewed on a petition for habeas corpus and, to justify a writ on allegations regarding incompetency of attorney, an extreme case must be disclosed. Jones v. Huff (1946, 152 F. 2d 14, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 254). See, also, Council v. Clemmer (1948, 165 F. 2d 249, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 42); Council v. Clemmer (1949, 177 F. 2d 22, 85 U.S. App. D.C. 74, certiorari denied 70 S. Ct. 150, 338 U.S. 880, 94 L. Ed. 540).

Petition for writ of habeas corpus alleging that, prior to trial in criminal prosecution, petitioner was brought from Virginia to the District of Columbia without extradition proceedings in spite of his protest and his unwillingness to waive extradition, presented no substantial question, and denial of petition without appointment of counsel for defendant was not error. Sheehan v. Huff (1944, 142 F. 2d 81, 78 App. D.C. 391, certiorari denied 64 S. Ct. 1287, 322 U.S. 764, 88 L. Ed. 1591).

3. Amendment of petition

If petition for writ of habeas corpus is insufficient in substance, the judge to whom it is presented may, in interest of justice, permit or require its amendment, especially where petition is product of petitioner's own inexpert draftsmanship. Dorsey v. Gill (1945, 148 F. 2d 857, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 9, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1580, 325 U.S. 890, 89 L. Ed. 2003).

4. Appointment of counsel

Court passing on sufficiency of petition for writ of habeas corpus is not required to appoint an attorney for petitioner and no deprivation of constitutional rights results from failure to do so. Dorsey v. Gill (1945, 148 F. 2d 857, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 9, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1580, 325 U.S. 890, 89 L. Ed. 2003).

A prisoner may not obtain a writ of habeas corpus on sole ground that counsel, properly appointed by court to defend him, acted incompetently or negligently during the criminal proceeding. Diggs v. Welch (1945, 148 F. 2d 667, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 5, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1576, 325 U.S. 889, 89 L. Ed. 2002).

Where petition for a writ of habeas corpus charged, in effect, that attorney appointed by court to represent petitioner in a criminal case gave petitioner such bad advice through negligence or ignorance in connection with entering his plea that he could not be said to have been represented by competent counsel, but there was no allegation that court did not select counsel with care, and with due regard for petitioner's constitutional rights, appellate court was required to presume that court appointed a reputable member of bar in whom it had confidence. Id.

Where petition for writ of habeas corpus stated a cause of action entitling petitioner to discharge from custody if allegations thereof were true and petitioner made affidavit stating that he was a poor person unable to pay costs, petitioner was entitled to appointment of competent counsel under the forma pauperis statute, 28 U.S.C. §§ 832 to 836. Ex parte Rosier (1943, 133 F. 2d 316, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 214).

Where a petition for writ of habeas corpus has been presented, legally sufficient on its face to start the court's machinery in motion, the judge should appoint either a guardian or counsel to represent the petitioner in the further stages of the proceeding. Overholser v. Treibly (1945, 147 F. 2d 705, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 389, certiorari denied 66 S. Ct. 38, 326 U.S. 730, 90 L. Ed. 434).

5. Coercion or restraint

Alleged fact that petitioner had been seized and deprived of his liberty by police force and had been lodged in a cell and held in custody incommunicado and brutally beaten for purpose of having petitioner make confession of guilt, was not sufficient to justify issuance of writ of habeas corpus, where no confession had been received or offered in evidence in criminal trial and petitioner was under no coercion when he appeared in court at criminal trial. Dorsey v. Gill (1945, 148 F. 2d 857, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 9, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1580, 325 U.S. 890, 89 L. Ed. 2003).

6. Consideration of petition

A petition for writ of habeas corpus must be carefully considered by judge regardless of source of the petition, and the petition should not be scrutinized with technical nicety nor duty of consideration discharged as a mere matter of routine. Dorsey v. Gill (1945, 148 F. 2d 857, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 9, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1580, 325 U.S. 890, 89 L. Ed. 2003).

7. Construction

This section must be so interpreted as to preserve, in full vigor, the writ of habeas corpus, but it is necessary to give full meaning to all the language of the section and thus protect the writ from abuse. Dorsey v. Gill (1945, 148 F. 2d 857, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 9, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1580, 325 U.S. 890, 89 L. Ed. 2003).

8. Duty of court

Where prisoner filed letter as petition for writ of habeas corpus, action of court in designating competent counsel to take such steps as might seem advisable in protection of rights of prisoner was proper and fully within court's discretion, but views of counsel could not be a substitute for duty of court to determine its action in respect to the writ from petition itself and return and traverses filed thereto. Jones v. Huff (1946, 152 F. 2d 14, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 254).

9. Federal prisoner

A court in the District of Columbia does not have jurisdiction to issue a writ of habeas corpus against Attorney General of the United States or his representative on petition of a federal prisoner confined outside the District, although Attorney General designates place of confinement of person convicted of an offense against the United States. Sanders v. Bennett (1945, 148 F. 2d 19, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 32).

10. Insanity cases

Habeas corpus is available to inmate of hospital for insane, not for purpose of determining inmate's mental condition, but as a method of initiating an appropriate procedure for determination of the inmate's mental condition. Dorsey v. Gill (1945, 148 F. 2d 857, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 9, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1580, 325 U.S. 890, 89 L. Ed. 2003).

"Habeas corpus" is a proper remedy to challenge the continued confinement in mental hospital of persons who claim to be restored to mental health. De Marcos v. Overholser (1943, 137 F. 2d 698, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 131, certiorari denied 64 S. Ct. 157, 320 U.S. 785, 88 L. Ed. 472, rehearing denied 64 S. Ct. 204, 320 U.S. 813, 88 L. Ed. 491).

11. Issuance by court of appeals

Application for habeas corpus to the various District Judges within District must first be shown before justice of federal appellate court will entertain application for writ of habeas corpus. In re Gersing (1945, 145 F. 2d 481, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 245).

The United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia cannot entertain an original petition for writ of habeas corpus, since no statute confers such jurisdiction upon the court. In re Greene (1944, 140 F. 2d 175, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 320).

Appropriate procedure to procure writ of habeas corpus in District of Columbia should have been to address petition to District Court or one of the twelve judges thereof, and petition addressed to one of the justices of the United States Court of Appeals would be denied. In re Holzworth (1935, 74 F. Supp. 388).

12. Issuance of writ, generally

When a petition for writ of habeas corpus is presented to a judge with a request for leave to file it, the judge may, if petitioner is not entitled to a writ, deny leave to file it. Young v. Gill (1945, 149 F. 2d 843, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 166).

Alleged inconsistencies in the proof and insufficiency of evidence on which to sustain conviction were matters reviewable only on appeal and would not support issuance of writ of habeas corpus. Id.

After a petition for writ of habeas corpus has been filed, if it satisfies statutory requirements, the judge should issue the writ forthwith. Dorsey v. Gill (1945, 148 F. 2d 857, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 9, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1580, 325 U.S. 890, 89 L. Ed. 2003).

13. Jurisdiction

A federal district court is without jurisdiction to issue a writ of habeas corpus if the person detained is not within the territorial jurisdiction of the court when the petition is filed. Ahrens et al. v. Clark (1948, 68 S. Ct. 188, 335 U.S. 188, 92 L. Ed. 1898).

The jurisdiction requirement that the person for whose relief a petition for a writ of habeas corpus is intended must be within the territorial jurisdiction of the district court is one which Congress has imposed on the power of the district court to act, and it may not be waived by the parties. Id.

Petition for habeas corpus by prisoner confined in District of Columbia Reformatory at Lorton, Va., was not within territorial jurisdiction of District Court for District of Columbia. McAffee v. Clemmer (1948, 171 F. 2d 131, 84 U.S. App. D.C. 57).

Courts in the District of Columbia may issue writs of habeas corpus directed to those in direct charge of penal institutions of the District which happen to be located just outside its borders, since it is the duty of the District to adjudicate matters arising out of the conduct of its own institutions. Sanders v. Bennett (1945, 148 F. 2d 19, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 32).

Petition for writ of habeas corpus can challenge jurisdiction of court which committed petitioner by showing either that court had no jurisdiction to try petitioner or that during its proceeding his constitutional rights were so far denied that the court lost jurisdiction. Dorsey v. Gill (1945, 148 F. 2d 857, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 9, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1580, 325 U.S. 890, 89 L. Ed. 2003).

Petition for writ of habeas corpus should establish jurisdiction of court by showing place of petitioner's confinement, that it is within territorial jurisdiction of court, name, and address of person in whose custody petitioner is restrained, and any other jurisdictional facts which nature of case may require. Id.

District Court has jurisdiction of habeas corpus proceedings filed by inmates of the District of Columbia Reformatory at Lorton, Virginia, despite the fact that the institution is not within the District. Burns v. Welch (1947, 159 F. 2d 29, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 384).

District court was without jurisdiction to entertain petition for writ of habeas corpus attacking petitioner's original conviction, where petitioner was held in jurisdiction solely by reason of writ of habeas corpus ad prosequendum. Pelly v. Mathews U.S. Marshal (1947, 163 F. 2d 700, 82 U.S. App. D.C. 264, certiorari denied 68 S. Ct. 113, 392 U.S. 811, 92 L. Ed. 388, rehearing denied 68 S. Ct. 207, 332 U.S. 832, 92 L. Ed. 406).

United States District Court for District of Columbia has authority to entertain petitions for habeas corpus on behalf of persons confined in the District workhouse at Occoquan, Virginia, or in the District of Columbia Reformatory at Lorton, Virginia, though located outside the District. Ex parte Flick (1948, 76 F. Supp. 979, affirmed 174 F. 2d 983, 85 U.S. App. D.C. 70, certiorari denied 70 S. Ct. 158, 338 U.S. 879, 94 L. Ed. 539, rehearing denied 70 S. Ct. 343, 338 U.S. 940, 94 L. Ed. 579).

United States District Court for District of Columbia is without jurisdiction to issue habeas corpus to test legality of imprisonment of a person incarcerated in the American Occupation Zone of Germany by judgment of a United States Military Tribunal, though there might be no other tribunal in which relief could be had. Id.

14. Justices may issue

The justices of the United States Court for the District of Columbia have power to issue writ of habeas corpus ad prosequendum. Downey v. United States (1937, 91 F. 2d 223, 67 App. D.C. 192).

15. Nature of writ

The writ of habeas corpus in respect of lunacy is one of relief rather than of original adjudication. Barry v. Hall (1938, 98 F. 2d 222, 68 App. D.C. 350).

"Habeas corpus" can be sought only to effectuate a prisoner's immediate release, and not to test the legality of imprisonment at some future time. Pope v. Huff (1941, 117 F. 2d 779, 73 App. D.C. 170, certiorari denied 62 S. Ct. 134, 314 U.S. 669, 86 L. Ed. 535, rehearing denied 62 S. Ct. 299, 314 U.S. 713, 86 L. Ed. 568, rehearing denied 62 S. Ct. 358, 314 U.S. 714, 86 L. Ed. 569).

Habeas corpus proceeding is not a "criminal proceeding" within provisions of U.S. Const. Amend. Six for assistance of counsel. Dorsey v. Gill (1945, 148 F. 2d 857, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 9, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1580, 325 U.S. 890, 89 L. Ed. 2003).

The use of writ of habeas corpus extends to those exceptional cases where conviction has been in disregard of constitutional rights of accused and where writ is only effective means of preserving his rights. Jones v. Huff (1945, 152 F. 2d 14, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 254).

16. Parole eligibility

Eligibility to parole cannot be tried in habeas corpus. Jones v. Welch (1945, 151 F. 2d 769, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 253).

Where allegations of petition for habeas corpus related to manner in which parole board arrived at its decision not to admit petitioner to parole, the petition was properly denied. Id.

17. Procedure on application

It is the usual procedure on an application for a writ of habeas corpus in a Federal court for the court to issue the writ and on the return, to hear and dispose of the case but it may without issuing the writ consider and determine whether the facts alleged by the petition, if proved, would warrant discharge of the prisoner. Ex parte Quirin (1942, 63 S. Ct. 2, 317 U.S. 1, 87 L. Ed. 3).

Where petition for writ of habeas corpus stated a cause of action entitling petitioner to discharge from custody if allegations were true, failure to accord petitioner a hearing in respect of the merits of his petition was error. Ex parte Rosier (1943, 133 F. 2d 316, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 214).

18. Representation by counsel

The mere fact that an accused was not represented by counsel is not in itself a sufficient basis for granting a writ of habeas corpus. Dorsey v. Gill (1945, 148 F. 2d 857, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 9, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1580, 325 U.S. 890, 89 L. Ed. 2003).

19. Rule to show cause

If, upon consideration of a petition which has been filed, it appears that petitioner is not entitled to writ of habeas corpus, the court should refuse to issue it, but, if allegations of petition are inconclusive, the judge may issue rule to show cause why writ should not be granted.

Dorsey v. Gill (1945, 148 F. 2d 857, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 9, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1580, 325 U.S. 890, 89 L. Ed. 2003).

Where rule to show cause why writ of habeas corpus should not be granted has been issued and judge finds from facts exhibited by opposing party that no issue of fact or law is involved, the judge may refuse to grant the writ, in which event it is not necessary to hold a hearing. Id.

20. Service

The proper person to be served in ordinary habeas corpus proceeding by a federal prisoner confined outside the District of Columbia is warden of penitentiary in which prisoner is confined, rather than an official in District of Columbia who supervises the warden. Sanders v. Bennett (1945, 148 F. 2d 19, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 32).

21. Subsequent petitions

Where judge to whom is presented a petition for writ of habeas corpus, together with a request for leave to file, ascertains that petitioner has on a previous petition had a full hearing on same identical allegations, leave to file second petition should be denied. Dorsey v. Gill (1945, 148 F. 2d 857, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 9, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1580, 325 U.S. 890, 89 L. Ed. 2003).

Where comparison of present habeas corpus petition with prior petition disclosed that all matters sought to be raised on the second petition with one exception were raised on the prior petition district court would not grant the writ raising the same points tried out in the prior proceeding where there were no extraordinary circumstanaces. Jordon v. Clemmer (1948, 80 F. Supp. 539).

22. Sufficiency of petition

Petition for writ of habeas corpus, on the ground that petitioner's confinement after expiration of his sentence was illegal, was denied where petitioner had committed a crime while on parole, and the judge imposing the second sentence had no power to make it and the unexpired portion of the first sentence run concurrently. Hammer v. Huff (1940, 110 F. 2d 113, 71 App. D.C. 246).

A petition alleging that petitioner was restrained of his liberty, describing the person detaining him and the place of the detention, and asserting illegality of the restraint by alleging that the petitioner was at the time of the filing of the petition of sound mind and that his original criminal sentence had expired, stated a cause of action for discharge or issuance of a rule to show cause. Ex parte Rosier (1943, 133 F. 2d 316, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 214).

A petitioner seeking a writ of habeas corpus must make a prima facie case. that is, his petition must show he is entitled to the writ. Dorsey v. Gill (1945, 148 F. 2d 857, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 9, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1580, 325 U.S. 890, 89 L. Ed. 2003).

Judgment under which petitioner seeking writ of habeas corpus is detained in penal institution is impervious to collateral attack unless his petition sufficiently challenges the jurisdiction of the court which committed him. Id.

Petition for writ of habeas corpus on ground that conviction had been obtained by use of improper evidence and that petitioner had been deprived of effective assistance of counsel was properly denied without hearing, where there was no transcript of proceedings in the criminal trial and petition did not disclose exceptional circumstances. Strong v. Huff (1945, 148 F. 2d 692, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 89, followed in 149 F. 2d 30, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 411, certiorari denied 66 St. Ct. 165, 326 U.S. 768, 90 L. Ed. 463).

Petition for writ of habeas corpus charging, in effect, that attorney appointed by court to represent petitioner in criminal prosecution gave him such bad advice through negligence or ignorance in connection with entering his plea that petitioner did not have effective or competent representation by counsel, was insufficient to require a hearing. Diggs v. Welch (1945, 148 F. 2d 667, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 5, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1576, 325 U.S. 889, 89 L. Ed. 2002).

Petition for writ of habeas corpus, alleging in substance that attorney representing defendant, at trial on charge of forgery, failed to object to admission in evidence of an involuntary confession, failed to call witnesses who would have established innocence of defendant, failed to offer defense although defendant was innocent, and failed to take such steps as would have permitted jury to see a sample of defendant's handwriting after a request for such evidnce had been made by a juror, was sufficient and denial of petition without hearing was improper. Jones v. Huff (1946, 152 F. 2d 14, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 254).

23. Time for application

Before trial in District Court where indictment is pending, accused may not test, by means of habeas corpus proceeding, validity of statute which he is charged with having violated. Pelley v. Botkin (1946, 152 F. 2d 12, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 251).

Where application for writ of habeas corpus showed that petitioner was held in custody to await trial under an indictment which accused him of violating U.S. Code, title 18, §§ 9 to 13 and that petitioner sought to be released solely because of alleged unconstitutionality of said sections, the application was premature. Id.

24. Waiver of counsel

Where court granted four successive continuances at request of accused, and thereafter accused reported his attempts made to employ certain counsel, declined the court's offer to appoint counsel, did not request another continuance, and said he preferred to represent himself, which he proceeded to do competently, accused waived right to counsel and allegation in support of petition for writ of habeas corpus that he was denied right to have assistance of counsel was frivolous. Koehne v. Matthews (1948, 169 F. 2d 889, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 401, certiorari denied 69 S. Ct. 654, 336 U.S. 924, 93 L. Ed. 1086, rehearing denied 69 S. Ct. 810, 336 U.S. 947, 93 L. Ed. 1103).

25. Writ as an appeal

The writ of habeas corpus cannot be used for purpose of an appeal, or to retry issues, whether of law or of fact. Dorsey v. Gill (1945, 148 F. 2d 857, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 9, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1580, 325 U.S. 890, 89 L. Ed. 2003).

The writ of habeas corpus is not intended to serve the purposes of an appeal. Eury v. Huff (1945, 146 F. 2d 17, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 289). See, also, Fowler v. Gill (1946, 156 F. 2d 565, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 167, certiorari denied 67 S. Ct. 352, 329 U.S. 791, 91 L. Ed. 677, rehearing denied 67 S. Ct. 488, 329 U.S. 832, 91 L. Ed. 705).

Petition for writ of habeas corpus may not be used as a substitute for an appeal or writ of error. Council v. Clemmer (1948, 165 F. 2d 249, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 42). See, also, Council v. Clemmer (1949, 177 F. 2d 22, 85 U.S. App. D.C. 74, certiorari denied 70 S. Ct. 150, 338 U.S. 880, 94 L. Ed. 540).

A writ of habeas corpus issued pursuant to this chapter shall be served by delivering it to the officer or other person to whom it is directed, or by leaving it at the prison or place at which the party suing it out is detained. The officer or other person shall forthwith, or within such reasonable time as the court or judge directs:

(1) make return of the writ and cause the person detained to be brought before the court or judge, according to the command of the writ; and

(2) certify the true cause of his detainer or imprisonment, if any, and under what color or pretense he is confined or restrained of his liberty.

(Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 583, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–802 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1144, 31 Stat. 1372; June 25, 1948, ch. 646, § 32(a), 62 Stat. 991; May 24, 1949, ch. 139, § 127, 63 Stat. 107).

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Jurisdiction 1
Privileged communications 2

1. Jurisdiction

Service on the commissioners of the District, the Director of Public Welfare, and the Superintendent of Penal Institutions, was sufficient to give the District Court jurisdiction to issue habeas corpus in District of Columbia workhouse located outside of the District. Sanders v. Allen (1939, 100 F. 2d 717, 69 App. D.C. 307).

Although District Court had jurisdiction of habeas corpus proceeding filed by inmate of the District Reformatory at Lorton, Virginia, the court had no jurisdiction to issue writ directed to the Superintendent of the Reformatory who had neither home nor office in the District but resided at Lorton. Burns v. Welch (1947, 159 F. 2d 29, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 384).

2. Privileged communications

Statements made by superintendent of hospital, in response to writ of habeas corpus, that petitioner was insane and dangerous, were entitled to immunity of absolute privilege, and could not be made basis of a libel complaint. Cassel v. Overholser (1948, 169 F. 2d 683, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 350, certiorari denied 69 S. Ct. 741, 336 U.S. 939, 93 L. Ed. 1097).

§ 16–1903. Suspected evasion or disobedience of writ—Procedure.

On an application for a writ of habeas corpus, if probable cause is shown for believing that the person charged with confining or detaining the person applying therefor, or on whose behalf the application is made:

(1) is about to remove the person so detained from the place where he is then detained, for the purpose of evading a writ of habeas corpus, or for other purposes; or

(2) he would evade or not obey a writ of habeas corpus—

the court or judge shall insert in the writ a clause commanding the United States marshal to serve the writ on the person to whom it is directed and cause him immediately to appear before the court or judge, together with the person so confined or detained. Thereupon, the marshal shall immediately carry those persons before the court or judge, and the court or judge shall proceed to inquire into the matter. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 583, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–803 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1145, 31 Stat. 1372; June 25, 1948, ch. 646, § 32(a), 62 Stat. 991; May 24, 1949, ch. 139, § 127, 63 Stat. 107).

§ 16–1904. Forfeiture and penalty for failure to produce.

If an officer or other person to whom a writ of habeas corpus is directed neglects or refuses to:

(1) make return of the writ; or

(2) bring the body of the person detained—

according to the command of the writ, he shall forfeit to the person detained the sum of $500, and be liable to attachment and punishment as for a contempt. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 584, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–804 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1146, 31 Stat. 1372).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–1905. Right to copy of commitment—Forfeiture.

A person committed or detained, or a person in his behalf, may demand a true copy of the warrant of commitment or detainer. An officer or other person detaining a person, who refuses or neglects to deliver to him or to a person in his behalf a true copy of the warrant of commitment or detainer, if one exists, within six hours after the demand, shall forfeit to the party so detained the sum of $500. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 584, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–805 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1147, 31 Stat. 1372).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–1906. Inquiry into cause of detention—Bail—Bond.

On the return of a writ of habeas corpus issued pursuant to this chapter and the production of the person detained, the court or judge shall immediately inquire into the legality and propriety of the confinement or detention. If it appears that the person is detained without legal warrant or authority, the court or judge shall immediately release or discharge him. If the court or judge deems his detention to be lawful and proper, the court or judge shall remand him to the same custody, or, in a proper case, admit him to bail, if he is confined on a charge of having committed a bailable criminal offense. If he is bailed, the court or judge shall require a sufficient bond or recognizance to answer in the proper court, and transmit it to that court (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 584, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

1. Admissibility of evidence

Official hospital records concerning a shooting in a Maine hospital were properly received in evidence in habeas corpus proceeding where issue was whether petitioner was sane or insane. Williams v. Overholser (1945, 151 F. 2d 457, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 235, certiorari denied 66 S. Ct. 957, 327 U.S. 808, 90 L. Ed. 1032).

2. Examination in mental cases

Where petitioner seeks writ of habeas corpus to obtain release from confinement in mental hospital on ground that his mental health is restored, and petitioner demands an examination by independent experts, or in a doubtful case, even in absence of such a demand, it is the right of court to seek assistance of Commission on Mental Health in determining sanity of petitioner. De Marcos v. Overholser (1943, 137 F. 2d 698, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 131, certiorari denied 64 S. Ct. 157, 320 U.S. 785, 88 L. Ed. 472, rehearing denied 64 S. Ct. 204, 320 U.S. 813, 88 L. Ed. 491).

In habeas corpus proceeding where petitioner sought release from confinement on ground that his mental health was restored, and requested that court provide expert witnesses in petitioner's behalf, not members of Commission on Mental Health, court denying request should have offered petitioner an examination by the Commission, but defect was cured by petitioner's insistence in appellate court that such relief if offered would be refused. Id.

Section 21-308 establishing the Commission of Mental Health vests a discretion in court to require the Commission's expert assistance in a habeas corpus proceeding in which by reason of his poverty petitioner is unable to secure the testimony of other professional witnesses. Id.

In habeas corpus proceeding by petitioner who has been duly committed to hospital for insane, the issue which must ultimately be decided is whether petitioner has sufficiently recovered from mental disease so that he may safely be released, and if despite judgment of hospital staff that petitioner has not recovered, there is substantial doubt on the question, it becomes duty of court to see that a new judgment on petitioner's sanity is made according to statutory procedure. Overholser v. De Marcos (1945, 149 F. 2d 23, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 91, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1579, 325 U.S. 889, 89 L. Ed. 2002, rehearing denied 63 S. Ct. 16, 326 U.S. 805, 90 L. Ed. 490).

If proceeding to determine mental condition of a civilian committed to hospital for insane was originally commenced but was not properly carried out and if judge, to whom petition for writ of habeas corpus is presented, is satisfied that, as a consequence, the petitioner was improperly committed, the judge should order that proceedings be reopened and a proper determination made of the petitioner's present mental condition. Dorsey v. Gill (1945, 148 F. 2d 857, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 9, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1580, 325 U.S. 890, 89 L. Ed. 2003).

The frequency with which reexamination regarding present mental condition of a person committed to hospital for insane should be required must depend, in each case, upon the petition presented, the type of insanity for which petitioner was originally committed, time elapsed since last inquiry, and other considerations on record, of which judge is required to take judicial notice. Id.

In habeas corpus proceeding by petitioner who had been duly committed to hospital for insane pursuant to statutory provisions therefor, the only question before court was whether record raised sufficient doubt as to petitioner's insanity at present time to justify reopening commitment proceeding. Ex parte De Marcos (1946, 65 F. Supp. 231).

3. Expert testimony

An inmate of hospital for insane, petitioning for writ of habeas corpus, may demand the expert testimony of members of the Commission on Mental Health, or court of its own motion may require such testimony. Overholser v. De Marcos (1945, 149 F. 2d 23, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 91, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1579, 325 U.S. 889, 89 L. Ed. 2002, rehearing denied 66 S. Ct. 16, 326 U.S. 805, 90 L. Ed. 490).

4. Insane persons

In habeas corpus proceeding, it is not function of judge to determine mental condition of a person who has been committed for insanity, but purpose of such proceeding is rather to determine whether substantial doubt of insanity exists which requires an order reopening proceeding under which petitioner was originally committed to hospital. Overholser v. De Marcos (1945, 149 F. 2d 23, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 91, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1579, 325 U.S. 889, 89 L. Ed. 2002, rehearing denied 66 S. Ct. 16, 326 U.S. 805, 90 L. Ed. 490).

If original commitment to hospital for insane was made under U.S. Code, title 24, § 191, which authorizes detention of insane persons in military service on order of military authority, and the judge, to whom petition for writ of habeas corpus is presented, is satisfied that a sufficient showing of present sanity is made, the judge should order that petitioner be released unless, within a reasonable time specified, the proper military authority orders his recommitment. Dorsey v. Gill (1945, 148 F. 2d 857, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 9, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1580, 325 U.S. 890, 89 L. Ed. 2003).

Where there was evidence in habeas corpus proceeding that petitioner, who had been convicted of manslaughter in Canada and sentenced to life imprisonment prior to his removal to United States, continued to be a person of unsound mind and was not a proper person to be at large, he should be committed to custody of superintendent of hospital of which he had been an inmate pending disposition of appeal from order discharging him, or further order of court Overholser v. De Marcos (1945, 147 F. 2d 145, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 397).

5. Involuntary confessions

The question whether an involuntary confession was received in evidence in criminal prosecution could not be retried by habeas corpus. Eury v. Huff (1945, 146 F. 2d 17, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 289).

6. Judicial notice

In ruling on petition for writ of habeas corpus, court could take judicial notice of its record showing a denial of a prior petition for habeas corpus. Rookard v. Huff (1945, 145 F. 2d 708, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 291).

In habeas corpus proceeding by bankrupts who had been committed to jail for failure to comply with order directing them to turn over certain assets to bankruptcy trustee, justice of federal appellate court could take judicial notice of fact that on former appeals of the bankrupts it was clearly made to appear that bankrupts had been guilty of gross fraud upon bankruptcy court. In re Gersing (1944, 145 F. 2d 481, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 245).

7. Jurisdiction of military commission

Charge that enemies with purpose of destroying war materials and utilities entered or after entry remained in United States territory without uniform alleged an offense which the President was authorized to order tried by military commission and the President's order convening the commission and laying down the procedure to be followed on trial before the commission and for review of its findings and sentence and the procedure followed by the commission were lawful so that the accused were not entitled to discharge on habeas corpus. Ex parte Quirin (1942, 63 S. Ct. 2, 317 U.S. 1, 87 L. Ed. 3).

Writs of habeas corpus were properly denied petitioners held in custody for trial before military commission appointed by the President, on grounds that the President was authorized to order trial before commission, that commission was lawfully constituted and that petitioners were held in lawful custody. Id.

8. Moot questions

Where husband had been improperly imprisoned for contempt for noncompliance with order awarding maintenance pendente lite and suit money, in wife's suit for maintenance, the fact that he had been released from custody on giving bond for satisfaction of contempt judgment did not require dismissal of appeal from order denying writ of habeas corpus as "moot", since husband was in custody of law and was restrained of his liberty. Bates v. Bates (1944, 141 F. 2d 723, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 14).

9. New evidence

Contention on habeas corpus petition that the murder for which petitioner was convicted did not take place as alleged could not be raised by writ of habeas corpus but only on a motion for new trial on the ground of newly discovered evidence. Jordon v. Clemmer (1948, 80 F. Supp. 539).

10. Presumptions

Presumption existed that staff of hospital for insane was competent and that its opinion regarding sanity of an inmate, based on observation and treatment, was correct. Overholser v. De Marcos (1945, 149 F. 2d 23, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 91, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1579, 325 U.S. 889, 89 L. Ed. 2002, rehearing denied 66 S. Ct. 16, 326 U.S. 805, 90 L. Ed. 490).

In determining whether evidence in habeas corpus proceeding by petitioner who had been duly committed to hospital for insane raised doubt regarding validity of judgment of hospital staff sufficient to require reopening of commitment proceeding, presumption that persons legally committed to hospital for insane are insane was to be considered. Id.

The presumption in favor of regularity of judicial proceeding must be fully indulged in habeas corpus proceeding. Jones v. Huff (1946, 152 F. 2d 14, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 254).

11. Purpose

A hearing on habeas corpus is not intended as a substitute for functions of a trial court. Pelley v. Botkin (1946, 152 F. 2d 12, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 251).

12. Release of petitioner

In habeas corpus proceeding, judgment should not order unconditional release of a person committed for insanity. Overholser v. De Marcos (1945, 149 F. 2d, 23, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 91, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1579, 325 U.S. 889, 89 L. Ed. 2002, rehearing denied 66 S. Ct. 16, 326 U.S. 805, 90 L. Ed. 490).

A person held in hospital for insane because of insanity should not be ordered released, unconditionally, in a habeas corpus proceeding. Dorsey v. Gill (1945, 148 F. 2d 857, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 9, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1580, 325 U.S. 890, 89 L. Ed. 2003).

If a civilian is committed to hospital for insane without a judicial determination of his mental condition, the judge in habeas corpus proceeding, should order that the petitioner be released unless, within a reasonable time specified, a proper proceeding shall have been commenced to secure such a judicial determination. Id.

A parole violator, who was returned to prison without permitting counsel who had previously represented prisoner to appear in his behalf or permitting his employer to testify, was entitled to release in habeas corpus proceeding. Fleming v. Tate (1946, 156 F. 2d 843, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 205).

13. Remand

Where petition for habeas corpus was inexpertly drawn by unschooled petitioner but petition did allege as defects in proceedings leading to imprisonment that petitioner was denied assistance of counsel at preliminary hearing and arraignment, that he was innocent of alleged crime, that his prior prison record was called to jury's attention and that his counsel failed to take promised appeal, order dismissing petition would be reversed and case remanded for amendment of petition and hearing on the merits. Council v. Clemmer (1948, 165 F. 2d 249, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 42). See, also, Council v. Clemmer (1949, 177 F. 2d 22, 85 U.S. App. D.C. 74, certiorari denied 70 S. Ct. 150, 338 U.S. 880, 94 L. Ed. 540).

14. Res judicata

The rule of res judicata does not apply in habeas corpus proceedings but the trial judge to whom petition is presented may examine the record in making his determination whether its allegations are sufficient, and he may do so even without issuing a rule to show cause. Rookard v. Huff (1945, 145 F. 2d 708, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 291).

Where contention that jurors in second criminal trial were not impartial was made and supported by evidence in second habeas corpus proceeding which was dismissed and third petition for writ of habeas corpus showed that new evidence was in petitioner's possession when he filed second petition, and no reason was offered for not presenting the proof in second proceeding, controlling weight was properly given to the prior adjudication, and third petition was properly dismissed. Pope v. Huff (1944, 141 F. 2d 727, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 18).

The doctrine of res judicata does not apply to habeas corpus proceedings, but the fact that same issues have been decided in a former proceeding may, as a matter of judicial discretion, be given controlling weight. Pope v. Huff (1944, 141 F. 2d 727, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 18). See, also, Dorsey v. Gill (1945, 148 F. 2d 857, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 9, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1580, 325 U.S. 890, 89 L. Ed. 2003).

Where District Court had jurisdiction in first instance to try petitioner and, before trial, had denied a motion to suppress evidence, the admission of the evidence was not such a denial of constitutional rights as to cause district court to lose jurisdiction, and writ of habeas corpus sought on theory that court had lost jurisdiction was properly denied. Fowler v. Gill (1946, 156 F. 2d 565, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 167, certiorari denied 67 S. Ct. 352, 329 U.S. 791, 91 L. Ed. 677, rehearing denied, 67 S. Ct. 488, 329 U.S. 832, 91 L. Ed. 705).

A determination in habeas corpus proceeding is not strictly res judicata but the court will not grant a second writ raising the same point that was thoroughly tried out and determined in the prior proceeding, except under extraordinary circumstances. Jordon v. Clemmer (1948, 80 F. Supp. 539).

15. Review

Presentation for judicial review of petition for writ of habeas corpus is the "institution of a suit" so that the denial by federal district court of leave to file the petition was a "judicial determination" reviewable on appeal to the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia and reviewable in the Supreme Court by certiorari. Ex parte Quirin (1942, 63 S. Ct. 2, 317 U.S. 1, 87 L. Ed. 3).

On application for leave to file petition for habeas corpus to determine authority of the President to order accused charged with violating the law of war tried by military tribunal and on petition for certiorari to review orders of district court denying application for leave to file petition for habeas corpus, the Supreme Court was not concerned with any question of guilt or innocence of the petitioners. Id.

Where first specification of charge against accused set forth violation of the law of war triable by military commission on application for leave to file petitions for habeas corpus and for certiorari to review orders of district court denying applications for such leave, the Supreme Court would not consider whether other charges were sufficient. Id.

Allegedly erroneous rulings on questions of evidence could be considered only on an appeal from the criminal sentence itself and could not be availed of in a habeas corpus proceeding, since the "writ of habeas corpus" is not a substitute for such an appeal. Curtis v. Rives (1942, 123 F. 2d 936, 75 U.S. App. D.C. 66).

Where charges that accused was not adequately represented in criminal trial and that he was denied the right of the assistance of counsel in perfecting appeal from judgment of conviction were not within the issues in habeas corpus hearing, and there was no finding of fact in respect of either of them, the reviewing court could not consider those charges on appeal from final order entered in habeas corpus proceeding. Id.

Where evidence was conflicting as to whether person seeking discharge on writ of habeas corpus was insane, conclusions of trial court which discharged the writ on ground that petitioner was still insane could not be disturbed on appeal. Williams v. Overholser (1945, 151 F. 2d 457, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 235, certiorari denied 66 S. Ct. 957, 327 U.S. 808, 90 L. Ed. 1032).

16. Right to jury trial

In habeas corpus for release from an insane asylum petitioner is not entitled to jury trial, although the court may call a jury to render an advisory verdict. Barry v. White (1933, 64 F. 2d 707, 62 App. D.C. 69).

The right to a jury trial does not exist on the issue of insanity in a habeas corpus proceeding. De Marcos v. Overholser (1943, 137 F. 2d 698, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 131, certiorari denied 64 S. Ct. 157, 320 U.S. 785, 88 L. Ed. 472, rehearing denied 64 S. Ct. 204, 320 U.S. 813, 88 L. Ed. 491).

In habeas corpus proceeding by petitioner who had been duly committed to hospital for insane pursuant to statutory provisions therefor, the record raised sufficient doubt as to petitioner's insanity at present time to require a reexamination of his mental condition by the Commission on Mental Health in accordance with § 21–308 et seq. under which he was committed. Ex parte De Marcos (1946, 65 F. Supp. 231).

17. Scope of review

The scope of review on habeas corpus is limited to examination of the jurisdiction of the court whose judgment of conviction is challenged and does not include the consideration of guilt or innocence of the petitioner. Evans v. Rives (1942, 126 F. 2d 633, 75 U.S. App. D.C. 242).

A judgment of conviction in criminal case cannot be attacked in habeas corpus proceeding except on jurisdictional grounds. Blount v. Huff (1944, 144 F. 2d 21, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 204, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 276, 323 U.S. 789, 89 L. Ed. 628).

Facts of record with regard to what occurred at a trial cannot be attacked on habeas corpus. Williams v. Huff (1944, 142 F. 2d 91, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 31).

Even if postponement of sentence under first conviction until after second conviction vitiated sentence imposed under first conviction, eligibility to parole, which might be affected, could not be tried in habeas corpus. Pope v. Huff (1944, 141 F. 2d 727, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 18).

In habeas corpus proceeding by petitioner who had been duly committed to hospital for insane, the only question before court was whether evidence raised a doubt regarding validity of judgment of hospital staff sufficient to require reopening of commitment proceeding. Overholser v. De Marcos (1945, 149 F. 2d 23, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 91, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1579, 325 U.S. 889, 89 L. Ed. 2002, rehearing denied 66 S. Ct. 16, 326 U.S. 805, 90 L. Ed. 490).

Where writ of habeas corpus is sought on ground that court which committed petitioner lost jurisdiction because of denial of petitioner's constitutional rights, the writ may be used not only to search record, but to inquire into facts regardless of whether they appear on record, thus giving to person in custody a judicial inquiry into truth and essence of the causes of his detention. Dorsey v. Gill (1945, 148 F. 2d 857, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 9, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1580, 325 U.S. 890, 89 L. Ed. 2003).

Where petitioner had been brought to the District of Columbia from a federal penitentiary outside the District on a writ of habeas corpus ad prosequendum, petitioner could not in habeas corpus proceeding to obtain his release under the prior writ have the court examine alleged errors in the prior trial which resulted in his confinement in penitentiary. Noble v. Botkin (1946, 153 F. 2d 228, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 354).

On writ of habeas corpus, District Court had no jurisdiction to review on merits a revocation of a parole by the Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole of District of Columbia, and only issue was whether petitioner had been deprived of his legal rights by manner in which revocation hearing was conducted. In re Tate (1946, 63 F. Supp. 961).

When directed to an inquiry into cause of imprisonment in judicial proceedings, scope of review on habeas corpus extends only to questions affecting jurisdiction of the court and sufficiency in point of law of the proceedings. Council v. Clemmer (1948, 165 F. 2d 249, 93 U.S. App. D.C. 42). See, also, Council v. Clemmer (1949, 177 F. 2d 22, 85 U.S. App. D.C. 74, certiorari denied 70 S. Ct. 150, 338 US. 880, 94 L. Ed. 540).

The guilt or innocence of the petitioner is a matter that cannot be reviewed in a habeas corpus proceeding which is limited to questions of jurisdiction and questions of constitutional rights. Jordon v. Clemmer (1948, 80 F. Supp. 539).

18. Sufficiency of evidence

Sufficiency of evidence to support a conviction is not jurisdictional and is not open to review in habeas corpus proceeding. Eury v. Huff (1945, 146 F. 2d 17, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 289).

Evidence was insufficient to sustain order in habeas corpus proceeding discharging petitioner from custody of hospital for insane on ground that petitioner was sane. Overholser v. De Marcos (1945, 149 F. 2d 23, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 91, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 1579, 325 U.S. 889, 89 L. Ed. 2002, rehearing denied 66 S. Ct. 16, 326 U.S. 805, 90 L. Ed. 490).

In habeas corpus proceeding by inmate of hospital for insane, that inmate's conduct in hospital was orderly, was not, standing alone, evidence that inmate should be released. Id.

Evidence was insufficient to sustain finding in habeas corpus proceeding that seventeen-year-old boy intelligently waived his constitutional right to counsel in criminal case. Williams v. Huff (1945, 146 F. 2d 867, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 326).

In habeas corpus proceeding, record sustained determination that petitioner continued to be of unsound mind and justified judgment recommitting her to custody of authorities at hospital. Anders v. Overholser (1948, 168 F. 2d 151, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 394).

19. Trial procedure

Where petitioner founded his habeas corpus petition on U.S. Const. Amend. 6, charging that he was not confronted with witnesses against him, in that police deliberately withheld certain persons from testifying, but it appeared that petitioner was present at trial when government witnesses were called and that his counsel cross-examined those witnesses, petitioner's real charge was not denial of the right of confrontation as such, but suppression or concealment of evidence or favorable witnesses, which the reviewing court could assume would have been a denial of "due process of law" in violation of U.S. Const. Amend. 5. Curtis v. Rives (1942, 123 F. 2d 936, 75 U.S. App. D.C. 66).

Evidence, including uncontradicted showing that names of certain witnesses were not only known to accused's counsel at time of criminal trial, but also that "police incidental" on which those names were written was in possession of his counsel at that time, refuted accused's charges, made the basis of a petition for habeas corpus, that accused was not confronted with witnesses against him, in that police deliberately withheld certain persons from testifying, and that jurisdiction to convict and sentence accused was lost through denial of a constitutional right under U.S. Const. Amend. 5. Id.

In habeas corpus proceeding, evidence was insufficient to show that subpoenas issued to witnesses in accused's behalf were not served and that thereby accused was denied compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his own behalf. Id.

An accused could not properly through his counsel argue to the jury in a criminal case that the testimony of named witnesses not called by the government must have been unfavorable to the government and contend in habeas corpus proceeding that he did not know of those witnesses. Id.

Where substance of petitioner's allegation was that he pleaded guilty on advice of his counsel and received a longer sentence than both hoped would be imposed, the petition was not sufficient to show that petitioner did not intelligently consent to waiver of jury trial and summary denial of petition for writ of habeas corpus was not improper. Monroe v. Huff (1944, 145 F. 2d 249, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 246).

Failure of counsel to file appeal, not discovered by accused until after time for appeal had elapsed, was not alone ground for discharge on habeas corpus. Council v. Clemmer (1948, 165 F. 2d 249, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 42). See, also, Council v. Clemmer (1949, 177 F. 2d 22, 85 U.S. App. D.C. 74, certiorari denied 70 S. Ct. 150, 338 U.S. 880, 94 L. Ed. 540).

20. Trial proceedings

A petition for writ of "habeas corpus" may properly be used to challenge the jurisdiction of a court, but it cannot be used to review inconsistencies or even errors of law committed by a court of competent jurisdiction which are proper matters for review on appeal, but not on appeal from an order dismissing a petition for writ of habeas corpus. Watkins v. Rives (1942, 125 F. 2d 33, 75 U.S. App. D.C. 109).

Where petitioner, seeking writ of habeas corpus, had been adjudged guilty of contempt for failure to comply with order requiring him to turn over assets of deceased's estate, inconsistency, if any, between the turnover order which assumed that petitioner had possession of assets, and verdict of jury that petitioner had disposed of assets other than to the use of deceased, was not proper subject for review on habeas corpus. Id.

Where petitioner, seeking writ of habeas corpus, had been adjudged guilty of contempt for failure to comply with order requiring him to turn over assets of deceased's estate, alleged inconsistency between contempt decree and the turnover order, based on alternative nature of the turnover order, and the theory that a remedy at law was elected by entering judgment, with execution as at law, on the verdict evaluating the eloigned assets was not a proper subject for review on habeas corpus. Id.

Writ of habeas corpus cannot be used to inquire into official misconduct occurring prior to indictment and having no bearing on procedure of trial or upon jurisdiction of trial court. Eury v. Huff (1945, 146 F. 2d 17, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 289).

The use of writ of habeas corpus on ground that, during trial, defendant's constitutional rights were so far denied that court lost jurisdiction, is not justifiable unless circumstances are so exceptional that it is the only means of preserving those rights. Fowler v. Gill

21. Waiver of counsel

In habeas corpus proceeding presenting issue whether 17 year old boy competently and intelligently waived right to counsel in criminal case, the District Court should have taken evidence and determined whether, in light of his age, education and information, and all other pertinent facts, he sustained burden of proving that his waiver was not competently and intelligently made. Williams v. Huff (1944, 142 F. 2d 91, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 31).

Where record in prosecution for assault with dangerous weapon showed that accused was informed of his right to counsel and undertook to waive the right, but did not show that the waiver was competently and intelligently made, that issue was required to be determined in habeas corpus proceeding. Id.

Record of previous conviction which showed that accused was advised of his constitutional right to counsel which he expressly waived could not be attacked by oral testimony in habeas corpus proceeding. Id.

Where petitioner seeking writ of habeas corpus was seventeen years old at time of his plea of guilty, it created an inference of fact that his waiver of constitutional right to counsel was not intelligent, and corroborated testimony that he entered plea on advice of other prisoners who informed him that such a plea would give him a better chance for probation. Id.

Evidence of extreme nervousness and depression failed to establish, as ground for setting aside sentence on habeas corpus, incompetency of accused to waive indictment, trial by jury, and representation by counsel, and plead guilty to information charging housebreaking and grand and petit larceny. Solis v. Clemmer (1948, 168 F. 2d 155, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 113, certiorari denied 68 S. Ct. 1519, 334 U.S. 860, 92 L. Ed. 1781).

A person at whose instance or in whose behalf a writ of habeas corpus has been issued may traverse the return thereto, or plead any matters showing that there is not a sufficient legal cause for his confinement or detention. The court of judge may issue process for witnesses or for the production of papers, which shall be served and enforced in like manner as similar process issued in a cause pending in the court, if the court or judge is satisfied as to the materiality of the testimony proposed to be adduced. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 584, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. Decree of state court

In habeas corpus proceeding in the District for the custody of a minor child, a decree, in a state court having jurisdiction, awarding divorce and the custody of the child, is conclusive. Burrowes v. Burrowes (1935, 78 F. 2d 742, 64 App. D.C. 392).

§ 16–1908. Right of other persons to writ.

A person entitled to the custody of another person, unlawfuly confined or detained by a third person, as a parent, guardian, committee, or husband, entitled to the custody of a minor child, ward, lunatic, or wife, upon application to the court or a judge as provided by this chapter, and showing just cause therefor, under oath, is entitled to a writ of habeas corpus, directed to the person confining or detaining, requiring him forthwith to appear and produce before the court or judge the person so detained, and the same proceedings shall be had in relation thereto as provided for by this chapter. The court or judge, upon hearing the proofs, shall determine which of the contesting parties is entitled to the custody of the person so detained, and commit the custody of the person to the party legally entitled thereto. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 584, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

1. Abuse of discretion

In habeas corpus proceeding brought by illegitimate child's mother who sought control and custody of child who was in control of nonparent, awarding of custody of child to mother was not an abuse of discretion, where mother had made persistent efforts to obtain child and evidence indicated that she was a presently fit mother. Bell et al. v. Leonard (1958, 251 F. 2d 890, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 179).

2. Child's welfare, determination of

Where only action taken because of mother's violation of order awarding custody to grandfather was to cut off meager sum of $5 a week alimony and $15 a week for support of children, neither the violation of the order nor the retaliation could be given weight in determining question of children's present welfare, in habeas corpus proceeding instituted by grandfather after the children had become accustomed to home their mother had established and to schools of city in which the mother resided. Cook v. Cook (1943, 135 F. 2d 945, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 388).

In habeas corpus proceeding by parent to obtain custody of child, what is best for the child, rather than the natural right of the parent, is the controlling factor. Holtsclaw v. Mercer (1944, 145 F. 2d 338, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 252).

The rights of parent to child are secondary to welfare of child and the child's well-being is the paramount consideration. Id.

When jurisdiction of court is invoked to determine custody of a minor child, the court acts, not as an arbiter between contesting parents determining adversary rights in human chattels, but as parens patriae, protecting the child whose custody is in dispute and making its award solely according to the interest and welfare of the child, regardless of the settled or transient character of the parents' residence, or even of a child abandoned by its parents. Langan v. Langan (1945, 150 F. 2d 979, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 189).

In proceeding involving custody of children, where the pleadings and evidence reveal a situation which required action, court must act on behalf of the children and for their protection, regardless of anything previously said or done by any court, and the function of the Court of Appeals is only to review the question whether the trial court properly exercised its discretion with a view to the present welfare of the children. Boone v. Boone (1945, 150 F. 2d 153, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 152).

In determining custody of children, the question for the court is the welfare of the children which overrides all other considerations, even where the proceeding is in habeas corpus, and the rights of the parents must yield to the interests and welfare of the children. Id.

3. Evidence

Evidence justified trial court in awarding custody of a minor child to its father as against the claims of the divorced mother who had been awarded the child's custody by decree in another state. Langan v. Langan (1945, 150 F. 2d 979, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 189).

4. Examination of parents' qualifications

In proceeding involving custody of children, the decision should not be based upon the adversary rights of the parents, but courts should require that the interest of the children be brought fully before it, and for this purpose the court should call to its aid experienced and disinterested persons, such as its probation officers or social workers in the Board of Public Welfare to make an unbiased examination of the qualifications of the parents and the circumstances which surround the children. Boone v. Boone (1945, 159 F. 2d 153, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 152).

5. Foreign decree

An order of the Maryland court awarding custody of a child to divorced mother, did not preclude a court of equity from assuming concurrent jurisdiction and passing subsequent orders relating to the custody of the child as its present welfare and happiness might warrant. Langan v. Langan (1945, 150 F. 2d 979, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 189).

A West Virginia order awarding custody of a minor to paternal grandmother, and adjudging the minor's mother in contempt for taking the child to the District of Columbia, was not binding on District of Columbia court in habeas corpus proceeding, although entitled to due weight, since ultimate question was the child's present and future welfare. Kirk v. Kirk (1945, 150 F. 2d 589, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 183).

Where order of West Virginia court awarding custody of minor to paternal grandmother was grounded on circumstance that the child could best recover from illness in the grandmother's home, but child had recovered from illness and was residing with the mother in the District of Columbia, the West Virginia order was not binding on the District of Columbia court which should determine, with the aid of whatever information might be obtainable from disinterested and experienced observers, what custody would best promote the child's welfare. Id.

6. Full faith and credit

A California decree determining custody of a child as between divorced parents, which decree was subject to modification at any time during minority of the child, was not entitled to full faith and credit in the District of Columbia in subsequent proceedings in which the paramount consideration was the child's welfare. Langan v. Langan (1945, 150 F. 2d 979, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 189).

The judgment is entitled to full faith and credit only as to issues considered and judicially determined, and in a custody case, such a judgment is entitled only to qualified consideration in another state where there are changes in circumstances. Id.

7. Guardianship proceedings

The United States District Court holding Probate Court has jurisdiction to grant custody of minors in guardianship cases. Johnson v. Austin (D.C. Mun. App. 1960, 162 A. 2d 495).

Jurisdiction over guardianship matters is given to United States District Court holding Probate Court, while Domestic Relations jurisdiction is vested in Domestic Relations Branch of the Municipal Court. Id.

8. Jurisdiction

Where grandfather to whom New York court had awarded custody of minor children, instituted habeas corpus proceeding to obtain custody from their mother who had established home for them in District of Columbia, court had jurisdiction and owed to the children who were in District of Columbia duty to protect them and do things which appeared to be best for them without regard to anything any other court had previously done. Cook v. Cook (1943, 135 F. 2d 945, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 388).

In habeas corpus proceeding for custody of a minor child, where the father had been for some time a government employee stationed in Washington, D.C., and the child had been living with him just over the district line in Maryland for a year and a half, they were in a real sense members of the District of Columbia community and district court had jurisdiction to determine question of custody notwithstanding that the father had taken possession of the child in violation of decree of another state. Langan v. Langan (1945, 150 F. 2d 979, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 189).

If the court of the jurisdiction in which a child is found concludes that its custodian is unfit, the child may be taken from him and given to another. Id.

Children in the District of Columbia are subject to the jurisdiction of its courts as to matters of custody. Boone v. Boone (1945, 150 F. 2d 153, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 152).

Where United States District Court holding Probate Court once assumed jurisdiction over parties to proceedings involving guardianship of child, that jurisdiction continued for all purposes, and if either party felt aggrieved by the orders of the court his remedy lay with that court or on appeal therefrom. Johnson v. Austin, Guardian etc. (D.C. Mun. App. 1960, 162 A. 2d 495).

Jurisdiction of the United States District Court holding Probate Court did not stop short of enforcing its own decrees in proceedings to remove guardian of child and appoint another guardian. Id.

9. Lunatic

The writ of habeas corpus in respect of lunacy is one of relief rather than of original adjudication. Barry v. Hall (1938, 98 F. 2d 222, 68 App. D.C. 850).

10. Parents as natural guardians

A mother is the natural guardian of her child, even though the child be illegitimate, and as mother and natural guardian she has right to writ of habeas corpus directed to any person unlawfully detaining her minor child to end that child be produced before court which shall determine which of parties is entitled to custody of child. Bell et al. v. Leonard (1958, 251 F. 2d 890, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 179).

11. Presumptions

The presumption that small children are better off with their mother is entitled to weight in determining their custody. Boone v. Boone (1945, 150 F. 2d 153, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 152).

12. Probate court decrees

Although recourse to District Court may be necessary to effectuate decrees of District Court holding Probate Court, Probate Court is but an arm of District Court and the full judicial machinery of the District Court is available to enforce lawful decrees of its component parts. Johnson v. Austin, Guardian etc. (D.C. Mun. App. 1960, 162 A. 2d 495).

Even if the United States District Court holding Probate Court were powerless to enforce a custody decree, other avenues are open in the District Court to give litigants relief through enforcement of such a decree. Id.

13. Res judicata

In habeas corpus proceeding by grandfather to obtain custody of three minor children from their mother, prior order of New York court awarding custody to the grandfather was not "res judicata" on question of present welfare of the children where the mother had provided an adequate home for them and they had become accustomed to schools of city in which mother resided. Cook v. Cook (1943, 135 F. 2d 945, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 388).

An order regarding custody of minor children is conclusive regarding all matters prior to its promulgation, but doctrine of "res judicata" cannot settle question of children's welfare for all time to come, and it cannot prevent a court at a subsequent time from determining what is best for the children at that time. Id.

Judgments adverse to the father, both in North Carolina and in the District of Columbia, which he had failed to obey, were not res judicata of subsequent action brought by the children by their next friend to determine their custody so as to deprive the District Court of jurisdiction. Boone v. Boone (1945, 150 F. 2d 153, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 152).

A custody award is subject to change, upon a proper showing, so long as the court has control of the child, and when the child comes under the control of another jurisdiction, its courts have equal power, and only to the extent that issues presented in the earlier case were judicially determined does the doctrine of res judicata and the full faith and credit clause apply. Id.

Father's removal, after Pennsylvania habeas corpus decree awarding him custody of child, from apartment in which he was living with sister and brother-in-law to another apartment in which he lived alone with 7-year-old child who was without supervision during the day while father was engaged with his employment was such a substantial change in conditions surrounding child that Pennsylvania decree was not res judicata, and custody of child would be awarded to mother who was fit and proper person to care for child and who lived with parents in good residential district of Washington. Matthews v. Matthews (1948, 80 F. Supp. 560).

14. Unlawfully confined or detained

Habeas corpus not the proper remedy where the child was not unlawfully confined or detained. Church v. Church (1921, 270 F. 359, 50 App. D.C. 237). See, also, Burrowes v. Burrowes (1935, 78 F. 2d 742, 64 App. D.C. 392).

Where father residing in Pennsylvania was awarded custody of child during school year by Pennsylvania decree, and mother residing in District of Columbia was awarded custody of child during Christmas and summer holidays, and mother refused to deliver child to father at end of summer holiday, habeas corpus in United States District Court for District of Columbia was the father's proper remedy. Matthews v. Matthews (1948, 80 F. Supp. 560).

This chapter does not affect any provision of chapter 153 of Title 28, United States Code. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 585, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Section is new, and is inserted for the purpose of construction.

Chapter 153 of Title 28, United States Code, also relates to habeas corpus and applies to Federal courts generally, including the United States District Court for the District of Columbia. Upon the reenactment of the provisions carried into this chapter, they will constitute a later enactment than Title 28, United States Code, which was enacted in 1948. Considering the local character of the provisions carried into this chapter, there should not arise, as a general rule, even without this section, any question of conflict. However, this section is inserted as a precautionary measure.

Chapter 21.—JOINT CONTRACTS

Sec.
16–2101. Definition of joint and several contracts.
16–2102. Death of party to the contract.
16–2103. Extinguishment or merger of cause of action.
16–2104. Death after action brought—Legal representatives.
16–2105. Proof of joint liability unnecessary—Judgment.
16–2106. Separate composition or compromise.

§ 16–2101. Definition of joint and several contracts.

For the purposes of action thereon, a contract or obligation entered into by two or more persons, whether:

(1) the persons are partners or joint contractors;

(2) the contract is under seal or not;

(3) it is written or verbal; or

(4) it is expressed to be joint and several or not—is deemed to to be joint and several. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 585, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–901 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1205, 31 Stat. 1380).

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Executor of joint obligor 2
In general 1
Joint liability 3
Nonsuit as to minors 4
Remedial in effect 5
Separate suit 6

1. In general

In the case of a joint and several contract, an unsatisfied judgment against one of the promisees is no bar to a subsequent action against the other, and the statute places a joint contract for the payment of money on the same footing as a several contract, with respect to the right of suit thereon. Harris v. Leonhardt (2 App. D.C. 318).

A creditor should not be allowed to sue jointly and separately at the same time, nor prosecute more than one suit, if all the parties bound by the contract can be proceeded against together in a single action. Id.

If the contract be joint or joint and several, and the parties be sued jointly, the recovery must be general against the parties, but as to the married woman defendant, the award of execution must be against her sole and separate estate acquired and held under the statute, at the date of the judgment if real estate, or at time of delivery of execution to the marshal, if personal. Magruder v. Belt (7 App. D.C. 303).

2. Executor of joint obligor

Executor of a deceased joint obligor may be sued at law with his co-obligor. White v. Connecticut General Life Ins. Co. (34 App. D.C. 460, error dismissed 31 S. Ct. 219, 218 U.S. 684, 54 L. Ed. 1208).

3. Joint liability

Under contract which called for members of creditor's committee of insolvent corporation to assume responsibility for payment of attorney's fee and under which members of committee were identified as promisors, each member was not bound by a separate promise to pay pro rata share but members were jointly liable for entire fee. V. B. Welch v. R. W. Sherwin et al. (1962, 300 F. 2d 716, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 124).

4. Nonsuit as to minors

In a suit against the owners of property, some of whom are minors, to recover a brokerage commission, it is proper, under this section and § 1209 (§ 16–905), after issue joined to enter a nonsuit as to the minors and proceed against the remaining defendants. Rhees v. Morris (1922, 280 F. 1001, 52 App. D.C. 27).

Issues having been joined a nonsuit may be entered as to the minors, and the suit proceeded against the remaining adult defendants. Id.

5. Remedial in effect

This section "merely affects the remedy. It releates wholly to procedure. It does not convert a joint instrument into a joint and several instrument, or change a joint obligor into a joint and several obligor. The contract and the relations of the obligations of the contractors remain unchanged." White v. Connecticut General Life Ins. Co. (34 App. D.C. 460, error dismissed 31 S. Ct. 219, 218 U.S. 684, 54 L. Ed. 1208).

6. Separate suit

Facts that judgment against some of several defendants, jointly and severally liable, does not extinguish or merge liability of those not served and that those not served may be sued separately under District of Columbia law does not require that those not served be sued separately if they have actually been named as defendants and served but service has been erroneously quashed. Youpe v. Moses et al. (1954, 213 F. 2d 613, 94 U.S. App. D.C. 21).

§ 16–2102. Death of party to the contract.

If a person specified by section 16–2101 dies, his executors, administrators, or heirs are bound by the contract in the same manner and to the same extent as if the contract or obligation were expressed to be joint and several. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 585, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–902 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1206, 31 Stat. 1380).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–2103. Extinguishment or merger of cause of action.

Where, with respect to a contract specified by section 16–2101, an action is brought against:

(1) all the parties thereto, but service of process is had on some, only, of the defendants; or

(2) some, only, of the parties thereto, and service of process is had on them only—a judgment against the parties so served does not work an extinguishment or merger of the cause of action on which the judgment is founded as respects the parties not so served. They shall remain liable to be sued separately. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 585 Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–903 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1207, 31 Stat. 1380).

Changes are made in phraseology and arrangement.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Appeal 2
In general 1
Separate suit 3

1. In general

Where a woman borrowed money under false pretenses but conduct of her husband with regard to transactions was such he became obligated to repay the money borrowed, judgment rendered in action for money lent against the woman in Virginia was no bar to recovery in action for money lent against husband in District of Columbia. Grimes v. Adams (1952, 105 F. Supp. 30).

2. Appeal

If, in action for breach of contract, plaintiff, after trial upon merits, secures judgment in his favor against the 12 defendants who answered, he may nevertheless appeal from such judgment upon ground that he was entitled to judgment against two other defendants because quashing of service upon such defendants was erroneous, and judgment against the 12 will not have worked an extinguishment or merger of cause of action against the other two defendants. Youpe v. Moses (1954, 213 F. 2d 613, 94 U.S. App. D.C. 21).

3. Separate suit

Facts that judgment against some of several defendants, jointly and severally liable, does not extinguish or merge liability of those not served and that those not served may be sued separately does not require that those not served be sued separately if they have actually been named as defendants and served but service has been erroneously quashed. Youpe v. Moses (1954, 213 F. 2d 613, 94 U.S. App. D.C. 21).

§ 16–2104. Death after action brought—Legal representatives.

When one of several defendants in an action dies after the commencement of the action, his legal representatives may be made parties to the action as directed by chapter 1 of Title 12. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 585, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–904 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1208, 31 Stat. 1380).

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–2105. Proof of joint liability unnecessary—Judgment.

In actions ex contractu against alleged joint debtors it is not necessary for the plaintiff to prove their joint liability as alleged in order to maintain his action. He is entitled to recover, as in actions ex delicto, against such of the defendants as are shown by the evidence to be jointly indebted to him, or against one only, if he alone is shown to be indebted to him, and judgment shall be rendered as if the others had not been joined in the action. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 585, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–905 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1209, 31 Stat. 1380).

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–2106. Separate composition or compromise.

Any one of several joint debtors when their debt is overdue, may make a separate composition or compromise with their creditors, with the same effect as is provided in the case of parties by chapter 2 of Title 41. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 585, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–906 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1210, 31 Stat. 1380).

The only change is the substitution, for the reference to "sections 41–101 to 41–131, 41–201 to 41–204", of a reference to the particular chapter in Title 41 relating to separate composition or compromise settlements with creditors, upon the dissolution of partnerships. Chapter 2 of Title 41 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., embraces sections 41–201 to 41–204, cited above. The other sections cited above are not relevant.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. No release of other judgment debtors

Compromise with one of several judgment debtors, and an entry of a satisfaction of the judgment as to him, will not operate as a release of the other judgment debtors. Bunch v. United States ex rel. Keppler (40 App. D.C. 156).

SUBCHAPTER I.—JUVENILE DELINQUENCY PROCEEDINGS AND RELATED MATTERS

As used in this subchapter:

"adult" means a person 18 years of age or older; and

"child" means a person under 18 years of age. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 586, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Section is based on subsec. (b) of section 11–906 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. For remainder of that section, see tables.

The provisions defining "the court" as meaning the juvenile court of the District of Columbia, and "judge" as meaning the judge of the juvenile court, are omitted as unnecessary. Section 16–2302 gives the complete name of the court, and the other sections in this subchapter are reworded or related so that there is no question as to what court and judge are meant. Further, there are now three judges of the court. See, also, section 11–1551 vesting in the Juvenile Court jurisdiction of matters to which this subchapter relates, and other provisions in chapter 15 of Title 11.

Changes are made in phraseology.

The definitions contained in section 11–906 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., also related to the same terms as used in provisions carried into chapter 15 of Title 11, which are from the same chapter in D.C. Code, 1961 ed. However, as carried into chapter 15 of Title 11, those provisions are reworded in such a way that it is not necessary to extend the reference in the opening clause in this section to that chapter, nor to define the terms as used therein. See revision note under section 11–1551.

When a person gives to the Director of Social Work of the Juvenile Court of the District of Columbia, or other officer of the court duly designated as his representative, information in his possession that a child is within the provisions of section 11–1551, a duly designated officer of the court shall make preliminary investigation to determine whether the interests of the public or of the child require that further action be taken, and report his finding, together with a statement of the facts, to the Director of Social Work. When practicable, the inquiry shall include a preliminary investigation of the home and environmental situation of the child, his previous history, and the circumstances that were the subject of the information. When the Director of Social Work finds that jurisdiction should be acquired, he shall, after consultation with and approval by the corporation counsel or his assistant assigned to the court, authorize a petition to be filed. Where the Director fails so to find, the person giving information to the Director may present the facts to the corporation counsel or his assistant, who, after investigation by an officer of the court as herein provided, may authorize a petition to be filed. The proceedings shall be entitled, "In the matter of ————, a child under eighteen years of age."

The petition shall be verified by the officer making the investigation, or other person having personal knowledge of the case, and shall allege briefly the facts which bring the child within the provisions of section 11–1551, and shall state the name, age, and residence of—

(1) the child;

(2) his parents;

(3) his legal guardian, if there be one;

(4) the person or persons having custody or control of the child; and

(5) the nearest known relative, if no parent or guardian can be found.

When any of the facts herein required are not known by the petitioner the petition shall so state. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 586, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–908 (Mar. 19, 1906, ch. 960, § 7, 34 Stat. 73; June 1, 1938, ch. 309, 52 Stat. 596 (597)).

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Applicability of Federal Rules 1
Arraignment without unnecessary delay 2
Double jeopardy 3
Investigation 4
Judicial notice 5
Jurisdiction 6
Nature of proceedings 7
Right to counsel 8

1. Applicability of Federal Rules

The Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, U.S. Code, title 18, Appendix, do not apply to proceedings in the Juvenile Court of the District of Columbia. United States v. White (1957, 153 F. Supp. 809).

Rule of Criminal Procedure, U.S. Code, title 18, Appendix, under which government may be required to divulge intent, identity of its informants has no applicability in Juvenile Court proceeding. In re McDonald et al. (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 153 A. 2d 651).

2. Arraignment without unnecessary delay

Defendant who was 17 years of age at time of his arrest for murder and who was under jurisdiction of the Juvenile Court of the District of Columbia was not entitled to be taken before a committing magistrate without unnecessary delay. United States v. White (1957, 153 F. Supp. 809).

3. Double jeopardy

Where purpose and effect of proceedings in juvenile court were to provide a prompt preliminary hearing in order to set a date for trial, if allegations of petitions were denied, or to continue case pending completion of full social study and recommendations for disposition of child, case had not reached stage at which juvenile's liberty had been placed in jeopardy by his acknowledgment that he held a toy gun during alleged robbery, and when trial judge subsequently waived jurisdiction to district court for trial, indictment was not subject to dismissal on ground of double jeopardy. United States v. Dickerson (1959, 271 F. 2d 487, 106 U.S. App. D.C. 221).

4. Investigation

Waiver of Juvenile Court's jurisdiction over accused depends on full investigation by Juvenile Court, and petition-summons procedure is required only when director of social work of Juvenile Court finds, after investigation that Juvenile Court jurisdiction should be acquired. J. L. Green v. United States (1962, 308 F. 2d 303, 113 U.S. App. D.C. 348).

Failure of Juvenile Court to order filing of petition followed by issuance and service of summons did not invalidate Juvenile Court's waiver of jurisdiction over accused where there had been a full investigation before waiver and director of social work of Juvenile Court recommended waiver of jurisdiction. Id.

Accused who claims that full investigation was not made by Juvenile Court before its waiver of jurisdiction could make that contention in District Court which upon sufficient allegations should conduct necessary proceedings to determine whether such investigation was made and whether accused should nevertheless be afforded parens patriae treatment provided in Juvenile Court. Id.

Where accused's conviction was reversed for plain error and accused claimed that Juvenile Court's waiver of jurisdiction over him was invalid, on remand District Court should make available for inspection by accused's counsel all pertinent records of Juvenile Court with due regard to necessity of keeping secret any specific parts or sources thereof and such records could be sealed and included in record on any further appeal. Id.

"Full investigation" which section 11–914 requires before juvenile court can waive jurisdiction to district court includes informal hearings to determine whether to waive jurisdiction and jeopardy does not attach at that point. United States v. Dickerson (1959, 271 F. 2d 487, 106 U.S. App. D.C. 221).

5. Judicial notice

The United States District Court for the District of Columbia would take judicial notice that the procedure in Juvenile Court for District of Columbia provided for a preliminary ex parte investigation by Director of Social Service before determining whether Juvenile Court should take jurisdiction in a case where a juvenile was charged with a crime and that in the meantime, no hearing was held. United States v. White (1957, 153 F. Supp. 809).

6. Jurisdiction

Where petition in Juvenile Court in District of Columbia to have infant children declared to be without adequate parental care and to have them committed to Board of Public Welfare, recited that children were then in custody of the Board, and there was no evidence that the children were not residents of the District, and their father was a resident of the District, Juvenile Court would be deemed to have had jurisdiction of children. In re Lambert et al. (1953, 203 F. 2d 607, 92 U.S. App. D.C. 104).

7. Nature of proceedings

Proceedings provided for by the Juvenile Court Act, this subchapter, are not criminal cases and the constitutional safeguards vouchsafed a juvenile in such proceedings are determined from the requirements of due process and fair treatment and not by the direct application of clauses of the Constitution which in terms apply to criminal cases and the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, U.S. Code, title 18, Appendix, do not apply to such proceedings. Pee v. United States (1959, 274 F. 2d 556, 107 U.S. App. D.C. 47).

8. Right to counsel

Where minor's probation was revoked and there was no finding that child's commitment to an institution was required in their own best interests and as necessary for protection of society, and mother asked for appointment of an attorney but her request was rejected and liberty of child was in the balance, assistance of counsel was necessary and denial thereof vitiated the proceedings and district court erred in dismissing habeas corpus petition. McDaniel, as parent etc. v. Shea, Director etc. (1960, 278 F. 2d 460, 108 U.S. App. D.C. 15).

Right to be heard when personal liberty is at stake requires effective assistance of counsel in a juvenile court. Id.

A minor who in proceeding wherein his parents were charged with inadequate care of the minor was committed to board of public welfare was not entitled to habeas corpus on ground that he was not represented by counsel in such proceeding since the juvenile court process in effect makes Director of Social Work of juvenile court, who initiates the proceeding, the child's counsel. In re Custody of a Minor (1958, 250 F. 2d 419, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 94).

The right to be heard when personal liberty is at stake requires the effective assistance of counsel in a juvenile court as much as it does in a criminal court and juvenile has right to counsel in such a proceeding. Shioutakon v. District of Columbia (1956, 236 F. 2d 666, 98 U.S. App. D.C. 371, 60 A.L.R. 2d 686).

After a petition has been filed pursuant to section 16–2302, unless the parties hereinafter named voluntarily appear, the court shall issue a summons reciting briefly the substance of the petition, and requiring the person or persons who have custody or control of the child to appear personally and bring the child before the court at a time and place stated. Where the person so summoned is other than the parent or guardian of the child, the parent or guardian or both shall also be notified of the pendency of the case and of the time and place appointed, by personal service before the hearing, except as hereinafter provided. If the child is married, the other spouse shall also be so notified. Summons may be issued requiring the appearance of any other person whose presence is necessary.

Where it appears that the child is in such condition or surroundings that his welfare requires that his custody be immediately assumed by the court, the court may cause to be endorsed upon the summons an order that the officer serving it shall at once take the child into custody. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 587, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–909 (Mar. 19, 1906, ch. 960, § 8, 34 Stat. 73; June 1, 1933, ch. 309, 52 Stat. 596 (598)).

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. General appearance

Attorney's entry of appearance for mother in proceeding in Juvenile Court in District of Columbia wherein infant children were found to be without adequate parental care and were committed to Board of Public Welfare constituted waiver by mother of any question of proper service of process on her. In re Lambert et al. (1953, 203 F. 2d 607, 92 U.S. App. D.C. 104).

§ 16–2304. Service of summons—Time of hearing.

Service of summons issued pursuant to section 16–2303 shall be made personally by the delivery of a true and attested copy to the person summoned. Where reasonable, but unsuccessful efforts have been made to make personal service of summons or notice and it appears that it is impracticable to do so, the court may order service of summons or notice by registered mail to the last-known address or by publication, or both, as it deems necessary. It is sufficient to confer jurisdiction if service is effected at any time before the date fixed in the summons for the return thereof, but, on request of the parent or guardian or person having custody of the child, the hearing on the petition may not take place until three days after service of the summons.

The United States marshal for the District of Columbia or his deputy shall execute the orders and processes of the Court in the same manner as he executes those of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia, and shall designate at least one of his deputies to serve at the court, where he shall perform such services as the judge requires. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 587, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–910 (Mar. 19, 1906, ch. 960, § 9, 34 Stat. 74; June 1, 1938, ch. 309, 52 Stat. 596 (598); June 25, 1948, ch. 646, § 32(b), 62 Stat. 991; May 24, 1949, ch. 139, § 127, 63 Stat. 107).

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. Waiver of service

Attorney's entry of his appearance for mother in proceeding wherein infant children were found to be without adequate parental care and were committed to Board of Public Welfare constituted waiver of any question of proper service of process on mother. In re Lambert (D.C. Mun. App. 1952, 86 A. 2d 411).

§ 16–2305. Failure to obey summons—Contempt—Warrant.

When a person summoned as provided by sections 16–2303 and 16–2304, without reasonable cause, fails to appear, he may proceeded against for contempt of court. When the summons can not be served, or the parties served fail to obey it, or the welfare of the child requires that he be brought forthwith into the custody of the court, a warrant may be issued against the parent or guardian or against the child himself. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 588, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–911 (Mar. 19, 1906, ch. 960, § 10, 34 Stat. 75; June 1, 1938, ch. 309, 52 Stat. 596 (598)).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–2306. Taking child into custory—Release to custody of parent, guardian, custodian, or probation officer—Limitation on detention.

(a) When an officer takes a child into custody, he shall, unless it is impracticable or has been otherwise ordered by the court, accept the written promise of the parent, guardian, or custodian to bring the child to the court at the time fixed. Thereupon, the child may be released in the custody of a parent, guardian, or custodian. If not so released, the child shall be placed in the custody of a probation officer or other person designated by the court, or taken immediately to the court or to a place of detention provided by the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia or its authorized representative, and the officer taking him shall immediately notify the court and shall file a petition when directed to do so by the court.

(b) A child whose custody has been assumed by the court may, pending final disposition of the case, be released by the court in the custody of a parent, guardian, or custodian, or of a probation officer or other person appointed by the court, to be brought before the court at the time designated. When not released as herein provided, the child, pending the hearing of the case, shall be detained in a place of detention provided by the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia or its authorized representative, subject to further order of the court.

(c) This subchapter does not forbid a peace officer, police officer, or probation officer from immediately taking into custody a child:

(1) who is found violating a law or ordinance; or

(2) who is reasonably believed to be a fugitive from his parents or from justice; or

(3) whose surroundings are such as to endanger his health, morals, or safety, unless immediate action is taken.

In a case specified by this subsection, the officer taking the child into custody shall immediately report the fact to the court and the case shall then be proceeded with as provided by this subchapter and chapter 15 of Title 11. A child so taken into custody may not be held in a place of detention for a period longer than five days, excluding Sundays and holidays, unless the court orders him detained for a further period. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 588, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–912 (Mar. 19, 1906, ch. 960, § 11, 34 Stat. 76; June 1, 1938, ch. 309, 52 Stat. 596 (598); June 12, 1952, ch. 417, § 1, 66 Stat. 134), and on Reorg. Plan No. 5, eff. July 1, 1952, 66 Stat. 824; Reorg. Ord. No. 58, June 30, 1953, as amended July 31, 1953, and Aug. 19, 1954; Reorg. Ord. No. 57–1027, June 6, 1957.

The Board of Public Welfare, referred to in section 11–912 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., was, along with a number of other District agencies and offices, abolished, and its functions transferred to the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia, by Presidential Reorg. Plan No. 5, eff. July 1, 1952, 66 Stat. 824, which authorized the Board of Commissioners to create new agencies and offices and delegate its functions thereto. Pursuant to that Plan, the Board of Commissioners, after temporarily continuing the functions, so transferred, in the agencies and offices so abolished, by Reorg. Ord. No. 1, July 1, 1952, created the Department of Public Health by Reorg. Ord. No. 57, June 30, 1953, and the Department of Public Welfare by Reorg. Ord. No. 58, June 30, 1953, as amended, and abolished their predecessors, effective Aug. 15, 1953. Part V of Reorg. Ord. No. 58 transferred specified functions of the former Board of Public Welfare to the Department of Public Health and the Department of Public Welfare, so created. However, under Presidential Reorg. Plan No. 5, eff. July 1, 1952, referred to above, the ultimate responsibility to perform the delegated functions is in the Board of Commissioners, which may change the present organization at any time. Therefore, in two places in this revised section, the reference, "Board of Public Welfare" is changed to "Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia or its authorized representative".

Changes are made in phraseology and arrangement.

Constitutional safeguards 4
Detention without arrest record 5
Double jeopardy 6

1. Applicability of Federal Rules

Where in a criminal prosecution against juveniles the district judge was proceeding under the regular procedure of the District Court, and the accused had been indicted and they were being tried by a jury, the trial was public and they were found guilty of the offenses and the court sentenced them to the penitentiary, act of the district judge in importing from the Juvenile Court a rule of evidence applicable in that court but not applicable in the regular procedure of the District Court was error, since the juveniles had been removed from the processes especially provided for juveniles and the proceedings as to them being "the regular procedure" of the District Court which were controlled by the federal rules. Pee, Curtis, Johnson and Magruder v. United States (1959, 274 F. 2d 556, 107 U.S. App. D.C. 47).

The Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, U.S. Code, title 18, Appendix, do not apply to proceedings in the Juvenile Court of the District of Columbia. United States v. White (1957, 153 F. Supp. 809).

2. Arraignment without unnecessary delay

Defendant who was 17 years of age at time of his arrest for murder and who was under jurisdiction of the Juvenile Court of the District of Columbia was not entitled to be taken before a committing magistrate without unnecessary delay. United States v. White (1957, 153 F. Supp. 809).

3. Confessions

Admissibility of statements made by minors involved in Juvenile Court proceeding should not be governed by strict rules of criminal evidence relating to confessions but by rules essentially used in getting at truth in civil trials. In re McDonald et al. (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 153 A. 2d 651).

In Juvenile Court proceeding, adjudication of status of minor should rest only upon competent and reliable evidence and when evidence of government consists largely of statements of the minor, court is dutybound thoroughly to investigate circumstances under which such statements were made. Id.

4. Constitutional safeguards

The constitutional safeguards peculiar to criminal proceedings do not apply in proceedings in the juvenile court. In re Robert McDonald et al. (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 153 A. 2d 651).

5. Detention without arrest record

The arrest of a juvenile by officers having reasonable grounds for belief that the juvenile had committed a felony, and the detention of the juvenile at police station for three hours without making any record of the arrest, was not a violation of this section. Harper v. Strange (1947, 158 F. 2d 408, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 349).

6. Double jeopardy

As constitutional guarantee against double jeopardy is applicable only in criminal prosecutions and does not operate in proceedings under Juvenile Court Act, this subchapter, it will not preclude rehearing in juvenile court, following dismissal of case and government's successful appeal. In re McDonald et al. (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 153 A. 2d 651).

7. Judicial notice

The United States District Court for the District of Columbia would take judicial notice that the procedure in Juvenile Court for the District of Columbia provided for a preliminary ex parte investigation by Director of Social Service before determining whether Juvenile Court should take jurisdiction in a case where a juvenile was charged with a crime and that in the meantime, no hearing was held. United States v. White (1957, 153 F. Supp. 809).

8. Nature of proceedings

Proceedings provided for by the Juvenile Court Act, this subchapter, are not criminal cases and the constitutional safeguards vouchsafed a juvenile in such proceedings are determined from the requirements of due process and fair treatment and not by the direct application of clauses of the Constitution which in terms apply to criminal cases and the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, U.S. Code, title 18, Appendix, do not apply to such proceedings. Pee, Curtis, Johnson and Magruder v. United States (1959, 247 F. 2d 556, 107 U.S. App. D.C. 47).

The Juvenile Court Act, this subchapter, did not simply provide for same kind of trial as its criminal predecessor did, under a new label, but provided for new informal proceeding with rights and procedures of civil actions governing, and under it, innocence or guilt are not in issue but adjudication of child's status is, and protection and rehabilitation rather than retribution and punishment are not its purposes. In re Robert McDonald et al. (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 153 A. 2d 651).

9. Procedure

If the District Court decides to pursue the normal criminal law processes with respect to juveniles, all the constitutional protections applicable to criminal cases and all the rules of criminal procedure in that court apply to such a case just as they apply to any other case of an alleged crime, but if the district judge decides to conduct the case under the powers conferred upon the Juvenile Court, the rights of the child and the rules applicable to the Juvenile Court procedure apply. Pee, Curtis, Johnson and Magruder v. United States (1959, 274 F. 2d 556, 107 U.S. App. D.C. 47).

Under the system provided for child offenders under the Juvenile Court Act, this subchapter, the District Court must make a clear choice between the procedure and the processes which it will apply in case of a juvenile as to whom the Juvenile Court has waived jurisdiction, and while it is not necessary that the court formally make such a choice its choice may be implicit in the manner in which it proceeds but it cannot proceed in part under its "regular procedure" and in part under the "powers conferred upon the Juvenile Court" and it must do one or the other. Id.

10. Rehearing after dismissal

Rule that Juvenile Court Act, this subchapter, itself requires fair treatment is limited in scope to guarantee those rights or procedures which are so vital to fairness and so strongly implied by acts that they may be supplied by judicial decision and rule does not bar rehearing in juvenile court following dismissal of case and successful appeal by government. In re McDonald et al. (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 153 A. 2d 651).

11. Right to bail

Where this section authorizes juvenile court, pending arraignment and disposition of case, either to release the juvenile in the custody of a parent, guardian, custodian, or probation officer, or else to cause him to be detained in such place of detention as provided, and where this section is silent on the subject of bail, constitutional guarantees as to the right to bail are applicable and will prevail. Trimble v. Stone, Supt. etc. (1960, 187 F. Supp. 483).

Even though proceedings in Juvenile Court are denominated civil and not criminal, and even though, theoretically, commitment by Juvenile Court to training school allegedly involves only treatment and not punishment, constitutional guarantees regarding bail are applicable to proceedings before Juvenile Court. Id.

§ 16–2307. Hearing—Exclusion of public—Jury trial.

The court may conduct a hearing pursuant to this subchapter in an informal manner, and may adjourn the hearing from time to time. The general public shall be excluded from the hearing and only such persons as have a direct interest in the case and their representatives may be admitted except that the judge presiding at the hearing, by rule of court or special order, may admit such other persons as he deems to have a legitimate interest in the case or the work of the court. Cases involving children may be heard separately and apart from the trial of cases against adults. The court shall hear and determine all cases of children without a jury unless a jury is demanded by the child, his parent, guardian, or the court. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 588, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–915 (Mar. 19, 1906, ch. 960, § 14, 34 Stat. 75; June 1, 1938, ch. 309, 52 Stat. 596, (599); Aug. 3, 1951, ch. 291, § 4, 65 Stat. 154; June 12, 1952, ch. 417, § 2, 66 Stat. 134).

Section is based on first paragraph of section 11–915 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. Remainder of that section is carried into section 16–2308 herein.

Words "the judge presiding at the hearing" are substituted for "the judge" for the purpose of clarification, since there are now three judges of the Juvenile Court. [See section 11–1502 herein.]

Changes are made in phraseology.

2. Constitutional safeguards

The constitutional safeguards peculiar to criminal proceedings do not apply in proceedings in the juvenile court. In re McDonald et al. (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 153 A. 2d 651).

U.S. Code, title 18, § 4082, providing that persons convicted of an offense against the United States shall be committed for such term of imprisonment as court may direct to custody of Attorney General and that authority conferred upon Attorney General shall extend to all persons committed to National Training School for Boys, is directed to convictions of offenses against United States and in District Courts of the United States, and does not apply to persons committed under this section stating that no adjudication upon status of any child shall be deemed a conviction of a crime. Cogdell v. Reid (1959, 183 F. Supp. 102).

3. Custody of infant

Under Juvenile Court Act, this subchapter, juvenile cannot be committed in civil or equitable proceedings to any institution designed for custody of persons convicted of crime. White v. Reid et al. (1954, 126 F. Supp. 867).

4. Double jeopardy

Where purpose and effect of proceedings in juvenile court were to provide a prompt preliminary hearing in order to set a date for trial, if allegations of petitions were denied, or to continue case pending completion of full social study and recommendations for disposition of child, case had not reached stage at which juvenile's liberty had been placed in jeopardy by his acknowledgment that he held a toy gun during alleged robbery, and when trial judge subsequently waived jurisdiction to district court for trial, indictment was not subject to dismissal on ground of double jeopardy. United States v. Dickerson (1959, 271 F. 2d 487, 106 U.S. App. D.C. 221).

As constitutional guarantee against double jeopardy is applicable only in criminal prosecutions and does not operate in proceedings under Juvenile Court Act, this subchapter, it will not preclude rehearing in juvenile court, following dismissal of case and government's successful appeal. In re McDonald et al. (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 153 A. 2d 651).

5. Evidence

Evidence sustained finding that five-year-old child and three-year-old child were without adequate parental care In re F. E. Mullen and M. A. Mullen (D.C. Mun. App. 1958, 144 A. 2d 919).

While juvenile courts are not bound by technical rules of evidence, police officer's testimony, on trial of minor for taking property without right, that defendant told witness that articles taken were on porch of defendant's home, and that witness then dispatched thereto another officer, who returned with articles, was insufficient, aside from defendant's confession, to establish his guilt. In re Davis (D.C. Mun. App. 1951, 83 A. 2d 590).

6. Exhibition of child to jury

In bastardy case, motion to exhibit child to jury to show lack of resemblance to defendant was properly denied in absence of a foundation of striking or peculiar nonresemblance. Hassler v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1956, 122 A. 2d 827).

7. Full investigation

"Full investigation" which section 11–914 requires before juvenile court can waive jurisdiction to district court includes informal hearings to determine whether to waive jurisdiction and jeopardy does not attach at that point. United States v. Dickerson (1959, 271 F. 2d 487, 106 U.S. App. D.C. 221).

8. Issue on appeal

On appeal from Juvenile Court's order denying motion to set aside its order committing a minor to Department of Public Welfare on his acknowledgment of allegations of his use of automobile without owner's consent and permit him to enter plea of not guilty on ground of violation of his constitutional rights by judge's failure to advise him of right to assistance of counsel, only determinations to be made by Municipal Court of Appeals are whether Juvenile Court proceedings were in conformity with statutory requirements and whether there was a denial of due process of law. Shioutakon v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1955, 114 A. 2d 896).

On appeal from order committing infant to National Training School for Boys until 21 years of age, the issue was whether there was sufficient evidence to support a finding that the boy's welfare or the safety and protection of the public required removal from the home of his parents. In re Kroll (D.C. Mun. App. 1945, 43 A. 2d 706).

9. Jurisdiction

That evidence failed to support petition in proceeding before juvenile court of District of Columbia involving a question of adequate parental care of a 15 year old girl did not affect the court's "jurisdiction" to hear the proceeding and to make an order adjudging that the girl was without adequate parental care and support and that she should be placed under guardianship of a person not related to her, although evidence made the court's action erroneous and subject to reversal on appeal. In re Stuart (1940, 114 F. 2d 825, 72 App. D.C. 389).

The juvenile court of the District of Columbia had "jurisdiction" to make an order adjudging that a 15 year old girl was without adequate parental care and support and that she should be placed under guardianship of a person not related to her where parties were before the court, and case described in petition was within class of cases which this chapter gave the court power to deal with, and petition on its face stated a cause of action. Id.

10. Nature of proceeding

Proceedings provided for by the Juvenile Court Act, this subchapter, are not criminal cases and the constitutional safeguards vouchsafed a juvenile in such proceedings are determined from the requirements of due process and fair treatment and not by the direct application of clauses of the Constitution which in terms apply to criminal cases and the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, U.S. Code, title 18, Appendix, do not apply to such proceedings. Pee, Curtis, Johnson, and Magruder v. United States (1959, 274 F. 2d 556, 707 U.S. App. D.C. 47).

The Juvenile Court Act, this subchapter, did not simply provide for same kind of trial as its criminal predecessor did, under a new label, but provided for new informal proceeding with rights and procedures of civil actions governing, and under it, innocence or guilt are not in issue but adjudication of child's status is, and protection and rehabilitation rather than retribution and punishment are not its purposes. In re McDonald et al. (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 153 A. 2d 651).

Proceeding by mother to have daughter committed to psychiatric school on ground that daughter was habitually beyond mother's control was not a criminal or common law proceeding but was a statutory proceeding having for its purpose determination of best interest of daughter. In re Sippy (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 97 A. 2d 455).

11. Preliminary hearing

Constitution does not guarantee right to preliminary hearing. United States v. Dickerson (1958, 168 F. Supp. 899).

12. Procedure

Where in a criminal prosecution against juveniles the district judge was proceeding under the regular procedure of the District Court, and the accused had been indicted and they were being tried by a jury, the trial was public and they were found guilty of the offenses and the court sentenced them to the penitentiary, act of the district judge in importing from the Juvenile Court a rule of evidence applicable in that court but not applicable in the regular procedure of the District Court was error, since the juveniles had been removed from the processes especially provided for juveniles and the proceedings as to them being "the regular procedure" of the District Court which were controlled by the federal rules. Pee, Curtis, Johnson, and Magruder v. United States (1959, 274 F. 2d 556, 107 U.S. App. D.C. 47).

If the District Court decides to pursue the normal criminal law processes with respect to juveniles, all the constitutional protections applicable to criminal cases and all the rules of criminal procedure in that court apply to such a case just as they apply to any other case of an alleged crime, but if the district judge decides to conduct the case under the powers conferred upon the Juvenile Court, the rights of the child and the rules applicable to the Juvenile Court procedure apply. Id.

Under the system provided for child offenders under the Juvenile Court Act, this subchapter, the District Court must make a clear choice between the procedure and the processes which it will apply in case of a juvenile as to whom the Juvenile Court has waived jurisdiction, and while it is not necessary that the court formally make such a choice its choice may be implicit in the manner in which it proceeds but it cannot proceed in part under its "regular procedure" and in part under the "powers conferred upon the Juvenile Court" and it must do one or the other. Id.

13. Protection from parental neglect

The law will protect the child from parental neglect even as against natural parent where necessary. In re Custody of a Minor (1957, 250 F. 2d 419, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 94).

In proceeding wherein parents are charged with inadequate care of minor, public policy and right of child require that if charge of neglect is true the child be removed from control of parents and purpose of proceeding is not punishment of parents but protection of the child, and if liberty can be said to be restrained that is only an incident of, not the purpose of, the removal. Id.

14. Purpose

The objective of Juvenile Court Act, this subchapter, is rehabilitation, not punishment, and institution to which delinquent child is sent is not penal in nature, but one for rehabilitation and training purposes. Shioutakon v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1955, 114 A. 2d 896).

15. Rehearing after dismissal

Rule that Juvenile Court Act, this subchapter, itself requires fair treatment is limited in scope to guarantee those rights or procedures which are so vital to fairness and so strongly implied by acts that they may be supplied by judicial decision and rule does not bar rehearing in juvenile court following dismissal of case and successful appeal by government. In re McDonald et al. (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 153 A. 2d 651).

16. Right of appeal

In proceeding by mother to have daughter committed to psychiatric school on ground that daughter was habitually beyond mother's control, daughter was the real party in interest and "party aggrieved" by order of commitment within statute providing that any "party aggrieved" by final order of Juvenile Court may appeal therefrom to the Municipal Court of Appeals. In re Sippy (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 97 A. 2d 455).

17. Right to counsel

A minor who in proceeding wherein his parents were charged with inadequate care of the minor was committed to board of public welfare was not entitled to habeas corpus on ground that he was not represented by counsel in such proceeding since the juvenile court process in effect makes Director of Social Work of juvenile court, who initiates the proceeding, the child's counsel. In re Custody of a Minor (1957, 250 F. 2d 419, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 94).

Where the family of a juvenile concerning whom proceedings have been instituted in juvenile court is indigent, court is required to appoint counsel. Shioutakon v. District of Columbia (1955, 236 F. 2d 666, 98 U.S. App. D.C. 371, 60 A.L.R. 2d 636).

Since constitutional safeguards due accused in criminal proceeding are inapplicable in juvenile delinqeuncy hearing, Juvenile Court judge's failure to advise minor, charged with using automobile without owner's consent, of his right to assistance of counsel, was not error warranting reversal of court's order denying motion to set aside its order committing minor to Department of Public Welfare on his acknowledgment of such allegation and permit him to enter plea of not guilty. Shioutakon v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1955, 114 A. 2d 896).

18. —— Jury trial

In proceeding in Juvenile Court in the District of Columbia to have two infant children declared to be without adequate parental care and to have them committed to Board of Public Welfare, mother of the children was not entitled under statute to jury trial. In re Lambert et al. (1953, 203 F. 2d 607, 92 U.S. App. D.C. 104).

A statute providing that court shall hear and determine all cases of children without a jury, unless a jury be demanded by the child, his parent, or guardian or the court, does not enlarge the right to trial by jury in all cases of children, but only preserves it where a constitutional right to jury trial exists provided seasonable demand therefor is made. In re Lambert (D.C. Mun. App. 1952, 86 A. 2d 411).

19. Rules of Criminal Procedure

Rule of Criminal Procedure under which government may be required to divulge intent, identity of its informants has no applicability in Juvenile Court proceeding. In re McDonald et al. (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 153 A. 2d 651).

20. Sufficiency of findings

A finding that infant's welfare and the safety and protection of the public could not be adequately safeguarded without removing infant from his home and parents was not sustained by the evidence. In re Kroll (D.C. Mun. App. 1945, 43 A. 2d 706).

21. Transfer to other prison

Where petitioners while subject to jurisdiction of the Juvenile Court were committed to a training school and during their confinement there were transferred by Attorney General to federal institutions for adult offenders, motions by the petitioners requesting their discharge if treated as petitions for writs of habeas corpus could not be considered in view of the absence of petitioners from the geographic jurisdiction. Thompson and Green, Jr. v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1960, 158 A. 2d 687).

§ 16-2308. Determination and order of the Court.

(a) When the court finds that the child comes within the provisions of this subchapter and section 11-1551, it may by order duly entered:

(1) place the child on probation or under supervision in his own home or in the custody of a relative or other fit person, upon such terms as the court determines;

(2) commit the child to the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia or its authorized representative; or to the National Training School for Boys if in need of such care as is given in the school; or to a qualified suitable private institution or agency willing and able to assume the education, care, and maintenance of the child without expense to the public; or

(3) make such further disposition of the child as may be provided by law and as the court deems to be best for the best interests of the child.

Paragraphs (1), (2), and (3) of this subsection do not authorize the removal of the child from the custody of his parents unless his welfare and the safety and protection of the public can not be adequately safeguarded without the removal.

(b) In committing a child to custody other than that of its parent, the court may, after giving the parent a reasonable opportunity to be heard, adjudge that the parent shall pay in such manner as the court directs a sum that will cover in whole or in part the support of the child. If the parents willfully fails or refuses to pay the sum, he may be proceeded against as provided by law for cases of desertion or failure to provide subsistence.

(c) When the court commits a child to an institution or agency, it shall transmit with the order of commitment a summary of its information concerning the child.

(d) An adjudication upon the status of a child in the jurisdiction of the court does not operate to impose any of the civil disabilities ordinarily imposed by conviction, and a child is not deemed a criminal by reason of an adjudication. An adjudication is not deemed a conviction of a crime, and a child may not be charged with or convicted of a crime in any court, except as provided by section 11-1553. The disposition made of a child, or evidence given in the court, is not admissible as evidence against the child in any case or proceeding in any other court, and the disposition, or evidence, or adjudication, does not operate to disqualify a child in any future civil-service examination, appointment, or application for public service under either the Government of the United States or of the District of Columbia. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 589, Pub. L. 88-241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11-915 (Mar. 19, 1906, ch. 960, § 14, 34 Stat. 75; June 1, 1938, ch. 309, 52 Stat. 596 (599); Aug. 3, 1951, ch. 291, § 4, 65 Stat. 154; June 12, 1952, ch. 417, § 2, 66 Stat. 134).

Section is derived from all of section 11-915 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., except the first paragraph thereof. The first paragraph is carried into section 16-2307 herein.

In subsec. (a)(2), the reference, "Board of Public Welfare" is changed to "Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia or its authorized representative". See revision note under section 16-2306 herein.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. Nature of proceedings

Juvenile court proceedings are civil, and petition need only contain brief statement of facts giving court jurisdiction. In the Matter of R. A. Nichols (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 179 A. 2d 915).

§ 16-2309. Modification or revocation of order—Petition—Return of child, or other action.

An order of commitment or probation made by the court in the case of a child may be modified or revoked by the court from time to time.

A parent, guardian, or next friend of a child who has been committed by the court to the custody of an institution, agency, or person, may at any time file with the court a verified petition, making application for modification or revocation of an order of commitment or probation, stating that the institution, agency, or person has denied application for the release of the child or has failed to act upon the application within a reasonable time. When the court is of the opinion that an investigation should be had, it may, upon due notice to all concerned, proceed to hear and determine the question at issue. It may thereupon order that the child be restored to the custody of its parent or guardian, or be retained in the custody of the institution, agency, or person; and may direct the institution, agency, or person to make such other arrangements for the child's care and welfare as the circumstances of the case require; or the court may make a further order or commitment. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 589, Pub. L. 88-241, § 1.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Double jeopardy 1
Rehearing after dismissal 2
Jurisdiction 3

1. Double jeopardy

As constitutional guarantee against double jeopardy is applicable only in criminal prosecutions and does not operate in proceedings under Juvenile Court Act, this subchapter, it will not preclude rehearing in juvenile court, following dismissal of case and government's successful appeal. In re McDonald et al. (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 153 A. 2d 651).

2. Rehearing after dismissal

Rule that Juvenile Court Act, this subchapter, itself requires fair treatment is limited in scope to guarantee those rights or procedures which are so vital to fairness and so strongly implied by acts that they may be supplied by judicial decision and rule does not bar rehearing in juvenile court following dismissal of case and successful appeal by government. In re McDonald et al. (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 153 A. 2d 651).

3. Jurisdiction

Section 11-907 providing that when there is proper original jurisdiction, the Juvenile Court shall have continuing jurisdiction over children committed by it during their minority, and that the court from time to time upon petition of interested persons may modify or revoke its orders at any time, was intended to give that court continuing jurisdiction in all child commitment cases in which the court had original jurisdiction. In the Matter of Cecelia Lem (D.C. Mun. App. 1960, 164 A. 2d 345).

§ 16-2310. Appointment of guardian—Custody as between parents.

When in the course of a proceeding instituted pursuant to this subchapter it appears to the court that the welfare of a child will be promoted by the appointment of a relative or other suitable individual as guardian of its person, when the child is not committed to an institution or to the custody of an incorporated society, the court has jurisdiction to make the appointment either upon the application of the child or some relative or next friend or upon the court's own motion. The court may issue an order to show cause, which shall be served upon the parent or parents or custodian of the child in such manner and for such time prior to the hearing as the court deems reasonable. In a case arising pursuant to this subchapter, the court may also determine as between parents whether the father or the mother shall have the custody and control of the child. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 590, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–917 (Mar 19, 1906, ch. 960, § 16, 34 Stat. 76; June 1, 1938, ch. 309, 52 Stat. 596 (602)).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–2311. Protection of religious affiliations.

In placing a child under guardianship or custody other than that of its parent, the court, when practicable, shall select a person, or an institution or agency governed by persons, of like religious faith as that of the parents of the child, or in case of a difference in the religious faith of the parents, then of the religious faith of the child, or if the religious faith of the child is not ascertained, then of either of the parents. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 590, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–918 (Mar. 19, 1906, ch. 960, § 17, 34 Stat. 76; June 1, 1938, ch. 309, 52 Stat. 596 (601)).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–2312. Physical and mental examinations of children.

The court may cause a child coming under its jurisdiction to be examined by a physician, psychiatrist, or psychologist appointed by it. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 590, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

§ 16–2313. Place of detention of children.

(a) Except as provided by subsection (b) of this section, a child may not be placed in or committed to any prison, jail, or lockup, or be taken into custody, detained, or transferred from place to place, where he may be brought in contact or communication with an adult convicted of crime or under arrest and charged with crime.

(b) A child 16 years of age or older, whose habits or conduct are deemed such as to constitute a menace to other children, may, with the consent of a judge or Director of Social Work, be placed in a jail or other place of detention for adults, but in a room or ward separate from adults.

(c) The Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia or its authorized representative shall make adequate provision for the temporary detention of children within its jurisdiction in a detention home or in boarding homes selected for the purpose. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 590, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–927 (Mar. 19, 1906, ch. 960, § 26, 34 Stat. 78; June 1, 1938, ch. 309, 52 Stat. 596 (602); Mar. 9, 1962, Pub. L. 87–413, § 3(d), 76 Stat. 22).

Near the beginning of subsec. (a), "child" is substituted for "child under 18 years of age", as section 16–2301 herein defines "child" as meaning a person under 18 years of age.

The reference, "Board of Public Welfare of the District of Columbia", is changed to "Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia or its authorized representative". See revision note under section 16–2306 herein.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. Term and place of detention

Where infant was committed for his minority to the National Training School for Boys and was subsequently paroled and arrested for a parole violation under a warrant to await a hearing before the Board of Parole to determine whether his parole should be revoked, the infant could not be detained in the District Jail where he was not detained under a warrant or indictment charging him with committing a crime at time when he was more than 18 years of age, and the infant must be discharged from custody unless transferred to the training school or an institution with substantially similar facilities pending outcome of the hearing. Kautter v. Reid (1960, 183 F. Supp. 352).

In view of this subchapter, U.S. Code title 18, § 4082, authorizing Attorney General to designate places of confinement limits his power in respect to juveniles to designating institutions where special facilities are provided for training and care. White v. Reid (1954, 125 F. Supp. 647).

Under this subchapter, the term of commitment, the nature of commitment, and place thereof, within statutory limitations, are all within exclusive jurisdiction of the juvenile court. Huff v. O'Bryant (1941, 121 F. 2d 890, 74 App. D.C. 19).

(a) All provisions of this subchapter relative to procedure in cases of children so far as practicable apply also to cases against adults arising under section 11–1511, 11–1554, 11–1555 or 11–1556, or any of the sections referred to in section 11–1557, with the consent of the defendant, or when not inconsistent with other provisions of law relating to the conduct of adult cases. Proceedings may be instituted upon complaint of an interested party or upon the court's own motion, and a reasonable opportunity to appear shall be afforded the respondent. The court may issue a summons, a warrant of arrest, or other process in order to secure or to compel the attendance of a necessary person.

(b) Whoever, by act or omission, willfully causes, encourages, or contributes to a condition which would bring a child within the provisions of section 11–1551 or tends to cause such a condition, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined not more than $200 or imprisoned not more than one year, or both. Upon the trial, the court may impose such sentence as the law provides, or may suspend sentence and place on probation, and by order impose upon the adult such duty as is deemed to be for the best interests of the child or other persons concerned. If an adult is charged with an offense for which he is entitled to a trial by jury, he shall be so tried unless he expressly waives his right to jury trial. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 590, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–919 (Mar. 19, 1906, ch. 960, § 18, 34 Stat. 76; June 1, 1938, ch. 309, 52 Stat. 596 (601)).

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Construction 1
Proof of age 2
Purpose 3
Sufficiency of evidence 4
"Willful" 5

1. Construction

The section making it an offense to willfully cause, encourage or contribute to any condition which would bring a child within provisions of this subchapter relating to Juvenile Court and the section making this subchapter applicable to children engaged in described conduct or way of life must be read together. Slaughter v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 134 A. 2d 838).

2. Proof of age

In prosecution for willfully causing, encouraging and contributing to delinquency of female under age 18, the age of the female could be proved by her testimony and it was not required that there be documentary evidence of her age. Slaughter v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 134 A. 2d 338).

3. Purpose

The purpose of the statutes relating to the Juvenile Court is to protect, so far as possible, the morals of minors. Slaughter v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 134 A. 2d 338).

4. Sufficiency of evidence

In prosecution for causing, encouraging and contributing to delinquency of minor female, evidence warranted finding that defendant willfully contributed to female's delinquency by deliberately carrying on an illicit and immoral relationship with female, irrespective of her real age. Slaughter v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 134 A. 2d 338).

5. "Willful"

In prosecution for willfully causing, encouraging and contributing to delinquency of minor female the court properly charged that the word "willful" meant more than voluntary and implied an evil mind or intent. Slaughter v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun App. 1957, 134 A. 2d 338).

§ 16–2315. Finality of judgments.

Except as provided by sections 11–741(a)(3), 11–741(b), 17–305(a), 17–306 and 17–307(a), in all cases tried before the court pursuant to this subchapter, the judgment of the court is final. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 591, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–938 (Mar. 19, 1906, ch. 960, § 37, as added June 1, 1938, ch. 309, 52 Stat. 596 (604)).

With respect to the exception, section 11–938 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., referred to section 11–934 thereof. The latter section, which provided for appeals from judgments of the Juvenile Court to the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, and for the procedure thereon, was repealed by act May 24, 1949, ch. 139, § 142, 63 Stat. 110. Since 1942, the Municipal Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, the name of which, by the Act of Oct. 23, 1962, Pub. L. 87–873, 6, 76 Stat. 1172, was changed to the District of Columbia Court of Appeals, has had jurisdiction of appeals from judgments of the Juvenile Court. Therefore, in this revised section, reference to the sections providing for such appeals, and the procedure thereon, are substituted for the reference to section 11–934. See, also, Rules of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals.

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–2316. Construction and purpose.

Sections 11–1551 to 11–1554, section 11–1583(a)(1) and (a)(3), section 11–1584, section 11–1586(a)—(d), and this subchapter shall be liberally construed so that, with respect to each child coming under the court's jurisdiction:

(1) the child shall receive such care and guidance, preferably in his own home, as will serve his welfare and the best interests of the District; and

(2) the child's family ties shall be conserved and strengthened whenever possible, and, except when his welfare or the safety and protection of the public can not be adequately safeguarded without his removal, he may not be removed from the custody of his parents; and

(3) when the child is removed from his own family, the court shall secure for him custody, care, and discipline as nearly as possible equivalent to that which should have been given him by his parents.

(Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 591, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §§ 11–902, 11–903 (Mar. 19, 1906, ch. 960, pream., as added June 1, 1938, ch. 309, 52 Stat. 596; Mar. 19, 1906, ch. 960, § 2, 34 Stat. 73, as amended June 1, 1938, ch. 309, 52 Stat. 596).

Section consolidates sections 11–902 and 11–903 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed.

"District" is substituted for "state", to correct an obvious error.

Changes are made in phraseology.

Adequate parental care 1
Construction 2
With other laws 3
Drug Users' Act not criminal statute 4
Legislative intent 5
Nature of procedings 6
Purpose 7
Rehabilitation 8
Rules of criminal procedure 9

1. Adequate parental care

A judgment of the juvenile court of the District of Columbia adjudging that a 15 year old girl was without adequate parental care and support and that she should be placed under guardianship of a person not related to her was inconsistent with constitutional principles concerning inherent right of parents to custody of their children and this subchapter, where evidence established that the girl's mother had given the girl continuous and devoted care which had resulted in a well developed, well educated, healthy child. In re Stuart (1940, 114 F. 2d 825, 72 App. D.C. 389).

"Adequate parental care," as used in this subchapter, means such care as is necessary to accomplish purpose thereof. Id.

2. Construction

This subchapter is not rendered ambiguous by use of the disjunctive and conjunctive in this section, and this chapter cannot be construed in the disjunctive throughout so as to authorize the court to remove a child from custody of its parents either when child's welfare requires such removal or when safety and protection of public demands it. In re Stuart (1940, 114 F. 2d 825, 72 App. D.C. 389).

Juvenile Court Act, this subchapter, should be construed liberally in favor of welfare of child. In re John Lawrence Poff (1955, 135 F. Supp. 224).

3. —— With other laws

Drug Users' Act providing for commitment of all narcotics addicts to institutions for treatment, except persons charged with a criminal offense, does not impliedly repeal Juvenile Court Act, this subchapter, insofar as jurisdiction over juveniles who are addicted to narcotics is concerned. In re Rene Whisaker (1955, 134 F. Supp. 864).

4. Drug Users' Act not criminal statute

Drug Users' Act is not a criminal statute and when it places a juvenile under jurisdiction of Juvenile Court in an institution for treatment, it does no more than change custody of juvenile under commitment and does not impair Juvenile Court jurisdiction. In re Rene Whisaker (1955, 134 F. Supp. 864).

5. Legislative intent

Legislative intent in enacting Juvenile Court Act, this subchapter, was to enlarge rather than diminish safeguards already possessed by juveniles. In re John Lawrence Poff (1955, 135 F. Supp. 224).

6. Nature of proceedings

Proceedings in juvenile court, even where petition is filed, are meant to be noncriminal and nonformal in nature. Shioutakon v. District of Columbia (1956, 236 F. 2d 666, 98 U.S. App. D.C. 371, 60 A.L.R. 2d 686).

A hearing in the Juvenile Court is an adjudication upon status of child in nature of guardianship imposed by State as parens patriae to provide care and guidance that, under normal circumstances, would be furnished by natural parents. In re John Lawrence Poff (1955, 135 F. Supp. 224).

The purpose of juvenile delinquency proceedings in Juvenile Court is not to determine question of child's guilt or innocence of crime, but to promote child's welfare and state's best interests by strengthening family ties, where possible, and removing child from his parents' custody, when necessary for his welfare or safety or protection of public, securing for him custody, care, and protection as nearly as possible equivalent to that which should be given him by his parents. Shioutakon v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1955, 114 A. 2d 896).

7. Purpose

Congressional intent in enacting provisions of this subchapter establishing juvenile court authorizing director of social work to investigate any complaint to determine whether interest of public or juvenile require further action was to encourage disposition of cases on social rather than on a legal basis. Shioutakon v. District of Columbia (1956, 236 F. 2d 666, 98 U.S. App. D.C. 371, 60 A.L.R. 2d 686).

Purpose of Juvenile Court Act of District of Columbia, this subchapter, is promotion of child's welfare and state's best interest by strengthening of family ties where possible, and, when necessary, removing of child from custody of parents for his welfare or safety or protection of public, securing for his custody, care and protection as nearly as possible equivalent to that which should have been given him by his parents. White v. Reid et al. (1954, 126 F. Supp. 867).

The purpose of the statutes relating to the Juvenile Court is to protect, so far as possible, the morals of minors. Slaughter v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 134 A. 2d 338).

8. Rehabilitation

The objective of legislation dealing with juvenile offenders is rehabilitation, not punishment. In re Kroll (D.C. Mun. App. 1945, 43 A. 2d 706).

9. Rules of Criminal Procedure

Rule of Criminal Procedure, U.S. Code, title 18, Appendix, under which government may be required to divulge intent, identity of its informants has no applicability in Juvenile Court proceeding. In re McDonald et al. (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 153 A. 2d 651).

SUBCHAPTER II.—PATERNITY PROCEEDINGS

As used in this subchapter:

"Corporation Counsel" has the meaning prescribed by section 11–1583(b).

"Director of Public Health" means the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia or the officer or agency designated by the Board to have jurisdiction of, control, direct, and supervise, matters relating to public health and vital statistics in the District; and "Metropolitan Police Department" means the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia or the agency designated by the Board to serve as the law enforcement agency for the District. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 591, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Section is new, but does not make any new law.

Definition of "Corporation Counsel" is inserted. See section 11–1583(b), and revision note under section 11–1583.

Definitions of "Director of Public Health" and "Metropolitan Police Department" are inserted because of the reorganizational Plan No. 5, eff. July 1, 1952, 66 Stat. 824. That Plan abolished a number of offices and agencies in the District, including the Health Department and the Metropolitan Police Department, transferred their functions to the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia, and authorized the Board to create new offices and agencies and delegate functions thereto. The Board, after temporarily continuing, by Reorganization Order No. 1, July 1, 1952, the offices and agencies so abolished, including the Health Department and the Metropolitan Police Department, issued Reorganization Order No. 7, Sept. 16, 1952, which, by sections 1 and 3 thereof, abolished the office of Major and Superintendent of the Metropolitan Police Department and transferred the functions thereof to the Chief of Police, an office established by section 4(b) of the above-cited Presidential Reorganization Plan No. 5. Subsequently, the Board, by Reorganization Order No. 46, June 26, 1953, as amended by Orders of May 17, 1955 and Oct. 20, 1955 (eff. Dec. 1, 1955), and by Reorganization Order No. 56–214, Jan. 31, 1956, established a new Metropolitan Police Department, headed by the Chief of Police, transferred to that department the functions of the Metropolitan Police Department previously transferred to the Board by Presidential Reorganization Plan No. 5, referred to above, abolished the then existing Metropolitan Police Department, and repealed all previous orders of the Board in conflict therewith.

By Reorganization Order No. 57, June 30, 1953, as amended June 30, 1954, and as amended by Reorganization Orders Nos. 54–2546, Nov. 30, 1954; 56–1717, Aug. 23, 1956; 56–2541, Dec. 13, 1956, the Board created a new Department of Public Health, with a Director of Public Health at its head, transferred to that department the functions (which included those relating to vital statistics) of the former Health Department, abolished the then existing Health Department, and repealed all previous orders of the Board in conflict therewith.

However, under the above-mentioned Presidential Reorganization Plan No. 5, the ultimate responsibility to perform the functions transferred to the present Department of Public Health and the Metropolitan Police Department is in the Board of Commissioners, and the Board may change the present organization at any time. Therefore, the purpose of the definitions of "Director of Public Health" and "Metropolitan Police Department" in this section is to recognize this ultimate responsibility and to provide for changes in organization should they occur.

§ 16–2342. Party plaintiff—Information.

Proceedings pursuant to section 11–1555 and this subchapter shall be instituted in the Juvenile Court of the District of Columbia in the name of the District of Columbia, and prosecution upon information shall be by the Corporation Counsel for the District of Columbia or his assistants. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 591, Pub. L. 88 241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–951 (Jan. 11, 1951, ch. 1225, § 3, 64 Stat. 1240).

Section is based on the second sentence of section 11–951 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. For remainder of that section, see tables.

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–2343. Time of bringing complaint.

Proceedings to establish paternity and provide for the support of a child born out of wedlock may be instituted after four months of pregnancy or within two years after the birth of the child, or within one year after the putative father has ceased making contributions for the support of the child. The time during which the defendant is absent from the jurisdiction shall be excluded from the computation of the time within which complaint may be filed. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 591, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–952 (Jan. 11, 1951, ch. 1225, § 4, 64 Stat. 1240).

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Absence from jurisdiction 1
Accrual of claim 2
Construction 3
Evidence 4
Question of fact 5

1. Absence from jurisdiction

Where complainant and defendant in paternity action had been residents of Virginia and complainant moved to District of Columbia a few months before birth of child who was born within the District and defendant was a member of armed forces who came to District on military assignment 2½ years after birth of child, under provision of this section that time within which defendant should be absent from jurisdiction should be excluded from computation of the 2-year statute of limitations, statute of limitations was tolled as to defendant who had not previously been within the jurisdiction. District of Columbia v. Franklin (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 154 A. 2d 550).

2. Accrual of claim

Where complainant was living in the District of Columbia at time child was born, cause of action under this subchapter had accrued as a fully matured claim in jurisdiction. District of Columbia v. Franklin (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 154 A. 2d 550).

3. Construction

This subchapter conferring jurisdiction on Juvenile Court of District of Columbia of proceedings to establish paternity and provide for support of illegitimate child does not give such court jurisdiction to entertain a proceeding merely to determine paternity of such child. Harrison v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 95 A. 2d 332).

4. Evidence

In paternity suit in which support previously furnished by defendant was in issue, testimony of complaining witness that defendant paid for delivery of milk for several months was admissible over objection that best evidence rule required production of records of milk company. Ford v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1954, 102 A. 2d 838).

5. Question of fact

In paternity suit under this subchapter providing that proceedings must be brought within 2 years after child is born, or within one year after putative father ceases to contribute to support of child, whether putative father had made contributions to support of children within year prior to bringing of the action, was question for jury. Ford v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1954, 102 A. 2d 838).

§ 16–2344. Commencement of proceeding—Complaint.

An unmarried woman who is at least four months pregnant or who has been delivered of a child born out of wedlock, or a married woman who is at least four months pregnant with a child, which if born alive, may be born out of wedlock, or who has been delivered of a child born out of wedlock and who was not living with nor cohabiting with her husband during the period of time in which the child could have been conceived, may appear before the Corporation Counsel for the District of Columbia or his assistant at the Juvenile Court and accuse a man of being the father of her child and request his arrest. In case of death, disability, or incompetence of the mother, the complaint may be made by the custodian, guardian, or next friend of the child. The complainant shall be examined under oath by the Corporation Counsel or his assistant to determine the validity of the accusation. If, upon examination, there appears reasonable cause to believe that the accused person is the father of the child in question, the complaint shall be reduced to writing, verified by the complainant, and filed with the clerk of the court. The verified complaint may be introduced in evidence to impeach the complaining witness in any subsequent proceedings therein. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 592, Pub. L. 88-241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–953 (Jan. 11, 1951, ch. 1225, § 5, 64 Stat. 1240).

The references Corporation Counsel for the District of Columbia or his assistant at the Juvenile Court" and "Corporation Counsel or his assistant" are substituted for "Assistant Corporation Counsel at the juvenile court" and "Assistant Corporation Counsel", respectively, as more in conformity with Presidential Reorganization Plan No. 5, eff. July 1, 1952, and Reorganization Order No. 55–1029, June 6, 1955, as amended, of the Board of Commissioners. See, also, section 16–2341 herein, and revision note under section 11–1582 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Evidence 1
Examination by assistant corporation counsel 2
Examination under oath 3
Maintenance of action by married woman 4
Motion for new trial 5
Nature of proceeding 5.50
Prejudicial error 6
Proof required 6.50
Waiver 7

1. Evidence

In bastardy proceeding, it was not error to permit complainant to testify that defendant had sexual relations with her prior to period of conception. Moses v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 129 A. 2d 402).

In bastardy proceeding, evidence sustained jury's finding that defendant was the father of child born out of wedlock. Id.

The defendant is not entitled to examine the unsigned and unsworn statement made by the complainant to the Juvenile Court Clerk, since these affidavits are confidential and defendant has no absolute right to examine statements made in confidence to a prosecuting officer. Fuller v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1949, 65 A. 2d 589).

2. Examination by assistant corporation counsel

This section requiring examination of mother of illegitimate child by assistant corporation counsel to determine validity of her accusation that a certain man is father of child is mandatory, and failure to comply, if properly and promptly called to attention of court, vitiates the entire proceeding. Kelly v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1958, 139 A. 2d 512).

No information may be filed against any man accused by mother to be father of her child until mother is first examined under oath by an assistant corporation counsel to determine validity of accusation, and examination may not be made by some other employee of corporation counsel's office. Id.

3. Examination under oath

Statute requiring complainant to be examined under oath by assistant corporation counsel to determine validity of accusation that defendant is father of illegitimate children was sufficiently complied with where assistant corporation counsel personally examined complainant, although exact details of interviews were lacking because of lapse of six years between filing of informations and trial, and counsel administered oath at end of interview rather than beginning. District of Columbia v. R. L. Dade (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 173 A. 2d 545).

Where mother of illegitimate child was interviewed by corporation counsel's clerical employee, who prepared complaint naming defendant as father of child, and subsequently assistant corporation counsel asked woman her name, whether she was single or married, and if complaint was true, and woman then put up her hand and swore to it, perfunctory making of oath to complaint before assistant corporation counsel did not constitute an "examination under oath" as required by this section. Kelly v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1958, 139 A. 2d 512).

4. Maintenance of action by married woman

A married woman who was not living with nor cohabiting with her husband during period of conception may maintain a bastardy action against the putative father. Hassler v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1956, 122 A. 2d 827).

Complainant could maintain bastardy proceeding, where it appeared that she had had sexual relations only with defendant during the possible period of conception, irrespective of whether she was in fact divorced from her husband at the time. Id.

5. Motion for new trial

In proceeding to establish paternity and to provide for support of illegitimate child, wherein defendant's motion for new trial was based on affidavits that defendant was seen in other places than Brooklyn, New York, on the day of alleged act of intercourse and that defendant had left Washington with his mother on automobile trip on such day, denial of motion was not abuse of discretion under the circumstances. Lovinggood v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 134 A. 2d 336).

5.50. Nature of proceeding

Proceeding involving paternity determination was a civil action for support of child and procedure was neither criminal nor punitive in character. A. Jackson v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1964, 200 A. 2d 199).

6. Prejudicial error

In proceeding to establish paternity and to provide for support of illegitimate child, where defendant offered sales slip to show that defendant purchased suit in Washington on date of alleged act of intercourse in Brooklyn, New York, even if ruling that slip was inadmissible for lack of identification was erroneous, the error was not prejudicial inasmuch as other records of the store showing the alleged purchase were subsequently admitted. Lovinggood v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 134 A. 2d 336).

6.50. Proof required

Proof necessary in proceedings in juvenile court for determination of paternity and support of child is still by a preponderance of evidence, not beyond reasonable doubt. A. Jackson v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1964, 200 A. 2d 199).

7. Waiver

Where this section requiring examination of mother of illegitimate child under oath by assistant corporation counsel to determine whether there is reasonable cause to believe that accused person is father of child was not complied with, and defendant raised question at his first opportunity, defendant did not waive right to assert such noncompliance and verdict of jury finding defendant to be father of child did not eliminate necessity of proper examination. Kelly v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1958, 139 A. 2d 512).

§ 16–2345. Apprehension of accused.

Upon the filing of a complaint pursuant to section 16–2344, the case shall be calendared forthwith for preliminary hearing. The clerk of the court shall issue a summons requiring the accused to appear in court on a day certain for that purpose, or, if deemed necessary by the court, a warrant for the arrest of the defendant may be issued, directed to the United States marshal or the Chief of Police or any other member of the Metropolitan Police Department of the District of Columbia, requiring the accused to be arrested and brought before the court. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 592, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–954 (Jan. 11, 1951, ch. 1225, § 6, 64 Stat. 1241), and on Pres. Reorg. Plan No. 5, eff. July 1, 1952, 66 Stat. 824; Reorg. Ord. No. 7, §§ 1, 3, Sept. 16, 1952.

"Chief of Police" is substituted for "Major and Superintendent" in conformity with section 4(b) of Presidential Reorganization Plan No. 5, eff. July 1, 1952, 66 Stat. 824, which established the office of Chief of Police, and Reorg. Ord. No. 7, §§ 1, 3, Sept. 16, 1952, of the Board of Commissioners, which abolished the office of Major and Superintendent of the Metropolitan Police Department, and transferred the functions thereof to the Chief of Police. See section 16–2341 herein, and revision note thereunder.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–2346. Bond—Commitment—Right to jury trial.

The court may require the person accused to enter into bond with surety in a sum not to exceed $2,500, guaranteeing his appearance on the date set for hearing or trial. If the defendant fails to appear, the security for his appearance shall be forfeited and shall be applied toward the support of the child if so ordered by the court. If the defendant fails to post bond fixed by the court he shall forthwith be committed to the District Jail, there to remain until the date set for hearing, or until he enters into the required bond or otherwise is discharged by due process of law. In all prosecutions under this subchapter, the defendant is entitled to, but may waive, trial by jury. A final hearing may not take place until after the birth of the child. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 592, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Cross-examination 1
Evidence 2
Instructions 3
Plea of guilty without counsel 4
Right to counsel 5
Trial procedure 6
Verdict of jury 6.50
Voir dire examination 7

1. Cross-examination

In paternity proceeding, where complaining witness had previously denied having relations with second man or being out with him or entertaining him in home during conception period, trial court's refusal to allow question asking her when she was in home with second man did not constitute improper limitation of cross-examination of complaining witness. Goodman v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1952, 88 A. 2d 319).

2. Evidence

In District of Columbia, child should not be exhibited to jury in illegitimacy case for purpose of establishing resemblance unless there appear in child physical characteristics peculiar to father and unless resemblance is so striking as to leave no reasonable doubt as to its existence, and likewise child should not be exhibited unofficially to jurors or some of them outside the courtroom. Harrison v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 95 A. 2d 332).

3. Instructions

In bastardy proceeding, it was proper for the trial judge to explain to the jury, on its voir dire examination, the history and purpose of the legislation under which the proceeding was instituted. Moses v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 129 A. 2d 402).

In bastardy proceeding, charge was in strict accordance with the settled law of the jurisdiction. Id.

In paternity suit, failure of trial judge to instruct jury concerning defendant's failure to take stand was not error, in absence of request for such instruction by defense counsel. Ford v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1954, 102 A. 2d 838).

4. Plea of guilty without counsel

Where defendant probably understood that he was charged with paternity of child born out of wedlock and that his acknowledgment of the charge would result in his being ordered to pay something for support of the child but it was not clear that defendant was informed or understood that such payments would have to be made for 16 years and that he could be sent to jail for a year whenever he defaulted in payment, defendant's guilty plea, entered when he was not represented by counsel, would be set aside and he would be permitted to plead not guilty. Huffman v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 133 A. 2d 144).

5. Right to counsel

Where defendant was without counsel only at his arraignment and preliminary hearing, and he pleaded not guilty and was represented by counsel at his trial, he was not deprived of any substantial rights, because the trial court refused to grant a second preliminary hearing because the defendant was not represented by counsel at the original hearing. Ferguson v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 133 A. 2d 111).

Where 18 year old defendant in illegitimacy proceeding was asked, at preliminary hearing, if he wanted to get a lawyer before answering, and defendant replied that he did not, and, together with his mother, signed a waiver of right to counsel, but on day of trial no inquiry was made as to whether defendant desired attorney to represent him at that time, nor was he advised that he could have an attorney assigned to him if without funds to retain one, and where judge never inquired as to defendant's education or familiarity with court proceedings, and charge against defendant was never explained to him in any detail, nor was defendant told the penalties that would attach if he were found to be the father of the child, defendant was not fully advised of his right to counsel and his motion for new trial should have been granted. Johnson v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 101 A. 2d 251).

6. Trial procedure

In child support proceeding, putative father had right to make reasonable inquiry as to whether complaining witness had made charge against defendant at insistence of board of public welfare where she had sought financial assistance. Ford v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 96 A. 2d 277).

6.50. Verdict of jury

Verdict of jury that defendant was father of child born out of wedlock was supported by evidence. A. Jackson v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1964, 200 A. 2d 199).

Fact that jury chose to believe mother instead of putative father in trial to determine paternity and for support of child furnished no basis for reversal of judgment. Id.

7. Voir dire examination

Where defendant was charged with being father of an illegitimate child, action of the trial court in explaining the history and purpose of this subchapter to the jury on a voir dire examination was proper. Ferguson v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 133 A. 2d 111).

§ 16–2347. Blood tests.

When it is relevant to the prosecution or defense of an illegitimacy action, the court may direct that the mother, child, and the defendant submit to one or more blood tests to determine whether or not the defendant can be excluded as being the father of the child, but the results of the test may be admitted as evidence only in cases where the defendant does not object to its admissibility. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 592, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. Blood tests

Blood grouping tests showing that husband was excluded as father of child born to his wife were conclusive of nonpaternity. Retzer, Jr. v. Retzer (D.C. Mun. App. 1960, 161 A. 2d 469).

Where putative father made no request in bastardy proceeding for tests of himself, mother, and illegitimate child, until after trial and finding that putative father was the father of the illegitimate child, court did not abuse its discretion in denying the motion for the blood tests. Adams v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1954, 109 A. 2d 141).

In a bastardy proceeding, court has authority, in its discretion, to order blood tests for putative father, mother, and illegitimate child. Id.

§ 16–2348. Exclusion of public.

Upon the trial of proceedings pursuant to this subchapter, the court may exclude the general public, and shall do so at the request of either party. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 592, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–957 (Jan. 11, 1951, ch. 1225, § 9, 64 Stat. 1241).

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. Time for request

Under this section providing that upon trial of proceedings to adjudge person to be father of child born out of wedlock the Court may exclude the general public and shall do so at the request of either party, there is no requirement that request must be made at outset of trial or be waived. Hassler v. District of Columbia (1956, 238 F. 2d 264, 99 U.S. App. D.C. 188).

In proceeding to adjudge defendant to be the father of a child born out of wedlock, trial court committed error in denying motion to exclude newspaper people from courtroom after counsel made such motion when during presentation of defense he observed reporter in courtroom. Id.

Demand to have public excluded from a bastardy proceeding must be made at the appropriate time. Hassler v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1956, 122 A. 2d 827).

Request by defendant in bastardy case, made after prosecution had concluded its case and after defense counsel had made opening statement and had called two witnesses, that public be excluded, was untimely. Id.

§ 16–2349. Judgment.

(a) Prenatal and Confinement Expenses; Maintenance.—When the defendant in a proceeding pursuant to this subchapter, in open court acknowledges the paternity of a child born out of wedlock, or when, at the trial the finding of the court or jury is against the defendant, the court, in rendering judgment, may enter an order for the payment of the prenatal medical care and costs of the mother's confinement and expenses of childbirth in such amount or amounts as it deems reasonable, commensurate with defendant's ability to pay. The court may also order payments for the maintenance and education of the child, commensurate with defendant's ability to pay, to be made at such periods or intervals as the court directs. The court may order payments to be made by the defendant at a precinct of the Metropolitan Police Department of the District of Columbia. Payments shall continue until the child reaches the age of 16 years, unless, prior thereto, the child is legally adopted.

(b) Petition for Modification of Judgment; Hearing.—From time to time, the court, after a hearing, may change or modify its order directing the amount that defendant shall pay for the maintenance and support of the child. The hearing shall be held not less than ten days following notice in writing by the clerk of the court to the parties in interest, mailed to or left at their last known place of residence.

(c) Death of Child.—If a child dies before reaching the age of 16 years, the court upon proof thereof, may order the payment of reasonable funeral expenses, and shall terminate the order for maintenance. Arrears that may be owing at the time of death may be canceled. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 593, Pub. L. 88-241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11-958 (Jan. 11, 1951, ch. 1225, § 10, 64 Stat. 1241).

Words "in its discretion" and "in the discretion of the court", are omitted from subsec. (a) and subsec. (c) as surplusage. Any abuse of discretion would render the court's action subject to reversal.

Changes are made in phraseology.

.50. Burden of proof

Burden was on government in paternity proceeding to prove by preponderance of the evidence that defendant was father of children born out of wedlock. B. L. Hawkins v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1964, 203 A. 2d 116).

1. Docket entry

Docket entry, in proceeding to establish paternity of an illegitimate child and to compel father to provide support, which read "Pts. and atty for deft. pres. Deft. adjudged G.", was sufficiently clear to show that defendant had been found to be the father of complainant's child, especially when defendant's counsel had admitted on oral argument that he clearly understood what the entry meant, but better practice would be for trial court to adopt form of finding or verdict adjudging defendant to be father or not father of child in question, in view of fact that proceeding is not criminal in nature. Bragg v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 98 A. 2d 784).

1.50. Expert testimony

Proffered expert testimony as to results of tests which had excluded defendant as father of one of three children born out of wedlock to mother who at first charged defendant with being the father of the three children but later successfully sought support from him for only two of the children was admissible as affecting her credibility though not as probative on paternity, and exclusion of the evidence was prejudicial to the defendant. B. L. Hawkins v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1964, 203 A. 2d 116).

2. Evidence

In bastardy proceeding, in view that the determination of paternity and the support of a child are essentially civil proceedings although denominated quasi-criminal in their over-all nature, the court erred in requiring proof beyond a reasonable doubt but paternity could be proved by a preponderance of evidence. District of Columbia v. Turner, Jr. (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 154 A. 2d 925).

In view of fact that this subchapter relating to a proceeding to establish paternity of an illegitimate child and to require father to provide for child's support, include no requirement that there be corroboration of mother's testimony in order to establish a finding of paternity, a defendant could be found to be the father of an illegitimate child, and the fact of birth could be established, by the uncorroborated testimony of the mother, where such testimony was credible, sufficiently clear and convincing. Bragg v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 98 A. 2d 784).

2.50. Instructions

In paternity proceeding involving more than one child, jury should be instructed that paternity as to each child must be found separately and that jurors may find from all the evidence that defendant is the father of one although not the other. B. L. Hawkins v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1964, 203 A. 2d 116).

3. Judgment

Although the burden is on the government to prove all material allegations in information in a proceeding to establish paternity and to require father to provide for support of an illegitimate child, fact that government did not prove that the name of an illegitimate child was as charged in the information, or that the child was a male, did not invalidate judgment requiring defendant, as the child's father, to contribute to the child's support. Bragg v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 98 A. 2d 784).

Judgment entered in Juvenile Court of District of Columbia against defendant charged with being father of illegitimate child and subsequent order of support together constituted the final and appealable judgment, and hence appeal which was timely with respect to order was timely with respect to the final and appealable judgment. Harrison v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 95 A. 2d 332).

4. Order to support

Before Juvenile Court of District of Columbia can order man to support child either man must acknowledge his paternity or there must be an adjudication of paternity. Harrison v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 95 A. 2d 332).

4.50. Paternity, issue for trier of facts

Where there is direct conflict in evidence, question whether defendant is father of minor children born out of wedlock is for trier of facts, not the court. B. L. Hawkins v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1964, 203 A. 2d 116).

5. Proof required by prosecution

Prosecution in bastardy case was not required to prove that child was born alive or was alive at time of trial. Hassler v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1956, 122 A. 2d 827).

6. Review

In proceeding charging the defendant with being the father of a child born to complainant, an unmarried woman, government's evidence made out a prima facie case. District of Columbia v. Turner, Jr. (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 154 A. 2d 925).

Evidence supported finding that defendant was father of child born out of wedlock. Stone v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1956, 127 A. 2d 841).

The Municipal Court of Appeals is bound by rule that where there is substantial evidence to support a finding it has no right to reverse. Id.

Municipal Court of Appeals cannot decide appeals on basis of facts stated in brief unless such facts also appear in records brought up from trial court. Id.

Even though a proceeding to provide for support of an illegitimate child is regarded as quasi criminal in nature, failure of proof of immaterial allegations in the information does not require a reversal, especially when such points were not raised at trial. Bragg v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 98 A. 2d 784).

7. Waiver

Where section 11–953 requiring examination of mother of illegitimate child under oath by assistant corporation counsel to determine whether there is reasonable cause to believe that accused person is father of child was not complied with, and defendant raised question at his first opportunity, defendant did not waive right to assert such noncompliance and verdict of jury finding defendant to be father of child did not eliminate necessity of proper examination. Kelly v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1958, 139 A. 2d 512).

§ 16–2350. Support payments.

(a) Security; Probation; Committment for Default.—The court may require a defendant, against whom a judgment is rendered pursuant to this subchapter, to give security not to exceed $2,500 guaranteeing payments ordered by the court, or may suspend the requirement of security and place the defendant on probation to the court on condition that payments be made as ordered. In default of a payment as ordered, the court may revoke probation and commit the defendant to jail for a period of not more than one year at any one time. At the expiration of a term of commitment, the court may discharge the defendant, but his liability to make subsequent payments or any payments in arrears at the time of commitment in accordance with the judgment or for commitment for further default is not thereby affected. In lieu of commitment or as a condition of his release from jail, the court may set aside commitment and again place the defendant on probation upon such terms as it directs. The amount of security, if forfeited, shall be disbursed as the court directs.

(b) Judgment for Arrears; Execution.—If there is a default of payments as ordered, the court, after notice by registered mail to the defendant at his last-known address, and after hearing, may reduce the amount of arrears to judgment. The court, after the notice and hearing, may reduce to judgment the arrears under any order hereafter entered for the support and maintenance of a child born out of wedlock, or any amounts ordered to be paid by the defendant under this subchapter. When the judgment is docketed in the clerk's office of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia, it has the same force and effect as judgments of that court, and execution thereon may be effected in the same manner as upon judgments of that court. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 593, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–959 (Jan. 11, 1951, ch. 1225, § 11, 64 Stat. 1242).

All references to "discretion" of the court are omitted as surplusage. See revision note under section 16–2349.

In third sentence of subsec. (a), words "at time of commitment" are inserted after "arrears" on recommendation of the Judge of the Juvenile Court.

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Abuse of discretion 1
Corroboration 2
Jurisdiction 3
Rights of probationer 4

1. Abuse of discretion

Where probationer, against whom judgment of paternity had been entered, was committed once for being in arrears in weekly payments for support of child, but was released and was warned of action which the court would take for defaults in the future, and the court waited some 8 months, during which period probationer fell at least 12 payments in arrears, before acting on its warning and committing probationer for 30 days, there was no arbitrary, capricious, or willful treatment of probationer at hands of court, and court did not abuse its discretion. Stevens v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1956, 127 A. 2d 147).

2. Corroboration

In bastardy proceeding, there is no requirement of corroboration of the prosecutrix where there is no statute requiring it and the defendant may be found to be the father on the uncorroborated testimony of the mother where such evidence is credible, sufficiently clear and convincing. District of Columbia v. Turner, Jr. (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 154 A. 2d 925).

3. Jurisdiction

"Children," within statute providing that Domestic Relations Branch of Municipal Court shall have exclusive jurisdiction over actions to enforce support of minor children, includes illegitimate children and Domestic Relations Branch had jurisdiction of action to enforce order directing him to support minor children born out of wedlock, where natural father had acknowledged paternity. C. Johnson v. E. Johnson et al. (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 183 A. 2d 916).

4. Rights of probationer

Probationer, against whom judgment of paternity has been entered, does not stand on equal footing with other citizens, and privilege of probation could be revoked by court in any procedural fashion authorized by this subchapter and, apart from this subchapter, probationer, committed summarily, has no recourse to the Constitution and may not insist on a trial in any strict or formal sense. Stevens v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1956, 127 A. 2d 147).

§ 16–2351. Voluntary agreement for support—Approval—Order of court—Exlusion of other remedies.

The putative father of a child born out of wedlock may enter into an agreement with the mother of the child, or with another person on behalf of the child, for the support and maintenance of the child, and the agreement may be submitted to the court for ratification and approval. Upon ratification and approval, the court shall issue an order incorporating the terms thereof, and payments thereunder may be received and disbursed by the court in the same manner as provided by section 16–2381. The faithful performance under the terms of the agreement bars other remedies of the mother or any other person on behalf of the child for the support of the child, subject to section 16–2349(b). (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 594, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–960 (Jan. 11, 1951, ch. 1225, § 12, 64 Stat. 1242).

Changes are made in phraseology. See additional changes in text.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Civil remedies 1
Consideration 2
Duress 3
Offer of settlement 4
Proper parties 5
Public policy 6
Ratification 7

1. Civil remedies

Where natural father acknowledges paternity, illegitimate children are entitled to civil remedies for support available in Domestic Relations Branch of Court of General Sessions, though they retain all remedies presently available to them in Juvenile Court. C. Johnson v. E. Johnson et al. (1963, 324 F. 2d 884, 117 U.S. App. D.C. 6).

2. Consideration

A mother's agreement not to assert her statutory right of action against her illegitimate child's putative father for child's maintenance constituted sufficient "consideration" for putative father's contract to pay mother weekly sum for child's support. Williams v. Amann (1943, 33 A. 2d 633).

3. Duress

An illegitimate child's putative father's contract to pay mother weekly sum for child's support was not "void," but only "voidable," for duress, though signed by him in order to continue as student at university and obtain degree, as duress, if any, was mental only and when it ceased to exist, it was incumbent on him to repudiate contract or let it stand as valid subsisting agreement. Williams v. Amann (1943, 33 A. 2d 633).

4. Offer of settlement

Defendant's unaccepted offer to pay in order to settle, prefaced by absolute denial of liability, was not a voluntary acknowledgment of paternity of child, and hence this section providing for ratification and approval by Juvenile Court of District of Columbia of agreement for support and maintenance of child by father voluntarily acknowledging paternity was inapplicable to lift offer out of rule against admissibility of offer of compromise. Harrison v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 95 A. 2d 332).

5. Proper parties

An illegitimate child's mother is "proper plaintiff" in suit on putative father's contract to pay mother weekly sum for child's support. Williams v. Amann (1943, 33 A. 2d 633).

6. Public policy

An illegitimate child's putative father's contract to pay mother weekly sum for child's support in consideration of mother's agreement not to assert her statutory right of action for child's maintenance is not void under rule of "public policy" condemning contracts grounded on promises to withhold commencement or prosecution of proceedings for criminal offenses. Williams v. Amann (1943, 33 A. 2d 633).

7. Ratification

An illegitimate child's putative father's continuance of payments under contract with mother for child's support until after expiration of statutory time for mother's institution of action to determine child's parentage and fix father's responsibility for child's support constituted "ratification" of contract by putative father, so as to preclude him from maintaining defense of duress in mother's subsequent action for amount of overdue payments. Williams v. Amann (1943, 33 A. 2d 633).

§ 16–2352. Death of defendant—Liability of estate.

If the defendant dies after paternity has been established and prior to the time the child reaches the age of 16 years, any sums due and unpaid under an order of the court at the time of his death constitute a valid claim against his estate. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 594, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–962 (Jan. 11, 1951, ch. 1225, § 14, 64 Stat. 1243).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–2353. New birth record upon marriage of natural parents.

When a certified copy of a marriage certificate is submitted to the Director of Public Health, establishing that the previously unwed parents of a child born out of wedlock have intermarried subsequent to the birth of the child and the paternity of the child has been judicially determined or acknowledged by the husband before the Commissioners or their designated agent, or has been acknowledged in an affidavit sworn to by the husband before a judge or the clerk of a court of record, or before an officer of the Armed Forces of the United States authorized to administer oaths, or before a person authorized to administer oaths, and the affidavit is delivered to the Commissioners or their designated agent, a new certificate of birth bearing the original date of birth and the names of both parents shall be issued and substituted for the certificate of birth then on file. The original certificate of birth and all papers pertaining to the issuance of the new certificate shall be placed under seal, and opened for inspection only upon order of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 594, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–963 (Jan. 11, 1951, ch. 1225, § 15, 64 Stat. 1243; Apr. 23, 1958, Pub. L. 85–382, § 1, 72 Stat. 97).

"Director of Public Health" is substituted for "Commissioners of the District of Columbia or their designated agent". See section 16–2341 herein and revision note thereunder.

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–2354. Reports to Director of Public Health.

(a) Upon entry of a final judgment determining the paternity of a child born out of wedlock, the clerk of the court shall forward a certificate to the Director of Public Health, or his authorized representative in the jurisdiction in which the child was born, giving the name of the person adjudged to be the father of the child.

(b) Upon receipt of the certificate provided by subsection (a) of this section, the Director of Public Health or his authorized representative shall file it with the original birth record, and thereafter may issue a certificate of birth registration including thereon the name of the person adjudged to be the father of the child. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 594, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–964 (Jan. 11, 1961, ch. 1225, § 16, 64 Stat. 1243; Apr. 23, 1958, Pub. L. 85–382, § 2, 72 Stat. 97).

Words "Director of Public Health, or his authorized representative in the jurisdiction" are substituted for "bureau of vital statistics of the jurisdiction", and "Director of Public Health or his authorized representative" is substituted for "Commissioners of the District of Columbia or their designated agent". See section 16–2341 herein and revision note thereunder.

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–2355. Applicability of sections relating to desertion or nonsupport.

The provisions of sections 22–903 to 22–905, making it a misdemeanor to abandon or willfully neglect to provide for the support and maintenance of minor children in destitute or necessitous circumstances, and providing the proceedings and punishment therefor, also apply to a person who abandons or fails to support his illegitimate child when paternity has been established judicially or when paternity has been directly acknowledged by the putative father under oath, or indirectly acknowledged by voluntarily making contributions to the support of the child. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 594, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–961 (Jan. 11, 1951, ch. 1255, § 13, 64 Stat. 1242).

Section is based on subsec. (b) of section 11–961 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. Remainder of section 11–961 is carried into sections 11–1556 and 16–2381.

Section "22–905" is substituted for "22–906", to correct a typographical error. Section 13 of act Jan. 11, 1951, ch. 1255, 64 Stat. 1242, from which section 11–961 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., was derived, refers only to act Mar. 23, 1906, ch. 1131, 34 Stat. 86, as amended, which is classified to sections 22–903 to 22–905 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. Section 22–906 is from an act of 1910 (May 18, 1910, ch. 248, 36 Stat. 403), and relates to deposits by the clerk of the Juvenile Court of all moneys paid by order of the court under sections 22–903 to 22–905 that are collected and disbursed by the clerk. It seems unnecessary to include section 22–906 in the reference in this section.

Words, "and providing the proceedings and punishment therefor," are inserted for the purpose of completeness.

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

Section 11–1555, section 11–1583(a)(2), section 11–1586(e), and this subchapter shall be so interpreted as to effectuate the protection and welfare of the child involved in any proceedings thereunder. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 595, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–966 (Jan. 11, 1951, ch. 1225, § 18, 64 Stat. 1243).

The provision that authorized appropriations to carry out the purposes of the sections cited in section 11–966 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., is omitted as covered in a separate section of the bill to enact this revision.

The citation of sections 11–951 to 11–967 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., is changed to refer to this subchapter and other sections in this revised part in which the pertinent provisions of sections 11–951 to 11–967 are carried.

A minor change is made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. Nature of proceeding

A proceeding in Juvenile Court of District of Columbia to establish paternity and provide for support of illegitimate child is not criminal proceeding intended to punish father but ultimate object of proceeding is to provide support for child. Harrison v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 95 A. 2d 332).

SUBCHAPTER III.—MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

§ 16–2381. Payments for support and maintenance under section 22–903 to 22–905—Voluntary payments—Disbursement.

(a) In all cases arising pursuant to sections 22–903 to 22–905, that, pursuant to section 11–1556, are brought in the Juvenile Court of the District of Columbia, the court may order payments to be made by the defendant, including a defendant to which section 16–2355 relates, at a precinct of the Metropolitan Police Department of the District of Columbia. As used in this subsection, "Metropolitan Police Department" has the same meaning as that prescribed in section 16–2341.

(b) The Juvenile Court may accept voluntary payments for the support and maintenance of wife or minor children and disburse the moneys to the persons for whom the contributions are paid, in the same manner as the payments are accepted and disbursed pursuant to sections 22–903 to 22–905. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 595, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–961 (Jan. 11, 1951 ch. 1225, § 13, 64 Stat. 1242).

Section is based on part of subsec. (a) and all of subsec. (c), of section 11–961 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. The provision of subsec. (a) of section 11–961 vesting jurisdiction in the Juvenile Court, concurrently with the District Court, of cases arising under sections 22–903 et seq., of the Code, relating to desertion and nonsupport, is carried into section 11–1566 herein. Subsec. (b) of section 11–961 is carried into section 16–2355 herein.

As some of the provisions of section 11–961 of D.C. Code 1961 ed., are, as stated above, carried into sections 11–1556 and 16–2355 herein, words "which, under section 11–1556, are brought in the Juvenile Court of the District of Columbia," are inserted near the beginning of subsec. (a), and words ", including a defendant to which section 16–2355 relates," are inserted after "defendant" in that subsection, for the purpose of clarification and completeness.

The second sentence of subsec. (a) providing that, as used in that subsection, "Metropolitan Police Department" has the same meaning as that prescribed in section 16–2341, is inserted for the same reason as stated in the revision note under section 16–2341.

The citation to section "22–906" of the Code, is changed to section "22–905" to correct a typographical error. See revision note under section 16–2355 herein.

Words ", in its discretion,", which, in the provisions carried into subsec. (a), followed "the court" and preceded "may order", are omitted as surplusage. See revision note under section 16–2349.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–2382. Jury.

The jury for service in the Juvenile Court shall consist of twelve persons. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 595, Pub. L–88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–936 (Mar. 19, 1906, ch. 960, § 35, as added June 1, 1938, ch. 309, 52 Stat. 596 (604)).

Section is based on the first clause of section 11–936 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. For remainder of section 11–936, see tables.

§ 16–2383. Suspension of imposition or execution of sentence.

In all cases in the Juvenile Court, the court may, upon conviction, suspend the imposition of sentence or impose sentence and suspend the execution thereof, it if appears to the satisfaction of the court that the ends of justice and the best interests of the public and of the defendant would be served thereby. In the imposition of sentence and the suspension of the execution thereof, the court may place the defendant on probation as provided by section 16–2314, 22–903, or 31–207, as the case may be. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 595, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–942a (June 18, 1953, ch. 128, § 1, 67 Stat. 65).

The provisions from which section 11–942a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., was derived (the above-cited section 1 of act June 18, 1953) were also set out in that Code as section 11–757 thereof because they referred, not only to the Juvenile Court, but also to the Municipal Court, now the Court of General Sessions. In this section, the provisions relating to the Court of General Sessions are omitted, as they are set out in section 16–710 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–2384. Fees prohibited.

A fee may not be charged for any service rendered by the clerk of the Juvenile Court or by any officer of the court. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 595, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–935 (Mar. 19, 1906, ch. 960, § 34, as added June 1, 1938, ch. 309, 52 Stat. 596(604)).

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

Chapter 25.—CHANGE OF NAME

Sec.
16–2501. Application—Persons who may file.
16–2502. Notice—Contents.
16–2503. Decree.

§ 16–2501. Application—Persons who may file.

Whoever, being a resident of the District and desiring a change of name, may file an application in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia setting forth the reasons therefor and also the name desired to be assumed. If the applicant is an infant, the application shall be filed by his parent, guardian, or next friend. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 595, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–1101 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854 § 1298, 31 Stat. 1394; June 30, 1902, ch. 1329, 32 Stat. 543; June 25, 1936, ch. 804, 49 Stat. 1921; June 25, 1948, ch. 646, § 32(b), 62 Stat. 991; May 24, 1949, ch. 139, § 127, 63 Stat. 107).

Words "holding an equity term", which followed the reference to the District Court, are omitted as obsolete. See revision note under section 11–502 herein.

The third (final) sentence of section 16–1101 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., read as follows: "The Court shall have power, in its discretion, to grant the prayer of such petition". This sentence is omitted as covered by section 16–2503 herein.

Reference to "petition" are changed to "application", as the latter term is perhaps more in consonance with the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. There is nothing in those rules indicating that they do not apply to change of name proceedings in the District Court in the District of Columbia. This type of proceeding is not listed in rule 81(a) among the proceedings in that court to which the rules do not apply.

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. Not applicable to corporations

Sections 16–1101 to 16–1103 do not apply to corporations. American Elementary Elec. Co. v. Normandy (46 App. D.C. 329).

§ 16–2502. Notice—Contents.

Prior to a hearing pursuant to this chapter, notice of the filing of the application, containing the substance and prayer thereof, shall be published once a week for three consecutive weeks in a newspaper in general circulation published in the District. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 595, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–1102 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1299, 31 Stat. 1394; June 30, 1902, ch. 1329, 32 Stat. 543).

Word "application" is substituted for "petition". See revision note under section 16–2501 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–2503. Decree.

On proof of the notice prescribed by section 16–2502, and upon a showing that the court deems satisfactory, the court may change the name of the applicant according to the prayer of the application. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 595, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–1103 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854; § 1300, 31 Stat. 1394; June 25, 1948, ch. 646, § 32(a), 62 Stat. 991, May 24, 1949, ch. 139, § 127, 63 Stat. 107).

Words "or the judge holding an equity term thereof", which followed "court", are omitted as obsolete. See revision note under section 11–502 herein.

Word "application" is substituted for "petition". See revision note under section 16–2501 herein.

Chapter 27.—NEGLIGENCE CAUSING DEATH

Sec.
16–2701. Liability—Damages—Prior recovery as precluding action.
16–2702. Party plaintiff—Statute of limitations.
16–2703. Distribution of damages.

When, by an injury done or happening within the limits of the District, the death of a person is caused by the wrongful act, neglect, or default of a person or corporation, and the act, neglect, or default is such as will, if death does not ensue, entitle the person injured, or if the person injured is a married woman, entitle her husband, either separately or by joining with the wife, to maintain an action and recover damages, the person who or corporation that is liable if death does not ensue is liable to an action for damages for the death, notwithstanding the death of the person injured, even though the death is caused under circumstances that constitute a felony.

The damages shall be assessed with reference to the injury resulting from the act, neglect, or default causing the death, to the spouse and the next of kin of the deceased person; and shall include the reasonable expenses of last illness and burial. Where there is a surviving spouse, the jury shall allocate the portion of its verdict payable to the spouse and next of kin, respectively, according to the finding of damage to the spouse and next of kin. If, in a particular case, the verdict is deemed excessive the trial judge or the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit, on appeal of the cause, may order a reduction of the verdict. An action may not be maintained pursuant to this chapter if the party injured by the wrongful act, neglect, or default has recovered damages therefor during his life. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 596, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–1201 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1301, 31 Stat. 1394; June 19, 1948, ch. 507, § 1, 62 Stat. 487).

Word "judge" is substituted for "justice". See sections 88, 132, and 133 of Title 28, United States Code, and act June 25, 1948, ch, 646, § 32(a), 62 Stat. 991, as amended by act May 24, 1949, ch. 139. § 127, 63 Stat. 107.

1. Decisions under prior law

Under act of February 17, 1885 (23 Stat. 307), see McGraw v. District of Columbia (3 App. D.C. 405, 25 L.R.A. 691).

In action for wrongful death under act of Congress of February 17, 1885 (23 Stat. 307), it was not necessary for the plaintiff to allege special pecuniary loss due to death of the deceased. District of Columbia v. Wilcox (4 App. D.C. 90).

Under act of Congress of February 17, 1885 (23 Stat. 307), an administrator may sue for killing of his intestate whether the intestate left goods and chattels or not. Washington Asphalt Block & Tile Co. v. Mackey (15 App. D.C. 410).

2. Abuse of discretion

In action for wrongful death, record disclosed District Court did not abuse its discretion in denying application of plaintiffs for additional time to qualify as personal representatives within meaning of wrongful death statute. Paris et al. v. Braden, M.D., Casualty Hosp., and Travelers Ins. Co. (1956, 234 F. 2d 40, 98 U.S. App. D.C. 219).

3. Amendment of complaint

Where an act of negligence causing death gives rise simultaneously to two separate and independent claims, one under the Wrongful Death Act, §§ 16–1201 to 16–1203, and the other under the Survival Act, § 12–101 et seq the District Court erred in denying plaintiff's motion to amend her complaint to include a demand for damages under the Survival Act over and above the initial demand under the Wrongful Death Act on the ground that the remedies were mutually exclusive. Sornberger, Executrix, etc. v. District Dental Laboratory Inc. et ano. (1959, 266 F. 2d 694, 105 U.S. App. D.C. 290).

In administrator's action to recover for death of decedent and to recover for decedent's injuries sustained and loss of potential earning capacity, administrator would be allowed to amend complaint to increase damages claimed from $46,500 to $71,500. Mitchell v. Gundlach (1956, 136 F. Supp. 169).

4. Beneficiaries

Action for wrongful death caused by negligence in Maryland can be maintained in District of Columbia court for the benefit of the persons designated in the statute of Maryland. Stewart v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. (1897, 18 S. Ct. 105, 168 U.S. 445, 42 L. Ed. 537).

Fact that the deceased had his domicile in Virginia, and that he had no estate here, at the time of his death are not conclusive against the right to obtain letters of administration in District of Columbia. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Lipscomb (22 App. D.C. 104).

If the action cannot be maintained by the personal representative of the intestate for the ultimate benefit of the father, who is next of kin, and alone has been shown to have sustained any injury by the death of the son, the judgment ought to be arrested, for the remedy goes no further. United States Elec. Lighting Co. v. Sullivan (22 App. D.C. 115).

Action is maintainable for benefit of illegitimate brother of the half blood of the decedent, a woman. Southern R. Co. v. Hawkins (35 App. D.C. 313, 21 Ann. Cas. 926).

Necessity for declaration to allege existence of beneficiaries, and right to amend a declaration failing so to allege. Neubeck v. Lynch (37 App. D.C. 576, 37 L.R.A., N.S., 813).

A husband, as administrator, has a proper action for death of wife, within meaning of the words "next of kin." Calvert v. Terminal Taxicab Co. (48 App. D.C. 119).

5. Burden of proof

In wrongful death action by pedestrian's administratrix against motorist whose automobile struck pedestrian, administratrix had burden of proving that motorist should have seen pedestrian in time to avoid accident. Skinner v. Koontz (C.A.D.C. 1960, 284 F. 2d 207).

Executor of estate of passenger who sustained fatal injuries in fall through open vestibule doors on fast moving train had, as part of his burden of proof, in action against railroad, obligation, as element in showing negligence of railroad in failing to inspect vestibule doors to see to it that they remained closed, to introduce sufficient evidence to permit conclusion that there was opportunity for further inspections than those made. Pennsylvania R.R. Co. v. Pomeroy (1956, 239 F. 2d 435, 99 U.S. App. D.C. 272, certiorari denied 77 S. Ct. 861, 353, U.S. 950, 1 L. Ed. 2d 859).

A passenger or his representative has the burden, if he is to succeed in a suit for negligence against a railroad, of producing sufficient evidence to warrant inferences required to support verdict in his favor; plaintiff, who relies on an alleged act of specific negligence, is not relieved of burden of making prima facie proof of that act, nor is jury free to make any guess or conjecture it likes, without any evidentiary basis therefor. Id.

6. Change of venue

Under U.S. Code, title 28, § 1404(a), providing for change of venue for convenience of parties and witnesses in interest of justice to other district or division where action might have been brought, United States District Court for District of Maryland could not transfer case to District of Columbia by administrator who was resident of District of Columbia, brought under section 12–101 et seq., and 16–1201 to 16–1203, against single defendant who was Maryland resident, and who was not amenable to personal service in district and who would not consent to transfer. Mitchell v. Gundlach (1956, 136 F. Supp. 169).

In District of Columbia's administrator's action against individual defendant who was resident of Maryland, based on injury sustained by decedent allegedly due to defective commodity manufactured and sold by defendant, evidence on interest of justice did not require that venue be transferred from Baltimore, Maryland, to Washington, D.C. Id.

7. Concurring negligence

In action for taxicab passenger's wrongful death sustained in intersection collision with streetcar, evidence sustained implied findings that streetcar had entered intersection against traffic light and that taxi driver had failed to slow down so that death was caused by concurring negligence. Coleman v. Moore et al. (1952, 108 F. Supp 425).

8. Construction

There is only one cause of action for wrongful death and it arises under sections 16–1201—16–1203 of this title. Webster v. Clodfelter (1942, 130 F. 2d 434, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 171, 143 A.L.R. 280, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 261, 317 U.S. 689, 87 L. Ed. 552).

Congress did not, by enactment of wrongful death statute (§§ 16–1201 to 16–1203) and compensation act (U.S. Code, title 33, § 901 et seq.) applicable to District of Columbia, intend to create two separate and independent causes of action for wrongful death, and there was no intention to allow a widow of an injured employee to recover from the employer under both acts. Ciarricchi v. James Kane Co. et al. (1953, 116 F. Supp. 848).

Statute is remedial and as such must be liberally construed. Calvert v. Terminal Taxicab Co. (48 App. D.C. 119).

9. —— With other laws

Plaintiff, who recovered against one joint tort-feasor under the Virginia Wrongful Death Act, and in a separate action against another tort-feasor under the District of Columbia Wrongful Death Act, was not entitled to recover against the joint tort-feasors collectively an amount greater than the amount of the larger judgment, the judgment against party responsible under the District of Columbia Act, since loss of consortium and solatium, recovery for which was allowable only under the Virginia Act, was not considered in computing damages so that judgments against both tort-feasors were for the same damages. J. A. St. Clair, as Executrix etc. v. Eastern Airlines Inc., and United States (1962, 302 F. 2d 477, U.S. App. 2d Ct.).

New York law applied in determining right of plaintiff to interest on judgment for wrongful death of her decedent, where jurisdiction of suit, which was brought in the Southern District of New York was based on diversity of citizenship. Id.

Under New York law, plaintiff, who sued for wrongful death of her decedent who was killed in an accident in the District of Columbia, was entitled only to interest from date of judgment, and was not entitled to interest on the judgment from date of decedent's death. Id.

Federal court, for New York District, whose jurisdiction rested upon diversity of citizenship, would apply New York conflict of laws rules to death action arising out of airplane crash occurring over District of Columbia; and, accordingly, plaintiff's right to recover damages was governed by Wrongful Death Act of District of Columbia. J. A. St. Clair, as Executrix etc. v. Eastern Airlines, Inc. (1961, 194 F. Supp. 623).

New York statute requiring that judgment include interest from date of decedent's death was inapplicable to wrongful death action in which substantive right of recovery was based upon laws of District of Columbia. Id.

In wrongful death action against United States under Federal Tort Claims Act on ground that negligence of government employees in control tower at Washington National Airport in Virginia was contributing cause of collision, in District of Columbia, of Bolivian plane with commercial airline plane in which decedent was passenger, while both planes were attempting to land at airport, the applicable Virginia Wrongful Death Act limiting total recovery to $15,000 did not permit recovery of additional damages for loss of society and solatium, where plaintiffs had already recovered, under District of Columbia Wrongful Death Act, a greater sum from the commercial airline, a joint tort-feasor. Cook et al. v. United States (C.A. Conn. 1960, 274 F. 2d 689).

Action brought in District under wrongful death act of Nebraska is subject to the two-year limitation of that act and not the one-year limitation of section 16–1202. The law of the state where the death occurred should govern unless the public policy of the forum is clearly opposed. This section is confined to deaths within its jurisdiction. Lewis v. Reconstruction Finance Corp. (1949, 177 F. 2d 654, 85 U.S. App. D.C. 339).

10. Employers' Liability Act

This section is not repealed by the Employers' Liability Act (sections 44–401 to 44–405); but each act applies to cases arising under it and to none other. Hyde v. Southern R. Co. (31 App. D.C. 466).

11. Evidence

In action by pedestrian's administratrix against motorist for wrongful death of pedestrian who was struck by motorist's automobile shortly after midnight at or near intersection of two streets, evidence, which failed to establish that motorist should have seen pedestrian in time to avoid accident, to reveal pedestrian's direction of travel or the point of impact, or to show that motorist's speed was unreasonable under the circumstances, was not sufficient to warrant jury, on issue of negligence, in finding verdict for administratrix. Skinner v. Koontz (C.A.D.C. 1960, 284 F. 2d 207).

In action for wrongful death, evidence as to personal habits and qualities of decedent is to some degree relevant in determining decedent's earning ability and support that family would have received but for his death. St. Clair as Executrix etc. v. Eastern Air Lines, Inc. (C.A.N.Y. 1960, 279 F. 2d 119).

In action for wrongful death, defendant should not be permitted to put in evidence, on question of pecuniary loss suffered by decedent's family, everything that defendant may unearth and that reflects unfavorably on decedent. Id.

In action for wrongful death, except as details of decedent's personal life may show propensity of descendant to spend his income in ways which do not inure to benefit of family, such details are not in issue, and evidence as to such details is not admissible. Id.

In absence of some preliminary showing to contrary in action for wrongful death, a court ought not to suppose, for purpose of ascertaining pecuniary loss suffered by decedent's family, that evidence of manner in which decedent chooses to conduct his personal life is of utility in determining way he manages his business affairs. Id.

In action against railroad for death of passenger who fell through open vestibule doors of fast moving train, theory that railroad was negligent because fact that doors were later found by ticket collector to be swinging freely justified inference that they were not fully closed at time of last inspection or that there were defects in the latching mechanisms, was not supported by evidence, in view of uncontradicted testimony of ticket collector, who was plaintiff's witness, that doors were closed at last inspection and were not defective, and in view of other reasonable explanations for fact of doors swinging freely. Pennsylvania R.R. v. Pomeroy (1956, 239 F. 2d 435, 99 U.S. App. D.C. 272, certiorari denied 77 S. Ct. 861, 353 U.S. 950, 1 L. Ed. 2d 859).

In action against transit company for wrongful death of passenger as alleged result of his having been dragged or thrown under bus when his clothing caught in rear door of bus from which he was alighting there was no such insufficiency of evidence as would justify granting of defendant's motion for judgment non obstante verdicto and verdict was not so contrary to clear weight of evidence as to justify new trial. Howard v. Capital Transit Co. (1951, 97 F. Supp. 578, affirmed 196 F. 2d 593, 90 U.S. App. D.C. 359).

In action against transit company for wrongful death of passenger as alleged result of his having been dragged or thrown under bus when his clothing caught in rear door of bus from which he was alighting, where there were no witnesses who could positively identify deceased as having been passenger, trial court did not err in permitting introduction of evidence of bus schedules, on night in question, on routes from points near decedent's place of employment to point near his home and evidence that decedent possessed weekly bus pass. Id.

12. Federal Employees Compensation Act

Where government employee traveling on government business in commercial airline plane was killed in airplane accident due in part to negligence of commercial airline's pilot and widow sued commercial airline and agreed to a settlement, United States was entitled to statutory refund of compensation paid to widow under Federal Employees' Compensation Act, U.S. Code, title 5, § 751 et seq., to extent that refund did not exceed widow's share of the settlement, and this was so even though the negligence of control tower operator employed by United States also contributed to the accident. Randall v. United States (1960, 282 F. 2d 287, 108 U.S. App. D.C. 317, certiorari denied 81 S. Ct. 693, 365 U.S. 813, 5 L. Ed. 2d 692).

Where decedent's aunt petitioned for appointment as administratrix of estate of decedent, who died as result of injuries sustained in course of his employment as custodian at Howard University, on theory that estate had a valid cause of action for wrongful death against the university which decedent's widow was unwilling to assert, but petitioner, so far as record showed, presented no challenge to administrative determination of Bureau of Employees' Compensation that deceased was a federal employee and that decedent's widow was entitled to compensation under Federal Employees' Compensation Act (U.S. Code, title 5, § 751 et seq.), a determination which precluded any wrongful death action, petitioner was properly denied appointment as administratrix. Tomlin v. Irvine (1954, 212 F. 2d 635, 94 U.S. App. D.C. 101).

13. Instructions

In action for death of boy who was struck by truck traveling allegedly at 35 miles per hour in 25 miles per hour zone, where plaintiff did not offer expert testimony that at speed of 25 miles per hour accident would have been avoidable, and uncontradicted testimony established that accident occurred the moment boy stepped on roadway, there was no evidentiary basis for trial court's instruction on proximate cause that a "slow rate of speed" child would have been able to flee the truck's path or at least to escape death. Gulf Oil Corp. v. E. E. Reed, as Administrator etc. (1964, 334 F. 2d 960, —— U.S. App. D.C. ——).

In wrongful death action, wherein there was no evidence that decedent's former business associate, who denied stating that he had seen decedent unable to sign checks because of alcoholic condition and that decedent had left associate's employ because decedent might have been alcoholic, had made such statements to government agent, and defense counsel had been erroneously permitted to read into record questions from associate's deposition purportedly reciting such statements, instruction that it was entirely up to jury whether associate had made the statements to the agent was erroneous, and judge's observation that failure to produce agent lent credibility to associate's denial did not cure the harm, but only instruction to take associate's deposition testimony to the contrary as wholly uncontradicted would have sufficed. St. Clair v. Eastern Air Lines, Inc. (C.A.N.Y. 1960, 279 F. 2d 119).

14. Jurisdiction

The Municipal Court for the District of Columbia does not have jurisdiction of an action under this section, though recovery sought is limited to $3,000, the maximum jurisdictional amount of an action in the Municipal Court, since the United States Court of Appeals is the only court to which appeals may be taken in such an action, and therefore the trial of such an action must be had exclusively in the United States District Court. Eatmon v. Driggers (D.C. Mun. App. 1956, 125 A. 2d 847).

15. Measure of damages

In action for wrongful death of 9-week-old child, where the trial court properly instructed jury on measure of damages in event defendant was liable, and upon inquiry repeated the instruction, even though there was evidence to support substantial damages, trial court did not abuse its discretion in refusing to grant a new trial on ground of inadequacy of an award of $129.90. Rankin etc. v. Shayne Brothers (1956, 234 F. 2d 35, 98 U.S. App. D.C. 214).

Death action under this section, being in derogation of the common law, cannot be liberalized by judicial construction to extend a right of action to widow for loss of consortium due to death of husband, but such extension of the common-law doctrine, if it is to be made, must be done by express provisions of statute. Ciarrocchi v. James Kane Co., et al. (1953, 116 F. Supp. 848).

Damages in death case must be measured in light of situation existing as of date of death and are not affected by subsequent events. Coleman v. Moore et al. (1952, 108 F. Supp 425).

For wrongful death of wage-earning wife, husband was entitled to recover wife's potential financial contributions to maintenance of household and reasonable value of her services during their joint life expectancy, and therefore award of $5,000 to husband was not excessive, and fact that he remarried two years after wife's death could not be considered. Id.

Award of $3,000 to son for wrongful death of mother was not excessive where mother had helped to finance son's education, and fact that son abandoned school some time after mother's death had no significance. Id.

In damage suit for wrongful death, where deceased leaves a widow and four sons, one of whom is a minor, an instruction to the jury is erroneous which includes damages for reasonable expectations of prospective inheritance, prospective support, gifts, guidance, paternal advice and maintenance. Baltimore & P. R. Co. v. Golway (6 App. D.C. 143).

At common law, the right of a parent to recover for loss of the services of his minor child, like that of the husband for the services of the wife, is limited to the time that may have elapsed, if any, between the time of the injury giving rise to the action, and the resulting death. United States Elec. Lighting Co. v. Sullivan (22 App. D.C. 115).

Father as administrator is entitled to recover more than nominal damages for death of child between eight and nine years of age. United States Elec. Lighting Co. v. Sullivan (22 App. D.C. 115). See, also, Smith v. Cissel (22 App. D.C. 318).

"Section 1301, D.C. 1901 (this section), in effect, provides that the measure of damages shall be the injury resulting to the widow and next of kin. While section 1302 (§ 16–1202) requires the action to be brought in the name of the personal representative, section 1303 (§ 16–1203) in terms sets aside the damages recovered for the benefit of the family of the decedent. It will thus be seen that the duty of the administrator is simply to bring the suit allowed by the statute, and, in the event of a recovery, distribute the damages according to the provisions of the statute of distributions in force in this District." Southern R. Co. v. Hawkins (35 App. D.C. 313, 21 Ann. Cas. 926).

In action for death of sister, the amount of pecuniary loss is for the jury. Ramsey v. Ross (1936, 85 F. 2d 685, 66 App. D.C. 186).

The only damages recoverable in an action for wrongful death are those which constitute pecuniary loss to widow and next of kin for whose benefit action by administrator is brought. Tate v. Nelson (App. D.C. 1947, 71 F. Supp. 465).

The pecuniary loss to widow and next of kin for whose benefit action for wrongful death is brought by administrator is not dependent upon any legal liability of deceased to beneficiaries, but there must appear some reasonable expectation of pecuniary assistance or support of which they have been deprived. Id.

16. Parties defendant

No right of recovery exists where an officer kills one engaged in the commission of a felony and who draws a gun on the officer. Harris v. Embrey (1939, 105 F. 2d 111, 70 App. D.C. 232).

These sections apply to action for death of seaman on board a vessel owned by the Fleet Corporation occurring on the coast of Africa; and they also apply to the operator of the vessel joined as a defendant with the owner. United States Shipping Board Emergency Fleet Corporation v. Greenwald (C.C.A. 2, 1927, 16 F. 2d 948).

Where original complaint in wrongful death action was timely filed and process was timely placed in hands of marshal, but complaint did not properly name the defendants against whom relief was sought and process was not directed to such defendants, amended complaint which properly named defendants and which was filed after expiration of time for bringing wrongful death action, and process issued pursuant to amended complaint, did not relate back to filing of original complaint and to placing of first process in hands of marshal, and hence action was not commenced within time provided for bringing such action. Harris v. Stone et al. (1953, 115 F. Supp. 531).

Action may be maintained in this District against a druggist whose negligent filling of a prescription in the District results in death beyond the District. Moore v. Pywell (29 App. D.C. 312, 9 L.R.A., N.S., 1078).

17. Personal representative

Surviving children of decedent were not personal representatives within meaning of wrongful death statute (§§ 16–1201 to 16–1203), in the absence of appointment as such and consequently could not maintain action for wrongful death of decedent, notwithstanding Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(a), U.S. Code, title 28, Appendix, providing that every action shall be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest and specifying exceptions thereto. Paris et al. v. Braden, M.D., Casualty Hosp., and Travelers Ins. Co. (1956, 234 F. 2d 40, 98 U.S. App. D.C. 219).

Action under wrongful death act may only be maintained by personal representative if the wrongful act was one which would have entitled decedent to maintain it had death not ensued. Brown v. Curtin & Johnson, Inc. (1955, 221 F. 2d 106, 95 U.S. App. D.C. 234).

18. Reduction of verdict

Amount of award for death of child of tender years is matter which must be left to good sense of jury. E. E. Reed, as Administrator, etc. v. Gulf Oil Corporation (1963, 217 F. Supp. 370).

Verdict of $8,000 for "pecuniary loss" from death of 11 year old boy was not excessive. M. E. Hankins, Administratix etc. v. Southern Foundation Corp., et al. (1963, 216 F. Supp. 554).

Award of $17,000 for death of new-born baby as result of fall through hole in delivery table at time of birth was not so extreme as to cause appellate court to act of own motion to reduce award, under this section. National Homeopathic Hospital v. Hord (1953, 204 F. 2d 397, 92 U.S. App. D.C. 204).

19. Rehearing

Where request was made on petition for rehearing to have complaint, which had previously been considered only as one for wrongful death, considered as setting out cause of action for negligence, damages and malpractice, prior judgment dismissing complaint, which judgment had been affirmed by Court of Appeals, was modified so as to affirm dismissal only insofar as complaint set forth claim for death by wrongful act. Paris et al. v. Braden, M.D., Casualty Hosp., and Travelers Ins. Co. (1956, 234 F. 2d 40, 98 U.S. App. D.C. 219).

20. Res ipsa loquitur

Doctrine of res ipsa loquitur did not apply to case where passenger fell fatally through open vestibule doors of moving train, in view of accessibility of doors to all passengers and fact that doors could have been opened freely by anyone. Pennsylvania R.R. Co. v. Pomercy (1956, 239 F. 2d 425, 99 U.S. App. D.C. 272, certiorari denied 77 S. Ct. 861, 353 U.S. 950, 1 L. Ed. 2d 859).

21. Witnesses, examination of

In wrongful death action, although plaintiff's counsel had not requested court to inqure whether defense counsel intended to proffer government agent as witness for purpose of impeaching decedent's business associate, who denied stating that he had seen decedent unable to sign checks because of alcoholic condition and that decedent had left his employ because decedent might have been alcoholic, where defense counsel had given no assurance that questions reciting the alleged statements were needed as foundation for contradiction of associate, and agent was not called, it was error to permit such question. St. Clair v. Eastern Air Lines, Inc. (C.A.N.Y. 1960, 279 F. 2d 119).

Cross-examination testimony of widow, which concerned initial acquaintanceship between her and decedent, her knowledge, when she began seeing him, that he was married to another, her familiarity with progress of divorce suit by the other, and whether or not she and decedent had been living at his apartment prior to their marriage, was irrelevant to question of pecuniary loss suffered by widow and by decedent's child and should not have been admitted in widow's and child's wrongful death action. Id.

22. Workmen's Compensation Act

Section 36–501 et seq. creates a right of action against employer on account of death of employee arising out of and in course of employment, but it does not create a cause of action for wrongful death against any other person. Webster v. Clodfelter (1942, 130 F. 2d 434, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 171, 143 A.L.R. 280, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 261, 317 U.S. 689, 87 L. Ed. 552).

Workmen's Compensation Act, U.S. Code, title 33, § 901 et seq., applicable to District of Columbia, providing in part that liability of an employer under act shall be exclusive and in place of all other liability, would have precluded employee from maintaining action for heart injury suffered while moving a piano in the course of his employment by defendant, if the injury had not resulted in death, and thus his widow and children, who had accepted benefits of Compensation Act, could not maintain action under this section making right of action dependent on whether decedent would have been able to maintain action for injury if death had not ensued. O'Neil v. Shelton Bros. Trucking Co. (1953, 116 F. Supp. 654).

Where widow has elected to receive compensation under Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, U.S. Code, title 33, § 901 et seq., but widow is not the only person for whose benefit an action for wrongful death may be maintained, any moneys paid or to be paid as compensation to the widow may not be shown in the action for wrongful death in extinguishment or reduction of her pecuniary loss. Tate v. Nelson (App. D.C. 1947, 71 F. Supp. 465).

§ 16–2702. Party plaintiff—Statute of limitations.

An action pursuant to this chapter shall be brought by and in the name of the personal representative of the deceased person, and within one year after the death of the person injured. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 596, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §16–1202 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1302, 31 Stat. 1394; June 30, 1902, ch. 1329, 32 Stat. 543).

1. In general

Action for wrongful death must fail if not brought by personal representative. Harris v. Embrey (1939, 105 F. 2d 111, 70 App. D.C. 232).

2. Abuse of discretion

In action for wrongful death, record disclosed District Court did not abuse its discretion in denying application of plaintiff for additional time to qualify as personal representatives within meaning of this section. Paris et al. v. Braden, M.D., Casualty Hosp., and Travelers Ins. Co. (1956, 234 F. 2d 40, 98 U.S. App. D.C. 219).

3. Actions against United States

An action against the United States for death by wrongful act or negligence in the District was not barred by the one-year statute of limitations under this section, but was governed by the Federal Court of Claims Act. The attention and precision devoted by Congress to the question of limitations require that effect be given to the period which it prescribes notwithstanding the fact that the cause of action against the United States may not, in a local jurisdicion, be the same in duration as therein authorized against a private individual. Young v. United States (1950, 184 F. 2d 587).

4. Aliens, action by

That decedent's daughter was a national of Greece and an alleged alien enemy did not toll this section for bringing wrongful death action where such daughter was a resident of Michigan at time of accident, and it was upon her petition that administrator of the estate of decedent was appointed, and there was no reason why daughter could not have instituted such suit within the year following death of decedent. Summar v. Besser Mfg. Co. (1945, 17 N.W. 2d 209, 310 Mich. 347).

This section was not tolled because decedent's widow, daughter, and son were nationals and residents of Greece, and allegedly alien enemies because of German occupation of Greece, since suit might have been prosecuted in their behalf notwithstanding the Trading With the Enemy Act, U.S. Code, title 50 App., § 1 et seq. Id.

5. Amendment

Where original complaint in wrongful death action was timely filed and process was timely placed in hands of marshal, but complaint did not properly name the defendants against whom relief was sought and process was not directed to such defendants, amended complaint which properly named defendants and which was filed after expiration of time for bringing wrongful death action, and process issued pursuant to amended complaint, did not relate back to filing of original complaint and to placing of first process in hands of marshal, and hence action was not commenced within time provided for bringing such action. Harris v. Stone et al. (1953, 115 F. Supp. 531).

6. —— Of complaint

Where plaintiff sought to recover under wrongful death statute and, after being given leave to amend, amended complaint without indicating her intent to rely on survival statute, alleged error of District Court in dismissing her complaint seeking recovery under survival statute could not be raised for first time on appeal. G. E. Meyers, Administratix etc. v. Alvey-Ferguson Co., et al. (1964, 326 F. 2d 590, U.S. App. Sixth Circuit).

7. Construction with other laws

Federal court, for New York District, whose jurisdiction rested upon diversity of citizenship, would apply New York conflict of laws rules to death action arising out of airplane crash occurring over District of Columbia; and, accordingly, plaintiff's right to recover damages was governed by Wrongful Death Act of District of Columbia. J. A. St. Clair as Executrix etc. v. Eastern Airlines, Inc. (1961, 194 F. Supp. 623).

New York statute requiring that judgment include interest from date of decedent's death was inapplicable to wrongful death action in which substantive right of recovery was based upon laws of District of Columbia. Id.

Section 36–501 does not alter the period of limitations in this section. Webster v. Clodfelter (1942, 130 F. 2d 434, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 171, 143 A.L.R. 280, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 261, 317 U.S. 689, 87 L. Ed. 552).

Where defendant caused death of employee of another under such circumstances that, if death had not ensued, the employee would have been entitled to maintain action against defendant or to recover compensation under section 36–501, death action instituted under this section within one year after appointment of guardian for employee's infant son but more than one year after death was barred by limitation of this section, notwithstanding employees' compensation act provision that one year limitation on right to compensation for death should not be applicable to infants until appointment of guardian. Id.

This section was not inapplicable to action for death caused by automobile in the District on ground that application of such limitation would contravene the Michigan statute, Comp. Laws 1929, providing for suspending of running of limitations when any person is disabled to prosecute an action, where it was not shown that decedent's administrator might not have brought the action in Michigan within one year following death. Summar v. Besser Mfg. Co. (1945, 17 N. W. 2d 209, 310 Mich. 347).

Action brought in District under wrongful death act of Nebraska is subject to the two-year limitation of that act, and not the one-year limitation of this section. The law of the state where the death occurred should govern unless the public policy of the form is clearly opposed. This section is confined to deaths within its jurisdiction. Lewis v. Reconstruction Finance Corp. (1949, 177 F. 2d 654, 85 U.S. App. D.C. 339).

Where workmen's compensation carrier brought action against airline for wrongful death of deceased for whose death it had paid compensation to widow, and such death occurred in District of Columbia which barred actions for wrongful death commenced more than one year after death, action begun in New York more than one year after death was barred. Hartford Accident & Indemnity Co. v. Eastern Air Lines Inc. (1957, 155 F. Supp. 263).

An action brought by the State of Maryland where the death occurred in accordance with a Maryland statute is entitled to be maintained within the District as one for wrongful death. State of Maryland v. Eastern Airlines (1949, 81 F. Supp. 345).

8. Diligence of plaintiff

Where action was brought within this section's period against nonresident of District of Columbia for death caused by automobile, and over three years after the death and two years and one month after action had been filed service was made on the nonresident, but during the intervening period five summonses had been issued at less than six-month intervals for personal service on the nonresident, there was a sufficient showing of "diligence," so that ruling that there had been a "discontinuance" of the action because of undue delay was improper. Seymour v. Hawkins (1943, 133 F. 2d 15, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 376, 167 A.L.R. 1055).

9. Executor, administrator or representative

Surviving children of decedent, were not personal representatives within meaning of §§ 16–1201 to 16–1203, in the absence of appointment as such and consequently could not maintain action for wrongful death of decedent, notwithstanding Federal Civil Procedure Rule 17(a), U.S. Code, title 28, Appendix, providing that every action shall be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest and specifying exceptions thereto. Paris et al. v. Braden, M.D., Casualty Hosp., Travelers Ins. Co. (1956, 234 F. 2d 40, 98 U.S. App. D.C. 219).

The term "legal representative" is not necessarily restricted to personal representatives of deceased, but is sufficiently broad to cover all persons who, with respect to deceased's property, stand in deceased's place and represent deceased's interest, whether transferred to them by deceased's act or by operation of law. Thomas v. Doyle et al. (1951, 187 F. 2d 207, 88 U.S. App. D.C. 95).

The term "legal representative" has been held to mean either the executor or administrator of the deceased. Ferguson v. Washington & R. G. Co. (6 App. D.C. 525). See, also, Southern R. Co. v. Hawkins (35 App. D.C. 313, 21 Ann. Cas. 926).

Words "personal representative" have been held to refer either to the executor or administrator, and hence, as the right of the action is statutory, no person other than those upon whom authority is expressly conferred may maintain action. Fleming v. Capital Trac. Co. (40 App. D.C. 489).

10. Measure of damages

In action for wrongful death of nine-week-old child where the trial court properly instructed jury on measure of damages in event defendant was liable, and upon inquiry repeated the instruction, even though there was evidence to support substantial damages, trial court did not abuse its discretion in refusing to grant a new trial on ground of inadequacy of an award of $129.90. Rankin v. Shayne Brothers (1956, 234 F. 2d 35, 98 U.S. App. D.C. 214).

11. Residency

This section was not inapplicable to action for death caused by automobile in the District because some of decedent's heirs did not reside in the District during the year following the death, where two of the heirs resided in the District, and by operating a motor vehicle in the District, nonresident owner and his agent subject themselves to jurisdiction of the courts of the District of Columbia. Summar v. Besser Mfg. Co. (1945, N. W. 2d 209, 310 Mich. 347).

12. Statute, a limitation of right

This section is a limitation of the right and not merely of the remedy. Hartford Accident & Indemnity Co. v. Eastern Air Lines Inc. (1957, 155 F. Supp. 263).

13. Tolling of statute

Pendency of action for personal injuries did not toll statute of limitations on death claim. Hudson v. Lazarus (1954, 217 F. 2d 344, 95 U.S. App. D.C. 16).

14. Workmen's Compensation Act

An employer or an insurance carrier who has paid compensation to the only beneficiary or beneficiaries entitled to receive the same and who has a right of subrogation, may bring the subrogation action against the third person who caused the death of the employee, and the action need not be brought by the personal representative of the decedent. Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Moses (1933, 53 S. Ct. 231, 287 U.S. 530, 77 L. Ed. 477, 88 A.L.R. 647).

In case there is more than one dependent and one only elects to accept workmen's compensation and the other dependent or dependents elect to bring an action under §§ 16–1201 to 16–1203, then the employer is not entitled to sue as a subrogee but the action must be brought by the personal representative of the decedent, the employee having the right to demand that such action be brought and that he share in the recovery. Doleman v. Levine (1935, 55 S. Ct. 741, 295 U.S. 221, 79 L. Ed. 1402).

§ 16–2703. Distribution of damages.

The damages recovered in an action pursuant to this chapter, except the amount specified by the verdict or judgment covering the reasonable expenses of last illness and burial, may not be appropriated to the payment of the debts or liabilities of the deceased person, but inure to the benefit of his or her family and shall be distributed to the spouse and next of kin according to the allocation made by the verdict or judgment, or in the absence of an allocation, according to the provisions of the statute of distribution in force in the District. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 596, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–1203 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1303, 31 Stat. 1395; June 19, 1948, ch. 507, § 2, 62 Stat. 437).

Recovery not liable for debts of deceased, but, nevertheless, it is the duty of administrator to institute suit, if facts warrant it. Fleming v. Capital Trac. Co. (40 App. D.C. 489).

2. Measure of damages

In action for wrongful death of nine-week-old child, where the trial court properly instructed jury on measure of damages in event defendant was liable, and upon inquiry repeated the instruction, even though there was evidence to support substantial damages, trial court did not abuse its discretion in refusing to grant a new trial on ground of inadequacy of an award of $129.90. Rankin v. Shayne Brothers (1956, 234 F. 2d 35, 98 U.S. App. D.C. 214).

Chapter 29.—PARTITION AND ASSIGNMENT OF DOWER

SUBCHAPTER I.—PARTITION GENERALLY

Sec.
16–2901. Parties—Accounting by tenant in common.

SUBCHAPTER II.—ASSIGNMENT OF DOWER—PARTIES TO PARTITION PROCEEDINGS—SALE OF PROPERTY DISCHARGED FROM DOWER OR SPOUSE'S INTESTATE SHARE

16–2921. Appointment of commissioners—Cases of partition.
16–2922. Widow or widower of tenant in common.
16–2923. Wife or husband as a party to partition proceeding.
16–2924. Sale of land encumbered by dower—lack of widow's or widower's consent—Written consent—Portion of proceeds.
16–2925. Sale of indivisible property—Discharged from dower or intestate share.

SUBCHAPTER I.—PARTITION GENERALLY

§ 16–2901. Parties—Accounting by tenant in common.

The United States District Court for the District of Columbia may decree a partition of lands, tenements, or hereditaments on the complaint of a tenant in common, claiming by descent or purchase, or of a joint tenant; or when it appears that the property can not be divided without loss or injury to the parties interested, the court may decree a sale thereof and a division of the money arising from the sale among the parties, according to their respective rights.

(b) This section applies to cases where:

(1) all the parties are of full age;

(2) all the parties are infants;

(3) some of the parties are of full age and some are infants;

(4) some or all of the parties are non compos mentis; and

(5) all or any of the parties are non-residents—

and a party, whether of full age, infant, or non compos mentis, may file a complaint pursuant to this section, an infant by his guardian or next friend, and a person non compos mentis by his committee.

(c) In a case of partition, when a tenant in common has received the rents and profits of the property to his own use, he may be required to account to his cotenants for their respective shares of the rents and profits. Amounts found to be due on the accounting may be charged against the share of the party owing them in the property, or its proceeds in case of sale.

(d) This section does not affect section 21–213. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 597, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–1301 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 93, 31 Stat. 1203; June 30, 1902, ch. 1329, 32 Stat. 523).

Reference to "coparcener", which followed the reference to "joint tenant", is omitted from subsec. (a) of this section, as there are no estates in coparcenary in the District of Columbia. See section 45–817 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed.

"United States District Court for the District of Columbia" is substituted for "equity court", as the latter term is obsolete. See revision note under section 11–502 herein.

The term "real property" is substituted for "lands, tenements, or hereditaments" in conformity with modern usage.

The term "complaint" is substituted for "bill or petition", in view of rule 2 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. There is nothing in those rules indicating that they do not apply to partition proceedings in the District Court in the District of Columbia. This type of proceeding is not listed in rule 81(a) among the proceedings in that court to which the rules do not apply.

Subsec. (d) is added for the purpose of clarification. Both section 21–213, referred to therein, and section 16–1301 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., on which this revised section is based, are derived from section 93 of act Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, cited above. Probably, the provisions should be read together.

Changes are made in phraseology and arrangement.

1. Historical

For history of partition of District of Columbia among original proprietors, see Bursey v. Lyon (30 App. D.C. 597).

2. Accounting

Statute creates equitable lien against the interest of a cotenant to the amount found to be due from him on accounting permitted by statute. Loving v. Moore (37 App. D.C. 214).

Quaere: Whether common-law action of account lies by one tenant in common against the other who has secured more than his just share, in view of provisions of this section. Lyon v. Bursey (42 App. D.C. 519).

When one of tenants in common occupied property without payment of rent, an accounting under this section would not be allowable inasmuch as this section presupposes a subletting. Allen v. Jones (1926, 12 F. 2d 186, 56 App. D.C. 245).

3. Community of interest

Where greater part of a market building was held by the plaintiff except two market stalls held by the defendants under purported leases containing provisions for perpetual renewal, parties were not "tenants in common" so as to entitle the plaintiff to partition notwithstanding there was a community of interest in the entrances and exits of the building and other elements, where as to the stall holders such elements were in the nature of easements if the basic grants were considered fees or constituted implied conditions in the leases, if the basic documents were deemed leases. Second Realty Corp. v. Krogmann (1956, 235 F. 2d 510, 98 U.S. App. D.C. 283).

4. Cotenants

A tenancy by the entireties shares with a joint tenancy the right of the survivor to take all, but it is only in a tenancy by the entireties that it is impossible for one cotenant to sell or pledge his interest or to compel a partition of the property. Coleman v. Jackson (C.A.D.C. 1960, 286 F. 2d 98).

Mere acquiescence by one tenant in common in upkeep and improvements by his cotenant, who has complete possession of the common property, is not sufficient to establish partition in pais, without proof of some agreement between the parties to that end. Addison v. Barnes (45 App. D.C. 284).

A cotenant is not liable to his cotenants for use and occupation, unless there has been an actual or constructive ouster of the cotenants. Allen v. Jones (1926, 12 F. 2d 186, 56 App. D.C. 245).

Where marriage relationship was dissolved at suit of wife by Florida court, full faith and credit being given Florida judgment, the estate of which husband and wife were seised as tenants by the entireties on date of that decree became a "tenancy in common," and hence complaint for seeking partition of the property would be treated as one between tenants in common. Scholl v. Scholl (1947, 72 F. Supp. 823).

5. Counsel fees

In partition, the fees of plaintiff's attorney cannot be charged against all the parties when in good faith they retain and are represented by other counsel. Fletcher v. Coomes (1923, 285 F. 893, 52 App. D.C. 159, certiorari denied 43 S. Ct. 363, 261 U.S. 619, 67 L. Ed. 830).

6. Definitions

The terms "parties" and "rights" mentioned in this section are defined and limited by the provisions of §§ 16–1305 and 16–1306. Devlin v. Esher (1922, 280 F. 1004, 52 App. D.C. 30).

7. Dower

Inchoate dower right of a wife of a tenant in common is not to be set off to the wife on sale of the property for partition, but the husband is entitled to entire distributive share. Devlin v. Esher (1922, 280 F. 1004, 52 App. D.C. 30).

8. Laches

Where will devised property of testatrix to her daughter and grandson as tenants in common, and grandson attained majority in 1939 and was in military service between 1940 and 1941, action by grandson in 1950 for partition and accounting was not barred by laches. Greene v. Murphy (1952, 103 F. Supp. 585).

9. Law governing

To the extent that statutory law does not cover subject of dower completely, the common law still controls. Magruder v. Magruder (1944, 141 F. 2d 537, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 378, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 37, 323 U.S. 711, 89 L. Ed. 572).

10. Order of sale

Where the property is susceptible of division in kind, a sale will not be ordered against the will of one of the parties. Walker v. Lyon (6 App. D.C. 484).

In partition proceeding where widow requests assignment of dower, after assignment is made court has power to proceed to order a sale and division of proceeds. Magruder v. Magruder (1944, 141 F. 2d 537, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 378, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 37, 323 U.S. 711, 89 L. Ed. 572).

11. Parties

"No one is entitled to maintain partition who has not an estate that entitles him to immediate possession." Sis v. Boarman (11 App. D.C. 116).

12. Purpose

This chapter regarding partition and assignment of dower was intended to achieve a comprehensive plan for partition and sale of property held in common subject to right of dower as well as other situations of common and joint ownership. Magruder v. Magruder (1944, 141 F. 2d 537, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 378, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 37, 323 U.S. 711, 89 L. Ed. 572).

13. Remedies

This section recognizes two distinct remedies: partition in kind and partition through sale and division of the proceeds, but a person entitled to either remedy must be a tenant in common, a joint tenant or a coparcener. Second Realty Corp. v. Krogmann (1956, 235 F. 2d 510, 98 U.S. App. D.C. 283).

14. Res judicata

Decisions of courts of Michigan, in which testator resided at time of his death, that share of his residuary estate, devised by will to a remainderman who died before deaths of testator and last surviving life beneficiary, should be divided equally between deceased remainderman's sister and half-brother as deceased's sole legal heirs on date of last surviving life beneficiary's death, were not res judicata in suit for partition of portion of residuary realty in District of Columbia, but courts of District had exclusive jurisdiction to decide what disposition should be made of such share. Greenwood v. Page (1944, 138 F. 2d 921, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 166).

15. Surety

In action on bond of trustee for sale of infant's property, the surety cannot be heard to question validity of the bond. United States ex rel. Hine v. Morse (1912, 31 S. Ct. 37, 218 U.S. 493, 54 L. Ed. 1123).

16. Title

A mere averment of title in defendant is not sufficient to make a question of title: "proof is required to show that the claim of title is fair and reasonable, and not a mere sham intended to delay and embarrass the complainant." Smith v. Butler (15 App. D.C. 345).

While the jurisdiction of a court of equity to decree partition, or sale for partition, is undoubted in cases where there is no serious question of legal title as between the parties, it is equally well settled that the court does not sustain a bill for partition unless the legal title be clear and where the legal title is disputed, the court will retain the bill to give the plaintiff an opportunity to establish his title at law. Roller v. Clarke (19 App. D.C. 539, modified on other ground 26 S. Ct. 141, 199 U.S. 641, 50 L. Ed. 300).

"A bill of partition can not be made the means of trying a disputed title." Staub v. Staub (47 App. D.C. 180) citing Jordan v. O'Brien (33 App. D.C. 189); Hasler v. Williams (34 App. D.C. 319), distinguishing Taylor v. Leesnitzer (37 App. D.C. 356) where rights were determined because no motion to dismiss was made. See, also, Goodman v. Wren (34 App. D.C. 516) re rights of equitable owners to maintain partition.

Where title to property purchased by husband and wife was taken in their names as tenants by the entireties, and both parties obligated themselves for balance due on a first trust, as of date of divorce decree obtained by wife in Florida, the parties became "tenants in common" and were equally bound by terms of contract of purchase and equally liable on the trust, so that wife was entitled to one-half of net value of the estate as of date of divorce decree, less any monies that either had paid on the property for benefit of other since date of the last accounting. Scholl v. Scholl (1947, 72 F. Supp. 823).

SUBCHAPTER II.—ASSIGNMENT OF DOWER—PARTIES TO PARTITION PROCEEDING—SALE OF PROPERTY DISCHARGED FROM DOWER OR SPOUSE'S INTESTATE SHARE

§ 16–2921. Appointment of commissioners—Cases of partition.

When real property is held by a person or persons, by descent or purchase, in the whole of which a widow or widower is entitled to dower, either the widow or widower or a person entitled to the property or an undivided share therein may apply to the United States District Court for the District of Columbia to have the dower therein assigned. Thereupon, the court shall appoint three commissioners to lay off and assign the dower, if practicable. The report of the commissioners is subject to ratification by the court. In all cases of partition between two or more joint tenants or tenants in common of real property, in the whole or which a widow or widower is entitled to dower, the dower shall be laid off and assigned, in like manner, before the partition is decreed. When an estate of which a woman or man is dowable is entire, and the dower can not be set off therefrom by metes and bounds, it may be assigned by the court as of a third part of the net rents, issues, and profits thereof. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 597, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–1302 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 86, 31 Stat. 1202).

The provisions are revised to refer to dower or dower rights of both the wife and the husband, to conform with act Sept. 14, 1961, Pub. L. 87–246, § 3, 75 Stat. 515 (D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 18–201a), which restored the wife's right of dower (previously abolished by act Aug. 31, 1957, Pub. L. 85–244, § 3, 71 Stat. 530, with respect to persons who intermarried on or after Nov. 29, 1957), and created a statutory right of dower in both wives and husbands. It provided further that all laws relating to dower and its incidents should, on and after March 15, 1962 (effective date of the act), be construed to be applicable to both husband and wife.

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Assignment, effect of 1
Condition precedent 2
Right to assignment 3
Specifically 4

1. Assignment, effect of

After assignment of dower has been made, the widow's estate is in the nature of "tenements and hereditaments" within this chapter authorizing partition and is then subject to partition sale since it is, then, just as divestible a property right as if the division had been by metes and bounds of the land itself. Magruder v. Magruder (1944, 141 F. 2d 537, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 378, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 37, 323 U.S. 711, 89 L. Ed. 572).

After assignment of dower and entry into possession, widow becomes seized for her lifetime of a freehold estate. Id.

2. Condition precedent

Assignment of dower is condition precedent to partition. Hasler v. Williams (34 App. D.C. 319).

3. Right to assignment

Upon death of husband, a widow's right to dower is in the nature of a chose in action, including the right to have the dower assigned. Magruder v. Magruder (1944, 141 F. 2d 537, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 378, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 37, 323 U.S. 711, 89 L. Ed. 572).

4. Specifically

Construing the word "specifically" it is said: "The act undoubtedly requires explicitness and certainty; it requires that the owner of the property * * * should have full and accurate notice of the claims of those who deal with the latter upon the faith of the legal liability of the property. For that purpose it requires that 'the amount claimed' should be set forth specifically; but it is the amount claimed, not the items that go to make up that amount, that is required to be so stated." Emack v. Campbell (14 App. D.C. 186).

§ 16–2922. Widow or widower of tenant in common.

When a widow or widower of a tenant in common of real property is entitled to dower in his or her undivided share of the property, and a partition is decreed between his or her heirs or devisees and the other tenants in common, the dower attaches to, and may, in the manner provided by section 16–2921, be assigned and laid out in, the shares assigned in severalty to the heirs or devisees, and the shares of the other tenants in common shall be assigned to them, respectively, in severalty, free from the dower. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 597, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

The provisions are revised to refer to dower or dower rights of both the wife and the husband. See revision note under section 16–2921 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–2923. Wife or husband as party to partition proceeding.

On an application to the District Court to decree a partition of real property between tenants in common, it shall not be necessary to make the wife or husband of any of the persons a party to the proceedings, but the right of dower, or the wife's or husband's intestate share, as the case may be, shall attach to whatever part of the property is assigned in severalty to the wife or husband, and the other parts thereof shall be assigned free of the right of dower or intestate share. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 598, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

The provisions are revised to refer to dower or dower rights of both the wife and the husband, and to the intestate share of either, in view of later developments in the law. See revision note under section 16–2921 herein; and see, also, D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §§ 18–101, 18–201a, 18–204, 18–210, 18–211, 18–212, 18–215a.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. In general

Under this section and sections 89, 90 and 93, Code of 1901 (§§ 16–1301, 16–1305, 16–1306), property may be sold by way of partition, free of a wife's inchoate right of dower, and the husband is entitled to his entire distributive share. Devlin v. Esher (1922, 280 F. 1004, 52 App. D.C. 30).

§ 16–2924. Sale of land encumbered by dower—Lack of widow's or widower's consent—Written consent—Portion of proceeds.

When a decree is rendered for the sale of real property, in the whole of which a widow or widower is entitled to dower, if she or he will not consent to a sale of the property free of the dower, the District Court may, if it appears advantageous to the parties, cause the dower to be laid off and assigned as provided by this subchapter. If she or he will consent in writing to the sale of the property free of the dower, the court shall order that it be sold free of the dower, and shall allow her or him, in commutation of the dower, such portion of the net proceeds of sale as may be just and equitable, not exceeding one-sixth nor less than one-twentieth, according to the age, health, and condition of the widow or widower. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 598, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1951 ed., § 16–1305 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 89, 31 Stat. 1202).

The provisions are revised to refer to dower or dower rights of both the wife and the husband. See revision note under section 16–2921 herein.

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Duty of court 1
Formula for division 2

1. Duty of court

Where dower interest of widow is involved in partition proceeding, the court must first determine, in its discretion, whether it appears advantageous to parties including widow to cause her dower to be laid off and assigned, and only after assignment has been made can court proceed with sale without consent of widow. Magruder v. Magruder (1944, 141 F. 2d 537, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 378, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 37, 323 U.S. 711, 89 L. Ed. 572).

2. Formula for division

Where widow refuses to consent to partition sale but requests assignment of dower and court after making assignment proceeds to order sale and division of proceeds, in making division of proceeds it is proper for court to use statutory formula applicable to situation in which widow consents to sale, but it is equally proper for court to apply common law formula. Magruder v. Magruder (1944, 141 F. 2d 537, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 378, certiorari denied 65 S. Ct. 37, 323 U.S. 711, 89 L. Ed. 572).

§ 16–2925. Sale of indivisible property—Discharge from dower or intestate share.

When real property is decreed to be sold for the purpose of division of the proceeds between tenants in common because the property is incapable of being divided between them in specie, the District Court may decree a sale of the property free and discharged from any right of dower or from any intestate share of the wife or husband, as the case may be, of any of the parties in her or his undivided share. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 598, Pub. L. 88–241 § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1951 ed., § 16–1306 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 90, 31 Stat. 1203).

The provisions are revised to refer to dower or dower rights of both the wife and the husband, and to the intestate share of either, in view of later developments in the law. § 16–3101. Definition.

As used in this chapter, "Probate Court" means the United States District Court for the District of Columbia. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 598, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Section is new, but states no new law, and is inserted for the purpose of clarification and completeness. See section 11–522 herein, particularly subsec. (d) thereof.

§ 16–3102. Settlement of accounts as prima facie evidence only.

Except as provided by section 16–3112, in actions:

(1) for an accounting, by legatees or next to kin against executors or administrators, or wards against their guardians; or

(2) to subject the real estate of decedents to the payment of their debts, by creditors against executors or administrators, or against heirs or devisees—

a prior settlement of accounts in the Probate Court is only prima facie evidence as to the correctness of the accounts. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 598, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–504 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 119, 31 Stat. 1208; June 30, 1902, ch. 1329, 32 Stat. 525).

Section is based on part of section 11–504 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. For remainder of section 11–504, see tables.

Changes are made in phraseology and arrangement.

§ 16–3103. Summons—Failure to appear or give evidence.

A summons issued by the Probate Court to a person concerned in the affairs of a deceased person, or to a witness or other person whose appearance in the court is deemed necessary or proper, is returnable at the discretion of the court. When it is necessary or proper, on the return of the "summoned", and failure of the person to appear, to enforce his appearance, or when a witness before the court refuses to give evidence, the court may exercise its powers of enforcement and punishment as provided by section 401 of Title 18, United States

Code, or it may have his estate, or a part thereof attached and sequestered as provided by section 16–3104. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 599, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–506 (Act of Maryland, 1798, ch. 101, subch. 15, § 13; Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 116, 31 Stat. 1208).

The provision empowering the probate court to issue the summons referred to is omitted as covered by section 1651 of Title 28, United States Code. That section provides that the Supreme Court of the United States "and all courts established by Act of Congress" may issue all writs necessary or appropriate in aid of their respective jurisdictions and agreeable to the usages and principles of law.

As alternatives to the methods of enforcement provided for in this section, section 11–506 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., provided (1) that the probate court might, on return of the "summoned", and failure of the party to appear, issue an attachment, and, when he appeared or was brought in, fine him a maximum of $30; and (2) that if a witness before the court refused to give evidence, the court might commit him to the custody of the marshal or coroner "(if the case may require)", there to remain until he gave evidence, or was discharged according to law. These provisions are omitted as covered by provisions in Title 28, United States Code. The United States District Court for the District of Columbia, which in the exercise of its probate jurisdiction, is known as the Probate Court (see section 11–522 herein), has been, since the enactment of Title 28, United States Code, into law, in 1948, a United States district court, and has the same powers as those of other district courts. See sections 88 and 132 of that title. It is included within the definition of "court of the United States" (as used in that title) contained in section 451 of that title. Section 401 of Title 18, United States Code, which title was also enacted into law in 1948, provides for contempt powers of a "court of the United States", and while the term is not defined in that title, the bills to enact Titles 18 and 28 of that Code into law were companion bills. They were approved on the same date and became effective on the same date, and, considering the changed status of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia since the enactment of Title 28, the term "court of the United States", as used in Title 18, embraces that court. Therefore, section 401 of Title 18, United States Code, and the above cited section 1651 of Title 28 thereof, cover or supersede the above-mentioned provisions relating to attachment of the person and punishment for contempt, which, as stated, are omitted. However, for the purpose of clarification and completeness, words "may exercise its powers of enforcement and punishment as provided by section 401 of Title 18, United States Code," are inserted.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–3104. Sequestration where person fails to appear.

(a) If two summonses issued to a person by the Probate Court are regularly returned non est by the United States marshal and it is necessary to proceed further to compel the person's attendance, the court may order and issue an attachment against his real and personal property. On return of the attachment, to which a schedule of the attached property, if any, shall be annexed, the court, by order, or commission under seal, may authorize a person or persons to take into his or their care and custody the property returned in the schedule, or a part thereof, and receive the profits thereof, to be accounted for, until the person summoned appears and obeys the order of the court, or until further order. If the marshal or other officer does not deliver the property accordingly, he is liable to be proceeded against as provided by this subsection.

(b) The persons authorized pursuant to subsection (a) of this section to take into their care and custody the property referred to shall first give bond to the United States with such security, and in such penalty, as the court directs. The bond shall be recorded, may be sued on, shall be on a footing with an administration bond, and shall be conditioned for rendering a true account of the estate or property, and of the profits thereof, and to deliver the property according to the order of the court, after deducting such allowance for loss, and such commission, not exceeding 5 per centum of the whole, as the court deems proper.

(c) When the purpose for which property sequestered under this section is answered, the court shall direct that the estate or property, and the profits, after making the deductions authorized by subsection (b) of this section, be restored to the person from whom the care and custody of the property were taken. When the person is dead, the court shall order the property to be delivered to his heirs, devisees or legal representatives, as soon as the purpose of the sequestration is answered, or immediately, on application, and on satisfying the court of the person's right, if the purpose, after the death of the original person, can not be answered. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 599; Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–508 (Act of Maryland, 1798, ch. 101, subch. 15, § 15; Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 116, 31 Stat. 1208).

Changes are made in phraseology and arrangement.

§ 16–3105. Plenary proceeding—Refusal to answer as required.

When either of the parties having a contest in the Probate Court requires, the court may direct a plenary proceeding, by bill or petition, to which there shall be an answer, on oath or affirmaton. If the party, refuses to answer on oath or affirmation, as the case may require, to any matter alleged in the bill or petition, and proper for the court to decide upon, the court may exercise its powers of enforcement and punishment as provided by section 401 of Title 18, United States Code, or it may have his property attached and sequestered as provided by section 16–3104. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 599, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–509 (Act of Maryland, 1798, ch. 191, subch. 15, § 16; Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 116, 31 Stat. 1208).

Words "the Court may exercise its powers of enforcement and punishment as provided by section 401 of Title 18, United States Code," are substituted for "the said party may be attached, fined, and committed". See revision note under section 16–3103 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–3106. Issues to be made up in plenary proceeding—Jury—Compelling payment of costs.

In a plenary proceeding provided for by section 16–3105, the Probate Court shall give judgment, or decree upon the bill an answer, or upon bill, answer, depositions, or finding of the jury. In all cases of contest, the court may award costs to the party deemed entitled thereto, and may compel payment by exercising its powers of enforcement and punishment as provided by section 401 of Title 18, United States Code, or by attachment and sequestration of the property as provided by section 16–3104. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 600, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–510 (Act of Maryland, 1798, ch. 101, subch. 15, § 17; Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 116, 31 Stat. 1208).

Words "by exercising its powers of enforcement and punishment as provided in section 401 of Title, United States Code", are substituted for "by attachment of the body, and fine,". See revision note under section 16–3103 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–3107. Enforcement of judgments, orders and decrees—Application of property sequestrated.

The Probate Court may enforce its judgments, orders, decrees, and decisions in the manner provided by sections 16–3103 and 16–3104. When a judgment, order, decree, or decision is for the payment of money, the court may apply the property sequestrated to the purpose for which the judgment, order, decree, or decision is given. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 600, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–512 (Act of Maryland, 1798, ch. 101, subch. 15, § 20; Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 116, 31 Stat. 1208).

The provision at the beginning of section 11–512 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., "The probate court shall not, under pretext of incidental power, or constructive authority, exercise any jurisdiction whatever not expressly given by this Code", is omitted as obsolete, or, in any event, unnecessary. See revision note under section 11–502 herein. There are no longer statutory special terms of the District Court designated as probate court, equity court, etc., and there is no more reason to enact such a provision as this, with respect to the District Court in the exercise of its probate jurisdiction and powers (see section 11–522 herein), than there would be to enact similar provisions with respect to its other jurisdiction.

Words "at the discretion of the court,", which related to the Court's application of the property sequestrated to the purpose for which the judgment, order, etc., is given, are omitted as surplusage. See revision note under section 16–2349 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Application of statutes 1
Continuance of jurisdiction 2
Custody of minors 3
Enforcement of decrees 4
Jurisdiction 5
Power to remove administrator 6

1. Application of statutes

As the powers of the probate court are strictly limited, the statutes are equally applicable, at least so far as they are pertinent to the administration of all estates in the District, whether domiciliary or ancillary. Duehay v. Acacia Mut. Life Ins. Co. (1939, 105 F. 2d 768, 70 App. D.C. 245, 124 A.L.R. 1268).

2. Continuance of jurisdiction

Where United States District Court holding Probate Court once assumed jurisdiction over parties to proceedings involving guardianship of child, that jurisdiction continued for all purposes, and if either party felt aggrieved by the orders of the court his remedy lay with that court or on appeal therefrom. Johnson v. Austin, Guardian etc. (D.C. Mun. App. 1960, 162 A. 2d 495).

Jurisdiction of the United States District Court holding Probate Court did not stop short of enforcing its own decrees in proceedings to remove guardian of child and appoint another guardian. Id.

3. Custody of minors

The United States District Court holding Probate Court has jurisdiction to grant custody of minors in guardianship cases. Johnson v. Austin, Guardian etc. (D.C. Mun. App. 1960, 162 A. 2d 495).

Jurisdiction over guardianship matters is given to United States District Court holding Probate Court, while Domestic Relations jurisdiction is vested in Domestic Relation Branch of the Municipal Court. Id.

4. Enforcement of decrees

Although recourse to District Court may be necessary to effectuate decrees of District Court holding Probate Court, Probate Court is but an arm of District Court and the full judicial machinery of the District Court is available to enforce lawful decrees of its component parts. Johnson v. Austin, Guardian etc. (D.C. Mun. App. 1960, 162 A. 2d 495).

Even if the United States District Court holding Probate Court were powerless to enforce a custody decree, other avenues are open in the District Court to give litigants relief through enforcement of such a decree. Id.

5. Jurisdiction

The bankruptcy court had exclusive jurisdiction to determine title to decedent's liquor store which administratrix had allowed bankrupt to control and operate, and such determination would not interefere with jurisdiction of probate court. N. M. White, Personally etc. v. M. F. Schwartz, Trustee etc. (1962, 302 F. 2d 916, 112 U.S. App D.C. 331).

6. Power to remove administrator

Like its predecessor, the orphan's court of Maryland, the Probate Court is a court of special jurisdiction with limited powers, and consequently, unless power to remove an executor for a particular cause can be found in the statute, or by necessary inference therefrom, it does not exist. Hawley v. Hawley (1940, 114 F. 2d 505, 72 App. D.C. 357).

Unless power of probate court to remove an administratrix for a particular cause can be found in this chapter or by necessary inference therefrom, it does not exist. D.C. Code. Perkins v. Berger (1944, 145 F. 2d 856, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 286).

The fact that administratrix asserted a stale claim against deceased's estate did not authorize removal of administratrix. Id.

§ 16–3108. Ordering investment of funds—Revocation of letters for noncompliance.

The Probate Court may order an executor, administrator, collector, or guardian, whom it has appointed, to bring into court or invest in securities, to be approved by the court, any funds received by the executor, administrator, collector, or guardian. If the party does not, within a reasonable time, to be fixed by the court, comply with the order, the court may revoke his letters. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 600 Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–513 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 123, 31 Stat. 1209).

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. Commingling of funds by executor

Where money was deposited in bank by executor, mingled with his own and subject to his check at all times, it renders both him and his coexecutor, who acquiesced in this disposition, liable for legal interest on the fund during the whole time of his possession. Mades v. Miller (2 App. D.C. 455).

§ 16–3109. Compelling performance of duties by executors, administrators, etc.—Revocation of letters.

The Probate Court may order an executor, administrator, collector, guardian, or testamentary trustee, who appears to be in default in respect to the rendering of an inventory or account or the fulfillment of a duty in the court, to be summoned to appear therein and fulfill his duty in the premises, on pain of revocation of his power to act. On his appearance, the court may make such order as is just. On his failure to appear, after having been duly summoned, the court may revoke his power to act and make such further order and other appointment as justice requires. If the summons to appear is returned by the marshal "not to be found," an alias summons shall be mailed to the last-known post-office address of the fiduciary or served upon his attorney of record, if he is within the jurisdiction of the court. On the failure of the fiduciary to appear, the court may revoke his power to act and make such further order and other appointment as justice requires. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 600, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–514 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 126, 31 Stat. 1210; Apr. 19, 1920, ch. 153, 41 Stat. 557).

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. Removal of administrator

Where executor has made improper payment of claims but has not disposed of salable property unauthorizedly, court's only direct sanction is to order executor to correct or protect against his impropriety, and if executor fails to comply, then to remove him. C. P. Henry v. J. A. Grimes, Jr. (1964, 334 F. 2d 550, —— U.S. App. D.C. ——).

An executor or administrator can be removed only for legal causes specified in the statute, which confers power upon the probate court. Hawley v. Hawley (1940, 114 F. 2d 505, 72 App. D.C. 357).

§ 16–3110. Accounting and delivering of property after revocation of letters—Compelling performance.

When the Probate Court revokes letters testamentary or of administration, collection, or guardianship, the party whose letters are revoked shall render forthwith an account of his administration or guardianship up to the period of the rendition of the account and deliver and turn over to the person appointed in his place all the estate, money, and effects remaining in his hands that were received and held by him by virtue of his appointment so revoked. All moneys in the hands of an executor, administrator, or collector realized by him by the sale of the specific property are unadministered assets and shall be turned over in like manner. The court may direct the bond of the executor, administrator, or collector whose letters are revoked to be put in suit for the use of the new administrator or collector appointed in his place. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 600, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–515 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 127, 31 Stat. 1210).

The provision in section 11–515 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., that, with respect to the duties prescribed in this section, empowered the court to "compel the performance of said duty in the manner hereinafter mentioned", is omitted as unnecessary and covered by section 401 of Title 18, United States Code. See revision note under section 16–3103 herein. As set out in chapter 5 of Title 11 of D C. Code, 1961 ed., the only section in that chapter, or in the 1901 act, to which the above-quoted words in section 11–515 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., "in the manner hereinafter mentioned", apparently could have related, was section 11–516 thereof (section 129 of the 1901 act, as amended by act June 30, 1902, ch. 1329, 32 Stat. 526), which provided that "The said court [Probate Court], in addition to the powers herein specially conferred, shall have power to enforce its judgments, orders and decrees in like manner as orders and decrees may be enforced in the equity court", and that section is omitted from this revision as obsolete. See revision note under section 11–502 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. Removal without notice and trial

When executors and administrators are once regularly appointed and qualified they can not be removed without notice and a trial. Brosnan v. Brosnan (1923, 289 F. 547, 53 App. D.C. 149).

§ 16–3111. Order admitting will to probate as conclusive evidence.

With respect to the trial of issues in the Probate Court, including the taking and use of testimony of non-resident witnesses, the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, unless otherwise provided by law, are applicable thereto. A final order or decree admitting a will to probate, unless and until it is reversed, is conclusive evidence of the validity of the will in a collateral proceeding in which the will is brought into question, and a transcript of the record of the will, and of the decree admitting it to probate, is sufficient proof thereof. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 601, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–519 (Mar. 1901, ch. 854, § 144, 31 Stat. 1214; June 30, 1902, ch. 1329, 32 Stat. 526; June 7, 1934, ch. 426, 48 Stat. 926)

The first sentence is substituted for the first two sentences of section 11–519 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., which at least in part are obsolete, and which read as follows: "The said court shall have authority to take the testimony of nonresident witnesses, and such depositions, as well as depositions de bene esse, taken according to law, may be read at the trial of any issue in said court. On the trial of any such issue exceptions may be taken to the rulings of the court, and the said court may set aside the verdict and grant a new trial for the same causes and in the same manner as in case of a trial in the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia."

Regarding the above-quoted second sentence of section 11–519 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., it is assumed that the substitution in the 1961 edition of the Code of the reference to the court of appeals for the former reference therein to the "Circuit Court", a former special term of the district court, at which "common-law" civil causes were heard, was merely a typographical error. See revision note under section 11–502 herein.

The Federal Rules of Civil Procedure are applicable to civil actions in the District of Columbia district court, and Rule 46 thereof abolished formal exceptions in the trial thereof.

The sentence substituted for the first two sentences of section 11–519 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., brings the procedure more into harmony with that provided by the Federal Civil Rules for civil actions. However, the exception clause, "unless otherwise provided by law" is included, in recognition of other statutes relating to the trial of issues in probate matters. See, for example, section 19–312 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed.

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. Unprobated will as evidence

Where plaintiff sought to enjoin obstruction of right of way easement on theory that plaintiff and her predecessors in title continuously, openly, notoriously, and adversely used right of way for more than 20 years, unprobated will of plaintiff's predecessor which had been filed in probate court was properly received to prove privity, a transfer of possession, and continuity of interest. Bonds v. Smith (1944, 143 F. 2d 369, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 118).

§ 16-3112. Arbitration—Exceptions.

The Probate Court may, with the consent in writing of both parties, arbitrate between a complainant and an executor or administrator, or between an executor or administrator and a person against whom the estate represented by him has a claim, or, with like consent, may refer the matter in dispute to an arbitrator. If reserved by the parties in their submission, exception as to matters of law may be filed to the award of the arbitrator, and the court may confirm or overrule the award. The award when confirmed is conclusive between the parties. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 601, Pub. L. 88-241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11-520 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 145, 31 Stat. 1215).

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16-3113. Costs and execution.

The Probate Court may render judgment for costs against the unsuccessful party in any proceeding conducted in the court, and issue execution thereof. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 601, Pub. L. 88-241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11-518 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 143, 31 Stat. 1214; June 30, 1902, ch. 1329, 32 Stat. 526).

Costs in probate proceedings 1
Discretion 2

1. Costs in probate proceedings

Commission of Collector of assets of estate, who was appointed on request of unsuccessful caveators in will contest, was not chargeable against the caveators as part of the collectible costs, in absence of fraud or unconscionable conduct on part of caveators. Adlung, Executor, etc. v. Gotthardt et al. (1958, 257 F. 2d 199, 103 U.S. App. D.C. 195).

Assessment of costs is, in part, a matter governed by statute and, in part, a matter governed by usage. Id.

Chapter 33.—QUIETING TITLE OBTAINED BY ADVERSE POSSESSION

Sec.
16-3301. Complaint—Allegations—Parties—Service—Decree.

§ 16-3301. Complaint—Allegations—Parties—Service—Decree.

When title to real property in the District of Columbia has become vested in a person by adverse possession, the holder thereof may file a complaint in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia to have the title perfected. In the complaint, it is sufficient to allege that the plaintiff holds the title to the property, and that it has vested in him, or in himself and in those under whom he claims, by adverse possession. In the action, it is not necessary to make any person a party defendant except those persons who appear to have a claim or title adverse to that of the plaintiff. Upon the trial of the cause, proof of the facts showing title in the plaintiff by adverse possession entitles him to a decree of the court declaring his title by adverse possession, and a copy of the decree may be entered of record in the office of the Recorder of Deeds for the District.

(b) In an action pursuant to this section, if process is returned not to be found, notice by publication may be substituted as in the case of nonresident defendants. Subject to subsection (c) of this section, if it is known whether one who, if living, would be an adverse party, is living or dead, or, in the case of a decedent, whether he died testate or left heirs, or his heirs or devisees are unknown, the cause may be proceeded with pursuant to section 13-341.

(c) The rights of infants or others under legal disability shall be saved for a period of two years after the removal of their disabilities, but the entire period during which they shall be preserved may not exceed twenty-two years from the time they accrued, either in the plaintiff or in the persons under whom he claims. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 601, Pub. L. 88-241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16-1501 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 111, 31 Stat. 1207; June 30, 1902, ch. 1329, 321 Stat. 524; June 25, 1936, ch. 804, 49 Stat. 1921; June 25, 1948, ch. 646, § 32(b), 62 Stat. 991; May 24, 1949, ch. 139, § 127, 63 Stat. 107).

The term "complaint" is substituted for "bill," and "plaintiff" is substituted for "complainant", in conformity with the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. See rules 3 and 4 thereof.

Changes are made in phraseology and arrangement.

1. In general

"A great deal of indulgence has always been extended to one in the undisturbed possession of property, in respect of proceedings to quiet or perfect a title that had not been assailed." Myers v. Mayhew (32 App. D.C. 205).

"A title is good (as distinguished from good of record) if it has been acquired by adverse possession under such circumstances, and for such length of time, as to render it indefeasible at law or in equity." Marsh v. Kenyon (37 App. D.C. 574).

2. Cotenant

One cotenant may hold adversely to his co-owner, although ouster or disseisin is not to be presumed from the mere fact of sole possession. Henderson v. Mann (47 App. D.C. 174).

3. Duration of possession

Where plaintiff's possession for 31-year period of realty in which she was cotenant with others was admittedly actual, exclusive, and continuous, and, in the court's view, hostile, open and notorious, she was entitled to decree establishing title in her by adverse possession. Welch v. Unknown Heirs, Lipscomb et al. (1955, 226 F. 2d 776, 96 U.S. App. D.C. 412).

Adverse possession held clearly shown by 30 years' possession of lot with clearly defined boundaries which extended beyond the line as surveyed. Brumbaugh v. Gompers (1921, 269 F. 472, 50 App. D.C. 130).

4. Ejectment

This section has no application to action in ejection based upon title by adverse possession. McMillan v. Fuller (41 App. D.C. 384).

5. Evidence

Evidence held sufficient to be submitted to the jury on the question of adverse possession. Davis v. Coblens (1899, 19 S. Ct. 832, 174 U.S. 719, 43 L. Ed. 1147).

6. Inclosure

"Actual inclosure is not necessary to prove possession; that while inclosure is the most tangible evidence of possession, a continuous, uninterrupted, open, actual, exclusive, and adverse possession is in law equally as satisfactory." Howison v. Masson (29 App. D.C. 338).

7. Limitation of actions

There is an apparent conflict between § 111 (this section) and § 1265 (§ 12–201) of the 1929 edition, as to the extent of the principal limitation of actions, and also as to the extent of the saving to parties under disabilities. But in order to give effect to both sections, the former section being the act of Congress of March 3, 1899, must be read as an exception to the latter more general provision. Gwin v. Brown (21 App. D.C. 295).

8. Possession to be adverse

Possession, to become adverse, and effectual to defeat a clear pre-existing legal title, must be actual, continuous, and exclusive, attended with such manifest intention of holding and continuing the possession as will make that possession notorious to every one interested in reclaiming the property to the rightful ownership. Reid v. Anderson (13 App. D.C. 30).

9. Possession under mistake

Title by adverse possession may be secured although possession was had under mistake (whether the mistake was honest or deliberate). Rudolph v. Peters (35 App. D.C. 438, Ann. Cas. 1912A, 446).

10. Purpose of statute

This section is a statute of repose and is designed to prevent further litigation and to settle a title which parties have suffered to remain unquestioned long enough to assume their acquiescence therein. Welch v. Unknown Heirs, Lipscomb et al. (1955, 226 F. 2d 776, 96 U.S. App. D.C. 412).

11. Remedy

A bill in equity is the proper remedy to perfect title by adverse possession, and not ejectment, where defendants have not entered into possession or attempted to oust the plaintiff. Myers v. Mayhew (32 App. D.C. 205).

12. Subsequent abandonment

Title acquired by adverse possession is not loss by subsequent abandonment of possession. Myers v. Mayhew (32 App. D.C. 205).

§ 16–3501. Persons against whom issued—Civil action.

A quo warranto may be issued from the United States District Court for the District of Columbia in the name of the United States against—

(1) a person who usurps, intrudes into, or unlawfully holds or exercises within the District a franchise or public office, civil or military, or an office in a domestic corporation; or

(2) one or more persons who act as a corporation within the District without being duly authorized, or exercise within the District corporate rights, privileges, or franchises not granted them by law in force in the District.

The proceedings shall be deemed a civil action. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 602, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Common-law principles 1
Nature and scope of remedy 2

1. Common-law principles

Sections 16–1601 to 16–1604 of this chapter regarding writ of quo warranto leave the former common-law principles governing the issuance of writs of quo warranto in full force. U.S. ex rel. Noel v. Carmody (1945, 148 F. 2d 684, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 58).

2. Nature and scope of remedy

Quo warranto is only available against a person who unlawfully holds a public office or an office in a domestic corporation, or against a person or persons who unwarrantedly claim corporate status, and is not an appropriate remedy for attempted revocation of corporate charter of bar association on ground of alleged abuse and misuse of its charter. United States ex rel. Robinson v. Bar Association of District of Columbia (1952, 197 F. 2d 408, 91 U.S. App. D.C. 5).

§ 16–3502. Parties who may institute; ex rel. proceedings.

The Attorney General or the United States attorney may institute a proceeding pursuant to this chapter on his own motion, or on the relation of a third person. The writ may not be issued on the relation of a third person except by leave of the court, to be applied for by the relator, by a petition duly verified, setting forth the grounds of the application, or until the relator files a bond with sufficient surety, to be approved by the clerk of the court, in such penalty as the court prescribes, conditioned for the payment by him of all costs incurred in the prosecution of the writ if costs are not recovered from and paid by the defendant. NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Claimant to office 1
Complaint, sufficiency 2
Not an adequate remedy at law 3
Third person 4

1. Claimant to office

A citizen and taxpayer who makes no claim to the office can not make application for quo warranto. Newman v. United States ex rel. Frizzell (1915, 35 S. Ct. 881, 238

U.S. 537, 59 L. Ed. 1446). See also, Hayes v. Burns (25 App. D.C. 243, appeal dismissed 26 S. Ct. 744, 201 U.S. 650, 50 L. Ed. 905).

A writ of quo warranto may issue against an officer of a private corporation on complaint of one of its members or stockholders, even though the relator does not himself seek the same office. U.S. ex rel. Noel v. Carmody (1945, 148 F. 2d 684, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 58).

2. Complaint, sufficiency

Where by-law of Bar Association provided for committee on nominations which was directed to nominate at least two and not more than three names for each of offices to be filled, at ensuing election, committee nominated only one individual for office of president because of committee's inability to find another member who was both qualified for office and willing to be considered, another nominee was presented by petition, but the committee's nominee received overwhelming majority of votes, quo warranto complaint to remove committee's nominee from office of president was properly dismissed. U.S. ex rel. Noel v. Carmody (1945, 148 F. 2d 684, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 58).

3. Not an adequate remedy at law

Quo warranto is not an adequate remedy at law because the right to bring such action is not absolute, but lies within the discretion of the Attorney General or of the district attorney or of the court. Columbian Cat Fanciers v. Koehne (1938, 96 F. 2d 529, 68 App. D.C. 257).

4. Third person

Congress used the words "third person" in the sense of "any person." Newman v. United States ex rel. Frizzell (1914, 35 S. Ct. 881, 238 U.S. 537, 59 L. Ed. 1446).

§ 16-3503. Refusal of Attorney General or United States attorney to act—Procedure.

If the Attorney General or United States attorney refuses to institute a quo warranto proceeding on the request of a person interested, the interested person may apply to the court by certified petition for leave to have the writ issued. When, in the opinion of the court, the reasons set forth in the petition are sufficient in law, the writ shall be allowed to be issued by any attorney, in the name of the United States, on the relation of the interested person, on his compliance with the condition prescribed by section 16-3502 as to security for costs. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 602, Pub. L. 88-241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16-1603 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1540, 31 Stat. 1420; June 25, 1948, ch. 646, § 1, 62 Stat. 909).

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. Person interested

The interest which will justify such a proceeding by a private individual must be more than that of a taxpayer; it must be an interest in the office itself, and must be peculiar to the applicant. Newman v. United States ex rel. Frizzell (1914, 35 S. Ct. 881, 238 U.S. 537, 59 L. Ed. 1446).

The action must be brought by a person claiming title to the office in question and out of possession thereof. Columbian Cat Fanciers v. Koehne (1938, 96 F. 2d 529, 68 App. D.C. 257).

§ 16-3504. Allegations in petition of relator claiming office.

When a quo warranto proceedings is against a person for usurping an office, on the relation of a person claiming the same office, the relator shall set forth in his petition the facts upon which he claims to be entitled to the office. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 602, Pub. L. 88-241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16-1604 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1541, 31 Stat. 1420).

A minor change is made in phraseology.

§ 16-3505. Notice to defendant.

On the issuing of a writ of quo warranto the court may fix a time within which the defendant may appear and answer the writ. When the defendant can not be found in the District, the court may direct notice to be given to him by publication as in other cases of proceedings against nonresident defendants, and upon proof of publication, if the defendant does not appear, judgment may be rendered as if he had been personally served. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 602, Pub. L. 88-241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16-1605 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1542, 31 Stat. 1420; June 30, 1902, ch. 1329, 32 Stat. 544).

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16-3506. Proceedings on default.

If the defendant does not appear as required by a writ of quo warranto, after being personally served, the court may proceed to hear proof in support of the writ, and render judgment accordingly. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 603, Pub. L. 88-241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16-1606 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1543, 31 Stat. 1420).

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16-3507. Pleading—Jury trial.

In a quo warranto proceeding, the defendant may demur or plead specially or plead "not guilty" as the general issue, and the United States may reply as in other actions of a civil character. Issues of fact shall be tried by a jury if either party requests it. Otherwise they shall be determined by the court. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 603, Pub. L. 88-241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16-1607 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1544, 31 Stat. 1420).

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16-3508. Verdict and judgment.

Where a defendant in a quo warranto proceeding is found by the jury to have usurped or intruded into or unlawfully held or exercised an office or franchise, the verdict shall be that he is guilty of the act or acts in question, and judgment shall be rendered that he be ousted and excluded therefrom and that the relator recover his costs. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 603, Pub. L. 88-241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16-1608 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1545, 31 Stat. 1420).

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16-3509. Usurping corporate franchise—Judgment.

Where a quo warranto proceeding is against persons acting as a corporation without being legally incorporated, the judgment against the defendants shall be that they be perpetually restrained and enjoined from the commission or continuance of the acts complained of. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 603, Pub. L. 88-241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16-1609 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1546, 31 Stat. 1420).

A minor change is made in phraseology.

§ 16-3510. Proceedings against corporate directors and trustees—Judgment and order—Enforcement.

Where a quo warranto proceeding is against a director or trustee of a corporation and the court finds that at his election either illegal votes were received or legal votes rejected, or both, sufficient to change the result if the error is corrected, the court may render judgment that the defendant be ousted, and that the relator, if entitled to be declared elected, be admitted to the office, and the court may issue an order to the proper parties, being officers or members of the corporation, to admit him to the office. The judgment may require the defendant to deliver to the relator all books, papers, and other things in his custody or control pertaining to the office, and obedience to judgment may be enforced by attachment. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 603, Pub. L. 88-241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16-1610 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1547, 31 Stat. 1420).

Reference to court order is substituted for reference to mandamus, in conformity with the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. Rule 81(b) thereof abolished the writ of mandamus and provides that the relief theretofore available under mandamus may be obtained by appropriate action or motion under the practice prescribed in those rules.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16-3511. Recovery of damages from usurper—Limitation.

At any time within a year after a judgment in a quo warranto proceeding, the relator may bring an action against the party ousted and recover the damages sustained by the relator by reason of the ousted party's usurpation of the office to which the relator was entitled. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 603, Pub. L. 88-241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16-1611 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1548, 31 Stat. 1421).

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Common law applicable 1
Fraudulent purchase 2
Goods taken by police 3
Nature of action 4
Promissory notes 5
Right to possession 6
Sufficiency of bill in equity 7

1. Common law applicable

Common-law rules prevail as to powers of officers in executing a writ of replevin. "The rule of the common law * * * seems to be that an officer, in executing a writ of replevin, may not break an outer door or window of a dwelling to gain entrance to seize the property of the occupant or of a person rightfully domiciled therein. He may enter either an open outer door or window, provided it can be accomplished without committing a breach of the peace; he may then, after a request and refusal, break open any inner doors belonging to the defendant, in order to take the goods. We think a further reasonable rule is deducible from the cases, that when an officer. in the execution of a writ, finds an outer door or window slightly ajar, but not sufficiently so to admit him, he may open the door or window, provided he does not find it obstructed, but if it is fastened or obstructed so as to require force to overcome the obstruction, he may not use such force for such an entrance would constitute a breaking." Palmer v. King (41 App. D.C. 419, L.R.A. 1916 D, 278, Ann. Cas. 1915 C, 1139).

2. Fraudulent purchase

When vendor replevies goods on ground that the purchase was fraudulent and it appears that the value of the goods was in excess of balance due the vendor, it is proper to tender the excess to the defendant and upon his refusal to receive tender, pay the amount into court. Samaha v. Mason (27 App. D.C. 470).

3. Goods taken by police

Replevy of goods taken by police from person accused of crime, see Mutual Comm. & Stock Co. v. Moore (13 App. D.C. 78).

4. Nature of action

It is fundamental that the gist of the action of replevin is plaintiff's right to immediate possession and defendant's wrongful taking or wrongful or unlawful detention. Daime v. Price (D.C. Mun. App. 1949, 63 A. 2d 767).

5. Promissory notes

Replevin action is proper against a bank to recover possession of overdue promissory notes received by it from a private bank to secure a payment of an overdraft, when it is apparent the notes evidenced a debt secured by deed of trust on property that was owned by plaintiff and her sister, that the debt was paid on maturity of the notes and they were left with banking firm for safekeeping but the bank used them to pay overdraft without plaintiff's authority. District Nat. Bank v. Trimble (46 App. D.C. 319).

6. Right to possession

The plaintiff in replevin action cannot recover on the weakness of defendant's title; to recover the plaintiff must have a right to immediate possession of the property at the commencement of the action. Smith, Kirkpatrick & Co., Inc., et al. v. Continental Autos, Ltd., et al. (1960, 184 F. Supp. 764).

7. Sufficiency of bill in equity

Equity will not require a specific delivery of art collection when the bill does not disclose what, if any, disposition of the art collection was made or attempted to be made in the will. Dante v. Hutchins (1920, 265 F. 988, 49 App. D.C. 348, certiorari denied 41 S. Ct. 9, 254 U.S. 635, 65 L. Ed 450).

§ 16–3702. Form of complaint.

A complaint in replevin shall be in the following or equivalent form:

"The plaintiff sues the defendant for (wrongly taking and detaining) (unjustly detaining) the plaintiff's goods and chattels, to wit: (describe them) of the value of ——— dollars. And the plaintiff claims that the same be taken from the defendant and delivered to him; or, if they are eloigned, that he may have judgment of their value and all mesne profits and damages, which he estimates at ——— dollars, besides costs." (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 604, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–1802 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1550, 31 Stat. 1421).

Reference to "declaration" is changed to "complaint", in conformity with rules 2, 3, 7, and 64 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

A minor change is made in phraseology.

§ 16–3703. Affidavit—Contents.

At the time of filing a complaint in replevin, the plaintiff, his agent, or attorney shall file an affidavit stating that—

(1) according to affiant's information and belief, the plaintiff is entitled to recover possession of chattels proopsed to be replevied, being the same described in the complaint;

(2) the defendant has seized and detained or detains the chattels; and

(3) the chattels were not subject to the seizure or detention and were not taken upon a writ of replevin between the parties.

(Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 604, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–1803 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1551, 31 Stat. 1421; June 30, 1902, ch. 1329, 32 Stat. 544).

"Complaint" is substituted for "declaration", in conformity with rules 2, 3, 7, and 64 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–3704. Undertaking to abide judgment of the court.

At the time of filing a complaint in replevin, the plaintiff shall enter into an undertaking by himself or his agent with surety, approved by the clerk, to abide by and perform the judgment of the court. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 604, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–1804 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1552, 31 Stat. 1421; June 30, 1902, ch. 1329, 32 Stat. 544).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–3705. Failure of officer to obtain possession—Procedure.

When the officer's return of a writ of replevin issued pursuant to this subchapter is that he has served the defendant with copies of the complaint, affidavit, and summons, but that he could not obtain possession of the goods and chattels sued for, the plaintiff may prosecute the action for the value of the property and damages for detention, or he may renew the writ in order to obtain possession of the goods and chattels themselves. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 604, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–1805 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1553, 31 Stat. 1421).

"Complaint" is substituted for "declaration", in conformity with rules 2, 3, 7, and 64 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

Words "notice to plead,", which related, also, to service, are omitted as covered by the word "summons". See rule 4(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

Reference to "affidavit" is inserted, in view of section 16–3703 herein. See, also, section 11–726 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., which related to replevin in the Municipal Court (now the Court of General Sessions), and which is carried into section 11–3734 herein.

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. Damages for value and detention

Where writ in action to replevy an alleged irreplaceable fender shield was returned "not executed" and plaintiff did not renew the writ by prosecuted action without seizure of the shield, plaintiff was properly given judgment merely for value of shield and damages for its detention rather than for recovery of shield, though defendant had voluntarily produced shield and had put it in evidence, and court thereafter ordered shield to be turned over to the marshal pending decision. Byrne v. Tabet (D.C. Mun. App. 1947, 50 A. 2d 815).

§ 16–3706. Publication against defendant.

When the officer's return of a writ of replevin is that he has taken possession of the goods and chattels sued for, but indicates that personal service on the defendant could not be made, the court, subject to the provisions of section 13–340 as to mailing notice, may order that the defendant appear to the action by a fixed day. The plaintiff shall cause notice of the order to be given by publication in a newspaper published in the District at least three times, the first publication to be at least twenty days before the day fixed for the defendant's appearance. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 605, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–1806 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1554, 31 Stat. 1421; June 30, 1902, ch. 1329, 32 Stat. 544).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–3707. Default.

If, after notice as provided by section 16-3706, the defendant fails to appear, the court may proceed as in case of default after personal service. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 605, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–1807 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1555, 31 Stat. 1421).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–3708. Motion for return of property—Procedure—Objection to sufficiency of security.

(a) On the taking possession of the goods and chattels by the marshal by virtue of a writ of replevin, the defendant may, on one day's notice to the plaintiff or his attorney, move for a return of the property to his possession. Thereupon, the court may inquire into the circumstances and manner of the defendant's obtaining possession of the property, and, if it seems just, may order the property to be returned to the possession of the defendant, to abide the final judgment in the action. The court may require the defendant to enter into an undertaking with surety or sureties, similar to that required of the plaintiff upon the commencement of the action. In such case, the court shall render judgment against the surety or sureties, as well as against the defendant.

(b) When it appears that the possession of the property was forcibly or fraudulently obtained by the defendant, or that the possession, being first in the plaintiff, was procured or retained by the defendant without authority from the plaintiff, the court may refuse to order the return of the property to the possession of the defendant. The defendant may also, on similar notice, object to the sufficiency of the security in the undertaking of the plaintiff, and the court may require additional security, in default of which the property shall be returned to the defendant, but the action may proceed as if the property had not been taken. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 605, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–1809 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1557, 31 Stat. 1422; June 30, 1902, ch. 1329, 32 Stat. 544; Mar. 3, 1921, ch. 125, § 9, 41 Stat. 1312).

The last sentence of section 16–1809 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., which made that section applicable to the Municipal Court (now the Court of General Sessions), is omitted as covered by section 16-3738 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology and arrangement.

§ 16–3709. Notice to officer of intention to move for return—Duty of officer—Time of motion.

If the defendant in an action of replevin notifies the officer taking possession of the property, in writing, of his intention to make either of the motions specified by section 16–3708, the officer shall retain possession of the property until the motion is disposed of, if the motion is filed and notice given, as provided by section 16–3708, to the plaintiff or his attorney, within two days thereafter. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 605, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–1810 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1558, 31 Stat. 1422).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–3710. Determination and measure of plaintiff's damages.

Whether, in an action of replevin, the defendant answers and the issue thereon joined is found against him, or judgment is rendered against him on proper motion under rules of court, or he makes default after personal service or publication, the plaintiff's damages shall be ascertained by the jury trying the issue, where one is joined, or by a jury of inquest, where jury trial had been waived or there is no issue of fact, and the damages shall be the full value of the goods, if eloigned by the defendant, including, in every case, the loss sustained by the plaintiff by reason of the detention, and the judgment shall be rendered for the plaintiff accordingly. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 605, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–1811 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1559, 31 Stat. 1422).

Words "the defendant answers and the issue thereon joined is found against him, or judgment is rendered against him on proper motion under rules of court," are substituted for "the defendant plead and the issue thereon joined is found against him, or his plea is held bad on demurrer,"; and words "jury trial had been waived or" are inserted after "or by a jury of inquest, where", for the purpose of conforming the provisions, or rendering them more in consonance, with the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. See, particularly, rules 7 (a), (c), 12, 38, 39, 41, 56, and 64 thereof. See, also, the latter part of rule 55(b)(2) thereof, which, with respect to default judgments entered by the court, provided that the amount of damages shall be determined by a jury if "required by any statute of the United States". Under rule 81(e) of those rules, section 1599 of the act of 1901, cited above, from which section 16–1811 of the D.C. Code, 1961 ed., was derived, and on which this section is based, is a "statute of the United States".

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Evidence 1
Instructions 2
Right to possession 3
Subsequent action 4

1. Evidence

Testimony of witness that, when he took check drawn by defendant's husband, now deceased, to order of cash to bank and had it cashed for him, defendant's husband stated that he intended to use the money to buy furniture from third party was inadmissible as part of "res gestae". Jackson v. Goode (D.C. Mun. App. 1946, 49 A. 2d 913).

2. Instructions

Defendant's instruction that question for jury to determine was whether plaintiff had shown by a fair preponderance of evidence that on date she brought replevin suit she was entitled as against all the world to immediate and exclusive possession of the furniture which was subject of the suit was properly modified by substituting for the words "all the world" the words "the defendant." Jackson v. Goode (D.C. Mun App. 1946, 49 A. 2d 913).

3. Right to possession

Testimony as to statements made by defendant's deceased husband that he bought the property in controversy in replevin suit from certain person was not admissible as part of the "res gestae". Jackson v. Goode (D.C. Mun. App. 1946, 49 A. 2d 913).

In replevin suits it is not necessarily the title which is in issue but merely the right to possession as between the parties. Id.

4. Subsequent action

A buyer who brings replevin for the possession of an automobile repossessed by the seller, with nominal damages for detention, is not thereby barred from subsequent action for illegal and malicious seizure. Wardman-Justice Motors v. Petrie (1930, 39 F. 2d 512, 59 App. D.C. 262, 69 A.L.R. 648).

§ 16–3711. Judgment for defendant and determination of damages.

When, in an action of replevin, the issue is found for the defendant, or the plaintiff dismisses or fails to prosecute his suit, or judgment is rendered against the plaintiff on proper motion under rules of court, the judgment shall be that the goods, if delivered to the plaintiff, be returned to the defendant with damages for their detention, or, on failure, that the defendant recover against the plaintiff and his surety the damages sustained by him. The damages shall be assessed by the jury trying the issue; or, where jury trial had been waived, or judgment is rendered against the plaintiff prior to trial on proper motion under rules of court, or he dismisses or fails to prosecute his suit, by a jury of inquest. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 606, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–1812 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1560, 31 Stat. 1422).

Near the beginning, words "or judgment is rendered against the plaintiff on proper motion under rules of court," are inserted after "prosecute his suit,"; and, near the end, words "jury trial had been waived, or judgment is rendered against the plaintiff prior to trial on proper motion under rules of court, or" are inserted after "or, where", for the purpose of conforming the provisions, or rendering them more in consonance, with the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. See, particularly, rules 12, 38, 39, 41, 56, and 64 thereof.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–3712. Verdict where goods are eloigned.

If the defendant in an action of replevin has eloigned the things sued for, the court may instruct the jury, if they find for the plaintiff, to assess such damages as may compel the defendant to return the things. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 606, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–1813 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1561, 31 Stat. 1422).

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–3713. Judgment where goods are eloigned.

The judgment in a case where the defendant has eloigned the goods sued for, shall be that the plaintiff recover against the defendant the value of the goods as found and the damages so assessed, to be discharged by the return of the things, within ten days after the judgment, with damages for detention, which the jury shall also assess. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 606, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 16–1814 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 1562, 31 Stat. 1422).

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. Where goods not recovered

If the goods are not recovered in the replevin proceeding, or returned within ten days after judgment, the plaintiff shall be entitled to judgment for the value of the goods as damages, and also damages for the detention. Wardman-Justice Motors v. Petrie (1930, 39 F. 2d 512, 59 App. D.C. 262, 69 A.L.R. 648).

SUBCHAPTER II.—REPLEVIN IN COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS

§ 16–3731. Jurisdiction—Form of complaint.

The District of Columbia Court of General Sessions may issue a writ of replevin when a plaintiff files a complaint in replevin, in the following or an equivalent form:

"The plaintiff sues the defendant for wrongfully taking and detaining (or wrongfully detaining) the plaintiff's, goods and chattels, to wit (here describe them), of the value of ——— dollars. And the plaintiff claims that the same may be taken and delivered to him, or, if they are eloigned, that he may have judgment for their value and all mesne profits and damages, which he estimates at ——— dollars, besides costs." (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 606, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §§ 11–725, 11–751a, 11–755 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 13, 31 Stat. 1192; June 30, 1902, ch. 1329, 32 Stat. 521; Feb. 17, 1909, ch. 134, 35 Stat. 623; Mar. 3, 1921, ch. 125, § 1, 41 Stat. 1310; Apr. 1, 1942, ch. 207, § 4, 56 Stat. 192; June 25, 1948, ch. 646, § 32(b), 62 Stat. 991; May 24, 1949, ch. 139, § 127, 63 Stat. 107; Sept. 14, 1961, Pub. L. 87–242, § 1, 75 Stat. 513; Oct. 23, 1962, Pub. L. 87–873, §§ 1, 2, 76 Stat. 1171; July 8, 1963, Pub. L. 88–60, §§ 1, 2, 77 Stat. 77, 78).

Section is based on the first part of section 11–725 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. Remainder of section 11–725 is carried into sections 16–3732 and 16–3733 herein. Section 11–755 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., is also cited as one of the sources of this section because, with respect to the merger, by the act of 1942, of the Municipal Court of the District of Columbia and the Police Court, to form the Municipal Court for the District of Columbia, subsec. (a) of that section provided, prior to its amendment by the act of Oct. 23, 1962, that the court thus established, and the judges thereof, should have and exercise the same powers and jurisdiction as were theretofore had and exercised by the former two courts, and the judges thereof. After the 1962 amendment, subsec. (a) of section 11–755 provided that the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions and the judges thereof should have and exercise the same powers and jurisdiction as were previously vested in the Municipal Court for the District of Columbia and the judges theerof.

Section 11–751a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., enacted by the act of Oct. 23, 1962, is also cited as one of the sources of this section, as section 11–751a changed the name of the Municipal Court for the District of Columbia to the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions.

The term "complaint" is substituted for "declaration", in conformity with rules 2, 3, and 7(a) of the Civil Rules of the Court.

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Burden of proof 1
Value of goods 2

1. Burden of proof

In replevin to recover household goods which defendant claimed as a gift from plaintiff and which, it was not disputed, had originally been plaintiff's property, defendant had burden of establishing a gift of such goods. Imhoff v. Walker (D.C. Mun. App. 1947, 51 A. 2d 309).

In replevin to recover household goods which plaintiff claimed defendant had bought for plaintiff with his money and which defendant claimed to have bought with her own money, burden of proof upon such issue was upon plaintiff, and, if no evidence were produced on either side, plaintiff would have been out of court. Id.

2. Value of goods

Phrase "value of the goods" within statute relating to damages in replevin is not synonoymous with balance due under a contract. P. Becton v. Walker-Thomas etc. (D.C. App. 1963, 192 A. 2d 125).

§ 16–3732. Affidavits—Contents.

At the time of filing a complaint pursuant to section 16–3731, the plaintiff, his agent, or attorney shall file an affidavit stating that—

(1) according to affiant's information and belief, the plaintiff is entitled to recover possession of the chattels described in the complaint;

(2) the defendant has seized and detains or detains the chattels;

(3) the chattels were not subject to the seizure or detention, and were not taken under a writ of replevin between the parties; and

(4) the chattels are not of the value of more than $10,000.

(Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 606, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–725 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 13, 31 Stat. 1192; June 30, 1902, ch. 1329, 32 Stat. 521; Feb. 17, 1909, ch. 134, 35 Stat. 623; Mar. 3, 1921, ch. 125, § 1, 41 Stat. 1310).

Section is based on part of section 11–725 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. Remainder of section 11–725 is carried into sections 16–3731 and 16–3733 herein.

The term "complaint" is substituted for "declaration", in conformity with rules, 2, 3, and 7(a) of the Civil Rules of the Court.

In clause (4), "$10,000" is substituted for "$1,000", to conform the provision with the present civil jurisdiction of the Court of General Sessions. See section 11–961 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology and arrangement.

§ 16–3733. Undertaking to abide judgment of the Court.

At the time of filing a complaint pursuant to section 16–3731, the plaintiff shall enter into an undertaking, with surety approved by the court, submitting to the jurisdiction of the court, to abide by and perform the judgment of the court. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 606, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–725 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 13, 31 Stat. 1192; June 30, 1902, ch. 1329, 32 Stat. 521; Feb. 17, 1909, ch. 134, 35 Stat. 623; Mar. 3, 1921, ch. 125, § 1, 41 Stat. 1310).

Section is based on part of section 11–725 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. Remainder of section 11–725 is carried into sections 16–3731 and 16–3733 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–3734. Failure of officer to obtain possession.

When the officer's return of a writ of replevin issued pursuant to this subchapter is that he has served the defendant with copies of the complaint, affidavit, and summons, but that he could not obtain possession of the goods and chattels sued for, the plaintiff may prosecute the action for the value of the property and damages for the detention, not to exceed in all $10,000 or he may renew the writ, in order to obtain possession of the goods and chattels themselves. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 607, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–726 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 14, 31 Stat. 1192; Mar. 3, 1921, ch. 125, § 1, 41 Stat. 1310).

The term "complaint" is substituted for "declaration", in conformity with rules 2, 3, and 7 of Civil Rules of the Court.

The maximum figure, with respect to prosecution, by the plaintiff, for the value of the property and damages for the detention, where the return indicates that the officer could not get possession of the goods and chattels, is changed from "$1,000" to "$10,000", to conform the provision with section 11–961 herein, relating to civil jurisdiction of the Court of General Sessions.

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. Damages for value and detention

Judgment giving seller under lease-purchase contract for household furnishings possession of furnishings or their value at designated figure was invalid, where writ of replevin had been returned "No personal property found thereon to levy", and evidence as to value of the property was insufficient. P. Becton v. Walker-Thomas etc. (D.C. App. 1963, 192 A. 2d 125).

Where writ in action to replevy an alleged irreplaceable fender shield was returned "not executed" and plaintiff did not renew the writ but prosecuted action without seizure of the shield, plaintiff was properly given judgment merely for value of shield and damages for its detention rather than for recovery of shield, though defendant had voluntarily produced shield and had put it in evidence, and court thereafter ordered shield to be turned over to the marshal pending decision. Byrne v. Tabet (D.C. Mun. App. 1947, 50 A. 2d 815).

When the officer's return of a writ of replevin issued pursuant to this subchapter is that he has taken possession of the goods and chattels sued for, but that the defendant is not to be found, the court, subject to section 13–340 as to mailing notice, may order that the defendant appear to the action by a fixed day, and cause notice of the order to be given by publication in a newspaper published in the District at least three times, the first publication to be at least twenty days before the day fixed for defendant's appearance. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 607, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Section is based on part of section 11–727 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. Remainder of section 11–727 is carried into section 16–3736 herein.

Words "subject to section 13–340 as to mailing notice," are inserted, because there was nothing in section 13–111 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., from which section 13–340 herein was derived, which indicated that that section did not also apply to civil actions in the Municipal Court (now the Court of General Sessions). See section 16–1806 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., which is carried into section 16–3706 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–3736. Default.

If, after notice as provided by section 16–3735, the defendant fails to appear, the court may proceed, as in the case of default after personal service, to render judgment for the property in favor of the plaintiff. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 607, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–727 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 15, 31 Stat. 1192).

Section is based on part of section 11–727 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. Remainder of section 11–727 is carried into section 16–3735 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–3737. Retention of property by marshal—Sufficiency of undertaking, quashing writ, and return of property.

Property taken by the marshal under a writ of replevin issued pursuant to this subchapter shall be retained by him for three days, exclusive of Sundays and legal holidays, before delivering it to the plaintiff, in order that the defendant or other persons claiming an interest in the property may present objections to the court to the sufficiency of the security on the undertaking or the jurisdiction of the court. If the court deems the undertaking insufficient, it may direct the marshal to retain the property for a further short time, to be designated by the court, until an undertaking to be approved by it is filed, in default of which the marshal shall return the property to the person from whom it was taken. If it appears to the court that the property is of the value of over $10,000, the court shall quash the writ of replevin and direct the property to be returned to the party out of whose possession it was taken. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 607, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–729 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 17, 31 Stat. 1192; Feb. 17, 1909, ch. 134, 35 Stat. 623; Mar. 3, 1921, ch. 125, § 1, 41 Stat. 1310).

The amount of "$1,000" is changed to "$10,000". See section 11–961 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–3738. Motion for return of property—Procedure—Objection to sufficiency of security.

Section 16–3708 is also applicable to actions of replevin brought pursuant to this subchapter. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 607, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–730 (Mar. 3, 1921, ch. 125, § 9, 41 Stat. 1312).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16–3739. Determination and measure of plaintiff's damages.

Whether, in an action of replevin pursuant to this subchapter, the defendant answers and the issue thereon joined is found against him, or judgment is rendered against him on proper motion under rules of court, or he makes default after personal service, the plaintiff's damages shall be the full value of the goods, not to exceed $10,000, if eloigned by the defendant, and damages for the detention thereof, and judgment shall be rendered for the plaintiff accordingly. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 607, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §11–731 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 18, 31 Stat. 1192; Mar. 3, 1921, ch. 125, § 1, 41 Stat. 1310).

Words "the defendant answers and the issue thereon joined is found against him, or judgment is rendered against him on proper motion under rules of court," are substituted for "the defendant plead and the issue joined be found against him, or his plea be held bad,", for the purpose of conforming the provisions, or rendering them more in consonance, with the Civil Rules of the Court. See, particularly, rules, 7, 12, 41, and 55 thereof. For jury trials in civil cases in the Court of General Sessions, waiver thereof, determination of damages in cases tried without a jury, etc., see section 13–502 herein, and rules 38 and 53 of the Civil Rules of the Court.

The amount of "$1,000", with respect to maximum damages, is changed to "$10,000", in view of the present civil jurisdiction of the Court of General Sessions. See section 11–961 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Evidence 1
Instructions 2
Judgment for value and detention 3
Right to possession 4

1. Evidence

Testimony of witness that, when he took check drawn by defendant's husband, now deceased, to order of cash to bank and had it cashed for him, defendant's husband stated that he intended to use the money to buy furniture from third party was inadmissible as part of "res gestae". Jackson v. Goode (D.C. Mun. App. 1947, 49 A. 2d 913).

Evidence failed to show that refrigerating equipment was sold and installed by plaintiff upon false representations by owner of one of defendant companies concerning his own credit standing or that of his company or as to leasing business to other defendant company, so as to authorize plaintiff to recover the equipment in replevin suit. Premier Poultry Co. v. Wm. Bornstein & Son (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 61 A. 2d 632).

2. Instructions

Defendant's instruction that question for jury to determine was whether plaintiff had shown by a fair preponderance of evidence that on date she brought replevin suit she was entitled as against all the world to immediate and exclusive possession of the furniture which was subject of the suit was properly modified by substituting for the words "all the world" the words "the defendant." Jackson v. Goode (D.C. Mun. App. 1947, 49 A. 2d 913).

3. Judgment for value and detention

Judgment giving seller under lease-purchase contract for household furnishings possession of furnishings or their value at designated figure was invalid, where writ of replevin had been returned "No personal property found thereon to levy", and evidence as to value of the property was insufficient. P. Becton v. Walker-Thomas etc. (D.C. App. 1963, 192 A. 2d 125).

Where writ in action to replevy an alleged irreplaceable fender shield was returned "not executed" and plaintiff did not renew the writ but prosecuted action without seizure of the shield, plaintiff was properly given judgment merely for value of shield and damages for its detention rather than for recovery of shield, though defendant had voluntarily produced shield and had put it in evidence, and court thereafter ordered shield to be turned over to the marshal pending decision. Byrne v. Tabet (D.C. Mun. App. 1947, 50 A. 2d 815).

4. Right to possession

Testimony as to statements made by defendant's deceased husband that he bought the property in controversy in replevin suit from certain person was not admissible as part of the "res gestae". Jackson v. Goode (D.C. Mun. App. 1947, 49 A. 2d 913).

In replevin suit it is not necessarily the title which is in issue but merely the right to possession as between the parties. Id.

If buyer obtains by fraud the seller's assent to transfer ownership of goods the seller may sue for value thereof or at his election may rescind and sue to regain title or possession, and replevin is a proper procedural remedy to test issue of the right to possession. Premier Poultry Co. v. Wm. Bornstein & Son (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 61 A. 2d 632).

§ 16–3740. Judgment for defendant and determination of damages.

If the issue in an action of replevin pursuant to this subchapter is found for the defendant, or the plaintiff dismisses or fails to prosecute his suit, or judgment is rendered against plaintiff on proper motion under rules of court, the judgment shall be that the goods, if delivered to the plaintiff, be returned to the defendant, with damages for their detention, or, on failure, that the defendant recover from the plaintiff and his surety the damages sustained by him. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 607, Pub. L. 88-241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11-732 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 19, 31 Stat. 1193).

Words "or judgment is rendered against plaintiff on proper motion under rules of court," are inserted after "prosecute his suit,", for the purpose of conforming the provisions, or rendering them more in consonance, with the Civil Rules of the Court. See, particularly, rules 12, 41, and 56 thereof.

With respect to damages, words at end of section 11-732 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., "to be assessed by the court" are omitted, as there are jury trials in the Court of General Sessions, unless waived. See section 13-502 herein, and rule 38 of the Civil Rules of the Court. For determination, by reference, of damages in cases tried with or without a jury, see rules 53 thereof.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 16-3901. Practice—Applicability of other laws and rules of court.

All provisions of law relating to the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions and the rules of court apply to the practice in the Small Claims and Conciliation Branch of the court as far as they may be made applicable and are not in conflict with this chapter or chapter 13 of Title 11, or with the rules prescribed pursuant to section 13-101(c). In case of conflict, this chapter and chapter 13 of Title 11 and the rules so prescribed control. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 608, Pub. L. 88-241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §§ 17-751a, 11-814 (Mar. 5, 1938, ch. 43, § 14, 52 Stat. 106; Oct. 23, 1962, Pub. L. 87-873, § 1, 76 Stat. 1171; July 8, 1963, Pub. L. 88-60, § 1, 77 Stat. 77).

Section 11-751a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., is also cited as one of the sources of this section, as section 11-751a, enacted by the act of Oct. 23, 1962, changed the name of the Municipal Court for the District of Columbia to District of Columbia Court of General Sessions.

Changes are made in phraseology.

For jurisdiction of the Small Claims and Conciliation Branch of the Court of General Sessions, see section 11-1341 herein. For the Branch's authority to settle disputes by arbitration and conciliation, irrespective of the amount involved, see section 11-1342 herein.

The provisions of section 11-814 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., on which this revised section is based, are substantially repeated in rule 27 of the Rules of the Court of General Sessions governing its Small Claims and Conciliation Branch.

§ 16-3902. Commencement of action—Form of statement—Preparation by clerk—Notice and service—Costs—Default—Memorandum to plaintiff.

(a) Actions shall be commenced in the Small Claims and Conciliation Branch of the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions by the filing of a statement of claim, in concise form and free of technicalities. The plaintiff or his agent shall verify the statement of claim by oath or affirmation in the form herein provided, or its equivalent, and shall affix his signature thereto. The clerk of the Branch shall, at the request of an individual, prepare the statement of claim and other papers required to be filed in an action in the Branch, but his services are not available to a corporation, partnership, or association, in the preparation of the statements or other papers. A copy of the statement of claim and verification shall be made a part of the notice to be served upon the defendant named therein. The mode of service shall be by the United States marshal, as provided by law, or by registered mail or by certified mail with return receipt, or by a person not a party to or otherwise interested in the action especially appointed by the judge for that purpose.

(b) When notice is to be served by registered mail or by certified mail, the clerk shall inclose a copy of the statement of claim, verification, and notice in an envelope addressed to the defendant, prepay the postage with funds obtained from plaintiff, and mail the papers forthwith, noting on the records the day and hour of mailing. When the receipt is returned, the clerk shall attach it to the original statement of claim, and it constitutes prima facie evidence of service upon the defandant.

(c) When notice is served by a private individual, as provided by subsection (a) of this section, he shall make proof of service by affidavit before the clerk, showing the time and place of the service.

(d) When notice is served by the marshal, or by registered mail or by certified mail, the actual cost of service is taxable as costs. When notice is served by an individual, the cost of service, if any, is not taxable as costs.

(e) The statement of claim, verification, and notice shall be in the following or equivalent form:

If you wish to have witnesses summoned, see the clerk at once for assistance.

If you admit the claim, but desire additional time to pay, you must come to the hearing in person and state the circumstances to the court.

You may come with or without an attorney.

[SEAL] ————————

Clerk of the Small Claims and Conciliation Branch, Court of General Sessions.

(f) The foregoing verification entitles the plaintiff to a judgment by default, without further proof, upon failure of defendant to appear, if the claim of the plaintiff is for a liquidated amount. If the amount is unliquidated, the plaintiff shall be required to present proof of his claim.

(g) The clerk shall furnish the plaintiff with a memorandum of the day and hour set for the hearing, not less than 5 nor more than 15 days from the date of the filing of the action. Where, in a case controlled by another statute, a greater or lesser time for hearing is specified by the other statute, that specified time is controlling. All actions filed in the Branch shall be made returnable therein. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 608, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §§ 11–751a, 11–805 (Mar. 5, 1938, ch. 43, § 5, 52 Stat. 103; June 11, 1960, Pub. L. 86–507, § 1(46), 74 Stat. 203; Apr. 1, 1942, ch. 207, § 1, 56 Stat. 190; Oct. 23, 1962, Pub. L. 87–873, § 1, 76 Stat. 1171; July 8, 1963, Pub. L. 88–60, § 1, 77 Stat. 77, August 5, 1963, Pub. L. 88–85, §§ 1, 2, 77 Stat. 117).

Section 11–751a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., enacted by the act of Oct. 23, 1962, is also cited as one of the sources of this section, as section 11–751a changed the name of the Municipal Court for the District of Columbia to the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions.

In subsec. (e) words ", and shall be in lieu of any forms now employed and of any form of summons now provided by law", which followed "form", are omitted as obsolete and no longer necessary.

Changes are made in phraseology.

For supplemental provisions relating to the filing of actions, preparation of statement of claim, verification, notice, addresses of parties and attorneys, determination by judge of method of service, service and cost of service, see rules 3–9 of Rules of the Court of General Sessions governing its Small Claims and Conciliation Branch (Section III). For supplemental provisions relating to methods of personal service, see rule 4(c) (1), (2), (3) of that court's regular civil rules (Section I), which is made applicable to actions in the Small Claims and Conciliation Branch by rule 28 of its rules for that branch. See, also, rule 30 of the court's rules for the branch, which repeats the forms of statement of claim, verification, and notice, and contains the forms of return of service, and rule 15 thereof, relating to pleading in that branch.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Appearance to quash service 1
Practice of law 2
Purpose 3
Service by mail 4
Service, sufficiency of 5
Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act 6
Who may serve 7

1. Appearance to quash service

Where motion to vacate judgment and quash attachment rested on claim that service on defendant had not been made and that Small Claims Branch of District of Columbia Municipal Court acquired no jurisdiction over defendant, motion was sufficiently broad to include by implication an attack on service of process, and irregularity was cured by subsequent filing of motion to quash service, and filing of motion to vacate judgment and quash attachment was "special" and not "general appearance", and going to trial on merits after denial of such motion did not preclude defendant from raising jurisdictional question on appeal. Ellerbe v. Goldberg (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 60 A. 2d 232).

2. Practice of law

Filling out and filing of blank forms necessary to commence an action in the small claims court by lay employees of an automobile association for its members does not constitute the unauthorized "practice of law", this section being intended to help layman in presenting small claims informally and providing that complaint may be verified by the plaintiff or his agent, who is not required to be an attorney. American Automobile Ass'n v. Merrick (1941, 117 F. 2d 23, 73 App. D.C. 151).

3. Purpose

The purpose of legislation establishing small claims court was to secure prompt and inexpensive adjudication of small claims free from technicalities of procedural law, and Congress did not intend to deprive litigants of their lawful claims or defenses, or to substitute the abstract conception of justice of an individual judge for recognized rules of substantive law. Interstate Bankers Corporation v. Kennedy (1943, 33 A. 2d 165).

Process can only be served as provided by this section or by rules adopted pursuant to this section and registered mail may only be employed as a means of serving process when specifically authorized by law. Craig v. Heil (D.C. Mun. App. 1946, 47 A. 2d 871).

4. Service by mail

The presumption must be that Congress intended service by registered mail to be so made as to insure due process of law. Wise v. Herzog (1940, 114 F. 2d 486, 72 App. D.C. 335).

5. Service, sufficiency of

Where record showed that registered letter intended to constitute service of process under rule of Small Claims and Conciliation Branch of Municipal Court was delivered by postman to defendant's wife, service was valid and justified a refusal to vacate default judgment, notwithstanding that defendant testified that his wife failed to either deliver or inform him of the registered letter. Maktos v. Hill (1943, 32 A. 2d 706).

Notice by registered mail delivered to wife of defendant, who was then serving in United States Army in time of war and who had been out of country for four months prior thereto, was not calculated to give reasonable notice or any notice to defendant, and attempted service was invalid and should have been quashed. Ellerbe v. Goldberg (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 60 A. 2d 232).

6. Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act

The Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act, 50 U.S.C. App. § 520, does not exempt defendant soldier from service of civil process. Ellerbe v. Goldberg (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 60 A. 2d 232).

7. Who may serve

The act permits service by persons designated for that purpose by the court. Wise v. Herzog (1940, 114 F. 2d 486, 72 App. D.C. 335).

§ 16-3903. Fees and costs—Waiver.

The fee for issuing summons and copies, trial, judgment, and satisfaction in an action in the Small Claims and Conciliation Branch of the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions shall be not more than $1. Other fees shall be as the court prescribes. The judge sitting in the Branch may waive the prepayment of costs or the payment of costs accruing during the action upon the sworn statement of the plaintiff or upon other satisfactory evidence of his inability to pay the costs. When costs are so waived the notation to be made on the records of the Branch shall be "Prepayment of costs waived," or "Costs waived." The term "pauper" or "in forma pauperis" may not be employed in the Branch. If a party fails to pay accrued costs, though able to do so, the judge may deny him the right to file a new case in the Branch while the costs remain unpaid, and likewise deny him the right to proceed further in any case pending in the Branch. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 610, Pub. L. 88-241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11-807 (Mar. 5, 1938, ch. 43, § 7, 52 Stat. 105).

Section is based on all of section 11-807 of the D.C. Code, 1961 ed., except the last sentence thereof. That sentence is carried into section 16-3909 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology.

For supplemental provisions relating to fees and costs and waiver and award of costs, see rules 12, 13, and 29 of the Rules of the Court of General Sessions governing its Small Claims and Conciliation Branch (Section III), and rule 85 of the Court's regular civil rules (Section I).

Fees and costs, generally, see § 15-701 et seq.

§ 16-3904. Set-off or counterclaim—Pleading—Retention of jurisdiction.

If the defendant, in an action pursuant to this chapter, asserts a set-off or counterclaim, the judge may require a formal plea of set-off to be filed, or may waive the requirement. If the plaintiff requires time to prepare his defense against the counterclaim or set-off, the judge may continue the case for that purpose. When the set-off or counterclaim is for more than the jurisdictional limit of the Small Claims and Conciliation Branch as provided by section 11-1341 but within the jurisdictional limit of the court as provided by section 11-961, the action shall nevertheless remain in the Branch and be tried therein in its entirety. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 610, Pub. L. 88-241, § 1.)

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. Motion to strike

Where plaintiff in action on wage claim in small claims branch of Municipal Court filed a counterclaim seeking damages of $3,000 for libel and slander, counterclaim became subject to motion to strike for want of jurisdiction, or court on its own motion should have noticed its lack of jurisdiction and should have stricken the counterclaim. 1425 F St. Corp. v. Jardin (D.C. Mun. App. 1947, 53 A. 2d 278).

§ 16-3905. Jury trial—Demand—Assignment to regular branch.

In a case filed or pending in the Small Claims and Conciliation Branch of the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions in which a party entitled to a trial by jury files a demand therefor, the case shall be assigned to and tried in the regular branch of the civil division of the Court under the procedure provided for jury trials. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 610. Pub. L. 88-241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §§ 11-751a, 11-818 (Mar. 5, 1938, ch. 43, § 18, 52 Stat. 107; Oct. 23, 1962, Pub. L. 87-873, § 1, 76 Stat. 1171; July 8, 1963, Pub. L. 88-60, § 1, 77 Stat. 77).

Section 11-751a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., enacted by the act of Oct. 23, 1962, is also cited as one of the sources of this section, as section 11-751a changed the name of the Municipal Court for the District of Columbia to the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions.

Words "the regular branch of the civil division" are substituted for "one of the regular branches", to follow more closely the present organization of the Court of General Sessions. See section 11-901 herein and revision note thereunder.

Changes are made in phraseology.

For supplemental provisions relating to demands for jury trials in actions brought in the Small Claims and Conciliation Branch of the Court of General Sessions, see rule 17 of the court's rules governing that branch (Section III). For provisions relating to jury trials in the regular branch of the civil division of the court, see section 13-702 herein, and rule 38 of the court's regular civil rules. See, also, chapter 23 of Title 11 herein.

§ 16-3906. Pre-trial settlement—Trial—Procedure—Default—Dismissal or nonsuit—Other disposition.

(a) On the return day specified by subsection (g) of section 16-3902, or at such later time as the judge sets, the trial shall be had. Immediately prior to the trial of a case pursuant to this chapter, the judge shall make an earnest effort to settle the controversy by conciliation. If he fails to induce the parties to settle their differences without a trial, he shall proceed with the hearing on the merits pursuant to subsection (b) of this section.

(b) The parties and witnesses shall be sworn. The judge shall conduct the trial in such manner as to do substantial justice between the parties according to the rules of substantive law, and is not bound by the statutory provisions or rules of practice, procedure, pleading, or evidence, except provisions relating to privileged communications.

(c) If the defendant fails to appear, judgment shall be entered for the plaintiff by default as provided by section 16-3902(f), or under rules of court, or on ex-parte proof. If the plaintiff fails to appear, the action may be dismissed for want of prosecution, or a nonsuit may be ordered, or defendant may proceed to a trial on the merits, or the case may be continued or returned to the files for further proceedings on a later date, as the judge directs. If both parties fail to appear, the judge may return the case to the files, or order the action dismissed for want of prosecution, or make any other just and proper disposition thereof, as justice requires. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 610, Pub. L. 88-241, § 1.)

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11-808 (Mar. 5, 1938, ch. 43, § 8, 52 Stat. 105).

Changes are made in phraseology.

For supplemental provisions relating to trial procedure in the Small Claims and Conciliation Branch of the Court of General Sessions, see rule 14 of the court's rules governing that branch (Section III).

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Default judgment, setting aside 2
Discretion 3
Dismissal 4
Duty of judge 5
Evidence 6
Generally 1
Substantial justice 7

1. Generally

In small claims branch of Municipal Court, trial judge is not bound by statutory provisions or rules of practice, procedure, pleading, or evidence except those relating to privileged communications. Hodgkins v. Beckner (1943, 32 A. 2d 113).

2. Default judgment, setting aside

Where at time plaintiff obtained default judgment for purchase price of a fur coat, there was withheld from the court the information that purchaser's action in Small Claims Court against plaintiff to recover payments made on the coat had been continued that same day, setting aside the default judgment even after expiration of the term was proper. Marvin's Credit v. Kitching (D.C. Mun. App. 1944, 34 A. 2d 866).

The determination of a motion to vacate a default judgment on basis of affidavits instead of taking testimony in open court is a matter resting largely in the discretion of the trial court. Id.

3. Discretion

In action in Small Claims Branch of Municipal Court, presiding judge abused his discretion in refusing to grant counsel for plaintiff a 30-minute continuance to obtain attendance of witness and dismissing action for want of prosecution upon refusal of counsel to take a nonsuit. Potomac Small Loan Co. v. Myles (D.C. Mun. App. 1943, 34 A. 2d 609).

4. Dismissal

Summary dismissals in the small claims branch of Municipal Court without a full hearing from both sides are not justified save in exceptional cases. Hodgkins v. Beckner (943, 32 A. 2d 113).

Where each plaintiff sought recovery of $50 on theory that each had delivered $50 to defendant on his undertaking to acquire title to an apartment house, and that defendant's resale of apartment house obligated him to return the sums received from plaintiffs, dismissal of the action by small claims branch of Municipal Court without hearing defendant's testimony was not justified by record. Id.

5. Duty of judge

The trial judge of small claims branch of Municipal Court is required, prior to trial, to make earnest effort to settle controversy by conciliation, and to elicit from defendant or his attorney a statement regarding nature of defense, but, if such effort fails judge must conduct trial in manner as to do substantial justice. Hodgkins v. Beckner (1943, 32 A. 2d 113).

Small Claims Court, by ordering action on a note for trial without ascertaining whether defendants claimed a defense, and without making any effort to settle controversy by conciliation, violated § 11-801 et seq. establishing and prescribing procedure in such court and Small Claims Rule 14c. Potomac Small Loan Co. v. Myles (D.C. Mun. App. 1943, 34 A. 2d 609).

Under this section providing for conduct of trial so as to do "substantial justice" in small claims and conciliation branch of Municipal Court, where payee on note given for horseback riding instructions failed to perform, in action on notes judge of small claims court could not limit recovery by holders in due course to unpaid balance less discount charged by holders for purchase of notes, by ignoring substantive law rule that holder in due course of negotiable instrument was entitled to payment of full amount. Id.

An order of the Municipal Court for the District of Columbia, Civil Division, dismissing plaintiff's second amended particulars of demand on ground that relief demanded was less than minimum jurisdiction of court, was improper, where amount claimed by plaintiff in good faith in bill of particulars exceeded jurisdictional amount. Goldberg v. Roumel (D.C. Mun. App. 1945, 40 A. 2d 253).

Summary dismissal by Municipal Court of Class B debt actions, which are claims for more than $50 but not more than $500, and which may be brought by filing a bill of particulars, is not to be encouraged. Id.

Conciliation procedure in small claims cases is made mandatory by this section and court rules, and, before ordering any such case for trial, presiding judge is required to elicit from defendant the nature of his defense, and make a real, and not merely a perfunctory, effort to settle controversy by conciliation. Id.

6. Evidence

Even though this section provided that judge should not be bound by statutory provisions or rules of practice, procedure, pleading, or evidence, police report, which contained conclusions of reporting officers and was highly prejudicial to plaintiff, was not admissible in evidence. Levin v. Green (D.C. Mun. App. 1954, 106 A. 2d 136).

Where tenant was compelled to pay water bill which accrued during a prior tenancy, and thereafter sought reimbursement from prior tenant, water bill prepared by official charged with duty of keeping records and collecting charges for water services was admissible under this section providing for conduct of trial in small claims and conciliation branch of Municipal Court so as to do substantial justice, and made a prima facie case. Simmons v. Quick (D.C. Mun. App. 1944, 37 A. 2d 656).

7. Substantial justice

Under this section providing that judge of small claims conciliation branch of Municipal Court should conduct trial so as to administer substantial justice between the parties, "substantial justice" is justice administered according to the rules of substantive law, notwithstanding errors of procedure which do not deprive litigants of substantive rights. Interstate Bankers Corporation v. Kennedy (1943, 33 A. 2d 165).

§ 16-3907. Judgment—Stay—Installment payments—Enforcement.

When judgment is to be rendered in an action pursuant to this chapter and the party against whom it is to be entered requests it, the judge shall inquire fully into his earnings and financial status and may stay the entry of judgment, and stay execution, except in cases involving wage claims, and order partial payments in such amounts, over such periods, and upon such terms, as seems just in the circumstances and as will assure a definite and steady reduction of the judgment until it is finally and completely satisfied. Upon a showing that the party has failed to meet an instalment payment without just excuse, the stay of execution shall be vacated. When a stay of execution has not been ordered or when a stay of execution has been vacated as provided by this section, the party in whose favor the judgment has been entered may avail himself of all remedies otherwise available in the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions for the enforcement of the judgment. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 611, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §§ 11–751a, 11–811 (Mar. 5, 1938, ch. 43, § 11, 52 Stat. 106; Oct. 23, 1962, Pub. L. 87–873, § 1, 76 Stat. 1171; July 8, 1963, Pub. L. 88–60, § 1, 77 Stat. 77).

Section 11–751a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., enacted by the act of Oct. 23, 1962, is also cited as one of the sources of this section, as section 11–751a changed the name of the Municipal Court for the District of Columbia to the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions.

Changes are made in phraseology.

For supplemental provisions relating to entry of judgment, stay, installment payments, exemptions, and oral examination of garnishee, see rules 18–23 of the Rules of the Court of General Sessions governing its Small Claims and Conciliation Branch (Section III).

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. Stay of execution

Power granted to Small Claims Branch of Municipal Court for the District of Columbia to stay execution on a judgment and permit installment or periodical payments is limited to the time when judgment is to be rendered and cannot be exercised after judgment has been rendered and execution issued. Royal Credit Co., Inc. v. Wabash Jr. (D.C. Mun. App. 1960, 162 A. 2d 493).

Where seller obtained an attachment based on a default judgment from Small Claims Branch against buyer for price of merchandise and, under attachment, seized credits in the hands of buyer's employer, Small Claims Branch had no authority to quash attachment and order a conditional stay of execution. Id.

§ 16–3908. Judgment for wages—Oral examination—Payment.

When a judgment rendered in an action pursuant to this chapter is founded in whole or in part on a claim for wages or personal services, the judge shall, upon motion of the party obtaining judgment, order the appearance of the party against whom the judgment has been entered, but not more often than once each week for four weeks, for oral examination under oath as to his financial status and his ability to pay the judgment, and the judge shall make such supplementary orders as seems just and proper to effectuate the payment of the judgment upon reasonable terms. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 611, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–812 (Mar. 5, 1938, ch. 43, § 12, 52 Stat. 106).

Changes are made in phraseology.

For supplemental provisions relating to judgments for wages, oral examination, etc., see rule 25 of the Rules of the Court of General Sessions governing its Small Claims and Conciliation Branch (Section III).

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. Personal services

Under rule 19 of the small claims branch of Municipal Court that the judge shall, upon motion, order the appearance of judgment debtor for examination as to financial ability to pay judgment based on claim for wages or personal services, the expression "personal services" should not be given a wider meaning than the word "wages" and does not include professional services rendered by a dentist, a physician, or an attorney at law. Price v. Quill (D.C. Mun. App. 1946, 46 A. 2d 311).

§ 16–3909. Award of costs.

In the action pursuant to this chapter, the award of costs is in the discretion of the judge, who may include therein the reasonable cost of bonds and undertakings, and other reasonable expenses incident to the action, incurred by either party. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 611, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 11–807 (Mar. 5, 1938, ch. 43, § 7, 52 Stat. 105).

Section is based on last sentence of section 11–807 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. Remainder of section 11–807 is carried into section 16–3903 herein.

Changes are made in phraseology.

For supplemental provisions relating to the award of costs, and limitations on allowance of attorney fees, see rules 16 and 24 of the Rules of the Court of General Sessions governing its Small Claims and Conciliation Branch (Section III).

§ 16–3910. Other rights of judgment creditor.

Except as otherwise provided by this chapter, or in the rules prescribed pursuant to section 13–101(c), a party obtaining a judgment in the Small Claims and Conciliation Branch of the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions is entitled to the the same remedies, processes, costs, and benefits as are given or inure to other judgment creditors in the court. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 611, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §§ 11–751a, 11–819 (Mar. 5, 1938, ch. 43, § 19, 52 Stat. 107; Oct. 23, 1962, Pub. L. 87–873, § 1, 76 Stat. 1171; July 8, 1963, Pub. L. 88–60, § 1, 77 Stat. 77).

Section 11–751a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., enacted by the act of Oct. 23, 1962, is also cited as one of the sources of this section, as section 11–751a changed the name of the Municipal Court for the District of Columbia to the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions.

Changes are made in phraseology.

Chapter 41.—SURETIES

Sec.
16–4101. Relief from suretyship—Counter security, or bond—Removal of officer or fiduciary from office.
16–4102. Subrogation of surety satisfying judgment.

§ 16–4101. Relief from suretyship—Counter security, or bond—Removal of officer or fiduciary from office.

When the surety, or his personal representatives, of an officer, commissioner, receiver, or trustee appointed under a decree of court and required to give bond apprehends himself to be in danger of suffering from the suretyship, and petitions the court to be relieved from the suretyship, or that the court require the officer, commissioner, receiver, or trustee to give counter security, the court may, on reasonable notice to the trustee or other officer, require him to give counter security or to give a new bond in the same manner as if none had been given by him. If he fails to do so by a day named, the court may remove him from his office or trust and appoint a new trustee or other officer in his stead to complete the duties of his office or trust, and may thereupon, order him to deliver over to his successor all the trust property, including moneys, books, papers, bonds, notes, and evidences of debt, and may compel compliance with the order by attachment. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 612, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

§ 16–4102. Subrogation of surety satisfying judgment.

Where a person recovers a judgment or money decree against the principal debtor and a surety or indorser, and the judgment is satisfied by the surety or indorser, the latter may have the judgment or money decree entered by the clerk to his use and have execution in his own name against the principal, and where a judgment or money decree is rendered against several sureties and one of them satisfies the whole debt, the surety satisfying the judgment may have the judgment or decree entered to his use, have execution against each of the other sureties in the judgment or decree for a proportionate part of the debt so paid by him. On the motion of the surety so paying the entire debt and notice to the other sureties, the court may determine for what amount execution shall issue against each of the other sureties. NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. Foreign judgments

In action by surety, which had given New York cost bond, against principal to recover loss sustained by surety because of payment of judgment for costs against principal, where New York court had jurisdiction of subject matter and of parties, final judgment awarding costs was required to be given complete effect under the "full faith and credit" clause of U.S. Const. Art. 4, § 1. Lloyd v. U.S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co. (1943, 31 A. 2d 669, certiorari denied 64 S. Ct. 88, 320 U.S. 780, 88 L. Ed. 468, rehearing denied 64 S. Ct. 204, 320 U.S. 814, 88 L. Ed. 491, rehearing denied 64 S. Ct. 1148, 322 U.S. 770, 88 L. Ed. 1595).

In action by surety, which had given New York cost bond, to recover loss sustained because of payment of judgment against principal for costs, trial court did not err in receiving in evidence certified copy of New York judgment for costs and canceled check evidencing payment of judgment by surety. Id.

In action by surety, which had given New York cost bond, against principal to recover loss sustained because of payment of judgment for costs against principal, record did not sustain defense of fraud and collusion in obtaining the judgment for costs. Id.

1. United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit 17–101
3. District of Columbia Court of Appeals 17–301

Chapter 1.—UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA CIRCUIT

Sec.

17–101. Appeal from District of Columbia Court of Appeals—Filing, form and contents of petition.

17–102. Procedure, generally, on appeal from District of Columbia Court of Appeals—Record—Rules of court.

17–103. Time for petitioning for allowance of appeal from District of Columbia Court of Appeals.

17–104. Determination of appeal from District of Columbia Court of Appeals.

§ 17–101. Appeal from District of Columbia Court of Appeals—Filing, form and contents of petition.

The petition for the allowance of an appeal from a judgment of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals shall be in writing and shall be filed with the clerk of the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit. The contents of the petition shall conform with requirements that the United States Court of Appeals prescribes by rule. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 612, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §§ 11–771a, 11–772, 11–773 (Apr. 1, 1942, ch. 207, §§ 7, 8, 56 Stat. 195, 196; Aug. 31, 1954, ch. 1173, § 1, 68 Stat. 1048; Oct. 23, 1962, Pub. L. 87–873, § 6, 76 Stat. 1172; July 8, 1963, Pub. L. 88–60, § 6, 77 Stat. 78).

The text is actually taken, with changes in phraseology, from the second sentence of section 11–773 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. The last sentence of section 11–772 thereof, cited above, made the procedure prescribed in section 11–773 applicable to petitions for the allowance of appeals from judgments of the Municipal Court of Appeals (now, District of Columbia Court of Appeals) given on appeals from orders and decisions of certain administrative agencies.

Section 11–771a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., enacted by the act of Oct. 23, 1962, is also cited as one of the sources of this section, as section 11–771a changed the name of the Municipal Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia to the District of Columbia Court of Appeals.

The provisions of section 11–773 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., fixing the time during which petitions for allowance of appeals may be filed is carried into section 17–103 herein. For remainder of sections 11–772 and 11–773, see other sections in this title, and tables.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. Frivolous questions

Briefs, arguments and record on appeal at government expense from convictions for transporting female in interstate commerce for prostitution, and for accepting money from earnings of female engaged in prostitution for which defendant furnished a place, presented no legally non-frivolous questions, and required that convictions be affirmed. N. Wisnick v. United States (1963, 311 F. 2d 775, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 89).

§ 17–102. Procedure, generally, on appeal from District of Columbia Court of Appeals—Record—Rules of court.

The United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit may prescribe rules governing the:

(1) practice and procedure on petitions specified by section 17–101; and

(2) preparation of, and time for filing, the transcript of the record in such cases—and may generally regulate all matters relating to appeals in such cases. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 612, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §§ 11–772, 11–773 (Apr. 1, 1942, ch. 207, §§ 7, 8, 56 Stat. 195, 196; Aug. 31, 1954, ch. 1173, § 1, 68 Stat. 1048).

The text is actually taken, with changes in phraseology, from the third sentence of section 11–773 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. For the reason for also citing section 11–772 thereof, see revision note under section 17–101 herein.

For remainder of sections 11–772 and 11–773 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., see other sections in this title, and tables.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Appeals by Government 1
Pretrial order 2

1. Appeals by Government

Criminal appeals by the government in District of Columbia are not limited to categories set forth in special jurisdictional statute, although as to cases of the type covered by that statute, its explicit directions will prevail over general terms of District of Columbia Code. Carroll v. United States (1957, 77 S. Ct. 1332, 354 U.S. 394, 1 L. Ed. 2d 1442).

2. Pretrial order

Pretrial order suppressing evidence of a recording and a transcription of a telephone conversation, did not have a final and irreparable effect on rights of party in prosecution for perjury nor was it a "final disposition" of a claimed right and order was not appealable. United States v. Stephenson (1955, 223 F. 2d 336, 96 U.S. App. D.C. 44).

§ 17–103. Time for petitioning for allowance of appeal from District of Columbia Court of Appeals.

Petitions for the allowance of appeals from judgments of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals shall, in each case, be filed, as provided by this chapter, within ten days after entry of the judgment from which an appeal is desired. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 613, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §§ 11–771a, 11–772, 11–773 (Apr. 1, 1942, ch. 207, §§ 7, 8, 56 Stat. 195, 196; Aug. 31, 1954, ch. 1173, § 1, 68 Stat. 1048; Oct. 23, 1962, Pub. L. 87–873, § 6, 76 Stat. 1172; July 8, 1963, Pub. L. 88–60, § 6, 77 Stat. 78).

The text is actually taken, with changes in phraseology, from part of the second sentence of section 11–773 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed. For reason for also citing section 11–772 thereof, see revision note under section 17–101 herein.

Section 11–771a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., enacted by the act of Oct. 23, 1962, is also cited as one of the sources of this section, as section 11–771a changed the name of the Municipal Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia to the District of Columbia Court of Appeals.

For remainder of section 11–772 and 11–773 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., see other sections in this title, and tables.

§ 17–104. Determination of appeal from District of Columbia Court of Appeals.

If the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit allows an appeal pursuant to section 11–321 and this chapter, it shall review the record on appeal, and shall affirm, modify, vacate, set aside, or reverse the judgment, and may remand the cause and direct the entry of such appropriate judgment or order, or require such further proceedings to be had, as is just in the circumstances. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 613, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §§ 11–772, 11–773 (Apr. 1, 1942; ch. 207, §§ 7, 8, 56 Stat. 195, 196; Aug. 31, 1954, ch. 1173, § 1, 68 Stat. 1048).

The text is actually taken from the fourth sentence of section 11–773 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., and is reworded to follow the broader and more comprehensive language of section 2106 of Title 28, United States Code, which in all probability already embraces within its scope the determination, by the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, of appeals from the District of Columbia Court of Appeals.

For reason for also citing, above, section 11–772 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., see revision note under section 17–101 herein, and for remainder of section 11–772 and 11–773, see other sections in this title, and tables.

Chapter 3.—DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA COURT OF APPEALS

Sec.

17–301. Applications for allowance of appeals from certain Court of General Sessions judgments—Hearing—Effect of denial.
17–302. Regulations of appeals—Record—Costs.
17–303. Appeals from administrative orders and decisions—Petition—Record—Procedure.
17–304. Stay upon application for review of, or pending appeal from, administrative order or decision.
17–305. Scope of review.
17–306. Determination of appeals.
17–307. Time for taking or applying for allowance of appeals.

§ 17–301. Applications for allowance of appeals from certain Court of General Sessions judgments—Hearing—Effect of denial.

(a) The application for the allowance of an appeal from a judgment of the Small Claims and Conciliation Branch of the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions, or from a judgment of the criminal division of that court where the penalty imposed is less than $50, provided for by section 11–741(c), shall be on a standard form, in simple language, prescribed by the Court of General Sessions. If the appellant is not represented by counsel, the clerk of the Court of General Sessions shall prepare the application in his behalf.

(b) The application provided for by subsection (a) of this section shall be filed in the District of Columbia Court of Appeals within the time limit prescribed by section 17–307(b), and shall be promptly presented by the clerk of that court to the chief judge and the associate judges thereof for their consideration. When any one of them is of the opinion that the appeal should be allowed, the appeal shall be recorded as granted, and the case set down for hearing on appeal. It shall be given a preferred status on the calendar, and heard in the same manner as other appeals in the court. When all the judges are of the opinion that an appeal should be denied, the denial shall stand as an affirmance of the judgment of the trial court, and there shall be no further appeal. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 613, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961, ed., §§ 11–771a, 11–772 (Apr. 1, 1942, ch. 207, § 7, 56 Stat. 195; Aug. 31, 1954, ch. 1173, § 1, 68 Stat. 1048; Oct. 23, 1962, Pub. L. 87–873, § 6, 76 Stat. 1172; July 8, 1963, Pub. L. 88–60, § 6, 77 Stat. 78).

Section is derived from part of subsec. (a) of section 11–772 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., with changes in phraseology and arrangement.

Section 11–771a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., enacted by the act of Oct. 23, 1962, is also cited as one of the sources of this section, as section 11–771a changed the name of the Municipal Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia to the District of Columbia Court of Appeals.

In subsec. (a), "criminal division" is substituted for "criminal branch". See section 11–901 herein and revision note thereunder.

A second paragraph of subsec. (a) of section 11–772 provided that "After the effective date of this subchapter [subchapter III of chapter 7 of Title 11 of that Code, in which said section 11–772 was set out], no writs of error or appeals, except in respect of judgments theretofore rendered, shall be granted by the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia to the said Municipal Court or to the said Juvenile Court". This paragraph is omitted as obsolete.

For remainder of section 11–772 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., see other sections in this title, and tables.

§ 17–302. Regulation of appeals—Record—Costs.

The District of Columbia Court of Appeals may regulate, generally, all matters relating to appeals, whether in the District of Columbia Court of Appeals or in the court below. It may prescribe by rules what part of the proceedings in the court below shall constitute the record on appeal, and may require that the original papers, instead of copies thereof, be sent to it. It may not require that the record or briefs on appeal be printed. If they are printed, the cost of printing may not be taxed as costs in the case. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 613, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §§ 11–767, 11–771a, 11–772 (Apr. 1, 1942, ch. 207, § 7, 56 Stat. 1095; Aug. 31, 1954, ch. 1173, § 1, 68 Stat. 1048; Apr. 11, 1956, ch. 204, § 111, 70 Stat. 113; Oct. 23, 1962, Pub. L. 87–873, § 6, 76 Stat. 1172; July 8, 1963, Pub. L. 88–60, § 6, 77 Stat. 78).

Section consolidates subsec. (b) of section 11–772 of D.C. Code; 1961 ed., with section 11–767 thereof which extended the right of appeal to parties aggrieved by orders or judgments of the Domestic Relations Branch of the Municipal Court (now, the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions). See revision note under section 11–741 herein. For remainder of section 11–772, see other sections in this title, and tables.

Section 11–771a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., enacted by the act of Oct. 23, 1962, is also cited as one of the sources of this section, as section 11–771a changed the name of the Municipal Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia to the District of Columbia Court of Appeals.

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

1. Record on appeal

Record in juvenile court proceeding for determination of paternity and support of child disclosed no reason requiring reversal of judgment because of several years' delay in trial due to congested court calendar, where no application was made to advance case for hearing and at no time was appellant in custody. A. Jackson v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1964, 200 A. 2d 199).

§ 17–303. Appeals from administrative orders and decisions—Petition—Record—Procedure.

(a) An appeal from an order or decision of an administrative agency, as provided for by section 11–742, is commenced by filing in the District of Columbia Court of Appeals, within the time prescribed pursuant to section 17–307(a), the written petition for review provided by section 11–742(c). Upon the filing of the petition, the clerk of the court shall forthwith, by mail, serve a copy thereof upon the agency affected by the petition. After receipt of the copy of the petition, the agency shall certify and file in the court the original papers comprising the record or any supplementary record, or certified copies of the papers. Upon the filing of the papers, the clerk shall immediately notify the petitioner of the filing.

(b) The District of Columbia Court of Appeals may by rule prescribe:

(1) the form and contents of the petition provided for by this section; and

(2) the time within which the agency affected by the petition shall certify and file the original papers or certified copies thereof as provided by this section—and regulate generally all matters relating to proceedings on an appeal referred to in this section. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 614, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §§ 11–771a, 11–772 (Apr. 1, 1942, ch. 207, § 7, 56 Stat. 1095; Aug. 31, 1954, ch. 1173, § 1, 68 Stat. 1048; Oct. 23, 1962, Pub. L. 87–873, § 6, 76 Stat. 1172; July 8, 1963, Pub. L. 88–60, § 6, 77 Stat 78).

Section is derived, with changes in phraseology and arrangement, from the second sentence, part of the third sentence, and the fourth sentence, of subsec. (f) of section 11–772 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed.

Section 11–711a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., enacted by the act of Oct. 23, 1962, is also cited as one of the sources of this section, as section 11–771a changed the name of the Municipal Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia to the District of Columbia Court of Appeals.

For remainder of section 11–772, see other sections in this title, and tables.

§ 17–304. Stay upon application for review of, or pending appeal from, administrative order or decision.

(a) An application for review, or pendency of an appeal, provided for by section 17–303, does not operate as a stay of the order or decision from which the appeal is taken:

(1) in any case where, under existing law, a stay may not be granted; or

(2) in any other case unless so ordered by the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia, or by the District of Columbia Court of Appeals as provided by subsection (b) of this section.

(b) For good cause shown, and upon such conditions as may be required and to the extent necessary to prevent irreparable injury, the court may take appropriate and necessary action to preserve the status or rights pending conclusion of the review proceedings provided for by section 17–303. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 614, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §§ 11–771a, 11–772 (Apr. 1, 1942, ch. 207, § 7, 56 Stat. 1095; Aug. 31, 1954, ch. 1173, § 1, 68 Stat. 1048; Oct. 23, 1962, Pub. L. 87–873, § 6, 76 Stat. 1172; July 8, 1963, Pub. L. 88–60, § 7, 77 Stat. 78).

Section is derived, with changes in phraseology and arrangement, from the proviso in subsec. (f) of section 11–772 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., down to the second semicolon. For remainder of section 11–772, see other sections in this title, and tables.

Section 11–771a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., enacted by the act of Oct. 23, 1962, is also cited as one of the sources of this section, as section 11–771a changed the name of the Municipal Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia to the District of Columbia Court of Appeals.

§ 17–305. Scope of review.

(a) In considering an order or judgment of a lower court or any of its branches, brought before it for review, the District of Columbia Court of Appeals shall review the record on appeal. When the issues of fact were tried by jury, the court shall review the case only as to matters of law. When the case was tried without a jury, the court may review both as to the facts and the law, but the judgment may not be set aside except for errors of law unless it appears that the judgment is plainly wrong or without evidence to support it.

(b) The District of Columbia Court of Appeals shall hear and determine appeals from orders or decisions of administrative agencies upon the record of proceedings before the appropriate agency to be certified to the court under rules or instructions as the court from time to time prescribes. In such cases, it shall limit its review to those issues of law or fact that are subject to review on appeal under applicable provisions of existing law. If there is no statutory limitation, the court shall determine the appeal by rules of law which define the scope and limitations of review of administrative proceedings. Under the rules, by way of elaboration and not limitation, the court may:

(1) as far as necessary to decision and where presented to decide all relevant questions of law, interpret constitutional and statutory provisions, and determine the meaning or applicability of the terms of any agency action; and

(2) hold unlawful and set aside agency action findings and conclusions found to be:

(A) arbitrary, capricious, an abuse of discretion, or otherwise not in accordance with law;

(B) contrary to constitutional right, power, privilege, or immunity;

(C) in excess of statutory jurisdiction, authority, or limitation, or short of statutory right;

(D) without observance of procedure required by law;

(E) unsupported by substantial evidence or facts in the record of the proceedings before the court; or

(F) unwarranted by the facts.

In making the determinations as provided by this subsection, the court shall take account of prejudicial error. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 614, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §§ 11–767, 11–771a, 11–772 (Apr. 1, 1942, ch. 207, § 7, 56 Stat. 195; Aug. 31, 1954, ch.

1173, § 1, 68 Stat. 1048; Apr. 11, 1956, ch. 204, § 111, 70 Stat. 113; Oct. 23, 1962, Pub. L. 87–873, § 6, 76 Stat. 1171; July 8, 1963, Pub. L. 88–60, § 6, 77 Stat. 78).

Section consolidates part of the second sentence and all of the third sentence of subsec. (c) of section 11–772 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., and part of subsec. (f) of section 11–772, with section 11–767 of the Code which extended the right of appeal to parties aggrieved by orders or judgments of the Domestic Relations Branch of the Municipal Court (now, the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions). See revision note under section 11–741 herein. For remainder of section 11–772, see other sections in this title, and tables.

Section 11–771a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., enacted by the act of Oct. 23, 1962, is also cited as one of the sources of this section, as section 11–771a changed the name of the Municipal Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia to the District of Columbia Court of Appeals.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 17–306. Determination of appeals.

The District of Columbia Court of Appeals may affirm, modify, vacate, set aside or reverse any order or judgment of a court or any branch thereof, or any order or decision of an administration agency, lawfully brought before it for review, and may remand the cause and direct the entry of such appropriate order, judgment, or decision, or require such further proceedings to be had, as is just in the circumstances. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 615, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §§ 11–767, 11–771a, 11–772 (Apr. 1, 1942, ch. 207, § 7, 56 Stat. 195; Aug. 31, 1954, ch. 1173, § 1, 68 Stat. 1048; Apr. 11, 1956, ch. 204, § 111, 70 Stat. 113; Oct. 23, 1962, Pub. L. 87–873, § 6, 76 Stat. 1171; July 8, 1963, Pub. L. 88–60, § 6, 77 Stat. 78).

Section consolidates part of the second sentence of subsec. (c) of section 11–772 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., and part of the fifth sentence of subsec. (f) of section 11–772, with section 11–767, of the Code which extended the right of appeal to parties aggrieved by orders or judgments of the Domestic Relations Branch of the Municipal Court (now, the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions). See, revision note under section 11–741 herein.

Section 11–771a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., enacted by the act of Oct. 23, 1962, is also cited as one of the sources of this section, as section 11–771a changed the name of the Municipal Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia to the District of Columbia Court of Appeals.

In connection with the review of orders or judgments of lower courts, subsec. (c) of section 11–772 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., provided that the Municipal Court of Appeals (now, the District of Columbia Court of Appeals) "shall affirm, reverse, or modify the order or judgment in accordance with law". In connection with the review of orders or decisions of certain administrative agencies (see section 11–742 herein), subsec. (f) of section 11–772 provided that the Court "shall have the power to affirm, modify, or set aside the decision or order complained of, in whole or in part, and, if need be, to remand the case for further proceedings, as justice may require". The provisions, as consolidated in this section, are patterned upon section 2106 of Title 28, United States Code, and are more comprehensive of the Court's powers in the determination of appeals.

Subsec. (d) of section 11–772 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., provided that section 11–772 "shall not apply to any judgments rendered prior to the effective date of this subchapter [subchapter III of chapter 7 of Title 11 of the Code, in which section 11–772 was set out]". This provision is omitted as obsolete. For remainder of section 11–772, see other sections in this title, and tables.

§ 17–307. Time for taking or applying for allowance of appeals.

(a) Except as provided by subsection (b) of this section, the time during which an appeal may be taken pursuant to section 11–741 or 11–742 may be fixed by rules of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals.

(b) Applications for the allowance of appeals from judgments of the Small Claims and Conciliation Branch of the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions, and from judgments in the criminal division of that court where the penalty imposed is less than $50, specified by section 11–741(c), shall, in each case, be filed in the District of Columbia Court of Appeals within three days from the date of judgment. (Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 615, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §§ 11–751a, 11–767, 11–771a, 11–772 (Apr. 1, 1942, ch. 207, § 7, 56 Stat. 195; Aug. 31, 1954, ch. 1173, § 1, 68 Stat. 1048; Apr. 11, 1956, ch. 204, § 111, 70 Stat. 113; Oct. 23, 1962, Pub. L. 87–873, §§ 1, 6, 76 Stat. 1171, 1172; July 8, 1963, Pub. L. 88–60, §§ 1, 6, 77 Stat, 78).

Section consolidates with changes in phraseology, part of the fifth sentence of subsec. (a) of section 11–772 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., and part of the third sentence of subsec. (f) of section 11–722, with section 11–767 of the Code which extended the right of appeal to parties aggrieved by orders or judgments of the Domestic Relations Branch of the Municipal Court (now, the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions). See revision note under section 11–741 herein.

Sections 11–751a and 11–771a of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., both enacted by the act of Oct. 23, 1962, are also cited as sources of this section, as (1) section 11–751a changed the name of the Municipal Court for the District of Columbia to the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions, and (2) section 11–771a changed the name of the Municipal Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia to the District of Columbia Court of Appeals.

The fifth sentence of subsec. (a) of section 11–772 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., which related to applications for the allowance of appeals from judgments of the Small Claims and Conciliation Branch of the Municipal Court (now, the Court of General Sessions), and from judgments of the Criminal Branch of that court where the penalty imposed is less than $50, is carried into subsec. (b) of this section.

Section 11–772 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., contained no specific provision prescribing the time during which appeals from other judgments or orders of the Municipal Court (now, the Court of General Sessions) may be taken, or empowering the Municipal Court of Appeals (now, the District of Columbia Court of Appeals) to fix the time by rule. However, the power of the latter court to fix the time by rule was implied in subsec. (b) of section 11–772, which is carried into section 17–302 herein. Therefore, this power is specifically provided for in subsec. (a) of this section, along with the power of the court to fix the time, by rule, during which appeals may be taken from orders or decisions of certain administrative agencies (section 11–742 herein). The latter power was specifically provided for in the third sentence of subsec. (f) of section 11–772.

In subsec. (b), "criminal division" is substituted for "Criminal Branch". See section 11–901 herein and revision note thereunder.

For remainder of section 11–772 of D.C. Code, 1961 ed., see other sections in this title, and tables.

PROBATE LAW AND PROCEDURE

TITLE 18—DECEDENTS' ESTATES AND THEIR DISTRIBUTION.
TITLE 19—WILLS.
TITLE 20—ADMINISTRATORS, EXECUTORS, AND COLLECTORS.
TITLE 21—GUARDIAN AND WARD, AND INSANE PERSONS.

TITLE 18.—DECEDENTS' ESTATES AND THEIR DISTRIBUTION

Chapter 1.—LAW OF DESCENTS

§ 18–101. Course of descents generally.

On the death of any person seized of or entitled to an interest in an estate in lands, tenements, or hereditaments in the District of Columbia, and intestate thereof, the same shall descend in fee simple to such person's surviving spouse, if any, and kindred, who according to the laws of the District of Columbia now or hereafter in force relating to the distribution of the personal property of intestates, would be entitled to the surplus personal property of such intestate, if he or she had died a resident of the District of Columbia and possessed of such surplus personalty; and such surviving spouse and kindred shall take as tenants in common in the same proportions as are or shall be fixed by such laws relating to personal property. Subject to the right of dower, such real property shall be liable, in the event of insufficiency of the personal property, for the payment of the intestate's funeral expenses, debts, costs of administration, and estate, inheritance, and succession taxes in the same manner and to the same extent as the personal property of such intestate. Should said lands, tenements, or hereditaments be sold under a decree of a court having jurisdiction over the same, then it shall be unnecessary to secure the consent of said widow or surviving husband to said sale, unless the widow elects to take her dower, if any, in all real estate whereof the husband, prior to November 29, 1957, was seized at any time during the marriage or the surviving spouse elects to take the right of dower provided by section 18–201a as amended. (Aug. 31, 1957, 71 Stat. 560, Pub. L. 85–244, § 1; Sept. 14, 1961, 75 Stat. 515, Pub. L. 87–246, § 2).

AMENDMENT

1961—Act Sept. 14, 1961, amended section generally. For provisions of section prior to this amendment, see section as set out in main volume of the Code.

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1961 AMENDMENT

Section 8 of act Sept. 14, 1961, provided that: "The foregoing provisions of this Act [amending sections 18–101, 18–201a, 18–204, 18–211 and 30–201] shall become effective six months after the date of enactment of this Act."

POPULAR NAME

Section 1 of act Sept. 14, 1961, provided: "That this Act (amending sections 18–101, 18–201a, 18–211, 18–204 and 30–201) may be cited as the "Marital Property Rights Amendments of 1961."

REPEAL OF INCONSISTENT PROVISIONS

Section 7 of act Sept. 14, 1961, provided that: "Any provision of law inconsistent with the provisions and amendments of this Act [amending sections 18–101, 18–201a, 18–204, 18–211, and 30–201] is hereby repealed."

Chapter 2.—DOWER RIGHTS

Sec.
18–201a. Dower rights of husband and wife—Joint tenancies—All laws relating to the right of dower to be construed as applicable to both husband and wife.
18–204. Absent or incompetent spouse.
18–211. Renunciation of devises and bequests to spouse—Election of dower—Time limitations—Renunciations or elections by guardian or fiduciaries—Renunciation deemed to have been made when nothing passes under bequest or devise—Maximum rights upon renunciation—Antenuptial or postnuptial agreements.

§ 18–201a. Dower rights of husband and wife—Joint tenancies—All laws relating to the right of dower to be construed as applicable to both husband and wife.

Every husband and wife shall acquire by virtue of the marriage a right of dower which shall be an inchoate estate for life in one-third of the real property owned by the other spouse at any time during the marriage, whether by legal or equitable title, and whether held by either spouse at the time of his or her death or not, and such estate, which shall have the same incidents as the common law estate of dower in force and effect in the District of Columbia immediately prior to November 29, 1957, shall be in lieu of any inchoate rights acquired by or which may have attached to the real estate of any husband or wife by virtue of the provisions of subsection (b) of this section, as such subsection was in effect immediately prior to the effective date of this amendment, and shall not operate to the prejudice of any claim for the purchase money of such lands. No such right of dower shall attach to any lands held by any two or more persons as joint tenants while such tenancy exists; and all provisions of the Act entitled "An Act to establish a code of law for the District of Columbia", approved March 3, 1901, as amended, and all other laws in force in the District of Columbia relating to the right of dower and its incidents shall, on and after the effective date of this amendment, be construed to be applicable to both husband and wife. (Aug. 31, 1957, 71 Stat. 560, Pub. L. 85–244, § 3; Sept. 14, 1961, 75 Stat. 515, Pub. L. 87–246, § 3.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

1. Deserting widow's rights

District of Columbia statute setting forth no exceptions to widow's right to elect to take against will except where she by adulterous conduct is barred from claiming dower rights permitted widow to attack will although she had deserted testator, had filed divorce proceedings against him, was found to be the guilty party, and divorce was granted to testator, where he died less than six months after entry of decree. In re Estate of S. D. Hanson (1962, 210 F. Supp. 377).

§ 18–204. Absent or incompetent spouse.

Where any married person is a lunatic or insane, and has been so adjudicated by a court of competent jurisdiction and such adjudication remains in force, or where any married person has been absent or unheard of for seven years, the husband or wife, as the case may be, of such lunatic or insane or absent person may grant and convey by his or her separate deed, whether the same be absolute or by way of lease or mortgage, as fully as if he or she were unmarried, any real estate which he or she may have acquired since such adjudication or since the beginning of such absence. (Sept. 14, 1961, 75 Stat. 517, Pub. L. 87–246, § 5.)

AMENDMENT

1961—Act Sept. 14, 1961, amended section to read as above set out. The amendment makes the section applicable to both husband and wife.

§ 18–210. Devise or bequest to spouse.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Renunciation after probate

Widow, who had petitioned for probate of husband's will and for letters testamentary, was not thereafter entitled to set aside former petition and resulting order for probate of will and for letters testamentary. In re Estate of W. V. James, deceased (1963, 221 F. Supp. 456).

§ 18–211. Renunciation of devises and bequests to spouse—Election of dower—Time limitations—Renunciations or elections by guardians or fiduciaries—Renunciations deemed to have been made when nothing passes under bequest or device—Maximum rights upon renunciation—Antenuptial or postnuptial agreements.

(a) Subject to the provisions of section 18–212 a widow or surviving husband shall by such devise or bequest be barred of any statutory rights or interest she or he may have in the real and personal estate of the deceased spouse or the dower rights provided by section 18–201a, as the case may be, unless within six months after the will of the deceased spouse is admitted to probate, she or he shall file in the probate court a written renunciation to the following effect:

"I, A B, widow (or surviving husband of , late of , deceased, do hereby renounce and quit all claim to any devise or bequest made to me by the last will of my husband (or wife) exhibited and proved according to law; and I elect to take in lieu thereof my legal share of the real and personal property of my said spouse (except that in lieu of my legal share of the real property, I elect to take dower in all the real property of my deceased spouse to which such right is applicable).

(b) In similar manner, where the deceased spouse has died intestate of any real estate and letters of administration have been issued with respect to the estate of such deceased spouse, the surviving spouse shall be barred of the dower rights provided by section 18–201a, unless within six months after such letters of administration have been issued with respect to the estate of the deceased spouse, she or he shall file in the probate court a written renunciation of her or his legal share of such intestate real estate to the following effect:

I, A B, widow (or surviving husband) of , deceased, in lieu of my legal share of the real property of which my deceased spouse died intestate, do hereby elect to take dower in all the real property of my deceased spouse to which such right is applicable.

(c) If, during said period of six months, a suit should be instituted to construe the will of the deceased spouse, the period of six months for the filing of such renunciation or election shall commence to run from the date when such suit shall be finally determined, by appeal or otherwise. A renunciation or election may be made in behalf of any spouse unable to act for himself or herself by reason of infancy, incompetency, or inability to manage his or her property, by the guardian or other fiduciary acting for such spouse when authorized so to do by the court having jurisdiction of the person of such spouse. The time for renunciation by any spouse may be extended before its expiration by an order of the probate court for successive periods of not exceeding six months each upon petition showing reasonable cause and on notice given to the personal representative and to such other persons in such manner as the probate court may direct.

(d) In any case where the wife or husband has made no devise or bequest to the spouse, and in any case where nothing passes by any purported devise or bequest, the surviving spouse shall be deemed to have filed a written renunciation as provided in subsection (a) of this section (subject to his or her right to elect dower in lieu of the legal share of real estate within six months from probate of the will provided in subsection (b) of this section).

(e) By renouncing all claim to any and all devises and bequests made to her or him by the will of her husband or his wife pursuant to the provisions of subsection (a) of this section, or in the event that a renunciation shall be deemed to be effected pursuant to the provisions of subsection (d) of this section, the surviving spouse shall be entitled to such share or interest in the real and personal estate of the deceased spouse (including dower if elected in lieu of the legal share in the real estate) which she or he would have taken had the deceased spouse died intestate, except that in neither event shall the surviving spouse be entitled to more than one-half of the net estate bequeathed and devised by said will, or, if dower be elected, one-half of the net personal estate bequeathed and dower in the real estate devised.

(f) Notwithstanding any other provision of law now or heretofore in effect in the District of Columbia, any valid antenuptial or postnuptial agreement which shall have been entered into by the spouses shall govern and the provisions thereof shall determine the rights of the surviving spouse in the real and personal property of the deceased spouse, and the administration thereof, but nothing contained in this subsection shall prohibit any spouse from accepting the benefits of any devise or bequest made to him or her by the deceased spouse. (Aug. 31, 1957, 71 Stat. 561, Pub. L. 85–244, § 6; Sept. 14, 1961, 75 Stat. 516, Pub. L. 87–246, § 4.)

AMENDMENT

1961—Act Sept. 14, 1961, amended the section generally. For comparison with prior provisions of this section see section in main volume of the Code.

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1961 AMENDMENT

Section 8 of act Sept. 14, 1961, provided that: "The foregoing provisions of this Act [amending sections 18–101, 18–201a, 18–204, 18–211 and 30–201] shall become effective six months after the date of enactment of this Act."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Deprivation of rights 7
Renunciation by administrator 13.50
Renunciation after probate 13.51
Taxes upon renunciation 15.50

7. Deprivation of rights

District of Columbia statute setting forth no exceptions to widow's right to elect to take against will except where she by adulterous conduct is barred from claiming dower rights permitted widow to attack will although she had deserted testator, had filed divorce proceedings against him, was found to be the guilty party, and divorce was granted to testator, where he died less than six months after entry of decree. In re Estate of S. D. Hanson (1962, 210 F. Supp. 377).

13.50. Renunciation by administrator

Right of surviving incompetent widow to renounce will of husband could not be exercised by her administrator after her death. R. H. Payne et al. v. B. A. Newton, Jr., etc. (1963, 323 F. 2d 621, 116 U.S. App. D.C. 319).

13.51. Renunciation after probate

Widow, who had petitioned for probate of husband's will and for letters testamentary, was not thereafter entitled to set aside former petition and resulting order for probate of will and for letters testamentary. In re Estate of W. V. James, deceased (1963, 221 F. Supp. 456).

Widow, who failed to file renunciation within specified statutory period, and who subsequently sought leave to withdraw prior petition for probate and for letters testamentary and declaration to effect that court order for probate of will was null and void enabling widow to renounce her interest under will, should have instead proceeded for order permitting renunciation and election as of date within statutory period, nunc pro tunc. Id.

15.50. Taxes upon renunciation

A widow who renounced will of her husband and elected to share in his estate as if he had died intestate could not claim such share in her husband's estate without diminution for Federal estate tax on theory of provisions in decedent's will. G. B. Herson v. Mollye Mills ind; and as co-executrix of the estate of D. L. Herson, et al. (1963, 221 F. Supp. 714).

Chapter 5.—CLAIMS OF CREDITORS

§ 18–512. Claims of executors and administrators to be passed by probate court.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

2. Submission to court

An executrix was precluded from asserting her claim to certain securities on theory that she was entitled thereto under a joint venture agreement with decedent, where executrix failed to submit her claim to the probate court, filed an account which omitted all reference to her purported claim, and without authority of the court retained assets bequeathed by terms of the will to decedent's sister. M. J. de Pingre v. M. Weisshappel (1963, 322 F. 2d 415, 116 U.S. App. D.C. 202).

§ 18-517. Passing of claims not conclusive.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

1. Effect of passing claim

The probate court is without jurisdiction to compel an executor to pay a claim asserted against a decedent's estate. J. F. Bird et al., Executors etc. v. C. B. Sullivan Jr. (1963, 316 F. 2d 675, 115 U.S. App. D.C. 24).

A probate court's approval, however expressed, of a claim against an estate is in legal effect an order that claim will pass when paid, but if executor or administrator contests claim, probate court's order approving it is deprived of even evidential effect. Id.

Chapter 6.—SALE OF ASSETS

§ 18-602. Order for sale.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

5. Revocation of letters

Statute providing that letters of executor or administrator may be revoked if he shall sell, pledge or dispose of any property without previous order applies only to unauthorized disposal of salable property and not to improper payment of claims. C. P. Henry v. J. A. Grimes, Jr., (1964, 334 F. 2d 550, —— U.S. App. D.C. ——).

Probate Court was not authorized to remove executor on ground that executor on his own initiative paid himself sum from assets of estate on account of his commission as executor and as fees for his services as attorney-in-fact for decedent before her death. Id.

Chapter 7.—DISTRIBUTION OF SURPLUS—BENEFICIARIES

§ 18-717. Escheatment.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

5.50. Soldiers' Home inmates

Inmate of United States Soldiers' Home in District of Columbia, retired from regular army, and a resident of District of Columbia, who died without legal heirs or next of kin, was a "soldier" within statute providing for funds for support of the Soldiers' Home, and United States rather than District of Columbia was entitled to escheat of his moneys. District of Columbia v. Wolverton (1961, 298 F. 2d 684, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 23).

Chapter 2.—DEVISES BY WILL

Sec.
19–206. "Pour over" trusts.

§ 19–206. "Pour over" trusts.

(a) Bequests or devises to trustee under, or in accordance with terms of, existing trusts.—A devise or bequest may be made in a will or codicil, otherwise valid, in form or substance to the trustee or trustees under, or in accordance with the terms of, a written inter vivos trust (including an unfunded life insurance trust, although the settlor has reserved any or all rights of ownership in the insurance contracts) which has been executed and is in existence prior to or contemporaneously with the execution of such will or codicil and is identified in such will or cocidil, without regard to the size or character of the corpus of such trust, or whether the settlor is the testator or a third person.

Such devise or bequest shall not be invalid because the trust is subject to amendment or modification or may be terminated or revoked after the will or codicil is executed (whether by the settlor or any other person or persons), nor because the trust instrument or any amendment thereto was not executed in the manner required by law for wills or codicils.

Unless the will or codicil otherwise provides—

(1) such devise or bequest shall not be invalid because the trust was amended or modified after the will or codicil was executed, and such devise or bequest shall be given effect in accordance with the terms of the trust as they appear in writing on the date of death of the testator, including any such amendment or modification;

(2) property passing under such devise or bequest shall be deemed to pass directly to the trustee or trustees of the inter vivos trust and shall become a part of the assets of such trust, and shall not be deemed held under a separate testamentary trust;

(3) an entire revocation of the trust prior to the death of the testator shall invalidate the devise or bequest even though such revocation was not effected in the manner provided by law for the revocation of wills and codicils.

(4) a termination of the trust, except by way of revocation, in accordance with the terms of said trust or by its exhaustion or by operation of law or otherwise shall not invalidate the devise or bequest.

(b) Bequests or devises to trustee under, or in accordance with terms of, testamentary trusts.—A devise or bequest may be made in a will or codicil, otherwise valid, in form or substance to the trustee or trustees under, or in accordance with the terms of, a testamentary trust established under another valid will or codicil. Such devise or bequest shall not be invalid because the testamentary trust or the will or codicil establishing such testamentary trust was not in existence when the will or codicil containing such devise or bequest was executed, if the testator of the will or codicil establishing such testamentary trust predeceases the testator of the will or codicil containing such devise or bequest, and such will or codicil establishing such testamentary trust had been or is subsequently admitted to probate.

Unless the will otherwise provides—

(1) property passing under such devise or bequest shall be deemed to pass directly to the trustee or trustees of the testamentary trust and shall become a part of the assets of such trust, and shall not be deemed held under a separate testamentary trust;

(2) a termination of the trust in accordance with the terms of said trust or by its exhaustion or by operation of law or otherwise shall not invalidate the devise or bequest.

The provisions of this section shall apply to any devise or bequest made by a testator living on the effective date of this Act or born subsequent thereto, without regard to the date of execution of the will or codicil containing such devise or bequest or of the trust instrument, or any amendment thereto: Provided, however, That the provisions of this Act shall not be construed as casting any doubt upon the validity as heretofore existing of (a) any devise or bequest made by a testator who shall have died prior to the effective date hereof, or (b) any devise or bequest which does not come within the provisions of this Act. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat., ch. 854, § 1628a, as added Dec. 5, 1963, 77 Stat. 345, Pub. L. 88-192, § 1.)

Chapter 3.—PROBATE OF WILLS

§ 19-303. Guardian ad litem for infant or non compos.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

2. Grandchildren

Guardian ad litem was not required to be appointed at time of probate of testator's will to represent testator's grandchildren, since grandchildren were not within class of testator's heirs at law and would not be entitled to or interested in testator's estate in case will had not been executed. In re Estate of W. V. James, deceased (1963, 221 F. Supp. 456).

§ 19-309. Caveat.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

4.50. Person in interest

Where there had been no promise or contract to adopt caveator which would support her equitable adoption theory and admittedly there was no statutory adoption, caveator, being a stepdaughter only, was not a "person in interest" within statute authorizing a person in interest to file a caveat to probate of will. E. Erstein v. S. D. Meshner, Executrix etc. (1964, 333 F. 2d 152, —— U.S. App. D.C. ——).

§ 19-312. Trial of issues as to wills—Trial by jury—Notice—Service to absent parties not essential for jurisdiction—Judgment.

Whenever any caveat shall be filed, issues shall be framed under the direction of the court for trial by jury: Provided, That in all cases in which all persons interested are sui juris and before the court the issues may be tried and determined by the court, without a jury, upon the written consent of all such parties. If they are to be tried by a jury, they shall be triable in said probate court by petit jurors drawn for service in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia; and at least ten days prior to the time of trial all of the heirs at law or next of kin of the decedent, or both together, as the case may require, and all persons claiming under the will in question, or any other instrument on file purporting to be a will of the decedent, shall be each served with a copy of said issues and a notification of the time and place of the trial thereof. If any one of them be an infant or of unsound mind he shall have a guardian ad litem appointed for him by the court before such trial shall proceed. If, as to any party in interest, the notification shall be returned "not to be found," the court shall assign a new day for such trial, and shall order publication, at least twice a week for a period of not less than four weeks, of the substance of the issues and of the date fixed for the trial thereof in some newspaper of general circulation in the District, and may order such further publication as the case may require. And the United States District Court for the District of Columbia may from time to time prescribe and revise rules and regulations for service personally upon such party outside of the District of Columbia of a copy of such issues and notification. Personal service on absent parties shall not be essential to the jurisdiction of the court. The proceeding for impaneling a jury for the trial of said issues shall be the same as if they were being tried in any other part of the court. In all cases in which such issues shall be tried the verdict of the jury and the judgment of the court thereupon shall, subject to proceedings in error and to such revision as the common law provides, be res judicata as to all persons; nor shall the validity of such judgment be impeached or examined collaterally. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1213, ch. 854, § 140; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 526, ch. 1329; Apr. 19, 1920, 41 Stat. 557, ch. 153; June 25, 1936, 49 Stat. 1921, ch. 804; June 25, 1948, 62 Stat. 991, ch. 646, § 32 (a), (b); May 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 107, ch. 139, § 127.)

CODIFICATION

The section is set out in this supplement to correct an erroneous reference to the court of appeals. The words "court of appeals" are omitted and the words "in any other part of the court" inserted.

Chapter 4.—REGISTER OF WILLS

§§ 19-401 to 19-404a. Repealed. Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 621, 622, 625, and 628, Pub. L. 88-241, § 21.

Sections, R.S.D.C. 929 and 930, and act Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1209, ch. 854, § 121, as amended, and act Aug. 2, 1949, 63 Stat. 491, ch. 383, §§ 3 and 5, dealt with register of wills, his appointment, oath of office, bond, powers and deposit of fees and costs collected by him. Matter is now covered by sections 11-504 to 11-506.

Sections, R.S.D.C. 933, 934, and 935, and act Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1209, ch. 854, § 120, dealt with posting of fees, penalty for failure to post fees, penalty for charging greater fees and provided that register of wills was to act as probate clerk. Matter is now covered by sections 11-504 to 11-506.

§§ 19-410 and 19-411. Omitted.

These sections embodying Maryland statutes, contained provisions preventing register of wills from practicing law and provided a penalty for charging fees. These sections are now superseded by sections 11-504 to 11-506.

TITLE 20.—ADMINISTRATORS, EXECUTORS, AND COLLECTORS

Chapter 1.—GENERAL PROVISIONS

§ 20–101. Competency—Determination by probate court.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

4. Discretion of court

Though court has power under District of Columbia statute to select administrator from outside immediately preferred class, exercise of that discretion must take into account scheme of statutory preferences, and court must have sound reason to depart thereform. In re Estate of C. H. Lucas (1964, 229 F. Supp. 452).

§ 20–107. Removal of co-executor, co-administrator, or co-collector for negligence or misconduct—complaint—Recovery of loss or damage.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

1. Grounds for removal

Where executor has made improper payment of claims but has not disposed of salable property unauthorizedly, court's only direct sanction is to order executor to correct or protect against his impropriety, and if executor fails to comply, then to remove him. C. P. Henry v. J. A. Grimes, Jr. (1964, 334 F. 2d 550, —— U.S. App. D.C. ——).

Executor's commission is not fixed by Probate Court until final settlement of his accounts, and he may not ordinarily collect any fees on account before his services terminate. Id.

Chapter 2.—ADMINISTRATORS

§ 20–201. Granting of letters of administration.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

3.50. Largest creditor

The District of Columbia statute providing that administration may be granted on application of largest creditor in absence of application for administration by one entitled to apply therefor and statute providing for service of process on nonresident motorist involved in automobile accident in District of Columbia permitted motorist who had cause of action against estate of deceased nonresident motorist for injuries sustained in collision in District to have administrator appointed for decedent, where cause of action, if established, would give motorist right to proceed against decedent's insurer, notwithstanding that decedent's widow was named as executrix in decedent's will and that she had declined or failed to come into District of Columbia and that petition for administration recited that decedent was resident of District of Columbia. G. J. O'Sullivan v. A. G. Hicks (1963, 313 F. 2d 900, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 219).

§ 20–204. Persons entitled to administer—Surviving spouse or children.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

1. Appointment of outsider

If there is next of kin, who is not barred under specific statutory disqualification, and who applies for letters, creditor or person not in any preferred classification may not be appointed administrator. In re Estate of C. H. Lucas (1964, 229 F. Supp. 452).

§ 20–209. Persons entitled to administer—Males to be preferred.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

1. Order of priority

Male paternal first cousins were preferred class over female maternal first cousins as to right to letters of administration. J. F. Gage et al. v. The Riggs National Bank of Washington, D.C., etc. (1963, 320 F. 2d 715, 115 U.S. App. D.C. 396).

Values of substance inhere in right to letters of administration and those upon whom that right has been conferred by statute should not be deprived of it, except as statute has provided. Id.

In appropriate case and for sound reasons, discretion may be exercised to select an administrator from among lesser preferred classes of next of kin. Id.

§ 20–216. Persons entitled to administer—Creditors.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Discretion of court 3
Largest creditor 3.50
Priority of next of kin 3.51

3. Discretion of court

Where all next of kin were first cousins of deceased, and all male next of kin filed declinations, but only female next of kin applied for letters of administration, her application would be granted, and application of close friend and creditor of deceased for letters of administration would be denied. In re Estate of C. H. Lucas (1964, 229 F. Supp. 452).

Fact that male next of kin of deceased field declinations and consented to appointment of creditor of deceased as administratrix did not divest female next of kin of equal degree of statutory right to appointment as administratix. Id.

3.50. Largest creditor

The District of Columbia statute providing that administration may be granted on application of largest creditor in absence of application for administration by one entitled to apply therefor and statute providing for service of process on nonresident motorist involved in automobile accident in District of Columbia permitted motorist who had cause of action against estate of deceased nonresident motorist for injuries sustained in collision in District to have administrator appointed for decedent, where cause of action, if established, would give motorist right to proceed against decedent's insurer, notwithstanding that decedent's widow was named as executrix in decedent's will and that she had declined or failed to come into District of Columbia and that petition for administration recited that decedent was resident of District of Columbia. G. J. O'Sullivan v. A. G. Hicks (1963, 313 F. 2d 900, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 219).

3.51. Priority of next of kin

If there is a next of kin who is not barred under a specific statutory disqualification and who applies for letters, a creditor or person not in any preferred classification may not be appointed. J. F. Gage et al. v. The Riggs National Bank of Washington, D.C., etc. (1963, 320 F. 2d 715, 115 U.S. App. D.C. 396).

Where neither pleadings nor oral argument brought to court's attention question that appointment of an outsider as administrator turned upon issue of whether there has been a declination by cousins, appointment of bank as administrator would be remanded for further proceedings. Id.

§ 20–306. Absent executor—Summons—Notice.

If said executor shall not have been present at the probate of the will, but shall be within the District, a summons may be issued to him, either at the instance of any person interested or ex officio by the register of wills, requiring him to appear and file his bond as required by law within five days after service of said summons; and if he be not found in said District, notice shall be given to him by publication to appear within ten days after publication of said notice, and on his failure to appear and give his bond and qualify by taking the prescribed oath, as aforesaid, administration may be granted as if no executor had been named in the will. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1233, ch. 854, § 267; June 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 268, ch. 242, § 2.)

CODIFICATION

The section is set out in this supplement to give effect to the amendments made by the act of June 24, 1949, which were inadvertently omitted in the main volume. The amendments consisted of striking out the word "twenty" and substituting "five" in lieu thereof and striking the words "within thirty days after the first publication" and substituting the words "within ten days after publication".

Chapter 6.—ACCOUNTS

§ 20–605. Disbursements and allowances.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

10. Probate Court's authority to compel payment

An attorney may have a claim against executors or estate which he can collect in an action at law in district court but statute authorizing executors to pay attorneys' fees and probate court to allow such fees in executors' accounts does not authorize probate court to order executors to pay the fees. J. F. Bird et al., Executors etc. v. C. B. Sullivan, Jr. (1963, 316 F. 2d 675, 115 U.S. App. D.C. 24).

TITLE 21.—GUARDIAN AND WARD, AND INSANE PERSONS

Chap. Sec.
6. Fiduciaries 21–601

Chapter 1.—INFANTS AND OTHER INCOMPETENTS

§ 21–101. Natural guardians.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

1. Custody of child

In action by wife for maintenance and support, exclusive custody of minor children of the parties should not have been awarded to wife where husband and wife and the children remained living together in the same household. R. L. Clements v. R. Clements (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 184 A. 2d 195).

Chapter 2.—PROPERTY OF INFANTS AND PERSONS NON COMPOS MENTIS

Sec.

21–229. Compensation of custodian or guardian—Bond—Liability of custodian serving without compensation.
21–230. Successor custodians—Eligibility—Rights, powers and duties—Manner of resignation—Removal.
21–231. Accounting by custodian or his legal representative.
21–232. Persons dealing with donor or custodian, duties of.
21–233. Construction of sections 21–225 to 21–234—Sections not exclusive method for making gifts to minors.
21–234. Separability of provisions.

§ 21–213. Contract for sale by adult in behalf of himself and infant or person non compos mentis.

If a contract has been made for the sale of lands, tenements, or hereditaments by a person or persons interested therein jointly or in common with an infant, idiot, or person non compos mentis, for and in behalf of all the persons so interested, which the court, upon a hearing and examination of all the circumstances, considers to be for the interest and advantage both of the infant, idiot, or person non compos mentis and of the other person or persons interested therein to be confirmed, the court may confirm the contract and order a deed to be executed according thereto; and all sales and deeds made in pursuance of the order shall be sufficient in law to transfer the estate and interest of the infant, idiot, or person non compos mentis in the property. (As amended Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 618, Pub. L. 88–241, § 13.)

AMENDMENT

1963—Section 13 of act Dec. 23, 1963, amended section to read as above set out.

§§ 21–214 to 21–224. Omitted.

The act entitled "An Act concerning gifts of securities to minors in the District of Columbia," Aug. 3, 1956, 70 Stat. 1028 to 1031, ch. 947, §§ 1 to 11, set out in the main volume of the Code as §§ 21–214 to 21–224, was amended generally by act Oct. 15, 1962, 76 Stat. 938, Pub. L. 87–821. The act as so amended is set out as sections 21–225 to 21–234 in this supplement. For this reason sections 21–214 to 21–224 are omitted as being superseded by the amended act.

RIGHTS OR LIABILITIES UNDER SECTIONS 214 TO 224 NOT AFFECTED

Section 2(b) of act Oct. 15, 1962, provides as follows: "The amendments made to sections 214 to 224, by the first section of this Act [§§ 225 to 234] shall not affect any right or liability under sections 214 to 224 existing on December 31, 1962."

§ 21–225. Definitions.

As used in sections 21–225 to 21–234, the following terms shall have the meaning ascribed to each:

(1) "Adult": one who has attained the age of twenty-one years.

(2) "Bank": any person or association of persons carrying on the business of banking, whether incorporated or not, in the District of Columbia.

(3) "Broker": one who is lawfully engaged in the business of effecting transactions in securities for the account of others; a bank which effects such transactions; and one who is lawfully engaged in buying and selling securities for his own account, through a broker or otherwise, as a part of a regular business.

(4) "Court": The United States District Court for the District of Columbia.

(5) "Custodial property":

(A) All securities, money, life insurance and annuity contracts under the supervision of the same custodian for the same minor as a consequence of a gift or gifts made to the minor in the manner prescribed in sections 21–225 to 21–234;

(B) The income from the custodial property; and

(C) The proceeds, immediate and remote, from the sale, exchange, conversion, investment, reinvestment, or other disposition of such securities, money, life insurance and annuity contracts, and income.

(6) "Custodian": one so designated in the manner prescribed in this Act.

(7) "Guardian of a minor": the general guardian, guardian, tutor, or curator of the minor's property, estate or person.

(8) "Issuer": one who places or authorizes the placing of his name on a security (other than as a transfer agent) to evidence that it represents a share, participation or other interest in his property or in an enterprise or to evidence his duty or undertaking to perform an obligation evidenced by the security, or who becomes responsible for or in place of any such person.

(9) "Legal representative": the executor or the administrator, general guardian, committee, conservator, tutor, or curator of a person's property or estate.

(10) "Life insurance and annuity contracts": shall include only insurance and annuity contracts on the life of a minor or a member of the minor's family as herein defined.

(11) "Member of a minor's family": any of the minor's parents, grandparents, brothers, sisters, uncles, and aunts, whether of the whole blood or the half blood, or by or through legal adoption.

(12) "Minor": one who has not attained the age of twenty-one years.

(13) "Security": any note, stock, treasury stock, bond, debenture, evidence of indebtedness, certificate of interest or participation in an oil, gas, or mining title or lease or in payments out of production under such a title or lease, collateral trust certificate, transferable share, voting trust certificate, or, in general, any interest or instrument commonly known as a security, or any certificate of interest of participation in, any temporary or interim certificate, receipt, or certificate of deposit for, or any warrant or right to subscribe to or purchase, any of the foregoing. "Security" does not include a security of which the donor is the issuer. A "security" is in "registered form" when it specifies a person entitled to it or to the right it evidences and its transfer may be registered upon books maintained for that purpose by or on behalf of the issuer.

(14) "Transfer agent": one who acts as authenticating trustee, transfer agent, registrar, or other agent for an issuer in the registration of transfers of is securities or in the issue of new securities or in the cancellation of surrender securities.

(15) "Trust company": a bank authorized to exercise trust powers. (Oct. 15, 1962, 76 Stat. 938, Pub. L. 87-821, § 1.)

EFFECTIVE DATE

Section 3 of act Oct. 15, 1962, provides as follows: "This Act shall take effect January 1, 1963."

POPULAR NAME

Section 11 of act Oct. 15, 1962, provides as follows: "This Act [sections 21-225 to 21-234] may be cited as the 'District of Columbia Uniform Gifts to Minors Act'."

PRIOR ACT

The act entitled "An Act concerning gifts of securities to minors in the District of Columbia," Aug. 3, 1956, 70 Stat. 1028 to 1031, ch. 947, §§ 1 to 11, set out in the main volume of the Code as §§ 21-214 to 21-224, was amended generally by act Oct. 15, 1962, 76 Stat. 938, Pub. L. 87-821. The act as so amended is set out as sections 21-225 to 21-234 in this supplement. For this reason sections 21-214 to 21-224 are omitted as being superseded by the amended act.

REPEAL

Section 2(a) of act Oct. 15, 1962, provides as follows: "All laws or parts of laws in conflict with any provision of this Act [sections 21-225 to 21-234], are hereby repealed."

Section 2(c) of act Oct. 15, 1962, provides as follows: "Nothing herein shall be deemed to repeal or modify the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, as amended, and the District of Columbia Income and Franchise Tax Act of 1947, as amended."

RIGHTS OR LIABILITIES UNDER SECTIONS 214 TO 224 NOT AFFECTED

Section 2(b) of act Oct. 15, 1962, provides as follows: "The amendments made to sections 214 to 224, by the first section of this Act [§§ 225 to 234] shall not affect any right or liability under sections 214 to 224 existing on December 31, 1962."

§ 21-226. Gifts of securities, money, life insurance, or annuity contracts to minors—Manner of making.

(a) An adult may, during his lifetime, make a gift of a security, money, life insurance or annuity contract to one who is a minor on the date of the gift, if the subject of the gift is a security—

(1) in registered form, by registering it in the name of the donor, another adult, or a trust company, followed, in substance, by the words: "as custodian for (name of minor) under the District of Columbia Uniform Gifts to Minors Act";

(2) not in registered form, by delivering it to an adult other than the donor or a trust company, accompanied by a statement of gift in the following form, in substance, signed by the donor and the designated custodian:

GIFT UNDER THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA UNIFORM GIFTS TO MINORS ACT

I, (name of donor), hereby deliver to (name of custodian) as custodian for (name of minor) under the District of Columbia Uniform Gifts to Minors Act, the following security(ies); (insert an appropriate description of the security or securities delivered sufficient to identify it or them).

(Signature of donor)

Dated:---

(Name of custodian) hereby acknowledges receipt of the above described security(ies) as custodian for the above minor under the above Act.

Dated:---

(3) If the subject of the gift is a life insurance or annuity contract, the ownership of the contract shall be registered by the donor of such contract in his own name or in the name of an adult member of the minor's family or in the name of any guardian of the minor, followed by the words "as custodian for (name of minor) under the District of Columbia Uniform Gifts to Minors Act", and such contract shall be delivered to the person in whose name it is thus registered as custodian. If the contract is registered in the name of the donor as custodian, such registration shall of itself constitute the delivery required by this section.

(4) If the subject of the gift is money, by paying or delivering it to a broker or a bank for credit to an account in the name of the donor, another adult, or a bank with trust powers, followed, in substance, by the words: "as custodian for (name of minor) under the District of Columbia Uniform Gifts to Minors Act".

(b) Any gift made in the manner prescribed in subsection (a) may be made to only one minor.

(c) A donor who makes a gift to a minor as prescribed in subsection (a) shall promptly do all things within his power to put the subject of the gift in the possession and control of the custodian, but neither the donor's failure to comply with this subsection, nor his designation of an ineligible person as custodian, nor renunciation by the person designated as custodian shall affect the consummation of the gift. (Oct. 15, 1962, 76 Stat. 939, Pub. L. 87–821, § 2.)

Effective Date

Section 3 of act Oct. 15, 1962, provides as follows: "This Act shall take effect January 1, 1963."

§ 21–227. Gift irrevocable—Rights and duties of guardian or custodian.

(a) A gift made as prescribed in sections 21–225 to 21–234 shall be irrevocable and convey to the minor indefeasibly vested legal title to the security, money, life insurance or annuity contract given, but no guardian of the minor shall have any right, power, duty, or authority with respect to the custodial property except as provided in sections 21–225 to 21–234.

(b) By making a gift in the manner prescribed in sections 21–225 to 21–234, the donor incorporates in his gift all the provisions thereof and grants to the custodian, and to any issuer, transfer agent, bank, broker, insurance company, or third person dealing with a custodian, the respective powers, rights, and immunities provided in sections 21–225 to 21–234. (Oct. 15, 1962, 76 Stat. 940, Pub. L. 87–821, § 3.)

Effective Date

Section 3 of act Oct. 15, 1962, provides as follows: "This Act shall take effect January 1, 1963."

§ 21–228. Custodian to be one person—Rights, powers, and duties of custodian.

(a) Only one person may be the custodian. He shall collect, hold, manage, invest, and reinvest the custodial property.

(b) The custodian shall pay over to the minor for expenditure by him, or expend for the minor's benefit, so much of or all the custodial property as the custodian deems advisable for the support, maintenance, education, and benefit of the minor in the manner, at the time or times, and to the extent that the custodian in his discretion deems suitable and proper, with or without court order, with or without regard to the duty of himself or of any other person to support the minor or his ability to do so, and with or without regard to any other income or property of the minor which may be applicable or available for any such purpose.

(c) The court, on the petition of a parent or guardian of the minor or of the minor, if he has attained the age of fourteen years, may order the custodian to pay over to the minor for expenditure by him or to expend so much of or all the custodial property as is necessary for the minor's support, maintenance, or education.

(d) To the extent that the custodial property is not so expended, the custodian shall deliver or pay it over to the minor on his attaining the age of twenty-one years or, if the minor dies before attaining that age, he shall thereupon deliver or pay it over to the estate of the minor.

(e) The custodian, notwithstanding statutes restricting investments by fiduciaries, shall invest and reinvest the custodial property as would a prudent person of discretion and intelligence who is seeking a reasonable income and the preservation of capital, except that he may, in his discretion and without liability to the minor or his estate, retain a security given to the minor in the manner prescribed in Sections 21–225 to 21–234.

(f) The custodian may sell, exchange, convert, or otherwise dispose of custodial property in the manner, at the time or times, for the price or prices, and upon the terms he deems advisable. He may vote in person or by general or limited proxy a security which is custodial property. He may consent, directly or through a committee or other agent, to the reorganization, consolidation, merger, dissolution, or liquidation of an issuer, a security which is custodial property, and to the sale, lease, pledge, or mortgage of any property by or to such an issuer, and to any other action by such an issuer. He may execute and deliver any and all instruments in writing which he deems advisable to carry out any of his powers as custodian.

(g) The custodian shall register each security which is custodial property and in registered form in the name of the custodian, followed, in substance, by the words: "as custodian for (name of minor) under the District of Columbia Uniform Gifts to Minors Act". He shall hold all money which is custodial property in an account with a broker or in a bank in the name of the custodian, followed, in substance, by the same words. He shall keep all other custodial property separate and distinct from his own property in a manner to identify it clearly as custodial property.

(h) The custodian shall keep records of all transactions with respect to the custodial property, and make them available for inspection at reasonable intervals by a parent or legal representative of the minor or by the minor, if he has attained the age of fourteen years.

(i) A custodian shall have and hold as powers in trust, with respect to the custodial property, in addition to the rights and powers provided in Sections 21–225 to 21–234, all the rights and powers which a guardian has with respect to property not held as custodial property.

(j) If the subject of the gift is a life insurance or annuity contract, the custodian shall have all of the incidents of ownership in the contract which he may hold as custodian to the same extent as if he were the owner thereof personnally. The designated beneficiary of any such contract held by a custodian shall be the minor or, in the event of his death, the minor's estate. (Oct. 15, 1962, 76 Stat. 940, Pub. L. 87–821, § 4.)

Effective Date

Section 3 of act Oct. 15, 1962, provides as follows: "This Act shall take effect January 1, 1963."

§ 21–229. Compensation of custodian or guardian—Bond—Liability of custodian serving without compensation.

(a) A custodian shall be entitled to reasonable compensation for his services and to reimbursement from the custodial property for his reasonable expenses incurred in the performance of his duties: Provided, That a custodian may act without compensation for his services.

(b) Compensation for the guardian or custodian shall be according to:

(1) Any direction of the donor when the gift is made, provided that it is not in excess of any statutory limitation of the District of Columbia for guardians or custodians;

(2) Any statute of the District of Columbia applicable to custodians or guardians;

(3) Any order of the court.

(c) Except as otherwise provided in sections 21–225 to 21–234, a custodian shall not be required to give a bond for the performance of his duties.

(d) A custodian not compensated for his services shall not be liable for losses to the custodial property unless they result from his bad faith, intentional wrongdoing, or gross negligence or from his failure to maintain the standard of prudence in investing the custodial property provided in Sections 21–225 to 21–234. (Oct. 15, 1962, 76 Stat. 941, Pub. L. 87–821, § 5.)

Effective Date

Section 3 of act Oct. 15, 1962, provides as follows: "This Act shall take effect January 1, 1963."

§ 21–230. Successor custodians — Eligibility — Rights, powers, and duties—Manner or resignation—Removal.

(a) Only an adult, a guardian of the minor, or a trust company shall be eligible to become successor custodian. A successor custodian shall have all the rights, powers, duties, and immunities of a custodian designated in the manner prescribed by Sections 21–225 to 21–234.

(b) A custodian, other than the donor, may resign and designate his successor by—

(1) executing an instrument of resignation designating the successor custodian; and

(2) causing each security which is custodial property and in registered form and each life insurance or annuity contract to be registered in the name of the successor custodian followed, in substance, by the words: "as custodian for (name of minor) under the District of Columbia Uniform Gifts to Minors Act"; and

(3) delivering to the successor custodian the instrument of resignation, each security registered in the name of the successor custodian, each life insurance or annuity contract registered in the name of the successor custodian, and all other custodial property, together with any additional instruments required for the transfer thereof.

(c) A custodian, whether or not a donor, may petition the court for permission to resign and for the designation of a successor custodian.

(d) If the person designated as custodian is not eligible, renounces or dies before the minor attains the age of twenty-one years, the guardian of the minor shall be successor custodian. If the minor has no guardian, a donor, his legal representative, the legal representative of the custodian, an adult member of the minor's family, or the minor, if he has attained the age of fourteen years, may petition the court for the designation of a successor custodian.

(e) A donor, the legal representative of a donor, an adult member of the minor's family, a guardian of the minor or the minor, if he has attained the age of fourteen years, may petition the court that, for cause shown in the petition, the custodian be removed and a successor custodian be designated or, in the alternative, that the custodian be required to give bond for the performance of his duties.

(f) Upon the filing of a petition as provided in this section, the court shall grant an order, directed to the persons and returnable on such notice as the court may require, to show cause why the relief prayed for in the petition should not be granted and, in due course, grant such relief as the court finds to be in the best interests of the minor. (Oct. 15, 1962, 76 Stat. 942, Pub. L. 87–821, § 6.)

Effective Date

Section 3 of the act Oct. 15, 1962, provides as follows: "This Act shall take effect January 1, 1963."

§ 21–231. Accounting by custodian or his legal representative.

(a) The minor, if he has attained the age of fourteen years, or the legal representative of the minor, an adult member of the minor's family, or a donor or his legal representative may petition the court for an accounting by the custodian or his legal representative.

(b) The court, in a proceeding under Sections 21–225 to 21–234 or otherwise, may require or permit the custodian or his legal representative to account and, if the custodian is removed, shall so require and order delivery of all custodial property to the successor custodian and the execution of all instruments required for the transfer thereof. (Oct. 15, 1962, 76 Stat. 942, Pub. L. 87–821, § 7.)

Effective Date

Section 3 of act Oct. 15, 1962, provides as follows: "This Act shall take effect January 1, 1963."

§ 21–232. Persons dealing with donor or custodian, duties of.

No issuer, transfer agent, bank, broker, insurance company, or other person acting on the instructions of or otherwise dealing with any person purporting to act as a donor or in the capacity of a custodian shall be responsible for determining whether the person designated by the purported donor or purporting to act as a custodian has been duly designated or whether any purchase, sale, or transfer to or by or any other act of any person purporting to act in the capacity of custodian is in accordance with or authorized by Sections 21–225 to 21–234, and shall not be obliged to inquire into the validity or propriety under the provisions of Sections 21–225 to 21–234 of any instrument or instructions executed or given by a person purporting to act as a donor or in the capacity of a custodian, and shall not be bound to see to the application by any person purporting to act in the capacity of a custodian of any money or other property paid or delivered to him. (Oct. 15, 1962, 76 Stat. 942, Pub. L. 87–821, § 8.)

Effective Date

Section 3 of act Oct. 15, 1962, provides as follows: "This Act shall take effect January 1, 1963."

§ 21–233. Construction of sections 21–225 to 21–234—Sections not exclusive method for making gifts to minors.

(a) The provisions of Sections 21–225 to 21–234 shall be construed to effectuate the general purpose thereof to make uniform the law of those States which enact such provisions.

(b) Sections 21–225 to 21–234 shall not be construed as providing an exclusive method for making gifts to minors. (Oct. 15, 1962, 76 Stat. 942, Pub. L. 87–821, § 9.)

EFFECTIVE DATE

Section 3 of act Oct. 15, 1962, provides as follows: "This Act shall take effect January 1, 1963."

§ 21–234. Separability of provisions.

If any provision of Sections 21–225 to 21–234 or the application thereof is held invalid, the other provisions or applications of such provisions shall not be affected thereby. (Oct. 15, 1962, 76 Stat. 942, Pub. L. 87–821, § 10.)

EFFECTIVE DATE

Section 3 of act Oct. 15, 1962, provides as follows: "This Act shall take effect January 1, 1963."

Section 115b of act Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, as added June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 524, ch. 1329, as amended, provided authority for the court of equity to have jurisdiction over estates of lunatics, accounting by committees, compensation, and release of dower rights. See new sections 21–351 to 21–366.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

14. Statute of limitations

Statute of limitations did not begin to run against repayment of loans made to incompetent's estate by estate's committee until committee's death, when account of estate remained open and unsettled throughout committee's tenure up to and including time of his death. W. H. Clarke, executor etc. v. V. K. Hickman, Jr., Committee etc. (1962, 307 F. 2d 660, 113 U.S. App. D.C. 323).

Section, act Mar. 3, 1927, 44 Stat. 1383, ch. 349, provided that a person may not be appointed as committee or trustee for more than five wards. See new sections 21–351 to 21–366.

Sections 115c, 115d and 115e of act Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, as added June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 524, ch. 1329, dealt with power of equity court over lunatic's estates, sale of real estate, conversion of proceeds of sale; sale of estate for maintenance or to pay judgment; and ratification of sale by the court. See sections 21–351 to 21–366.

§ 21–307. Jury in lunacy proceedings instituted by Commissioners—Appointment of committee or trustee—Costs and expense of maintenance—Payment.

The jury to be used in case the commissioners of the District of Columbia are the petitioners shall be impaneled by the United States marshal for said District, upon order of the court, from the jurors in attendance upon the criminal courts of said District, who shall perform such services in addition to and as part of their duties in said criminal courts: Provided, That during such time as jurors are not in attendance upon said criminal courts the court may direct the said marshal to impanel the jurors in attendance upon the municipal court of said District, who shall perform such duties in addition to and as part of their duties in said The District of Columbia Court of General Sessions; or the said court may direct a special jury to be summoned for such inquisitions. (Feb. 23, 1905, 33 Stat. 740, ch. 738, § 1.)

PARTIAL REPEAL

Section 19(f) of act Sept. 15, 1964, Pub. L. 88–597, repealed the last sentence of this section which reads as follows: "In case any such person adjudged to be of unsound mind has property, real or personal, the equity court of said District shall have full power in the same cause to appoint a committee or trustee of the person and estate of such person, according to the provisions of section 21–301, and such committee or trustee shall reimburse, out of the funds of the lunatic, the District of Columbia for all court costs expended or incurred by it and for all moneys by it expended or costs incurred in caring for and treating such insane person up to the time of such appointment." The District of Columbia Court of General Sessions was substituted in the remainder of text for "Municipal Court." See section 11–101 and revision note.

Section, act of June 8, 1938, 52 Stat. 625, ch. 326, § 2, as amended dealt with establishment, composition, etc., of commission on mental health. See new section 21–351.

Section 19(b) of the repealing act of Sept. 15, 1964, preserved certain rights and liabilities, however, under sections 21–308, 21–310 to 318, and 21–320 to 21–325 in the following language: "(b) The repeal of the Act of June 8, 1938, and of the Act of August 9, 1939, shall not be construed to affect (1) any action or proceeding brought or existing on the date immediately preceding the date of the enactment of this Act, or (2) any liability incurred by any person for the payment of the costs of maintenance and treatment of an insane or incompetent person hospitalized in the District of Columbia prior to the date of the enactment of this Act [Sept. 15, 1964], and any such action or proceeding shall be heard and determined and such liability continued in accordance with the provisions of such Acts in the same manner and to the same extent as if they had not been repealed."

Sections 1 to 9, act Aug. 9, 1939, 53 Stat. 1293, ch. 620, as amended, dealt with applications for writs de lunatico inquirendo; issuance of attachments for apprehension of persons believed to be incompetent; service of reports of commission, jury trial; composition of jury; procedure if no jury trial is demanded; commitment after trial; recommendations of commission; transfer of nonresident insane, confinement of residents, custody of harmless insane; and liability of relatives for costs of maintenance and treatment. See new provisions in sections 21–351 to 21–366.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Commitment procedure 2
Grounds for commitment 4.50

2. Commitment procedure

Supreme Court granted certiorari, where important questions were raised as to procedure for confining criminally insane in District of Columbia and as to possible constitutional infirmities in statute under which commitment was made as applied to circumstances in case. F. C. Lynch v. W. Overholser, Sup't etc. (1962, 369 U.S. 705, 82 S.Ct. 1063, rev'g 288 F. 2d 388).

4.50. Grounds for commitment

Only those who need treatment and may be dangerous may be confined to hospital for mentally ill. F. C. Lynch v. W. Overholser, Sup't etc. (1962, 369 U.S. 705, 82 S. Ct. 1063, rev'g 288 F. 2d 388).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Burden of proof 1.50
Grounds for commitment 4
Judicial determination required 7.50

1.50. Burden of proof

Burden of proof is on party seeking civil commitment for insanity and only if trier of fact is satisfied that alleged insane person is insane may he be committed. F. C. Lynch v. W. Overholser, Sup't, etc. (1962, 369 U.S. 705, 82 S. Ct. 1063, rev'g 288 F. 2d 388).

4. Grounds for commitment

Only those who need treatment and may be dangerous may be confined to hospital for mentally ill. F. C. Lynch v. W. Overholser, Sup't, etc. (1962, 369 U.S. 705, 82 S. Ct. 1063, rev'g 288 F. 2d 388).

7.50 Judicial determination required

If accused denies that he is mentally ill, he is entitled to judicial determination of his mental state despite hospital board's certification that he is of unsound mind. F. C. Lynch v. W. Overholser, Sup't, etc. (1962, 369 U.S. 705, 82 S. Ct. 1063, rev'g 288 F. 2d 388).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Burden of proof .50
District not a voluntary creditor .51
Grounds for commitment 1.50
Habeas corpus 2
Judicial determination required 3

.50. Burden of proof

Burden of proof is on party seeking civil commitment for insanity and only if trier of fact is satisfied that alleged insane person is insane may he be committed. F. C. Lynch v. W. Overholser, Sup't, etc. (1962, 369 U.S. 705, 82 S. Ct. 1063, rev'g 288 F. 388).

.51. District not a voluntary creditor

District of Columbia was entitled to reimbursement for expenses of treatment of incompetent veteran from committee of the veteran from date of her appointment until the veteran was transferred to the rolls of the Veterans Administration which now bears the costs involved, since the District was not a voluntary "creditor" within the statute exempting from claims of "creditors" payments of benefits due or to become due under any law administered by the Veterans Administration. T. Savoid, Committee etc. v. District of Columbia (1961, 288 F. 2d 851, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 39).

1.50. Grounds for commitment

Only those who need treatment and may be dangerous may be confined to hospital for mentally ill. F. C. Lynch v. W. Overholser, Sup't, etc. (1962, 369 U.S. 705, 82 S. Ct. 1063, rev'g 288 F. 2d 388).

2. Habeas corpus

Findings, on habeas corpus application for release from mental institution to which petitioner had been confined upon his acquittal for insanity, that petitioner was free from mental disease and mental defect and could not be dangerous by reason of any mental disease or defect did not meet standards required by statute in not containing finding of freedom from such abnormal mental condition as would make individual dangerous to himself or community in reasonably foreseeable future, irrespective of fact that his mental health might have improved. W. Overholser v. H. T. O'Bierne (1962, 302 F. 2d 852, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 267).

That one confined to mental institution because of his acquittal of criminal charges for insanity would no longer be committable under civil procedure could constitute no ground for his release where there was no showing that he had recovered to point where he was free from abnormal mental condition or that his release would not expose himself or public to danger in reasonably foreseeable future. Id.

Evidence adduced by petitioner seeking release on habeas corpus from mental institution to which he had been confined pursuant to his acquittal of criminal charges for insanity was insufficient to establish that he had made necessary recovery to point where he would be free from abnormal mental condition or that his release would not expose him or public to danger in reasonably foreseeable future. Id.

3. Judicial determination required

If accused denies that he is mentally ill, he is entitled to judicial determination of his mental state despite hospital board's certification that he is of unsound mind. F. C. Lynch v. W. Overholser, Sup't, etc. (1962, 369 U.S. 705, 82 S. Ct. 1063, rev'g 288 F. 2d 388).

§ 21–316 to 21–317. Repealed. Sept. 15, 1964, 78 Stat. 953, Pub. L. 88–597, § 19(a).

See note to section 21–310.

See note to section 21–310.

NOTES TO DECISICNS

Construction 1.50
District not a voluntary creditor 2.50
Evidence 2.51
Liability for expenses of incompetent 3

1.50. Construction

Statute governing liability of father for cost of maintenance and treatment of insane child is not violative of due process. C. N. Beach v. Government of the District of Columbia (1963, 320 F. 2d 790, 116 U.S. App. D.C. 68).

District of Columbia statute governing liability of father for cost of maintenance and treatment of insane child creates liability which is not limited to father living in District. Id.

2.50. District not a voluntary creditor

District of Columbia was entitled to reimbursement for expenses of treatment of incompetent veteran from committee of the veteran from date of her appointment until the veteran was transferred to the rolls of the Veterans Administration which now bears the costs involved, since the District was not a voluntary "creditor" within the statute exempting from claims of "creditors" payments of benefits due or to become due under any law administered by the Veterans Administration. T. Savoid, Committee etc. v. District of Columbia (1961, 288 F. 2d 851, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 39).

2.51. Evidence

Evidence supported finding that father of mental incompetent was financially able to pay $75 per month toward cost of maintenance and treatment of incompetent in public hospital. C. N. Beach v. Government of the District of Columbia (1963, 320 F. 2d 790, 116 U.S. App. D.C. 68).

3. Liability for expenses of incompetent

Father's liability for portion of cost of maintenance of mental incompetent in public hospital commenced as of date on which authorities demanded contribution from him. C. N. Beach v. Government of the District of Columbia (1963, 320 F. 2d 790, 116 U.S. App. D.C. 68).

Sections 10 to 15 of act Aug. 9, 1939, 53 Stat. 1298, ch. 620, dealt with hearings to restore status of paroled insane persons, trial and decision; witness fees; undertakings that may be required of petitioners; forms required on applications for commitment; penalties for false petition or affidavit and preservation of existing remedies. See new provisions under sections 21-351 to 21-366.

See also note to section 21-308.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Discretionary relief 1.50
Recommittal without hearing 3

1.50. Discretionary relief

Patient who, after adjudication that she was of unsound mind, eloped from District of Columbia mental hospital and subsequently recovered mental health, had no right, in seeking restoration to status of person of sound mind, to statutory hearing before Mental Health Commission, or, since she was free, to habeas corpus, but was entitled to discretionary relief within court's inherent power. In re Harriet DuBois (1962, 207 F. Supp. 909).

3. Recommittal without hearing

Where petitioner had been committed to public mental hospital in District of Columbia in 1958 and after petitioner had left without permission an entry was made in hospital records showing that petitioner was discharged as "improved," petitioner could not four year later be recommitted under the prior order without a further hearing on ground that petitioner had not been legally restored. W. G. Gillis v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1963, 324 F. 2d 419, 116 U.S. App. D.C. 387).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

1. Probable cause

Question of whether undisputed facts constitute probable cause for believing person named in District of Columbia lunacy proceeding to be insane or of unsound mind is one of law to be decided by court. G. L. King v. L. H. Hildebrandt (1964, 331 F. 2d 476, U.S. App. 2d Ct.).

§ 21-326. Repealed. Sept. 15, 1964, 78 Stat. 953, Pub. L. 88-597, § 19(c).

Sections 1 to 6 of act Apr. 27, 1904, 33 Stat. 316, ch. 1618, related to apprehension and detention by police, without warrant, of insane persons found in public places; arrest at other than public places without warrant; temporary detention of alleged insane persons; temporary commitment of persons to other hospitals; detention in police station; discharge of persons certified not insane; certificates by physicians as to sanity or insanity and penalty for making false affidavit or certificate. See sections 21-351 to 21-366.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Burden of proof 1.50
Judicial determination required 4.50

1.50. Burden of proof

Burden of proof is on party seeking civil commitment for insanity and only if trier of fact is satisfied that alleged insane person is insane may he be committed. F. C. Lynch v. Overholser, Sup't, etc. (1962, 369 U.S. 705, 82 S. Ct. 1063, rev'g 288 F. 2d 388).

4.50. Judicial determination required

If accused denies that he is mentally ill, he is entitled to judicial determination of his mental state despite hospital board's certification that he is of unsound mind. F. C. Lynch v. W. Overholser, Sup't, etc. (1962, 369 U.S. 705, 82 S. Ct. 1063, rev'g 288 F. 2d 388).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Privileged affidavit 3
Privileged statements 3.50
Sufficiency of evidence 4

3. Privileged affidavit

Defendant had probable cause to sign affidavits submitted to District of Columbia police as basis for arrest of plaintiff as person of unsound mind, and consequently affidavit was privileged under District of Columbia law, where plaintiff had disclosed to defendant her fears that people were trying to kill her, that unknown persons had damaged her personal possessions and had tried to poison her food, a psychiatrist's report that plaintiff was suffering from paranoid condition was read at hearing held by committee, of which defendant was a member, considering plaintiff's fitness for continued federal employment. G. L. King v. L. H. Hildebrandt (1963, 216 F. Supp. 814).

3.50. Privileged statements

Government psychologist who had several interviews with plaintiff and who considered expert medical opinion before making affidavit used in arrest of plaintiff as person of unsound mind, preliminary to lunacy proceeding in District of Columbia, had probable cause to sign affidavit, statements contained in affidavit were privileged and plaintiff could not recover from psychologist for libel after being discharged. G. L. King v. L. H. Hildebrandt (1964, 331 F. 2d 476, U.S. App. 2d Ct.).

4. Sufficiency of evidence

If one adjudged insane never saw or talked with physicians who filed affidavits prior to his arrest, and spoke only momentarily after arrest to physician who testified that examination disclosed need for hospital care, adjudication of insanity must be vacated. In re R. V. Helman (1961, 288 F. 2d 159, 109 U.S. App. D.C. 375).

Section, R.S. 4857, provided that insane person charged with breach of the peace shall not be confined in a jail. See section 21-351 to 21-366.

MENTALLY ILL

§ 21–351. Definitions.

As used in sections 21–351 to 21–366—

(1) the term "mental illness" means any psychosis or other disease which substantially impairs the mental health of an individual;

(2) the term "mentally ill person" means any person who has a mental illness, but shall not include a person committed to a private or public hospital in the District of Columbia by order of the court in a criminal proceeding;

(3) The term "physician" means an individual licensed under the laws of the District of Columbia to practice medicine, or an individual who practices medicine in the employment of the Government of the United States or of the District of Columbia;

(4) the term "private hospital" means any nongovernmental hospital or institution, or part thereof, in the District of Columbia, equipped and qualified to provide inpatient care and treatment for any individual suffering from a physical or mental illness;

(5) the term "public hospital" means any hospital or institution, or part thereof, in the District of Columbia, owned and operated by the Government of the United States or of the District of Columbia, equipped and qualified to provide inpatient care and treatment for any individual suffering from a physical or mental illness;

(6) the term "administrator" means an individual in charge of a public or private hospital or his delegate; and

(7) the term "chief of service" means the physician charged with overall responsibility for the professional program of care and treatment in the particular administrative unit of the hospital to which the patient has been admitted or such other member of the medical staff as shall be designated by the chief of service.

SHORT TITLE

Section 1 of act Sept. 15, 1964, provided: "This Act may be cited as the District of Columbia Hospitalization of the Mentally Ill Act."

§ 21–352. Commission on mental health.

The United States District Court for the District of Columbia (hereinafter referred to as the "court") is authorized to appoint a Commission on Mental Health, composed of nine members. One member shall be a member of the bar of such court, who has engaged in active practice of law in the District of Columbia for a period of at least five years prior to his appointment. He shall be the Chairman of the Commission and act as the administrative head of the Commission and its staff. He shall preside at all hearings and direct all of the proceedings before the Commission. He shall devote his entire time to the work of the Commission. Eight members of the Commission shall be physicians who have been practicing medicine in the District of Columbia and who have had not less than five years' experience in the diagnosis and treatment of mental illnesses. Each member of the Commission shall hold office for four years, the appointments of physician members to be staggered. The physician members shall serve on a part-time basis and shall be rotated by assignment of the chief judge of the court, so that at any one time the Commission shall consist of the Chairman and two physician members. Physician members of the Commission may practice their profession during their tenure of office, but may not participate in the disposition of the case of any person in which they have rendered professional service or advice. The court shall also appoint an alternate lawyer member who shall have the same qualifications as the lawyer member of the Commission and who shall serve on a part-time basis and act as Chairman in the absence of the permanent Chairman. The salaries of the members of the Commission and its employees shall be fixed in accordance with the provisions of the Classification Act of 1949, as amended. The alternate Chairman shall be paid on a per diem basis at the same rate of compensation as fixed for the permanent Chairman. It shall be the duty of the Commission on Mental Health to examine alleged mentally ill persons, inquire into their affairs and the affairs of persons who may be legally liable for their support, and to make reports and recommendations to the court. Except as otherwise provided in sections 21–351 to 21–366, the Commission may conduct its examinations and hearings either at the courthouse or elsewhere at its discretion. The court may issue subpenas at the request of the Commission returnable before the Commission, for the appearance of the alleged mentally ill person, witnesses, and persons who may be liable for the support of the mentally ill person. The Commission, or any of the members thereof, shall be competent and compellable witnesses at any trial, hearing, or other proceeding conducted pursuant to sections 21–351 to 21–366 and the physician-patient privilege shall not be applicable. Sept. 15, 1964, 78 Stat. 944, Pub. L. 88–597, § 3.)

CONTINUANCE OF COMMISSION ON MENTAL HEALTH

Section 20 of act Sept. 15, 1964, provided: "The Commission on Mental Health to which reference is made in section 21–352 is the Commission established by the Act of June 8, 1938 (52 Stat. 625), as amended [Former § 21–308]. Nothing contained in any amendment made by this Act [Sections 21–351 to 21–366] shall be construed to affect or impair the existence of the Commission so established, or to alter the pay or the terms of office of the members of such Commission serving as such on September 14, 1964."

§ 21–353. Voluntary hospitalization.

(a) Any individual may apply to any public or private hospital in the District of Columbia for admission to such hospital as a voluntary patient for the purposes of observation, diagnosis, and care and treatment of a mental illness. Upon the request of any such individual eighteen years of age or over (or in the case of any individual under eighteen years of age, upon a request made by his spouse, parent, or legal guardian), the administrator of a public hospital shall, if an examination by an admitting psychiatrist at such public hospital reveals the need for such hospitalization, and the administrator of a private hospital may, admit any such individual as a voluntary patient to such hospital for observation, diagnosis and care and treatment of a mental illness in accordance with the provisions of sections 21–351 to 21–366.

(b) Any voluntary patient admitted to any hospital pursuant to this section shall, if he is eighteen years of age or over, be entitled at any time to obtain his release from such hospital by filing a written request with the chief of service. The chief of service shall, within a period of forty-eight hours after the receipt of any such request (unless such period shall expire on a Saturday, Sunday, or legal holiday, then not later than noon of the next succeeding day which is not a Saturday, Sunday, or legal holiday), release the voluntary patient making such request. In the case of any voluntary patient under the age of eighteen years, the chief of service shall release such patient, according to the provisions of this section, upon the written request of his spouse, parent, or legal guardian. The chief of service may release any voluntary patient hospitalized pursuant to this section whenever he determines that such patient has recovered or that his continued hospitalization is no longer beneficial to him or advisable. (Sept. 15, 1964, 78 Stat. 945, Pub. L. 88–597, § 4.)

(a) A friend or relative of an individual believed to be suffering from a mental illness may make application on behalf of that individual to the admitting psychiatrist of any hospital by presenting the individual, together with a referral from a practicing physician. Such individual may be accepted for examination and treatment by any private hospital and shall be accepted for examination and treatment by any public hospital if, in the judgment of the admitting psychiatrist, the need for such is indicated on the basis of the individual's mental condition and such individual signs a statement at the time of such admission stating that he does not object to hospitalization. Such statement shall contain in simple, nontechnical language the fact that the individual is to be hospitalized and a description of the right to release set out in subsection (b) of the section. The admitting psychiatrist may admit such an individual without referral from a practicing physician if the need for an immediate admission is apparent to the admitting psychiatrist upon preliminary examination.

(b) Any person hospitalized under the provisions of subsection (a) of this section shall be immediately released upon his written request unless proceedings for hospitalization under court order pursuant to section 21–356 have been initiated. (Sept. 15, 1964, 78 Stat. 946, Pub. L. 88–597, § 5.)

§ 21–355. Emergency hospitalization.

(a) Any duly accredited officer or agent of the Department of Public Health of the District of Columbia, or any officer authorized to make arrests in the District of Columbia, or the family physican of the individual in question, who has reason to believe that an individual is mentally ill and, because of such illness, is likely to injure himself or others if he is not immediately detained may, without a warrant, take such individual into custody, transport him to a public or private hospital, and make application for his admission thereto for purposes of emergency observation and diagnosis. Such application shall reveal the circumstances under which the individual was taken into custody and the reasons therefor.

(b) Subject to the provisions of subsection (c) of this section, the administrator of any private hospital, may, and the administrator of any public hospital shall, admit and detain for purposes of emergency observation and diagnosis any individual with respect to whom such application is made, if such application is accompanied by a certificate of a psychiatrist on duty at such hospital stating that he has examined the individual and is of the opinion that he has symptoms of a mental illness and, as a result thereof, is likely to injure himself or others unless he is immediately hospitalized; not later than twenty-four hours after the admission pursuant to this section of any individual to a hospital, the administrator of such hospital shall serve notice of such admission, by registered mail, to the spouse, parent, or legal guardian of such individual and to the Commission on Mental Health.

(c) No individual admitted to any hospital under subsection (b) of this section shall be detained in such hospital for a period in excess of forty-eight hours from the time of his admission (unless such period shall expire on a Saturday, Sunday, or legal holiday, then not later than noon of the next succeeding day which is not a Saturday, Sunday, or legal holiday) unless the administrator of such hospital has, within such period, filed a written petition with the court for an order authorizing the continued hospitalization of such individual for emergency observation and diagnosis for a period not to exceed seven days from the time such order is entered.

(d) The court shall, within a period of twenty-four hours after the receipt by it of such petition (unless such period shall expire on a Saturday, Sunday, or legal holiday, then not later than noon of the next succeeding day which is not a Saturday, Sunday, or legal holiday) either order the hospitalization of such individual for emergency observation and a diagnosis for a period of not to exceed seven days from the time such order is entered, or order his immediate release. In making its determination, the court shall consider the written reports of the agent, officer, or physician who made the application under subsection (b) of this section, the certificate of the examining psychiatrist which accompanied it, and any other relevant information.

(e) Any individual whose continued hospitalization is ordered under subsection (d) of this section shall be entitled upon his request to a hearing before the court entering such order. Any such hearing so requested shall be held within a period of twenty-four hours after receipt of such request (unless such period shall expire on a Saturday, Sunday, or legal holiday, then not later than noon of the next succeeding day which is not a Saturday, Sunday, or legal holiday).

(f) The chief of service of any hospital in which an individual is hospitalized under a court order entered pursuant to subsection (d) of this section shall, within forty-eight hours after such order is entered, have such individual examined by a physician. If the physician, after his examination, certifies that in his opinion the indiivdual is not mentally ill to the extent that he is likely to injure himself or others if not presently detained, the individual shall be immediately released. The chief of service shall, within forty-eight hours after such examination has been completed, send a copy of the results thereof by registered mail to the spouse, parents, attorney, legal guardian, or nearest known adult relative of the individual examined.

(g) Any physician or psychiatrist making application or conducting an examination under sections 21–351 to 21–366 shall be a competent and compellable witness at any trial hearing or other proceeding conducted pursuant to sections 21–351 to 21–366 and the physician-patient privilege shall not be applicable.

(h) Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, the administrator of any hospital in which an individual is hospitalized under this section may, if judicial proceedings for his hospitalization have been commenced under section 21–356 detain such individual therein during the course of such proceedings. (Sept. 15, 1964, 78 Stat. 946, Pub. L. 88–597, § 6.)

§ 21–356. Hospitalization under court order.

(a) Proceedings for the judicial hospitalization of any individual in the District of Columbia may be commenced by the filing of a petition with the Mental Health Commission by his spouse, parent, or legal guardian, by any physician, duly accredited officer or agent of the Department of Public Health, or by any officer authorized to make arrest in the District of Columbia. Such petition shall be accompanied (1) by a certificate of a physician stating that he has examined the individual and is of the opinion that such individual is mentally ill, and because of such illness is likely to injure himself or others if allowed to remain at liberty, or (2) by a sworn written statement by the petitioner that (A) the petitioner has good reason to believe that such individual is mentally ill and, because of such illness, is likely to injure himself or others if allowed to remain at liberty, and (B) that such individual has refused to submit to examination by a physician.

(b) Within three days after the receipt by it of any petition filed under subsection (a) of this section, the Commission shall send a copy of such petition by registered mail to the individual with respect to whom it was filed.

(c) The Commission shall promptly examine any individual alleged to be mentally ill after the filing of a petition provided by subsection (a) of this section and shall thereafter promptly hold a hearing on the issue of his mental illness. Such hearing shall be conducted in as informal a manner as may be consistent with orderly procedure and in a physical setting not likely to have a harmful effect on the mental health of the individual named in such petition. In conducting such hearing, the Commission shall hear testimony of any person whose testimony may be relevant and shall receive all relevant evidence which may be offered. Any individual with respect to whom a hearing is held under this section shall be entitled, in his discretion, to be present at such hearing, to testify, and to present and cross-examine witnesses. The Commission shall also hold a hearing in order to determine liability under the provisions of subsection (g) of this section for the expenses of hospitalization of the alleged mentally ill person, if it is determined that he is mentally ill and should be hospitalized as provided under sections 21–351 to 21–366. Such hearing may be conducted separately from the hearing on the issue of mental illness. If conducted separately, it may be conducted by the Chairman of the Commission alone.

(d) The alleged mentally ill person shall be represented by counsel in any proceeding before the Commission or the court, and if he fails or refuses to obtain counsel, the court shall appoint counsel to represent him. Any counsel so appointed shall be awarded compensation by the court for his services in an amount determined by it to be fair and reasonable. Such compensation shall be charged against the estate of the individual for whom such counsel was appointed, or against any unobligated funds of the Commission, as the court in its discretion may direct. The Commission or the court, as the case may be, shall, at request of any counsel so appointed, grant a recess in such proceeding (but not for more than five days) to give such counsel an opportunity to prepare his case.

(e) If the Commission finds, after such hearing, that the individual with respect to whom such hearing was held is not mentally ill or if mentally ill, is not mentally ill to the extent that he is likely to injure himself or others if allowed to remain at liberty, the Commission shall immediately order his release and notify the court of that fact in writing. If the Commission finds, after such hearing, that the individual with respect to whom such hearing was held is mentally ill, and because of such illness is likely to injure himself or others if allowed to remain at liberty, the Commission shall promptly report such fact, in writing, to the United States District Court for the District of Columbia. Such report shall contain the Commission's findings of fact, conclusions of law, and recommendations. Any alleged mentally ill person with respect to whom such report is made shall have the right to demand a jury trial and shall be advised of that right by the Commission orally and in writing. A copy of the report of the Commission shall be served personally on the alleged mentally ill person and his attorney.

(f) Upon the receipt by the court of any such report referred to in subsection (e), the court shall promptly set the matter for hearing and shall cause a written notice of the time and place of the final hearing to be served personally upon the individual with respect to whom such report was made and his attorney, together with notice that he has five days following the date on which he is so served within which to demand a jury trial. Any such demand may be made by such individual or by anyone in his behalf. If a jury trial is demanded within such five-day period, it shall be accorded by the court with all reasonable speed. If no timely demand is made for such trial, the court shall determine such individual's mental condition on the basis of the report of the Commission, or on such further evidence in addition to such report as the court may require. If the court or jury (as the case may be) finds that such individual is not mentally ill, the court shall dismiss the petition and order his release. If the court or jury (as the case may be) finds that such individual is mentally ill and, because of that illness, is likely to injure himself or others if allowed to remain at liberty, the court may order his hospitalization for an indeterminate period, or order any other alternative course of treatment which the court believes will be in the best interests of such individual or of the public. The Commission, or any member thereof, shall be competent and compellable witnesses at any hearing or jury trial held pursuant to sections 21–351 to 21–366. The jury to be used in any case where a jury trial is demanded under this Act shall be impaneled, upon order of the court, from the jurors in attendance upon other branches of the court, who shall perform such services in addition to and as part of their duties in such court.

(g) The father, mother, husband, wife, and adult children of a mentally ill person, if of sufficient ability, and the estate of such mentally ill person, if such estate is sufficient for the purpose, shall pay the cost to the District of Columbia of such mentally ill person's maintenance, including treatment, in any hospital in which such person is hospitalized under sections 21–351 to 21–366. It shall be the duty of the Commission to examine, under oath, the father, mother, husband, wife, and adult children of any alleged metally ill person whenever such relatives live within the District of Columbia, and to ascertain the ability of such relatives or estate to maintain or contribute toward the maintenance of such mentally ill person; except that in no case shall such relatives or estate be required to pay more than the actual cost to the District of Columbia of maintenance of such alleged mentally ill person. If any individual hereinabove made liable for the maintenance of a mentally ill person shall fail so to provide or pay for such maintenance, the court shall issue to such individual a citation to show cause why he should not be adjudged to pay a portion or all of the expenses of maintenance of such patient. The citation shall be served at least ten days before the hearing thereon. If, upon such hearing, it shall appear to the court that the mentally ill person has not sufficient estate out of which his maintenance may properly be fully met and that he has relatives of the degree hereinabove referred to who are parties to the proceedings, and who are able to contribute thereto, the court may make an order requiring payment by such relative of such sum or sums as it may find they are reasonably able to pay and as may be necessary to provide for the maintenance and treatment of such mentally ill person. Such order shall require the payment of such sums to the District of Columbia treasurer annually, semiannually, quarterly, or monthly as the court may direct. It shall be the duty of the treasurer to collect such sums due under this section, and to turn the same into the Treasury of the United States to the credit of the District of Columbia. Any such order may be enforced against any property of the mentally ill person or of the individual liable or undertaking to maintain him in the same way as if it were an order for temporary alimony in a divorce case.

(h) No petition, application, or certificate authorized under sections 21–355(a) and 21–366(a) may be considered if made by a physician who is related by blood or marriage to the alleged mentally ill person, or who is financially interested in the hospital in which the alleged mentally ill person is to be detained, or, except in the case of physicians employed by the United States or the District of Columbia, who are professionally or officially connected with such hospital. No such petition, application, or certificate of any physician shall be considered unless it is based on personal observation and examination of the alleged mentally ill person made by such physician not more than seventy-two hours prior to the making of the petition, application, or certificate. Such certificate shall set forth in detail the facts and reasons on which such physician based his opinions and conclusions. (Sept. 15, 1964, 78 Stat. 947, Pub. L. 88–597, § 7.)

§ 21–357. Periodic examination and release.

(a) Any patient hospitalized pursuant to a court order obtained under section 21–356, or his attorney, legal guardian, spouse, parent, or other nearest adult relative, shall be entitled, upon the expiration of ninety days following such order and not more frequently than every six months thereafter, to request, in writing, the chief of service of the hospital in which the patient is hospitalized, to have a current examination of his mental condition made by one or more physicians. If the request is timely it shall be granted. The patient shall be entitled, at his own expense, to have any duly qualified physician participate in such examination. In the case of any such patient who is indigent, the Department of Public Health shall, upon the written request of such patient, assist him in obtaining a duly qualified physician to participate in such examination in the patient's behalf. Any such physician so obtained by such indigent patient shall be compensated for his services out of any unobligated funds of such Department in an amount determined by it to be fair and reasonable. If the chief of service, after considering the reports of the physicians conducting such examination, determines that the patient is no longer mentally ill to the extent that he is likely to injure himself or others if not hospitalized, the chief of service shall order the immediate release of the patient. However, if the chief of service, after considering such reports, determines that such patient continues to be mentally ill to the extent that he is likely to injure himself or others if not hospitalized, but one or more of the physicians participating in such examination reports that the patient is not mentally ill to such extent, the patient may petition the court for an order directing his release. Such petition shall be accompanied by the reports of the physicians who conducted the examination of the patient.

(b) In considering such petition, the court shall consider the testimony of the physicians who participated in the examination of such patient, and the reports of such physicians accompanying the petition. After considering such testimony and reports, the court shall either (1) reject the petition and order the continued hospitalization of the patient, or (2) order the chief of service to immediately release such patient. Any physician participating in such examination shall be a competent and compellable witness at any trial or hearing held pursuant to sections 21–351 to 21–366.

(c) The chief of service of a public or private hospital shall as often as practicable, but not less often than every six months, examine or cause to be examined each patient admitted to any such hospital pursuant to section 21–356 and if he determines on the basis of such examination that the conditions which justified the involuntary hospitalization of such patient no longer exist, the chief of service shall immediately release such patient.

(d) Nothing in this section shall be construed to prohibit any person from exercising any right presently available to him for obtaining release from confinement, including the right to petition for a writ of habeas corpus. (Sept. 15, 1964, 78 Stat. 950, Pub. L. 88–597, § 8.)

§ 21–358. Right to communication—Exercise of certain rights.

(a) Any person hospitalized in a public or private hospital pursuant to sections 21–351 to 21–366 shall be entitled (1) to communicate by sealed mail or otherwise with any individual or official agency inside or outside the hospital, and (2) to receive uncensored mail from his attorney or personal physician. All other incoming mail or communications may be read before being delivered to the patient, if the chief of service believes such action is necessary for the medical welfare of the patient who is the intended recipient. However, any mail or other communication which is not delivered to the patient for whom it is intended shall be immediately returned to the sender. But nothing in this section shall prevent the administrator from making reasonable rules regarding visitation hours and the use of telephone and telegraph facilities.

(b) Any person hospitalized in a public hospital for a mental illness shall, during his hospitalization, be entitled to medical and psychiatric care and treatment. The administrator of each public hospital shall keep records detailing all such care and treatment received by any such person and such records shall be made available, upon that person's written authorization, to his attorney or personal physician. Such records shall be preserved by the administrator until such person has been discharged from the hospital.

(c) No mechanical restraint shall be applied to any patient hospitalized in any public or private hospital for a mental illness unless the use of restraint is prescribed by a physician and, if so prescribed, such restraint shall be removed whenever the condition justifying its use no longer exists. Any use of a mechanical restraint, together with the reasons therefor, shall be made a part of the medical record of the patient.

(d) No patient hospitalized pursuant to sections 21–351 to 21–366 shall, by reason of such hospitalization, be denied the right to dispose of property, execute instruments, make purchases, enter into contractual relationships, vote, hold a driver's license, unless such patient has been adjudicated incompetent by a court of competent jurisdiction and has not been restored to legal capacity. If the chief of service of the public or private hospital in which any such patient is hospitalized is of the opinion that such patient is unable to exercise any of the aforementioned rights, the chief of service shall immediately notify the patient and the patient's attorney, legal guardian, spouse, parents, or other nearest known adult relative, and the United States District Court for the District of Columbia, the Commission on Mental Health, and the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia of that fact.

(e) Any individual in the District of Columbia who, by reason of a judicial decree ordering his hospitalization entered prior to the date of the enactment of sections 21–351 to 21–366, is considered to be mentally incompetent and is denied the right to dispose of property, execute instruments, make purchases, enter into contractual relationships, vote, or hold a driver's license solely by reason of such decree, shall, upon the expiration of the one-year period immediately following such date of enactment, be deemed to have been restored to legal capacity unless, within such one-year period, affirmative action is commenced to have such individual adjudicated mentally incompetent by a court of competent jurisdiction.

(f) Any patient, and the patient's spouse, parents, or other nearest known adult relative, shall receive, upon admission of the patient to the hospital, a written statement outlining in simple, nontechnical language all release procedures provided by sections 21–351 to 21–366, setting out all rights accorded to patients by sections 21–351 to 21–366, and describing procedures provided by law for adjudication of incompetency and appointment of trustees or committees for the hospitalized individual. (Sept. 15, 1964, 78 Stat. 950, Pub. L. 88–597, § 9.)

Nothing in sections 21–351 to 21–366 shall be constructed to require the admission of any individual to any Veterans' Administration or military hospital facility unless such individual is otherwise eligible for care and treatment in such facility. (Sept. 15, 1964, 78 Stat. 952, Pub. L. 88–597, § 10.)

§ 21–360. Penalties.

(a) Any individual who, (1) without probable cause for believing a person to be mentally ill, causes or conspires with or assists another to cause the hospitalization of any such person under sections 21–351 to 21–366, or (2) causes or conspires with or assists another to cause the denial to any person of any right accorded to him under sections 21–351 to 21–366, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $5,000 or imprisonment not exceeding three years, or both.

(b) Any individual who, without probable cause for believing a person to be mentally ill, executes a petition, application, or certificate pursuant to sections 21–351 to 21–366, by which such individual secures or attempts to secure the apprehension, hospitalization, detention, or restraint of any such person, or any physician or psychiatrist who knowingly makes any false certificate or application pursuant to sections 21–351 to 21–366 as to the mental condition of any person, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $5,000 or imprisonment not exceeding three years, or both. (Sept. 15, 1964, 78 Stat. 952, Pub. L. 88–597, § 11.)

§ 21–361. Nonresident.

If an individual ordered committed to a public hospital by the court pursuant to subsection (f) of section 21–356 is found by the Commission, subject to a review by the court, not to be a resident of the District of Columbia, and to be a resident of another place, he shall be transferred to the State of his residence if an appropriate institution of that State is willing to accept him. If the person be an indigent, the expense of transferring him, including the traveling expenses of necessary attendants, shall be borne by the District of Columbia. For the purposes of this section, a "resident of the District of Columbia" means an individual who has maintained his principal place of abode in the District of Columbia for more than one year immediately prior to the filing of the petition referred to in subsection (a) of section 21–356. (Sept. 15, 1964, 78 Stat. 952, Pub. L. 88–597, § 12.)

§ 21–362. Witness fees.

Witnesses subpenaed under the provisions of sections 21–351 to 21–366 shall be paid the same fees and mileage as are paid to witnesses in the courts of the United States. (Sept. 15, 1964, 78 Stat. 952, Pub. L. 88–597, § 13.)

§ 21–363. Not to be confined in jail.

No person apprehended, detained, or hospitalized under any provision of sections 21–351 to 21–366, shall be confined in jail or in any penal or correctional institution. (Sept. 15, 1964, 78 Stat. 952, Pub. L. 88–597, § 14.)

§ 21–364. Forms.

All applications and certificates for the hospitalization of any individual in the District of Columbia under sections 21–351 to 21–366 shall be made on forms approved by the Commission and furnished by it. (Sept. 15, 1964, 78 Stat. 952, Pub. L. 88–597, § 15.)

§ 21–365. Surety.

The court in its discretion may require any petitioner under section 21–356 to file an undertaking with surety to be approved by the court in such amount as the court may deem proper, conditioned to save harmless the respondent by reason of costs incurred, including attorney's fees, if any, and damages suffered by the respondent, as a result of any such action. (Sept. 15, 1964, 78 Stat. 953, Pub. L. 88–597, § 16.)

§ 21–366. Individuals previously hospitalized.

The provisions of sections 21–357, 21–358, 21–361, 21–363, 21–364, and 21–365 shall be applicable to any person who, on or after September 15, 1964, is a patient in a hospital in the District of Columbia by reason of having been declared insane or of unsound mind pursuant to a court order entered in a non-criminal proceeding prior to such date of enactment; except that any request for an examination authorized under section 21–357 may be made by such person, or his attorney, legal guardian, spouse, parent, or other nearest adult relative, after the expiration of the thirty-day period following September 15, 1964 and not more frequently than every six months thereafter. (Sept. 15, 1964, 78 Stat. 953, Pub. L. 88–597, § 17.)

Chapters 5.—CONSERVATORS

§ 21–501. Appointment of conservators.

If an adult person residing in or having property in the District of Columbia is unable, by reason of advanced age, mental weakness (not amounting to unsoundness of mind), mental illness (as such term is defined in section 21–351), or physical incapacity properly to care for his property, the United States District Court for the District of Columbia may, upon his petition or the sworn petition of one or more of his relatives or any other person or persons, appoint some fit person to be conservator of his property. (Oct. 24, 1951, 65 Stat. 638, ch. 545, § 1; Sept. 15, 1964, 78 Stat. 953, Pub. L. 88–597, § 18.)

AMENDMENT

1964—Section 18 of act Sept. 15, 1964, amended section by inserting after "unsoundness of mind" the phrase "mental illness (as such term is defined in section 21–351)."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

1. Redemption by conservator

Neither conservator nor his ward must wait for removal of legal disability to redeem property from tax sale, and conservator may not be denied right to redeem in proper case because he is conservator, under District of Columbia statutes. Shenandoah Corp. v. *E. 1. Evidence as to personal liability

Because agreement between landlords and conservator of estate of tenant to pay increased rent for premises occupied by tenant was oral, evidence was admissible to show understanding of parties as to whether conservator was to be bound personally by agreement. W. E. Summerbell et ano. v. W. B. McDonnell, individually etc. (D.C. App. 1964, 197 A. 2d 150).

Evidence supported trial court's finding that landlords and conservator of tenant's estate who had orally agreed to pay increased rent for premises occupied by tenant did not intend to bind conservator in his individual capacity. Id.

2. Redemption by conservator

Neither conservator nor his ward must wait for removal of legal disability to redeem property from tax sale, and conservator may not be denied right to redeem in proper case because he is conservator, under District of Columbia statutes. Shenandoah Corp. v. E. F. Jackson (1962, 298 F. 2d 324, 111 U.S. App. D.C. 410).

Chapter 6.—FIDUCIARIES

[Transferred from Title 28–Chapter 23, Subchapter I]

Sec.
21–601. Definitions.
21–602. Application of payment made to fiduciaries.
21–603. Repealed.
21–604. Transfer of negotiable instruments by fiduciary.
21–605. Check drawn by fiduciary payable to third person.

Sec.
21–606. Check drawn by and payable to fiduciary.
21–607. Deposit in name of fiduciary as such.
21–608. Deposit in name of principal—Check drawn thereon by fiduciary—Check payable to drawee bank.
21–609. Deposit in fiduciary's personal account.
21–610. Deposit in names of two or more trustees.
21–611. Law not retroactive.
21–612. Cases not provided for in chapter.
21–613. Uniformity of interpretation.
21–614. Short title.

§ 21–601. Definitions.

The following provisions concerning liability for participation in breaches of fiduciary obligations, and to make uniform the law with reference thereto, shall be in force in the District of Columbia, namely:

(1) In this chapter unless the context or subject matter otherwise requires:

"Bank" includes any person or association of persons, whether incorporated or not, carrying on the business of banking.

"Fiduciary" includes a trustee under any trust, express, implied, resulting or constructive, executor, administrator, guardian, conservator, curator, receiver, trustee in bankruptcy, assignee for the benefit of creditors, partner, agent, officer of a corporation, public or private, public officer, or any other person acting in a fiduciary capacity for any person, trust, or estate.

"Person" includes a corporation, partnership, or other association, or two or more persons having a joint or common interest.

"Principal" includes any person to whom a fiduciary as such owes an obligation.

(2) A thing is done "in good faith" within the meaning of this subchapter, when it is in fact done honestly, whether it be done negligently or not. (May 14, 1928, 45 Stat. 509, ch. 545, § 1.)

Cross Reference

Transfer of securities to and by fiduciaries, see § 28–2901 et seq.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

1. In general

Considered in its entirety, it is manifest that the effect of the act (this subchapter) is to enlarge the ability of fiduciaries to avoid the limitations imposed by the common law, although the liabilities of the fiduciaries as such are not affected, but only those of persons dealing with them. Colby v. Riggs Nat. Bank (1937, 92 F. 2d 183, 67 App. D.C. 259, 114 A.L.R. 1065).

§ 21–602. Application of payment made to fiduciaries.

A person who in good faith pays or transfers to a fiduciary any money or other property which the fiduciary as such is authorized to receive, is not responsible for the proper application thereof by the fiduciary; and any right or title acquired from the fiduciary in consideration of such payment or transfer is not invalid in consequence of a misapplication by the fiduciary. (May 14, 1928, 45 Stat. 510, ch. 545, § 2.)

Cross Reference

Trust or joint accounts, deposits, or safe-deposit boxes, see § 26–201 et seq.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Incompetent's committee 1
Misappropriation 2

1. Incompetent's committee

Where corporation lending money to incompetent made checks payable to members of incompetent's committee without adding word "committee" to checks and members of committee allegedly embezzled proceeds of checks, recovery against indorsees cashing checks for members of committee was not precluded merely by absence of word "committee" from checks, and corporation would not be responsible for loss on such theory, in absence of evidence that indorsees had knowledge that members of committee were breaching their fiduciary obligation or had knowledge of such facts rendering the taking of checks by indorsees bad faith. Espey v. Lawyers Title Ins. Corp. of Richmond, Va. (1954, 210 F. 2d 728, 93 U.S. App. D.C. 280).

2. Misappropriation

The word "misappropriation" means wrong appropriation, or the use of a fund for a different purpose than that for which it was created, but not necessarily a dishonest purpose. Colby v. Riggs Nat. Bank (1937, 92 F. 2d 183, 67 App. D.C. 259, 114 A.L.R. 1065).

§ 21–603. Repealed. July 5, 1960, 74 Stat. 324, Pub. L. 86–584, § 12.

Section, act May 14, 1928, 45 Stat. 510, ch. 545, § 3, related to registration of transfer of securities held by fiduciaries. See § 28–2901 et seq.

§ 21–604. Transfer of negotiable instruments by fiduciary.

If any negotiable instrument payable or indorsed to a fiduciary as such is indorsed by the fiduciary, or if any negotiable instrument payable or indorsed to his principal is indorsed by a fiduciary empowered to indorse such instrument on behalf of his principal, the indorsee is not bound to inquire whether the fiduciary is committing a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in indorsing or delivering the instrument, and is not chargeable with notice that the fiduciary is committing a breach of his obligation as fiduciary unless he takes the instrument with actual knowledge of such breach or with knowledge of such facts that his action in taking the instrument amounts to bad faith. If, however, such instrument is transferred by the fiduciary in payment of or as security for a personal debt of the fiduciary to the actual knowledge of the creditor, or is transferred in any transaction known by the transferee to be for the personal benefit of the fiduciary, the creditor or other transferee is liable to the principal if the fiduciary in fact commits a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in transferring the instrument. (May 14, 1928, 45 Stat. 510, ch. 545, § 4.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Knowledge of bad faith 1
Liability of lender 2

1. Knowledge of bad faith

Where plaintiff's check was presented at a bank by president of the payee personally who endorsed on the back of it the name of the company and his own name as president and in addition signed his own name as individual and the bank credited the amount of the check to the personal account of the president, maker was not entitled to recover the amount thereof from the bank where there was no suggestion of bad faith by the bank and no proof which would have put it on notice that the president was guilty of a breach of faith in negotiating the check and depositing the proceeds to his own credit. Evans v. Prentice et al. (D.C. Mun. App. 1951, 79 A. 2d 396).

2. Liability of lender

Where court authorized members of incompetent's committee to negotiate loan on security of incompetent's realty, lender made checks payable to members of committee without adding word "committee" and such members thereafter allegedly embezzled proceeds of checks, omission of word "committee" was not cause of alleged embezzlement, making lender responsible therefor, in view of fact that presence of word would not have prevented members from cashing checks or from embezzling proceeds. Espey v. Lawyers Title Ins. Corp. of Richmond, Va. (1954, 210 F. 2d 728, 93 U.S. App. D.C. 280).

§ 21–605. Check drawn by fiduciary payable to third person.

If a check or other bill of exchange is drawn by a fiduciary as such, or in the name of his principal by a fiduciary empowered to draw such instrument in the name of his principal, the payee is not bound to inquire whether the fiduciary is committing a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in drawing or delivering the instrument, and is not chargeable with notice that the fiduciary is committing a breach of his obligation as fiduciary unless he takes the instrument with actual knowledge of such breach or with knowledge of such facts that his action in taking the instrument amounts to bad faith. If, however, such instrument is payable to a personal creditor of the fiduciary and delivered to the creditor in payment of or as security for a personal debt of the fiduciary to the actual knowledge of the creditor, or is drawn and delivered in any transaction known by the payee to be for the personal benefit of the fiduciary, the creditor or other payee is liable to the principal if the fiduciary in fact commits a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in drawing or delivering the instrument. (May 14, 1928, 45 Stat. 510, ch. 545, § 5.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

1. In general

A third person who knowingly participates in the breach of a fiduciary's obligation can be required to make good the resulting loss. Anacostia Bank v. U.S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co. (1941, 119 F. 2d 455, 73 App. D.C. 388, 134 A.L.R. 995).

§ 21–606. Check drawn by and payable to fiduciary.

If a check or other bill of exchange is drawn by a fiduciary as such or in the name of his principal by a fiduciary empowered to draw such instrument in the name of his principal, payable to the fiduciary personally, or payable to a third person and by him transferred to the fiduciary, and is thereafter transferred by the fiduciary, whether in payment of a personal debt of the fiduciary or otherwise, the transferee is not bound to inquire whether the fiduciary is committing a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in transferring the instrument, and is not chargeable with notice that the fiduciary is committing a breach of his obligation as fiduciary unless he takes the instrument with actual knowledge of such breach or with knowledge of such facts that his action in taking the instrument amounts to bad faith. (May 14, 1928, 45 Stat. 511, ch. 545, § 6.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

1. Trust deposit transferred

Where trust deposit in the name of the individual trustees and trustee corporation was transferred by check to the account of the corporation, the result being to settle an overdraft of the corporation, the transaction was not covered by this section, but comes within the scope of § 28–2312 and must be decided under common-law principles. Colby v. Riggs Nat. Bank (1937, 92 F. 2d 183, 67 App. D.C. 259, 114 A.L.R. 1065).

§ 21–607. Deposit in name of fiduciary as such.

If a deposit is made in a bank to the credit of a fiduciary as such, the bank is authorized to pay the amount of the deposit or any part thereof upon the check of the fiduciary, signed with the name in which such deposit is entered, without being liable to the principal, unless the bank pays the check with actual knowledge that the fiduciary is committing a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in drawing the check or with knowledge of such facts that its action in paying the check amounts to bad faith. If, however, such check is payable to the drawee bank and is delivered to it in payment of or as security for a personal debt of the fiduciary to it, the bank is liable to the principal if the fiduciary in fact commits a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in drawing or delivering the check. (May 14, 1928, 45 Stat. 511, ch. 545, § 7.)

§ 21–608. Deposit in name of principal—Check drawn thereon by fiduciary—Check payable to drawee bank.

If a check is drawn upon the account of his principal in a bank by a fiduciary who is empowered to draw checks upon his principal's account, the bank is authorized to pay such checks without being liable to the principal, unless the bank pays the check with actual knowledge that the fiduciary is committing a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in drawing such check, or with knowledge of such facts that its action in paying the check amounts to bad faith. If, however, such a check is payable to the drawee bank and is delivered to it in payment of or as security for a personal debt of the fiduciary to it, the bank is liable to the principal if the fiduciary in fact commits a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in drawing or delivering the check. (May 14, 1928, 45 Stat. 511, ch. 545, § 8.)

§ 21–609. Deposit in fiduciary's personal account.

If a fiduciary makes a deposit in a bank to his personal credit of checks drawn by him upon an account in his own name as fiduciary, or of checks payable to him as fiduciary, or of checks drawn by him upon an account in the name of his principal if he is empowered to draw checks thereon, or of checks payable to his principal and indorsed by him, if he is empowered to indorse such checks, or if he otherwise makes a deposit of funds held by him as fiduciary, the bank receiving such deposit is not bound to inquire whether the fiduciary is committing thereby a breach of his obligation as fiduciary; and the bank is authorized to pay the amount of the deposit or any part thereof upon the personal check of the fiduciary without being liable to the principal, unless the bank receives the deposit or pays the check with actual knowledge that the fiduciary is committing a breach of his obligation as fiduciary in making such deposit or in drawing such check, or with knowledge of such facts that its action in receiving the deposit or paying the check amounts to bad faith. (May 14, 1928, 45 Stat. 511, ch. 545, § 9.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

1. Trust deposit transferred

Where trust deposit in the name of the individual trustees and the trustee corporation was transferred by check to the account of the corporation, the result being to settle an overdraft of the corporation, it was not the case of a transfer by the fiduciary in payment of a personal debt, but was a transfer by one set of fiduciaries to another, and the bank was not liable unless it had actual knowledge of misappropriation. Colby v. Riggs Nat. Bank (1937, 67 App. D.C. 259, 92 F. 2d 183, 114 A.L.R. 1065).

§ 21-610. Deposit in names of two or more trustees.

When a deposit is made in a bank in the name of two or more persons as trustees and a check is drawn upon the trust account by any trustee or trustees authorized by the other trustee or trustees to draw checks upon the trust account, neither the payee nor other holder nor the bank is bound to inquire whether it is a breach of trust to authorize such trustee or trustees to draw checks upon the trust account, and is not liable unless the circumstances be such that the action of the payee or other holder or the bank amounts to bad faith. (May 14, 1928, 45 Stat. 512, ch. 545, § 10.)

§ 21-611. Law not retroactive.

The provisions of this chapter shall not apply to transactions that took place prior to May 14, 1928. (May 14, 1928, 45 Stat. 512, ch. 545, § 11.)

§ 21-612. Cases not provided for in chapter.

In any case not provided for in this chapter the rules of law and equity, including the law merchant and those rules of law and equity relating to trusts, agency negotiable instruments, and banking, shall continue to apply. (May 14, 1928, 45 Stat. 512, ch. 545, § 12.)

§ 21-613. Uniformity of interpretation.

This chapter shall be so interpreted and construed as to effectuate its general purpose to make uniform the law of those states which enact it. (May 14, 1928, 45 Stat. 512, ch. 545, § 13.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Construction 1
Purpose 2

1. Construction

In construing this chapter, recourse may be had to the reports of the committees of Congress and to the notes of the Commissioners. Colby v. Riggs Nat. Bank (1937, 92 F. 2d 183, 67 App. D.C. 259, 114 A.L.R. 1065).

2. Purpose

The purpose of this chapter was to establish uniform and definite rules in place of the diverse and indefinite rules formerly prevailing as to constructive notice of breaches of fiduciary obligations. It is obvious that in the use of the words "actual knowledge" Congress meant to change the rule previously applied in many courts of constructive, implied or imputed knowledge. Colby v. Riggs Nat. Bank (1937, 92 F. 2d 183, 67 App. D.C. 259, 114 A.L.R. 1065).

§ 21-614. Short title.

This chapter may be cited as the Uniform Fiduciaries Act. (May 14, 1928, 45 Stat. 512, ch. 545, § 14.)

PART IV

CRIMINAL LAW AND PROCEDURE

TITLE 22—CRIMINAL OFFENSES.
TITLE 23—CRIMINAL PROCEDURE.
TITLE 24—PRISIONERS AND THEIR TREATMENT.

TITLE 22.—CRIMINAL OFFENSES

Chapter 1.—GENERAL PROVISIONS

§ 22–103. Attempts to commit crime.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Attempted petit larcency 2.50
In general 1
Maximum penalty 3.50
Validity of statute 5

1. In general

The general attempt statute covers attempted petit larceny not expressly covered by any other statute. United States v. R. Pearson (D.C. App. 1964, 202 A. 2d 392).

2.50. Attempted petit larceny

The fact that the fine was greater under general attempt statute than for completed offense of petit larceny did not mean that Congress intended to exclude attempted petit larceny from scope of the general attempt statute United States v. R. Pearson (D.C. App. 1964, 202 A. 2d 392).

3.50. Maximum penalty

The maximum penalty for attempted petit larceny can be no greater than the maximum penalty for the completed offense. United States v. R. Pearson (D.C. App. 1964, 202 A. 2d 392).

5. Validity of statute

The general attempt statute is not invalid as applied to attempted petit larceny on theory that it authorizes greater penalty than authorized for completed offense. Unied States v. R. Pearson (D.C. App. 1964, 202 A. 2d 392).

§ 22–104. Second conviction.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

2. Notice

Where no notice was given to defendant that government intended to ask for greater penalties as second offender, defendant was only subject to penalty that could be imposed on first offender. A. Dobkin v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1963, 194 A. 2d 657).

In second offender cases, government must advise defendant of penalty to be demanded in time for him to demand jury trial. Id.

§ 22–105. Persons advising, inciting, or conniving at criminal offense to be charged as principals.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Accessory after fact .50
Aid and abet 3
Charged as principal 4
Guilty knowledge 5.50
Instructions 6

.50. Accessory after fact

Defendant could be convicted as accessory after fact, even though he was present before, during and after crime. J. S. Smith v. United States (1962, 306 F. 2d 286, 113 U.S. App. D.C. 126).

3. Aid and abet

One who aids in commission of crime is as responsible for that act as if he committed it directly. H. L. Williams and D. G. Reeves v. United States (D.C. App. 1963, 190 A. 2d 269).

Evidence supported conviction of appealing defendants of assault and of attempted petit larceny, since court could conclude that defendants were associated with principal offender in the venture and made a conscious effort to help it succeed. Id.

Evidence supported conviction of defendant, who at no time struck or pushed assault victim during altercation between victim, defendant and two others, and who could not be said by victim to have joined the other two in searching victim's pockets, for assault either on theory that concert of action by defendant and the other two threatened or menaced the victim or that defendant aided and abetted the other two. J. T. Rogers and B. F. Herring v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 174 A. 2d 356).

Aiding and abetting assault renders one guilty of crime even if he does not actively participate. Id.

4. Charged as principal

Where defendants are charged as principals under aiding and abetting statute, act of one defendant is act of each. E. E. Turberville, B. T. Williams and J. H. Simpson v. United States (1962, 303 F. 2d 411, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 400, cert. denied 82 S. Ct. 1596).

5.50. Guilty knowledge

To be an "aider and abettor" in unauthorized use of motor vehicle, a mere passenger must be shown to have had guilty knowledge, and this requires more than showing that he rode in automobile, pushed automobile, and repaired a punctured tire. Wm. H. Kemp, Jr. v. United States (1962, 311 F. 2d 774, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 88).

Evidence was insufficient to convict defendant as aider and abettor of another in unauthorized use of motor vehicle. Id.

6. Instructions

Testimony of assault victim that defendant and two other men were "after" him authorized instruction to jury on theory of aiding and abetting even if defendant's actions did not assume proportions of assault. J. T. Rogers and B. F. Herring v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 174 A. 2d 356).

§ 22–106. Accessories after the fact.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

1. Accessory after fact

Defendant could be convicted as accessory after fact, even though he was present before, during and after crime. J. S. Smith v. United States (1962, 306 F. 2d 286, 113 U.S. App. D.C. 126).

Chapter 4.—ARSON

§ 22–403. Malicious burning, destruction, or injury of another's movable property.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

3.50. Inference of malice

Malice in damaging of right front vent of automobile window could be inferred from intentional wrongdoing and value of property could be inferred from evidence respecting its useful, functional purpose. F. L. Paige v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 183 A. 2d 759).

Chapter 5. — ASSAULT — MAYHEM — THREAT OF BODILY HARM

Sec.
22–508. Penalty for assaulting, beating, or fighting on account of money won by gaming.

§ 22–501. Assault with intent to kill, rob, rape, or poison.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Evidence—Sufficiency 3
Identity of victim 3.50
Instructions 6
Intent to rape 7
Question for jury 8.50

3. Evidence—Sufficiency

Evidence was sufficient to permit convictions under indictment charging robbery and assault with intent to commit robbery. J. Rogers and H. Waldon v. United States (1963, 318 F. 2d 223, 115 U.S. App. D.C. 252).

Evidence was sufficient to show requisite intent in prosecution for assault with intent to commit robbery. R. Oden v. United States (1961, 295 F. 2d 547, 111 U.S. App. D.C. 201).

3.50. Identity of victim

It was not necessary to allege identity of person sought to be robbed where defendant was charged with assault to commit robbery, and such information, if desired by defendant, should have been sought by motion for a bill of particulars. S. E. Young v. United States (1961, 288 F. 2d 398, 109 U.S. App. D.C. 414).

6. Instructions

Considering instructions as a whole together with very strong evidence of guilt of defendant of housebreaking, assault with dangerous weapon, assault of police officer with dangerous weapon, and assault with intent to kill, and considering the fact that defendant was satisfied with instructions as given, errors in instructions did not affect substantial rights or otherwise require reversal. G. E. Nixon v. United States (1962, 309 F. 2d 316, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 21).

7. Intent to rape

To make out a case of "assault with intent to commit rape", the evidence must show beyond a reasonable doubt (1) an assault, (2) an intent to have carnal knowledge of female, and (3) a purpose to carry into effect such intent with force and against consent of the female. W. A. Baber v. United States (1963, 324 F. 2d 390, 116 U.S. App. D.C. 358).

In prosecution for assault with intent to rape, defendant was entitled to directed verdict because of lack of evidence of purpose to carry into effect the intent to commit rape with force and against consent of victim. Id.

8.50. Question for jury

Jury was justified in finding that assault with intent to commit robbery and robbery were not product of alleged mental disease of defendant, where psychiatrist testified that defendant was suffering from low grade mental illness predisposing to psychosis particularly when defendant was under influence of large amounts of alcohol, and evidence indicated that defendant was completely sober at time of alleged offenses. T. Hawkins v. United States (1962, 310 F. 2d 849, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 44).

§ 22–502. Assault with intent to commit mayhem or with dangerous weapon.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Evidence 3
Instructions 5

3. Evidence

Evidence was sufficient to present question for jury as to whether defendant was guilty of assault with a dangerous weapon. R. Dean v. United States (1962, 314 F. 2d 250, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 245).

5. Instructions

Errors, if any, in instructions in prosecution for assault with dangerous weapon, on burden of proof to negate claim of defendant that discharge of the pistol was accidental, and with respect to credibility of chief witness for the prosecution, were not, under the circumstances, prejudicial. R. Dean v. United States (1962, 314 F. 2d 250, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 245).

§ 22–504. Assault or threatened assault in a menacing manner.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Admissibility of evidence 6
Aid and abet .50
Corroboration 9
Cross-examination 4.50
Elements of assault 5.50
Instructions 15
Review 19

.50. Aid and abet

Evidence supported conviction of appealing defendants of assault and of attempted petit larceny, since court could conclude that defendants were associated with principal offender in the venture and made a conscious effort to help it succeed. H. L. Williams and D. G. Reeves v. United States (D.C. App. 1963, 190 A. 2d 269).

Evidence supported conviction of defendant, who at no time struck or pushed assault victim during altercation between victim, defendant and two others, and who could not be said by victim to have joined the other two in searching victim's pockets, for assault either on theory that concert of action by defendant and the other two threatened or menaced the victim or that defendant aided and abetted the other two. J. T. Rogers and B. F. Herring v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 174 A. 2d 356).

Aiding and abetting assault renders one guilty of crime even if he does not actively participate. Id.

4.50. Cross-examination

Although goal of counsel of defendants charged with assault was to show victim's real background by examining him concerning his employment history and experience, ordering discontinuance of such line of questioning after a recitation that victim had worked at last employment for 8 months, before that for 6 months at another employment and still earlier at a third employment was justified to avoid needless preoccupation with collateral matters. J. T. Rogers and B. F. Herring v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 174 A. 2d 356).

While cross-examination is basic right, it is subject to reasonable regulation by court in interest of orderly and expeditious trial. Id.

Cross-examination is an absolute right. J. Bandoni v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 171 A. 2d 748).

In prosecution for assault, cross-examination of the prosecutrix respecting her past experiences, emotional history and background to shed light on her testimonial reliability was not unduly curtailed. Id.

5.50. Elements of assault

Violence in its ordinary meaning is not a necessary element of assault, and attempt to do unlawfully to another any bodily injury however small constitutes an "assault". C. Harris v. United States (D.C. App. 1964, 201 A. 2d 532).

Evidence that defendant jostled victim and fumbled with victim's trouser cuffs, and that there was impact at area of victim's hip pocket constituted sufficient evidence to send to jury on question of assault in case involving defendant who had allegedly taken wallet from victim's hip pocket. Id.

6. Admissibility of evidence

Exclusion of testimony as to victim's prior specific acts of violence, communicated to but not personally observed, by defendant who was accused of assault and claimed self-defense, was error. J. M. King v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 177 A. 2d 912).

In prosecution for assault or homicide accused may show prior acts of violence by alleged victim to support claim of self-defense. Id.

Time alone is not controlling in determining the spontaneity of an exclamation, and of equal importance is whether the declaration was influenced by external circumstances of physical shock or stress of nervous excitement. J. Bandoni v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 171 A. 2d 748).

Admitting testimony of witness as to her conversation with the assaulted complainant though more than an hour occurred between the assault and the report to the witness was not error as violating the hearsay rule. Id.

9. Corroboration

Testimony of complaining witness in prosecution for assault was sufficiently corroborated. D. Konvalinka v. United States (1961, 287 F. 2d 346, 109 U.S. App. D.C. 307; aff'g 162 A. 2d 778).

15. Instructions

Testimony of assault victim that defendant and two other men were "after" him authorized instruction to jury on theory of aiding and abetting even if defendant's actions did not assume proportions of assault. J. T. Rogers and B. F. Herring v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 174 A. 2d 356).

Failure to instruct jury as to effect of five-hour delay in reporting alleged assault to the police was not error where no such instruction was requested. J. Bandoni v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 171 A. 2d 748).

19. Review

Defendant prosecuted for assault was not entitled to a continuance and trial before a new jury panel because members thereof were prejudiced in that on the day before defendant's trial his wife was convicted by a jury for carrying a dangerous weapon and the defendant's and wife's jury were selected from the same array, where the defendant's contention had no support in the record. J. Bandoni v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 171 A. 2d 748).

§ 22–505. Assault on member of police force.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Evidence 1.50
Instructions 2

1.50. Evidence

Evidence sustained conviction for assaulting and interfering with an officer of the metropolitan police department engaged in performance of his official duties. I. R. Lawson v. United States (1962, 301 F. 2d 520, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 196).

2. Instructions

Considering instructions as a whole together with very strong evidence of guilt of defendant of housebreaking, assault with dangerous weapon, assault of police officer with dangerous weapon, and assault with intent to kill, and considering fact that defendant was satisfied with instructions as given, errors in instructions did not affect substantial rights or otherwise require reversal. G. E. Nixon v. United States (1962, 309 F. 2d 316, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 21).

§ 22–507. Threats to do bodily harm.

Whoever is convicted in the District of threats to do bodily harm shall be fined not more than $500 or imprisoned not more than six months, or both, and, in addition thereto or in lieu thereof, may be required to give bond to keep the peace for a period not exceeding one year. (As amended Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 618, Pub. L. 88–241, § 11(b).)

AMENDMENT

1963—Section 11(b) of act Dec. 23, 1963, amended section to read as above set out.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

1. Evidence—Admissibility

Admission of testimony that defendant charged with threatening to do bodily harm to complainant had made prior threats to do bodily harm and to shoot her was admissible to show state of mind of defendant and complainant. C. B. McDonald v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 183 A. 2d 396).

Generally, evidence of offense wholly independent of crime charged is inadmissible, but such evidence is admissible where acts are so blended or connected with the one on trial that proof of one incidentally involves the other, they explain the circumstances of offense charged, or they tend to logically prove any element of the offense. Id.

Evidence of conduct prior to commission of alleged crime is admissible if so related or connected with crime as to establish common scheme of purpose, the pursuance of a single object, or defendant's guilty knowledge, intent, or motive. Id.

§ 22–508. Penalty for assaulting, beating, or fighting on account of money won by gaming.

[Transferred from former section 16–705]

In case any person or persons whatsoever, shall assault and beat, or shall challenge or provoke to fight any other person or persons whatsoever, upon account of any money won by gaming, playing or betting at any of the games aforesaid, such person or persons assaulting and beating, or challenging or provoking to fight such other person or persons upon the account aforesaid, being thereof convicted upon an indictment or information to be exhibited against him or them for that purpose, shall suffer imprisonment during the term of two years. (9 Ann, ch. 14, § 8, 1710; Kilty's Rept., p. 248; Alex. Brit. Stat., p. 692; Comp. Stat. D.C., p. 245, § 17.)

CODIFICATION

This section sets forth a British statute continued in force by virtue of act Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1189, ch. 854, § 1.

CROSS REFERENCE

Chapter 9.—DOMESTIC RELATIONS

§ 22–901. Cruelty to children.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

4. Instructions

Failure to instruct that jury was required to find beyond a reasonable doubt that defendant was under a legal duty to supply food and necessities to infant before they could find her guilty of manslaughter in failing to provide such items was plain error. M. L. Jones v. United States (1962, 308 F. 2d 307, 113 U.S. App. D.C. 352).

Finding of legal duty was critical element of crime of involuntary manslaughter based on breach of legal obligation to provide food and necessities to an infant, with such failure resulting in his death. Id.

§ 22–903. Willful neglect or refusal to support wife or minor child—Punishment—Order of allowance—Recognizance—Trial under original charge.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

.50. Abuse of Discretion

No abuse of discretion appeared in denial of motion to withdraw guilty plea to nonsupport charge against defendant who, though he had previously pleaded guilty to similar charge, contended that he did not recognize significance of charge and that failure to support was due to financial inability. W. Campbell Jr. v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 168 A. 2d 532).

Chapter 10.—FORNICATION

§ 22–1002. Fornication.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

2. Nature of offense

Government employee's alleged taking of a hotel room with a prostitute did not constitute "criminal conduct" which would support dismissal of the government employee where the conduct charged was not a crime under applicable laws even though employee had admitted his act to police and had forfeited collateral following a purported arrest therefor. A. Pelicone v. L. H. Hodges, Secretary etc. (1963, 320 F. 2d 754, 116 U.S. App. D.C. 32).

Chapter 11.—DISORDERLY CONDUCT

§ 22–1101. Affrays.

Whoever is convicted of an affray or of keeping a bawdy or disorderly house in the District shall be fined not more than $500 or imprisoned not more than one year, or both. (As amended Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 617, Pub. L. 88–241, § 11(a).)

AMENDMENT

1963—Section 11(a) of act Dec. 23, 1963, amended section to read as above set out.

§ 22–1107. Unlawful assembly—Profane and indecent language.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Elements of offense .50
Evidence 1

.50. Elements of offense

Defendant's conduct and not crowd's reaction to it must be starting point for determining whether defendant's message was of such nature as to come within ambit of free speech guarantee of First Amendment, and audience reaction and immediacy of disorder become significant elements of proof of disorderly conduct only after speaker passes bounds of argument or persuasion and undertakes incitement to riot. C. R. Allen v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1963, 187 A. 2d 888).

Defendant's activities in counterpicketing another organization by carrying a sign demanding more police brutality for "Reds" and dragging what purported to be flag of a foreign government on ground in front of crowd, which gave no open displays of anger or threats of violence, was within protection of First Amendment and did not constitute disorderly conduct. Id.

1. Evidence

Admission, in prosecution for using profane, indecent and obscene language, disorderly conduct, and making rude and obscene gestures, of witnesses' conclusions that language was profane, obscene and indecent was reversible error, even though proof of actions may have been sufficient to sustain conviction. C. P. Heilman, Jr. v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 172 A. 2d 141).

§ 22–1112. Lewd, indecent, or obscene acts.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Act committed in privacy 1
Corroboration of evidence 5
Evidence 4
Intent 8
Public place 8.50
Res Judicata 9.50

1. Act committed in privacy

Ordinary acts involving exposure as result of carelessness or thoughtlessness, particularly when such acts take place within privacy of one's home, do not in themselves establish offense of indecent exposure. G. B. Selph v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1963, 188 A. 2d 344).

Evidence was insufficient to sustain conviction for indecent exposure. Id.

Nudity is not per se "obscene", and it is not illegal for a man to be completely unclothed in his room; it becomes so only if he intentionally exposes himself to other persons. C. A. Hearn v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 178 A. 2d 434).

4. Evidence

Evidence was sufficient to sustain conviction for indecent exposure and making an indecent sexual proposal. E. Haynes v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1964, 202 A. 2d 919).

Evidence of government which presented two women complainants, who testified they saw defendant exposing himself, positively identifying him as maintenance man in their apartment development, was sufficient to sustain finding of his guilt of obscene and indecent exposure notwithstanding his production of five alibi witnesses. R. Campbell v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 172 A. 2d 557).

5. Corroboration of evidence

There must be corroboration in sex offenses, especially where offense is purely verbal and proof disappears as soon as words are spoken, but government is not required to produce witness who actually heard words spoken and corroboration may consist of circumstantial evidence supporting prosecutrix story. A. Goodsaid v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1963, 187 A. 2d 486).

Reluctance of woman, who contended that taxicab driver made indecent sexual proposals to her, to make complaint, driver's offer to apologize for what he might have said, his failure to make immediate denial of charges, and fact that, after period of over two weeks, he recognized complainant as former passenger, recalled engaging in conversation with her, and remembered his remark to her as she left taxicab sufficiently corroborated complainant's story. Id.

Testimony of police officers who had observed commission of indecent act constituted valid corroboration of alleged act. L. R. Herland v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 182 A. 2d 362).

8. Intent

Before conviction for indecent exposure can be upheld, it must be shown that exposure was intentional, not accidental. G. B. Selph v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1963, 188 A. 2d 344).

Evidence disclosed that defendant, who appeared without clothes in early morning hours at second floor window of his hot and oppressive room at rear of hotel overlooking seemingly uninhabited alley area and who was observed by several police officers and room clerk, did not deliberately and intentionally expose himself, so that he was not guilty of obscene or indecent exposure. C. A. Hearn v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 178 A. 2d 434).

An exposure becomes indecent when it occurs at such a time and place where reasonable man knows or should know his act will be open to observation of others; the required criminal intent is usually established by some action by which defendant draws attention to his exposed condition or by display in place so public that it must be presumed it was intended to be seen by others. Id.

8.50. Public place

Unlocked wash room in hotel in which indecent act occurred was a public place, and fact that other participant willingly engaged did not relieve defendant from guilt in committing such act in public. L. R. Herland v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 182 A. 2d 362).

9.50. Res judicata

The acquittal of defendant of charge of committing an indecent act precluded the government, as a matter of law, from relying on the evidence relating to this alleged indecent act to support its charge of an alleged indecent exposure on the same night. C. A. Hearn v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 178 A. 2d 434).

§ 22–1121. Disorderly conduct—Generally.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Breach of peace .50
Construction 1
Due process 1.48
Elements of offense 1.49
Evidence 1.50
Intent 3

.50. Breach of peace

Proof of breach of peace is not required for conviction of disorderly conduct. M. L. Stovall v. United States and District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1964, 202 A. 2d 390).

1. Construction

Disorderly conduct statute is violated when there is noisy, riotous, or inflammatory behavior provoking breach of peace, but there can be violation of such statute without such extreme conduct. Scott, Ewald, Carpenter and Young v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 184 A. 2d 849).

Defendant in ordering followers into hostile audience to stop heckling of speech and assault of one spectator as direct result of defendant's command to his followers, authorized conviction of disorderly conduct. G. L. Rockwell v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 172 A. 2d 549).

1.48. Due process

Disorderly conduct statute does not violate due process clause of Fifth Amendment although it does not require proof of breach of peace element; such statute does no more than give police the right within reasonable limitations to keep public sidewalks free of unnecessary obstructions and prevent groups from congregating in way that breach of peace might result. Scott, Ewald, Carpenter and Young v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 184 A. 2d 849).

Government, which was prosecuting defendants who had stationed themselves just west of northwest gate of White House and wore arm bands reading "Bomb Tests Kill People" for disorderly conduct, was not required to prove actual or impending breach of peace. Id.

1.49. Elements of offense

Defendant's conduct and not crowd's reaction to it must be starting point for determining whether defendant's message was of such nature as to come within ambit of free speech guarantee of First Amendment, and audience reaction and immediacy of disorder become significant elements of proof of disorderly conduct only after speaker passes bounds of argument or persuasion and undertakes incitement to riot. C. R. Allen v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1963, 187 A. 2d 888).

Defendant's activities in counterpicketing another organization by carrying a sign demanding more police brutality for "Reds" and dragging what purported to be flag of a foreign government on ground in front of crowd, which gave no open displays of anger or threats of violence, was within protection of First Amendment and did not constitute disorderly conduct. Id.

1.50. Evidence

Testimony of police officer that accused had hit, shoved and kicked his wife on a public street showed a series of assaults and justified conviction of disorderly conduct. M. L. Stovall v. United States and District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1964, 202 A. 2d 390).

Admission, in prosecution for using profane, indecent and obscene language, disorderly conduct, and making rude and obscene gestures, of witnesses' conclusions that language was profane, obscene and indecent was reversible error, even though proof of actions may have been sufficient to sustain conviction. C. P. Heiman, Jr. v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 172 A. 2d 141).

3. Intent

Under statute, one lacking intent to be disorderly may nevertheless be guilty if conduct is such that breach of peace may be occasioned thereby. G. L. Rockwell v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 172 A. 2d 549).

Chapter 12.—EMBEZZLEMENT

§ 22–1202. Embezzlement by agent, attorney, clerk, servant, or agent of a corporation.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

17. Intent

Hotel cashier clerk's conversion of $649 of employer's $1,000 placed in clerk's custody was not accompanied by criminal intent essential to embezzlement by employee wrongfullly converting employer's funds to employee's use, where clerk had carelessly left hotel with the $649 at end of his tour of duty, instead of leaving it there, and thereafter clerk lost or somebody stole the money. C. E. Anzoategui v. United States (1964, 335 F. 2d 1000, —— U.S. App. D.C. ——).

§ 22–1209. Embezzlement by mortgagor of personal property in possession.

(a) A person or any legal successor in interest of such person, having executed a security agreement creating a security interest in personal property securing a monetary obligation owed to a secured party and having under the security agreement:

(1) both the right of sale or other disposition of the property and the duty to account to the secured party for the proceeds of the disposition, sells or otherwise disposes of the property but willfully and wrongfully fails to account to the secured party for proceeds of disposition; or if the lesser of the value of the proceeds not so accounted for or of the property so secreted, withheld, sold, disposed of, converted, removed, or injured or destroyed, or, in either case, of the unpaid balance of the monetary obligation so secured, is more than $100, shall be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned not more than five years, or both; or, if the lesser of any of the values as herein described is $100 or less, shall be fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned not more than one year or both.

(2) no right of sale or other disposition of the property, willfully and wrongfully secretes, withholds, sells, or disposes of the property, or converts it to his own use, or, without the consent of the secured party, removes it out of the District, or maliciously injures or destroys it, in violation of the security agreement—

(b) In a case in which a debtor in possession of personal property subject to a security interest, who would be guilty of an offense under this section, is a corporation or a partnership, an officer, director, partner, or agent of the debtor who aids or abets in the commission of the offense shall be punished as provided by subsection (a) of this section.

(c) As used in this section, "security agreement", "security interest", and "secured party" have the same meanings as those given to the terms by sections 28:9–105(h), 28:1–201(38), and 28:9–105(i), respectively, of the District of Columbia Code. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1326, ch. 854, § 839; Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 769, Pub. L. 88–243, § 3.)

AMENDMENT

1963—Section 3 of act Dec. 30, 1963, amended section to read as above set out. For provisions of section prior to this amendment, see main volume of code.

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1963 AMENDMENT

Amendment of section by act Dec. 30, 1963, was made effective on Jan. 1, 1965. See note preceding Article I of subtitle I of title 28.

Chapter 13.—FALSE PRETENSES—FALSE PERSONATION

§ 22–1301. False pretenses.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Double jeopardy 6.50
Elements of crime 7.50
Evidence 9
Inconsistent offenses 11.50
Proceeds of check 21.50

6.50. Double jeopardy

The offense of obtaining motor vehicle by means of false pretenses in violation of District of Columbia Code and offense of transporting motor vehicle in interstate commerce knowing it to have been stolen in violation of Criminal Code of United States involve different elements and require different proof and are separate and distinct offenses even though same vehicle is subject of both acts, and prosecution and punishment of defendant for both offenses does not constitute double jeopardy. United States v. J. W. Oates (1963, 314 F. 2d 593, U.S. App. 4th Ct.).

7.50. Elements of crime

Five elements of crime of false presenses are: false representation, knowledge of falsity, intent to defraud, reliance by the defrauded party, and obtaining something of value. S. J. Ciullo v. United States (1963, 325 F. 2d 227, 117 U.S. App. D.C. 31).

Under false pretenses statute, it must be shown that alleged fraud would not have been accomplished but for misrepresentations made. Id.

9. Evidence

Evidence was sufficient to sustain conviction on charge of false pretenses in connection with a stock and worthless check transaction. H. N. Kelly, Jr. v. United States (1961, 297 F. 2d 437, 111 U.S. App. D.C. 360).

11.50. Inconsistent offenses

Under District of Columbia law, grand larceny and false pretenses are not inconsistent offenses. P. A. Skantze v. United States (1961, 288 F. 2d 416, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 14).

21.50. Proceeds of check

Embassy employee who, with intent to steal, represented to superiors that money was needed for embassy's cash account and thus procured their signatures to checks, the proceeds of which he kept for himself, falsifying entries in cash journal to cloak transaction, was guilty of false pretenses and grand larceny, under District of Columbia law. P. A. Skantze v. United States (1961, 288 F. 2d 416, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 14).

Chapter 14.—FORGERY—FRAUDS

§ 22-1401. Forgery.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Evidence 7.50
Writings included 12

7.50. Evidence

Reception, in forgery prosecution, of exhibit consisting of card completed voluntarily by defendant while in custody on which he had listed prior arrests, received to permit comparison of handwriting with that on checks, was prejudicially erroneous and required new trial notwithstanding that it was not clear that jury saw card and that there was other evidence of his guilt. R. E. Leigh v. United States (1962, 308 F. 2d 345, 113 U.S. App. D.C. 390).

12. Writings included

Statutes proscribing forgery of any writing and any writing of public or private nature which might operate to prejudice another included defendant's forging of name of attorney on praecipes by which defendant entered appearances in cases, and forging of a registration card. Morgan v. United States (1962, 309 F. 2d 234, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 13).

§ 22-1406. Repealed. Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 774, Pub. L. 88-243, § 15(a)(1); eff. Jan. 1, 1965.

Section of act Apr. 28, 1904, 33 Stat. 554, ch. 1808, § 883a, as amended, dealt with sale or concealment of personal property by conditional vendee, with intent to defraud. See Uniform Commercial Code.

§ 22-1410. Making, drawing, or uttering check, draft, or order with intent to defraud—Proof of intent—"Credit" defined.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Elements of crime .50
Instructions 1.50
Recovery on bond 4.50

.50. Elements of crime

False representation, knowledge of falsity, and intent to defraud are sufficient to violate bad check statute when representation involves worthless check. S. J. Ciullo v. United States (1963, 325 F. 2d 227, —— U.S. App. D.C. ——).

1.50. Instructions

Refusal to charge, in prosecution for false pretenses, on lesser included offense of passing bad check was not error where defense testimony disclosed something had been obtained for value and that defrauded party had placed reliance on defendant's check. S. J. Ciullo v. United States (1963, 325 F. 2d 227, 117 U.S. App. D.C. 31).

4.50. Recovery on bond

The word "trading" in clause excluding trading loss from coverage of brokers' bond meant buying and selling of securities on customer's account, and loss occurring when brokers' employee accepted order to purchase substantial amount of stock for customer who gave bad check was such a loss. L. Sade et al. v. National Surety Corp. (1962, 203 F. Supp. 680).

Chapter 15.—GAMBLING

§ 22-1501. Lotteries—Promotion—Sale or possession of tickets.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Admissibility of evidence—Arrest, search and seizure 2
Arrest, search and seizure—In general 4
Revocation of operator's permit 24.50

2. Admissibility of evidence—Arrest, search and seizure

Evidence which was seized in room wherein defendant, charged with violations of gambling laws, was arrested was admissible where it was relevant and material, although defendant claimed that others apparently not associated with unlawful venture occupied house and that warrant authorizing search of entire house was too broad in description of premises. J. Minowitz v. United States (1962, 298 F. 2d 682, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 21).

4. Arrest, search and seizure—In general

Personal observations of suspicious conduct of defendant, charged with violations of gambling laws, during careful investigation, together with information received, gave probable cause for issuance of search warrant and warrant for arrest. J. Minowitz v. United States (1962, 298 F. 2d 682, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 21).

24.50. Revocation of operator's permit

Revocation of petitioner's operator's permit for operating motor vehicle in conducting lottery and while possessing numbers slips was an abuse of discretion, where there was no evidence of any threat or danger to the safety of persons or property through petitioner's use of an automobile. H. R. Stoneburner v. G. A. England, Director etc. (D.C. App. 1964, 202 A. 2d 652).

§ 22-1502. Possession of lottery or policy tickets.

2. Admissibility of evidence—Arrest, search and seizure

Evidence which was seized in room wherein defendant, charged with violations of gambling laws, was arrested was admissible where it was relevant and material, although defendant claimed that others apparently not associated with unlawful venture occupied house and that warrant authorizing search of entire house was too broad in description of premises. J. Minowitz v. United States (1962, 298 F. 2d 682, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 21).

3. Arrest, search and seizure

Table drawer from which secretaries and other employees would take paper clips or pencils and which was located in messenger room where defendant, a messenger charged with violating statute prohibiting possession of numbers slips, had been temporarily assigned on daily basis and where he spent only 20 to 25 minutes of each hour was in effect open for common use by other employees of agency, and search of drawer did not violate defendant's right of privacy under the Fourth Amendment. H. H. Freeman v. United States (D.C. App. 1964, 201 A. 2d 22).

4. Arrest, search and seizure—In general

Personal observations of suspicious conduct of defendant, charged with violations of gambling laws, during careful investigation, together with information received, gave probable cause for issuance of search warrant and warrant for arrest. J. Minowitz v. United States (1962, 298 F. 2d 682, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 21).

4.50. Confrontation of informer

Defendant, accused of receiving stolen goods and of possession of lottery tickets, was not entitled to confront and cross-examine informer, upon whose information search warrant was in part based, where warrant was issued upon an ample showing of probable cause. O. M. Madre v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 173 A. 2d 917).

17. Sufficiency of evidence

Evidence sustained conviction of receiving stolen goods. O. M. Madre v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 173 A. 2d 917).

§ 22–1505. Gambling premises—Definition—Prohibition against maintaining—Forfeiture—Liens—Deposit of moneys in Treasury—Penalty—Subsequent Offenses.

* * * * *

(c) All moneys, vehicles, furnishings, fixtures, equipment, stock (including, without limitation, furnishings and fixtures adaptable to nongambling uses, and equipment and stock for printing, recording, computing, transporting, safekeeping, or communication), or other things of value used or to be used—

(1) in carrying on or conducting any lottery, or the game or device commonly known as a policy lottery or policy, contrary to the provisions of section 22–1501;

(2) in setting up or keeping any gaming table, bank, or device contrary to the provisions of 22–1504; or

(3) in maintaining any gambling premises, shall be subject to seizure by any member of the Metropolitan Police force, or the United States Park Police, or the United States marshal, or any deputy marshal, for the District of Columbia, and any property seized regardless of its value shall be proceeded against in the municipal court for the District of Columbia by libel action brought in the name of the District of Columbia by the Corporation Counsel or any of his assistants, and shall, unless good cause be shown to the contrary, be forfeited to the District of Columbia and shall be made available for the use of any agency of the government of the District of Columbia, or otherwise disposed of as the Commissioners of the District of Columbia may, by order or by regulation, provide: Provided, That if there be bona fide liens against the property so forfeited, then such property shall be disposed of by public auction. The proceeds of the sale of such property shall be available, first, for the payment of all expenses incident to such sale; and, second, for the payment of such liens; and the remainder shall be deposited in the Treasury of the United States to the credit of the District of Columbia. To the extent necessary, liens against said property so forfeited shall, on good cause shown by the lienor, be transferred from the property to the proceeds of the sale of the property.

Change of Name

Act Oct. 23, 1962, section 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1963, changed the name of the Municipal Court for the District of Columbia to "District of Columbia Court of General Sessions". See section 11–751a.

Amendment

1961—Section 1 of act Sept. 21, 1961, amended subsection (c) so as to give the Municipal Court for the District of Columbia jurisdiction over libel actions involving such seized property regardless of its value and also providing that the action be brought in the name of the District of Columbia by the Corporation Counsel or any of his assistants. The act made other amendments as well. See original subsection (c) in main volume.

Construction of Act Sept. 21, 1961, and Delegation of Authority

Section 2 of act Sept 21, 1961, provided that: "This Act [amending subsection (c)] shall not be considered as affecting the authority vested in the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia by Reorganization Plan Numbered 5 of 1952 (66 Stat. 824), and the performance of any function vested by said plan in the Board of Commissioners or in any office or agency under the jurisdiction and control of said Board of Commissioners shall continue to be subject to delegation by said Board of Commissioners in accordance with section 3 of such plan. Any function vested by this Act in any agency established pursuant to such plan shall be deemed to be vested in said Board of Commissioners and shall be subject to delegation in accordance with said plan."

2. Arrest, search and seizure

Personal observations of suspicious conduct of defendant, charged with violations of gambling laws, during careful investigation, together with information received, gave probable cause for issuance of search warrant and warrant for arrest. J. Minowitz v. United States (1962, 298 F. 2d 682, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 21).

4. Evidence—Admissibility

Evidence which was seized in room wherein defendant, charged with violations of gambling laws, was arrested was admissible where it was relevant and material, although defendant claimed that others apparently not associated with unlawful venture occupied house and that warrant authorizing search of entire house was too broad in description of premises. J. Minowitz v. United States (1962, 298 F. 2d 682, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 21).

12.50. Public auction

Even though sale at public auction, of motor vehicle seized because it was used for gambling purposes in violation of law, would result in insufficient funds to fully discharge lien, court was without power to direct transfer in specie as alternative to auction sale directed by statute. General Motors Acceptance Corp. v. One 1962 Chevrolet Sedan, etc. (D.C. App. 1963, 191 A. 2d 140).

3. Arrest without warrant

Probable cause is not to be evaluated from remote vantage point of library but from viewpoint of prudent and cautious police officer on scene at time, and question to be answered is whether such an officer, in particular circumstances, conditioned by his observations and information and guided by whole of his police experience, reasonably could have believed that crime had been committed by person to be arrested. S. Jackson, Jr. v. United States (1962, 302 F. 2d 194, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 260).

Police are entitled to rely upon hearsay and upon various other factors which would not be admissible in evidence against accused at trial in determining whether there is probable cause for arrest. Id.

Total information available to officers, with respect to defendant charged with housebreaking and grand larceny, including separate accusations by two persons that he had been source of stolen gun, together with one of their recollections of rhinestone bracelet in defendant's closet, matching description of similar object on list of stolen property, reasonably warranted a belief that he had probably committed felonious acts in which gun and bracelet were originally stolen, and such, together with practical necessities of pursuit, justified his arrest without warrant. Id.

3.50. Corpus delicti

Corpus delicti under count charging homicide in perpetration of a housebreaking did not require independent proof that death occurred in perpetration of housebreaking. United States v. J. A. Naples (1961, 192 F. Supp. 23; rev'd 307 F. 2d 618).

3.51. Corroboration of evidence

In prosecution for rape and housebreaking, testimony of complainant's mother relating to telephone call made by complainant immediately after alleged attack was properly received in evidence. B. Smith v. United States, (1962, 312 F. 2d 867, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 140).

5. Evidence—Admissibility

Testimony by police officer concerning a conversation in which co-defendant stated that defendant was with him in a housebreaking was pure hearsay as to defendant and was not admissible against him and should not have been admitted at all when it was no essential part of co-defendant's own confession of guilt, and objection by defendant that testimony was not admissible was adequate, and its admission over objection was prejudicial. D. Kramer v. United States (1963, 317 F. 2d 114, 115 U.S. App. D.C. 50).

Where same evidence was used to connect defendant with crimes charged in counts two, three, and four as was employed in count one, and such evidence was ruled inadmissible on appeal from judgment of conviction on count one, new trial ordered by Court of Appeals for count one, should embrace all four counts. United States v. J. A. Naples (1962, 205 F. Supp. 944).

6. Sufficiency of evidence

In prosecution for housebreaking with intent to commit an assault evidence was sufficient for jury. W. A. Baber v. United States (1963, 324 F. 2d 390, 116 U.S. App. D.C. 358).

Evidence was sufficient to sustain conviction for attempted housebreaking. J. Hart v. United States (D.C. App. 1963, 187 A. 2d 329).

Evidence sustained defendant's conviction of housebreaking and petit larceny. United States v. J. A. Naples (1961, 192 F. Supp. 23; rev'd 307 F. 2d 618).

6.50. Suppression of evidence

Ordinarily, one seeking to challenge legality of search or seizure must establish that he was victim of alleged invasion of privacy. F. Hair & J. I. Burroughs v. United States (1961, 289 F. 2d 894, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 153).

Evidence obtained under warrant issued on basis of observations derived by police officers from illegal entry is inadmissible. Id.

7. Witnesses, evidence

Where prosecution's case rested largely upon testimony of a sole key eyewitness and there was ample ground for suspicion of inconsistencies in eyewitness' identification, trial judge abused his discretion in failing to order production of those parts of the witness' grand jury testimony relating to same subject testified to at trial. W. E. De Binder v. United States (1961, 292 F. 2d 737, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 244).

7.50. Impeachment

In prosecution for rape and housebreaking, wherein defendant admitted sex relations and testified that prosecutrix had consented, prosecutor was properly allowed to impeach defendant's credibility by reading affidavit, which defendant had made as indigent defendant to secure subpoena and in which defendant had stated that witness whom he sought to subpoena could establish alibi for him. B. Smith v. United States (1962, 312 F. 2d 867, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 140).

8. Indictment

Count of indictment charging housebreaking by entry of room with intent to violate Federal Communications Act would, in view of the nature of the offenses and in view of unusual character of punishments specified by Congress for Communications Act violations, be dismissed. United States v. J. J. Frank et al. (1964, 225 F. Supp. 573).

9. Instructions

Failure to charge on unlawful entry in prosecution for housebreaking, an offense which required finding of larcenous intent in addition to elements of unlawful entry, was harmless where jury found defendant guilty of larceny as well as of housebreaking. C. W. Stewart v. United States (1963, 324 F. 2d 443, 116 U.S. App. D.C. 411).

District court in housebreaking prosecution did not err in refusing instruction on lesser offenses, where request was not made until conclusion of charge and did not specify any particular offenses or show their inclusion within offense charged. L. Britton v. United States (1962, 301 F. 2d 531, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 207).

10. Intent

While in some circumstances elements of unlawful entry are comprehended within those of housebreaking, latter requires also finding of larcenous intent. C. W. Stewart v. United States (1963, 324 F. 2d 443, 116 U.S. App. D.C. 411).

11.50. Judicial comment

Comment by court, while co-defendant was on witness stand, that honest people are in bed at 3:00 in the morning was prejudicial and defendant, who was convicted of housebreaking, was entitled to a new trial. R. Cunningham v. United States (1962, 311 F. 2d 772, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 86).

15.50. Voluntary confession

Evidence established that defendant's confession made at jail to police officer was voluntary. United States v. J. A. Naples (1961, 192 F. Supp. 23).

1.50. Bill of particulars

Refusal to grant bill of particulars was not abuse of discretion where informations referred with specificity to times and places of performances claimed to violate obscene exhibitions statute, and defendant revealed complete familiarity with acts charged. S. Yankowitz v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 182 A. 2d 889).

1.51. Consolidation of charges

Defendant could be charged with three offenses of violating obscene exhibitions statute and was not entitled to proceed to trial on but one information, and the three separate informations were properly combined for trial, where there were three separate shows each involving elements essential to support violation of the statute. S. Yankowitz v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 182 A. 2d 889).

3.50. Instructions

Error, if any, in instructing that president of corporation operating restaurant with stage show consisting of three female impersonators could be convicted of violation of obscene exhibitions statute if he knew or should have known nature and character of the "premises" was harmless where jury was explicitly charged that intent was essential element of the crime. S. Yankowitz v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 182 A. 2d 889).

Statement in charge to jury that material charged in indictment was, in court's opinion, actually obscene in eyes of law did not require reversal of obscenity conviction, considering whole charge which left issue of obscenity for jury and stated that judge's comments on evidence were not binding on jury. A. J. Heinecke v. United States (1931, 294 F. 2d 727, 111 U.S. App. D.C. 98).

4.50. Public trial

In prosecution for possessing obscene pictures with intent to exhibit them, defendant's right to a public trial was not denied because when the alleged obscene film was shown in court the public, except newspaper reporters, were excluded. B. W. Lancaster v. United States (1961, 293 F. 2d 519, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 331).

6. Sufficiency of evidence

Evidence sustained conviction of charge of giving or participating, on three separate occasions, in public exhibitions containing obscene, indecent, or lascivious language, postures, or suggestions, or otherwise offending public decency. S. Yankowitz v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 182 A. 2d 889).

28. Witnesses, evidence

Where prosecution's case rested largely upon testimony of a sole key eyewitness and there was ample ground for suspicion of inconsistencies in eyewitness' identification, trial judge abused his discretion in failing to order production of those parts of the witness' grand jury testimony relating to same subject testified to at trial. W. E. De Binder v. United States (1961, 292 F. 2d 737, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 244).

1.50. Arrest without warrant

Probable cause is not to be evaluated from remote vantage point of library but from viewpoint of prudent and cautious police officer on scene at time, and question to be answered is whether such an officer, in particular circumstances conditioned by his observations and information and guided by whole of his police experience, reasonably could have believed that crime had been committed by person to be arrested. *S. Police are entitled to rely upon hearsay and upon various other factors which would not be admissible in evidence against accused at trial in determining whether there is probable cause for arrest. Id.

Total information available to officers, with respect to defendant charged with housebreaking and grand larceny, including separate accusations by two persons that he had been source of stolen gun, together with one of their recollections of rhinestone bracelet in defendant's closet, matching description of similar object on list of stolen property, reasonably warranted a belief that he had probably committed felonious acts in which gun and bracelet were originally stolen, and such, together with practical necessities of pursuit, justified his arrest without warrant. Id.

6. Sufficiency of evidence

Evidence sustained conviction for grand larceny. E. L. Jackson v. United States (1964, 331 F. 2d 816, —— U.S. App. D.C. ——).

Television showroom manager was properly qualified as an expert as to value of television set which was stolen and manager's testimony was sufficient to prove value in excess of $100 as required for conviction for grand larceny. J. Owens v. United States (1963, 318 F. 2d 204, 115 U.S. App. D.C. 233).

9.50. Inconsistent offenses

Under District of Columbia law, grand larceny and false pretenses are not inconsistent offenses. P. A. Skantze v. United States (1961, 288 F. 2d 416, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 14).

12. Instructions

In grand larceny prosecution, instruction on petit larceny was unnecessary where there was nothing in evidence to indicate value of less than $100. W. Chew v. United States (1962, 298 F. 2d 334, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 6).

14.50. Larceny by conversion

One who obtains money from another upon representation that he will perform certain service therewith for the latter, intending at the time to convert the money, and actually converting it, to his own use, is guilty of larceny. P. A. Skantze v. United States (1961, 288 F. 2d 416, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 14).

18.50. Proceeds of check

Embassy employee who, with intent to steal, represented to superiors that money was needed for embassy's cash account and thus procured their signatures to checks, the proceeds of which he kept for himself, falsifying entries in cash journal to cloak transaction, was guilty of false pretenses and grand larceny, under District of Columbia law. P. A. Skantze v. United States (1961, 288 F. 2d 416, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 14).

20.50. Search and seizure

Probable cause for arrest existed when driver of automobile, who started to drive away without his lights on, was stopped by police and dome light showed articles in automobile which had just been reported stolen from another automobile in the area as driver got out to show officers his registration card, and such probable cause was sufficient to support search and seizure of reportedly stolen articles. R. A. Campbell, Jr. v. United States (1961, 289 F. 2d 775, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 109).

§ 22-2202. Petit larceny—Order of restitution.

1. Arrest without warrant

Probable cause is not to be evaluated from remote vantage point of library but from viewpoint of prudent and cautious police officer on scene at time, and question to be answered is whether such an officer, in particular circumstances, conditioned by his observations and information and guided by whole of his police experience, reasonably could have believed that crime had been committed by person to be arrested. *S. 1.50. Attempted petit larceny Attempted petit larceny is not a lesser included offense under petit larceny statute. United States v. R. Pearson (D.C. App. 1964, 202 A. 2d 392).

9. Plea of guilty

Failure to move to withdraw guilty plea to misdemeanor charge made while defendant was 20 years old would not foreclose him from making motion to withdraw plea on contention that it had not been knowingly and intelligently made as he had not understood that he could be sentenced under Youth Corrections Act for longer period than year sentence provided for misdemeanor charge but court reviewing conviction would remand case to give him opportunity to move district court for leave to withdraw plea. R. B. Carter v. United States (1962, 306 F. 2d 283, 113 U.S. App. D.C. 123).

10.50. Prosecutions statements

Prosecution's statement to jury that guilty verdict as to larceny would require guilty verdict as to assault was erroneous but was not plain error which affected substantial rights and, therefore, would not require reversal. C. Harris v. United States (D.C. App. 1964, 201 A. 532).

11.50. Search and seizure

Probable cause for arrest existed when driver of automobile, who started to drive away without his lights on, was stopped by police and dome light showed articles in automobile which had just been reported stolen from another automobile in the area as driver got out to show officers his registration card, and such probable cause was sufficient to support search and seizure of reportedly stolen articles. *R. § 22-2203. Larceny after trust.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Delivery of property .50
Independent contractor 3.50

.50. Delivery of property

For purposes of statute providing punishment for one guilty of larceny after trust, delivery of property to defendant by owner's vendor, acting for owner, was tantamount to delivery by owner; but even if it were not, defendant would not be entitled to acquittal, since statute does not require delivery by owner. United States v. A. Manolias (1961, 190 F. Supp. 234).

3.50. Independent contractor

Independent contractor, who had been entrusted with property and who had complete dominion and control over it for purpose of installing it in connection with electrical work which he had contracted to do, was not a mere custodian of property and could be convicted of larceny after trust. United States v. A. Manolias (1961, 190 F. Supp. 234).

§ 22-2204. Unauthorized use of vehicles.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

4. Evidence

Evidence that fingerprint of defendant, who denied knowledge of the incident, was one of several found on outside of automobile that had been reported missing from dealer's service garage would not permit jury to find beyond a reasonable doubt that defendant was guilty of the unauthorized use of the motor vehicle. E. R. Cephus v. United States (1963, 324 F. 2d 893, 117 U.S. App. D.C. 15).

Evidence was sufficient to show ownership of automobile and corporate existence of owner and to sustain conviction of unauthorized use of automobile without consent of owner. J. C. Dixon v. United States (1961, 292 F. 2d 768, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 275).

Admission of evidence beyond scope of bill of particulars as to date when automobile was first known to be missing was not error, in prosecution for unauthorized use of automobile without consent of owner. Id.

4.50. Inference of guilt

Inference of interstate transportation which may be drawn from unexplained possession of stolen automobile in second state springs from and depends upon prior inference from such possession that possessor had stolen automobile in first state, and this is true even in federal districts where theft itself is not federal offense and is not charged in indictment. T. O. Travers v. United States (1964, 335 F. 2d 698, – U.S. App. D.C. ——). Where permitted inference of guilt of transporting stolen automobile from District of Columbia to Maryland depended on inference that defendant used automobile without authorization in District, defense request for instruction that if jury acquitted of unauthorized use in District it must acquit also of transporting interstate was erroneously denied, and error was prejudicial. Id.

4.51. Instructions

In prosecution for unauthorized use of automobile in District of Columbia and for transporting stolen automobile from District to Maryland, trial judge correctly permitted jury to infer guilt under both counts if it found defendant in possession of stolen automobile in Maryland and was not satisfied with explanation offered, and court correctly added that the longer the interval between the stealing and defendant's being found in possession, the weaker the inference. T. O. Travers v. United States (1964, 335 F. 2d 698, —— U.S. App. D.C. ——).

4.52. New trial

Where defendant was acquitted of unauthorized use of automobile in District of Columbia, reviewing court in setting aside conviction for transporting such automobile from District to Maryland could not remand for new trial on count for interstate transportation by means of inference, already rejected, that defendant used automobile without authorization in the District, but if government represented it had competent evidence of defendant's contact or connection with possession or use of automobile within District new trial could be conducted for interstate transportation. T. O. Travers v. United States (1964, 335 F. 2d 698, —— U.S. App. D.C. ——).

5. Prima facie rule

In prosecution for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle and interstate transportation of a stolen motor vehicle, charge that exclusive and unexplained possession of recently stolen property is "sufficient to support" a verdict of guilty of larceny was inadequate in that it failed to make clear that, if jury found exclusive possession by defendant of recently stolen goods, jury could, but was not required to, find that defendant had stolen the goods. D. C. McKnight v. United States (1962, 309 F. 2d 660, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 40).

6.50. Review

No errors affecting substantial rights occurred in a prosecution for unauthorized use of a vehicle without the owner's consent. R. L. Jenkins v. United States (1963, 324 F. 2d 399, 116 U.S. App. D.C. 367).

3. Evidence—Admissibility

Evidence that defendant, charged with receiving stolen property, had on previous occasion knowingly received stolen property was admissible for limited purpose of showing intent and guilty knowledge. W. J. Blackburn v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 171 A. 2d 254).

3.50. Confrontation of informer

Defendant, accused of receiving stolen goods and of possession of lottery tickets, was not entitled to confront and cross-examine informer, upon whose information search warrant was in part based, where warrant was issued upon an ample showing of probable cause. O. M. Madre v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 173 A. 2d 917).

4. Corroboration

Uncorroborated testimony of shoplifters as to origin and ownership of goods, while normally of questionable reliability, is sufficient, if believed, to warrant conviction for receiving stolen goods. M. A. Payne v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 171 A. 2d 509).

4.50. Guilty knowledge

Accused's knowledge of goods' true character may be inferred from great disparity between sale price and prevailing price for similar or identical goods. M. A. Payne v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 171 A. 2d 509).

5. Sufficiency

Evidence sustained conviction of receiving stolen goods. O. M. Madre v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 173 A. 2d 917).

1. Arraignment

Defendant's convictions for robbery and felony-murder would not be deemed secured through information obtained in violation of rule requiring prompt arraignment, or in violation of due process and speedy trial amendments to the federal Constitution, where defendant was presented in court on day he surrendered, no confession by defendant was introduced against him, evidence established all basic elements of the crimes, and defendant took the stand and described his participation in the robbery and fatal shooting. W. C. Coleman v. United States (1961, 295 F. 2d 555, 111 U.S. App. D.C. 210).

5. Confessions

Defendant accused of homicide failed to sustain burden of proving that his prior statement was improperly admitted at trial on ground that it was made after committing magistrate had failed to comply with rule relating to defendant's right to know charge against him and to retain counsel. E. E. Turberville, B. T. Williams and J. H. Simpson v. United States (1962, 303 F. 2d 411, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 400, cert. denied 82 S. Ct. 1596).

7. Corpus delicti

Corpus delicti under count charging homicide in perpetration of a housebreaking did not require independent proof that death occurred in perpetration of housebreaking. United States v. J. A. Naples (1961, 192 F. Supp. 23; rev'd 307 F. 2d 618).

10. Elements of crime

The distinguishing characterictic of first degree murder is that it is a deliberate, premeditated, intentional killing, while killing in second degree murder may be intentional or unintentional, but it must, in either event, result from a willful and malicious act. P. O. Hansborough v. United States (1962, 308 F. 2d 645, 113 U.S. App. D.C. 392).

11. Admissibility of evidence

Testimony of eyewitness to crime of murder and robbery need not be suppressed because police had learned from defendants during period of illegal detention of the existence and identity of such eyewitness. W. M. Smith, Jr., and R. Bowden v. United States (1963, 324 F. 2d 879, 117 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

Evidence of one defendant's activities prior to alleged homicide was admissible in prosecution of three defendants for such homicide, in view of close proximity, in time, place and persons between such activities and subsequent homicide. E. E. Turberville, B. T. Williams and J. H. Simpson v. United States (1962, 303 F. 2d 411, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 400, cert. denied 82 S. Ct. 1596).

Where same evidence was used to connect defendant with crimes charged in counts two, three and four as was employed in count one, and such evidence was ruled inadmissible on appeal from judgment of conviction on count one, new trial ordered by Court of Appeals for count one, should embrace all four counts. United States v. J. A. Naples (1962, 205 F. Supp. 944).

11.50. Evidence—Burden of proof

Where defendant, accused of murder and robbery, introduced evidence that on date thereof he was suffering from mental disease or defect, it became duty of government to prove him sane beyond reasonable doubt at the time of commission of crimes charged. H. S. Carey v. United States (1961, 296 F. 2d 442, 111 U.S. App. D.C. 300).

12. ——Sufficiency

Evidence sustained conviction for second degree murder. E. E. Turberville, B. T. Williams and J. H. Simpson v. United States (1962, 303 F. 2d 411, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 400, cert. denied 82 S. Ct. 1596).

Evidence sustained conviction for robbery and felony-murder. W. C. Coleman v. United States (1961, 295 F. 2d 555, 111 U.S. App. D.C. 210).

14. Housebreaking

Killing of deceased by defendant as he was securing loot and preparing to leave premises into which he had broken was a homicide committed in perpetration of housebreaking. United States v. J. A. Naples (1961, 192 F. Supp. 23; rev'd 307 F. 2d 618).

15. Indictment

Defendant could be convicted of second degree murder under felony-murder indictment even though indictment failed to allege "malice aforethought", where indictment contained the fully equivalent language that defendant "unlawfully and feloniously did murder" named person "by means of shooting him with a pistol". L. Jackson v.

United States (1962, 313 F. 2d 572, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 181).

Second degree murder is an included offense under an indictment for felony-murder. Id.

An indictment charging a defendant with felony-murder, charged first degree murder, even though indictment omitted an allegation to the effect that accused was of sound memory and discretion. W. C. Coleman v. United States (1961, 295 F. 2d 555, 111 U.S. App. D.C. 210).

An indictment charging first degree murder was not defective, even though it did not contain the phrase "being of sound memory and discretion." W. Jones v. United States (1961, 296 F. 2d 398, 111 U.S. App. D.C. 276).

An allegation of sanity is not required in an indictment. Id.

16. Instructions

Trial judge in instructing jury as to difference between first degree murder and second degree murder, should endeavor to make it absolutely clear to jury that intentional killing may be second degree murder if premeditation and deliberation do not exist. D. Tucker v. United States (1963, 318 F. 2d 221, 115 U.S. App. D.C. 250).

Giving of instruction that second degree murder differs from first degree murder in that it may be committed either without purpose or intent to kill, or without premeditation and deliberation was not prejudicial error, in view of instructions in their entirety, in view of fact that court was careful to distinguish two degrees of murder in important respect that premeditation and deliberation are essential elements of first degree murder, in view of absence of objection or request for additional instruction, and in view of evidence and sentence of life imprisonment. Id.

Any error in submitting lesser included offense of manslaughter in prosecution on charge of first degree murder was not prejudicial when a verdict of manslaughter was not returned. P. O. Hansborough v. United States (1962, 308 F. 2d 645, 113 U.S. App. D.C. 392).

Failing to instruct that jury might return a second degree murder verdict, was not error, in a felony-murder prosecution, where accused and his brother robbed a store proprietor, accused took some money and fled, and in immediate close and continuous pursuit, police officers followed accused up to instant of killing of one of the officers by accused. W. C. Coleman v. United States (1961, 295 F. 2d 555, 111 U.S. App. D.C. 210).

19. Jury

Evidence in homicide prosecution on issue of defendant's defense of insanity was for jury. E. E. Turberville, B. T. Williams and J. H. Simpson v. United States (1962, 303 F. 2d 411, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 400, cert. denied 82 S. Ct. 1596).

Evidence, in felony-murder prosecution, presented jury question as to whether there was such an "arrest" of accused prior to killing of an officer, as to break essential link between the robbery and the killing, and such issue was properly submitted to jury under instructions explaining the issue and what constituted arrest. W. C. Coleman v. United States (1961, 295 F. 2d 555, 111 U.S. App. D.C. 210).

23.50. Prejudicial cross-examination

In murder prosecution wherein sole defense was insanity, and defendant's gibberish testimony was such as to raise issues as to whether defendant feigned such testimony and whether at time of the third trial his mental condition represented his condition at time of act charged, cross-examination disclosing defendant's failure to take stand at two previous trials which resulted in convictions was erroneous and was not harmless but was sufficiently prejudicial to warrant the granting of a mistrial even though defense made no request for cautionary instructions. W. L. Stewart v. United States (1961, 366 U.S. 1, 81 S. Ct. 941; reversing 275 F. 2d 617).

24. Prejudicial error

In prosecution of three defendants for homicide, request by counsel for one defendant that jury return lesser verdict than that charged in indictment was not prejudicial to another defendant who persistently denied any participation in offense, in view of subsequent instructions that evidence be considered separately as to each defendant and defendant's failure to object to such remarks. E. E. Turberville, B. T. Williams and J. H. Simpson v. United States (1962, 303 F. 2d 411, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 400, cert. denied 82 S. Ct. 1596).

35. Verdict

It was within prerogative of jury to acquit, on a felony-murder charge, a codefendant who was not present at scene of the killing, and to return a verdict of guilty of felony-murder as to defendant, even though both defendants were found guilty of the same robbery and even though jury could have returned a felony-murder verdict of guilty as to both defendants. W. C. Coleman v. United States (1961, 295 F. 2d 555, 111 U.S. App. D.C. 210).

37. Voluntary confession

Evidence established that defendant's confession made at jail to police officer was voluntary. United States v. J. A. Naples (1961, 192 F. Supp. 23; rev'd 307 F. 2d 618).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Generally 1
Inconsistent verdicts 5.50
Indictment 6.50
Instructions 7

1. Generally

With certain statutory exceptions, when there is unjustified intentional killing, not premeditated but with malice, the offense is murder in the second degree and the same is true when there is unintentional killing which results from a willful and malicious act other than those specified in the first degree murder statute. P. O. Hansborough v. United States (1962, 308 F. 2d 645, 113 U.S. App. D.C. 392).

Where it could not be determined from evidence whether defendant intended to kill or merely wound his victim and it could not be said from record with legal certainty that interval between fight and the killing which followed was or was not of sufficient duration to provide time for premeditation required for first degree murder, court properly submitted lesser included offense of second degree murder in prosecution under indictment on charge of first degree murder. Id.

5.50. Inconsistent verdicts

Convictions for both robbery and second degree murder could stand even if they were inconsistent where the conviction of robbery was consistent with the evidence and the conviction of second degree murder was also consistent with the evidence. L. Jackson v. United States (1962, 313 F. 2d 572, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 181).

6.50. Indictment

Defendant could be convicted of second degree murder under felony-murder indictment even though indictment failed to allege "malice aforethought", where indictment contained the fully equivalent language that defendant "unlawfully and feloneously did murder" named person "by means of shooting him with a pistol". L. Jackson v. United States (1962, 313 F. 2d 572, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 181).

Second degree murder is an included offense under an indictment for felony-murder. Id.

7. Instructions

Jury should be instructed that "mental disease" or "mental defect" includes any abnormal condition of the mind substantially affecting mental or emotional processes and substantially impairing behavior controls. E. McDonald v. United States (1962, 312 F. 2d 847, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 120, see also, 284 F. 2d 232, 109 U.S. App. D.C. 98).

Jury may be instructed, if there is testimony on point, that mental capacity or lack of it to distinguish right from wrong and ability to refrain from doing wrong or unlawful act may be considered in determining whether there is relationship between mental disease and act charged. Id.

Defendant, who relies on defense of insanity, is entitled to instruction that if acquitted by reason of insanity he will be confined in mental hospital until it is determined that he is no longer dangerous to himself or others, unless it affirmatively appears that defendant does not wish such instruction. Id.

Charge, in prosecution for second-degree murder, considered as a whole, properly conveyed to jury correct rules on murder and manslaughter. B. L. Falls v. United States (1963, 321 F. 2d 762, 116 U.S. App. D.C. 149).

Trial judge in instructing jury as to difference between first degree murder and second degree murder, should endeavor to make it absolutely clear to jury that intentional killing may be second degree murder if premediation and deliberation do not exist. D. Tucker v. United States (1963, 318 F. 2d 221, 115 U.S. App. D.C. 250).

Giving of instruction that second degree murder differs from first degree murder in that it may be committed either without purpose or intent to kill, or without premeditation and deliberation was not prejudicial error, in view of instructions in their entirety, in view of fact that court was careful to distinguish two degrees of murder in important respect that premeditation and deliberation are essential elements of first degree murder, in view of absence of objection or request for additional instruction, and in view of evidence and sentence of life imprisonment. Id.

§ 22–2404. Punishment for murder in first and second degrees.

The punishment of murder in the first degree shall be death by electrocution unless the jury by unanimous vote recommends life imprisonment; or if the jury, having determined by unanimous vote the guilt of the defendant as charged, is unable to agree as to punishment it shall inform the court and the court shall thereupon have jurisdiction to impose and shall impose either a sentence of death by electrocution or life imprisonment.

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, a person convicted of first degree murder and upon whom a sentence of life imprisonment is imposed shall be eligible for parole only after the expiration of twenty years from the date he commences to serve his sentence.

Whoever is guilty of murder in the second degree shall be imprisoned for life or not less than twenty years.

Cases tried prior to March 22, 1962, and which are before the court for the purpose of sentence or resentence shall be governed by the provisions of law in effect prior to March 22, 1962: Provided, That the judge may, in his sole discretion, consider circumstances in mitigation and in aggravation and make a determination as to whether the case in his opinion justifies a sentence of life imprisonment, in which event he shall sentence the defendant to life imprisonment. Such a sentence of life imprisonment shall be in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

In any case tried under this Act as amended where the penalty prescribed by law upon conviction of the defendant is death except in cases otherwise provided, the jury returning a verdict of guilty may by unanimous vote fix the punishment at life imprisonment; and thereupon the court shall sentence him accordingly; but if the jury shall not thus prescribe the punishment the court shall sentence the defendant to suffer death by electrocution unless the jury by its verdict indicates that it is unable to agree upon the punishment, in which case the court shall sentence the defendant to death or life imprisonment. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1321, ch. 854, § 801; Jan. 30, 1925, 43 Stat. 798, ch. 115, § 1; Mar. 22, 1962, 76 Stat. 46, Pub. L. 87–423, § 1.)

Amendment

Act Mar. 22, 1962, amended section to read as above set out. Prior to this amendment the section read as follows: "The punishment of murder in the first degree shall be death by electrocution. The punishment of murder in the second degree shall be imprisonment for life, or for not less than twenty years."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Jurisdiction 3.48
Jury questions 3.49
Prejudicial cross-examination 3.50
Sentence 4.49
Sentence under prior statute 4.50

2.50. Hearing on mental condition

Where, following denial of certiorari by United States Supreme Court, defendant had moved both for reduction of death sentence and for a mental examination to determine unsoundness of mind based upon unrefuted affidavit of defendant's sister, district court should have caused to be developed adequate information as to the defendant's present mental condition before giving consideration to the motion in mitigation. W. Jones v. United States (1963, 327 F. 2d 867, 117 U.S. App. D.C. 169).

Investigation conducted by court through three court-appointed psychiatrists who had merely talked to defendant through cell bars for a brief time when defendant refused to cooperate with them formed no adequate basis for establishing truth or falsity of allegation of post-conviction unsoundness of mind contained in unrefuted affidavit of defendant's sister and required remand for further proceedings. Id.

3.48. Jurisdiction

The District of Columbia is not wtihin the "special maritime and territorial jurisdiction of the United States" within meaning of federal homicide statute, and murder prosecution and sentence predicated upon acts assertedly committed within District of Columbia is properly under district statute and not federal statute. W. C. Coleman v. United States (1964, 334 F. 2d 558, —— U.S. App. D.C. ——).

Challenge made for first time to Court of Appeals that judge who pronounced original sentence in homicide case was only judge competent to hear and act upon motions to reduce sentence or to vacate sentence came too late. Id.

Judge who deemed himself competent to act upon post trial motions to reduce sentence and vacate sentence, after judge who had pronounced sentence retired and undertock no new assignments, was not disqualified from passing upon motions predicated upon proviso permitting life sentences in murder cases before court for sentence or resentence by fact that he was not judge who had originally presided. Id.

3.49. Jury questions

Question of guilt of murder and question of punishment were properly submitted together, defendant being permitted to introduce character testimony, possibly relevant to choice of sentences, before submission. United States v. J. A. White (1963, 225 Supp. 514).

3.50 Prejudicial cross-examination

In murder prosecution wherein sole defense was insanity, and defendant's gibberish testimony was such as to raise issues as to whether defendant feigned such testimony and whether at time of the third trial his mental condition represented his condition at time of act charged, cross-examination disclosing defendant's failure to take stand at two previous trials which resulted in convictions was erroneous and was not harmless but was sufficiently prejudicial to warrant the granting of a mistrial even though defense made no request for cautionary instructions. W. L. Stewart v. United States (1961, 366 U.S. 1, 81 S. Ct. 941; reversing 275 F. 2d 617).

4.49. Sentence

Under statutory proviso that in homicide cases tried prior to March 22, 1962, and before court for sentence or resentence, judge, in sole discretion, may consider circumstances in mitigation and aggravation and make determination of whether case justifies life sentence while facts of crime are not without bearing, purpose is directed to possible existence of circumstances in mitigation, not of the crime, per se, but of punishment. W. C. Coleman v. United States (1964, 334 F. 2d 558, —— U.S. App. D.C. ——).

Under statutory proviso that in homicide cases tried prior to March 22, 1962, and before court for sentence or resentence, judge, in sole discretion, may consider circumstances in mitigation and aggravation and make determination of whether case justifies life sentence, judge was not circumscribed in inquiry he was intended to make. Id.

Under statutory proviso that in homicide cases tried prior to March 22, 1962, and before court for sentence or resentence, judge, in sole discretion, may consider circumstances in mitigation and aggravation and make determination of whether case justifies life sentence, Congress intended and due process considerations required appropriate hearing as to all factors bearing upon choice of sentences, and failure to accord hearing required reversal. Id.

4.50. Sentence under prior statute

Statute prospectively allowing for a sentence of life imprisonment for first degree murder on the unanimous recommendation of the jury, and authorizing the judge to decide between life imprisonment and electrocution if the jury should be unable to agree on a punishment did not impliedly vacate unexecuted death sentences imposed under prior mandatory death statute. W. Jones v. United States (1963, 327 F. 2d 867, 117 U.S. App. D.C. 169).

Where defendant had been convicted and given mandatory death sentence in 1959 under the then applicable statute and where, prior to execution thereof, court had become authorized by statute to exercise its discretion to consider circumstances in mitigation and to reduce to life imprisonment death sentences imposed under the prior mandatory statute, court had power to take into account whatever considerations it felt should be allowed weight in deciding the question of whether the accused should or should not be capitally punished. Id.

§ 22-2405. Punishment for manslaughter.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Confession .50
Instructions 3.50
Right to counsel 7

.50. Confession

Oral, post-preliminary hearing confession which was obtained from defendant while he was held in jail and before he had secured counsel and which reaffirmed day old confession which was inadmissible because it was procured in violation of rule requiring defendant to be taken before committing magistrate without unnecessary delay was inadmissible. J. W. Killough v. United States (1962, 315 F. 2d 241, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 305).

Even though admission of oral post-arraignment confession was reversible error because it was fruit of illegal prearraignment confession, Court of Appeals would not set defendant free but reverse and remand for new trial. Id.

Oral confession following closely after earlier confession which is inadmissible for violation of rule requiring defendant to be brought before committing magistrate without unnecessary delay gives rise to rebuttable presumption that second is "fruit" of the first. Id.

Confession secured from defendant during thirty-four-hour period between his arrest and his appearance before commissioner would be suppressed because of such delay. United States v. J. W. Killough (1961, 193 F. Supp. 905).

Any confessions which result from illegal detention, no matter how voluntary or trustworthy, are excluded from evidence. Id.

A defendant's second confession, after appearance before a commissioner, following illegal detention, could not be excluded on theory it was product of a deliberate police attempt to subvert Rules of Criminal Procedure, where the confession was made to a police officer who did not approach defendant with purpose of securing a reaffirmation of invalid confessions defendant made prior to appearance before a committing magistrate. Id.

3.50. Instructions

Charge, in presecution for second degree murder, considered as a whole, properly conveyed to jury correct rules on murder and manslaughter. B. L. Falls v. United States (1963, 321 F. 2d 762, 116 U.S. App. D.C. 149).

7. Right to counsel

Police can interrogate a suspect before giving him an opportunity to secure counsel. United States v. J. W. Killough (1961, 193 F. Supp. 905).

Action of an official in allowing a police officer to see defendant during adjournment of a preliminary hearing, but before he had seen counsel was not a violation of the commitment order, the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, and the constitutional bar against self-incrimination and guarantee of right to counsel, and did not render admissions made by defendant during such conversation inadmissible. Id.

The Rules of Criminal Procedure give an accused who has funds to hire counsel the right to do so, and right to have a preliminary hearing, should he desire one with counsel's assistance, postponed until he secures that assistance.

Constitutional privilege against self-incrimination did not give illegally detained defendant an absolute right to see counsel before a valid confession could be given by him, or to have counsel present with him at time he made a confession. Id.

Sufficiency of indictment 23.50

2.50. Attorney's oath

Falsely taking oath of admission pursuant to Municipal Court Civil Rule, which states what persons the bar of the Municipal Court should consist of and prescribes oath or affirmation to be taken by such person, violated statute proscribing perjury and subornation of perjury. Morgan v. United States (1962, 309 F. 2d 234, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 13).

20.50. Predication of indictment

A perjury indictment could not be grounded upon a knowingly false answer to a question placed by superintendent of insurance, in an application for a license to act as an insurance solicitor. C. S. Nelson v. United States (1961, 288 F. 2d 376, 109 U.S. App. D.C. 392).

23.50. Sufficiency of indictment

Indictment charging defendant generally in statutory language, with three counts of perjury, would be deemed sufficient, especially where record indicated that defendant had not been misled or prejudiced in his defense, and had not moved for a bill of particulars. C. S. Nelson v. United States (1961, 288 F. 2d 376, 109 U.S. App. D.C. 392).

4. Evidence

Evidence sustained convictions for soliciting for lewd and immoral purposes. Willis and Thompson v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1964, 198 A. 2d 751).

Defendants' testimony did not support claim of entrapment as a matter of law. Id.

Evidence sustained conviction of soliciting for purpose of prostitution. R. Golden v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 167 A. 2d 796).

8. Corroboration of evidence

Trial court could properly find defendant guilty of soliciting for lewd and immoral purpose on testimony of officer, uncontradicted as to time and place, that he noticed defendant, dressed in female attire, motioning him to curb, that defendant offered to perform act of perversion for stated amount, corroborated by testimony of another officer who saw defendant conversing with arresting officer, where there was no evidence introduced of defendant's good character or denial that he was dressed in female attire. H. H. Berneau v. United States (D.C. App. 1963, 188 A. 2d 301).

Conviction for soliciting another male for a lewd and immoral purpose was based on sufficient corroboration as to time, place and circumstances. N. H. Alexander v. United States (D.C. App. 1963, 187 A. 2d 901).

18.50. Sentence

Review of vagrancy convictions was not necessary when sentences for vagrancy were ordered to run concurrently with proper sentences for soliciting for lewd and immoral purposes. Willis and Thompson v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1964, 198 A. 2d 751).

Defendant was not entitled to relief from sentence imposed upon failure to pay fine imposed in addition to maximum imprisonment authorized as punishment on any theory that if she were indigent, alternative sentence coupled with primary sentence would be tantamount to sentence in excess of that authorized and that court should have, as part of sentencing procedure, inquired into her ability to pay where record revealed nothing as to her financial resources, she did not claim inability to pay fine, and there was nothing to indicate that court used alternative sentence to accomplish imprisonment for term longer than permitted by statute. D. Henderson v. United States (D.C. App. 1963, 189 A. 2d 132).

§ 22-2705. Pandering—Inducing or compelling female to become prostitute or engage in prostitution—Penalty.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

3.50. Instructions

Where trial court had not reviewed or commented upon evidence in his charge to jury and elements essential to convict were explained without reference to any aspect of evidence and counsel prior to charge failed to formulate desired instruction, refusing oral request that the charge be enlarged to include a specific reference to defendant's theory of the evidence was not reversible error. C. O. Clarke v. United States (1962, 301 F. 2d 543, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 219).

§ 22-2707. Procurer—Punishment for receiving money or other valuable thing for arranging assignation or debauchery—Penalty.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

9.50. Fair trial

Defendants were not denied fair trial in prosecutions for violating Mann Act and for receiving money for arranging for acts of prostitution, because of actions of trial court and Assistant United States Attorney. J. A. Fabianich and M. E. Fabianich v. United States (1962, 302 F. 2d 904, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 319).

Sentences were valid, though trial court allegedly erred in denying motions for acquittal on certain counts, where there were concurrent sentences, and convictions under other courts were not challenged. Id.

§ 22-2722. Keeping bawdy or disorderly houses.

Whoever is convicted of an affray or of keeping a bawdy or disorderly house in the District shall be fined not more than $500 or imprisoned not more than one year, or both. (As amended Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 617, Pub. L. 88-241, § 11(a).)

Evidence 4

2. Arrest

Affidavits supporting application for warrant for arrest for operation of disorderly house alleged sufficient facts to establish probable cause for arrest. W. H. Wood and M. J. Blue v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 183 A. 2d 563).

Where apparent facts set out in affidavits supporting application for warrant for arrest are such that reasonably discreet and prudent man would be lead to believe that offense charged was committed, there is probable cause justifying issuance of warrant; determination whether offense has been committed or evidence tendered is so strong as to justify ultimate conviction is not necessary. Id.

Parade of males into defendant's apartment and her past criminal record as convicted madam and vagrant provided adequate justification for issuance of warrant for arrest resulting in prosecution for keeping disorderly house. C. J. Bennett, etc. v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 171 A. 2d 252).

3.50. Disorderly house

"Disorderly house" is one where acts are performed which tend to corrupt morals of community or promote breaches of peace. M. A. Payne v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 171 A. 2d 509).

Elements necessary to sustain conviction for maintaining disorderly house are that acts are contrary to law and subversive of public morals, that house is commonly resorted to for commission of such acts, and that proprietor knows, or should in reason, know facts and either procures it to be done, connives at it, or does not prevent it. Id.

Conduct sufficient to sustain conviction for maintaining disorderly house need not disrupt peace and quiet or be open to public observation so long as it would be offensive to public sensibilities if its presence in community were generally known. Id.

4. Evidence

Registration cards seized in search of tourist home in connection with arrest for operating it as disorderly house were admissible as having direct bearing upon the operation. W. H. Wood and M. J. Blue v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 183 A. 2d. 563).

Use of chart, which was not admitted as exhibit or taken to jury room, in connection with testimony concerning registration cards taken from tourist home allegedly used as disorderly house, in order that jury could more conveniently view, during trial, information on cards, was not prejudicial. Id.

Evidence supported conviction for operating as a disorderly house a tourist home to which constant stream of couples came, especially late at night, on foot, in taxis, or by private automobile, without luggage and in many instances oddly dressed and at which they stayed for brief periods not exceeding two and one-half hours. Id.

Evidence sustained conviction for keeping disorderly house. C. J. Bennett, etc. v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 171 A. 2d 252).

Evidence sustained conviction of maintaining disorderly house. M. A. Payne v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 171 A. 2d 509).

Testimony on single act of prostitution in house and unlawful sales prior to period specified in information were admissible in prosecution for maintaining disorderly house. Id.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Corroboration of evidence 11
Sufficiency 15
Evidence—Suppression 15.50
Impeachment 13.50
Prejudicial remarks 20.50

11. Corroboration of evidence

The failure to instruct that corroboration of identity was required in proof of rape required reversal of conviction as to a defendant who preserved the issue by motion for judgment of acquittal at close of plaintiff's evidence and as to whom corroboration was then lacking; however, allowing case against two codefendants to go to jury without such instruction was not plain error, where the two codefendants did not except to court's charge on corroboration of identity and there was evidence in government's case on which jury could have found corroboration as to the two codefendants. Franklin, Price and Brooks v. United States (1964, 330 F. 2d 205, 117 U.S. App. D.C. 331).

Where government's own evidence showed that victim was raped several times, merely showing that she was raped was no corroboration of a defendant as one of the offenders. Id.

In prosecution for rape and housebreaking, testimony of complainant's mother relating to telephone call made by complainant immediately after alleged attack was properly received in evidence. B. Smith v. United States (1962, 312 F. 2d 867, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 140).

13.50. Impeachment

In prosecution for rape and housebreaking, wherein defendant admitted sex relations and testified that prosecutrix had consented, prosecutor was properly allowed to impeach defendant's credibility by reading affidavit, which defendant had made as indigent defendant to secure subpoena and in which defendant had stated that witness whom he sought to subpoena could establish alibi for him. B. Smith v. United States (1962, 312 F. 2d 867, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 140).

15. Sufficiency

Whether evidence of joint participation in rape was sufficient and whether instruction on subject was deficient did not have to be determined where evidence indicated that certain defendants did commit rape and that the other defendant aided and abetted. Franklin, Price and Brooks v. United States (1964, 330 F. 2d 205, 117 U.S. App. D.C. 331).

15.50. Evidence—Suppression

Ordinarily, one seeking to challenge legality of search or seizure must establish that he was victim of alleged invasion of privacy. F. Hair & J. I. Burroughs v. United States (1961, 289 F. 2d 894, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 153).

Evidence obtained under warrant issued on basis of observations derived by police officers from illegal entry is inadmissible. Id.

20.50. Prejudicial remarks

In prosecution for rape and housebreaking, prosecutor's remark to jury as to defendant's objection to admission of hospital records of physical examination of prosecutrix was improper and required new trial where records were not admitted and examination in fact showed no evidence of rape, and thus any possible or probable implication to jury that such records would be damaging to defendant was misleading. B. Smith v. United States (1962, 312 F. 2d 867, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 140).

1. Assistance of counsel

Failure of United States Commissioner to assign counsel to defendant at preliminary proceeding and use at trial of testimony that defendant had confessed to police after the preliminary hearing had been continued for four weeks could not serve as a basis for reversal of conviction where neither point had been raised in district court, no objection had been made upon introduction of the defendant's oral confession, and no relief had been asked below. L. Moon, Jr. v. United States (1963, 317 F. 2d 544, 115 U.S. App. D.C. 133).

3.50. Cross-examination

Cross-examination of defendant's wife, concerning her alleged statements to officers, although she had said nothing of these matters on direct examination and they did not directly challenge her direct testimony, was not proper on any ground and required reversal, despite sufficiency of other evidence and lack of objection, and was not cured by instruction that testimony could be considered only on question of wife's credibility. C. Dixon v. United States (1962, 303 F. 2d 226, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 366).

6. Elements of offense

Robbery conviction requires proof of taking from person of another by sudden or stealthy seizure or snatching, or by putting in fear. G. R. Hunt v. United States (1963, 316 F. 2d 642, 115 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

7. Evidence—Admissibility

Evidence that defendant, who was charged with robbery, at time of his apprehension had in his possession an automobile driver's license bearing a name other than his own was irrelevant, but admission of such evidence did not require a reversal when jury trial was waived and evidence of guilt was strong. L. Fennel v. United States (1963, 320 F. 2d 784, 116 U.S. App. D.C. 62).

8. Burden of proof

Where defendant, accused of murder and robbery, introduced evidence that on date thereof he was suffering from mental disease or defect, it became duty of government to prove him sane beyond reasonable doubt at the time of commission of crimes charged. H. S. Carey v. United States (1961, 296 F. 2d 422, 111 U.S. App. D.C. 300).

10. Production of evidence

In robbery prosecution, wherein after direct examination of witness called by the United States was concluded, defendant moved for production of witness' statement made to the police, and when prosecutor indicated he did not have the statement court told counsel to ask policeman for the statement when he "takes the stand," such action was error since the statute requires production of witness' statement for use in his cross-examination, and court by its action required defendant's counsel to proceed with cross-examination of witness without it. W. H. Leach v. United States (1963, 320 F. 2d 670, 115 U.S. App. D.C. 351).

In robbery prosecution, wherein after direct examination of witness called by the United States was concluded, defendant moved for production of witness' statement made to police, error in instructing counsel to ask policeman for statement when he "takes the stand" was harmless where when policeman took the stand entire police file was produced and made available to defense counsel, and after counsel read the file, the matter of the statement was not pursued. Id.

11. Sufficiency of evidence

Evidence was sufficient to permit convictions under indictment charging robbery and assault with intent to commit robbery. J. Rogers and H. Waldon v. United States (1963, 318 F. 2d 223, 115 U.S. App. D.C. 252).

Evidence sustained conviction for robbery. R. X. Williams v. United States (1963, 321 F. 2d 744, 116 U.S. App. D.C. 131).

12. Suppression of evidence

Ordinarily, one seeking to challenge legality of search or seizure must establish that he was victim of alleged invasion of privacy. F. Hair & J. I. Burroughs v. United States (1961, 289 F. 2d 894, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 153).

Evidence obtained under warrent issued on basis of observations derived by police officers from illegal entry is inadmissible. Id.

15.50. Inconsistent verdicts

Convictions for both robbery and second degree murder could stand even if they were inconsistent where the conviction of robbery was consistent with the evidence and the conviction of second degree murder was also consistent with the evidence. L. Jackson v. United States (1962, 313 F. 2d 572, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 181).

16. Indictment

Crimes of robbery and of attempted robbery are similar in nature and joinder in indictment is permissible. N. L. Drew v. United States (1964, 331 F. 2d 85, —— U.S. App. D.C. ——).

17. Instructions

Instruction in robbery prosecution, wherein there was no direct evidence that complaining witness' wallet had been stolen but witness testified that he had felt a slight jostle and had been told that two people were running down street, that verdict would be relatively simple to arrive at once jury decided which of witnesses were telling truth, was plain error requiring reversal, there being no instruction that different inferences might be drawn from complaining witness' testimony even if it were believed. L. C. Miller, Jr. v. United States (1963, 320 F. 2d 767, 116 U.S. App. D.C. 45).

Had defendant, who was charged with taking billfold from pocketbook, but who, upon search conducted immediately after alleged robbery, was not found to have billfold, requested charge on lesser included offense of attempted robbery, its denial would have been reversible error, but failure to give instruction was not plain error. R. X. Williams v. United States (1963, 321 F. 2d 744, 116 U.S. App. D.C. 131).

Failure to give instruction on circumstantial evidence to effect that unless there is substantial evidence of facts which exclude every reasonable hypothesis but that of guilt, verdict must be not guilty was not plain error in robbery case. Id.

Instructions which may have implied that jury could infer guilt from circumstances without first resolving conflicts in testimony over whether circumstances had actually occurred were not plain error in view of charge considered as whole. Id.

19. New trial

Since evidence was sufficient to raise jury issue as to robbery, new trial, ordered because of trial court's error in refusing to instruct jury on lesser included offense of larceny, would not be limited to larceny charge only. E. A, Graves v. United States (1963, 318 F. 2d 265, 115 U.S. App. D.C. 294).

19.50. "Person" defined

Victim of homicide, even though dead, was "person" within robbery statute under circumstances where time interval between stabbing and taking of money from her body was short, and even if intent of taking money did not occur until after she was dead perpetrator could properly be convicted of robbery. H. S. Carey v. United States (1961, 296 F. 2d 422, 111 U.S .App. D.C. 300).

19.51. Prejudicial error

Denial of motion of defendant that court obtain assistance of medical expert to examine witness, who identified defendant as robber, and who allegedly had defective eyesight, and to testify concerning vision of witness was not prejudicial error, where matter of vision of witness was adequately explored on cross-examination, and there was other strong identifying testimony. E. G. Robinson v. United States (1963, 318 F. 2d 272, 115 U.S. App. D.C. 301).

20.50. Pre-sentence investigation

Imposition of maximum sentence just after guilty verdicts were rendered against defendants, one of whom was 21 years of age and the other 19 years of age, was improper, vacation of sentences at suggestion of United States and reimposition thereafter of same sentences was not curative of procedure followed, sentences must be vacated and pre-sentence investigation must be made with opportunity to present information in mitigation of punishment. Peters and Mills v. United States (1962, 307 F. 2d 193, 113 U.S. App. D.C. 236).

22. Questions for jury

Jury was justified in finding that assault with intent to commit robbery and robbery were not product of alleged mental disease of defendant, where psychiatrist testified that defendant was suffering from low grade mental illness predisposing to psychosis particularly when defendant was under influence of large amounts of alcohol, and evidence indicated that defendant was completely sober at time of alleged offenses. T. Hawkins v. United States (1962, 310 F. 2d 849, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 44).

Evidence upon question whether defendant was not guilty of robbery by reason of insanity was sufficient to raise jury question. E. C. Campbell v. United States (1962, 307 F. 2d 597, 113 U.S. App. D.C. 260).

26. Sentence

Under statute providing that sentence begins to run from date prisoner is received at penal institution for service of sentence, sentence was not illegal, within rule providing that court may correct illegal sentence at any time, merely because court in imposing maximum sentence for robbery gave no credit for time spent in custody before sentence. T. Williams v. United States (1964, 335 F. 2d 290, —— U.S. App. D.C. ——).

Where sentence imposed was within that allowed by statute, relief was available to defendant, in absence of relief at hands of district court, only in executive branch of government. Id.

Where at time of sentence upon robbery conviction defendant stated to court that he was "under a psychiatrist for one year" in 1935, that he "had a mental disorder from 1952," that he was "under a doctor in the state prison at Trenton" in 1952, and that all but 63 days of the past 31 years, since he was 19 years old, he had spent in various prisons, and court imposed the maximum penalty without responding to defendant's request for a mental examination prior to sentence, case would be remanded to district court for reconsideration of the sentence. Wm. H. Leach v. United States (1963, 320 F. 2d 670, 115 U.S. App. D.C. 351).

On remand for consideration of sentence, district court refused to disturb sentence previously imposed on defendant, who has extensive criminal record, following a third conviction for armed robbery, in view of probation office report failing to refer defendant to legal psychiatric services and recommending that probation be denied and evidence which failed to indicate that defendant was suffering from mental disease. United States v. W. H. Leach (1963, 218 F. Supp. 271).

27. Trial procedure

Viewed in context of whole charge, trial court's statements refusing to accept note that jury was deadlocked after only two hours deliberation and that jury should resume deliberations the next day were not coercive or an improper comment upon the evidence to jury which found defendant guilty on robbery count and not guilty on count charging assault with intent to commit robbery. M. C. Jenkins v. United States (1964, 330 F. 2d 220, 117 U.S. App. D.C. 346).

28.50. Validity of arrest

Allegations of lack of probable cause for defendant's arrest were not sufficient to warrant remand for hearing on that issue, where only attack on arrest related to reliability of informant upon whose lead defendants were arrested for robbery and informant's reliability had been established at a hearing in a related case W. Cooper and V. Cooper v. United States (1963, 331 F. 2d 776, —— U.S. App. D.C. ——).

§ 22-2902. Attempt to commit robbery.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

3. Indictment

There was prejudice in joinder of crimes of robbery and attempted robbery and separate trials should have been granted, where the similarities were not so close that proof of one crime would establish proof of the other if there were separate trials, and the jury was confused and was unable to treat the evidence relevant to each charge separately and distinctly. Nathan L. Drew v. United States (1964, 331 F. 2d 85, —— U.S. App. D.C. ——).

Chapter 31.—TRESPASS—INJURIES TO PROPERTY

§ 22-3102. Unlawful entry on property.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Abuse of discretion .50
Diplomatic immunity .51
Reasonable cause for arrest 6

.50. Abuse of discretion

Record did not disclose abuse of discretion in denial of defendants' motion for new trial in prosecution for unlawful entry. A. Fatemi et al. v. United States (D.C. App. 1963, 192 A. 2d 525).

.51. Diplomatic immunity

District of Columbia police had authority to enter embassy and arrest foreign nationals, who had no claim to immunity and who were violating local law by trespassing in embassy, at Minister's request. A. Fatemi et al. v. United States (D.C. App. 1963, 192 A. 2d 525).

6. Reasonable cause for arrest

Court in prosecution for unlawful entry was not required to inquire into legality or illegality of defendant's arrest, where no evidence was obtained as result of arrest. L. E. Smith v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 173 A. 2d 739).

§ 22-3112. Destroying or defacing buildings, statues, monuments, offices, dwellings, and structures.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Prosecutions by United States Attorney 3.50
Variance in proof 5

3.50. Prosecutions by United States Attorney

United States Attorney for District of Columbia rather than Corporation Counsel for District was the attorney who should prosecute offense of destroying private property in violation of the District of Columbia Code, where the offense was punishable by fine not to exceed $100, or imprisonment not to exceed six months, or both. District of Columbia v. Moody, Hill and Hamilton (1962, 304 F. 2d 943, 113 U.S. App. D.C. 67).

5. Variance in proof

There was no fatal variance between information charging defendant with defacing doors of elevator in private building by drawing, marking and writing sign or figure thereon and proof which showed that defendant, who did not ask for any further particulars, put stickers on door. J. Patler, etc. v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 171 A. 2d 508).

Chapter 32.—WEAPONS

§ 22-3204. Carrying concealed weapons.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Construction with other laws 4
Illegal search 9.50
Search and seizure 19.50
Sentences 21
Probable cause for arrest 22

4. Construction with other laws

The statute making it a crime for a person to carry "elsewhere" than in his home "or place of business or on land possessed by him a pistol without a license * * * or any deadly or dangerous weapon capable of being so concealed," and the statute prohibiting possession "anywhere" with intent to use unlawfully against another an imitation pistol reflect the purpose of Congress to strengthen the existing law and tighten controls over the possession of dangerous weapons and each has distinctive objects of correction. United States v. J. H. Parker (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 185 A. 2d 913).

The statute prohibiting the possession "anywhere" with intent to use unlawfully against another an imitation pistol or other "dangerous weapon" embraces the possession of a real pistol and possession of a pistol may be charged under such statute. Id.

9.50. Illegal search

Impounding of automobile, which motorist had parked in front of police station after being ordered to follow police officers to police precinct, was not authorized under regulation permitting impounding of unattended vehicles found parked in violation of traffic regulation, and pistol discovered in search of automobile was not admissible. D. A. Williams v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 170 A. 2d 233).

19.50. Search and seizure

Police, who received information that there had been a holdup and robbery of a motel and who saw defendant, who was wearing outer clothing fitting description of one of robbers, in a restaurant in vicinity in company of a known felon, and who observed a bulge under defendant's shirt resembling a pistol, had probable cause to arrest and search defendant, and pistol discovered in course of search was admissible in prosecution on charge of carrying a pistol. T. A. Teresi v. United States (D.C. App. 1963, 187 A. 2d 492).

Removal of unlicensed pistol from floor of parked automobile did not constitute an unreasonable search and seizure where officer, who discovered pistol lying in plain view on automobile floor, was making an investigation at scene of reported burglary and after noticing defendant's keys in ignition in violation of law had opened automobile door to remove keys. C. A. Campbell v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 174 A. 2d 87).

21. Sentences

Trial court did not abuse discretion in sentencing defendant, who had entered plea of guilty and whose motions for continuation of bail and for immediate sentencing were denied, to one year imprisonment without crediting him for 52 days which had elapsed between plea of guilty and date on which he was sentenced. R. W. Epperson v. S. A. Anderson, Supt. etc. (1963, 326 F. 2d 665, 117 U.S. App. D.C. 122).

Determination of whether evidence was sufficient to sustain conviction for carrying a dangerous weapon without a license would not be made where defendant was convicted upon sufficient evidence of a different offense and sentences imposed upon defendant for the two offenses ran concurrently. J. Hart v. United States (D.C. App. 1963, 187 A. 2d 329).

22. Probable cause for arrest

Officer had probable cause to believe that housebreaking had been committed and that defendant was offender, so as to justify arrest without warrant in course of which was discovered a pistol giving rise to prosecution for carrying weapon without license, in view of strong belief communicated to officer by one who knew defendant that defendant was one who had broken into such individual's mother's home, and in view of officer's observation and other information he learned from both such individual and defendant, and accordingly pistol was admissible in evidence. J. E. Paris v. United States (1963, 321 F. 2d 378, 116 U.S. App. D.C. 112).

There is a difference between what is required to prove guilt in criminal case and what is required to show probable cause for arrest or search, and, in dealing with probable cause, court deals with probabilities, they are not technical but are factual and practical considerations of everyday life on which reasonable and prudent men, not legal technicians, act. Id.

§ 22-3214. Possession of certain dangerous weapons prohibited—Exceptions.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

1. Construction with other laws

The statute making it a crime for a person to carry "elsewhere" than in his home "or place of business or on land possessed by him a pistol without a license * * * or any deadly or dangerous weapon capable of being so concealed," and the statute prohibiting possession "anywhere" with intent to use unlawfully against another an imitation pistol reflect the purpose of Congress to strengthen the existing law and tighten controls over the possession of dangerous weapons and each has distinctive objects of correction. United States v. J. H. Parker (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 185 A. 2d 913).

The statute prohibiting the possession "anywhere" with intent to use unlawfully against another an imitation pistol or other "dangerous weapon" embraces the possession of a real pistol and possession of a pistol may be charged under such statute. Id.

§ 22-3215. Penalties.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

4. Sentences

Sentences of 360 days for carrying pistol without license was not excessive but was legally permissible under statute providing that applicable penalty was fine of not more than $1,000 or imprisonment for not more than one year, or both. F. R. Gillard v. United States (D.C. App. 1964, 202 A. 2d 776).

A legally permissible sentence is not subject to review or control by District of Columbia Court of Appeals. Id.

Chapter 33.—VAGRANCY

§ 22-3302. "Vagrants" defined.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Admissibility of evidence 8
Authority of police officer 1
Constitutionality 1.50
Evidence 7
Lawful means of support 13
Nature of vagrancy 14
Poverty not a crime 14.50
Purpose 16
Sufficiency of evidence 11

1. Authority of police officer

That, within period of about three weeks, defendant on four occasions at late hours was observed in downtown area many blocks from home, on one occasion was talking to male in dark alley, on another was walking in parking lot, on another was in company of known prostitute, and on another was in company of convicted felon, gave reasonable ground for officer's belief that her presence on streets was not for any legitimate purpose and was sufficient justification for calling upon her to account for her actions and for her arrest where she failed to do so. E. R. Harris v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1963, 192 A. 2d 814).

That defendant was in taxicab when officer stopped her and was not then wandering about streets did not preclude him from stopping her and questioning her, where it could be inferred that hailing and boarding cab were part of effort to avoid questioning by police. Id.

A person found loitering has duty to give a good account of himself. C. H. Kelley v. United States (1961, 298 F. 2d 310, 111 U.S. App. D.C. 396).

1.50. Constitutionality

Statute providing that any person leading "immoral or profligate life" was has no lawful employment and who has no lawful means of support realized from lawful occupation or source is vagrant is not unconstitutional on ground that words "immoral or profligate life" are too vague and uncertain. E. J. Hicks v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1964, 197 A. 2d 154).

7. Evidence

Evidence was insufficient to sustain vagrancy conviction. E. R. Harris v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 167 A. 2d 359).

Evidence sustained conviction of being a vagrant. Y. Pinkney v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 168 A. 2d 198).

8. Admissibility of evidence

Police, who were cruising area, had probable cause to arrest defendant, whom they had previously arrested for narcotics violation, when they saw him with known narcotics user, and evidence seized from person of defendant who, upon request, produced capsules from hand and pocket was admissible. A. O. Freeman v. United States (1963, 322 F. 2d 426, 116 U.S. App. D.C. 213).

Admission of testimony, at trial judge's request, that police officer had previously arrested defendant for narcotics violation was error which was prejudicial to defendant who did not take stand during his prosecution for narcotics violation. Id.

For purposes of showing a continued course of immorality in vagrancy prosecution, prior acts and admissions of defendant showing defendant's acts to be part of a continuous operation were properly admitted. G. Coley etc. v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 177 A. 2d 889).

Evidence sustained finding of habitually immoral conduct on part of defendant and sustained conviction for vagrancy. Id.

11. Sufficiency of evidence

In absence of evidence that defendant under either federal or local law would suffer further penalties or disabilities from judgment of conviction or consequences collateral thereto having material effect on present legal rights, conviction for misdemeanor after service of part of sentence imposed and suspension of the balance became moot, and reviewing court had no power to consider appeal upon its merits. E. R. Thompson v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1964, 200 A. 2d 92).

Evidence was sufficient to sustain conviction on charge of vagrancy. F. F. Walker v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1963, 196 A. 2d 92).

Testimony of police officers that defendant was idling in a park at late hour, that he was a known felon and that he wanted to "roll queers" was sufficient to establish elements of charge of vagrancy, and burden then shifted to defendant to establish that he had a lawful employment or a lawful means of support realized from a lawful occupation or source. Id.

Evidence sustained vagrancy conviction. E. R. Harris v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1963, 192 A. 2d 814).

Vagrancy conviction cannot stand without evidence of course of conduct or mode of living or status prejudicial to public welfare. B. Drew v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1963, 187 A. 2d 325).

Evidence did not sustain conviction of vagrancy, absent evidence of course of conduct or mode of living or status prejudicial to public welfare. Id.

Evidence was insufficient to prove elements necessary to support conviction for vagrancy under District of Columbia code denominating as vagrants persons leading immoral life and who have no lawful employment or lawful means of support and persons who operate or who are employed in houses of ill fame. Baker and Fredricksen v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun App. 1962, 184 A. 2d 198).

13. Lawful means of support

Burden of defendants, charged with vagrancy, or proving lawful means of support does not arise until prosecution has proven other elements of offense. Baker and Fredricksen v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 184 A. 2d 198).

14. Nature of vagrancy

"Vagrancy" consists of a continued course of immorality, a pattern in iniquity, rather than a solitary incidence of wrong-doing. G. Coley etc. v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 177 A. 2d 889).

14.50. Poverty not a crime

Statute providing that any person leading immoral or profligate life who has no lawful employment and who has no lawful means of support realized from lawful occupation or source is vagrant does not make criminal the status or condition of poverty and unemployment. E. J. Hicks v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1964, 197 A. 2d 154).

16. Purpose

Purpose of vagrancy statute is to prevent crime likely to flow from vagrant's mode of life, and if officer were precluded from arresting thereunder until crime was committed, its purpose would wholly fail. E. R. Harris v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1963, 192 A. 2d 814).

§ 22–3304. Penalty—Conditions imposed by court.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

1. Indigent prisoners, discharge of Sentence for violation of District of Columbia vagrancy statute was for violation of "law of United States" within Indigent Prisoners' Act authorizing indigent prisoner, who has been sentenced for violation of any "law of United States," and who has been imprisoned for failure to pay fine, and who has been confined for 30 days, to apply for discharge. D. C. Clemmer, Director, Department of Corrections etc. v. N. H. Alexander (1961, 295 F. 2d 176, 111 U.S. App. D.C. 210).

Municipal Court of District of Columbia is "court established by enactment of Congress" within Indigent Prisoners' Act authorizing indigent prisoner who has been imprisoned by "court established by enactment of Congress" for failure to pay fine, and who has been confined for 30 days, to apply for discharge. Id.

Sec.
22–3401. Omitted.
22–3402. Repealed.
22–3403. Repealed.
22–3423. Use by private detective or collection agencies, of the words "District of Columbia", "District", the initials "D.C." to create impression that agency represents the District, is prohibited.
22–3424. Penalty for violation of section 22–3423.
22–3425. Prosecutions for violations of section 22–3423—Corporation counsel defined.

§ 22–3401. Omitted.

Sec. act Leg. Assembly, Aug. 23, 1871, p. 96, ch. 69, § 21, defined a "Gift enterprise". Since act Sept. 21, 1961, Pub. L. 87–267, § 1, repealed sections 22–3402 and 22–3403 which made it unlawful to engage in a "gift enterprise" business and imposed certain penalties for so doing, this section is now obsolete and is therefore omitted.

§§ 22–3402, 22–3403. Repealed. Sept. 21, 1961, 75 Stat. 565, Pub. L. 87–267, § 1.

Section R.S., D.C., § 1176, made it unlawful to engage in a gift enterprise as defined in section 22–3401.

Section R.S., D.C., § 1177, imposed penalties for engaging in any gift-enterprise business in the District.

Section act Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1334, ch. 854, § 892, fixed the hours of work for laborers and mechanics on public works.

The repealing act also provided that the provisions of the repealed statutes shall continue to apply with respect to contracts existing on the effective date of the repealing act or entered into pursuant to invitations for bids outstanding at the time of enactment of repealing act.

Effective date of act repealing this section is 60 days after its enactment. [Aug. 13, 1962.]

CROSS REFERENCE

§ 22–3408. Repealed. Aug. 13, 1962, 76 Stat. 360, Pub. L. 87–581, § 203.

Section of act Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1334, ch. 854, § 893, prescribed the penalties for violation of section 22–3407.

Effective date of act repealing this section is 60 days after its enactment. [Aug. 13, 1962.]

§ 22–3423. Use, by private detective or collection agencies, of the words "District of Columbia", "District," the initials "D.C." to create impression that agency represents the District, is prohibited.

No person engaged in the business of collecting or aiding in the collection of private debts or obligations, or engaged in furnishing private police, investigation, or other private detective services, shall use as part of the name of such business, or employ in any communication, correspondence, notice, advertisement, circular, or other writing or publication, the words "District of Columbia", "District", the initials "D.C.", or any emblem or insignia utilizing any of the said terms as part of its design, in such manner as reasonably to convey the impression or belief that such business is a department, agency, bureau, or instrumentality of the municipal government of the District of Columbia or in any manner represents the District of Columbia. As used in this section and section 22–3424, the word "person" means and includes individuals, associations, partnerships, and corporations. (Oct. 16, 1962, 76 Stat. 1071, Pub. L. 87–837, § 1.)

§ 22–3424. Penalty for violation of section 22–3423.

Any person who violates section 24–3423 shall be punished by a fine of not more than $300 or by imprisonment for not more than ninety days, or by both such fine and imprisonment. (Oct. 16, 1962, 76 Stat. 1071, Pub. L. 87–837, § 2.)

§ 22–3425. Prosecutions for violations of section 22–3423—Corporation Counsel defined.

All prosecutions for violations of section 22–3423 shall be conducted in the name of the District of Columbia by the Corporation Counsel or any of his assistants. As used in this section the term "Corporation Counsel" means the attorney for the District of Columbia, by whatever title such attorney may be known, designated by the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia to perform the functions prescribed for the Corporation Counsel in this section. (Oct. 16, 1962, 76 Stat. 1071, Pub. L. 87–837, § 3.)

Chapter 35.—SEXUAL PSYCHOPATHS

§ 22–3501. Indecent acts—Children.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Instructions 11
Review 13

11. Instructions

Giving instruction, in prosecution for taking indecent liberties with child, stating that an element was that defendant "took or attempted to take" indecent liberties was not reversible error, even if instruction referred to separate offenses, where no objection was made, penalty for each offense was the same, defendant's sentence was well within statutory prescription, and evidence of guilt was overwhelming. R. C. King v. United States (1964, 329 F. 2d 257, 117 U.S. App. D.C. 302).

13. Review

Shortcomings that attended conduct of a preliminary hearing did not, under the circumstances, infect case with error which invalidated judgment of conviction based on valid indictment returned against defendant, nor was the judgment of conviction invalidated by police misbehavior in view of fact conviction was reached entirely apart therefrom. W. L. Gilliam v. United States (1963, 323 F. 2d 615, 116 U.S. App. D.C. 313).

§ 22–3502. Sodomy.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

REVIEW

Record on appeal from sodomy conviction, challenged on grounds of sufficiency of evidence presented by government, revealed no error affecting substantial rights of accused. W. Hehl v. United States (1960, 288 F. 2d 131, 109 U.S. App. D.C. 346).

§ 22–3503. Definitions.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

1.50. Construction

"Injury" within statute defining sexual psychopath as person who has evidenced such lack of power to control sexual impulses as to be dangerous to persons because he is likely to attack or otherwise inflict injury, loss, pain or other evil, includes injury to feelings and "pain" includes mental suffering. C. W. Carras v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 183 A. 2d. 393).

§ 22–3508. Hearing—Commitment to Saint Elizabeths Hospital.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Bail 1.50
Confinement 2
Evidence—Sufficiency 3.50

1.50. Bail

Trial court has power to permit one adjudged sexual psychopath to remain at liberty on bond pending appeal. C. W. Carras v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 183, A. 2d 393).

Question of right of defendant adjudged to be sexual psychopath to bail pending appeal was moot, where case was in reviewing court and ready for disposition adverse to defendant on merits so that no practical relief could be given as to bail.

2. Confinement

Notwithstanding psychiatrists' report and testimony of one psychiatrist to effect that defendant, arrested for indecent exposure, would not physically attack any one in any manner, in view of fact defendant had twice before been committed for similar offenses, defendant was properly committed as sexual psychopath. C. W. Carras v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 183 A. 2d 393).

3.50. Evidence—Sufficiency

Evidence sustained finding that defendant arrested for indecent exposure was sexual psychopath. C. W. Carras v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 183 A. 2d 393).

Chapter 37.—WAREHOUSE RECEIPTS

[Transferred from title 28, chapter 21.]

Sec.

22—3701. Issue of receipts for goods not received.
22—3702. Issue of receipt containing false statement.
22—3703. Issue of duplicate receipts not so marked.
22—3704. Issue for warehouse man's goods of receipt which do not state that fact.
22—3705. Delivery of goods without obtaining negotiable receipts.
22—3706. Negotiation of receipt for mortgaged goods.

§ 22–3701. Issue of receipt for goods not received.

A warehouseman, or any officer, agent, or servant of a warehouseman, who issues or aids in issuing a receipt knowing that the goods for which such receipt is issued have not been actually received by such warehouseman, or are not under his actual control at the time of issuing such receipt, shall be guilty of a crime, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment not exceeding five years or by a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars, or by both. (Apr. 15, 1910, 36 Stat. 309, ch. 167, § 50.)

§ 22–3702. Issue of receipt containing false statement.

A warehouseman, or any officer, agent, or servant of a warehouseman, who fraudulently issues or aids in fraudulently issuing a receipt for goods knowing that it contains any false statement, shall be guilty of a crime, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment not exceeding one year or by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by both. (Apr. 15, 1910, 36 Stat. 309, ch. 167, § 51.)

§ 22–3703. Issue of duplicate receipts not so marked.

A warehouseman, or any officer, agent, or servant of a warehouseman, who issues or aids in issuing a duplicate or additional negotiable receipt for goods knowing that a former negotiable receipt for the same goods or any part of them is outstanding and uncanceled, without plainly placing upon the face thereof the word "Duplicate," except in the case of a lost or destroyed receipt after proceedings as provided for in section 28–1907, shall be guilty of a crime, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment not exceeding five years or by a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars, or by both. (Apr. 15, 1910, 36 Stat. 309, ch. 167, § 52.)

§ 22–3704. Issue for warehouseman's goods of receipts which do not state that fact.

Where there are deposited with or held by a warehouseman goods of which he is the owner, either solely or jointly or in common with others, such warehouseman, or any of his officers, agents, or servants who, knowing this ownership, issues or aids in issuing a negotiable receipt for such goods which does not state such ownership, shall be guilty of a crime, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by both. (Apr. 15, 1910, 36 Stat. 310, ch. 167, § 53.)

§ 22–3705. Delivery of goods without obtaining negotiable receipts.

A warehouseman, or any officer, agent, or servant of a warehouseman, who delivers goods out of the possession of such warehouseman, knowing that a negotiable receipt the negotiation of which would transfer the right to the possession of such goods is outstanding and uncanceled, without obtaining the possession of such receipt at or before the time of such delivery, shall, except in the cases provided for in sections 28–1907 and 28–1930, be found guilty of a crime, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by both. (Apr. 15, 1910, 36 Stat. 310, ch. 167, § 54.)

22–3706. Negotiation of receipt for mortgaged goods.

Any person who deposits goods to which he has not title, or upon which there is a lien or mortgage, and who takes for such goods a negotiable receipt which he afterwards negotiates for value with intent to deceive and without disclosing his want of title or the existence of the lien or mortgage shall be guilty of a crime, and upon conviction shall be punished for each offense by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by both. (Apr. 15, 1910, 36 Stat. 310, ch. 167, § 55.)

TITLE 23.—CRIMINAL PROCEDURE

Chapter 1.—GENERAL PROVISIONS

§ 23-101. Conduct of prosecutions—Party plaintiff.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

4. Prosecution by United States Attorney

United States Attorney for District of Columbia rather than corporation counsel for District was the attorney who should prosecute offense of destroying private property in violation of the District of Columbia Code, where the offense was punishable by fine not to exceed $100, or imprisonment not to exceed six months, or both. District of Columbia v. Moody, Hill and Hamilton (1962, 304 F. 2d 943, 113 U.S. App. D.C. 67).

§ 23-102. Conduct of prosecutions—Certification to Court of Appeals.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

1. Certification by judge

Where question as to proper prosecuting authority as between District of Columbia Corporation Counsel and United States Attorney is raised, the court must certify question to Court of Appeals for District of Columbia, and Municipal Court of Appeals was required to reverse action of Municipal Court in dismissing informations brought by Corporation Counsel after ruling that United States Attorney was proper prosecuting authority and the court would remand with instructions to reinstate informations and to certify questions to Court of Appeals. District of Columbia v. Moody, Hill & Hamilton (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 175 A. 2d 782).

Section, act Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1341, ch. 854, § 934, as amended, dealt with prosecutions in the United States District Court and the Municipal Court [now the Court of General Sessions]. See sections 11-521 and 11-963.

§ 23-105. Appeals by United States and District of Columbia.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

4. Double jeopardy

Dismissal of embezzlement prosecution for "want of prosecution" was not equivalent to a finding that defendant had been denied his constitutional right to speedy trial. J. P. Mann v. United States (1962, 304 F. 2d 394, 113 U.S. App. D.C. 27).

§ 23-106. Bail—Deposit—Forfeiture.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

2. Excessive bail

Requiring defendant, convicted of traffic violation for which $5 fine was imposed, to post $200 bail bond pending appeal, was improper. H. W. Starr v. District of Columbia (D.C. Man. App. 1962, 176 A. 2d 878).

Amount of bail must bear some reasonable relation to purpose for which it is given. Id.

§ 23-107. Peremptory challenges.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

4. Joint defendants

Defendant was not entitled to three peremptory challenges in selecting jury, in addition to those allowed codefendant; the defendants were properly treated as one defendant in allowance and exercise of challenges. S. Yankowitz v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 182 A. 2d 889).

Chapter 3.—SEARCH WARRANTS AND ARREST

§ 23-301. Issuance upon complaint under oath—Contents—Warrant—Affidavit—Form.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Probable cause 8
Search—Validity 10

8. Probable cause

Personal observations of suspicious conduct of defendant, charged with violations of gambling laws, during careful investigation, together with information received, gave probable cause for issuance of search warrant and warrant for arrest. J. Minowitz v. United States (1962, 298 F. 2d 682, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 21).

Allegations in affidavits upon basis of which a search warrant was issued, to the effect, among other things, that certain drugs were delivered to a certain person in a certain apartment, were sufficient to create probable cause and justify issuance of search warrant for items described. G. C. Hunt v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 171 A. 2d 515).

10. Search—Validity

Defendant, allegedly a known felon, was under unlawful arrest when he answered officers' call to come out of restaurant although he had been committing no offense, not even loitering, and evidence then produced on demand that he reveal content of pocket was unlawfully seized. C. H. Kelley v. United States (1961, 298 F. 2d 310, 111 U.S. App. D.C. 396).

Items not described in a search warrant but discovered in course of search made pursuant to such warrant were admissible in evidence. G. C. Hunt v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 171 A. 2d 515).

When a lawful search is executed pursuant to a lawful search warrant, contraband may be seized although not specifically described in the warrant. Id.

Premises under control of a person arrested may be searched contemporaneously as an incident to the arrest, and material seized as a result of such search may be introduced in evidence, even though not described in a search warrant. Id.

Where two plain-clothes men and complaining witness went to defendant's home with intention of making a search, if possible, for stolen goods and not to talk with him about reports of his possible involvement in three robberies, seizure of stolen property found in apartment was not incident to lawful arrest and was unlawful and could not be justified by exceptional circumstances and fruits of search were inadmissible in criminal prosecution. United States v. E. E. Evans (1961, 194 F. Supp. 90).

Defendant's invitation to "come on in" made to two plain-clothes men and complaining witnesses did not constitute a consent to search of apartment, and defendant did not waive any right to complain that search violated the Fourth Amendment. Id.

§ 23-302. Disposition of property seized.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

1. Admissibility of evidence

Failure to strictly adhere to ordinance in ministerial matters in delivering property to county police officers who returned it to rightful owner rather than delivering it to marshal in accordance with District of Columbia code requirements did not render testimony concerning such inadmissible. A. A. Brooks, Jr. v. State of Maryland (Maryland Ct. of App. 1964, 200 A. 2d 177).

Chapter 6.—PROFESSIONAL BONDSMEN

§ 23-608. Qualifications of bondsmen—Rules to be prescribed by courts—List of agents to be furnished—Renewal of authority to act—Detailed records to be kept—Penalties and disqualifications.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

2.50. Moral turpitude

"Moral turpitude", within statute precluding licensing as a bondsman a person convicted of any offense involving moral turpitude, includes crimes in which fraud was an ingredient. In the Matter of Nathaniel Madden (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 184 A. 2d 204).

Conviction of an offense involving moral turpitude precludes qualification for licensing of a bondsman, and courts have no latitude or discretion in the matter. Id.

Conviction for fraudulent filing of Federal income tax returns was conviction of an offense involving "moral turpitude," within statute precluding licensing as a bondsman a person convicted of an offense involving moral turpitude. Id.

Chapter 8.—OUT-OF-STATE WITNESSES

§ 23-802. Hearing on recall of out-of-State witnesses by State courts—Determination—Travel allowance—Penalty.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

1. Hearing mandatory

Under Uniform Act to Secure Attendance of Witnesses from Without a State in Criminal Proceedings, it is mandatory that a hearing be had and a determination made as to whether witness is material and necessary, and that it will not cause undue hardship to witness to be compelled to attend and testify, and the certificate is prima facie evidence of all facts stated therein. United States ex. rel. State of Pennsylvania v. J. M. McDevitt (D.C. App. 1963, 195 A. 2d 741).

In proceeding to issue process to require a person to return as a witness to testify before investigating grand jury in Pennsylvania, evidence supported findings that it was not established that person was material and necessary witness or that compelling his attendance would not cause him undue hardship, and hence denial of application was not an abuse of discretion. Id.

§ 23-804. Exemption from arrest.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

1. Immunity from process

Letter directing defendant to appear at federal office, on account of criminal complaint, lest warrant be issued for arrest, was not a "summons within the meaning of the Uniform Act to Secure the Attendance of Witnesses from without a State in Criminal Proceedings," and defendant who appeared accordingly was not exempt from process under District of Columbia statute exempting persons appearing in obedience to summons. R. C. Buffkin v. Alum-Co. National, Inc., et al. (1963, 331 F. 2d 96, —— U.S. App. D.C. ——).

TITLE 24.—PRISONERS AND THEIR TREATMENT

Chapter 1.—PROBATION

§ 24–101. Probation system—Probation officers—Appointment.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

1.50. Sentencing procedure

In sentencing, the judge must consider a program of rehabilitation designed to preclude, so far as current learning can furnish a guide, a repetition of the crime, and to such end Congress has placed several aids at disposal of judge, including provisions for presentence investigation, for commitment prior to sentence to a hospital for examination to determine mental competence of the offender, and for appointment of psychiatrist and psychologist. Wm. H. Leach v. United States (1963, 320 F. 2d 670, 115 U.S. App. D.C. 351).

Section of act June 25, 1910, 36 Stat. 864, ch. 433, § 2, dealt with the authority of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia and the former Municipal Court to place certain convicted offenders on probation. The section insofar as it related to the United States District Court was repealed by act June 25, 1958, 72 Stat. 216, Pub. L. 85–463, § 2. The surviving provisions of the section are now reenacted as section 16–710.

§ 24–106. Services of a psychiatrist and a psychologist available to probation officers, the Board of Parole and other designated officers.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

1. Presentence examination

A prisoner who requested a mental examination before sentence could have been examined under statute providing a qualified psychiatrist and a qualified psychologist for district judges to assist them in carrying out their duties. W. R. Leach v. United States (1964, 334 F. 2d 945, —— U.S. App. D.C. ——).

Chapter 2.—INDETERMINATE SENTENCES AND PAROLES

§ 24–203. Imposition of indeterminate sentences authorized—Life and death sentences.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

8. Sentences

Prospect of having conviction "automatically" set aside under Youth Corrections Act was a difference so important as to outweigh possibility of longer confinement and to warrant conclusion that second sentence, of thirty-four months to one hundred and two months, under Indeterminate Sentence Law, was more severe than first sentence, of three to nine years, under Youth Corrections Act, for robbery; and, accordingly, second sencence, entered on motion to correct, was invalid where offender had already begun to serve first sentence. E. J. Tatum v. United States (1962, 310 F. 2d 854, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 49).

§ 24–204. Parole authorized—Conditions—Custody.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

2. Discretion of board

Material facts in prisoner's suit against parole board claiming that racial discrimination was basis of denial of parole must be such as would legitimately tend to show that parole board acted under color of law, and thereby subjected prisoner to deprivation of his federal rights. R. Richardson, Jr. v. H. F. Rivers, D.C. Board of Parole et al. (1964, 335 F. 2d 996, —— U.S. App. D.C. ——).

Prisoner's conclusory assertions that racial discrimination was basis of parole board's denial of parole as against board's affidavits in denying discrimination did not create a genuine issue as to a material fact when viewed in light of board's broad discretionary power. Id.

§ 24–205. Violation of parole—Warrant—Arrest—Return to confinement.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

3. Jurisdiction

The District of Columbia Parole Board did not err in acting pursuant to D.C. Parole Act with regard to prisoner who had been convicted of a federal crime rather than offense made criminal by D.C. Code, since the act establishing D.C. Parole Board transferred authority over prisoners held in District prisons to D.C. Board, and provisions of D.C. Parole Act, rather than federal parole law, were to be applied to such prisoners. R. A. Howerton v. Hugh F. Rivers et al. (1963, 326 F. 2d 653, 117 U.S. App. D.C. 110).

§ 24–206. Revocation of parole after retaking—Hearing—New parole.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Appearance and hearing 1
Good time allowance 6.50
Right to counsel 10
Sentence upon reimprisonment 12

1. Appearance and hearing

Alleged parole violator was entitled to present testimony of witnesses appearing voluntarily. G. J. Reed, Chairman, U.S. Board of Parole et al. v. L. D. Butterworth (1961, 297 F. 2d 776, 111 U.S. App. D.C. 365).

6.50. Good time allowance

Where prisoner, who was sentenced for violation of District of Columbia Code and transferred to federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, was later conditionally released and placed under supervision of United States Board of Parole at Washington, D.C., but was later taken into custody on a warrant issued by United States Board of Parole for violation of conditions of his release and transferred to a penal institution operated by District of Columbia, prisoner after recommitment accumulated good time at rate of six days per month as fixed by District of Columbia Code and not at rate of eight days per month as was the case when he was confined in federal penitentiary. G. P. Clokey v. U.S. Parole Board et al. (1962, 310 F. 2d 86, U.S. App. 4th Ct.).

10. Right to counsel

Alleged parole violator was entitled to counsel at hearing. G. J. Reed, Chairman, U.S. Board of Parole et al. v. L. D. Butterworth (1961, 297 F. 2d 776, 111 U.S. App. D.C. 365).

12. Sentence upon reimprisonment

Prisoner was not entitled, on return to prison following revocation of parole, to credit against remaining sentence for time spent on parole. R. A. Howerton v. Hugh F. Rivers et al. (1963, 326 F. 2d 653, 117 U.S. App. D.C. 110).

Prisoner was not entitled, on return to prison following revocation of parole, to credit against remaining sentence for time spent on parole. E. Bates v. H. F. Rivers, Executive etc. (1963, 323 F. 2d 311, 116 U.S. App. D.C. 306).

.50. Acceptance of guilty plea

Where psychiatrist's report on defendant's competency to stand trial on bad check charge had included statement that defendant's crimes were product of specified mental disease particularly affecting financial judgment and that defendant required further treatment to insure against repetition of the offenses, court properly refused to accept plea of guilty and proceeded to trial to determine that defendant was not guilty by reason of insanity, though defendant had been judicially declared competent to stand trial and to assist in his own defense. W. Overholser, Sup't etc. v. F. C. Lynch (1961, 288 F. 2d 388, 109 U.S. App. D.C. 404; rev'd 1962, 82 S. Ct. 1063).

1.50. Burden of proof

Burden rests with party seeking commitment of accused to mental institution to prove that accused is then of unsound mind. F. C. Lynch v. W. Overholser, Sup't etc. (1962, 307 U.S. 618, 82 S. Ct. 1063, rev'g 288 F. 2d 388).

2. Burden of proof after commitment

Person who sought release from hospital to which he had been committed after having been found not guilty of housebreaking and larceny on ground of insanity had burden of proving by a preponderance of evidence that he had recovered his sanity, and would not in reasonably foreseeable future be dangerous to himself or others by reason of mental disease or defect, and that failure of superintendent of hospital to certify him for release was arbitrary or capricious. S. V. Robertson v. D. C. Cameron (1963, 224 F. Supp. 60).

Once a man has been committed to a hospital after verdict of not guilty by reason in insanity, government need not thereafter be forced to prove his insanity as price of continuing treatment. W. Overholser, Sup't etc. v. F. C. Lynch (1961, 288 F. 2d 388, 109 U.S. App. D.C. 404; rev'd 1962, 82 S. Ct. 1063).

3. Certification of sanity

To be "arbitrary" or "capricious", refusal of superintendent of hospital to certify that person committed to hospital after being found not guilty of criminal charge on ground of insanity has recovered his sanity and is entitled to unconditional release must be without a reasonable or rational basis, but it need not be made in bad faith. S. V. Robertson v. D. C. Cameron (1963, 224 F. Supp. 60).

Superintendent of hospital to which person is committed after having been found not guilty of a crime on ground of insanity may not act according to his personal notion or whim, no matter how well intentioned or bona fide his action may be, in determining whether person committed has recovered his sanity and is entitled to an unconditional release. Id.

Refusal of superintendent of hospital to which person had been committed after being found not guilty of crime on ground of insanity to make certificate as basis for committed person's release was arbitrary and capricious, in view of showing of grounds for release. Id.

Mental hospital superintendent's return in habeas corpus proceeding by inmate, asserting generally that inmate had not recovered from "abnormal mental condition" and required further treatment, without explaining quoted phrase or describing past or future treatment, was insufficient on its face. H. T. O'Beirne v. W. Overholser (1961, 193 F. Supp. 652; rev'd 302 F. 2d 852).

One who had been found not guilty by reason of insanity and committed to mental hospital could not be detained in hospital beyond period of maximum sentence possible for the offense charged, because of "sociopathic personality" which was not sufficient basis for a civil adjudication of mental incompetency, even if such condition tended to make him an habitual petty criminal. Id.

Fact that a person is an habitual petty criminal could not subject him to permanent incarceration in criminal ward of mental institution, and such disposition may not be used as a substitute for laws dealing expressly with habitual criminals. Id.

4. Commitment procedure

Supreme Court granted certiorari, where important questions were raised as to procedure for confining criminally insane in District of Columbia and as to possible constitutional infirmities in statute under which commitment was made as applied to circumstances in case. F. C. Lynch v. W. Overholser, Sup't etc. (1962, 369 U.S. 705, 82 S. Ct. 1063, rev'g 288 F. 2d 388).

5. Competency to stand trial

Competency to stand trial depends on whether defendant understands nature of proceedings against him and is properly able to assist in his own defense. United States v. H. L. Womack (1962, 211 F. Supp. 578).

7. Constitutionality

District of Columbia statute requiring mandatory confinement of persons found not guilty by reason of insanity is constitutional. J. L. Foller v. W. Overholser, Sup't etc. (1961, 292 F. 2d 732, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 239).

7.50. Construction

Statute to effect that person acquitted solely on ground that he was insane at time of commission of offense shall be ordered by court to be confined in hospital for mentally ill forecloses trial judge from exercising any discretion and does not require finding by trial judge, jury, or medical board as to accused's mental health on date of judgment of acquittal. F. C. Lynch v. W. Overholser, Sup't, etc. (1962, 369 U.S. 705, 82 S. Ct. 1063, rev'g 288 F. 2d 388).

Statute to effect that person acquitted solely on ground that he was insane at time of commission of offense shall be confined in hospital for mentally ill is applicable only to defendant who affirmatively relies upon defense of insanity in any way and such defense need not be asserted by formal plea, but statute does not apply to one who has maintained that he was mentally responsible when alleged offense was committed. Id.

Accused, who did not claim that he had been insane when offenses were committed and who presented no evidence to support an acquittal by reason of insanity, was not properly confined in hospital for mentally ill upon finding of trial judge that he was not guilty on ground that he was insane at time of commission of offenses. Id.

Statutory construction confining itself to bare words of statute is dangerous in that literalness may strangle meaning. Id.

Statute should be interpreted, if fairly possible, in such way as to free it from not insubstantial constitutional doubts. Id.

8.50. Defense of insanity

On adequate averment, defendant has right to assistance of court in developing basis for his insanity defense, and such assistance may take form of commitment for mental examination, examination through Mental Health Commission or Legal Psychiatric Service, or appointment of private experts. A. J. Brown v. United States (1964, 331 F. 2d 822, —— U.S. App. D.C. ——).

Where indigent defendant in attempting to utilize defense of insanity based on drug addiction was denied even minimal assistance of free subpoena through averments in his motions were not inherently incredible on their face and there was no evidence that averments were untrue or that request was otherwise frivolous, defendent was entitled to new trial after fair opportunity to prepare defense of insanity. Id.

Defendant has burden of proving his defense of insanity. United States v. J. A. Naples (1961, 192 F. Supp. 23; rev'g 307 F. 2d 618).

10. Discretion of court

Record failed to establish that district court abused its discretion in denying application for conditional release, under statute governing release of one committed to mental institution after being found not guilty of crime by reason of insanity, based on certificate of superintendent of hospital in which applicant was confined. M. W. Durnham v. United States (1962, 308 F. 2d 332, 113 U.S. App. D.C. 377).

Under statute requiring appropriate certificate of superintendent of mental hospital as a condition precedent to release of person committed, court may not substitute its own judgment for that of superintendent and may not try the matter de novo in habeas corpus proceeding, but superintendent's action or failure to act may not be deemed final or conclusive for all purposes. H. T. O'Bierne v. W. Overholser (1961, 193 F. Supp. 652; rev'd 302 F. 2d 852).

Court may step in to determine whether action or failure to act on part of superintendent of mental hospital is arbitrary and capricious. Id.

10.50. Due process

To require defendant to assume burden of proof on issue of insanity does not violate due process. United States v. J. A. Naples (1961, 192 F. Supp, 23; rev'd 288 F. 2d 618).

11. Evidence

Evidence in habeas corpus proceeding by person committed to hospital for mentally ill after being found not guilty of crime on ground of insanity established that person committed had recovered his sanity and was not likely in reasonably foreseeable future to be dangerous to himself or others by reason of any mental disease or defect. S. V. Robertson v. D. C. Cameron (1963, 224 F. Supp. 60).

12.50. Findings

Absence of findings relating reason for denial of habeas corpus petitioned for by one committed to mental hospital to mental hospital following acquittal by reason of insanity required reviewing court to retain jurisdiction and remand to give District Court opportunity to amplify record to set forth such reasons. J. A. Whittaker v. W. Overholser Sup't etc. (1962, 299 F. 2d 447, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 66).

12.51. Grounds for commitment

Only those who need treatment and may be dangerous may be confined to hospital for mentally ill. F. C. Lynch v. W. Overholser, Sup't etc. (1962, 369 U.S. 705, 82 S. Ct. 1063, rev'g 288 F. 2d 388).

13. Habeas corpus

Conclusion that petitioner who had been committed to hospital under statute following directed verdict of not guilty by reason of insanity failed to sustain burden of showing entitlement to unconditional release from hospital the superintendent of which had stated both at time of trial and on habeas corpus that he was without mental disorder was not without evidentiary support, in view of conflicting psychiatric testimony. F. A. Miller v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1964, 335 F. 2d 986, —— U.S. App. D.C. ——).

Affirmance of judgment denying writ of habeas corpus to one who had been committed to hospital pursuant to statute following verdict of not guilty by reason of insanity was without prejudice to filing of new petition for writ. Id.

Evidence disclosed that petitioner seeking habeas corpus was receiving psychiatric treatment during his confinement in hospital following acquittal by reason of insanity. J. L. Foller v. Overholser, Sup't etc. (1961, 292 F. 2d 732, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 239).

Evidence disclosed that director of hospital, to which petitioner had been committed following his acquittal by reason of insanity, was not arbitrary in refusing discharge. Id.

13.50. Hearing

If District Court were to find that habeas corpus petition filed by one committed to mental hospital following acquittal by reason of insanity, which, together with return, presented factual issue, was not procedurally premature, court was to grant hearing on question of eligibility for release under statute. J. A. Whittaker v. Overholser, Sup't etc. (1962, 299 F. 2d 447, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 66).

Habeas corpus petition filed by one who was confined to hospital following acquittal by reason of insanity, alleging that he was free from named mental conditions, of sound mind and not dangerous to himself or society, together with return, presented question of fact requiring resolution, assuming it was not raised in untimely fashion. Id.

13.51. Independent examination

Inmate who had been confined for more than one year without an independent examination as to his mental health by an expert appointed by the district court was entitled, in connection with his petition for release, as a matter of right, to such independent examination to test findings and conclusions of the hospital staff where he was confined. J. Watson v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't, etc. (1962, 312 F. 2d 878, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 151).

13.52. Indeterminate commitment

That accused has pleaded guilty or that government has established that he committed criminal act constitutes only strong evidence that his continued liberty would imperil preservation of public peace and does not justify indeterminate commitment to mental institution on bare reasonable doubt as to past sanity. F. C. Lynch v. W. Overholser, Sup't etc. (1962, 369 U.S. 705, 82 S. Ct. 1063, rev'g 288 F. 2d 388).

13.53. Inquiry after acquittal

Under statute giving court authority to conduct hearing whenever a person is arrested, indicted, or charged by information and to commit person to mental hospital, trial court had jurisdiction to conduct hearing to determine competency of defendant after his acquittal on grounds of insanity, despite his refusal to raise issue in criminal trial. United States v. C. L. Limber (D.C. App. 1963, 192 A. 2d 530).

After jury returns verdict of not guilty by reason of insanity, inquiry as to whether accused is presently commitable as person of unsound mind may be undertaken. F. C. Lynch v. W. Overholser, Sup't etc. (1962, 369 U.S. 705, 82 S. Ct. 1063, rev'g 288 F. 2d 388).

Defendant does not have absolute right to have his guilty plea accepted and trial judge may enter plea of not guilty in behalf of accused, but, if that is done, and defendant, despite his own assertions of sanity, is found not guilty by reason of insanity, commitment to hospital for mentally ill must be either under statute providing procedure for confining accused who, though found competent to stand trial, is nevertheless commitable as person of unsound mind, or civil commitment provisions. Id.

16. Judicial determination

Manslaughter sentences were not void because of absence of judicial adjudication that defendant was competent to stand trial, though he had previously been found to be insane, where certificate of superintendent of hospital stating that defendant had recovered his reason and was then of sound mind was filed in court before defendant pleaded guilty, and court ordered examination by two independent psychiatrists who reported that defendant was of sound mind at the time. J. W. Hunter v. United States (1963, 323 F. 2d 625, 116 U.S. App. D.C. 323).

If accused denies that he is mentally ill, he is entitled to judicial determination of his mental state despite hospital board's certification that he is of unsound mind. F. C. Lynch v. W. Overholser, Sup't etc. (1962, 369 U.S. 705, 82 S. Ct. 1063, rev'g 288 F. 2d 388).

16.50. Jurisdiction to commit

Municipal court did not have jurisdiction under D.C. Code 1961 § 24–301(a) to commit person to mental hospital where court had found accused not guilty by reason of insanity but had finally disposed of the criminal charges against accused more than a year before such commitment and had erroneously committed accused under D.C. Code 1961 § 24–301(d). Dr. D. C. Cameron v. W. V. Fisher (1963, 320 F. 2d 731, 116 U.S. App. D.C. 9).

20. Potentially dangerous

Mere fact that person committed under statute to mental institution following acquittal of criminal charge by reason of insanity has some dangerous propensity does not, standing alone, warrant his continued confinement but dangerous propensities must be related to or arise out of abnormal mental condition, whether such condition was that which constituted basis for acquittal. W. Overholser v. H. T. O'Bierne (1962, 302 F. 2d 852, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 267).

That one confined to mental institution because of his acquittal of criminal charges for insanity would no longer be committable under civil procedure could constitute no ground for his release where there was no showing that he had recovered to point where he was free from abnormal mental condition or that his release would not expose himself or public to danger in reasonably foreseeable future. Id.

Under rule that to be eligible for release from mental hospital, inmate must be free from such "abnormal mental conditions" as would make him dangerous to himself or community in reasonably foreseeable future, quoted words refer to a mental disease or mental defect, and not just any condition that is outside of the ordinary norm. H. T. O'Bierne v. W. Overholser (1961, 193 F. Supp. 652; rev'd 302 F. 2d 852).

20.50. Prejudicial cross-examination

In murder prosecution wherein sole defense was insanity, and defendant's gibberish testimony was such as to raise issues as to whether defendant feigned such testimony and whether at time of the third trial his mental condition represented his condition at time of act charged, cross-examination disclosing defendant's failure to take stand at two previous trials which resulted in convictions was erroneous and was not harmless but was sufficiently prejudicial to warrant the granting of a mistrial even though defense made no request for cautionary instructions. W. L. Stewart v. United States (1961, 366 U.S. 1, 81 S. Ct. 941; rev'd 275 F. 2d 617).

20.51. Presentence examination

A diagnosis of a state prison, as part of a pre-sentence report, that defendant was a psychopathic personality, unstable, recidivistic and antisocial might have been a sufficient prima facie case for ordering a mental examination of the defendant before sentence, but even if it was not, there was enough basis to make clear the usefulness of a psychological evaluation in determining sentence. W. R. Leach v. United States (1964, 334 F. 2d 945, —— U.S. App. D.C. ——).

Psychiatric evaluation of a prisoner through the Legal Psychiatric Services or through the Prison Bureau program, like a pre-sentence report, is a useful tool for rehabilitative rather than retributive sentencing, and it has a crucial place in the sentencing process. Id.

22. Pretrial mental examination

Although a trial judge has some discretion in denying a motion for a mental examination as not timely, if counsel learns of defendant's alleged symptoms on day the trial is scheduled to begin, a motion submitted at that time cannot be denied as late. L. P. Mitchell v. United States (1963, 316 F. 2d 354, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 353).

A written motion on morning of trial for a mental examination of defendant based on allegations that defendant had displayed to counsel certain letters which raised inquiry with respect to his mental situation, and based on allegation that counsel had learned that defendant was an epileptic and exhibited unexplained and repeated criminal activities was, under the circumstances, adequate and timely, and denial thereof was prejudicial error. Id.

On a motion for an order directing a mental examination, defendant is not required to produce, in order to get the examination, enough evidence to prove that he is incompetent or irresponsible. Id.

23.50. Psychiatrist's report

Psychiatrist's reports on whether defendant was mentally competent to stand trial properly included evaluation of defendant's mental condition at time crimes were committed. W. Overholser, Sup't, etc. v. F. C. Lynch (1961, 288 F. 2d 388, 109 U.S. App. D.C. 404; rev'd 1962, 82 S. Ct. 1063).

24. Public policy

That personal liberty should depend on such an arbitrary circumstance as mental hospital's change of "administrative policy" in determining whether sociopathic personality should be treated as a mental disease, as affecting release of committed person, would be contrary to basic principles of freedom. H. T. O'Bierne v. W. Overholser (1961, 193 F. Supp. 652; rev'd 302 F. 2d 852).

25. Purpose

Purpose of ordering a mental examination for a defendant is to get evidence on whether he is or is not competent to stand trial, and another purpose is to get evidence on whether, if there is a trial, the jury should be instructed on insanity and criminal responsibility. L. P. Mitchell v. United States (1963, 316 F. 2d 354, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 353).

27. Release

Person found not guilty of criminal offense on ground of insanity may not be released unless superintendent of hospital to which he has been committed certifies that person committed has recovered his sanity, and that, in superintendent's opinion, the person will not in reasonably forseeable future be dangerous to himself or others and is entitled to an unconditional release. S. V. Robertson v. D. C. Cameron (1963, 224 F. Supp. 60).

28.50. Restored competency

Determination of accused's eligibility to stand trial may be established by a finding of "restored competency" or a finding that he never was incompetent, and hence assuming that a proceeding to set aside original adjudication of incompetency is required, substance of such proceeding was provided by hearing in which hospital psychiatrist testified that accused was not a mental defective and that there was no indication of organic brain injury or mental illness. V. E. Jenkins v. United States (1962, 307 F. 2d 637, 113 U.S. App. D.C. 300).

30.50. Sentencing procedure

Although generally an appellate court will not review sentences that are within the statutory maximum, a sentencing judge should use some of the resources which the Congress has provided in regard to psychiatric evaluation of a prisoner, and should not arbitrarily ignore the data properly obtained thereby in fixing a sentence. W. R. Leach v. United States (1964, 334 F. 2d 945, —— U.S. App. D.C. ——).

§ 24–302. Commitment of persons becoming insane while serving sentence.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Evidence 2
In general 1
Motion after sentence 3

1. In general

The fact that conviction is affirmed does not foreclose possibility of further inquiry whether sentence should be served in penitentiary or in mental hospital, since any prisoner found to be mentally ill may be transferred to such a hospital. D. O. Williams v. United States (1963, 312 F. 2d 862, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 135).

If accused who pleads guilty is found to be in need of psychiatric assistance, he may be transferred to hospital for mentally ill following sentence. F. C. Lynch v. W. Overholser, Sup't etc. (1962, 369 U.S. 705, 82 S. Ct. 1063, rev'g 288 F. 2d 388).

2. Evidence

Where several psychiatrists testified that defendant was a psychopath or sociopath on day of killings and some thought condition a mental disease, evidence was sufficient to raise issue of insanity and require government to disprove beyond a reasonable doubt the claim that crimes were product of mental disease or defect. D. O. Williams v. United States (1963, 312 F. 2d 862, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 135).

Exclusion of conclusory portions of report by psychologist that tests indicated that defendant was suffering from effects of organic damage to central nervous system, even if error, was harmless where report was cumulative, psychologists had been permitted to testify to results of tests, and some of the psychiatrists who testified based their findings on report. Id.

In murder prosecution, where only three of eleven psychiatrists could say that killings in question were product of defendant's mental disease or defect, evidence was insufficient to raise, as a matter of law, reasonable doubt as to defendant's sanity and conflict in medical testimony became issue for jury. Id.

3. Motion after sentence

Motion of defendant, made after his entry of plea of guilty to narcotics charge in open court and his sentence therefor, to set aside plea of guilty and to have himself committed to mental hospital to determine his mental competence to understand proceedings against him or to properly assist in his own defense, and affidavit of defendant's wife were insufficient to require court to allow withdrawal of plea of guilty. D. Hopkins v. United States (1963, 318 F. 2d 186, 115 U.S. App. D.C. 215).

SUBCHAPTER I.—PRISONS

Section of act Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1341, ch. 854, § 934, dealt with places of imprisonment, effect of cumulative sentences on place of imprisonment and jurisdiction of prosecutions depending on whether punishment was for more or less than one year. The first three sentences are omitted as superseded by section 24–425 and balance of section are reenacted as part of section 11–963. See also section 11–521.

§ 24–402. Sentence of prisoners to jail, reformatory, or penitentiary for more than one year—Jurisdiction of Commissioners over prisoners in reformatory—Transfer of prisoners from penitentiary to reformatory.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

4.50. Religious services

Allowing some religious groups to hold religious services at reformatory and jail at public expense while denying that right to another discriminated against prisoner of the other faith in violation of orders of Commissioners of District of Columbia requiring prison officials to make facilities available without regard to race or religion. Wm. T. X. Fulwood v. Clemmer, Director, etc. and Anderson, Acting Sup't etc. (1962, 206 F. Supp. 370).

Regulation and discipline of prisoners convicted of offenses against United States has been committed to prison authorities. Id.

§ 24–425. Place of imprisonment—Designation by Attorney General—Transfer.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

1. Transfer of prisoners

Habeas corpus proceeding by defendant, who alleged that he had been transferred from confinement in Virginia to jail in District of Columbia while petition for appeal in forma pauperis from denial of previous petition for habeas corpus was pending in Court of Appeals for Fourth Circuit in order to hamper such previous habeas corpus proceeding, did not present moot question, and defendant was entitled to hearing at least as to legality of his transfer in view of failure of District of Columbia to controvert defendant's allegations. J. A. Bolden, Jr. v. D. C. Clemmer et al. (1961, 298 F. 2d 306, 111 U.S. App. D.C. 392).

Regulation and discipline of prisoners convicted of offenses against United States has been committed to prison authorities. Id.

2. Review of administrators' actions

Actions of prison authorities, including granting or withdrawal of claimed privileges of prisoners, are not reviewable by the court in "mandamus proceeding" in the absence of specific allegations particularly showing a clear breach of duty by prison administrators. White and Childs v. D. L. Clemmer, Director, District of Columbia Department of Corrections et al. (1961, 295 F. 2d 132, 111 U.S. App. D.C. 145).

Federal prisoners' pleadings seeking relief in nature of mandamus because of claimed deprivation of civil rights on account of their religion failed to allege with sufficient particularity a basis for redress by court where prison administration had been committed by statute to prison authorities and no breach of their statutory duty had been shown.

SUBCHAPTER III.—CORRECTIONAL INDUSTRIES FUND

§ 24–451. Establishment of fund.

There is hereby established in the Treasury a revolving fund for the government of the District of Columbia to be known as the correctional industries fund (hereinafter referred to as the "fund") to replace the working capital fund created by section 47–131. (Oct. 3, 1964, 78 Stat. 1000, Pub. L. 88–622, § 1.)

COMMISSIONERS AUTHORITY—DELEGATION OF FUNCTIONS

Section 7 of act Oct. 3, 1964, provided: "Nothing in this Act shall be construed so as to affect the authority vested in the Commissioners by Reorganization Plan Numbered 5 of 1952 (66 Stat. 824). The performance of any function vested by this Act in the Commissioners or in any office or agency under the jurisdiction and control of said Commissioners may be performed by the Commissioners or may be delegated by said Commissioners in accordance with section 3 of such plan."

Effective Date

Section 8 of act Oct 3, 1964, provided: "This Act [Sections 24–451 to 24–455, repeal of section 47–131 and notes to section 24–451] shall take effect July 1, 1963."

§ 24–452. Availability of fund for performance of services and production of commodities for rehabilitation of inmates—Accounting for the fund.

The fund shall be available without fiscal-year limitation and shall be used for the performance of such services and the production of such commodities as, in the judgment of the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia (hereinafter referred to as "Commissioners"), will contribute to the rehabilitation, knowledge, and skill in trades and occupations of inmates of the institutions in the Department of Corrections of the District of Columbia, thereby equipping them with a means of livelihood upon release. The accounting for the fund shall be maintained on the accrual basis, including provision for employees' accrued annual leave and depreciation of fixed assets, and financial reports shall be prepared on the basis of such accounting. (Oct. 3, 1964, 78 Stat. 1000, Pub. L. 88–622, § 2.)

Effective Date

See note to section 24–451.

§ 24–453. Sale of products and services to District, Federal and State governments—Receipts from sales to be deposited in fund—Use of funds.

Products and services produced by utilization of the fund may be purchased, at fair market prices as determined by the Commissioners, by any department or agency of the District of Columbia government, the Federal Government, any State or subdivision of a State or any Commonwealth, territory, or possession of the United States. Receipts from the sales of products and services shall be deposited to the credit of the fund. The fund shall be used for all necessary expenses directly related to the fund, including personal services; payments to inmates, or payments to their dependents, of such pecuniary earnings as the Commissioners deem proper; purchase, repair, and maintenance of equipment; purchase of raw materials and supplies; payment of dues and expenses of attendance at meetings and conventions, as approved by the Commissioners; maintenance and repair of buildings used for fund purposes; alteration of existing facilities used for fund purposes where the total project cost does not exceed $10,000; and, within the limits of amounts provided in annual appropriation Acts, acquisition and improvement of real property. (Oct. 3, 1964, 78 Stat. 1000, Pub. L. 88–622, § 3.)

Effective Date

See note to section 24–451.

§ 24–454. Reports of financial condition and results of operations to be made by Director of the Department of Corrections to Commissioners—Disposition of realized profits—Net work of fund not to be increased beyond $2,500,000—Payments to inmates and their dependents—Excess profits to be deposited to general funds of the district.

Not later than six months' after the end of each fiscal year, the Director of the Department of Corrections of the District of Columbia shall submit to the Commissioners a report of the financial condition of the fund and the results of operations for such fiscal year. The Commissioners shall review such report and determine the disposition to be made of realized profits. The Commissioners are empowered to authorize retention of accumulated profits for the purpose of acquiring or improving personal property, or to increase working capital to planned operating levels. In no case, however, shall such profits retained for these purposes increase the net worth of the fund beyond $2,500,000. The Commissioners are also empowered to authorize retention of accumulated profits for payments to inmates other than those employed in industrial operations, or for payments to their dependents, of such amounts as the Commissioners deem proper. Accumulated profits not retained or used for the aforementioned purposes, or which exceed the limitation imposed, shall be deposited to the credit of the general revenues of the District of Columbia. (Oct. 3, 1964, 78 Stat. 1000, Pub. L. 88–622, § 4.)

Effective Date

See note to section 24–451.

§ 24–455. Transfer of assets from prior working capital fund.

All assets except buildings and all liabilities or other obligations which at the time of enactment of this Act are components of the working capital fund, Workhouse and Reformatory, as created by Public Law 493, Seventy-ninth Congress, approved July 9, 1946 (60 Stat. 514, ch. 544, sec. 1), [section 47–131] shall be transferred to the fund created by section 24–451. (Oct. 3, 1964, 78 Stat. 1001, Pub. L. 88–622, § 5.)

Chapter 1.—ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGE CONTROL

§ 25–103. Definitions.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

5. Regulations, validity of

Under District of Columbia statute imposing a tax on all beer sold and prescribing monthly reports of beer "sold by him during the preceding calendar month", regulations of the Commissioners taxing beer in warehouse and before it is sold were not authorized. American Sales Co. v. District of Columbia (1961, 292 F. 2d 751, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 258).

§ 25–107. Powers of Commissioners—Rules and regulations—Licenses.

The Commissioners are hereby authorized to prescribe such rules and regulations not inconsistent with this chapter as they may deem necessary to carry out the purposes thereof and to control and regulate the manufacture, sale, keeping for sale, offer for sale, solicitation of orders for sale, importation, exportation, and transportation of alcoholic beverages in the District of Columbia for the protection of the public health, comfort, safety, and morals, and the Commissioners are further authorized to prescribe such rules and regulations not inconsistent with this chapter as they may deem necessary to properly and adequately control the consumption of alcoholic beverages on premises licensed under paragraph (1) of section 25–111, with specific authority to prescribe the hours during which alcoholic beverages may be consumed on such premises.

The Commissioners shall have specific authority to make rules and regulations for the issuance, transfer, and revocation of licenses; to facilitate and insure the collection of taxes; to govern the operation of the business of licensees, with full power and authority to prescribe the terms and conditions under which alcoholic beverages may be sold by each class of licensees; to forbid the issuance of licenses for manufacture, sale, or storage of alcoholic beverages in such localities in, and such sections and portions of, the District of Columbia as they may deem proper in the public interest; to limit the number of licenses of each class to be issued in the District of Columbia and to limit the number of licenses of each class in any locality in, or sections or portions of the District of Columbia as they may deem proper in the public interest; to forbid the issuance of licenses for businesses conducted on such premises as they, in the public interest, may deem inappropriate; to forbid the issuance of any class or classes of licenses for businesses established subsequent to January 24, 1934, near or around schools, colleges, universities, churches, or public institutions, to prescribe the hours during which beverages may be sold and to forbid the sale on Sundays; but the Commissioners shall not authorize the sale by any licensee, other than the holder of a retailer's license, class E, of any beverages on Sundays other than light wines and beer, and any such sale is hereby prohibited. Notwithstanding any other provision of this chapter, the Commissioners shall not authorize the sale by any licensee, other than the holder of a retailer's license, class E, of any beverages on the day of the presidential election in the District of Columbia during the hours when the polls are open, and any such sales are hereby prohibited.

The powers and authorities expressly enumerated are to be construed as in addition to, and not by way of limitation of, the general powers herein granted. Different regulations may be prescribed for the different classes of licenses, for the different classes of beverages, and for different localities in or sections or portions of the District of Columbia.

Any regulations promulgated hereunder shall become effective five days after being published in any daily newspaper of general circulation in the District of Columbia. Such regulations may be altered or amended from time to time as the Commissioners may deem desirable. The Commissioners shall also have authority in any time of public emergency, without previous notice of advertisement, to prohibit the sale of any or all beverages during the period of such emergency. (Jan. 24, 1934, 48 Stat. 322, ch. 4, § 7; June 29, 1953, 67 Stat. 102, ch. 159, § 404(a); Oct. 4, 1961, 75 Stat. 820, Pub. L. 87–389, § 3.)

AMENDMENTS

1961—Section 3, act Oct. 4, 1961, amended the second paragraph by inserting at the end of the first sentence the following new sentence: "Notwithstanding any other provision of this chapter, the Commissioners shall not authorize the sale by any licensee, other than the holder of a retailer's license, class E, of any beverages on the day of the presidential election in the District of Columbia during the hours when the polls are open, and any such sales are hereby prohibited."

1953—Act June 29, 1953, amended section by adding after the word "morals" in the first paragraph the provision authorizing the Commissioners to prescribe rules and regulations necessary to control consumption of alcoholic beverages on licensed premises.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Double jeopardy 1
Regulations, validity of 2

1. Double jeopardy

Convictions for violations of this act and the Liquor Taxing Act of 1934, did not place defendant in double jeopardy, the evidence required in the two cases being different. Sims v. Rives (1936, 84 F. 2d 871, 66 App. D.C. 24, certiorari denied 56 S. Ct. 960, 298 U.S. 682, 80 L. Ed. 1402).

2. Regulations, validity of

Section of the Distict of Columbia Code giving Commissioners authority to make regulations for issuance of liquor licenses and to forbid issuance of liquor licenses for businesses established subsequent to January 24, 1934, near or around schools, precluded promulgation of regulations forbidding liquor licenses to businesses established prior to January 24, 1934, because they are near schools, and prohibitory regulation was inapplicable to a restaurant business established in 1928. H. S. Hensel et al. v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Board et al. (1963, 321 F. 2d 754, 116 U.S. App. D.C. 141).

Regulation of Alcoholic Beverage Control Board prescribing the terms upon which credit may be extended to liquor retailer by wholesalers and manufacturers was valid. Press Liquors, Inc. v. F. E. Weakley, Chairman etc. (1963, 317 F. 2d 135, 115 U.S. App. D.C. 71).

Under District of Columbia statute imposing a tax on all beer sold and prescribing monthly reports of beer "sold by him during the preceding calendar month", regulation of the Commissioners taxing beer in warehouse and before it is sold were not authorized. American Sales Co. v. District of Columbia (1961, 292 F. 2d 751, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 258).

§ 25–109. Sale without license prohibited—Exceptions.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

5.50. Evidence—sufficiency

Evidence sustained conviction for unlicensed keeping for sale and selling of alcoholic beverages. R. L. Baer et ano. v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 182 A. 2d 839).

Evidence was sufficient to sustain convictions of keeping for sale and selling alcoholic beverages without a license. G. Williams & S. Stokes v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 167 A. 2d 893).

§ 25–111. License classifications—Fees.

* * * * *

(g) Retailer's license, class C.—Such a license shall be issued only for a bona fide restaurant, hotel, or club, or a passenger-carrying marine vessel serving meals, or a club car or a dining car on a railroad. It shall authorize the holder thereof to keep for sale and to sell spirits, wine, and beer at the place therein described for consumption only in said place. Except in the case of clubs, hotels, and passenger-carrying marine vessels serving meals in interstate commerce of one hundred miles or more, no beverage shall be sold or served to a customer in any closed container. In the case of passenger-carrying marine vessels and club cars or dining cars on a railroad, said spirits and wine, except light wines, shall be sold or served only to persons seated at public tables, and beer and light wines shall be sold and served only to persons seated at public tables or at bona fide lunch counters, except that spirits, wine, and beer may be sold or served to assemblages of more than six individuals in a private room when such room has been previously approved by the Board. In the case of restaurants, said spirits, beer, and wine shall be sold or served only (1) to persons seated at public tables or at bona fide lunch counters, and (2) to persons in an enclosed or screened-off area in any such restaurant set aside for the accommodation of persons waiting to be seated at public tables. In the case of hotels, said beverages may be sold and served only in the private room of a registered guest or to persons seated at public tables or to assemblages of more than six individuals in a private room, when such room has been previously approved by the Board. Beer and light wines may also be sold and served to persons seated in bona fide lunch counters. And in the case of clubs, said beverages may be sold and served in the private room of a member or guest of a member, or to persons seated at tables. No license shall be issued to a club which has not been established for at least three months immediately prior to the making of the application for such license. All alcoholic beverages offered for sale or sold by the holder of such licenses may be displayed and dispensed in full sight of the purchaser.

The fee for such a license shall be for a restaurant, $825 per annum; for a hotel, under one hundred rooms, $825 per annum; for a hotel of one hundred or more rooms, $1,650 per annum; for a club, $425 per annum; for a marine vessel serving meals in interstate commerce of one hundred miles or more and for each railroad dining car or club car, $3 per month or $20 per annum: Provided, That such a license may be issued to any company engaged in interstate commerce covering all dining, club, and lounge cars operated by such company on railroads within the District of Columbia upon the payment of an annual fee of $100; for all other passenger-carrying marine vessels serving meals, $75 per month or $825 per annum.

§ 25–118. Revocation of license—Causes—Hearing—Discretionary closing for one year.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

2. Delinquent retailer

The Alcoholic Beverge Control Board does not have authority to prohibit further purchases by a liquor retailer who is delinquent in the payment of his account to wholesalers but can only revoke or suspend license of retailer for violating rules or regulations concerning credit. Press Liquors, Inc. v. F. E. Weakley, Chairman etc. (1963, 317 F. 2d 135, 115 U.S. App. D.C. 71).

§ 25–119. Revocation of license when manufacturer interested—Manufacturer forbidden to loan money or furnish equipment for wholesaler or retailer—Extending credit permitted—"Manufacturer" defined.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

1. Construction

Sections of Alcoholic Beverage Control Act prohibiting a manufacturer or wholesaler of alcoholic beverages from lending money or property to a retailer apply only to a manufacturer or wholesaler who has such a substantial interest in the business of its customer, or in his premises, as in the judgment of the Board may tend to influence the customer to purchase beverages from him. Press Liquors, Inc. v. F. E. Weakley, Chairman etc. (1963, 317 F. 2d 135, 115 U.S. App. D.C. 71).

§ 25–120. Revocation of license when wholesaler interested—Wholesaler forbidden to loan money or furnish equipment to retailer—Extending credit not prohibited—"Wholesaler" defined.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

1. Construction

Sections of Alcoholic Beverage Control Act prohibiting a manufacturer or wholesaler of alcoholic beverages from lending money or property to a retailer apply only to a manufacturer or wholesaler who has such a substantial interest in the business of its customer, or in his premises, as in the judgment of the Board may tend to influence the customer to purchase beverages from him. Press Liquors, Inc. v. F. E. Weakley, Chairman etc. (1963, 317 F. 2d 135, 115 U.S. App. D.C. 71).

§ 25–124. Beverage taxes—Method of collection—Class C or D licensees—Reports.

(a) There shall be levied, collected, and paid on all of the following-named beverages manufactured by a holder of a manufacturer's license and on all of the said beverages imported or brought into the District by a holder of a wholesaler's license, except beverages as may be sold to a dealer licensed under the laws of any State or Territory of the United States and not licensed under this chapter, and on all beverages imported or brought into the District by a holder of a retailer's license, a tax at the following rates to be paid by the licensee in the manner hereinafter provided: (1) a tax of 15 cents on every wine-gallon of wine containing 14 per centum or less of alcohol by volume, other than champagne, sparkling wine, and any wine artificially carbonated, and a proportionate tax at a like rate on all fractional parts of such gallon; (2) a tax of 33 cents on every wine-gallon of wine containing more than 14 per centum of alcohol by volume, other than champagne, sparkling wine, and any wine artificially carbonated, and a proportionate tax at a like rate on all fractional parts of such gallon; (3) a tax of 45 cents on every wine-gallon of champagne, sparkling wine, and any wine artificially carbonated, and a proportionate tax at a like rate on all fractional parts of such gallon; (4) a tax of $1.50 on every wine-gallon of spirits and a proportionate tax at a like rate on all fractional parts of such gallon; (5) and a tax of $1.50 on every wine-gallon of alcohol and a proportionate tax at a like rate on all fractional parts of such gallon.

* * * * *

Former (c) repealed by act Sept. 14, 1961.

(c) [Former subsection (d) as amended:]

Said taxes shall be collected and paid in the following manner:

(1) Each holder of a manufacturer's or wholesaler's license shall, on or before the tenth day of each month, furnish to the Commissioners or their designated agent on a form to be prescribed by the Commissioners, a statement under oath showing the quantity of beverage subject to taxation hereunder sold by him during the preceding calendar month and shall, on or before the fifteenth day of each month, pay to the Commissioners or their designated agent the tax hereby imposed upon the quantity of beverages subject to taxation hereunder sold by him during the preceding calendar month.

(2) No licensee holding a retailer's license shall transport or cause to be transported into the District of Columbia any beverages subject to taxation hereunder other than the regular stock on hand in a passenger carrying marine vessel operating in and beyond the District of Columbia, or a club car or a dining car on a railroad operating in and beyond the District of Columbia, for which a retailer's license, class C or D, has been issued under this chapter, unless such licensee has first obtained a permit so to do from the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board. No such permit shall issue until the tax imposed by this section shall have been paid for the beverages for which the permit is requested. Such permit shall specifically set forth the quantity, character, and brand or trade name of the beverage to be transported and the names and addresses of the seller and of the purchaser. Such permit shall accompany such beverages during transportation in the District of Columbia to the licensed premises of such retail licensee and shall be exhibited upon the demand of any police officer or duly authorized inspector of the Board. Such permit shall, immediately upon receipt of the beverage by the retail licensee, be marked "canceled" and retained by him.

(3) The Commissioners are authorized and empowered to prescribe by regulation such other methods or devices or both for the assessment, evidencing of payment, and collection of the taxes imposed by this section in addition to or in lieu of the method hereinbefore set forth whenever in their judgment such action is necessary to prevent frauds or evasions.

(d) [Former subsection (g).]

(e) [Former subsection (h).] [Former subsection (e) repealed by act Sept. 14, 1961.]

(f) [Former subsection (k) as amended:] [Former subsection (f) repealed by act Sept. 14, 1961.]

No taxing provision of this section shall apply in the case of a passenger-carrying marine vessel operating in and beyond the District of Columbia, or a club car or a dining car on a railroad operating in and beyond the District of Columbia, for which a retailer's license, class C or D, has been issued under this chapter, except as set forth in this subsection.

The tax as specified in subsection (a) of this section shall be paid on all such beverages as are sold and served by said licensee while passing through or when at rest in the District of Columbia, in the following manner: A record shall be made and kept by the licensee for each passenger-carrying marine vessel operating in and beyond the District of Columbia, and for each club car or dining car on a railroad operating in and beyond the District of Columbia, for which a retailer's license, class C or class D, has been issued under this chapter, of all alcoholic beverages sold and served in the District of Columbia, which record shall be subject to inspection by the board. Each holder of such a license shall, on or before the tenth day of each month, forward to the Board on a form to be prescribed by the Commissioners, a statement under oath, showing the quantity of each kind of beverage, except beer and wines, sold under such license in the District of Columbia during the preceding calendar month and such statement shall be accompanied by payment of any tax imposed under this chapter upon any such beverages set forth in said report.

(g) The Commissioners are authorized to require that the immediate container of each beverage subject to tax under this chapter contain the license number of each licensee who sells or offers for sale such beverage. Such license number must be affixed at the time of display or sale of said spirits by the retailer. This subsection shall not apply to spirit containers of less than two ounces.

AMENDMENTS

1962—Section 401 act Mar. 2, 1962, amended clauses (4) and (5) of subsection (a) by increasing the tax from $1.25 to $1.50.

1961—Subsection (c) repealed by act Sept. 14, 1961, § 1. See main volume for provisions of subsection.

Subsection (d) renumbered as (c) by section 2 of same act, and amended to read as above set out. For provisions of former subsection (d) see main volume.

Subsections (e), (f), (i), and (j) were repealed and subsections (g) and (h) were renumbered as (d) and (e) by section 3 of the same act. For the provisions of the repealed subsections, see main volume.

Subsection (k) was renumbered as (f) and amended to read as above set out, by section 4 of the same act. See original subsection (k) in main volume.

Subsection (g) was added by section 5 of the act. Sections 6, 7, 8, and 9 of the act made enactments which are set out as notes hereunder.

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1962 AMENDMENTS

Section 402, act Mar. 2, 1962, provided that the amendments made by section 401 "shall take effect on the first day of the first month which begins on or after the thirtieth day after the date of enactment of this Act." [Mar. 2, 1962]

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1961 AMENDMENT

Section 9 of act Sept. 14, 1961, provided that: "This Act [making amendments, repeals, and changes set out under 1961 Amendment note] shall take effect on the first day of the calendar month beginning not less than sixty days after the date of approval of this Act [Sept. 14, 1961]."

CONSTRUCTION OF ACT SEPT. 14, 1961, AND DECLARATION OF AUTHORITY

Section 6 of act Sept. 14, 1961, provided that:

"Nothing in this Act [repealing subsection (c) renumbering subsection (d) as subsection (c) and amending same to read as above set out; repealing subsections (e), (f), (i), and (j); renumbering (g) and (h) as (d) and (e) and renumbering (k) as (f) and amending same to read as above set out and adding subsection (g)] shall be construed as requiring the payment of any further tax on beverages to which stamps have been lawfully affixed under provisions of prior law."

Section 8 of said act provided that:

"Nothing in this Act [making the repeals, amendments and renumberings above set out] shall be construed so as to affect the authority vested in the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia by Reorganization Plan Numbered 5 of 1952 (66 Stat. 824). The performance of any function vested by this Act in the Board of Commissioners or in any office or agency under the jurisdiction and control of said Board of Commissioners may be delegated by said Board of Commissioners in accordance with section 3 of such plan."

REDEMPTION OF UNUSED STAMPS

Section 7 of act Sept. 14, 1961, provided that:

"The Commissioners or their designated agent are authorized to redeem any unused stamps issued under the provisions of prior law or to accept same in payment of tax shown due on a monthly return."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Affixation of tax stamps 1
Collector's control of goods in warehouse 2
Tax on sales to embassies and international organizations 3

1. Affixation of tax stamps

Alcoholic spirits remaining on retail liquor dealer's premises for more than 24 hours without having District of Columbia tax stamps affixed were properly condemned and forfeited, even though dealer had the necessary stamps on his premises. Apex Liquors Inc. v. District of Columbia (1962, 303 F. 2d 206, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 346).

2. Collector's control of goods in warehouse

Although goods in bonded warehouse are in joint custody of warehouse owner and collector of customs, they are subject to control of collector as to release of goods from warehouse. District of Columbia v. International Distributing Corp. (1964, 331 F. 2d 817, —— U.S. App. D.C. ——).

3. Tax on sales to embassies and international organizations

Wholesaler of imported alcoholic beverages stored in private bonded warehouse under charge of customs official was not liable for District of Columbia excise taxes on sale of such beverages to foreign embassies and international organizations. District of Columbia v. International Distributing Corp. (1964, 331 F. 2d 817, —— U.S. App. D.C. ——).

Under District of Columbia statute imposing a tax on all beer sold and prescribing monthly reports of beer "sold by him during the preceding calendar month", regulation of the Commissioners taxing beer in warehouse and before it is sold were not authorized. American Sales Co. v. District of Columbia (1961, 292 F. 2d 751, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 258).

TITLE 26.—BANKS AND OTHER FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS

Chapter 5.—CREDIT UNIONS

Sec.
26–501 to 26–518. Repealed.
26–519. Conversion of District of Columbia credit unions into Federal credit unions—Procedure.
26–520. Approval of organization certificate by Director of the Bureau of Federal Credit Unions—Effect of approval of certificate.
26–521. Converted credit union to be subject to provisions of Federal Credit Union Act—Fee not to be charged upon conversion—Liquidation of loans of converting union—New bylaws—Bylaws inconsistent with provisions of Federal Credit Union Act.
26–522. Repeal of sections 26–501 to 26–518—Effective date.

§§ 26–501 to 26–518. Repealed. Aug. 1, 1964, 78 Stat. 377, Pub. L. 88–395, § 4, effective 30 days after Aug. 1, 1964.

Sections 26–501 to 26–518, being the act of June 23, 1932, 47 Stat. 326, ch. 272, as amended, dealt with the formation operation and management of credit unions in the District of Columbia. These sections were repealed by the act of Aug. 1, 1964, 78 Stat. 377, Pub. L. 88–395, § 4, effective 30 days after Aug. 1, 1964. However the same act authorized the conversion of District of Columbia Credit Unions to Federal Credit Unions. See sections 26–519 to 26–521.

§ 26–519. Conversion of District of Columbia credit unions into Federal credit unions—Procedure.

Any credit union organized under the District of Columbia Credit Unions Act (47 Stat. 326), as amended [sections 26–501 to 26–518], may apply for conversion into a Federal credit union by filing with the Director of the Bureau of Federal Credit Unions (hereinafter referred to as the Director), pursuant to a resolution adopted by a majority of its directors, an organization certificate meeting the requirements of section 4 of the Federal Credit Union Act (12 U.S.C. 1753), as amended. (Aug. 1, 1964, 78 Stat. 377, Pub. L. 88–395, §1.)

§ 26–520. Approval of organization certificate by Director of the Bureau of Federal Credit Unions—Effect of approval of certificate.

The Director shall approve any such organization certificate meeting such requirements. Upon such approval, the applicant credit union shall become a Federal credit union, and shall be vested with all of the assets and shall continue responsible for all of the obligations of such applicant credit union to the same extent as though the conversion had not taken place. (Aug. 1, 1964, 78 Stat. 377, Pub. L. 88–395, § 2.)

§ 26–521. Converted credit union to be subject to provisions of Federal Credit Union Act—Fee not to be charged upon conversion—Liquidation of loans of converting union—New bylaws—Bylaws inconsistent with provisions of Federal Credit Union Act.

Any District of Columbia credit union converting into a Federal credit union in accordance with sections 26–519 to 26–522 shall thereupon be subject to the limitations, vested with the powers, and charged with the liabilities conferred and imposed by the Federal Credit Union Act upon credit unions organized thereunder, except that—

(1) no fee shall be imposed upon a credit union converting pursuant to sections 26–519 to 26–522 as an incident to its conversion;

(2) any loan or investment made by a credit union converting pursuant to sections 26–519 to 26–522 in conformity with the District of Columbia Credit Unions Act [sections 26–501 to 26–518] prior to its conversion, which does not conform to the requirements of the Federal Credit Union Act and is still outstanding at the time of conversion, shall be liquidated at or before its maturity or, if it has no maturity date, in a prudent manner and within a reasonable period of time; and

(3) a credit union converting pursuant to sections 26–519 to 26–522 shall submit proposed bylaws to the Director for his approval after its conversion, but not later than thirty days following its next annual meeting or six months after the enactment of sections 26–519 to 26–522, whichever is later: Provided, That any existing bylaw inconsistent with any other requirements of the Federal Credit Union Act shall be deemed null and void. (Aug. 1, 1964, 78 Stat. 377, Pub. L. 88–395, § 3.)

§ 26–522. Repeal of sections 26–501 to 26–518—Effective date.

Effective thirty days after August 1, 1964, the District of Columbia Credit Unions Act (47 Stat. 326 [sections 26–502 to 26–518], as amended, is repealed and all organization certificates issued thereunder and still in force are revoked. (Aug. 1, 1964, 78 Stat. 377, Pub. L. 88–395, § 4.)

Chapter 6.—MONEY LENDERS—LICENSES

§ 26–601. Loaning of money on security—Rate of interest—License—Appointment of resident agent—Service on removal.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

18.50. Summary judgment

Assuming original contracts and engagements were illegal and void because of violation of usury statutes and "loan shark law," claims of complaint that parties entered into agreements purporting to settle and compromise original contracts and engagements and that settlement agreements did not eliminate illegality presented complex issues of fact and law and mixed questions of law and fact not susceptible of disposition by summary judgment. Indian Lake Estates, Inc. v. Lichtman (1962, 311 F. 2d 776, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 90).

§ 26–610. Persons, associations, and corporations exempt from operation of this chapter.

(a) Nothing contained in this chapter shall be held to apply to the legitimate business of national banks, licensed bankers, trust companies, savings banks, building and loan associations, small business investment companies licensed and operating under the Small Business Investment Act of 1958, or real estate brokers, as defined in sections 47–1701 to 47–1709, or to life insurance companies. As used in this section the term "life insurance companies" means and includes any life insurance company authorized to do business in the District of Columbia pursuant to the Life Insurance Act (48 Stat. 1127, et seq.) and any other life insurance company which has a valid, current license to do business as such in any State of the United States.

(b) Any person or any legal entity exempted from the provisions of this Act by such subsection (a) of this section making loans secured on real or personal property in the District of Columbia who or which does not maintain an office for doing business in the District of Columbia or a residence in said District where such person or legal entity may be served with process in any suit arising out of any such transaction or in connection with such property shall appoint and maintain at all times in the District of Columbia a resident agent upon whom process may be served in any such suit, and shall register with the Commissioners of the District of Columbia or with their designee the name and address of such resident agent. Any such person or legal entity which fails to appoint and maintain at all times in the District of Columbia such resident agent shall not, while such failure continues, be entitled to the exemption provided in this section. Whenever any such person or entity does not have in the District of Columbia an agent for service of process or such agent cannot with reasonable diligence be found at his registered address, then the said Commissioners or their designee shall be the agent for the service of process for such person or entity. Service of process on the Commissioners or their designee shall be made by delivering to, and leaving with them, or with any person having charge of their office, or with their designee, duplicate copies of the process accompanied by a fee in the amount of $2.00 and such service shall be sufficient service upon such person or entity. In the event of such service, the Commissioners, or their designee, shall immediately cause one of such copies to be forwarded by registered or certified mail, addressed to such person or entity at his or its address, as such address appears on the records of the Commissioners or their designee. Any such service shall be returnable in not less than thirty days unless the rules of the court issuing such process prescribe another period, in which case such prescribed period shall govern. Nothing contained in this section shall limit or affect the right to serve any process, notice, or demand required or permitted by law to be served on any such person or entity in any other manner now or hereafter permitted by law. (Feb. 4, 1913, 37 Stat. 660, ch. 26, § 10; June 11, 1960, 74 Stat. 196, Pub. L. 86–502, § 7; Dec. 5, 1963, 77 Stat. 344, Pub. L. 88–191, § 1.)

REFERENCE IN TEXT

The Life Insurance Act referred to in subsection (a) is the act described in section 35–301.

The Small Business Investment Act of 1958, referred to in text, is the act of Aug. 21, 1958, 72 Stat. 689, Pub. L. 85–699 and is set out in various sections of titles 12, 15 and 18 of the U.S. Code.

AMENDMENTS

1963—Act Dec. 5, 1963, amended the section as follows:
(1) Inserted (a) before the first word;
(2) Inserted at the end of subsection (a) the matter relating to life insurance companies;
(3) Added subsection (b).

1960—Act June 11, 1960, amended the section by adding after the word "associations" the words, "small business investment companies licensed and operating under the Small Business Investment Act of 1958".

TITLE 27.—CEMETERIES AND CREMATORIES

Chapter 1.—CEMETERY ASSOCIATIONS—REGULATORY PROVISIONS

§ 27–119a. Disposal of dead bodies—Permits required—Movement and disposition of tissue by tissue banks—Violations.

It shall be unlawful to inter, disinter, or otherwise dispose of the dead body, or any part thereof, of any human being, except upon a permit, duly issued by the Director of Public Health of the District of Columbia, or such other person or persons as the Commissioners of the District of Columbia shall designate, or to remove from place to place, or transport, the dead body, or any part thereof, of a human being, except, upon such terms and conditions as the Commissioners may specify. Notwithstanding the provisions of the preceding sentence, the Commissioners may, in their discretion, by regulation authorize (a) tissue banks operating pursuant to the District of Columbia Tissue Bank Act or (b) other persons subject to regulations made pursuant to such Act, or both, to remove, transport, and dispose of tissue taken from such dead body without such permit. Any violation hereof shall be subject to the penalties contained in section 27–126. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1296, ch. 854, §§ 675, 676, as added Sept. 22, 1950, 64 Stat. 904, ch. 985, § 1; Sept. 10, 1962, 76 Stat. 536, Pub. L. 87–656, § 10.)

REFERENCE IN TEXT

District of Columbia Tissue Bank Act is set out as chapter 2A of title 2 and as amendments to this section and section 27–125.

AMENDMENT

1962—Section 10 of act Sept. 10, 1962, amended this section by striking, in the first sentence the words, "remove, transport" and by inserting immediately after "designate" the words, "or to remove from place to place, or transport, the dead body, or any part thereof, of a human being, except" and by the addition of the second sentence as above set out beginning with the word "Notwithstanding" and ending with the word "permit".

§ 27–125. Permit to cremate—Embalming—Removal of tissue immediately after death.

It shall be unlawful for any person or persons to cremate or otherwise to destroy the dead body, or part of the dead body, of any human being in said District before the issue of the burial permit by the director of public health of said District, and then only when said permit is countersigned by the coroner of said District, authorizing such cremation or destruction. It shall be unlawful for any person or persons to embalm, inject, or by any similar method preserve the dead body, or part of the dead body, of any human being in said District within four hours after death or before the issue of the death certificate; and in case the death is believed to be due to other than natural causes, or the cause thereof is unknown, such embalming, injecting, or preserving shall at no time be done unless such death certificate has been signed or approved by the coroner of said District. Notwithstanding the provisions of this section, whenever any person is pronounced dead by a physician duly licensed or duly registered under the Healing Arts Practice Act of the District of Columbia, tissue donated in accordance with the provisions of the District of Columbia Tissue Bank Act may be removed by or under the supervision of a person licensed under the authority of section 2–253 for preservation in a tissue bank operating pursuant to such Act, without regard for any time limitation, or for any permit or certificate requirement, established by this section: Provided, That with respect to a dead human body in the custody of the Coroner or under his jurisdiction, no tissue shall be removed therefrom for preservation except with the specific approval of the Coroner in each case. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1298, ch. 854, § 683; Aug. 1, 1950, 64 Stat. 393, ch. 153, § 1; Sept. 10, 1962, 76 Stat. 537, Pub. L. 87–656, § 11.)

Enacting Clause

Enacting clause of act Dec. 30, 1963, Pub. L. 88–243, provided as follows: "That the Uniform Commercial Code is enacted as Subtitle I of Title 28 of the District of Columbia Code, in which it shall be designated 'Subtitle I—Uniform Commercial Code', and may be cited as 'D.C. Code, § —', as follows:"

Effective Date

Section 16 of act Dec. 30, 1963, Pub. L. 88–243, provided as follows: "This Act [Uniform Commercial Code] shall become effective on Jan. 1, 1965. Laws enacted after the approval of this Act, that are inconsistent with this Act, supersede it to the extent of the inconsistency."

Savings and Continuation Provisions

Section 15 (b) and (c) of act Dec. 30, 1963, Pub. L. 88–243, set out as subtitle I of title 28 and other parts of the Code [see distribution tables] provided as follows: "(b) Except as provided by subsection (c) of this section, transactions validly entered into before the effective date specified in section 16 of this Act [Pub. L. 88–243, effective Jan. 1, 1965] and the rights, duties and interests flowing from them remain valid thereafter and may be terminated, completed, consummated or enforced as required or permitted by any statute or other law amended or repealed by this Act as though such repeal or amendment had not occurred.

"(c) The perfection of a security interest, as defined in section 28:1–201 of the District of Columbia Code, and however denominated in any law repealed by this Act, which was perfected when this Act takes effect by a filing, refiling or recording under a law repealed by this Act and requiring a further filing, refiling or recording to continue its perfection, continue until and will lapse on the date provided by the law so repealed for such further filing, refiling or recording, unless in such case, a continuation statement is filed, in the office of the Recorder of Deeds of the District, by the secured party within twelve months before the perfection of the security interest would otherwise lapse. Any such continuation statement must be signed by the secured party, identifying the original security agreement, however denominated, state the date of the last filing, refiling or recording and the filing number, and further state that the original security agreement is still effective. Except as herein specified, the provisions of section 28:9–403(3) of the Code apply to such a continuation statement."

28:1–207. Performance or acceptance under reservation of rights.
28:1–208. Option to accelerate at will.

Part 1.—Short Title, Construction, Application and Subject Matter

§ 28:1–101. Short title.

This subtitle shall be known and may be cited as Uniform Commercial Code. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 631, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:1–102. Purposes; rules of construction; variation by agreement.

(1) This subtitle shall be liberally construed and applied to promote its underlying purposes and policies.

(2) Underlying purposes and policies of this subtitle are:

(a) to simplify, clarify and modernize the law governing commercial transactions;

(b) to permit the continued expansion of commercial practices through custom, usage and agreement of the parties;

(c) to make uniform the law among the various jurisdictions.

(3) The effect of provisions of this subtitle may be varied by agreement, except as otherwise provided in this subtitle and except that the obligations of good faith, diligence, reasonableness and care prescribed by this subtitle may not be disclaimed by agreement but the parties may by agreement determine the standards by which the performance of such obligations is to be measured if such standards are not manifestly unreasonable.

(4) The presence in certain provisions of this subtitle of the words "unless otherwise agreed" or words of similar import does not imply that the effect of other provisions may not be varied by agreement under subsection (3).

(5) In this subtitle unless the context otherwise requires:

(a) words in the singular number include the plural, and in the plural include the singular;

(b) words of the masculine gender include the feminine and the neuter, and when the sense so indicates words of the neuter gender may refer to any gender.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 631, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:1–103. Supplementary general principles of law applicable.

Unless displaced by the particular provisions of this subtitle, the principles of law and equity, including the law merchant and the law relative to capacity to contract, principal and agent, estoppel, fraud, misrepresentation, duress, coercion, mistake, bankruptcy, or other validating or invalidating cause shall supplement its provisions. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 631, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:1–104. Construction against implicit repeal.

This subtitle being a general act intended as a unified coverage of its subject matter, no part of it shall be deemed to be impliedly repealed by subsequent legislation if such construction can reasonably be avoided. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 631, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:1–105. Territorial application of this subtitle; parties' power to choose applicable law.

(1) Except as provided hereafter in this section, when a transaction bears a reasonable relation to the District and also to a state or nation the parties may agree that the law either of the District or of such state or nation shall govern their rights and duties. Failing such agreement this subtitle applies to transactions bearing an appropriate relation to the District.

(2) Where one of the following provisions of this subtitle specifies the applicable law, that provision governs and a contrary agreement is effective only to the extent permitted by the law (including the conflict of laws rules) so specified:

Rights of creditors against sold goods. Section 28:2–402.

Applicability of the article on bank deposits and collections. Section 28:4–102.

Bulk transfers subject to the article on bulk transfers. Section 28:6–102.

Applicability of the article on investment securities. Section 28:8–106.

Policy and scope of the article on secured transactions. Sections 28:9–102 and 28:9–103.

§ 28:1–106. Remedies to be liberally administered.

(1) The remedies provided by this subtitle shall be liberally administered to the end that the aggrieved party may be put in as good a position as if the other party had fully performed but neither consequential or special nor penal damages may be had except as specifically provided in this subtitle or by other rule of law.

(2) Any right or obligation declared by this subtitle is enforceable by action unless the provision declaring it specifies a different and limited effect. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 632, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:1–107. Waiver or renunciation of claim or right after breach.

Any claim or right arising out of an alleged breach can be discharged in whole or in part without consideration by a written waiver or renunciation signed and delivered by the aggrieved party. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 632, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:1–108. Severability.

If any provision or clause of this subtitle or application thereof to any person or circumstances is held invalid, such invalidity shall not affect other provisions or applications of this subtitle which can be given effect without the invalid provision or application, and to this end the provisions of this subtitle are declared to be severable. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 632, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:1–109. Section captions.

Section captions are parts of this subtitle. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 632, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

Part 2.—General Definitions and Principles of Interpretation

§ 28:1–201. General definitions.

Subject to additional definitions contained in the subsequent articles of this subtitle which are applicable to specific articles or parts thereof, and unless the context otherwise requires, in this subtitle:

(1) "Action" in the sense of a judicial proceeding includes recoupment, counterclaim, set-off, suit in equity and any other proceedings in which rights are determined.

(2) "Aggrieved party" means a party entitled to resort to a remedy.

(3) "Agreement" means the bargain of the parties in fact as found in their language or by implication from other circumstances including course of dealing or usage of trade or course of performance as provided in this subtitle (sections 28:1–205 and 2–208). Whether an agreement has legal consequences is determined by the provisions of this subtitle, if applicable; otherwise by the law of contracts (section 28:1–103). (Compare "Contract".)

(4) "Bank" means any person engaged in the business of banking.

(5) "Bearer" means the person in possession of an instrument, document of title, or security payable to bearer or indorsed in blank.

(6) "Bill of lading" means a document evidencing the receipt of goods for shipment issued by a person engaged in the business of transporting or forwarding goods, and includes an airbill. "Airbill" means a document serving for air transportation as a bill of lading does for marine or rail transportation, and includes an air consignment note or air waybill.

(7) "Branch" includes a separately incorporated foreign branch of a bank.

(8) "Burden of establishing" a fact means the burden of persuading the triers of fact that the existence of the fact is more probable than its non-existence.

(9) "Buyer in ordinary course of business" means a person who in good faith and without knowledge that the sale to him is in violation of the ownership rights or security interest of a third party in the goods buys in ordinary course from a person in the business of selling goods of that kind but does not include a pawnbroker. "Buying" may be for cash or by exchange of other property or on secured or unsecured credit and includes receiving goods or documents of title under a preexisting contract for sale but does not include a transfer in bulk or as security for or in total or partial satisfaction of a money debt.

(10) "Conspicuous": A term or clause is conspicuous when it is so written that a reasonable person against whom it is to operate ought to have noticed it. A printed heading in capitals (as: NON-NEGOTIABLE BILL OF LADING) is conspicuous. Language in the body of a form is "conspicuous" if it is in larger or other contrasting type or color. But in a telegram any stated term is "conspicuous". Whether a term or clause is "conspicuous" or not is for decision by the court.

(11) "Contract" means the total legal obligation which results from the parties' agreement as affected by this subtitle and any other applicable rules of law. (Compare "Agreement".)

(12) "Creditor" includes a general creditor, a secured creditor, a lien creditor and any representative of creditors, including an assignee for the benefit of creditors, a trustee in bankruptcy, a receiver in equity and an executor or administrator of an insolvent debtor's or assignor's estate.

(13) "Defendant" includes a person in the position of defendant in a cross-action or counterclaim.

(14) "Delivery" with respect to instruments, documents of title, chattel paper or securities means voluntary transfer of possession.

(14a) "District" means the District of Columbia; and "state" includes the District.

(15) "Document of title" includes bill of lading, dock warrant, dock receipt, warehouse receipt or order for the delivery of goods, and also any other document which in the regular course of business or financing is treated as adequately evidencing that the person in possession of it is entitled to receive, hold and dispose of the document and the goods it covers. To be a document of title a document must purport to be issued by or addressed to a bailee and purport to cover goods in the bailee's possession which are either identified or are fungible portions of an identified mass.

(16) "Fault" means wrongful act, omission or breach.

(17) "Fungible" with respect to goods or securities means goods or securities of which any unit is, by nature or usage of trade, the equivalent of any other like unit. Goods which are not fungible shall be deemed fungible for the purposes of this subtitle to the extent that under a particular agreement or document unlike units are treated as equivalents.

(18) "Genuine" means free of forgery or counterfeiting.

(19) "Good faith" means honesty in fact in the conduct or transaction concerned.

(20) "Holder" means a person who is in possession of a document of title or an instrument or an investment security drawn, issued or indorsed to him or to his order or to bearer or in blank.

(21) To "honor" is to pay or to accept and pay, or where a credit so engages to purchase or discount a draft complying with the terms of the credit.

(22) "Insolvency proceedings" includes any assignment for the benefit of creditors or other proceedings intended to liquidate or rehabilitate the estate of the person involved.

(23) A person is "insolvent" who either has ceased to pay his debts in the ordinary course of business or cannot pay his debts as they become due or is insolvent within the meaning of the federal bankruptcy law.

(24) "Money" means a medium of exchange authorized or adopted by a domestic or foreign government as a part of its currency.

(25) A person has "notice" of a fact when:

(a) he has actual knowledge of it; or

(b) he has received a notice or notification of it; or

(c) from all the facts and circumstances known to him at the time in question he has reason to know that it exists.

A person "knows" or has "knowledge" of a fact when he has actual knowledge of it. "Discover" or "learn" or a word or phrase of similar import refers to knowledge rather than to reason to know. The time and circumstances under which a notice or notification may cease to be effective are not determined by this subtitle.

(26) A person "notifies" or "gives" a notice or notification to another by taking such steps as may be reasonably required to inform the other in ordinary course whether or not such other actually comes to know of it. A person "receives" a notice or notification when:

(a) it comes to his attention; or

(b) it is duly delivered at the place of business through which the contract was made or at any other place held out by him as the place for receipt of such communications.

(27) Notice, knowledge or a notice or notification received by an organization is effective for a particular transaction from the time when it is brought to the attention of the individual conducting that transaction, and in any event from the time when it would have been brought to his attention if the organization had exercised due diligence. An organization exercises due diligence if it maintains reasonable routines for communicating significant information to the person conducting the transaction and there is reasonable compliance with the routines. Due diligence does not require an individual acting for the organization to communicate information unless the communication is part of his regular duties or unless he has reason to know of the transaction and that the transaction would be materially affected by the information.

(28) "Organization" includes a corporation, government or governmental subdivision or agency, business trust, estate, trust, partnership or association, two or more persons having a joint or common interest, or any other legal or commercial entity.

(29) "Party", as distinct from "third party", means a person who has engaged in a transaction or made an agreement within this subtitle.

(30) "Person" includes an individual or an organization see section 28:1–102).

(31) "Presumption" or "presumed" means that the trier of fact must find the existence of the fact presumed unless and until evidence is introduced which would support a finding of its nonexistence.

(32) "Purchase" includes taking by sale, discount, negotiation, mortgage, pledge, lien, issue or re-issue, gift or any other voluntary transaction creating an interest in property.

(33) "Purchaser" means a person who takes by purchase.

(34) "Remedy" means any remedial right to which an aggrieved party is entitled with or without resort to tribunal.

(35) "Representative" includes an agent, an officer of a corporation or association, and a trustee, executor or administrator of an estate, or any other person empowered to act for another.

(36) "Rights" includes remedies.

(37) "Security interest" means an interest in personal property or fixtures which secures payment or performance of an obligation. The retention or reservation of title by a seller of goods notwithstanding shipment or delivery to the buyer (section 28:2–401) is limited in effect to a reservation of a "security interest". The term also includes any interest of a buyer of accounts, chattel paper, or contract rights which is subject to article 9. The special property interest of a buyer of goods on identification of such goods to a contract for sale under section 28:2–401 is not a "security interest", but a buyer may also acquire a "security interest" by complying with article 9. Unless a lease or consignment is intended as security, reservation of title thereunder is not a "security interest" but a consignment is in any event subject to the provisions on consignment sales (section 28:2–326). Whether a lease is intended as security is to be determined by the facts of each case; however, (a) the inclusion of an option to purchase does not of itself make the lease one intended for security, and (b) an agreement that upon compliance with the terms of the lease the lessee shall become or has the option to become the owner of the property for no additional consideration or for a nominal consideration does make the lease one intended for security.

(38) "Send" in connection with any writing or notice means to deposit in the mail or deliver for transmission by any other usual means of communication with postage or cost of transmission provided for and properly addressed and in the case of an instrument to an address specified thereon or otherwise agreed, or if there be none to any address reasonable under the circumstances. The receipt of any writing or notice within the time at which it would have arrived if properly sent has the effect of a proper sending.

(39) "Signed" includes any symbol executed or adopted by a party with present intention to authenticate a writing.

(40) "Surety" includes guarantor.

(41) "Telegram" includes a message transmitted by radio, teletype, cable, any mechanical method of transmission, or the like.

(42) "Term" means that portion of an agreement which relates to a particular matter.

(43) "Unauthorized" signature or indorsement means one made without actual, implied or apparent authority and includes a forgery.

(44) "Value". Except as otherwise provided with respect to negotiable instruments and bank collections (sections 28:3–303, 28:4–208 and 28:4–209) a person gives "value" for rights if he acquires them:

(a) in return for a binding commitment to extend credit or for the extension of immediately available credit whether or not drawn upon and whether or not a charge-back is provided for in the event of difficulties in collection; or

(b) as security for or in total or partial satisfaction of a pre-existing claim; or

(c) by accepting delivery pursuant to a pre-existing contract for purchase; or

(d) generally, in return for any consideration sufficient to support a simple contract.

(45) "Warehouse receipt" means a receipt issued by a person engaged in the business of storing goods for hire.

(46) "Written" or "writing" includes printing, typewriting or any other intentional reduction to tangible form. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 632, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965; Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 679, Pub. L. 88–509, § 4.)

AMENDMENT

1964—Section 4 of act Aug. 30, 1964, effective Jan. 1, 1965, amended the last sentence of clause 27 by changing "such information" to read "the communication".

§ 28:1–202. Prima facie evidence by third party documents.

A document in due form purporting to be a bill of lading, policy or certificate of insurance, official weigher's or inspector's certificate, consular invoice, or any other document authorized or required by the contract to be issued by a third party shall be prima facie evidence of its own authenticity and genuineness and of the facts stated in the document by the third party. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 636, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:1–203. Obligation of good faith.

Every contract or duty within this subtitle imposes an obligation of good faith in its performance or enforcement. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 636, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:1–204. Time; reasonable time; "seasonably".

(1) Whenever this subtitle requires any action to be taken within a reasonable time, any time which is not manifested unreasonable may be fixed by agreement.

(2) What is a reasonable time for taking any action depends on the nature, purpose and circumstances of such action.

(3) An action is taken, "seasonably" when it is taken at or within the time agreed or if no time is agreed at or within a reasonable time. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 636, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:1–205. Course of dealing and usage of trade.

(1) A course of dealing is a sequence of previous conduct between the parties to a particular transaction which is fairly to be regarded as establishing a common basis of understanding for interpreting their expressions and other conduct.

(2) A usage of trade is any practice or method of dealing having such regularity of observance in a place, vocation or trade as to justify an expectation that it will be observed with respect to the transaction in question. The existence and scope of such a usage are to be proved as facts. If it is established that such a usage is embodied in a written trade code or similar writing the interpretation of the writing is for the court.

(3) A course of dealing between parties and any usage of trade in the vocation or trade in which they are engaged or of which they are or should be aware give particular meaning to and supplement or qualify terms of an agreement.

(4) The express terms of an agreement and an applicable course of dealing or usage of trade shall be construed wherever reasonable consistent with each other; but when such construction is unreasonable express terms control both course of dealing and usage of trade and course of dealing controls usage of trade.

(5) An applicable usage of trade in the place where any part of performance is to occur shall be used in interpreting the agreement as to that part of the performance.

(6) Evidence of a relevant usage of trade offered by one party is not admissible unless and until he has given the other party such notice as the court finds sufficient to prevent unfair surprise to the latter. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 636, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:1–206. Statute of frauds for kinds of personal property not otherwise covered.

(1) Except in the cases described in subsection (2) of this section a contract for the sale of personal property is not enforceable by way of action or defense beyond five thousand dollars in amount or value of remedy unless there is some writing which indicates that a contract for sale has been made between the parties at a defined or stated price, reasonably identifies the subject matter, and is signed by the party against whom enforcement is sought or by his authorized agent.

(2) Subsection (1) of this section does not apply to contracts for the sale of goods (section 28:2–201) nor of securities (section 28:8–319) nor to security agreements (section 28:9–203). (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 636, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:1–207. Performance or acceptance under reservation of rights.

A party who with explicit reservation of rights performs or promises performance or assents to performance in a manner demanded or offered by the other party does not thereby prejudice the rights reserved. Such words as "without prejudice", "under protest" or the like are sufficient. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 637, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:1–208. Option to accelerate at will.

A term providing that one party or his successor in interest may accelerate payment or performance or require collateral or additional collateral "at will" or "when he deems himself insecure" or in words of similar import shall be construed to mean that he shall have power to do so only if he in good faith believes that the prospect of payment or performance is impaired. The burden of establishing lack of good faith is on the party against whom the power has been exercised. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 637, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

PART 1.—SHORT TITLE, GENERAL CONSTRUCTION AND SUBJECT MATTER

§ 28:2–101. Short title.

This article shall be known and may be cited as Uniform Commercial Code—Sales. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 639, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–102. Scope; certain security and other transactions excluded from this article.

Unless the context otherwise requires, this article applies to transactions in goods; it does not apply to any transaction which although in the form of an unconditional contract to sell or present sale is intended to operate only as a security transaction nor does this article impair or repeal any statute regulating sales to consumers, farmers or other specified classes of buyers. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 639, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–103. Definitions and index of definitions.

(1) In this article unless the context otherwise requires:

(a) "Buyer" means a person who buys or contracts to buy goods.

(b) "Good faith" in the case of a merchant means honesty in fact and the observance of reasonable commercial standards of fair dealing in the trade.

(c) "Receipt" of goods means taking physical possession of them.

(d) "Seller" means a person who sells or contracts to sell goods.

(2) Other definitions applying to this article or to specified parts thereof, and the sections in which they appear are:

"Acceptance". Section 28:2–606.
"Banker's credit". Section 28:2–325.
"Between merchants". Section 28:2–104.
"Cancellation". Section 28:2–106(4).
"Commercial unit". Section 28:2–105.
"Confirmed credit". Section 28:2–325.
"Conforming to contract". Section 28:2–106.
"Contract for sale". Section 28:2–106.
"Cover". Section 28:2–712.
"Entrusting". Section 28:2–403.
"Financing agency". Section 28:2–104.
"Future goods". Section 28:2–105.
"Goods". Section 28:2–105.
"Identification". Section 28:2–501.

"Sale". Section 28:2–106.
"Sale on approval". Section 28:2–326.
"Sale or return". Section 28:2–326.
"Termination". Section 28:2–106.

(3) The following definitions in other articles apply to this article:

"Check". Section 28: 3–104.
"Consignee". Section 28: 7–102.
"Consignor". Section 28: 7–102.
"Consumer goods". Section 28: 9–109.
"Dishonor". Section 28: 3–507.
"Draft". Section 28: 3–104.

(4) In addition article 1 contains general definitions and principles of construction and interpretation applicable throughout this article. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 639, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–104. Definitions: "merchant"; "between merchants"; "financing agency".

(1) "Merchant" means a person who deals in goods of the kind or otherwise by his occupation holds himself out as having knowledge or skill peculiar to the practices or goods involved in the transaction or to whom such knowledge or skill may be attributed by his employment of an agent or broker or other intermediary who by his occupation holds himself out as having such knowledge or skill.

(2) "Financing agency" means a bank, finance company or other person who in the ordinary course of business makes advances against goods or documents of title or who by arrangement with either the seller or the buyer intervenes in ordinary course to make or collect payment due or claimed under the contract for sale, as by purchasing or paying the seller's draft or making advances against it or by merely taking it for collection whether or not documents of title accompany the draft. "Financing agency" includes also a bank or other person who similarly intervenes between persons who are in the position of seller and buyer in respect to the goods (section 28: 2–707).

(3) "Between merchants" means in any transaction with respect to which both parties are chargeable with the knowledge or skill of merchants. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 640, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–105. Definitions: transferability; "goods"; "future" goods; "lot"; "commercial unit".

(1) "Goods" means all things (including specially manufactured goods) which are movable at the time of identification to the contract for sale other than the money in which the price is to be paid, investment securities (article 8) and things in action. "Goods" also includes the unborn young of animals and growing crops and other identified things attached to realty as described in the section on goods to be severed from realty (section 28: 2–107).

(2) Goods must be both existing and identified before any interest in them can pass. Goods which are not both existing and identified are "future" goods. A purported present sale of future goods or of any interest therein operates as a contract to sell.

(3) There may be a sale of a part interest in existing identified goods.

(4) An undivided share in an identified bulk of fungible goods is sufficiently identified to be sold although the quantity of the bulk is not determined. Any agreed proportion of such a bulk or any quantity thereof agreed upon by number, weight or other measure may to the extent of the seller's interest in the bulk be sold to the buyer who then becomes an owner in common.

(5) "Lot" means a parcel or a single article which is the subject matter of a separate sale or delivery, whether or not it is sufficient to perform the contract.

(6) "Commercial unit" means such a unit of goods as by commercial usage is a single whole for purposes of sale and division of which materially impairs its character or value on the market or in use. A commercial unit may be a single article (as a machine) or a set of articles (as a suite of furniture or an assortment of sizes) or a quantity (as a bale, gross, or carload) or any other unit treated in use or in the relevant market as a single whole. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 640, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–106. Definitions: "contract"; "agreement"; "contract for sale"; "sale"; "present sale"; "conforming" to contract; "termination"; "cancellation".

(1) In this article unless the context otherwise requires "contract" and "agreement" are limited to those relating to the present or future sale of goods. "Contract for sale" includes both a present sale of goods and a contract to sell goods at a future time. A "sale" consists in the passing of title from the seller to the buyer for a price (section 28: 2–401). A "present sale" means a sale which is accomplished by the making of the contract.

(2) Goods or conduct including any part of a performance are "conforming" or conform to the contract when they are in accordance with the obligations under the contract.

(3) "Termination" occurs when either party pursuant to a power created by agreement or law puts an end to the contract otherwise than for its breach. On "termination" all obligations which are still executory on both sides are discharged but any right based on prior breach or performance survives.

(4) "Cancellation" occurs when either party puts an end to the contract for breach by the other and its effect is the same as that of "termination" except that the cancelling party also retains any remedy for breach of the whole contract or any unperformed balance. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 641, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–107. Goods to be severed from realty; recording.

(1) A contract for the sale of timber, minerals or the like or a structure or its materials to be removed from realty is a contract for the sale of goods within this article if they are to be severed by the seller but until severance a purported present sale thereof which is not effective as a transfer of an interest in land is effective only as a contract to sell.

(2) A contract for the sale apart from the land of growing crops or other things attached to realty and capable of severance without material harm thereto but not described in subsection (1) is a contract for the sale of goods within this article whether the subject matter is to be severed by the buyer or by the seller even though it forms part of the realty at the time of contracting, and the parties can by identification effect a present sale before severance.

(3) The provisions of this section are subject to any third party rights provided by the law relating to realty records, and the contract for sale may be executed and recorded as a document transferring an interest in land and shall then constitute notice to third parties of the buyer's rights under the contract for sale. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 641, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

Part 2.—Form, Formation and Readjustment of Contract

§ 28:2–201. Formal requirements; statute of frauds.

(1) Except as otherwise provided in this section a contract for the sale of goods for the price of $500 or more is not enforceable by way of action or defense unless there is some writing sufficient to indicate that a contract for sale has been made between the parties and signed by the party against whom enforcement is sought or by his authorized agent or broker. A writing is not insufficient because it omits or incorrectly states a term agreed upon but the contract is not enforceable under this paragraph beyond the quantity of goods shown in such writing.

(2) Between merchants if within a reasonable time a writing in confirmation of the contract and sufficient against the sender is received and the party receiving it has reason to know its contents, it satisfies the requirements of subsection (1) against such party unless written notice of objection to its contents is given within ten days after it is received.

(3) A contract which does not satisfy the requirements of subsection (1) but which is valid in other respects is enforceable:

(a) if the goods are to be specially manufactured for the buyer and are not suitable for sale to others in the ordinary course of the seller's business and the seller, before notice of repudiation is received and under circumstances which reasonably indicate that the goods are for the buyer, has made either a substantial beginning of their manufacture or commitments for their procurement; or

(b) if the party against whom enforcement is sought admits in his pleading, testimony or otherwise in court that a contract for sale was made, but the contract is not enforceable under this provision beyond the quantity of goods admitted; or

(c) with respect to goods for which payment has been made and accepted or which have been received and accepted (section 28:2–606).

§ 28:2–202. Final written expression: parol or extrinsic evidence.

Terms with respect to which the confirmatory memoranda of the parties agree or which are otherwise set forth in a writing intended by the parties as a final expression of their agreement with respect to such terms as are included therein may not be contradicted by evidence of any prior agreement or of a contemporaneous oral agreement but may be explained or supplemented:

(a) by course of dealing or usage of trade (section 28:1–205) or by course of performance (section 28:2–208); and

(b) by evidence of consistent additional terms unless the court finds the writing to have been intended also as a complete and exclusive statement of the terms of the agreement.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 642, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–203. Seals inoperative.

The affixing of a seal to a writing evidencing a contract for sale or an offer to buy or sell goods does not constitute the writing a sealed instrument and the law with respect to sealed instruments does not apply to such a contract or offer. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 642, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–204. Formation in general.

(1) A contract for sale of goods may be made in any manner sufficient to show agreement, including conduct by both parties which recognizes the existence of such a contract.

(2) An agreement sufficient to constitute a contract for sale may be found even though the moment of its making is undetermined.

(3) Even though one or more terms are left open a contract for sale does not fail for indefiniteness if the parties have intended to make a contract and there is a reasonably certain basis for giving an appropriate remedy. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 643, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–205. Firm offers.

An offer by a merchant to buy or sell goods in a signed writing which by its terms gives assurance that it will be held open is not revocable, for lack of consideration, during the time stated or if no time is stated for a reasonable time, but in no event may such period of irrevocability exceed three months; but any such term of assurance on a form supplied by the offeree must be separately signed by the offeror. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 643, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–206. Offer and acceptance in formation of contract.

(1) Unless otherwise unambiguously indicated by the language or circumstances:

(a) an offer to make a contract shall be construed as inviting acceptance in any manner and by any medium reasonable in the circumstances;

(b) an order or other offer to buy goods for prompt or current shipment shall be construed as inviting acceptance either by a prompt promise to ship or by the prompt or current shipment of conforming or non-conforming goods, but such a shipment of non-conforming goods does not constitute an acceptance if the seller seasonably notifies the buyer that the shipment is offered only as an accommodation to the buyer.

(2) Where the beginning of a requested performance is a reasonable mode of acceptance an offeror who is not notified of acceptance within a reasonable time may treat the offer as having lapsed before acceptance. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 643, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–207. Additional terms in acceptance or confirmation.

(1) A definite and seasonable expression of acceptance or a written confirmation which is sent within a reasonable time operates as an acceptance even though it states terms additional to or different from those offered or agreed upon, unless acceptance is expressly made conditional on assent to the additional or different terms.

(2) The additional terms are to be construed as proposals for addition to the contract. Between merchants such terms become part of the contract unless:

(a) the offer expressly limits acceptance to the terms of the offer;

(b) they materially alter it; or

(c) notification of objection to them has already been given or is given within a reasonable time after notice of them is received.

(3) Conduct by both parties which recognizes the existence of a contract is sufficient to establish a contract for sale although the writings of the parties do not otherwise establish a contract. In such case the terms of the particular contract consist of those terms on which the writings of the parties agree, together with any supplementary terms incorporated under any other provisions of this subtitle. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 643, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–208. Course of performance or practical construction.

(1) Where the contract for sale involves repeated occasions for performance by either party with knowledge of the nature of the performance and opportunity for objection to it by the other, any course of performance accepted or acquiesced in without objection shall be relevant to determine the meaning of the agreement.

(2) The express terms of the agreement and any such course of performance, as well as any course of dealing and usage of trade, shall be construed whenever reasonable as consistent with each other; but when such construction is unreasonable, express terms shall control course of performance and course of performance shall control both course of dealing and usage of trade (section 28:1–205).

(3) Subject to the provisions of the next section on modification and waiver, such course of performance shall be relevant to show a waiver or modification of any term inconsistent with such course of performance. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 644, Pub L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–209. Modification, rescission and waiver.

(1) An agreement modifying a contract within this article needs no consideration to be binding.

(2) A signed agreement which excludes modification or rescission except by a signed writing cannot be otherwise modified or rescinded, but except as between merchants such a requirement on a form supplied by the merchant must be separately signed by the other party.

(3) The requirements of the statute of frauds section of this article (section 28:2–201) must be satisfied if the contract as modified is within its provisions.

(4) Although an attempt at modification or rescission does not satisfy the requirements of subsection (2) or (3), it can operate as a waiver.

(5) A party who has made a waiver affecting an executory portion of the contract may retract the waiver by reasonable notification received by the other party that strict performance will be required by any term waived, unless the retraction would be unjust in view of a material change of position in reliance on the waiver. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 644, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–210. Delegation of performance; assignment of rights.

(1) A party may perform his duty through a delegate unless otherwise agreed or unless the other party has a substantial interest in having his original promisor perform or control the acts required by the contract. No delegation of performance relieves the party delegating of any duty to perform or any liability for breach.

(2) Unless otherwise agreed all rights of either seller or buyer can be assigned except where the assignment would materially change the duty of the other party, or increase materially the burden or risk imposed on him by his contract, or impair materially his chance of obtaining return performance. A right to damages for breach of the whole contract or a right arising out of the assignor's due performance of his entire obligation can be assigned despite agreement otherwise.

(3) Unless the circumstances indicate the contrary a prohibition of assignment of "the contract" is to be construed as barring only the delegation to the assignee of the assignor's performance.

(4) An assignment of "the contract" or of "all my rights under the contract" or an assignment in similar general terms is an assignment of rights and unless the language or the circumstances (as in an assignment for security) indicate the contrary, it is a delegation of performance of the duties of the assignor and its acceptance by the assignee constitutes a promise by him to perform those duties. This promise is enforceable by either the assignor or the other party to the original contract.

(5) The other party may treat any assignment which delegates performance as creating reasonable grounds for insecurity and may without prejudice to his rights against the assignor demand assurances from the assignee (section 28:2-609). (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 644, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

Part 3.—General Obligation and Construction of Contract

§ 28:2-301. General obligations of parties.

The obligation of the seller is to transfer and deliver and that of the buyer is to accept and pay in accordance with the contract. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 645, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-302. Unconscionable contract or clause.

(1) If the court as a matter of law finds the contract or any clause of the contract to have been unconscionable at the time it was made the court may refuse to enforce the contract, or it may enforce the remainder of the contract without the unconscionable clause, or it may so limit the application of any unconscionable clause as to avoid any unconscionable result.

(2) When it is claimed or appears to the court that the contract or any clause thereof may be unconscionable the parties shall be afforded a reasonable opportunity to present evidence as to its commercial setting, purpose and effect to aid the court in making the determination. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 645, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-303. Allocation or division of risks.

Where this article allocates a risk or a burden as between the parties "unless otherwise agreed", the agreement may not only shift the allocation but may also divide the risk or burden. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 645, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-304. Price payable in money, goods, realty, or otherwise.

(1) The price can be made payable in money or otherwise. If it is payable in whole or in part in goods each party is a seller of the goods which he is to transfer.

(2) Even though all or part of the price is payable in an interest in realty the transfer of the goods and the seller's obligations with reference to them are subject to this article, but not the transfer of the interest in realty or the transferor's obligations in connection therewith. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 645, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-305. Open price term.

(1) The parties if they so intend can conclude a contract for sale even though the price is not settled. In such a case the price is a reasonable price at the time for delivery if:

(a) nothing is said as to price; or

(b) the price is left to be agreed by the parties and they fail to agree; or

(c) the price is to be fixed in terms of some agreed market or other standard as set or recorded by a third person or agency and it is not so set or recorded.

(2) A price to be fixed by the seller or by the buyer means a price for him to fix in good faith.

(3) When a price left to be fixed otherwise than by agreement of the parties fails to be fixed through fault of one party the other may at his option treat the contract as cancelled or himself fix a reasonable price.

(4) Where, however, the parties intend not to be bound unless the price be fixed or agreed and it is not fixed or agreed there is no contract. In such a case the buyer must return any goods already received or if unable so to do must pay their reasonable value at the time of delivery and the seller must return any portion of the price paid on account. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 645, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-306. Output, requirements and exclusive dealings.

(1) A term which measures the quantity by the output of the seller or the requirements of the buyer means such actual output or requirements as may occur in good faith, except that no quantity unreasonably disproportionate to any stated estimate or in the absence of a stated estimate to any normal or otherwise comparable prior output or requirements may be tendered or demanded.

(2) A lawful agreement by either the seller or the buyer for exclusive dealing in the kind of goods concerned imposes unless otherwise agreed an obligation by the seller to use best efforts to supply the goods and by the buyer to use best efforts to promote their sale. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 646, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-307. Delivery in single lot or several lots.

Unless otherwise agreed all goods called for by a contract for sale must be tendered in a single delivery and payment is due only on such tender but where the circumstances give either party the right to make or demand delivery in lots the price if it can be apportioned may be demanded for each lot. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 646, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-308. Absence of specified place for delivery.

Unless otherwise agreed:

(a) the place for delivery of goods is the seller's place of business or if he has none his residence; but

(b) in a contract for sale of identified goods which to the knowledge of the parties at the time of contracting are in some other place, that place is the place for their delivery; and

(c) documents of title may be delivered through customary banking channels.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 646, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–309. Absence of specific time provisions; notice of termination.

(1) The time for shipment or delivery or any other action under a contract if not provided in this article or agreed upon shall be a reasonable time.

(2) Where the contract provides for successive performances but is indefinite in duration it is valid for a reasonable time but unless otherwise agreed may be terminated at any time by either party.

(3) Termination of a contract by one party except on the happening of an agreed event requires that reasonable notification be received by the other party and an agreement dispensing with notification is invalid if its operation would be unconscionable. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 646, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–310. Open time for payment or running of credit; authority to ship under reservation.

Unless otherwise agreed:

(a) payment is due at the time and place at which the buyer is to receive the goods even though the place of shipment is the place of delivery; and

(b) if the seller is authorized to send the goods he may ship them under reservation, and may tender the documents of title, but the buyer may inspect the goods after their arrival before payment is due unless such inspection is inconsistent with the terms of the contract (section 28:2–513); and

(c) if delivery is authorized and made by way of documents of title otherwise than by subsection (b) then payment is due at the time and place at which the buyer is to receive the documents regardless of where the goods are to be received; and

(d) where the seller is required or authorized to ship the goods on credit the credit period runs from the time of shipment but post-dating the invoice or delaying its dispatch will correspondingly delay the starting of the credit period.

§ 28:2–311. Options and cooperation respecting performance.

(1) An agreement for sale which is otherwise sufficiently definite (subsection (3) of section 28:2–204) to be a contract is not made invalid by the fact that it leaves particulars of performance to be specified by one of the parties. Any such specification must be made in good faith and within limits set by commercial reasonableness.

(2) Unless otherwise agreed specifications relating to assortment of the goods are at the buyer's option and except as otherwise provided in subsections (1)(c) and (3) of section 28:2–319 specifications or arrangements relating to shipment are at the seller's option.

(3) Where such specification would materially affect the other party's performance but is not seasonably made or where one party's cooperation is necessary to the agreed performance of the other but is not seasonably forthcoming, the other party in addition to all other remedies:

(a) is excused for any resulting delay in his own performance; and

(b) may also either proceed to perform in any reasonable manner or after the time for a material part of his own performance treat the failure to specify or to cooperate as a breach by failure to deliver or accept the goods.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 647, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–312. Warranty of title and against infringement; buyer's obligation against infringement.

(1) Subject to subsection (2) there is in a contract for sale a warranty by the seller that:

(a) the title conveyed shall be good, and its transfer rightful; and

(b) the goods shall be delivered free from any security interest or other lien or encumbrance of which the buyer at the time of contracting has no knowledge.

(2) A warranty under subsection (1) will be excluded or modified only by specific language or by circumstances which give the buyer reason to know that the person selling does not claim title in himself or that he is purporting to sell only such right or title as he or a third person may have.

(3) Unless otherwise agreed a seller who is a merchant regularly dealing in goods of the kind warrants that the goods shall be delivered free of the rightful claim of any third person by way of infringement or the like but a buyer who furnishes specifications to the seller must hold the seller harmless against any such claim which arises out of compliance with the specifications. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 647, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–313. Express warranties by affirmation, promise, description, sample.

(1) Express warranties by the seller are created as follows:

(a) Any affirmation of fact or promise made by the seller to the buyer which relates to the goods and becomes part of the basis of the bargain creates an express warranty that the goods shall conform to the affirmation or promise.

(b) Any description of the goods which is made part of the basis of the bargain creates an express warranty that the goods shall conform to the description.

(c) Any sample or model which is made part of the basis of the bargain creates an express warranty that the whole of the goods shall conform to the sample or model.

(2) It is not necessary to the creation of an express warranty that the seller use formal words such as "warrant" or "guarantee" or that he have a specific intention to make a warranty, but an affirmation merely of the value of the goods or a statement purporting to be merely the seller's opinion or commendation of the goods does not create a warranty. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 647, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-314. Implied warranty: merchantability; usage of trade.

(1) Unless excluded or modified (section 28:2-316), a warranty that the goods shall be merchantable is implied in a contract for their sale if the seller is a merchant with respect to goods of that kind. Under this section the serving for value of food or drink to be consumed either on the premises or elsewhere is a sale.

(2) Goods to be merchantable must be at least such as

(a) pass without objection in the trade under the contract description; and

(b) in the case of fungible goods, are of fair average quality within the description; and

(c) are fit for the ordinary purposes for which such goods are used; and

(d) run, within the variations permitted by the agreement, of even kind, quality and quantity within each unit and among all units involved; and

(e) are adequately contained, packaged, and labeled as the agreement may require; and

(f) conform to the promises or affirmations of fact made on the container or label if any.

(3) Unless excluded or modified (section 28:2-316), other implied warranties may arise from course of dealing or usage of trade. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 648, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-315. Implied warranty: fitness for particular purpose.

Where the seller at the time of contracting has reason to know any particular purpose for which the goods are required and that the buyer is relying on the seller's skill or judgment to select or furnish suitable goods, there is unless excluded or modified under the next section an implied warranty that the goods shall be fit for such purpose. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 648, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-316. Exclusion or modification of warranties.

(1) Words or conduct relevant to the creation of an express warranty and words or conduct tending to negate or limit warranty shall be construed wherever reasonable as consistent with each other; but subject to the provisions of this article on parol or extrinsic evidence (section 28:2-202) negation or limitation is inoperative to the extent that such construction is unreasonable.

(2) Subject to subsection (3), to exclude or modify the implied warranty of merchantability or any part of it the language must mention merchantability and in case of a writing must be conspicuous, and to exclude or modify any implied warranty of fitness the exclusion must be by a writing and conspicuous. Language to exclude all implied warranties of fitness is sufficient if it states, for example, that "There are no warranties which extend beyond the description on the face hereof."

(3) Notwithstanding subsection (2)

(a) unless the circumstances indicate otherwise, all implied warranties are excluded by expressions like "as is", "with all faults" or other language which in common understanding calls the buyer's attention to the exclusion of warranties and makes plain that there is no implied warranty; and

(b) when the buyer before entering into the contract has examined the goods or the sample or model as fully as he desired or has refused to examine the goods there is no implied warranty with regard to defects which an examination ought in the circumstances to have revealed to him; and

(c) an implied warranty can also be excluded or modified by course of dealing or course of performance or usage of trade.

(4) Remedies for breach of warranty can be limited in accordance with the provisions of this article on liquidation or limitation of damages and on contractual modification of remedy (sections 28:2-718 and 28:2-719). (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 648, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-317. Cumulation and conflict of warranties express or implied.

Warranties whether express or implied shall be construed as consistent with each other and as cumulative, but if such construction is unreasonable the intention of the parties shall determine which warranty is dominant. In ascertaining that intention the following rules apply:

(a) Exact or technical specifications displace an inconsistent sample or model or general language of description.

(b) A sample from an existing bulk displaces inconsistent general language of description.

(c) Express warranties displace inconsistent implied warranties other than an implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 649, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-318. Third party beneficiaries of warranties express or implied.

A seller's warranty whether express or implied extends to any natural person who is in the family or household of his buyer or who is a guest in his home if it is reasonable to expect that such person may use, consume or be affected by the goods and who is injured in person by breach of the warranty. A seller may not exclude or limit the operation of this section. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 649, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1.)

§ 28:2-319. F.O.B. and F.A.S. terms.

(1) Unless otherwise agreed the term F.O.B. (which means "free on board") at a named place, even though used only in connection with the stated price, is a delivery term under which

(a) when the term is F.O.B. the place of shipment, the seller must at that place ship the goods in the manner provided in this article (section 28:2-504) and bear the expense and risk of putting them into the possession of the carrier; or

(b) when the term is F.O.B. the place of destination, the seller must at his own expense and risk transport the goods to that place and there tender delivery of them in the manner provided in this article (section 28:2-503);

(c) when under either (a) or (b) the term is also F.O.B. vessel, car or other vehicle, the seller must in addition at his own expense and risk load the goods on board. If the term is F.O.B. vessel the buyer must name the vessel and in an appropriate case the seller must comply with the provisions of this article on the form of bill of lading (section 28:8-323).

(2) Unless otherwise agreed the term F.A.S. vessel (which means "free alongside") at a named port, even though used only in connection with the stated price, is a delivery term under which the seller must

(a) at his own expense and risk deliver the goods alongside the vessel in the manner usual in that port or on a dock designated and provided by the buyer; and

(b) obtain and tender a receipt for the goods in exchange for which the carrier is under a duty to issue a bill of lading.

(3) Unless otherwise agreed in any case falling within subsection (1) (a) or (c) or subsection (2) the buyer must seasonably give any needed instructions for making delivery, including when the term is F.A.S. or F.O.B. the loading berth of the vessel and in an appropriate case its name and sailing date. The seller may treat the failure of needed instructions as a failure of cooperation under this article (section 28:2–311). He may also at his option move the goods in any reasonable manner preparatory to delivery or shipment.

(4) Under the term F.O.B. vessel or F.A.S. unless otherwise agreed the buyer must make payment against tender of the required documents and the seller may not tender nor the buyer demand delivery of the goods in substitution for the documents. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 649, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–320. C.I.F. and C. & F. terms.

(1) The term C.I.F. means that the price includes in a lump sum the cost of the goods and the insurance and freight to the named destination. The term C. & F. or C.F. means that the price so includes cost and freight to the named destination.

(2) Unless otherwise agreed and even though used only in connection with the stated price and destination, the term C.I.F. destination or its equivalent requires the seller at his own expense and risk to

(a) put the goods into the possession of a carrier at the port for shipment and obtain a negotiable bill or bills of lading covering the entire transportation to the named destination; and

(b) load the goods and obtain a receipt from the carrier (which may be contained in the bill of lading) showing that the freight has been paid or provided for; and

(c) obtain a policy or certificate of insurance, including any war risk insurance, of a kind and on terms then current at the port of shipment in the usual amount, in the currency of the contract, shown to cover the same goods covered by the bill of lading and providing for payment of loss to the order of the buyer or for the account of whom it may concern; but the seller may add to the price the amount of the premium for any such war risk insurance; and

(d) prepare an invoice of the goods and procure any other documents required to effect shipment or to comply with the contract; and

(e) forward and tender with commercial promptness all the documents in due form and with any indorsement necessary to perfect the buyer's rights.

(3) Unless otherwise agreed the term C. & F. or its equivalent has the same effect and imposes upon the seller the same obligations and risks as a C.I.F. term except the obligation as to insurance.

(4) Under the term C.I.F. or C. & F. unless otherwise agreed the buyer must make payment against tender of the required documents and the seller may not tender nor the buyer demand delivery of the goods in substitution for the documents. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 650, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–321. C.I.F. or C. & F.: "net landed weights"; "payment on on arrival"; warranty of condition on arrival.

Under a contract containing a term C.I.F. or C. & F.

(1) Where the price is based on or is to be adjusted according to "net landed weights", "delivered weights", "out turn" quantity or quality or the like, unless otherwise agreed the seller must reasonably estimate the price. The payment due on tender of the documents called for by the contract is the amount so estimated, but after final adjustment of the price a settlement must be made with commercial promptness.

(2) An agreement described in subsection (1) or any warranty of quality or condition of the goods on arrival places upon the seller the risk of ordinary deterioration, shrinkage and the like in transportation but has no effect on the place or time of identification to the contract for sale or delivery or on the passing of the risk of loss.

(3) Unless otherwise agreed where the contract provides for payment on or after arrival of the goods the seller must before payment allow such preliminary inspection as is feasible; but if the goods are lost delivery of the documents and payment are due when the goods should have arrived. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 650, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–322. Delivery "ex-ship".

(1) Unless otherwise agreed a term for delivery of goods "ex-ship" (which means from the carrying vessel) or in equivalent language is not restricted to a particular ship and requires delivery from a ship which has reached a place at the named port of destination where goods of the kind are usually discharged.

(2) Under such a term unless otherwise agreed

(a) the seller must discharge all liens arising out of the carriage and furnish the buyer with a direction which puts the carrier under a duty to deliver the goods; and

(b) the risk of loss does not pass to the buyer until the goods leave the ship's tackle or are otherwise properly unloaded.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 651, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–323. Form of bill of lading required in overseas shipment; "overseas".

(1) Where the contract contemplates overseas shipment and contains a term C.I.F. or C. & F. or F.O.B. vessel, the seller unless otherwise agreed must obtain a negotiable bill of lading stating that the goods have been loaded on board or, in the case of a term C.I.F. or C. & F., received for shipment.

(2) Where in a case within subsection (1) a bill of lading has been issued in a set of parts, unless otherwise agreed if the documents are not to be sent from abroad the buyer may demand tender of the full set; otherwise only one part of the bill of lading need be tendered. Even if the agreement expressly requires a full set

(a) due tender of a single part is acceptable within the provisions of this article on cure of improper delivery (subsection (1) of section 28:2-508); and

(b) even though the full set is demanded, if the documents are sent from abroad the person tendering an incomplete set may nevertheless require payment upon furnishing an indemnity which the buyer in good faith deems adequate.

(3) A shipment by water or by air or a contract contemplating such shipment is "overseas" insofar as by usage of trade or agreement it is subject to the commercial, financing or shipping practices characteristic of international deep water commerce. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 651, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-324. "No arrival, no sale" term.

Under a term "no arrival, no sale" or terms of like meaning, unless otherwise agreed,

(a) the seller must properly ship conforming goods and if they arrive by any means he must tender them on arrival but he assumes no obligation that the goods will arrive unless he has caused the non-arrival; and

(b) where without fault of the seller the goods are in part lost or have so deteriorated as no longer to conform to the contract or arrive after the contract time, the buyer may proceed as if there had been casualty to identified goods (section 28:2-613).

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 651, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-325. "Letter of credit" term; "confirmed credit".

(1) Failure of the buyer seasonably to furnish an agreed letter of credit is a breach of the contract for sale.

(2) The delivery to seller of a proper letter of credit suspends the buyer's obligation to pay. If the letter of credit is dishonored, the seller may on seasonable notification to the buyer require payment directly from him.

(3) Unless otherwise agreed the term "letter of credit" or "banker's credit" in a contract for sale means an irrevocable credit issued by a financing agency of good repute and, where the shipment is overseas, of good international repute. The term "confirmed credit" means that the credit must also carry the direct obligation of such an agency which does business in the seller's financial market. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 652, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-326. Sale on approval and sale or return; consignment sales and rights of creditors.

(1) Unless otherwise agreed, if delivered goods may be returned by the buyer even though they conform to the contract, the transaction is

(a) a "sale on approval" if the goods are delivered primarily for use, and

(b) a "sale or return" if the goods are delivered primarily for resale.

(2) Except as provided in subsection (3), goods held on approval are not subject to the claims of the buyer's creditors until acceptance; goods held on sale or return are subject to such claims while in the buyer's possession.

(3) Where goods are delivered to a person for sale and such person maintains a place of business at which he deals in goods of the kind involved, under a name other than the name of the person making delivery, then with respect to claims of creditors of the person conducting the business the goods are deemed to be on sale or return. The provisions of this subsection are applicable even though an agreement purports to reserve title to the person making delivery until payment or resale or uses such words as "on consignment" or "on memorandum". However, this subsection is not applicable if the person making delivery

(a) complies with an applicable law providing for a consignor's interest or the like to be evidenced by a sign, or

(b) establishes that the person conducting the business is generally known by his creditors to be substantially engaged in selling the goods of others, or

(c) complies with the filing provisions of the article on secured transactions (article 9).

(4) Any "or return" term of a contract for sale is to be treated as a separate contract for sale within the statute of frauds section of this article (section 28:2-201) and as contradicting the sale aspect of the contract within the provisions of this article on parol or extrinsic evidence (section 28:2-202). (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 652, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-327. Special incidents of sale on approval and sale or return.

(1) Under a sale on approval unless otherwise agreed

(a) although the goods are identified to the contract the risk of loss and the title do not pass to the buyer until acceptance; and

(b) use of the goods consistent with the purpose of trial is not acceptance but failure seasonably to notify the seller of election to return the goods is acceptance, and if the goods conform to the contract acceptance of any part is acceptance of the whole; and

(c) after due notification of election to return, the return is at the seller's risk and expense but a merchant buyer must follow any reasonable instructions.

(2) Under a sale or return unless otherwise agreed

(a) the option to return extends to the whole or any commercial unit of the goods while in substantially their original condition, but must be exercised seasonably; and

(b) the return is at the buyer's risk and expense.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 652, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-328. Sale by auction.

(1) In a sale by auction if goods are put up in lots each lot is the subject of a separate sale.

(2) A sale by auction is complete when the auctioneer so announces by the fall of the hammer or in other customary manner. Where a bid is made while the hammer is falling in acceptance of a prior bid the auctioneer may in his discretion reopen the bidding or declare the goods sold under the bid on which the hammer was falling.

(3) Such a sale is with reserve unless the goods are in explicit terms put up without reserve. In an auction with reserve the auctioneer may withdraw the goods at any time until he announces completion of the sale. In an auction without reserve, after the auctioneer calls for bids on an article or lot, that article or lot cannot be withdrawn unless no bid is made within a reasonable time. In either case a bidder may retract his bid until the auctioneer's announcement of completion of the sale, but a bidder's retraction does not revive any previous bid.

(4) If the auctioneer knowingly receives a bid on the seller's behalf or the seller makes or procures such a bid, and notice has not been given that liberty for such bidding is reserved, the buyer may at his option avoid the sale or take the goods at the price of the last good faith bid prior to the completion of the sale. This subsection shall not apply to any bid at a forced sale. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 653, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

Part 4.—Title, Creditors and Good Faith Purchasers

§ 28:2–401. Passing of title; reservation for security; limited application of this section.

Each provision of this article with regard to the rights, obligations and remedies of the seller, the buyer, purchasers or other third parties applies irrespective of title to the goods except where the provision refers to such title. Insofar as situations are not covered by the other provisions of this article and matters concerning title become material the following rules apply:

(1) Title to goods cannot pass under a contract for sale prior to their identification to the contract (section 28:2–501), and unless otherwise explicitly agreed the buyer acquires by their identification a special property as limited by this subtitle. Any retention or reservation by the seller of the title (property) in goods shipped or delivered to the buyer is limited in effect to a reservation of a security interest. Subject to these provisions and to the provisions of the article on secured transactions (article 9), title to goods passes from the seller to the buyer in any manner and on any conditions explicitly agreed on by the parties.

(2) Unless otherwise explicitly agreed title passes to the buyer at the time and place at which the seller completes his performance with reference to the physical delivery of the goods, despite any reservation of a security interest and even though a document of title is to be delivered at a different time or place; and in particular and despite any reservation of a security interest by the bill of lading

(a) if the contract requires or authorizes the seller to send the goods to the buyer but does not require him to deliver them at destination, title passes to the buyer at the time and place of shipment; but

(b) if the contract requires delivery at destination, title passes on tender there.

(3) Unless otherwise explicitly agreed where delivery is to be made without moving the goods,

(a) if the seller is to deliver a document of title, title passes at the time when and the place where he delivers such documents; or

(b) if the goods are at the time of contracting already identified and no documents are to be delivered, title passes at the time and place of contracting.

(4) A rejection or other refusal by the buyer to receive or retain the goods, whether or not justified, or a justified revocation of acceptance revests title to the goods in the seller. Such revesting occurs by operation of law and is not a "sale". (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 653, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–402. Rights of seller's creditors against sold goods.

(1) Except as provided in subsections (2) and (3), rights of unsecured creditors of the seller with respect to goods which have been identified to a contract for sale are subject to the buyer's rights to recover the goods under this article (sections 28:2–502 and 28:2–716).

(2) A creditor of the seller may treat a sale or an identification of goods to a contract for sale as void if as against him a retention of possession by the seller is fraudulent under any rule of law of the state where the goods are situated, except that retention of possession in good faith and current course of trade by a merchant-seller for a commercially reasonable time after a sale or identification is not fraudulent.

(3) Nothing in this article shall be deemed to impair the rights of creditors of the seller

(a) under the provisions of the article on secured transactions (article 9); or

(b) where identification to the contract or delivery is made not in current course of trade but in satisfaction of or as security for a pre-existing claim for money, security or the like and is made under circumstances which under any rule of law of the state where the goods are situated would apart from this article constitute the transaction a fraudulent transfer or voidable preference.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 654, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–403. Power to transfer; good faith purchase of goods; "entrusting".

(1) A purchaser of goods acquires all title which his transferor had or had power to transfer except that a purchaser of a limited interest acquires rights only to the extent of the interest purchased. A person with voidable title has power to transfer a good title to a good faith purchaser for value. When goods have been delivered under a transaction of purchase the purchaser has such power even though

(a) the transferor was deceived as to the identity of the purchaser, or

(b) the delivery was in exchange for a check which is later dishonored, or

(c) it was agreed that the transaction was to be a "cash sale", or

(d) the delivery was procured through fraud punishable as larcenous under the criminal law.

(2) Any entrusting of possession of goods to a merchant who deals in goods of that kind gives him power to transfer all rights of the entruster to a buyer in ordinary course of business.

(3) "Entrusting" includes any delivery and any acquiescence in retention of possession regardless of any condition expressed between the parties to the delivery or acquiescence and regardless of whether the procurement of the entrusting or the possessor's disposition of the goods have been such as to be larcenous under the criminal law.

(4) The rights of other purchasers of goods and of lien creditors are governed by the articles on secured transactions (article 9), bulk transfers (article 6) and documents of title (article 7). (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 654, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

Part 5.—Performance

§ 28:2-501. Insurable interest in goods; manner of identification of goods.

(1) The buyer obtains a special property and an insurable interest in goods by identification of existing goods as goods to which the contract refers even though the goods so identified are non-conforming and he has an option to return or reject them. Such identification can be made at any time and in any manner explicitly agreed to by the parties. In the absence of explicit agreement identification occurs

(a) when the contract is made if it is for the sale of goods already existing and identified;

(b) if the contract is for the sale of future goods other than those described in paragraph (c), when goods are shipped, marked or otherwise designated by the seller as goods to which the contract refers;

(c) when the crops are planted or otherwise become growing crops or the young are conceived if the contract is for the sale of unborn young to be born within twelve months after contracting or for the sale of crops to be harvested within twelve months or the next normal harvest season after contracting whichever is longer.

(2) The seller retains an insurable interest in goods so long as title to or any security interest in the goods remains in him and where the identification is by the seller alone he may until default or insolvency or notification to the buyer that the identification is final substitute other goods for those identified.

(3) Nothing in this section impairs any insurable interest recognized under any other statute or rule of law. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 655, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-502. Buyer's right to goods on seller's insolvency.

(1) Subject to subsection (2) and even though the goods have not been shipped a buyer who has paid a part or all of the price of goods in which he has a special property under the provisions of the immediately preceding section may on making and keeping good a tender of any unpaid portion of their price recover them from the seller if the seller becomes insolvent within ten days after receipt of the first installment on their price.

(2) If the identification creating his special property has been made by the buyer he acquires the right to recover the goods only if they conform to the contract for sale. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 655, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-503. Manner of seller's tender of delivery.

(1) Tender of delivery requires that the seller put and hold conforming goods at the buyer's disposition and give the buyer any notification reasonably necessary to enable him to take delivery. The manner, time and place for tender are determined by the agreement and this article, and in particular

(a) tender must be at a reasonable hour, and if it is of goods they must be kept available for the period reasonably necessary to enable the buyer to take possession; but

(b) unless otherwise agreed the buyer must furnish facilities reasonably suited to the receipt of the goods.

(2) Where the case is within the next section respecting shipment tender requires that the seller comply with its provisions.

(3) Where the seller is required to deliver at a particular destination tender requires that he comply with subsection (1) and also in any appropriate case tender documents as described in subsections (4) and (5) of this section.

(4) Where goods are in the possession of a bailee and are to be delivered without being moved

(a) tender requires that the seller either tender a negotiable document of title covering such goods or procure acknowledgment by the bailee of the buyer's right to possession of the goods; but

(b) tender to the buyer of a non-negotiable document of title or of a written direction to the bailee to deliver is sufficient tender unless the buyer seasonably objects, and receipt by the bailee of notification of the buyer's rights fixes those rights as against the bailee and all third persons; but risk of loss of the goods and of any failure by the bailee to honor the non-negotiable document of title or to obey the direction remains on the seller until the buyer has had a reasonable time to present the document or direction, and a refusal by the bailee to honor the document or to obey the direction defeats the tender.

(5) Where the contract requires the seller to deliver documents

(a) he must tender all such documents in correct form except as provided in this article with respect to bills of lading in a set (subsection (2) of section 28:2-323); and

(b) tender through customary banking channels is sufficient and dishonor of a draft accompanying the documents constitutes non-acceptance or rejection.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 655, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-504. Shipment by seller.

Where the seller is required or authorized to send the goods to the buyer and the contract does not require him to deliver them at a particular destination, then unless otherwise agreed he must

(a) put the goods in the possession of such a carrier and make such a contract for their transportation as may be reasonable having regard to the nature of the goods and other circumstances of the case; and

(b) obtain and promptly deliver or tender in due form any document necessary to enable the buyer to obtain possession of the goods or otherwise required by the agreement or by usage of trade; and

(c) promptly notify the buyer of the shipment. Failure to notify the buyer under paragraph (c) or to make a proper contract under paragraph (a) is a ground for rejection only if material delay or loss ensues. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 656, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–505. Seller's shipment under reservation.

(1) Where the seller has identified goods to the contract by or before shipment:

(a) his procurement of a negotiable bill of lading to his own order or otherwise reserves in him a security interest in the goods. His procurement of the bill to the order of a financing agency or of the buyer indicates in addition only the seller's expectation of transferring that interest to the person named.

(b) a non-negotiable bill of lading to himself or his nominee reserves possession of the goods as security but except in a case of conditional delivery (subsection (2) of section 28:2–507) a non-negotiable bill of lading naming the buyer as consignee reserves no security interest even though the seller retains possession of the bill of lading.

(2) When shipment by the seller with reservation of a security interest is in violation of the contract for sale it constitutes an improper contract for transportation within the preceding section but impairs neither the rights given to the buyer by shipment and identification of the goods to the contract nor the seller's powers as a holder of a negotiable document. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 656, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–506. Rights of financing agency.

(1) A financing agency by paying or purchasing for value a draft which relates to a shipment of goods acquires to the extent of the payment or purchase and in addition to its own rights under the draft and any document of title securing it any rights of the shipper in the goods including the right to stop delivery and the shipper's right to have the draft honored by the buyer.

(2) The right to reimbursement of a financing agency which has in good faith honored or purchased the draft under commitment to or authority from the buyer is not impaired by subsequent discovery of defects with reference to any relevant document which was apparently regular on its face. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 657, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–507. Effect of seller's tender; delivery on condition.

(1) Tender of delivery is a condition to the buyer's duty to accept the goods and, unless otherwise agreed, to his duty to pay for them. Tender entitles the seller to acceptance of the goods and to payment according to the contract.

(2) Where payment is due and demanded on the delivery to the buyer of goods or documents of title, his right as against the seller to retain or dispose of them is conditional upon his making the payment due. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 657, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–508. Cure by seller of improper tender or delivery; replacement.

(1) Where any tender or delivery by the seller is rejected because non-conforming and the time for performance has not yet expired, the seller may seasonably notify the buyer of his intention to cure and may then within the contract time make a conforming delivery.

(2) Where the buyer rejects a non-conforming tender which the seller had reasonable grounds to believe would be acceptable with or without money allowance the seller may if he seasonably notifies the buyer have a further reasonable time to substitute a conforming tender. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 657, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–509. Risk of loss in the absence of breach.

(1) Where the contract requires or authorizes the seller to ship the goods by carrier

(a) if it does not require him to deliver them at a particular destination, the risk of loss passes to the buyer when the goods are duly delivered to the carrier even though the shipment is under reservation (section 28:2–505); but

(b) if it does require him to deliver them at a particular destination and the goods are there duly tendered while in the possession of the carrier, the risk of loss passes to the buyer when the goods are there duly so tendered as to enable the buyer to take delivery.

(2) Where the goods are held by a bailee to be delivered without being moved, the risk of loss passes to the buyer

(a) on his receipt of a negotiable document of title covering the goods; or

(b) on acknowledgment by the bailee of the buyer's right to possession of the goods; or

(c) after his receipt of a non-negotiable document of title or other written direction to deliver, as provided in subsection (4)(b) of section 28:2–503.

(3) In any case not within subsection (1) or (2), the risk of loss passes to the buyer on his receipt of the goods if the seller is a merchant; otherwise the risk passes to the buyer on tender of delivery.

(4) The provisions of this section are subject to contrary agreement of the parties and to the provisions of this article on sale on approval (section 28:2–327) and on effect of breach on risk of loss (section 28:2–510). (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 657, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–510. Effect of breach on risk of loss.

(1) Where a tender or delivery of goods so fails to conform to the contract as to give a right of rejection the risk of their loss remains on the seller until cure or acceptance.

(2) Where the buyer rightfully revokes acceptance he may to the extent of any deficiency in his effective insurance coverage treat the risk of loss as having rested on the seller from the beginning.

(3) Where the buyer as to conforming goods already identified to the contract for sale repudiates or is otherwise in breach before risk of their loss has passed to him, the seller may to the extent of any deficiency in his effective insurance coverage treat the risk of loss as resting on the buyer for a commercially reasonable time. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 658, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-511. Tender of payment by buyer; payment by check.

(1) Unless otherwise agreed tender of payment is a condition to the seller's duty to tender and complete any delivery.

(2) Tender of payment is sufficient when made by any means or in any manner current in the ordinary course of business unless the seller demands payment in legal tender and gives any extension of time reasonably necessary to procure it.

(3) Subject to the provisions of this subtitle on the effect of an instrument on an obligation (section 28:3-802), payment by check is conditional and is defeated as between the parties by dishonor of the check on due presentment. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 658, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-512. Payment by buyer before inspection.

(1) Where the contract requires payment before inspection non-conformity of the goods does not excuse the buyer from so making payment unless

(a) the non-conformity appears without inspection; or

(b) despite tender of the required documents the circumstances would justify injunction against honor under the provisions of this subtitle (section 28:5-114).

(2) Payment pursuant to subsection (1) does not constitute an acceptance of goods or impair the buyer's right to inspect or any of his remedies. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 658, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-513. Buyer's right to inspection of goods.

(1) Unless otherwise agreed and subject to subsection (3), where goods are tendered or delivered or identified to the contract for sale, the buyer has a right before payment or acceptance to inspect them at any reasonable place and time and in any reasonable manner. When the seller is required or authorized to send the goods to the buyer, the inspection may be after their arrival.

(2) Expenses of inspection must be borne by the buyer but may be recovered from the seller if the goods do not conform and are rejected.

(3) Unless otherwise agreed and subject to the provisions of this article on C.I.F. contracts (subsection (3) of section 28:2-321), the buyer is not entitled to inspect the goods before payment of the price when the contract provides.

(a) for delivery "C.O.D." or on other like terms; or

(b) for payment against documents of title, except where such payment is due only after the goods are to become available for inspection.

(4) A place or method of inspection fixed by the parties is presumed to be exclusive but unless otherwise expressly agreed it does not postpone identification or shift the place for delivery or for passing the risk of loss. If compliance becomes impossible, inspection shall be as provided in this section unless the place or method fixed was clearly intended as an indispensable condition failure of which avoids the contract. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 658, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-514. When documents deliverable on acceptance; when on payment.

Unless otherwise agreed documents against which a draft is drawn are to be delivered to the drawee on acceptance of the draft if it is payable more than three days after presentment; otherwise, only on payment. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 659, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-515. Preserving evidence of goods in dispute.

In furtherance of the adjustment of any claim or dispute

(a) either party on reasonable notification to the other and for the purpose of ascertaining the facts and preserving evidence has the right to inspect, test and sample the goods including such of them as may be in the possession or control of the other; and

(b) the parties may agree to a third party inspection or survey to determine the conformity or condition of the goods and may agree that the findings shall be binding upon them in any subsequent litigation or adjustment.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 659, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

Part 6.—Breach, Repudiation and Excuse

§ 28:2-601. Buyer's rights on improper delivery.

Subject to the provisions of this article on breach in installment contracts (section 28:2-612) and unless otherwise agreed under the sections on contractual limitations of remedy (sections 28:2-718 and 28:2-719), if the goods or the tender of delivery fail in any respect to conform to the contract, the buyer may

(a) reject the whole; or

(b) accept the whole; or

(c) accept any commercial unit or units and reject the rest.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 659, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-602. Manner and effect of rightful rejection.

(1) Rejection of goods must be within a reasonable time after their delivery or tender. It is ineffective unless the buyer seasonably notifies the seller.

(2) Subject to the provisions of the two following sections on rejected goods (sections 28:2-603 and 28:2-604),

(a) after rejection any exercise of ownership by the buyer with respect to any commercial unit is wrongful as against the seller; and

(b) if the buyer has before rejection taken physical possession of goods in which he does not have a security interest under the provisions of this article (subsection (3) of section 28:2-711), he is under a duty after rejection to hold them with reasonable care at the seller's disposition for a time sufficient to permit the seller to remove them; but

(c) the buyer has no further obligations with regard to goods rightfully rejected.

(3) The seller's rights with respect to goods wrongfully rejected are governed by the provisions of this article on Seller's remedies in general (section 28: 2–703). (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 659, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–603. Merchant buyer's duties as to rightfully rejected goods.

(1) Subject to any security interest in the buyer (subsection (3) of section 28:2–711), when the seller has no agent or place of business at the market of rejection a merchant buyer is under a duty after rejection of goods in his possession or control to follow any reasonable instructions received from the seller with respect to the goods and in the absence of such instructions to make reasonable efforts to sell them for the seller's account if they are perishable or threaten to decline in value speedily. Instructions are not reasonable if on demand indemnity for expenses is not forthcoming.

(2) When the buyer sells goods under subsection (1), he is entitled to reimbursement from the seller or out of the proceeds for reasonable expenses of caring for and selling them, and if the expenses include no selling commission then to such commission as is usual in the trade or if there is none to a reasonable sum not exceeding ten per cent on the gross proceeds.

(3) In complying with this section the buyer is held only to good faith and good faith conduct hereunder is neither acceptance nor conversion nor the basis of an action for damages. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 660, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–604. Buyer's options as to salvage of rightfully rejected goods.

Subject to the provisions of the immediately preceding section on perishables if the seller gives no instructions within a reasonable time after notification of rejection the buyer may store the rejected goods for the seller's account or reship them to him or resell them for the seller's account with reimbursement as provided in the preceding section. Such action is not acceptance or conversion. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 660, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–605. Waiver of buyer's objections by failure to particularize.

(1) The buyer's failure to state in connection with rejection a particular defect which is ascertainable by reasonable inspection precludes him from relying on the unstated defect to justify rejection or to establish breach

(a) where the seller could have cured it if stated seasonably; or

(b) between merchants when the seller has after rejection made a request in writing for a full and final written statement of all defects on which the buyer proposes to rely.

(2) Payments against documents made without reservation of rights precludes recovery of the payment for defects apparent on the face of the documents. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 660, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–606. What constitutes acceptance of goods.

(1) Acceptance of goods occurs when the buyer

(a) after a reasonable opportunity to inspect the goods signifies to the seller that the goods are conforming or that he will take or retain them in spite of their nonconformity; or

(b) fails to make an effective rejection (subsection (1) of section 28:2–602), but such acceptance does not occur until the buyer has had a reasonable opportunity to inspect them; or

(c) does any act inconsistent with the seller's ownership; but if such act is wrongful as against the seller it is an acceptance only if ratified by him.

(2) Acceptance of a part of any commercial unit is acceptance of that entire unit. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 660, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–607. Effect of acceptance; notice of breach; burden of establishing breach after acceptance; notice of claim or litigation to person answerable over.

(1) The buyer must pay at the contract rate for any goods accepted.

(2) Acceptance of goods by the buyer precludes rejection of the goods accepted and if made with knowledge of a non-conformity cannot be revoked because of it unless the acceptance was on the reasonable assumption that the non-conformity would be seasonably cured but acceptance does not of itself impair any other remedy provided by this article for non-conformity.

(3) Where a tender has been accepted

(a) the buyer must within a reasonable time after he discovers or should have discovered any breach notify the seller of breach or be barred from any remedy; and

(b) if the claim is one for infringement or the like (subsection (3) of section 28:2–312) and the buyer is sued as a result of such a breach he must so notify the seller within a reasonable time after he receives notice of the litigation or be barred from any remedy over for liability established by the litigation.

(4) The burden is on the buyer to establish any breach with respect to the goods accepted.

(5) Where the buyer is sued for breach of a warranty or other obligation for which his seller is answerable over

(a) he may give his seller written notice of the litigation. If the notice states that the seller may come in and defend and that if the seller does not do so he will be bound in any action against him by his buyer by any determination of fact common to the two litigations, then unless the seller after seasonable receipt of the notice does come in and defend he is so bound.

(b) if the claim is one for infringement or the like (subsection (3) of section 28:2–312) the original seller may demand in writing that his buyer turn over to him control of the litigation including settlement or else be barred from any remedy over and if he also agrees to bear all expense and to satisfy any adverse judgment, then unless the buyer after seasonable receipt of the demand does turn over control the buyer is so barred.

(6) The provisions of subsection (3), (4) and (5) apply to any obligation of a buyer to hold the seller harmless against infringement or the like (subsection (3) of section 28:2–312). (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 661, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–608. Revocation of acceptance in whole or in part.

(1) The buyer may revoke his acceptance of a lot or commercial unit whose non-conformity substantially impairs its value to him if he has accepted it

(a) on the reasonable assumption that its non-conformity would be cured and it has not been seasonably cured; or

(b) without discovery of such non-conformity if his acceptance was reasonably induced either by the difficulty of discovery before acceptance or by the seller's assurances.

(2) Revocation of acceptance must occur within a reasonable time after the buyer discovers or should have discovered the ground for it and before any substantial change in condition of the goods which is not caused by their own defects. It is not effective until the buyer notifies the seller of it.

(3) A buyer who so revokes has the same rights and duties with regard to the goods involved as if he had rejected them. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 661, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–609. Right to adequate assurance of performance.

(1) A contract for sale imposes an obligation on each party that the other's expectation of receiving due performance will not be impaired. When reasonable grounds for insecurity arise with respect to the performance of either party the other may in writing demand adequate assurance of due performance and until he receives such assurance may if commercially reasonable suspend any performance for which he has not already received the agreed return.

(2) Between merchants the reasonableness of grounds for insecurity and the adequacy of any assurance offered shall be determined according to commercial standards.

(3) Acceptance of any improper delivery or payment does not prejudice the aggrieved party's right to demand adequate assurance of future performance.

(4) After receipt of a justified demand failure to provide within a reasonable time not exceeding thirty days such assurance of due performance as is adequate under the circumstances of the particular case is a repudiation of the contract. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 662, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–610. Anticipatory repudiation.

When either party repudiates the contract with respect to a performance not yet due the loss of which will substantially impair the value of the contract to the other, the aggrieved party may

(a) for a commercially reasonable time await performance by the repudiating party; or

(b) resort to any remedy for breach (section 28:2–703 or section 28:2–711), even though he has notified the repudiating party that he would await the latter's performance and has urged retraction; and

(c) in either case suspend his own performance or proceed in accordance with the provisions of this article on the seller's right to identify goods to the contract notwithstanding breach or to salvage unfinished goods (section 28:2–704).

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 662, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–611. Retraction of anticipatory repudiation.

(1) Until the repudiating party's next performance is due he can retract his repudiation unless the aggrieved party has since the repudiation cancelled or materially changed his position or otherwise indicated that he considers the repudiation final.

(2) Retraction may be by any method which clearly indicates to the aggrieved party that the repudiating party intends to perform, but must include any assurance justifiably demanded under the provisions of this article (section 28:2–609).

(3) Retraction reinstates the repudiating party's rights under the contract with due excuse and allowance to the aggrieved party for any delay occasioned by the repudiation. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 662, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–612. "Installment contract"; breach.

(1) An "installment contract" is one which requires or authorizes the delivery of goods in separate lots to be separately accepted, even though the contract contains a clause "each delivery is a separate contract" or its equivalent.

(2) The buyer may reject any installment which is non-conforming if the non-conformity substantially impairs the value of that installment and cannot be cured or if the non-conformity is a defect in the required documents; but if the non-conformity does not fall within subsection (3) and the seller gives adequate assurance of its cure the buyer must accept that installment.

(3) Whenever non-conformity or default with respect to one or more installments substantially impairs the value of the whole contract there is a breach of the whole. But the aggrieved party reinstates the contract if he accepts a non-conforming installment without seasonably notifying of cancellation or if he bring an action with respect only to past installments or demands performance as to future installments. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 662, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–613. Casualty to identified goods.

Where the contract requires for its performance goods identified when the contract is made, and the goods suffer casualty without fault of either party before the risk of loss passes to the buyer, or in a proper case under a "no arrival, no sale" term (section 28:2–324) then

(a) if the loss is total the contract is avoided; and

(b) if the loss is partial or the goods have so deteriorated as no longer to conform to the contract the buyer may nevertheless demand inspection and at his option either treat the contract as avoided or accept the goods with due allowance from the contract price for the deterioration or the deficiency in quantity but without further right against the seller.

§ 28:2–614. Substituted performance.

(1) Where without fault of either party the agreed berthing, loading, or unloading facilities fail or an agreed type of carrier becomes unavailable or the agreed manner of delivery otherwise becomes commercially impracticable but a commercially reasonable substitute is available, such substitute performance must be tendered and accepted.

(2) If the agreed means or manner of payment fails because of domestic or foreign governmental regulation, the seller may withhold or stop delivery unless the buyer provides a means or manner of payment which is commercially a substantial equivalent. If delivery has already been taken, payment by the means or in the manner provided by the regulation discharges the buyer's obligation unless the regulation is discriminatory, oppressive or predatory. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 663, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–615. Excuse by failure of presupposed conditions.

Except so far as a seller may have assumed a greater obligation and subject to the preceding section on substituted performance:

(a) Delay in delivery or non-delivery in whole or in part by a seller who complies with paragraphs (b) and (c) is not a breach of his duty under a contract for sale if performance as agreed has been made impracticable by the occurrence of a contingency the non-occurrence of which was a basic assumption on which the contract was made or by compliance in good faith with any applicable foreign or domestic governmental regulation or order whether or not it later proves to be invalid.

(b) Where the causes mentioned in paragraph (a) affect only a part of the seller's capacity to perform, he must allocate production and deliveries among his customers but may at his option include regular customers not then under contract as well as his own requirements for further manufacture. He may so allocate in any manner which is fair and reasonable.

(c) The seller must notify the buyer seasonably that there will be delay or non-delivery and, when allocation is required under paragraph (b), of the estimated quota thus made available for the buyer.

§ 28:2–616. Procedure on notice claiming excuse.

(1) Where the buyer receives notification of a material or indefinite delay or an allocation justified under the preceding section he may by written notification to the seller as to any delivery concerned, and where the prospective deficiency substantially impairs the value of the whole contract under the provisions of this article relating to breach of installment contracts (section 28:2–612), then also as to the whole,

(a) terminate and thereby discharge any unexecuted portion of the contract; or

(b) modify the contract by agreeing to take his available quota in substitution.

(2) If after receipt of such notification from the seller the buyer fails so to modify the contract within a reasonable time not exceeding thirty days the contract lapses with respect to any deliveries affected.

(3) The provisions of this section may not be negated by agreement except in so far as the seller has assumed a greater obligation under the preceding section. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 663, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

Part 7.—Remedies

§ 28:2–701. Remedies for breach of collateral contracts not impaired.

Remedies for breach of any obligation or promise collateral or ancillary to a contract for sale are not impaired by the provisions of this article. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 664, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–702. Seller's remedies on discovery of buyer's insolvency.

(1) Where the seller discovers the buyer to be insolvent he may refuse delivery except for cash including payment for all goods theretofore delivered under the contract, and stop delivery under this article (section 28:2–705).

(2) Where the seller discovers that the buyer has received goods on credit while insolvent he may reclaim the goods upon demand made within ten days after the receipt, but if misrepresentation of solvency has been made to the particular seller in writing within three months before delivery the ten day limitation does not apply. Except as provided in this subsection the seller may not base a right to reclaim goods on the buyer's fraudulent or innocent misrepresentation of solvency or of intent to pay.

(3) The seller's right to reclaim under subsection (2) is subject to the rights of a buyer in ordinary course or other good faith purchaser or lien creditor under this article (section 28:2–403). Successful reclamation of goods excludes all other remedies with respect to them. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 664, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–703. Seller's remedies in general.

Where the buyer wrongfully rejects or revokes acceptance of goods or fails to make a payment due on or before delivery or repudiates with respect to a part or the whole, then with respect to any goods directly affected and, if the breach is of the whole contract (section 28:2–612), then also with respect to the whole undelivered balance, the aggrieved seller may

(a) withhold delivery of such goods;

(b) stop delivery by any bailee as hereafter provided (section 28:2–705);

(c) proceed under the next section respecting goods still unidentified to the contract;

(d) resell and recover damages as hereafter provided (section 28:2–706);

(e) recover damages for non-acceptance (section 28:2–708) or in a proper case the price (section 28:2–709);

(f) cancel.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 664, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–704. Seller's right to identify goods to the contract notwithstanding breach or to salvage unfinished goods.

(1) An aggrieved seller under the preceding section may

(a) identify to the contract conforming goods not already identified if at the time he learned of the breach they are in his possession or control;

(b) treat as the subject of resale goods which have demonstrably been intended for the particular contract even though those goods are unfinished.

(2) Where the goods are unfinished an aggrieved seller may in the exercise of reasonable commercial judgment for the purposes of avoiding loss and of effective realization either complete the manufacture and wholly identify the goods to the contract or cease manufacture and resell for scrap or salvage value or proceed in any other reasonable manner. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 665, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–705. Seller's stoppage of delivery in transit or otherwise.

(1) The seller may stop delivery of goods in the possession of a carrier or other bailee when he discovers the buyer to be insolvent (section 28:2–702) and may stop delivery of carload, truckload, planeload or larger shipments of express or freight when the buyer repudiates or fails to make a payment due before delivery or if for any other reason the seller has a right to withhold or reclaim the goods.

(2) As against such buyer the seller may stop delivery until

(a) receipt of the goods by the buyer; or

(b) acknowledgment to the buyer by any bailee of the goods except a carrier that the bailee holds the goods for the buyer; or

(c) such acknowledgment to the buyer by a carrier by reshipment or as warehouseman; or

(d) negotiation to the buyer of any negotiable document of title covering the goods.

(3)(a) To stop delivery the seller must so notify as to enable the bailee by reasonable diligence to prevent delivery of the goods.

(b) After such notification the bailee must hold and deliver the goods according to the directions of the seller but the seller is liable to the bailee for any ensuing charges or damages.

(c) If a negotiable document of title has been issued for goods the bailee is not obliged to obey a notification to stop until surrender of the document.

(d) A carrier who has issued a non-negotiable bill of lading is not obliged to obey a notification to stop received from a person other than the consignor. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 665, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–706. Seller's resale including contract for resale.

(1) Under the conditions stated in section 28:2–703 on seller's remedies, the seller may resell the goods concerned or the undelivered balance thereof. Where the resale is made in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner the seller may recover the difference between the resale price and the contract price together with any incidental damages allowed under the provisions of this article (section 28:2–710), but less expenses saved in consequence of the buyer's breach.

(2) Except as otherwise provided in subsection (3) or unless otherwise agreed resale may be at public or private sale including sale by way of one or more contracts to sell or of identification to an existing contract of the seller. Sale may be as a unit or in parcels and at any time and place and on any terms but every aspect of the sale including the method, manner, time, place and terms must be commercially reasonable. The resale must be reasonably identified as referring to the broken contract, but it is not necessary that the goods be in existence or that any or all of them have been identified to the contract before the breach.

(3) Where the resale is at private sale the seller must give the buyer reasonable notification of his intention to resell.

(4) Where the resale is at public sale

(a) only identified goods can be sold except where there is a recognized market for a public sale of futures in goods of the kind; and

(b) it must be made at a usual place or market for public sale if one is reasonably available and except in the case of goods which are perishable or threaten to decline in value speedily the seller must give the buyer reasonable notice of the time and place of the resale; and

(c) if the goods are not to be within the view of those attending the sale the notification of sale must state the place where the goods are located and provide for their reasonable inspection by prospective bidders; and

(d) the seller may buy.

(5) A purchaser who buys in good faith at a resale takes the goods free of any rights of the original buyer even though the seller fails to comply with one or more of the requirements of this section.

(6) The seller is not accountable to the buyer for any profit made on any resale. A person in the position of a seller (section 28:2–707) or a buyer who has rightfully rejected or justifiably revoked acceptance must account for any excess over the amount of his security interest, as hereinafter defined (subsection (3) of section 28:2–711). (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 665, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–707. "Person in the position of a seller."

(1) A "person in the position of a seller" includes as against a principal an agent who has paid or become responsible for the price of goods on behalf of his principal or anyone who otherwise holds a security interest or other right in goods similar to that of a seller.

(2) A person in the position of a seller may as provided in this article withhold or stop delivery (section 28:2–705) and resell (section 28:2–706) and recover incidental damages (section 28:2–710). (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 666, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–708. Seller's damages for non-acceptance or repudiation.

(1) Subject to subsection (2) and to the provisions of this article with respect to proof of market price (section 28:2–723), the measure of damages for non-acceptance or repudiation by the buyer is the difference between the market price at the time and place for tender and the unpaid contract price together with any incidental damages provided in this article (section 28:2–710), but less expenses saved in consequence of the buyer's breach.

(2) If the measure of damages provided in subsection (1) is inadequate to put the seller in as good a position as performance would have done then the measure of damages is the profit (including reasonable overhead) which the seller would have made from full performance by the buyer, together with any incidental damages provided in this article (section 28:2–710), due allowance for costs reasonably incurred and due credit for payments or proceeds of resale. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 666, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–709. Action for the price.

(1) When the buyer fails to pay the price as it becomes due the seller may recover, together with any incidental damages under the next section, the price

(a) of goods accepted or of conforming goods lost or damaged within a commercially reasonable time after risk of their loss has passed to the buyer; and

(b) of goods identified to the contract if the seller is unable after reasonable effort to resell them at a reasonable price or the circumstances reasonably indicate that such effort will be unavailing.

(2) Where the seller sues for the price he must hold for the buyer any goods which have been identified to the contract and are still in his control except that if resale becomes possible he may resell them at any time prior to the collection of the judgment. The net proceeds of any such resale must be credited to the buyer and payment of the judgment entitles him to any goods not resold.

(3) After the buyer has wrongfully rejected or revoked acceptance of the goods or has failed to make a payment due or has repudiated (section 28:2–610), a seller who is held not entitled to the price under this section shall nevertheless be awarded damages for non-acceptance under the preceding section. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 666, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–710. Seller's incidental damages.

Incidental damages to an aggrieved seller include any commercially reasonable charges, expenses or commissions incurred in stopping delivery, in the transportation, care and custody of goods after the buyer's breach, in connection with return or resale of the goods or otherwise resulting from the breach (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 667, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–711. Buyer's remedies in general; buyer's security interest in rejected goods.

(1) Where the seller fails to make delivery or repudiates or the buyer rightfully rejects or justifiably revokes acceptance then with respect to any goods involved, and with respect to the whole of the breach goes to the whole contract (section 28:2–612), the buyer may cancel and whether or not he has done so may in addition to recovering so much of the price as has been paid

(a) "cover" and have damages under the next section as to all the goods affected whether or not they have been identified to the contract; or

(b) recover damages for non-delivery as provided in this article (section 28:2–713).

(2) Where the seller fails to deliver or repudiates the buyer may also

(a) if the goods have been identified recover them as provided in this article (section 28:2–502); or

(b) in a proper case obtain specific performance or replevy the goods as provided in this article (section 28:2–716).

(3) On rightful rejection or justifiable revocation of acceptance a buyer has a security interest in goods in his possession or control for any payments made on their price and any expenses reasonably incurred in their inspection, receipt, transportation, care and custody and may hold such goods and resell them in like manner as an aggrieved seller (section 28:2–706). Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 667, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–712. "Cover"; buyer's procurement of substitute goods.

(1) After a breach within the preceding section the buyer may "cover" by making in good faith and without unreasonable delay any reasonable purchase of or contract to purchase goods in substitution for those due from the seller.

(2) The buyer may recover from the seller as damages the difference between the cost of cover and the contract price together with any incidental or consequential damages as hereinafter defined (section 28:2–715), but less expenses saved in consequence of the seller's breach.

(3) Failure of the buyer to effect cover within this section does not bar him from any other remedy. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 667, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–713. Buyer's damages for non-delivery or repudiation.

(1) Subject to the provisions of this article with respect to proof of market price (section 28:2–723), the measure of damages for non-delivery or repudiation by the seller is the difference between the market price at the time when the buyer learned of the breach and the contract price together with any incidental and consequential damages provided in this article (section 28:2–715), but less expenses saved in consequence of the seller's breach.

(2) Market price is to be determined as of the place for tender or, in cases of rejection after arrival or revocation of acceptance, as of the place of arrival. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 668, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–714. Buyer's damages for breach in regard to accepted goods.

(1) Where the buyer has accepted goods and given notification (subsection (3) of section 28:2–607) he may recover as damages for any non-conformity of tender the loss resulting in the ordinary course of events from the seller's breach as determined in any manner which is reasonable.

(2) The measure of damages for breach of warranty is the difference at the time and place of acceptance between the value of the goods accepted and the value they would have had if they had been as warranted, unless special circumstances show proximate damages of a different amount.

(3) In a proper case any incidental and consequential damages under the next section may also be recovered. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 668, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–715. Buyer's incidental and consequential damages.

(1) Incidental damages resulting from the seller's breach include expenses reasonably incurred in inspection, receipt, transportation and care and custody of goods rightfully rejected, any commercially reasonable charges, expenses or commissions in connection with effecting cover and any other reasonable expense incident to the delay or other breach.

(2) Consequential damages resulting from the seller's breach include

(a) any loss resulting from general or particular requirements and needs of which the seller at the time of contracting had reason to know and which could not reasonably be prevented by cover or otherwise; and

(b) injury to person or property proximately resulting from any breach of warranty.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 668, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–716. Buyer's right to specific performance or replevin.

(1) Specific performance may be decreed where the goods are unique or in other proper circumstances.

(2) The decree for specific performance may include such terms and conditions as to payment of the price, damages, or other relief as the court may deem just.

(3) The buyer has a right of replevin for goods identified to the contract if after reasonable effort he is unable to effect cover for such goods or the circumstances reasonably indicate that such effort will be unavailing or if the goods have been shipped under reservation and satisfaction of the security interest in them has been made or tendered. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 668, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–717. Deduction of damages from the price.

The buyer on notifying the seller of his intention to do so may deduct all or any part of the damages resulting from any breach of the contract from any part of the price still due under the same contract. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 668, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–718. Liquidation or limitation of damages; deposits.

(1) Damages for breach by either party may be liquidated in the agreement but only at an amount which is reasonable in the light of the anticipated or actual harm caused by the breach, the difficulties of proof of loss, and the inconvenience or nonfeasibility of otherwise obtaining an adequate remedy. A term fixing unreasonably large liquidated damages is void as a penalty.

(2) Where the seller justifiably withholds delivery of goods because of the buyer's breach, the buyer is entitled to restitution of any amount by which the sum of his payments exceeds

(a) the amount to which the seller is entitled by virtue of terms liquidating the seller's damages in accordance with subsection (1), or

(b) in the absence of such terms, twenty per cent of the value of the total performance for which the buyer is obligated under the contract or $500, whichever is smaller.

(3) The buyer's right to restitution under subsection (2) is subject to offset to the extent that the seller establishes

(a) a right to recover damages under the provisions of this article other than subsection (1), and

(b) the amount or value of any benefits received by the buyer directly or indirectly by reason of the contract.

(4) Where a seller has received payment in goods their reasonable value or the proceeds of their resale shall be treated as payments for the purposes of subsection (2); but if the seller has notice of the buyer's breach before reselling goods received in part performance, his resale is subject to the conditions laid down in this article on resale by an aggrieved seller (section 28:2–706). (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 669, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–719. Contractual modification or limitation of remedy.

(1) Subject to the provisions of subsections (2) and (3) of this section and of the preceding section on liquidation and limitation of damages,

(a) the agreement may provide for remedies in addition to or in substitution for those provided in this article and may limit or alter the measure of damages recoverable under this article, as by limiting the buyer's remedies to return of the goods and repayment of the price or to repair and replacement of non-conforming goods or parts; and

(b) resort to a remedy as provided is optional unless the remedy is expressly agreed to be exclusive, in which case it is the sole remedy.

(2) Where circumstances cause an exclusive or limited remedy to fail of its essential purpose, remedy may be had as provided in this subtitle.

(3) Consequential damages may be limited or excluded unless the limitation or exclusion is unconscionable. Limitation of consequential damages for injury to the person in the case of consumer goods is prima facie unconscionable but limitation of damages where the loss is commercial is not. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 669, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–720. Effect of "cancellation" or "rescission" on claims for antecedent breach.

Unless the contrary intention clearly appears, expressions of "cancellation" or "rescission" of the contract or the like shall not be construed as a renunciation or discharge of any claim in damages for an antecedent breach. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 669, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–721. Remedies for fraud.

Remedies for material misrepresentation or fraud include all remedies available under this article for nonfraudulent breach. Neither rescission or a claim for rescission of the contract for sale nor rejection or return of the goods shall bar or be deemed inconsistent with a claim for damages or other remedy. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 670, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–722. Who can sue third parties for injury to goods.

Where a third party so deals with goods which have been identified to a contract for sale as to cause actionable injury to a party to that contract

(a) a right of action against the third party is in either party to the contract for sale who has title to or a security interest or a special property or an insurable interest in the goods; and if the goods have been destroyed or converted a right of action is also in the party who either bore the risk of loss under the contract for sale or has since the injury assumed that risk as against the other;

(b) if at the time of the injury the party plaintiff did not bear the risk of loss as against the other party to the contract for sale and there is no arrangement between them for disposition of the recovery, his suit or settlement is, subject to his own interest, as a fiduciary for the other party to the contract;

(c) either party may with the consent of the other sue for the benefit of whom it may concern. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 670, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–723. Proof of market price: time and place.

(1) If an action based on anticipatory repudiation comes to trial before the time for performance with respect to some or all of the goods, any damages based on market price (section 28:2–708 or section 28:2–713) shall be determined according to the price of such goods prevailing at the time when the aggrieved party learned of the repudiation.

(2) If evidence of a price prevailing at the times or places described in this article is not readily available the price prevailing within any reasonable time before or after the time described or at any other place which in commercial judgment or under usage of trade would serve as a reasonable substitute for the one described may be used, making any proper allowance for the cost of transporting the goods to or from such other place.

(3) Evidence of a relevant price prevailing at a time or place other than the one described in this article offered by one party is not admissible unless and until he has given the other party such notice as the court finds sufficient to prevent unfair surprise. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 670, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–724. Admissibility of market quotations.

Whenever the prevailing price or value of any goods regularly bought and sold in any established commodity market is in issue, reports in official publications or trade journals or in newspapers or periodicals of general circulation published as the reports of such market shall be admissible in evidence. The circumstances of the prepartion of such a report may be shown to affect its weight but not its admissibility. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 670, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2–725. Statute of limitations in contracts for sale.

(1) An action for breach of any contract for sale must be commenced within four years after the cause of action has accrued. By the original agreement the parties may reduce the period of limitation to not less than one year but may not extend it.

(2) A cause of action accrues when the breach occurs, regardless of the aggrieved party's lack of knowledge of the breach. A breach of warranty occurs when tender of delivery is made, except that where a warranty explicitly extends to future performance of the goods and discovery of the breach must await the time of such performance the cause of action accrues when the breach is or should have been discovered.

(3) Where an action commenced within the time limited by subsection (1) is so terminated as to leave available a remedy by another action for the same breach such other action may be commenced after the expiration of the time limited and within six months after the termination of the first action unless the termination resulted from voluntary discontinuance or from dismissal for failure or neglect to prosecute.

(4) This section does not alter the law on tolling of the statute of limitations nor does it apply to causes of action which have accrued before this subtitle becomes effective. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 670, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

PART 1.—SHORT TITLE, FORM AND INTERPRETATION

§ 28:3-101. Short title.

This article shall be known and may be cited as Uniform Commercial Code—Commercial Paper. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 672, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-102. Definitions and index of definitions.

(1) In this article unless the context otherwise requires

(a) "Issue" means the first delivery of an instrument to a holder or a remitter.

(b) An "order" is a direction to pay and must be more than an authorization or request. It must identify the person to pay with reasonable certainty. It may be addressed to one or more such persons jointly or in the alternative but not in succession.

(c) A "promise" is an undertaking to pay and must be more than an acknowledgement of an obligation.

(d) "Secondary party" means a drawer or endorser.

(e) "Instrument" means a negotiable instrument.

(2) Other definitions applying to this article and the sections in which they appear are:

"Acceptance". Section 28:3-410.
"Accommodation party". Section 28:3-415.
"Alteration". Section 28:3-407.
"Certificate of deposit". Section 28:3-104.
"Certification". Section 28:3-411.
"Check". Section 28:3-104.
"Definite time". Section 28:3-109.
"Dishonor". Section 28:3-507.
"Draft". Section 28:3-104.

"Protest". Section 28:3-509.
"Restrictive Indorsement". Section 28:3-205.
"Signature". Section 28:3-401.

(3) The following definitions in other articles apply to this article.

"Account". Section 28:4-104.
"Banking day". Section 28:4-104.
"Clearing house". Section 28:4-104.
"Collecting bank". Section 28:4-105.
"Customer". Section 28:4-104.
"Depositary bank". Section 28:4-105.
"Documentary draft". Section 28:4-104.
"Intermediary bank". Section 28:4-105.
"Item". Section 28:4-104.
"Midnight deadline". Section 28:4-104.
"Payor bank". Section 28:4-105.

(4) In addition article 1 contains general definitions and principles of construction and interpretation applicable throughout this article. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 672, Pub. L. 243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-103. Limitations on scope of article.

(1) This article does not apply to money, documents of title or investment securities.

(2) The provisions of this article are subject to the provisions of the article on bank deposits and collections (article 4) and secured transactions (article 9). (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 673, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-104. Form of negotiable instruments; "draft"; "check"; "certificate of deposit"; "note".

(1) Any writing to be a negotiable instrument within this article must

(a) be signed by the maker or drawer; and

(b) contain an unconditional promise or order to pay a sum certain in money and no other promise, order, obligation or power given by the maker or drawer except as authorized by this article; and

(c) be payable on demand or at a definite time; and

(d) be payable to order or to bearer.

(2) A writing which complies with the requirements of this section is

(a) a "draft" ("bill of exchange") if it is an order;

(b) a "check" if it is a draft drawn on a bank and payable on demand;

(c) a "certificate of deposit" if it is an acknowledgement by a bank of receipt of money with an engagement to repay it;

(d) a "note" if it is a promise other than a certificate of deposit.

(3) As used in other articles of this subtitle, and as the context may require, the terms "draft", "check", "certificate of deposit" and "note" may refer to instruments which are not negotiable within this article as well as to instruments which are so negotiable. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 673, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3–105. When promise or order unconditional.

(1) A promise or order otherwise unconditional is not made conditional by the fact that the instrument

(a) is subject to implied or constructive conditions; or

(b) states its consideration, whether performed or promised, or the transaction which gave rise to the instrument, or that the promise or order is made or the instrument matures in accordance with or "as per" such transaction; or

(c) refers to or states that it arises out of a separate agreement or refers to a separate agreement for rights as to prepayment or acceleration; or

(d) states that it is drawn under a letter of credit; or

(e) states that it is secured, whether by mortgage, reservation of title or otherwise; or

(f) indicates a particular account to be debited or any other fund or source from which reimbursement is expected; or

(g) is limited to payment out of a particular fund or the proceeds of a particular source, if the instrument is issued by a government or governmental agency or unit; or

(h) is limited to payment out of the entire assets of a partnership, unincorporated association, trust or estate by or on behalf of which the instrument is issued.

(2) A promise or order is not unconditional if the instrument

(a) states that it is subject to or governed by any other agreement; or

(b) states that it is to be paid only out of a particular fund or source except as provided in this section.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 674, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3–106. Sum certain.

(1) The sum payable is a sum certain even though it is to be paid

(a) with stated interest or by stated installments; or

(b) with stated different rates of interest before and after default or a specified date; or

(c) with a stated discount or addition if paid before or after the date fixed for payment; or

(d) with exchange or less exchange, whether at a fixed rate or at the current rate; or

(e) with costs of collection or an attorney's fee or both upon default.

(2) Nothing in this section shall validate any term which is otherwise illegal. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 674, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3–107. Money.

(1) An instrument is payable in money if the medium of exchange in which it is payable is money at the time the instrument is made. An instrument payable in "currency" or "current funds" is payable in money.

(2) A promise or order to pay a sum stated in a foreign currency is for a sum certain in money and, unless a different medium of payment is specified in the instrument, may be satisfied by payment of that number of dollars which the stated foreign currency will purchase at the buying sight rate for that currency on the day on which the instrument is payable or, if payable on demand, on the day of demand. If such an instrument specifies a foreign currency as the medium of payment the instrument is payable in that currency. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 674, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3–108. Payable on demand.

Instruments payable on demand include those payable at sight or on presentation and those in which no time for payment is stated. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 675, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3–109. Definite time.

(1) An instrument is payable at a definite time if by its terms it is payable—

(a) on or before a stated date or at a fixed period after a stated date; or

(b) at a fixed period after sight; or

(c) at a definite time subject to any acceleration; or

(d) at a definite time subject to extension at the option of the holder, or to extension to a further definite time at the option of the marker or acceptor or automatically upon or after a specified act or event.

(2) An instrument which by its terms is otherwise payable only upon an act or event uncertain as to time of occurrence is not payable at a definite time even though the act or event has occurred. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 675, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3–110. Payable to order.

(1) An instrument is payable to order when by its terms it is payable to the order or assigns of any person therein specified with reasonable certainty, or to him or his order, or when it is conspicuously designated on its face as "exchange" or the like and names a payee. It may be payable to the order of

(a) the maker or drawer; or

(b) the drawee; or

(c) a payee who is not maker, drawer, or drawee; or

(d) two or more payees together or in the alternative; or

(e) an estate, trust or fund, in which case it is payable to the order of the representative of such estate, trust or fund or his successors; or

(f) an office, or an officer by his title as such in which case it is payable to the principal but the incumbent of the office or his successors may act as if he or they were the holder; or

(g) a partnership or unincorporated association, in which case it is payable to the partnership or association and may be indorsed or transferred by any person thereto authorized.

(2) An instrument not payable to order is not made so payable by such words as "payable upon return of this instrument properly indorsed".

(3) An instrument made payable both to order and to bearer is payable to order unless the bearer words are handwritten or typewritten. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 675, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-111. Payable to bearer.

An instrument is payable to bearer when by its terms it is payable to—

(a) bearer or the order of bearer; or

(b) a specified person or bearer; or

(c) "cash" or the order of "cash", or any other indication which does not purport to designate a specific payee.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 675, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-112. Terms and omissions not affecting negotiability.

(1) The negotiability of an instrument is not affected by—

(a) the omission of a statement of any consideration or of the place where the instrument is drawn or payable; or

(b) a statement that collateral has been given to secure obligations either on the instrument or otherwise of an obligor on the instrument or that in the case of default on those obligations the holder may realize on or dispose of the collateral; or

(c) a promise or power to maintain or protect collateral or to give additional collateral; or

(d) a term authorizing a confession of judgment on the instrument if it is not paid when due; or

(e) a term purporting to waive the benefit of any law intended for the advantage or protection of any obligor; or

(f) a term in a draft providing that the payee by indorsing or cashing it acknowledges full satisfaction of an obligation of the drawer; or

(g) a statement in a draft drawn in a set of parts (section 28:3-801) to the effect that the order is effective only if no other part has been honored.

(2) Nothing in this section shall validate any term which is otherwise illegal. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 676, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-113. Seal.

An instrument otherwise negotiable is within this article even though it is under a seal. (Dec. 30, 1963, 7 Stat. 676, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-114. Date, antedating, postdating.

(1) The negotiability of an instrument is not affected by the fact that it is undated, antedated, or postdated.

(2) Where an instrument is antedated or postdated the time when it is payable is determined by the stated date if the instrument is payable on demand or at a fixed period after date.

(3) Where the instrument or any signature thereon is dated, the date is presumed to be correct. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 676, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-115. Incomplete instruments.

(1) When a paper whose contents at the time of signing show that it is intended to become an instrument is signed while still incomplete in any necessary respect it cannot be enforced until completed, but when it is completed in accordance with authority given it is effective as completed.

(2) If the completion is unauthorized the rules as to material alteration apply (section 28:3-407), even though the paper was not delivered by the maker or drawer; but the burden of establishing that any completion is authorized is on the party so asserting. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 676, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-116. Instruments payable to two or more persons.

An instrument payable to the order of two or more persons

(a) if in the alternative is payable to any one of them and may be negotiated, discharged or enforced by any of them who has possession of it;

(b) if not in the alternative is payable to all of them and may be negotiated, discharged or enforced only by all of them.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 676, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-117. Instruments payable with words of description.

An instrument made payable to a named person with the addition of words describing him

(a) as agent or officer of a specified person is payable to his principal but the agent or officer may act as if he were the holder;

(b) as any other fiduciary for a specified person or purpose is payable to the payee and may be negotiated, discharged or enforced by him;

(c) in any other manner is payable to the payee unconditionally and the additional words are without effect on subsequent parties.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 676, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-118. Ambiguous terms and rules of construction.

The following rules apply to every instrument:

(a) Where there is doubt whether the instrument is a draft or a note the holder may treat it as either. A draft drawn on the drawer is effective as a note.

(b) Handwritten terms control typewritten and printed terms, and typewritten control printed.

(c) Words control figures except that if the words are ambiguous figures control.

(d) Unless otherwise specified a provision for interest means interest at the judgment rate at the place of payment from the date of the instrument, or if it is undated from the date of issue.

(e) Unless the instrument otherwise specifies two or more persons who sign as maker, acceptor or drawer or indorser and as a part of the same transaction are jointly and severally liable even though the instrument contains such words as "I promise to pay".

(f) Unless otherwise specified consent to extension authorizes a single extension for not longer than the original period. A consent to extension, expressed in the instrument, is binding on secondary parties and accommodation makers. A holder may not exercise his option to extend an instrument over the objection of a maker or acceptor or other party who in accordance with section 28:3-604 tenders full payment when the instrument is due.

§ 28:3-119. Other writings affecting instrument.

(1) As between the obligor and his immediate obligee or any transferee the terms of an instrument may be modified or affected by any other written agreement executed as a part of the same transaction, except that a holder in due course is not affected by any limitation of his rights arising out of the separate written agreement if he had no notice of the limitation when he took the instrument.

(2) A separate agreement does not affect the negotiability of an instrument. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 677, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-120. Instruments "payable through" bank.

An instrument which states that it is "payable through" a bank or the like designates that bank as a collecting bank to make presentment but does not of itself authorize the bank to pay the instrument. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 677, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-121. Instruments payable at bank.

A note or acceptance which states that it is payable at a bank is the equivalent of a draft drawn on the bank payable when it falls due out of any funds of the maker or acceptor in current account or otherwise available for such payment. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 677, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-122. Accrual of cause of action.

(1) A cause of action against a maker or an acceptor accrues

(a) in the case of a time instrument on the day after maturity;

(b) in the case of a demand instrument upon its date or, if no date is stated, on the date of issue.

(2) A cause of action against the obligor of a demand or time certificate of deposit accrues upon demand, but demand on a time certificate may not be made until on or after the date of maturity.

(3) A cause of action against a drawer of a draft or an indorser of any instrument accrues upon demand following dishonor of the instrument. Notice of dishonor is a demand.

(4) Unless an instrument provides otherwise, interest runs at the rate provided by law for a judgment

(a) in the case of a maker, acceptor or other primary obligor of a demand instrument, from the date of demand;

(b) in all other cases from the date of accrual of the cause of action.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 677, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

Part 2.—Transfer and Negotiation

§ 28:3-201. Transfer: right to indorsement.

(1) Transfer of an instrument vests in the transferee such rights as the transferor has therein, except that a transferee who has hifself been a party to any fraud or illegality affecting the instrument or who as a prior holder had notice of a defense or claim against it cannot improve his position by taking from a later holder in due course.

(2) A transfer of a security interest in an instrument vests the foregoing rights in the transferee to the extent of the interest transferred.

(3) Unless otherwise agreed any transfer for value of an instrument not then payable to bearer gives the transferee the specifically enforceable right to have the unqualified indorsement of the transferor. Negotiation takes effect only when the indorsement is made and until that time there is no presumption that the transferee is the owner.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 678, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-202. Negotiation.

(1) Negotiation is the transfer of an instrument in such form that the transferee becomes a holder. If the instrument is payable to order it is negotiated by delivery with any necessary indorsement; if payable to bearer it is negotiated by delivery.

(2) An indorsement must be written by or on behalf of the holder and on the instrument or on a paper so firmly affixed thereto as to become a part thereof.

(3) An indorsement is effective for negotiation only when it conveys the entire instrument or any unpaid residue. If it purports to be of less it operates only as a partial assignment.

(4) Words of assignment, condition, waiver, guaranty, limitation or disclaimer of liability and the like accompanying an indorsement do not affect its character as an indorsement. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 678, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-203. Wrong or misspelled name.

Where an instrument is made payable to a person under a misspelled name or one other than his own he may indorse in that name or his own or both; but signature in both names may be required by a person paying or giving value for the instrument. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 678, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-204. Special indorsement; blank indorsement.

(1) A special indorsement specifies the person to whom or to whose order it makes the instrument payable. Any instrument specially indorsed becomes payable to the order of the special indorsee and may be further negotiated only by his indorsement.

(2) An indorsement in blank specifies no particular indorsee and may consist of a mere signature. An instrument payable to order and indorsed in blank becomes payable to bearer and may be negotiated by delivery alone until specially indorsed.

(3) The holder may convert a blank indorsement into a special indorsement by writing over the signature of the indorser in blank any contract consistent with the character of the indorsement. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 678, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3–205. Restrictive indorsements.

An indorsement is restrictive which either

(a) is conditional; or

(b) purports to prohibit further transfer of the instrument; or

(c) includes the words "for collection", "for deposit", "pay any bank", or like terms signifying a purpose of deposit or collection; or

(d) otherwise states that it is for the benefit or use of the indorser or of another person.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 679, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3–206. Effect of restrictive indorsement.

(1) No restrictive indorsement prevents further transfer or negotiation of the instrument.

(2) An intermediary bank, or a payor bank which is not the depositary bank, is neither given notice nor otherwise affected by a restrictive indorsement of any person except the bank's immediate transferor or the person present for payment.

(3) Except for an intermediary bank, any transferee under an indorsement which is conditional or includes the words "for collection", "for deposit", "pay any bank", or like terms (subparagraphs (a) and (c) of section 28:3–205) must pay or apply any value given by him for or on the security of the instrument consistently with the indorsement and to the extent that he does so he becomes a holder for value. In addition such transferee is a holder in due course if he otherwise complies with the requirements of section 28:3–302 on what constitutes a holder in due course.

(4) The first taker under an indorsement for the benefit of the indorser or another person (subparagraph (d) of section 28:3–205) must pay or apply any value given by him for or on the security of the instrument consistently with the indorsement and to the extent that he does so he becomes a holder for value. In addition such taker is a holder in due course if he otherwise complies with the requirements of section 23:3–302 on what constitutes a holder in due course. A later holder for value is neither given notice nor otherwise affected by such restrictive indorsement unless he has knowledge that a fiduciary or other person has negotiated the instrument in any transaction for his own benefit or otherwise in breach of duty (subsection (2) of section 28:3–304). (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 679, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3–207. Negotiation effective although it may be rescinded.

(1) Negotiation is effective to transfer the instrument although the negotiation is

(a) made by an infant, a corporation exceeding its powers, or any other person without capacity; or

(b) obtained by fraud, duress or mistake of any kind; or

(c) part of an illegal transaction; or

(d) made in breach of duty.

(2) Except as against a subsequent holder in due course such negotiation is in an appropriate case subject to rescission, the declaration of a constructive trust or any other remedy permitted by law. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 679, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3–208. Reacquisition.

Where an instrument is returned to or reacquired by a prior party he may cancel any indorsement which is not necessary to his title and reissue or further negotiate the instrument, but any intervening party is discharged as against the reacquiring party and subsequent holders not in due course and if his indorsement has been cancelled is discharged as against subsequent holders in due course as well. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 679, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

Part 3.—Rights of a Holder

§ 28:3–301. Rights of a holder.

The holder of an instrument whether or not he is the owner may transfer or negotiate it and, except as otherwise provided in section 28:3–603 on payment or satisfaction, discharge it or enforce payment in his own name. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 680, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3–302. Holder in due course.

(1) A holder in due course is a holder who takes the instrument

(a) for value; and

(b) in good faith; and

(c) without notice that it is overdue or has been dishonored or of any defense against or claim to it on the part of any person.

(2) A payee may be a holder in due course.

(3) A holder does not become a holder in due course of an instrument:

(a) by purchase of it at judicial sale or by taking it under legal process; or

(b) by acquiring it in taking over an estate; or

(c) by purchasing it as part of a bulk transaction not in regular course of business of the transferor.

(4) A purchaser of a limited interest can be a holder in due course only to the extent of the interest purchased. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 680, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3–303. Taking for value.

A holder takes the instrument for value

(a) to the extent that the agreed consideration has been performed or that he acquires a security interest in or a lien on the instrument otherwise than by legal process; or

(b) when he takes the instrument in payment of or as security for an antecedent claim against any person whether or not the claim is due; or

(c) when he gives a negotiable instrument for it or makes an irrevocable commitment to a third person.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 680, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-304. Notice to purchaser.

(1) The purchaser has notice of a claim or defense if

(a) the instrument is so incomplete, bears such visible evidence of forgery or alteration, or is otherwise so irregular as to call into question its validity, terms or ownership or to create an ambiguity as to the party to pay; or

(b) the purchaser has notice that the obligation of any party is voidable in whole or in part, or that all parties have been discharged.

(2) The purchaser has notice of a claim against the instrument when he has knowledge that a fiduciary has negotiated the instrument in payment of or as security for his own debt or in any transaction for his own benefit or otherwise in breach of duty.

(3) The purchaser has notice that an instrument is overdue if he has reason to know

(a) that any part of the principal amount is overdue or that there is an uncured default in payment of another instrument of the same series; or

(b) that acceleration of the instrument has been made; or

(c) that he is taking a demand instrument after demand has been made or more than a reasonable length of time after its issue. A reasonable time for a check drawn and payable within the states and territories of the United States and the District is presumed to be thirty days.

(4) Knowledge of the following facts does not of itself give the purchaser notice of a defense or claim

(a) that the instrument is antedated or postdated;

(b) that it was issued or negotiated in return for an executory promise or accompanied by a separate agreement, unless the purchaser has notice that a defense or claim has arisen from the terms thereof;

(c) that any party has signed for accommodation;

(d) that an incomplete instrument has been completed, unless the purchaser has notice of any improper completion;

(e) that any person negotiating the instrument is or was a fiduciary;

(f) that there has been default in payment of interest on the instrument or in payment of any other instrument, except one of the same series.

(5) The filing or recording of a document does not of itself constitute notice within the provisions of this article to a person who would otherwise be a holder in due course.

(6) To be effective notice must be received at such time and in such manner as to give a reasonable opportunity to act on it. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 680, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-305. Rights of a holder in due course.

To the extent that a holder is a holder in due course he takes the instrument free from

(1) all claims to it on the part of any person; and

(2) all defenses of any party to the instrument with whom the holder has not dealt except

(a) infancy, to the extent that it is a defense to a simple contract; and

(b) such other incapacity, or duress, or illegality of the transaction, as renders the obligation of the party a nullity; and

(c) such misrepresentation as has induced the party to sign the instrument with neither knowledge nor reasonable opportunity to obtain knowledge of its character or its essential terms; and

(d) discharge in insolvency proceedings; and

(e) any other discharge of which the holder has notice when he takes the instrument.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 681, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-306. Rights of one not holder in due course.

Unless he has the rights of a holder in due course any person takes the instrument subject to

(a) valid claims to it on the part of any person; and

(b) all defenses of any party which would be available in an action on a simple contract; and

(c) the defenses of want or failure of consideration, nonperformance of any condition precedent, nondelivery, or delivery for a special purpose (section 28:3-408); and

(d) the defense that he or a person through whom he holds the instrument acquired it by theft, or that payment or satisfaction to such holder would be inconsistent with the terms of a restrictive indorsement. The claim of any third person to the instrument is not otherwise available as a defense to any party liable thereon unless the third person himself defends the action for such party.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 681, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-307. Burden of establishing signatures, defenses and due course.

(1) Unless specifically denied in the pleadings each signature on an instrument is admitted. When the effectiveness of a signature is put in issue

(a) the burden of establishing it is on the party claming under the signature; but

(b) the signature is presumed to be genuine or authorized except where the action is to enforce the obligation of a purported signer who has died or become incompetent before proof is required.

(2) When signatures are admitted or established, production of the instrument entitles a holder to recover on it unless the defendant establishes a defense.

(3) After it is shown that a defense exists a person claiming the rights of a holder in due course has the burden of establishing that he or some person under whom he claims is in all respects a holder in due course. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 681, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

Part 4.—Liability of Parties

§ 28:3-401. Signature.

(1) No person is liable on an instrument unless his signature appears thereon.

(2) A signature is made by use of any name, including any trade or assumed name, upon an instrument, or by any word or mark used in lieu of a written signature. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 682, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-402. Signature in ambiguous capacity.

Unless the instrument clearly indicates that a signature is made in some other capacity it is an indorsement. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 682, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-403. Signature by authorized representative.

(1) A signature may be made by an agent or other representative, and his authority to make it may be established as in other cases of representation. No particular form of appointment is necessary to establish such authority.

(2) An authorized representative who signs his own name to an instrument

(a) is personally obligated if the instrument neither names the person represented nor shows that the representative signed in a representative capacity;

(b) except as otherwise established betwen the immediate parties, is personally obligated if the instrument names the person represented but does not show that the representative signed in a representative capacity, or if the instrument does not name the person represented but does show that the representative signed in a representative capacity.

(3) Except as otherwise established the name of an organization preceded or followed by the name and office of an authorized individual is a signature made in a representative capacity. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 682, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-404. Unauthorized signatures.

(1) Any unauthorized signature is wholly inoperative as that of the person whose name is signed unless he ratifies it or is precluded from denying it; but it operates as the signature of the unauthorized signer in favor of any person who in good faith pays the instrument or takes it for value.

(2) Any unauthorized signature may be ratified for all purposes of this article. Such ratification does not of itself affect any rights of the person ratifying against the actual signer. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 682, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-405. Impostors; signature in name of payee.

(1) An indorsement by any person in the name of a named payee is effective if

(a) an imposter by use of the mails or otherwise has induced the maker or drawer to issue the instrument to him or his confederate in the name of the payee; or

(b) a person signing as or on behalf of a maker or drawer intends the payee to have no interest in the instrument; or

(c) an agent or employee of the maker or drawer has supplied him with the name of the payee intending the latter to have no such interest.

(2) Nothing in this section shall affect the criminal or civil liability of the person so indorsing. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 683, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-406. Negligence contributing to alteration or unauthorized signature.

Any person who by his negligence substantially contributes to a material alteration of the instrument or to the making of an unauthorized signature is precluded from asserting the alteration or lack of authority against a holder in due course or against a drawee or other payor who pays the instrument in good faith and in accordance with the reasonable commercial standards of the drawee's or payor's business. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 683, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-407. Alteration.

(1) Any alteration of an instrument is material which changes the contract of any party thereto in any respect, including any such change in

(a) the number or relations of the parties; or

(b) an incomplete instrument, by completing it otherwise than as authorized; or

(c) the writing as signed, by adding to it or by removing any part of it.

(2) As against any person other than a subsequent holder in due course

(a) alteration by the holder which is both fraudulent and material discharges any party whose contract is thereby changed unless that party assents or is precluded from asserting the defense;

(b) no other alteration discharges any party and the instrument may be enforced according to its original tenor, or as to incomplete instruments according to the authority given.

(3) A subsequent holder in due course may in all cases enforce the instrument according to its original tenor, and when an incomplete instrument has been completed, he may enforce it as completed. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 683, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-408. Consideration.

Want or failure of consideration is a defense as against any person not having the rights of a holder in due course (section 28: 3-305), except that no consideration is necessary for an instrument or obligation thereon given in payment of or as security for an antecedent obligation of any kind. Nothing in this section shall be taken to displace any statute outside this subtitle under which a promise is enforceable notwithstanding lack or failure of consideration. Partial failure of consideration is a defense pro tanto whether or not the failure is in an ascertained or liquidated amount. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 683, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-409. Draft not an assignment.

(1) A check or other draft does not of itself operate as an assignment of any funds in the hands of the drawee available for its payment, and the drawee is not liable on the instrument until he accepts it.

(2) Nothing in this section shall affect any liability in contract, tort or otherwise arising from any letter of credit or other obligation or representation which is not an acceptance. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 683, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-410. Definition and operation of acceptance.

(1) Acceptance is the drawee's signed engagement to honor the draft as presented. It must be written on the draft, and may consist of his signature alone. It becomes operative when completed by delivery or notification.

(2) A draft may be accepted although it has not been signed by the drawer or is otherwise incomplete or is overdue or has been dishonored.

(3) Where the draft is payable at a fixed period after sight and the acceptor fails to date his acceptance the holder may complete it by supplying a date in good faith. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 684, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3–411. Certification of a check.

(1) Certification of a check is acceptance. Where a holder procures certification the drawer and all prior indorsers are discharged.

(2) Unless otherwise agreed a bank has no obligation to certify a check.

(3) A bank may certify a check before returning it for lack of proper indorsement. If it does so the drawer is discharged. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 684, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3–412. Acceptance varying draft.

(1) Where the drawee's proffered acceptance in any manner varies the draft as presented the holder may refuse the acceptance and treat the draft as dishonored in which case the drawee is entitled to have his acceptance cancelled.

(2) The terms of the draft are not varied by an acceptance to pay at any particular bank or place in the United States, unless the acceptance states that the draft is to be paid only at such bank or place.

(3) Where the holder assents to an acceptance varying the terms of the draft each drawer and indorser who does not affirmatively assent is discharged. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 684, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3–413. Contract of maker, drawer and acceptor.

(1) The maker or acceptor engages that he will pay the instrument according to its tenor at the time of his engagement or as completed pursuant to section 28:3–115 on incomplete instruments.

(2) The drawer engages that upon dishonor of the draft and any necessary notice of dishonor or protest he will pay the amount of the draft to the holder or to any indorser who takes it up. The drawer may disclaim this liability by drawing without recourse.

(3) By making, drawing or accepting the party admits as against all subsequent parties including the drawee the existence of the payee and his then capacity to indorse. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 684, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3–414. Contract of indorser; order of liability.

(1) Unless the indorsement otherwise specifies (as by such words as "without recourse") every indorser engages that upon dishonor and any necessary notice of dishonor and protest he will pay the instrument according to its tenor at the time of his indorsement to the holder or to any subsequent indorser who takes it up, even though the indorser who takes it up was not obligated to do so.

(2) Unless they otherwise agree indorsers are liable to one another in the order in which they indorse, which is presumed to be the order in which their signatures appear on the instrument. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 684, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3–415. Contract of accommodation party.

(1) An accommodation party is one who signs the instrument in any capacity for the purpose of lending his name to another party to it.

(2) When the instrument has been taken for value before it is due the accommodation party is liable in the capacity in which he has signed even though the taker knows of the accommodation.

(3) As against a holder in due course and without notice of the accommodation oral proof of the accommodation is not admissible to give the accommodation party the benefit of discharges dependent on his character as such. In other cases the accommodation character may be shown by oral proof.

(4) An indorsement which shows that it is not in the chain of title is notice of its accommodation character.

(5) An accommodation party is not liable to the party accommodated, and if he pays the instrument has a right of recourse on the instrument against such party. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 684, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3–416. Contract of guarantor.

(1) "Payment guaranteed" or equivalent words added to a signature mean that the signer engages that if the instrument is not paid when due he will pay it according to its tenor without resort by the holder to any other party.

(2) "Collection guaranteed" or equivalent words added to a signature mean that the signer engages that if the instrument is not paid when due he will pay it according to its tenor, but only after the holder has reduced his claim against the maker or acceptor to judgment and execution has been returned unsatisfied, or after the maker or acceptor has become insolvent or it is otherwise apparent that it is useless to proceed against him.

(3) Words of guaranty which do not otherwise specify guarantee payment.

(4) No words of guaranty added to the signature of a sole maker or acceptor affect his liability on the instrument. Such words added to the signature of one of two or more makers or acceptors create a presumption that the signature is for the accommodation of the others.

(5) When words of guaranty are used presentment, notice of dishonor and protest are not necessary to charge the user.

(6) Any guaranty written on the instrument is enforcible notwithstanding any statute of frauds. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 685, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3–417. Warranties on presentment and transfer.

(1) Any person who obtains payment or acceptance and any prior transferor warrants to a person who in good faith pays or accepts that

(a) he has a good title to the instrument or is authorized to obtain payment or acceptance on behalf of one who has a good title; and

(b) he has no knowledge that the signature of the maker or drawer is unauthorized, except that this warranty is not given by a holder in due course acting in good faith

(i) to a maker with respect to the maker's own signature; or

(ii) to a drawer with respect to the drawer's own signature, whether or not the drawer is also the drawee; or

(iii) to an acceptor of a draft if the holder in due course took the draft after the acceptance or obtained the acceptance without knowledge that the drawer's signature was unauthorized; and

(c) the instrument has not been materially altered, except that this warranty is not given by a holder in due course acting in good faith

(i) to the maker of a note; or

(ii) to the drawer of a draft whether or not the drawer is also the drawee; or

(iii) to the acceptor of a draft with respect to an alteration made prior to the acceptance if the holder in due course took the draft after the acceptance, even though the acceptance provided "payable as originally drawn" or equivalent terms; or

(iv) to the acceptor of a draft with respect to an alteration made after the acceptance.

(2) Any person who transfers an instrument and receives consideration warrants to his transferee and if the transfer is by indorsement to any subsequent holder who takes the instrument in good faith that

(a) he has a good title to the instrument or is authorized to obtain payment or acceptance on behalf of one who has a good title and the transfer is otherwise rightful; and

(b) all signatures are genuine or authorized; and

(c) the instrument has not been materially altered; and

(d) no defense of any party is good against him; and

(e) he has no knowledge of any insolvency proceeding instituted with respect to the maker or acceptor or the drawer of an unaccepted instrument.

(3) By transferring "without recourse" the transferor limits the obligation stated in subsection (2) (d) to a warranty that he has no knowledge of such a defense.

(4) A selling agent or broker who does not disclose the fact that he is acting only as such gives the warranties provided in this section, but if he makes such disclosure warrants only his good faith and authority. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 685, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-418. Finality of payment or acceptance.

Except for recovery of bank payments as provided in the article on bank deposits and collections (article 4) and except for liability for breach of warranty on presentment under the preceding section, payment or acceptance of any instrument is final in favor of a holder in due course, or a person who has in good faith changed his position in reliance on the payment. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 686, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-419. Conversion of instrument; innocent representative.

(1) An instrument is converted when

(a) a drawee to whom it is delivered for acceptance refuses to return it on demand; or

(b) any person to whom it is delivered for payment refuses on demand either to pay or to return it; or

(c) it is paid on a forged indorsement.

(2) In an action against a drawee under subsection (1) the measure of the drawee's liability is the face amount of the instrument. In any other action under subsection (1) the measure of liability is presumed to be the face amount of the instrument.

(3) Subject to the provisions of this subtitle concerning restrictive indorsements a representative, including a depositary or collecting bank, who has a good faith and in accordance with the reasonable commercial standards applicable to the business of such representative dealt with an instrument or its proceeds on behalf of one who was not the true owner is not liable in conversion or otherwise to the true owner beyond the amount of any proceeds remaining in his hands.

(4) An intermediary bank or payor bank which is not a depositary bank is not liable in conversion solely by reason of the fact that proceeds of an item indorsed restrictively (sections 28:3-205 and 28:3-206) are not paid or applied consistently with the restrictive indorsement of an indorser other than its immediate transferor. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 686, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

Part 5.—Presentment, Notice of Dishonor and Protest

§ 28:3-501. When presentment, notice of dishonor, and protest necessary or permissible.

(1) Unless excused (section 28:3-511) presentment is necessary to charge secondary parties as follows:

(a) presentment for acceptance is necessary to charge the drawer and indorsers of a draft where the draft so provides, or is payable elsewhere than at the residence or place of business of the drawee, or its date of payment depends upon such presentment. The holder may at his option present for acceptance any other draft payable at a stated date;

(b) presentment for payment is necessary to charge any indorser;

(c) in the case of any drawer, the acceptor of a draft payable at a bank or the maker of a note payable at a bank, presentment for payment is necessary, but failure to make presentment discharges such drawer, acceptor or maker only as stated in section 28:3-502(1)(b).

(2) Unless excused (section 28:3-511)

(a) notice of any dishonor is necessary to charge any endorser;

(b) in the case of any drawer, the acceptor of a draft payable at a bank or the maker of a note payable at a bank, notice of any dishonor is necessary, but failure to give such notice discharges such drawer, acceptor or maker only as stated in section 28:3-502(1)(b).

(3) Unless excused (section 28:3-511) protest of any dishonor is necessary to charge the drawer and indorsers of any draft which on its face appears to be drawn or payable outside of the states and territories of the United States and the District. The holder may at his option make protest of any dishonor of any other instrument and in the case of a foreign draft may on insolvency of the acceptor before maturity make protest for better security.

(4) Notwithstanding any provision of this section, neither presentment nor notice of dishonor nor protest is necessary to charge an indorser who has indorsed an instrument after maturity. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 687, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965; Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 679, Pub. L. 88-509, § 5.)

AMENDMENT

1964—Section 5 of act Aug. 30, 1964, effective Jan. 1, 1965, amended the first sentence of clause (1)(a) by changing the word "that" to "than".

§ 28:3-502. Unexcused delay; discharge.

(1) Where without excuse any necessary presentment or notice of dishonor is delayed beyond the time when it is due

(a) any indorser is discharged; and

(b) any drawer or the acceptor of a draft payable at a bank or the maker of a note payable at a bank who because the drawee or payor bank becomes insolvent during the delay is deprived of funds maintained with the drawee or payor bank to cover the instrument may discharge his liability by written assignment to the holder of his rights against the drawee or payor bank in respect of such funds, but such drawer, acceptor or maker is not otherwise discharged.

(2) Where without excuse a necessary protest is delayed beyond the time when it is due any drawer or indorser is discharged. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 687, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-503. Time of presentment.

(1) Unless a different time is expressed in the instrument the time for any presentment is determined as follows:

(a) where an instrument is payable at or a fixed period after a stated date any presentment for acceptance must be made on or before the date it is payable;

(b) where an instrument is payable after sight it must either be presented for acceptance or negotiated within a reasonable time after date or issue whichever is later;

(c) where an instrument shows the date on which it is payable presentment for payment is due on that date;

(d) where an instrument is accelerated presentment for payment is due within a reasonable time after the acceleration;

(e) with respect to the liability of any secondary party presentment for acceptance or payment of any other instrument is due within a reasonable time after such party becomes liable thereon.

(2) A reasonable time for presentment is determined by the nature of the instrument, any usage of banking or trade and the facts of the particular case. In the case of an uncertified check which is drawn and payable within the United States and which is not a draft drawn by a bank the following are presumed to be reasonable periods within which to present for payment or to initiate bank collection:

(a) with respect to the liability of the drawer, thirty days after date or issue whichever is later; and

(b) with respect to the liability of an indorser, seven days after his indorsement.

(3) Where any presentment is due on a day which is not a full business day for either the person making presentment or the party to pay or accept, presentment is due on the next following day which is a full business day for both parties.

(4) Presentment to be sufficient must be made at a reasonable hour, and if at a bank during its banking day. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 687, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-504. How presentment made.

(1) Presentment is a demand for acceptance or payment made upon the maker, acceptor, drawee or other payor by or on behalf of the holder.

(2) Presentment may be made

(a) by mail, in which event the time of presentment is determined by the time of receipt of the mail; or

(b) through a clearing house; or

(c) at the place of acceptance or payment specified in the instrument or if there be none at the place of business or residence of the party to accept or pay. If neither the party to accept or pay nor anyone authorized to act for him is present or accessible at such place presentment is excused.

(3) It may be made

(a) to any one of two or more makers, acceptors, drawees or other payors; or

(b) to any person who has authority to make or refuse the acceptance or payment

(4) A draft accepted or a note made payable at a bank in the United States must be presented at such bank.

(5) In the cases described in section 28:4-210 presentment may be made in the manner and with the result stated in that section. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 688, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-505. Rights of party to whom presentment is made.

(1) The party to whom presentment is made may without dishonor require

(a) exhibition of the instrument; and

(b) reasonable identification of the person making presentment and evidence of his authority to make it if made for another; and

(c) that the instrument be produced for acceptance or payment at a place specified in it, or if there be none at any place reasonable in the circumstances; and

(d) a signed receipt on the instrument for any partial or full payment and its surrender upon full payment.

(2) Failure to comply with any such requirement invalidates the presentment but the person presenting has a reasonable time in which to comply and the time for acceptance or payment runs from the time of compliance. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 688, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-506. Time allowed for acceptance or payment.

(1) Acceptance may be deferred without dishonor until the close of the next business day following presentment. The holder may also in good faith effort to obtain acceptance and without either dishonor of the instrument or discharge of secondary parties allow postponement of acceptance for an additional business day.

(2) Except as a longer time is allowed in the case of documentary drafts drawn under a letter of credit, and unless an earlier time is agreed to by the party to pay, payment of an instrument may be deferred without dishonor pending reasonable examination to determine whether it is properly payable, but payment must be made in any event before the close of business on the day of presentment. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 689, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-507. Dishonor; holder's right of recourse; term allowing re-presentment.

(1) An instrument is dishonored when

(a) a necessary or optional presentment is duly made and due acceptance or payment is refused or cannot be obtained within the prescribed time or in case of bank collections the instrument is seasonably returned by the midnight deadline (section 28:4-301); or

(b) presentment is excused and the instrument is not duly accepted or paid.

(2) Subject to any necessary notice of dishonor and protest, the holder has upon dishonor an immediate right of recourse against the drawers and indorsers.

(3) Return of an instrument for lack of proper indorsement is not dishonor.

(4) A term in a draft or an indorsement thereof allowing a stated time for re-presentment in the event of any dishonor of the draft by nonacceptance if a time draft or by nonpayment if a sight draft gives the holder as against any secondary party bound by the term an option to waive the dishonor without affecting the liability of the secondary party and he may present again up to the end of the stated time. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 689, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-508. Notice of dishonor.

(1) Notice of dishonor may be given to any person who may be liable on the instrument by or on behalf of the holder or any party who has himself received notice, or any other party who can be compelled to pay the instrument. In addition an agent or bank in whose hands the instrument is dishonored may give notice to his principal or customer or to another agent or bank from which the instrument was received.

(2) Any necessary notice must be given by a bank before its midnight deadline and by any other person before midnight of the third business day after dishonor or receipt of notice of dishonor.

(3) Notice may be given in any reasonable manner. It may be oral or written and in any terms which identify the instrument and state that it has been dishonored. A misdescription which does not mislead the party notified does not vitiate the notice. Sending the instrument bearing a stamp, ticket or writing stating that acceptance or payment has been refused or sending a notice of debit with respect to the instrument is sufficient.

(4) Written notice is given when sent although it is not received.

(5) Notice to one partner is notice to each although the firm has been dissolved.

(6) When any party is in insolvency proceedings instituted after the issue of the instrument notice may be given either to the party or to the representative of his estate.

(7) When any party is dead or incompetent notice may be sent to his last known address or given to his personal representative.

(8) Notice operates for the benefit of all parties who have rights on the instrument against the party notified. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 689, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-509. Protest; noting for protest.

(1) A protest is a certificate of dishonor made under the hand and seal of a United States consul or vice consul or a notary public or other person authorized to certify dishonor by the law of the place where dishonor occurs. It may be made upon information satisfactory to such person.

(2) The protest must identify the instrument and certify either that due presentment has been made or the reason why it is excused and that the instrument has been dishonored by nonacceptance or nonpayment.

(3) The protest may also certify that notice of dishonor has been given to all parties or to specified parties.

(4) Subject to subsection (5) any necessary protest is due by the time that notice of dishonor is due.

(5) If, before protest is due, an instrument has been noted for protest by the officer to make protest, the protest may be made at any time thereafter as of the date of the noting. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 690, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-510. Evidence of dishonor and notice of dishonor.

The following are admissible as evidence and create a presumption of dishonor and of any notice of dishonor therein shown:

(a) a document regular in form as provided in the preceding section which purports to be a protest;

(b) the purported stamp or writing of the drawee, payor bank or presenting bank on the instrument or accompanying it stating that acceptance or payment has been refused for reasons consistent with dishonor;

(c) any book or record of the drawee, payor bank, or any collecting bank kept in the usual course of business which shows dishonor, even though there is no evidence of who made the entry. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 690, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3–511. Waived or excused presentment, protest or notice of dishonor or delay therein.

(1) Delay in presentment, protest or notice of dishonor is excused when the party is without notice that it is due or when the delay is caused by circumstances beyond his control and he exercises reasonable diligence after the cause of the delay ceases to operate.

(2) Presentment or notice or protest as the case may be is entirely excused when

(a) the party to be charged has waived it expressly or by implication either before or after it is due; or

(b) such party has himself dishonored the instrument or has countermanded payment or otherwise has no reason to expect or right to require that the instrument be accepted or paid; or

(c) by reasonable diligence the presentment or protest cannot be made or the notice given.

(3) Presentment is also entirely excused when

(a) the maker, acceptor or drawee of any instrument except a documentary draft is dead or in insolvency proceedings instituted after the issue of the instrument; or

(b) acceptance or payment is refused but not for want of proper presentment.

(4) Where a draft has been dishonored by nonacceptance a later presentment for payment and any notice of dishonor and protest for nonpayment are excused unless in the meantime the instrument has been accepted.

(5) A waiver of protest is also a waiver of presentment and of notice of dishonor even though protest is not required.

(6) Where a waiver of presentment or notice or protest is embodied in the instrument itself it is binding upon all parties; but where it is written above the signature of an indorser it binds him only. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 690, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

Part 6.—Discharge

§ 28:3–601. Discharge of parties.

(1) The extent of the discharge of any party from liability on an instrument is governed by the sections on

(a) payment or satisfaction (section 28:3–603); or

(b) tender of payment (section 28:3–604); or

(c) cancellation or renunciation (section 28:3–605); or

(d) impairment of right of recourse or of collateral (section 28:3–606); or

(e) reacquisition of the instrument by a prior party (section 28:3–208); or

(f) fraudulent and material alteration (section 28:3–407); or

(g) certification of a check (section 28:3–411); or

(h) acceptance varying a draft (section 28:3–412); or

(i) unexcused delay in presentment or notice of dishonor or protest (section 28:3–502).

(2) Any party is also discharged from his liability on an instrument to another party by any other act or agreement with such party which would discharge his simple contract for the payment of money.

(3) The liability of all parties is discharged when any party who has himself no right of action or recourse on the instrument

(a) reacquires the instrument in his own right; or

(b) is discharged under any provision of this article except as otherwise provided with respect to discharge for impairment of recourse or of collateral (section 28:3–606).

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 691, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3–602. Effect of discharge against holder in due course.

No discharge of any party provided by this article is effective against a subsequent holder in due course unless he has notice thereof when he takes the instrument. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 691, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3–603. Payment or satisfaction.

(1) The liability of any party is discharged to the extent of his payment or satisfaction to the holder even though it is made with knowledge of a claim of another person to the instrument unless prior to such payment or satisfaction the person making the claim either supplies indemnity deemed adequate by the party seeking the discharge or enjoins payment or satisfaction by order of a court of competent jurisdiction in an action in which the adverse claimant and the holder are parties. This subsection does not, however, result in the discharge of the liability

(a) of a party who in bad faith pays or satisfies a holder who acquired the instrument by theft or who (unless having the rights of a holder in due course) holds through one who so acquired it; or

(b) of a party (other than an intermediary bank or a payor bank which is not a depositary bank) who pays or satisfies the holder of an instrument which has been restrictively indorsed in a manner not consistent with the terms of such restrictive indorsement.

(2) Payment or satisfaction may be made with the consent of the holder by any person including a stranger to the instrument. Surrender of the instrument to such a person gives him the rights of a transferee (section 28:3–201). (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 691, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3–604. Tender of payment.

(1) Any party making tender of full payment to a holder when or after it is due is discharged to the extent of all subsequent liability for interest, costs, and attorney's fees.

(2) The holder's refusal of such tender wholly discharges any party who has a right of recourse against the party making the tender.

(3) Where the maker or acceptor of an instrument payable otherwise than on demand is able and ready to pay at every place of payment specified in the instrument when it is due, it is equivalent to tender. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 682, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-605. Cancellation and renunciation.

(1) The holder of an instrument may even without consideration discharge any party.

(a) in any manner apparent on the face of the instrument or the indorsement, as by intentionally cancelling the instrument or the party's signature by destruction or mutilation, or by striking out the party's signature; or

(b) by renouncing his rights by a writing signed and delivered or by surrender of the instrument to the party to be discharged.

(2) Neither cancellation nor renunciation without surrender of the instrument affects the title thereto. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 692, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-606. Impairment of recourse or of collateral.

(1) The holder discharges any party to the instrument to the extent that without such party's consent the holder

(a) without express reservation of rights releases or agrees not to sue any person against whom the party has to the knowledge of the holder a right of recourse or agrees to suspend the right to enforce against such person the instrument or collateral or otherwise discharges such person, except that failue or delay in effecting any required presentment, protest or notice of dishonor with respect to any such person does not discharge any party as to whom presentment, protest or notice of dishonor is effective or unnecessary; or

(b) unjustifiably impairs any collateral for the instrument given by or on behalf of the party or any person against whom he has a right of recourse.

(2) By express reservation of rights against a party with a right of recourse the holder preserves

(a) all his rights against such party as of the time when the instrument was originally due; and

(b) the right of the party to pay the instrument as of that time; and

(c) all rights of such party to recourse against others.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 692, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

Part 7.—Advice of International Sight Draft

§ 28:3-701. Letter of advice of international sight draft.

(1) A "letter of advice" is a drawer's communication to the drawee that a described draft has been drawn.

(2) Unless otherwise agreed when a bank receives from another bank a letter of advice of an international sight draft the drawee bank may immediately debit the drawer's account and stop the running of interest pro tanto. Such a debit and any resulting credit to any account covering oustanding drafts leaves in the drawer full power to stop payment or otherwise dispose of the amount and creates no trust or interest in favor of the holder.

(3) Unless otherwise agreed and except where a draft is drawn under a credit issued by the drawee, the drawee of an international sight draft owes the drawer no duty to pay an unadvised draft but if it does so and the draft is genuine, may appropriately debit the drawer's account. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 693, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

Part 8.—Miscellaneous

§ 28:3-801. Drafts in a set.

(1) Where a draft is drawn in a set of parts, each of which is numbered and expressed to be an order only if no other part has been honored, the whole of the parts constitutes one draft but a taker of any part may become a holder in due course of the draft.

(2) Any person who negotiates, indorses or accepts a single part of a draft drawn in a set thereby becomes liable to any holder in due course of that part as if it were the whole set, but as between different holders in due course to whom different parts have been negotiated the holder whose title first accrues has all rights to the draft and its proceeds.

(3) As against the drawee the first presented part of a draft drawn in a set is the part entitled to payment, or if a time draft to acceptance and payment. Acceptance of any subsequently presented part renders the drawee liable thereon under subsection (2). With respect both to a holder and to the drawer payment of a subsequently presented part of a draft payable at sight has the same effect as payment of a check notwithstanding an effective stop order (section 28:4-407).

(4) Except as otherwise provided in this section, where any part of a draft in a set is discharged by payment or otherwise the whole draft is discharged. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 693, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-802. Effect of instrument on obligation for which it is given.

(1) Unless otherwise agreed where an instrument is taken for an underlying obligation.

(a) the obligation is pro tanto discharged if a bank is drawer, maker or acceptor of the instrument and there is no recourse on the instrument against the underlying obligor; and

(b) in any other case the obligation is suspended pro tanto until the instrument is due or if it is payable on demand until its presentment. If the instrument is dishonored action may be maintained on either the instrument or the obligation; discharge of the underlying obligor on the instrument also discharges him on the obligation.

(2) The taking in good faith of a check which is not postdated does not of itself so extend the time on the original obligation as to discharge a surety. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 693, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-803. Notice to third party.

Where a defendant is sued for breach of an obligation for which a third person is answerable over under this article he may give the third person written notice of the litigation, and the person notified may then give similar notice to any other person who is answerable over to him under this article. If the notice states that the person notified may come in and defend and that if the person notified does not do so he will in any action against him by the person giving the notice be bound by any determination of fact common to the two litigations, then unless after seasonable receipt of the notice the person notified does come in and defend he is so bound. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 694, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3–804. Lost, destroyed or stolen instruments.

The owner of an instrument which is lost, whether by destruction, theft or otherwise, may maintain an action in his own name and recover from any party liable thereon upon due proof of his ownership, the facts which prevent his production of the instrument and its terms. The court may require security indemnifying the defendant against loss by reason of further claims on the instrument. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 694, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3–805. Instruments not payable to order or to bearer.

This article applies to any instrument whose terms do not preclude transfer and which is otherwise negotiable within this article but which is not payable to order or to bearer, except that there can be no holder in due course of such an instrument. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 694, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

Part 1.—General Provisions and Definitions

§ 28:4–101. Short title.

This article shall be known and may be cited as Uniform Commercial Code—Bank Deposits and Collections. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 695, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4–102. Applicability.

(1) To the extent that items within this article are also within the scope of articles 3 and 8, they are subject to the provisions of those articles. In the event of conflict the provisions of this article govern those of article 3 but the provisions of article 8 govern those of this article.

(2) The liability of a bank for action or non-action with respect to any item handled by it for purposes of presentment, payment or collection is governed by the law of the place where the bank is located. In the case of action or non-action by or at a branch or separate office of a bank, its liability is governed by the law of the place where the branch or separate office is located. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 695, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4–103. Variation by agreement; measure of damages; certain action constituting ordinary care.

(1) The effect of the provisions of this article may be varied by agreement except that no agreement can disclaim a bank's responsibility for its own lack of good faith or failure to exercise ordinary care or can limit the measure of damages for such lack or failure; but the parties may by agreement determine the standards by which such responsibility is to be measured if such standards are not manifestly unreasonable.

(2) Federal Reserve regulations and operating letters, clearing house rules, and the like, have the effect of agreements under subsection (1), whether or not specifically assented to by all parties interested in items handled.

(3) Action or non-action approved by this article or pursuant to Federal Reserve regulations or operating letters constitutes the exercise of ordinary care and, in the absence of special instructions, action or non-action consistent with clearing house rules and the like or with a general banking usage not disapproved by this article, prima facie constitutes the exercise of ordinary care.

(4) The specification or approval of certain procedures by this article does not constitute disapproval of other procedures which may be reasonable under the circumstances.

(5) The measure of damages for failure to exercise ordinary care in handling an item is the amount of the item reduced by an amount which could not have been realized by the use of ordinary care, and where there is bad faith it includes other damages, if any, suffered by the party as a proximate consequence. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 695, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4–104. Definitions and index of definitions.

(1) In this article unless the context otherwise requires

(a) "Account" means any account with a bank and includes a checking, time, interest or savings account;

(b) "Afternoon" means the period of a day between noon and midnight;

(c) "Banking day" means that part of any day on which a bank is open to the public for carrying on substantially all of its banking functions;

(d) "Clearing house" means any association of banks or other payors regularly clearing items;

(e) "Customer" means any person having an account with a bank or for whom a bank has agreed to collect items and includes a bank carrying an account with another bank;

(f) "Documentary draft" means any negotiable or nonnegotiable draft with accompanying documents, securities or other papers to be delivered against honor of the draft;

(g) "Item" means any instrument for the payment of money even though it is not negotiable but does not include money;

(h) "Midnight deadline" with respect to a bank is midnight on its next banking day following the banking day on which it receives the relevant item or notice or from which the time for taking action commences to run, whichever is later;

(i) "Properly payable" includes the availability of funds for payment at the time of decision to pay or dishonor;

(j) "Settle" means to pay in cash, by clearing house settlement, in a charge or credit or by remittance, or otherwise as instructed. A settlement may be either provisional or final;

(k) "Suspends payments" with respect to a bank means that it has been closed by order of the supervisory authorities, that a public officer has been appointed to take it over or that it ceases or refuses to make payments in the ordinary course of business.

(4) In addition article 1 contains general definitions and principles of construction and interpretation applicable throughout this article. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 696, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4–105. "Depositary bank"; "intermediary bank"; "collecting bank"; "payor bank"; "presenting bank"; "remitting bank".

In this article unless the context otherwise requires:

(a) "Depositary bank" means the first bank to which an item is transferred for collection even though it is also the payor bank;

(b) "Payor bank" means a bank by which an item is payable as drawn or accepted;

(c) "Intermediary bank" means any bank to which an item is transferred in course of collection except the depositary or payor bank;

(d) "Collecting bank" means any bank handling the item for collection except the payor bank;

(e) "Presenting bank" means any bank presenting an item except a payor bank;

(f) "Remitting bank" means any payor or intermediary bank remitting for an item.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 697, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4–106. Separate office of a bank.

A branch or separate office of a bank is a separate bank for the purpose of computing the time within which and determining the place at or to which action may be taken or notices or orders shall be given under this article and under article 3. The receipt of any notice or order by or the knowledge of one branch or separate office of a bank is not actual or constructive notice to or knowledge of any other branch or office of the same bank and does not impair the right of another branch or office to be a holder in due course of an item. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 697, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4–107. Time of receipt of items.

(1) For the purpose of allowing time to process items, prove balances and make the necessary entries on its books to determine its position for the day, a bank may fix an afternoon hour of two P.M. or later as a cut-off hour for the handling of money and items and the making of entries on its books.

(2) Any item or deposit of money received on any day after a cut-off hour so fixed or after the close of the banking day may be treated as being received at the opening of the next banking day.) (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 697, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4–108. Delays.

(1) Unless otherwise instructed, a collecting bank in a good faith effort to secure payment may, in the case of specific items and with or without the approval of any person involved, waive, modify or extend time limits imposed or permitted by this subtitle for a period not in excess of an additional banking day without discharge of secondary parties and without liability to its transferor or any prior party.

(2) Delay by a collecting bank or payor bank beyond time limits prescribed or permitted by this subtitle or by instructions is excused if caused by interruption of communication facilities, suspension of payments by another bank, war, emergency conditions or other circumstances beyond the control of the bank provided it exercises such diligence as the circumstances require. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 697, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4–109. Process of posting.

The "process of posting" means the usual procedure followed by a payor bank in determining to pay an item and in recording the payment including one or more of the following or other steps as determined by the bank:

(a) verification of any signature;

(b) ascertaining that sufficient funds are available;

(c) affixing a "paid" or other stamp;

(d) entering a charge or entry to a customer's account;

(e) correcting or reversing an entry or erroneous action with respect to the item.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 698, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

Part 2.—Collection of Items: Depositary and Collecting Banks

§ 28:4–201. Presumption and duration of agency status of collecting banks and provisional status of credits; applicability of article; item indorsed "pay any bank".

(1) Unless a contrary intent clearly appears and prior to the time that a settlement given by a collecting bank for an item is or becomes final (subsection (3) of section 28:4–211 and sections 28:4–212 and 28:4–213) the bank is an agent or sub-agent of the owner of the item and any settlement given for the item is provisional. This provision applies regardless of the form of indorsement or lack of indorsement and even though credit given for the item is subject to immediate withdrawal as of right or is in fact withdrawn; but the continuance of ownership of an item by its owner and any rights of the owner to proceeds of the item are subject to rights of a collecting bank such as those resulting from outstanding advances on the item and valid rights of setoff. When an item is handled by banks for purposes of presentment, payment and collection, the relevant provisions of this article apply even though action of parties clearly establishes that a particular bank has purchased the item and is the owner of it.

(2) After an item has been indorsed with the words "pay any bank" or the like, only a bank may acquire the rights of a holder

(a) until the item has been returned to the customer initiating collection; or

(b) until the item has been specially indorsed by a bank to a person who is not a bank.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 698, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4–202. Responsibility for collection; when action seasonable.

(1) A collecting bank must use ordinary care in

(a) presenting an item or sending it for presentment; and

(b) sending notice of dishonor or non-payment or returning an item other than a documentary draft to the bank's transferor or directly to the depositary bank under subsection (2) of section 28:4–212 after learning that the item has not been paid or accepted, as the case may be; and

(c) settling for an item when the bank receives final settlement; and

(d) making or providing for any necessary protest; and

(e) notifying its transferor of any loss or delay in transit within a reasonable time after discovery thereof.

(2) A collecting bank taking proper action before its midnight deadline following receipt of an item, notice or payment acts seasonably; taking proper action within a reasonably longer time may be seasonable but the bank has the burden of so establishing.

(3) Subject to subsection (1)(a), a bank is not liable for the insolvency, neglect, misconduct, mistake or default of another bank or person or for loss or destruction of an item in transit or in the possession of others. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 698, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4–203. Effect of instructions.

Subject to the provisions of article 3 concerning conversion of instruments (section 28:3–419) and the provisions of both article 3 and this article concerning restrictive indorsements only a collecting bank's transferor can give instructions which affect the bank or constitute notice to it and a collecting bank is not liable to prior parties for any action taken pursuant to such instructions or in accordance with any agreement with its transferor. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 699, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4–204. Methods of sending and presenting; sending direct to payor bank.

(1) A collecting bank must send items by reasonably prompt method taking into consideration any relevant instructions, the nature of the item, the number of such items on hand, and the cost of collection involved and the method generally used by it or others to present such items.

(2) A collecting bank may send

(a) any item direct to the payor bank;

(b) any item to any non-bank payor if authorized by its transferor; and

(c) any item other than documentary drafts to any non-bank payor, if authorized by Federal Reserve regulation or operating letter, clearing house rule or the like.

(3) Presentment may be made by a presenting bank at a place where the payor bank has requested that presentment be made. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 699, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4–205. Supplying missing indorsement; no notice from prior indorsement.

(1) A depositary bank which has taken an item for collection may supply any indorsement of the customer which is necesssary to title unless the item contains the words "payee's indorsement required" or the like. In the absence of such a requirement a statement placed on the item by the depositary bank to the effect that the item was deposited by a customer or credited to his account is effective as the customer's indorsement.

(2) An intermediary bank, or payor bank which is not a depositary bank, is neither given notice nor otherwise affected by a restrictive indorsement of any person except the bank's immediate transferor. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 699, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4–206. Transfer between banks.

Any agreed method which identifies the transferor bank is sufficient for the item's transfer to another bank. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 699, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4–207. Warranties of customer and collecting bank on transfer or presentment of items; time for claims.

(1) Each customer or collecting bank who obtains payment or acceptance of an item and each prior customer and collecting bank warrants to the payor bank or other payor who in good faith pays or accepts the item that

(a) he has a good title to the item or is authorized to obtain payment or acceptance on behalf of one who has a good title; and

(b) he has no knowledge that the signature of the maker or drawer is unauthorized, except that this warranty is not given by any customer or collecting bank that is a holder in due course and acts in good faith

(i) to a maker with respect to the maker's own signature; or

(ii) to a drawer with respect to the drawer's own signature, whether or not the drawer is also the drawee; or

(iii) to an acceptor of an item if the holder in due course took the item after the acceptance or obtained the acceptance without knowledge that the drawer's signature was unauthorized; and

(c) the item has not been materially altered, except that this warranty is not given by any customer or collecting bank that is a holder in due course and acts in good faith

(i) to the maker of a note; or

(ii) to the drawer of a draft whether or not the drawer is also the drawee; or

(iii) to the acceptor of an item with respect to an alteration made prior to the acceptance if the holder in due course took the item after the acceptance, even though the acceptance provided "payable as originally drawn" or equivalent terms; or

(iv) to the acceptor of an item with respect to an alteration made after the acceptance.

(2) Each customer and collecting bank who transfers an item and receives a settlement or other consideration for it warrants to his transferee and to any subsequent collecting bank who takes the item in good faith that

(a) he has a good title to the item or is authorized to obtain payment or acceptance on behalf of one who has a good title and the transfer is otherwise rightful; and

(b) all signatures are genuine or authorized; and

(c) the item has not been materially altered; and

(d) no defense of any party is good against him; and

(e) he has no knowledge of any insolvency proceeding instituted with respect to the maker or acceptor or the drawer of an unaccepted item.

In addition each customer and collecting bank so transferring an item and receiving a settlement or other consideration engages that upon dishonor and any necessary notice of dishonor and protest he will take up the item.

(3) The warranties and the engagement to honor set forth in the two preceding subsections arise notwithstanding the absence of indorsement of words of guaranty or warranty in the transfer or presentment and a collecting bank remains liable for their breach despite remittance to its transferor. Damages for breach of such warranties or engagement to honor shall not exceed the consideration received by the customer or collecting bank responsible plus finance charges and expenses related to the item, if any.

(4) Unless a claim for breach of warranty under this section is made within a reasonable time after the person claiming learns of the breach, the person liable is discharged to the extent of any loss caused by the delay in making claim. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 699, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4–208. Security interest of collecting bank in items, accompanying documents and proceeds.

(1) A bank has a security interest in an item and any accompanying documents or the proceeds of either

(a) in case of an item deposited in an account to the extent to which credit given for the item has been withdrawn or applied;

(b) in case of an item for which it has given credit available for withdrawal as of right, to the extent of the credit given whether or not the credit is drawn upon and whether or not there is a right of charge-back; or

(c) if it makes an advance on or against the item.

(2) When credit which has been given for several items received at one time or pursuant to a single agreement is withdrawn or applied in part the security interest remains upon all the items, any accompanying documents or the proceeds of either. For the purpose of this section, credits first given are first withdrawn.

(3) Receipt by a collecting bank of a final settlement for an item is a realization on its security interest in the item, accompanying documents and proceeds. To the extent and so long as the bank does not receive final settlement for the item or give up possession of the item or accompanying documents for purposes other than collection, the security interest continues and is subject to the provisions of article 9 except that

(a) no security agreement is necessary to make the security interest enforceable (subsection (1) (b) of section 28:9–203); and

(b) no filing is required to perfect the security interest; and

(c) the security interest has priority over conflicting perfected security interests in the item, accompanying documents or proceeds.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 700, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4–209. When bank gives value for purposes of holder in due course.

For purposes of determining its status as a holder in due course, the bank has given value to the extent that it has a security interest in an item provided that the bank otherwise complies with the requirements of section 28:3–302 on what constitutes a holder in due course. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 701, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4–210. Presentment by notice of item not payable by, through or at a bank; liability of secondary parties.

(1) Unless otherwise instructed, a collecting bank may present an item not payable by, through or at a bank by sending to the party to accept or pay a written notice that the bank holds the item for acceptance or payment. The notice must be sent in time to be received on or before the day when presentment is due and the bank must meet, any requirement of the party to accept or pay under section 28:3–505 by the close of the bank's next banking day after it knows of the requirement.

(2) Where presentment is made by notice and neither honor nor request for compliance with a requirement under section 28:3–505 is received by the close of business on the day after maturity or in the case of demand items by the close of business on the third banking day after notice was sent, the presenting bank may treat the item as dishonored and charge any secondary party by sending him notice of the facts. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 701, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4–211. Media of remittance; provisional and final settlement in remittance cases.

(1) A collecting bank may take in settlement of an item

(a) a check of the remitting bank or of another bank on any bank except the remitting bank; or

(b) a cashier's check or similar primary obligation of a remitting bank which is a member of or clears through a member of the same clearing house or group as the collecting bank; or

(c) appropriate authority to charge an account of the remitting bank or of another bank with the collecting bank; or

(d) if the item is drawn upon or payable by a person other than a bank, a cashier's check, certified check or other bank check or obligation.

(2) If before its midnight deadline the collecting bank properly dishonors a remittance check or authorization to charge on itself or presents or forwards for collection a remittance instrument of or on another bank which is of a kind approved by subsection (1) or has not been authorized by it, the collecting bank is not liable to prior parties in the event of the dishonor of such check, instrument or authorization.

(3) A settlement for an item by means of a remittance instrument or authorization to charge is or becomes a final settlement as to both the person making and the person receiving the settlement

(a) if the remittance instrument or authorization to charge is of a kind approved by subsection (1) or has not been authorized by the person receiving the settlement and in either case the person receiving the settlement acts seasonably before its midnight deadline in presenting, forwarding for collection or paying the instrument or authorization,—at the time the remittance instrument or authorization is finally paid by the payor by which it is payable;

(b) if the person receiving the settlement has authorized remittance by a non-bank check or obligation or by a cashier's check or similar primary obligation of or a check upon the payor or other remitting bank which is not of a kind approved by subsection (1)(b),—at the time of the receipt of such remittance check or obligation; or

(c) if in a case not covered by sub-paragraphs (a) or (b) the person receiving the settlement fails to seasonably present, forward for collection, pay or return a remittance instrument or authorization to it to charge before its midnight deadline,—at such midnight deadline.

§ 28:4–212. Right of charge-back or refund.

(1) If a collecting bank has made provisional settlement with its customer for an item and itself fails by reason of dishonor, suspension of payments by a bank or otherwise to receive a settlement for the item which is or becomes final, the bank may revoke the settlement given by it, charge back the amount of any credit given for the item to its customer's account or obtain refund from its customer whether or not it is able to return the items if by its midnight deadline or within a longer reasonable time after it learns the facts it returns the item or sends notification of the facts. These rights to revoke, charge-back and obtain refund terminate if and when a settlement for the item received by the bank is or becomes final (subsection (3) of section 28:4–211 and subsections (2) and (3) of section 28:4–213).

(2) (Omitted.)

(3) A depositary bank which is also the payor may charge-back the amount of an item to its customer's account or obtain refund in accordance with the section governing return of an item received by a payor bank for credit on its books (section 28:4–301).

(4) The right to charge-back is not affected by

(a) prior use of the credit given for the item; or

(b) failure by any bank to exercise ordinary care with respect to the item but any bank so failing remains liable.

(5) A failure to charge-back or claim refund does not affect other rights of the bank against the customer or any other party.

(6) If credit is given in dollars as the equivalent of the value of an item payable in a foreign currency the dollar amount of any charge-back or refund shall be calculated on the basis of the buying sight rate for the foreign currency prevailing on the day when the person entitled to the charge-back or refund learns that it will not receive payment in ordinary course. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 702, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4-213. Final payment of item by payor bank; when provisional debits and credits become final; when certain credits become available for withdrawal.

(1) An item is finally paid by a payor bank when the bank has done any of the following, whichever happens first:

(a) paid the item in cash;or

(b) settled for the item without reserving a right to revoke the settlement and without having such right under statute, clearing house rule or agreement; or

(c) completed the process of posting the item to the indicated account of the drawer, maker or other person to be charged therewith; or

(d) made a provisional settlement for the item and failed to revoke the settlement in the time and manner permitted by statute, clearing house rule or agreement.

Upon a final payment under subparagraphs (b), (c) or (d) the payor bank shall be accountable for the amount of the item.

(2) If provisional settlement for an item between the presenting and payor banks is made through a clearing house or by debits or credits in an account between them, then to the extent that provisional debits or credits for the item are entered in accounts between the presenting and payor banks or between the presenting and successive prior collecting banks seriatim, they become final upon final payment of the item by the payor bank.

(3) If a collecting bank receives a settlement for an item which is or becomes final (subsection (3) of section 28:4–211, subsection (2) of section 28:4–213) the bank is accountable to its customer for the amount of the item and any provisional credit given for the item in an account with its customer becomes final.

(4) Subject to any right of the bank to apply the credit to an obligation of the customer, credit given by a bank for an item in an account with its customer becomes available for withdrawal as of right

(a) in any case where the bank has received a provisional settlement for the item,—when such settlement becomes final and the bank has had a reasonable time to learn that the settlement is final;

(b) in any case where the bank is both a depositary bank and a payor bank and the item is finally paid,—at the opening of the bank's second banking day following receipt of the item.

(5) A deposit of money in a bank is final when made but, subject to any right of the bank to apply the deposit to an obligation of the customer, the deposit becomes available for withdrawal as of right at the opening of the bank's next banking day following receipt of the deposit. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 703, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4-214. Insolvency and preference.

(1) Any item in or coming into the possession of a payor or collecting bank which suspends payment and which item is not finally paid shall be returned by the receiver, trustee or agent in charge of the closed bank to the presenting bank or the closed bank's customer.

(2) If a payor bank finally pays an item and suspends payments without making a settlement for the item with its customer or the presenting bank which settlement is or becomes final, the owner of the item has a preferred claim against the payor bank.

(3) If a payor bank gives or a collecting bank gives or receives a provisional settlement for an item and thereafter suspends payments, the suspension does not prevent or interfere with the settlement becoming final if such finality occurs automatically upon the lapse of certain time or the happening of certain events (subsection (3) of section 28:4–211, subsections (1)(d), (2) and (3) of section 28:4–213).

(4) If a collecting bank receives from subsequent parties settlement for an item which settlement is or becomes final and suspends payments without making a settlement for the item with its customer which is or becomes final, the owner of the item has a preferred claim against such collecting bank. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 703, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

Part 3.—Collection of Items: Payor Banks

§ 28:4-301. Deferred posting; recovery of payment by return of items; time of dishonor.

(1) Where an authorized settlement for a demand item (other than a documentary draft) received by a payor bank otherwise than for immediate payment over the counter has been made before midnight of the banking day of receipt the payor bank may revoke the settlement and recover any payment if before it has made final payment (subsection (1) of section 28:4–213) and before its midnight deadline it

(a) returns the item; or

(b) sends written notice of dishonor or nonpayment if the item is held for protest or is otherwise unavailable for return.

(2) If a demand item is received by a payor bank for credit on its books it may return such item or send notice of dishonor and may revoke any credit given or recover the amount thereof withdrawn by its customer, if it acts within the time limit and in the manner specified in the preceding subsection.

(3) Unless previous notice of dishonor has been sent an item is dishonored at the time when for purposes of dishonor it is returned or notice sent in accordance with this section.

(4) An item is returned:

(a) as to an item received through a clearing house, when it is delivered to the presenting or last collecting bank or to the clearing house or is sent or delivered in accordance with its rules; or

(b) in all other cases, when it is sent or delivered to the bank's customer or transferor or pursuant to his instructions.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 704, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4–302. Payor bank's responsibility for late return of item.

In the absence of a valid defense such as breach of a presentment warranty (subsection (1) of section 28:4–207), settlement effected or the like, if an item is presented on and received by a payor bank the bank is accountable for the amount of

(a) a demand item other than a documentary draft whether properly payable or not if the bank, in any case where it is not also the depositary bank, retains the item beyond midnight of the banking day of receipt without settling for it or, regardless of whether it is also the depositary bank, does not pay or return the item or send notice of dishonor until after its midnight deadline; or

(b) any other properly payable item unless within the time allowed for acceptance or payment of that item the bank either accepts or pays the item or returns it and accompanying documents.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 704, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4–303. When items subject to notice, stop-order, legal process or setoff; order in which items may be charged or certified.

(1) Any knowledge, notice or stop-order received by, legal process served upon or setoff exercised by a payor bank, whether or not effective under other rules of law to terminate, suspend or modify the bank's right or duty to pay an item or to charge its customer's account for the item, comes too late to so terminate, suspend or modify such right or duty if the knowledge, notice, stop-order or legal process is received or served and a reasonable time for the bank to act thereon expires or the setoff is exercised after the bank has done any of the following:

(a) accepted or certified the item;

(b) paid the item in cash;

(c) settled for the item without reserving a right to revoke the settlement and without having such right under statute, clearing house rule or agreement;

(d) completed the process of posting the item to the indicated account of the drawer, maker or other person to be charged therewith or otherwise has evidenced by examination of such indicated account and by action its decision to pay the item; or

(e) become accountable for the amount of the item under subsection (1)(d) of section 28:4–213 and section 28:4–302 dealing with the payor bank's responsibility for late return items.

(2) Subject to the provisions of subsection (1) items may be accepted, paid, certified or charged to the indicated account of its customer in any order convenient to the bank. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 705, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

Part 4.—Relationship Between Payor Bank and Its Customer

§ 28:4–401. When bank may charge customer's account.

(1) As against its customer, a bank may charge against his account any item which is otherwise properly payable from that account even though the charge creates an overdraft.

(2) A bank which in good faith makes payment to a holder may charge the indicated account of its customer according to

(a) the original tenor of his altered item; or

(b) the tenor of his completed item, even though the bank knows the item has been completed unless the bank has notice that the completion was improper.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 705, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4–402. Bank's liability to customer for wrongful dishonor.

A payor bank is liable to its customer for damages proximately caused by the wrongful dishonor of an item. When the dishonor occurs through mistake liability is limited to actual damages proved. If so proximately caused and proved damages may include damages for an arrest or prosecution of the customer or other consequential damages. Whether any consequential damages are proximately caused by the wrongful dishonor is a question of fact to be determined in each case. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 705, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4–403. Customer's right to stop payment; burden of proof of loss.

(1) A customer may by order to his bank stop payment of any item payable for his account but the order must be received at such time and in such manner as to afford the bank a reasonable opportunity to act on it prior to any action by the bank with respect to the item described in section 28:4–303. No such order shall be valid, however, unless it shall be in writing specifically describing the item to which it relates by stating the amount, date and payee thereof.

(2) Anything in this section 28:4–403 to the contrary notwithstanding, any stop payment order transmitted by telephone by a customer to an officer of a bank, while such officer is on the premises thereof, shall be accepted by such bank, upon such identification that will ensure the order has been transmitted by such customer, as an effective order for a period of twenty-four hours, after which time it shall no longer be valid unless followed by a written order as provided in this section 28:4–403. A written order is effective for only six months unless renewed in writing. The bank may, at its option and without liability, stop payment of an item after the expiration of a stop payment order or any renewal thereof relating to such item.

(3) The burden of estabilishing the fact and amount of loss resulting from the payment of an item contrary to a binding stop payment order is on the customer. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 705, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4–404. Bank not obligated to pay check more than six months old.

A bank is under no obligation to a customer having a checking account to pay a check, other than a certified check, which is presented more than six months after its date, but it may charge its customer's account for a payment made thereafter in the absence of an effective stop payment order in accordance with section 28:4-403. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 706, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4-405. Death or incompetence of customer.

(1) A payor or collecting bank's authority to accept, pay or collect an item or to account for proceeds of its collection if otherwise effective is not rendered ineffective by incompetence of a customer of either bank existing at the time the item is issued or its collection is undertaken if the bank does not know of an adjudication of incompetence. Neither death nor incompetence of a customer revokes such authority to accept, pay, collect or account until the bank knows of the fact of death or of an adjudication of incompetence and has reasonable opportunity to act on it.

(2) Even with knowledge a bank may for ten days after the date of death pay or certify checks drawn on or prior to that date unless ordered to stop payment by a person claiming an interest in the account. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 706, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4-406. Customer's duty to discover and report unauthorized signature or alteration.

(1) When a bank sends to its customer a statement of account accompanied by items paid in good faith in support of the debit entries or holds the statement and items pursuant to a request or instructions of its customer or otherwise in a reasonable manner makes the statement and items available to the customer, the customer must exercise reasonable care and promptness to examine the statement and items to discover his unauthorized signature or any alteration on an item and must notify the bank promptly after discovery thereof.

(2) If the bank establishes that the customer failed with respect to an item to comply with the duties imposed on the customer by subsection (1) the customer is precluded from asserting against the bank

(a) his unauthorized signature or any alteration on the item if the bank also establishes that it suffered a loss by reason of such failure; and

(b) an unauthorized signature or alteration by the same wrongdoer on any other item paid in good faith by the bank after the first item and statement was available to the customer for a reasonable period not exceeding fourteen calendar days and before the bank receives notification from the customer of any such unauthorized signature or alteration.

(3) The preclusion under subsection (2) does not apply if the customer establishes lack of ordinary care on the part of the bank in paying the item(s).

(4) Without regard to care or lack of care of either the customer or the bank a customer who does not within one year from the time the statement and items are made available to the customer (subsection (1)) discover and report his unauthorized signature or any alteration on the face or back of the item or does not within three years from that time discover and report any unauthorized indorsement is precluded from asserting against the bank such unauthorized signature or indorsement or such alteration.

(5) If under this section a payor bank has a valid defense against a claim of a customer upon or resulting from payment of an item and waives or fails upon request to assert the defense the bank may not assert against any collecting bank or other prior party presenting or transferring the item a claim based upon the unauthorized signature or alteration giving rise to the customer's claim. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 706, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4-407. Payor bank's right to subrogation on improper payment.

If a payor bank has paid an item over the stop payment order of the drawer or maker or otherwise under circumstances giving a basis for objection by the drawer or maker, to prevent unjust enrichment and only to the extent necessary to prevent loss to the bank by reason of its payment of the item, the payor bank shall be subrogated to the rights

(a) of any holder in due course on the item against the drawer or maker; and

(b) of the payee or any other holder of the item against the drawer or maker either on the item or under the transaction out of which the item arose; and

(c) of the drawer or maker against the payee or any other holder of the item with respect to the transaction out of which the item arose.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 707, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

Part 5.—Collection of Documentary Drafts

§ 28:4-501. Handling of documentary drafts; duty to send for presentment and to notify customer of dishonor.

A bank which takes a documentary draft for collection must present or send the draft and accompanying documents for presentment and upon learning that the draft has not been paid or accepted in due course must seasonably notify its customer of such fact even though it may have discounted or bought the draft or extended credit available for withdrawal as of right. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 707. Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4-502. Presentment of "on arrival" drafts.

When a draft or the relevant instructions require presentment "on arrival", "when goods arrive" or the like, the collecting bank need not present until in its judgment a reasonable time for arrival of the goods has expired. Refusal to pay or accept because the goods have not arrived is not dishonor; the bank must notify its transferor of such refusal but need not present the draft again until it is instructed to do so or learns of the arrival of the goods. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 707, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4-503. Responsibility of presenting bank for documents and goods; report of reasons for dishonor; referee in case of need.

Unless otherwise instructed and except as provided in article 5 a bank presenting a documentary draft

(a) must deliver the documents to the drawee on acceptance of the draft if it is payable more than three days after presentment; otherwise, only on payment; and

(b) upon dishonor, either in the case of presentment for acceptance or presentment for payment, may seek and follow instructions from any referee in case of need designated in the draft or if the presenting bank does not choose to utilize his services it must use diligence and good faith to ascertain the reason for dishonor, must notify its transferor of the dishonor and of the results of its effort to ascertain the reasons therefor and must request instructions.

But the presenting bank is under no obligation with respect to goods represented by the documents except to follow any reasonable instructions seasonably received; it has a right to reimbursement for any expense incurred in following instructions and to prepayment of or indemnity for such expenses. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 707, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4–504. Privilege of presenting bank to deal with goods; security interest for expenses.

(1) A presenting bank which, following the dishonor of a documentary draft, has seasonably requested instructions but does not receive them within a reasonable time may store, sell, or otherwise deal with the goods in any reasonable manner.

(2) For its reasonable expenses incurred by action under subsection (1) the presenting bank has a lien upon the goods or their proceeds, which may be foreclosed in the same manner as an unpaid seller's lien. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 708, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

28:5–117. Insolvency of bank holding funds for documentary credit.

§28:5–101. Short title.

The article shall be known and may be cited as Uniform Commercial Code—Letters of Credit. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 708, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:5–102. Scope.

(1) This article applies

(a) to a credit issued by a bank if the credit requires a documentary draft or a documentary demand for payment; and

(b) to a credit issued by a person other than a bank if the credit requires that the draft or demand for payment be accompanied by a document of title; and

(c) to a credit issued by a bank or other person if the credit is not within subparagraphs (a) or (b) but conspicuously states that it is a letter of credit or is conspicuously so entitled.

(2) Unless the engagement meets the requirements of subsection (1), this article does not apply to engagements to make advances or to honor drafts or demands for payment, to authorities to pay or purchase, to guarantees or to general agreements.

(3) This article deals with some but not all of the rules and concepts of letters of credit as such rules or concepts have developed prior to this subtitle or may hereafter develop. The fact that this article states a rule does not by itself require, imply or negate application of the same or a converse rule to a situation not provided for or to a person not specified by this article. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 708, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:5–103. Definitions.

(1) In this article unless the context otherwise requires

(a) "Credit" or "letter of credit" means an engagement by a bank or other person made at the request of a customer and of a kind within the scope of this article (section 28:5–102) that the issuer will honor drafts or other demands for payment upon compliance with the conditions specified in the credit. A credit may be either revocable or irrevocable. The engagement may be either an agreement to honor or a statement that the bank or other person is authorized to honor.

(b) A "documentary draft" or a "documentary demand for payment" is one honor of which is conditioned upon the presentation of a document or documents. "Document" means any paper including document of title, security, invoice, certificate, notice of default and the like.

(c) An "issuer" is a bank or other person issuing a credit.

(d) A "beneficiary" of a credit is a person who is entitled under its terms to draw or demand payment.

(e) An "advising bank" is a bank which gives notification of the issuance of a credit by another bank.

(f) A "confirming bank" is a bank which engages either that it will itself honor a credit already issued by another bank or that such a credit will be honored by the issuer or a third bank.

(g) A "customer" is a buyer or other person who causes an issuer to issue a credit. The term also includes a bank which procures issuance or confirmation on behalf of that bank's customer.

(2) Other definitions applying to this article and the sections in which they appear are:

"Notation of credit". Section 28:5–108.

"Presenter". Section 28:5–112(3).

(3) Definitions in other articles apply to this article and the sections in which they appear are:

"Accept" or "Acceptance". Section 28:3–410.

"Contract for sale". Section 28:2–106.

"Draft". Section 28:3–104.

"Holder in due course". Section 28:3–302.

"Midnight deadline". Section 28:4–104.

"Security". Section 28:8–102.

(4) In addition, article 1 contains general definitions and principles of construction and interpretation applicable throughout this article. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 709, Pub. L. 88–241, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:5–104. Formal requirements; signing.

(1) Except as otherwise required in subsection (1)(c) of section 28:5–102 on scope, no particular form of phrasing is required for a credit. A credit must be in writing and signed by the issuer and a confirmation must be in writing and signed by the confirming bank. A modification of the terms of a credit or confirmation must be signed by the issuer or confirming bank.

(2) A telegram may be a sufficient signed writing if it identifies its sender by an authorized authentication. The authentication may be in code and the authorized naming of the issuer in an advice of credit is a sufficient signing. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 709, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:5–105. Consideration.

No consideration is necessary to establish a credit or to enlarge or otherwise modify its terms. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 710, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:5–106. Time and effect of establishment of credit.

(1) Unless otherwise agreed a credit is established

(a) as regards the customer as soon as a letter of credit is sent to him or the letter of credit or an authorized written advice of its issuance is sent to the beneficiary; and

(b) as regards the beneficiary when he receives a letter of credit or an authorized written advice of its issuance.

(2) Unless otherwise agreed once an irrevocable credit is established as regards the customer it can be modified or revoked only with the consent of the customer and once it is established as regards the beneficiary it can be modified or revoked only with his consent.

(3) Unless otherwise agreed after a revocable credit is established it may be modified or revoked by the issuer without notice to or consent from the customer or beneficiary.

(4) Notwithstanding any modification or revocation of a revocable credit any person authorized to honor or negotiate under the terms of the original credit is entitled to reimbursement for or honor of any draft or demand for payment duly honored or negotiated before receipt of notice of the modification or revocation and the issuer in turn is entitled to reimbursement from its customer. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 710, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:5–107. Advice of credit; confirmation; error in statement of terms.

(1) Unless otherwise specified an advising bank by advising a credit issued by another bank does not assume any obligation to honor drafts drawn or demands for payment made under the credit but it does assume obligation for the accuracy of its own statement.

(2) A confirming bank by confirming a credit becomes directly obligated on the credit to the extent of its confirmation as though it were its issuer and acquires the rights of an issuer.

(3) Even though an advising bank incorrectly advises the terms of a credit it has been authorized to advise the credit is established as against the issuer to the extent of its original terms.

(4) Unless otherwise specified the customer bears as against the issuer all risks of transmission and reasonable translation or interpretation of any message relating to a credit. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 710, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:5–108. "Notation credit"; exhaustion of credit.

(1) A credit which specifies that any person purchasing or paying drafts drawn or demands for payment made under it must note the amount of the draft or demand on the letter or advice of credit is a "notation credit"

(2) Under a notation credit

(a) a person paying the beneficiary or purchasing a draft or demand for payment from him acquires a right to honor only if the appropriate notation is made and by transferring or forwarding for honor the documents under the credit such a person warrants to the issuer that the notation has been made; and

(b) unless the credit or a signed statement that an appropriate notation has been made accompanies the draft or demand for payment the issuer may delay honor until evidence of notation has been procured which is satisfactory to it but its obligation and that of its customer continue for a reasonable time not exceeding thirty days to obtain such evidence.

(3) If the credit is not a notation credit

(a) the issuer may honor complying drafts or demands for payment presented to it in the order in which they are presented and is discharged pro tanto by honor of any such draft or demand;

(b) as between competing good faith purchasers of complying drafts or demands the person first purchasing has priority over a subsequent purchaser even though the later purchased draft or demand has been first honored.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 710, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:5–109. Issuer's obligation to its customer.

(1) An issuer's obligation to its customer includes good faith and observance of any general banking usage but unless otherwise agreed does not include liability or responsibility

(a) for performance of the underlying contract for sale or other transaction between the customer and the beneficiary; or

(b) for any act or omission of any person other than itself or its own branch or for loss or destruction of a draft, demand or document in transit or in the possession of others; or

(c) based on knowledge or lack of knowledge of any usage of any particular trade.

(2) An issuer must examine documents with care so as to ascertain that on their face they appear to comply with the terms of the credit but unless otherwise agreed assumes no liability or responsibility for the genuineness, falsification or effect of any document which appears on such examination to be regular on its face.

(3) A non-bank issuer is not bound by any banking usage of which it has no knowledge. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 711, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:5–110. Availability of credit in portions; presenter's reservation of lien or claim.

(1) Unless otherwise specified a credit may be used in portions in the discretion of the beneficiary.

(2) Unless otherwise specified a person by presenting a documentary draft or demand for payment under a credit relinquishes upon its honor all claims to the documents and a person by transferring such draft or demand or causing such presentment authorizes such relinquishment. An explicit reservation of claim makes the draft or demand noncomplying. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 711, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:5–111. Warranties on transfer and presentment.

(1) Unless otherwise agreed the beneficiary by transferring or presenting a documentary draft or demand for payment warrants to all interested parties that the necessary conditions of the credit have been complied with. This is in addition to any warranties arising under articles 3, 4, 7 and 8.

(2) Unless otherwise agreed a negotiating, advising, confirming, collecting or issuing bank presenting or transferring a draft or demand for payment under a credit warrants only the matters warranted by a collecting bank under article 4 and any such bank transferring a document warrants only the matters warranted by an intermediary under articles 7 and 8. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 711, Pub. L. 88–243, §1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:5–112. Time allowed for honor or rejection; withholding honor or rejection by consent; "presenter".

(1) A bank to which a documentary draft or demand for payment is presented under a credit may without dishonor of the draft, demand, or credit

(a) defer honor until the close of the third banking day following receipt of the documents; and

(b) further defer honor if the presenter has expressly or impliedly consented thereto.

Failure to honor within the time here specified constitutes dishonor of the draft or demand and of the credit.

(2) Upon dishonor the bank may unless otherwise instructed fulfill its duty to return the draft or demand and the documents by holding them at the disposal of the presenter and sending him an advice to that effect.

(3) "Presenter" means any person presenting a draft or demand for payment for honor under a credit even though that person is a confirming bank or other correspondent which is acting under an issuer's authorization. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 711, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:5–113. Indemnities.

(1) A bank seeking to obtain (whether for itself or another) honor, negotiation or reimbursement under a credit may give an indemnity to induce such honor, negotiation or reimbursement.

(2) An indemnity agreement inducing honor, negotiation or reimbursement

(a) unless otherwise explicity agreed applies to defects in the documents but not in the goods; and

(b) unless a longer time is explicity agreed expires at the end of ten business days following receipt of the documents by the ultimate customer unless notice of objection is sent before such expiration date. The ultimate customer may send notice of objection to the person from whom he received the documents and any bank receiving such notice is under a duty to send notice to its transferor before its midnight deadline.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 712, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:5–114. Issuer's duty and privilege to honor; right to reimbursement.

(1) An issuer must honor a draft or demand for payment which complies with the terms of the relevant credit regardless of whether the goods or documents conform to the underlying contract for sale or other contract between the customer and the beneficiary. The issuer is not excused from honor of such a draft or demand by reason of an additional general term that all documents must be satisfactory to the issuer, but an issuer may require that specified documents must be satisfactory to it.

(2) Unless otherwise agreed when documents appear on their face to comply with the terms of a credit but a required document does not in fact conform to the warranties made on negotiation or transfer of a document of title (section 28:7–507) or of a security (section 28:8–306) or is forged or fraudulent or there is fraud in the transaction

(a) the issuer must honor the draft or demand for payment if honor is demanded by a negotiating bank or other holder of the draft or demand which has taken the draft or demand under the credit and under circumstances which would make it a holder in due course (section 28:3–302) and in an appropriate case would make it a person to whom a document of title has been duly negotiated (section 28:7–502) or a bona fide purchaser of a security (section 28:8–302); and

(b) in all other cases as against its customer, an issuer acting in good faith may honor the draft or demand for payment despite notification from the customer of fraud, forgery or other defect not apparent on the face of the documents but a court of appropriate jurisdiction may enjoin such honor.

(3) Unless otherwise agreed an issuer which has duly honored a draft or demand for payment is entitled to immediate reimbursement of any payment made under the credit and to be put in effectively available funds not later than the day before maturity of any acceptance made under the credit.

(4)(5) (Omitted.) (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 712, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:5–115. Remedy for improper dishonor or anticipatory repudiation.

(1) When an issuer wrongfully dishonors a draft or demand for payment presented under a credit the person entitled to honor has with respect to any documents the rights of a person in the position of a seller (section 28:2–707) and may recover from the issuer the face amount of the draft or demand together with incidental damages under section 28:2–710 on seller's incidental damages and interest but less any amount realized by resale or other use or disposition of the subject matter of the transaction. In the event no resale or other utilization is made the documents, goods or other subject matter involved in the transaction must be turned over to the issuer on payment of judgment.

(2) When an issuer wrongfully cancels or otherwise repudiates a credit before presentment of a draft or demand for payment drawn under it the beneficiary has the rights of a seller after anticipatory repudiation by the buyer under section 28:2–610 if he learns of the repudiation in time reasonably to avoid procurement of the required documents. Otherwise the beneficiary has an immediate right of action for wrongful dishonor. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 713, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:5–116. Transfer and assignment.

(1) The right to draw under a credit can be transferred or assigned only when the credit is expressly designated as transferable or assignable.

(2) Even though the credit specifically states that it is nontransferable or nonassignable the beneficiary may before performance of the conditions of the credit assign his right to proceeds. Such an assignment is an assignment of a contract right under article 9 on secured transactions and is governed by that article except that

(a) the assignment is ineffective until the letter of credit or advice of credit is delivered to the assignee which delivery constitutes perfection of the security interest under article 9; and

(b) the issuer may honor drafts or demands for payment drawn under the credit until it receives a notification of the assignment signed by the beneficiary which reasonably identifies the credit involved in the assignment and contains a request to pay the assignee; and

(c) after what reasonably appears to be such a notification has been received the issuer may without dishonor refuse to accept or pay even to a person otherwise entitled to honor until the letter of credit or advice of credit is exhibited to the issuer.

(3) Except where the beneficiary has effectively assigned his right to draw or his right to proceeds, nothing in this section limits his right to transfer or negotiate drafts or demands drawn under the credit. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 713, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:5–117. Insolvency of bank holding funds for documentary credit.

(1) Where an issuer or an advising or confirming bank or a bank which has for a customer procured issuance of a credit by another bank becomes insolvent before final payment under the credit and the credit is one to which this article is made applicable by paragraphs (a) or (b) of section 28:5–102(1) on scope, the receipt or allocation of funds or collateral to secure or meet obligations under the credit shall have the following results:

(a) to the extent of any funds or collateral turned over after or before the insolvency as indemnity against or specifically for the purpose of payment of drafts or demands for payment drawn under the designated credit, the drafts or demands are entitled to payment in preference over depositors or other general creditors of the issuer or bank; and

(b) on expiration of the credit or surrender of the beneficiary's rights under it unused any person who has given such funds or collateral is similarly entitled to return thereof; and

(c) a charge to a general or current account with a bank if specifically consented to for the purpose of indemnity against or payment of drafts or demands for payment drawn under the designated credit falls under the same rules as if the funds had been drawn out in cash and then turned over with specific instructions.

(2) After honor or reimbursement under this section the customer or other person for whose account the insolvent bank has acted is entitled to receive the documents involved. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 713, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

28:6–108. Auction sales; "auctioneer".
28:6–109. What creditors protected.
28:6–110. Subsequent transfers.
28:6–111. Limitation of actions and levies.

§ 28:6–101. Short title.

This article shall be known and may be cited as Uniform Commercial Code—Bulk Transfers. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 714, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:6–102. "Bulk transfer"; transfers of equipment; enterprises subject to this article; bulk transfers subject to this article.

(1) A "bulk transfer" is any transfer in bulk and not in the ordinary course of the transferor's business of a major part of the materials, supplies, merchandise or other inventory (section 28:9–109) of an enterprise subject to this article.

(2) A transfer of a substantial part of the equipment (section 28:9–109) of such an enterprise is a bulk transfer if it is made in connection with a bulk transfer of inventory, but not otherwise.

(3) The enterprises subject to this article are all those whose principal business is the sale of merchandise from stock, including those who manufacture what they sell.

(4) Except as limited by the following section all bulk transfers of goods located within the District are subject to this article. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 714, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:6–103. Transfers excepted from this article.

The following transfers are not subject to this article:

(1) Those made to give security for the performance of an obligation;

(2) General assignments for the benefit of all the creditors of the transferor, and subsequent transfers by the assignee thereunder;

(3) Transfers in settlement or realization of a lien or other security interest;

(4) Sales by executors, administrators, receivers, trustees in bankruptcy, or any public officer under judicial process;

(5) Sales made in the course of judicial or administrative proceedings for the dissolution or reorganization of a corporation and of which notice is sent to the creditors of the corporation pursuant to order of the court or administrative agency;

(6) Transfers to a person maintaining a known place of business in the District who becomes bound to pay the debts of the transferor in full and gives public notice of that fact, and who is solvent after becoming so bound;

(7) A transfer to a new business enterprise organized to take over and continue the business, if public notice of the transaction is given and the new enterprise assumes the debts of the transferor and he receives nothing from the transaction except an interest in the new enterprise junior to the claims of creditors;

(8) Transfers of property which is exempt from execution.

Public notice under subsection (6) or subsection (7) may be given by publishing once a week for two consecutive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation where the transferor had its principal place of business in the District an advertisement including the names and addresses of the transferor and transferee and the effective date of the transfer. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 714, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:6–104. Schedule of property, list of creditors.

(1) Except as provided with respect to auction sales (section 28:6–108), a bulk transfer subject to this article is ineffective against any creditor of the transferor unless:

(a) The transferee requires the transferor to furnish a list of his existing creditors prepared as stated in this section; and

(b) The parties prepare a schedule of the property transferred sufficient to identify it; and

(c) The transferee preserves the list and schedule for six months next following the transfer and permits inspection of either or both and copying therefrom at all reasonable hours by any creditor of the transferor, or files the list and schedule in the office of the Recorder of Deeds of the District.

(2) The list of creditors must be signed and sworn to or affirmed by the transferor or his agent. It must contain the names and business addresses of all creditors of the transferor, with the amounts when known, and also the names of all persons who are known to the transferor to assert claims against him even though such claims are disputed. If the transferor is the obligor of an outstanding issue of bonds, debentures or the like as to which there is an indenture trustee, the list of creditors need include only the name and address of the indenture trustee and the aggregate outstanding principal amount of the issue.

(3) Responsibility for the completeness and accuracy of the list of creditors rests on the transferor, and the transfer is not rendered ineffective by errors or omissions therein unless the transferee is shown to have had knowledge. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 715, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:6–105. Notice to creditors.

In addition to the requirements of the preceding section, any bulk transfer subject to this article except one made by auction sale (section 28:6–108) is ineffective against any creditor of the transferor unless at least ten days before he takes possession of the goods or pays for them, whichever happens first, the transferee gives notice of the transfer in the manner and to the persons hereafter provided (section 28:6–107). (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 715, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:6–106. (Omitted.)

§ 28:6–107. The notice.

(1) The notice to creditors (section 28:6–105) shall state:

(a) that a bulk transfer is about to be made; and

(b) the names and business addresses of the transferor and transferee, and all other business names and addresses used by the transferor within three years last past so far as known to the transferee; and

(c) whether or not all the debts of the transferor are to be paid in full as they fall due as a result of the transaction, and if so, the address to which creditors should send their bills.

(2) If the debts of the transferor are not to be paid in full as they fall due or if the transferee is in doubt on that point then the notice shall state further:

(a) the location and general description of the property to be transferred and the estimated total of the transferor's debts;

(b) the address where the schedule of property and list of creditors (section 28:6–104) may be inspected;

(c) whether the transfer is to pay existing debts and if so the amount of such debts and to whom owing;

(d) whether the transfer is for new consideration and if so the amount of such consideration and the time and place of payment.

(3) The notice in any case shall be delivered personally or sent by registered or certified mail to all the persons shown on the list of creditors furnished by the transferor (section 28:6–104) and to all other persons who are known to the transferee to hold or assert claims against the transferor. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 716, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:6–108. Auction sales; "auctioneer".

(1) A bulk transfer is subject to this article even though it is by sale at auction, but only in the manner and with the results stated in this section.

(2) The transferor shall furnish a list of his creditors and assist in the preparation of a schedule of the property to be sold, both prepared as before stated (section 28:6–104).

(3) The person or persons other than the transferor who direct, control or are responsible for the auction are collectively called the "auctioneer" The auctioneer shall:

(a) receive and retain the list of creditors and prepare and retain the schedule of property for the period stated in this article (section 28:6–104);

(b) give notice of the auction personally or by registered or certified mail at least ten days before it occurs to all persons shown on the list of creditors and to all other persons who are known to him to hold or assert claims against the transferor.

(4) Failure of the auctioneer to perform any of these duties does not affect the validity of the sale or the title of the purchasers, but if the auctioneer knows that the auction constitutes a bulk transfer such failure renders the auctioneer liable to the creditors of the transferor as a class for the sums owing to them from the transferor up to but not exceeding the net proceeds of the auction. If the auctioneer consists of several persons their liability is joint and several. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 716, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:6–109. What creditors protected.

(1) The creditors of the transferor mentioned in this article are those holding claims based on transactions or events occurring before the bulk transfer, but creditors who become such after notice to creditors is given (sections 28:6–105 and 28:6–107) are not entitled to notice.

(2) (Omitted.) (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 716, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:6–110. Subsequent transfers.

When the title of a transferee to property is subject to a defect by reason of his non-compliance with the requirements of this article, then:

(1) a purchaser of any of such property from such transferee who pays no value or who takes with notice of such non-compliance takes subject to such defect, but

(2) a purchaser for value in good faith and without such notice takes free of such defect.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 717, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:6–111. Limitation of actions and levies.

No action under this article shall be brought nor levy made more than six months after the date on which the transferee took possession of the goods unless the transfer has been concealed. If the transfer has been concealed, actions may be brought or levies made within six months after its discovery. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 717, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

28:7–601. Lost and missing documents.
28:7–602. Attachment of goods covered by a negotiable document.
28:7–603. Conflicting claims; interpleader.

Part 1.—General

§ 28:7–101. Short title.

This article shall be known and may be cited as Uniform Commercial Code—Documents of Title. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 718, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7–102. Definitions and index of definitions.

(1) In this article, unless the context otherwise requires:

(a) "Bailee" means the person who by a warehouse receipt, bill of lading or other document of title acknowledges possession of goods and contracts to deliver them.

(b) "Consignee" means the person named in a bill to whom or to whose order the bill promises delivery.

(c) "Consignor" means the person named in a bill as the person from whom the goods have been received for shipment.

(d) "Delivery order" means a written order to deliver goods directed to a warehouseman, carrier or other person who in the ordinary course of business issues warehouse receipts or bills of lading.

(e) "Document" means document of title as defined in the general definitions in article 1 (section 28:1–201).

(f) "Goods" means all things which are treated as movable for the purposes of a contract of storage or transportation.

(g) "Issuer" means a bailee who issues a document except that in relation to an unaccepted delivery order it means the person who orders the possessor of goods to deliver. Issuer includes any person for whom an agent or employee purports to act in issuing a document if the agent of employee has real or apparent authority to issue documents, notwithstanding that the issuer received no goods or that the goods were misdescribed or that in any other respect the agent or employee violated his instructions.

(h) "Warehouseman" is a person engaged in the business of storing goods for hire.

(2) Other definitions applying to this article or to specified parts thereof, and the sections in which they appear are:

"Duty negotiate" section 28:7–501.

"Person entitled under the document" section 28:7–403(4).

(3) Definitions in other articles applying to this article and the sections in which they appear are:

"Contract for sale" section 28:2–106.

"Overseas" section 28:2–323.

"Receipt" of goods section 28:2–103.

(4) In addition article 1 contains general definitions and principles of construction and interpretation applicable throughout this article. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 718, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7–103. Relation of article to treaty, statute, tariff, classification or regulation.

To the extent that any treaty or statute of the United States, regulatory statute of the District or tariff, classification or regulation filed or issued pursuant thereto is applicable, the provisions of this article are subject thereto. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 719, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7–104. Negotiable and non-negotiable warehouse receipt, bill of lading or other document of title.

(1) A warehouse receipt, bill of lading or other document of title is negotiable

(a) if by its terms the goods are to be delivered to bearer or to the order of a named person; or

(b) where recognized in overseas trade, if it runs to a named person or assigns.

(2) Any other document is non-negotiable. A bill of lading in which it is stated that the goods are consigned to a named person is not made negotiable by a provision that the goods are to be delivered only against a written order signed by the same or another named person. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 719, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7–105. Construction against negative implication.

The omission from either part 2 or part 3 of this article of a provision corresponding to a provision made in the other part does not imply that a corresponding rule of law is not applicable. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 719, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

PART 2.—WAREHOUSE RECEIPTS: SPECIAL PROVISIONS

§ 28:7–201. Who may issue a warehouse receipt; storage under government bond.

(1) A warehouse receipt may be issued by any warehouseman.

(2) Where goods including distilled spirits and agricultural commodities are stored under a statute requiring a bond against withdrawal or a license for the issuance of receipts in the nature of warehouse receipts, a receipt issued for the goods has like effect as a warehouse receipt even though issued by a person who is the owner of the goods and is not a warehouseman. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 719, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7–202. Form of warehouse receipt; essential terms; optional terms.

(1) A warehouse receipt need not be in any particular form.

(2) Unless a warehouse receipt embodies within its written or printed terms each of the following, the warehouseman is liable for damages caused by the omission to a person injured thereby:

(a) the location of the warehouse where the goods are stored;

(b) the date of issue of the receipt;

(c) the consecutive number of the receipt;

(d) a statement whether the goods received will be delivered to the bearer, to a specified person, or to a specified person or his order;

(e) the rate of storage and handling charges, except that where goods are stored under a field warehousing arrangement a statement of that fact is sufficient on a non-negotiable receipt;

(f) a description of the goods or of the packages containing them;

(g) the signature of the warehouseman, which may be made by his authorized agent;

(h) if the receipt is issued for goods of which the warehouseman is owner, either solely or jointly or in common with others, the fact of such ownership; and

(i) a statement of the amount of advances made and of liabilities incurred for which the warehouseman claims a lien or security interest (section 28:7–209). If the precise amount of such advances made or of such liabilities incurred is, at the time of the issue of the receipt, unknown to the warehouseman or to his agent who issues it, a statement of the fact that advances have been made or liabilities incurred and the purpose thereof is sufficient.

(3) A warehouseman may insert in his receipt any other terms which are not contrary to the provisions of this subtitle and do not impair his obligation of delivery (section 28:7-403) or his duty of care (section 28:7-204). Any contrary provisions shall be ineffective. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 719, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-203. Liability for non-receipt or misdescription.

A party to or purchaser for value in good faith of a document of title other than a bill of lading relying in either case upon the description therein of the goods may recover from the issuer damages caused by the non-receipt or misdescription of the goods, except to the extent that the document conspicuously indicates that the issuer does not know whether any part or all of the goods in fact were received or conform to the description, as where the description is in terms of marks or labels or kind, quantity or condition, or the receipt or description is qualified by "contents, condition and quality unknown", "said to contain" or the like, if such indication be true, or the party or purchaser otherwise has notice. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 720, Pub. L. 88-241, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-204. Duty of care; contractual limitation of warehouseman's liability.

(1) A warehouseman is liable for damages for loss of or injury to the goods caused by his failure to exercise such care in regard to them as a reasonably careful man would exercise under like circumstances but unless otherwise agreed he is not liable for damages which could not have been avoided by the exercise of such care.

(2) Damages may be limited by a term in the warehouse receipt or storage agreement limiting the amount of liability in case of loss or damage, and setting forth a specific liability per article or item, or value per unit of weight, beyond which the warehouseman shall not be liable: Provided, however, That such liability may on written request of the bailor at the time of signing such storage agreement or within a reasonable time after receipt of the warehouse receipt be increased on part or all of the goods thereunder, in which event increased rates may be charged based on such increased valuation, but that no such increase shall be permitted contrary to a lawful limitation of liability contained in the warehouseman's tariff, if any. No such limitation is effective with respect to the warehouseman's liability for conversion to his own use.

(3) Reasonable provisions as to the time and manner of presenting claims and instituting actions based on the bailment may be included in the warehouse receipt or tariff.

(4) (Omitted.) (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 720, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-205. Title under warehouse receipt defeated in certain cases.

A buyer in the ordinary course of business of fungible goods sold and delivered by a warehouseman who is also in the buisiness of buying and selling such goods takes free of any claim under a warehouse receipt even though it has been duly negotiated. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 721, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-206. Termination of storage at warehouseman's option.

(1) A warehouseman may on notifying the person on whose account the goods are held and any other person known to claim an interest in the goods require payment of any charges and removal of the goods from the warehouse at the termination of the period of storage fixed by the document, or, if no period is fixed, within a stated period not less than thirty days after the notification. If the goods are not removed before the date specified in the notification, the warehouseman may sell them in accordance with the provisions of the section on enforcement of a warehouseman's lien (section 28:7-210).

(2) If a warehouseman in good faith believes that the goods are about to deteriorate or decline in value to less than the amount of his lien within the time prescribed in subsection (1) for notification, advertisement and sale, the warehouseman may specify in the notification any reasonable shorter time for removal of the goods and in case the goods are not removed, may sell them at public sale held not less than one week after a single advertisement or posting.

(3) If as a result of a quality or condition of the goods of which the warehouseman had no notice at the time of deposit the goods are a hazard to other property or to the warehouse or to persons, the warehouseman may sell the goods at public or private sale without advertisement on reasonable notification to all persons known to claim an interest in the goods. If the warehouseman after a reasonable effort is unable to sell the goods he may dispose of them in any lawful manner and shall incur no liability by reason of such disposition.

(4) The warehouseman must deliver the goods to any person entitled to them under this article upon due demand made at any time prior to sale or other disposition under this section.

(5) The warehouseman may satisfy his lien from the proceeds of any sale or disposition under this section but must hold the balance for delivery on the demand of any person to whom he would have been bound to deliver the goods. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 721, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-207. Goods must be kept separate; fungible goods.

(1) Unless the warehouse receipt otherwise provides, a warehouseman must keep separate the goods covered by each receipt so as to permit at all times identification and delivery of those goods except that different lots of fungible goods may be commingled.

(2) Fungible goods so commingled are owned in common by the persons entitled thereto and the warehouseman is severally liable to each owner for that owner's share. Where because of overissue a mass of fungible goods is insufficient to meet all the receipts which the warehouseman has issued against it, the persons entitled include all holders to whom overissued receipts have been duly negotiated. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 721, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-208. Altered warehouse receipts.

Where a blank in a negotiable warehouse receipt has been filled in without authority, a purchaser for value and without notice of the want of authority, may treat the insertion as authorized. Any other unauthorized alteration leaves any receipt enforceable against the issuer according to its original tenor. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 721, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-209. Lien of warehouseman.

(1) A warehouseman has a lien against the bailor on the goods covered by a warehouse receipt or on the proceeds thereof in his possession for charges for storage or transportation (including demurrage and terminal charges), insurance, labor, or charges present or future in relation to the goods, and for expenses necessary for preservation of the goods or reasonably incurred in their sale pursuant to law. If the person on whose account the goods are held is liable for like charges or expenses in relation to other goods whenever deposited and it is stated in the receipt that a lien is claimed for charges and expenses in relation to other goods, the warehouseman also has a lien against him for such charges and expenses whether or not the other goods have been delivered by the warehouseman. But against a person to whom a negotiable warehouse receipt is duly negotiated a warehouseman's lien is limited to charges in an amount or at a rate specified on the receipt or if no charges are so specified then to a reasonable charge for storage of the goods covered by the receipt subsequent to the date of the receipt.

(2) The warehouseman may also reserve a security interest against the bailor for a maximum amount specified on the receipt for charges other than those specified in subsection (1), such as for money advanced and interest. Such a security interest is governed by the article on secured transactions (article 9).

(3) A warehouseman's lien for charges and expenses under subsection (1) or a security interest under subsection (2) is also effective against any person who so entrusted the bailor with possession of the goods that a pledge of them by him to a good faith purchaser for value would have been valid but is not effective against a person as to whom the document confers no right in the goods covered by it under section 28:7-503.

(4) A warehouseman loses his lien on any goods which he voluntarily delivers or which he unjustifiably refuses to deliver. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 722, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-210. Enforcement of warehouseman's lien.

(1) Except as provided in subsection (2), a warehouseman's lien may be enforced by public or private sale of the goods in bloc or in parcels, at any time or place and on any terms which are commercially reasonable, after notifying all persons known to claim an interest in the goods. Such notification must include a statement of the amount due, the nature of the proposed sale and the time and place of any public sale. The fact that a better price could have been obtained by a sale at a different time or in a different method from that selected by the warehouseman is not of itself sufficient to establish that the sale was not made in a commercially reasonable manner. If the warehouseman either sells the goods in the usual manner in any recognized market therefor, or if he sells at the price current in such market at the time of his sale, or if he has otherwise sold in conformity with commercially reasonable practices among dealers in the type of goods sold, he has sold in a commercially reasonable manner. A sale of more goods than apparently necessary to be offered to insure satisfaction of the obligation is not commercially reasonable except in cases covered by the preceding sentence.

(2) A warehouseman's lien on goods other than goods stored by a merchant in the course of his business may be enforced only as follows:

(a) All persons known to claim an interest in the goods must be notified.

(b) The notification must be delivered in person or sent by registered or certified letter to the last known address of any person to be notified.

(c) The notification must include an itemized statement of the claim, a description of the goods subject to the lien, a demand for payment within a specified time not less than ten days after receipt of the notification, and a conspicuous statement that unless the claim is paid within that time the goods will be advertised for sale and sold by auction at a specified time and place.

(d) The sale must conform to the terms of the notification.

(e) The sale must be held at the nearest suitable place to that where the goods are held or stored.

(f) After the expiration of the time given in the notification, an advertisment of the sale must be published once a week for two weeks consecutively in a newspaper of general circulation where the sale is to be held. The advertisement must include a description of the goods, the name of the person on whose account they are being held, and the time and place of the sale. The sale must take place at least fifteen days after the first publication. If there is no newspaper of general circulation where the sale is to be held, the advertisement must be posted at least ten days before the sale in not less than six conspicuous places in the neighborhood of the proposed sale.

(3) Before any sale pursuant to this section any person claiming a right in the goods may pay the amount necessary to satisfy the lien and the reasonable expenses incurred under this section. In that event the goods must not be sold, but must be retained by the warehouseman subject to the terms of the receipt and this article.

(4) The warehouseman may buy at any public sale pursuant to this section.

(5) A purchaser in good faith of goods sold to enforce a warehouseman's lien takes the goods free of any rights of persons against whom the lien was valid, despite noncompliance by the warehouseman with the requirements of this section.

(6) The warehouseman may satisfy his lien from the proceeds of any sale pursuant to this section but must hold the balance, if any, for delivery on demand to any person to whom he would have been bound to deliver the goods.

(7) The rights provided by this section shall be in addition to all other rights allowed by law to a creditor against his debtor.

(8) Where a lien is on goods stored by a merchant in the course of his business the lien may be enforced in accordance with either subsection (1) or (2).

(9) The warehouseman is liable for damages caused by failure to comply with the requirements for sale under this section and in case of willful violation is liable for conversion. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 722, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

PART 3.—BILLS OF LADING: SPECIAL PROVISIONS

§ 28:7-301. Liability for non-receipt or misdescription; "said to contain"; "shipper's load and count"; improper handling.

(1) A consignee of a non-negotiable bill who has given value in good faith or a holder to whom a negotiable bill has been duly negotiated relying in either case upon the description therein of the goods, or upon the date therein shown, may recover from the issuer damages caused by the misdating of the bill or the non-receipt or misdescription of the goods, except to the extent that the document indicates that the issuer does not know whether any part or all of the goods in fact were received or conform to the description, as where the description is in terms of marks or labels or kind, quantity, or condition or the receipt or description is qualified by "contents or condition of contents of packages unknown", "said to contain", "shipper's weight, load and count" or the like, if such indication be true.

(2) When goods are loaded by an issuer who is a common carrier, the issuer must count the packages of goods if package freight and ascertain the kind and quantity if bulk freight. In such cases "shipper's weight, load and count" or other words indicating that the description was made by the shipper are ineffective except as to freight concealed by packages.

(3) When bulk freight is loaded by a shipper who makes available to the issuer adequate facilities for weighing such freight, an issuer who is a common carrier must ascertain the kind and quantity within a reasonable time after receiving the written request of the shipper to do so. In such cases "shipper's weight" or other words of like purport are ineffective.

(4) The issuer may be inserting in the bill the words "shipper's weight, load and count" or other words of like purport indicate that the goods were loaded by the shipper; and if such statement be true the issuer shall not be liable for damages caused by the improper loading. But their omission does not imply liability for such damages.

(5) The shipper shall be deemed to have guaranteed to the issuer the accuracy at the time of shipment of the description, marks, labels, number, kind, quantity, condition and weight, as furnished by him; and the shipper shall indemnify the issuer against damage caused by inaccuracies in such particulars. The right of the issuer to such indemnity shall in no way limit his responsibility and liability under the contract of carriage to any person other than the shipper. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 723, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-302. Through bills of lading and similar documents.

(1) The issuer of a through bill of lading or other document embodying an undertaking to be performed in part by persons acting as its agents or by connecting carriers is liable to anyone entitled to recover on the document for any breach by such other persons or by a connecting carrier of its obligation under the document but to the extent that the bill covers an undertaking to be performed overseas or in territory not contiguous to the continental United States or an undertaking including matters other than transportation this liability may be varied by agreement of the parties.

(2) Where goods covered by a through bill of lading or other document embodying an undertaking to be performed in part by persons other than the issuer are received by any such person, he is subject with respect to his own performance while the goods are in his possession to the obligation of the issuer. His obligation is discharged by delivery of the goods to another such person pursuant to the document, and does not include liability for breach by any other such persons or by the issuer.

(3) The issuer of such through bill of lading or other document shall be entitled to recover from the connecting carrier or such other person in possession of the goods when the breach of the obligation under the document occurred, the amount it may be required to pay to anyone entitled to recover on the document therefor, as may be evidenced by any receipt, judgment, or transcript thereof, and the amount of any expense reasonably incurred by it in defending any action brought by anyone entitled to recover on the document therefor. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 724, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-303. Diversion; reconsignment; change of instructions.

(1) Unless the bill of lading otherwise provides, the carrier may deliver the goods to a person or destination other than that stated in the bill or may otherwise dispose of the goods on instructions from

(a) the holder of a negotiable bill; or

(b) the consignor on a non-negotiable bill notwithstanding contrary instructions from the consignee; or

(c) the consignee on a non-negotiable bill in the absence of contrary instructions from the consignor, if the goods have arrived at the billed destination or if the consignee is in possession of the bill; or

(d) the consignee on a non-negotiable bill if he is entitled as against the consignor to dispose of them.

(2) Unless such instructions are noted on a negotiable bill of lading, a person to whom the bill is duly negotiated can hold the bailee according to the original terms. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 724, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

28:7-304. Bills of lading in a set.

(1) Except where customary in overseas transportation, a bill of lading must not be issued in a set of parts. The issuer is liable for damages caused by violation of this subsection.

(2) Where a bill of lading is lawfully drawn in a set of parts, each of which is numbered and expressed to be valid only if the goods have not been delivered against any other part, the whole of the parts constitute one bill.

(3) Where a bill of lading is lawfully issued in a set of parts and different parts are negotiated to different persons, the title of the holder to whom the first due negotiation is made prevails as to both the document and the goods even though any later holder may have received the goods from the carrier in good faith and discharged the carrier's obligation by surrender of his part.

(4) Any person who negotiates or transfers a single part of a bill of lading drawn in a set is liable to holders of that part as if it were the whole set.

(5) The bailee is obliged to deliver in accordance with part 4 of this article against the first presented part of a bill of lading lawfully drawn in a set. Such delivery discharges the bailee's obligation on the whole bill. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 725, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

28:7–305. Destination bills.

(1) Instead of issuing a bill of lading to the consignor at the place of shipment a carrier may at the request of the consignor procure the bill to be issued at destination or at any other place designated in the request.

(2) Upon request of anyone entitled as against the carrier to control the goods while in transit and on surrender of any outstanding bill of lading or other receipt covering such goods, the issuer may procure a substitute bill to be issued at any place designated in the request. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 725, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7–306. Altered bills of lading.

An unauthorized alteration or filling in of a blank in a bill of lading leaves the bill enforceable according to its original tenor. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 725, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7–307. Lien of carrier.

(1) A carrier has a lien on the goods covered by a bill of lading for charges subsequent to the date of its receipt of the goods for storage or transportation (including demurrage and terminal charges) and for expenses necessary for preservation of the goods incident to their transportation or reasonably incurred in their sale pursuant to law. But against a purchaser for value of a negotiable bill of lading a carrier's lien is limited to charges stated in the bill or the applicable tariffs, or if no charges are stated then to a reasonable charge.

(2) A lien for charges and expenses under subsection (1) on goods which the carrier was required by law to receive for transportation is effective against the consignor or any person entitled to the goods unless the carrier had notice that the consignor lacked authority to subject the goods to such charges and expenses. Any other lien under subsection (1) is effective against the consignor and any person who permitted the bailor to have control or possession of the goods unless the carrier had notice that the bailor lacked such authority.

(3) A carrier loses his lien on any goods which he voluntarily delivers or which he unjustifiably refuses to deliver. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 725, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7–308. Enforcement of carrier's lien.

(1) A carrier's lien may be enforced by public or private sale of the goods, in bloc or in parcels, at any time or place and on any terms which are commercially reasonable, after notifying all persons known to claim an interest in the goods. Such notification must include a statement of the amount due, the nature of the proposed sale and the time and place of any public sale. The fact that a better price could have been obtained by a sale at a different time or in a different method from that selected by the carrier is not of itself sufficient to establish that the sale was not made in a commercially reasonable manner. If the carrier either sells the goods in the usual manner in any recognized market therefor or if he sells at the price current in such market at the time of his sale or if he has otherwise sold in conformity with commercially reasonable practices among dealers in the type of goods sold he has sold in a commercially reasonable manner. A sale of more goods than apparently necessary to be offered to ensure satisfaction of the obligation is not commercially reasonable except in cases covered by the preceding sentence.

(2) Before any sale pursuant to this section any person claiming a right in the goods may pay the amount necessary to satisfy the lien and the reasonable expenses incurred under this section. In that event the goods must not be sold, but must be retained by the carrier subject to the terms of the bill and this article.

(3) The carrier may buy at any public sale pursuant to this section.

(4) A purchaser in good faith of goods sold to enforce a carrier's lien takes the goods free of any rights of persons against whom the lien was valid, despite noncompliance by the carrier with the requirements of this section.

(5) The carrier may satisfy his lien from the proceeds of any sale pursuant to this section but must hold the balance, if any, for delivery on demand to any person to whom he would have been bound to deliver the goods.

(6) The rights provided by this section shall be in addition to all other rights allowed by law to a creditor against his debtor.

(7) A carrier's lien may be enforced in accordance with either subsection (1) or the procedure set forth in subsection (2) of section 28:7–210.

(8) The carrier is liable for damages caused by failure to comply with the requirements for sale under this section and in case of willful violation is liable for conversion. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 726, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7–309. Duty of care; contractual limitation of carrier's liability.

(1) A carrier who issues a bill of lading whether negotiable or non-negotiable must exercise the degree of care in relation to the goods which a reasonably careful man would exercise under like circumstances. This subsection does not repeal or change any law or rule of law which imposes liability upon a common carrier for damages not caused by its negligence.

(2) Damages may be limited by a provision that the carrier's liability shall not exceed a value stated in the document if the carrier's rates are dependent upon value and the consignor by the carrier's tariff is afforded an opportunity to declare a higher value or a value as lawfully provided in the tariff, or where no tariff is filed he is otherwise advised of such opportunity; but no such limitation is effective with respect to the carrier's liability for conversion to its own use.

(3) Reasonable provisions as to the time and manner of presenting claims and instituting actions based on the shipment may be included in a bill of lading or tariff. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 726, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

Part 4.—Warehouse Receipts and Bills of Lading: General Obligations

§ 28:7-401. Irregularities in issue of receipt or bill or conduct of issuer.

The obligations imposed by this article on an issuer apply to a document of title regardless of the fact that

(a) the document may not comply with the requirements of this article or of any other law or regulation regarding its issue, form or content; or

(b) the issuer may have violated laws regulating the conduct of his business; or

(c) the goods covered by the document were owned by the bailee at the time the document was issued; or

(d) the person issuing the document does not come within the definition of warehouseman if it purports to be a warehouse receipt.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 727, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-402. Duplicate receipt or bill; overissue.

Neither a duplicate nor any other document of title purporting to cover goods already represented by an outstanding document of the same issuer confers any right in the goods, except as provided in the case of bills in a set, overissue of documents for fungible goods and substitutes for lost, stolen or destroyed documents. But the issuer is liable for damages caused by his overissue or failure to identify a duplicate document as such by conspicuous notation on its face. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 727, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-403. Obligation of warehouseman or carrier to deliver; excuse.

(1) The bailee must deliver the goods to a person entitled under the document who complies with subsections (2) and (3), unless and to the extent that the bailee establishes any of the following:

(a) delivery of the goods to a person whose receipt was rightful as against the claimant;

(b) damage to or delay, loss or destruction of the goods for which the bailee is not liable;

(c) previous sale or other disposition of the goods in lawful enforcement of a lien or on warehouseman's lawful termination of storage;

(d) the exercise by a seller of his right to stop delivery pursuant to the provisions of the article on sales (section 28:2–705);

(e) a diversion, reconsignment or other disposition pursuant to the provisions of this article (section 28:7–303) or tariff regulating such right;

(f) release, satisfaction or any other fact affording a personal defense against the claimant;

(g) any other lawful excuse.

(2) A person claiming goods covered by a document of title must satisfy the bailee's lien where the bailee so requests or where the bailee is prohibited by law from delivering the goods until the charges air paid.

(3) Unless the person claiming is one against whom the document confers no right under section 28:7–503(1), he must surrender for cancellation or notation of partial deliveries any outstanding negotiable document covering the goods, and the bailee must cancel the document or conspicuously note the partial delivery thereon or be liable to any person to whom the document is duly negotiated.

(4) "Person entitled under the document" means holder in the case of a negotiable document, or the person to whom delivery is to be made by the terms of or pursuant to written instructions under a non-negotiable document. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 727, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-404. No liability for good faith delivery pursuant to receipt or bill.

A bailee who in good faith including observance of reasonable commercial standards has received goods and delivered or otherwise disposed of them according to the terms of the document of title or pursuant to this article is not liable therefor. This rule applies even though the person from whom he received the goods had no authority to procure the document or to dispose of the goods and even though the person to whom he delivered the goods had no authority to receive them. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 728, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

Part 5.—Warehouse Receipts and Bills of Lading: Negotiation and Transfer

§ 28:7-501. Form of negotiation and requirements of "due negotiation".

(1) A negotiable document of title running to the order of a named person is negotiated by his indorsement and delivery. After his indorsement in blank or to bearer any person can negotiate it by delivery alone.

(2)(a) A negotiable document of title is also negotiated by delivery alone when by its original terms it runs to bearer.

(b) When a document running to the order of a named person is delivered to him the effect is the same as if the document had been negotiated.

(3) Negotiation of a negotiable document of title after it has been indorsed to a specified person requires indorsement by the special indorsee as well as delivery.

(4) A negotiable document of title is "duly negotiated" when it is negotiated in the manner stated in this section to a holder who purchases it in good faith without notice of any defense against or claim to it on the part of any person and for value, unless it is established that the negotiation is not in the regular course of business or financing or involves receiving the document in settlement or payment of a money obligation.

(5) Indorsement of a non-negotiable document neither makes it negotiable nor adds to the transferee's rights.

(6) The naming in a negotiable bill of a person to be notified of the arrival of the goods does not limit the negotiability of the bill nor constitute notice to a purchaser thereof of any interest of such person in the goods. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 728, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7–502. Rights acquired by due negotiation.

(1) Subject to the following section and to the provisions of section 28:7–205 on fungible goods, a holder to whom a negotiable document of title has been duly negotiated acquires thereby:

(a) title to the document;

(b) title to the goods;

(c) all rights accruing under the law of agency or estoppel, including rights to goods delivered to the bailee after the document was issued; and

(d) the direct obligation of the issuer to hold or deliver the goods according to the terms of the document free of any defense or claim by him except those arising under the terms of the document or under this article. In the case of a delivery order the bailee's obligation accrues only upon acceptance and the obligation acquired by the holder is that the issuer and any indorser will procure the acceptance of the bailee.

(2) Subject to the following section, title and rights so acquired are not defeated by any stoppage of the goods represented by the document or by surrender of such goods by the bailee, and are not impaired even though the negotiation or any prior negotiation constituted a breach of duty or even though any person has been deprived of possession of the document by misrepresentation, fraud, accident, mistake, duress, loss, theft or conversion, or even though a previous sale or other transfer of the goods or document has been made to a third person. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 728, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7–503. Document of title to goods defeated in certain cases.

(1) A document of title confers no right in goods against a person who before issuance of the document had a legal interest or a perfected security interest in them and who neither

(a) delivered or entrusted them or any document of title covering them to the bailor or his nominee with actual or apparent authority to ship, store or sell or with power to obtain delivery under this article (section 28:7–403) or with power of disposition under this subtitle (sections 28:2–403 and 28:9–307) or other statute or rule of law; nor

(b) acquiesced in the procurement by the bailor or his nominee of any document of title.

(2) Title to goods based upon an unaccepted delivery order is subject to the rights of anyone to whom a negotiable warehouse receipt or bill of lading covering the goods has been duly negotiated. Such a title may be defeated under the next section to the same extent as the rights of the issuer or a transferee from the issuer.

(3) Title to goods based upon a bill of lading issued to a freight forwarder is subject to the rights of anyone to whom a bill issued by the freight forwarder is duly negotiated; but delivery by the carrier in accordance with part 4 of this article, pursuant to its own bill of lading discharges the carrier's obligation to deliver. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 729, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7–504. Rights acquired in the absence of due negotiation; effect of diversion; seller's stoppage of delivery.

(1) A transferee of a document, whether negotiable or non-negotiable, to whom the document has been delivered but not duly negotiated, acquires the title and rights which his transferor had or had actual authority to convey.

(2) In the case of a non-negotiable document, until but not after the bailee receives notification of the transfer, the rights of the transferee may be defeated

(a) by those creditors of the transferor who could treat the sale as void under section 28:2–402; or

(b) by a buyer from the transferor in ordinary course of business if the bailee has delivered the goods to the buyer or received notification of his rights; or

(c) as against the bailee by good faith dealings of the bailee with the transferor.

(3) A diversion or other change of shipping instructions by the consignor in a non-negotiable bill of lading which causes the bailee not to deliver to the consignee defeats the consignee's title to the goods if they have been delivered to a buyer in ordinary course of business and in any event defeats the consignee's rights against the bailee.

(4) Delivery pursuant to a non-negotiable document may be stopped by a seller under section 28:2–705, and subject to the requirement of due notification there provided. A bailee honoring the seller's instructions is entitled to be indemnified by the seller against any resulting loss or expense. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 729, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7–505. Indorser not a guarantor for other parties.

The indorsement of a document of title issued by a bailee does not make the indorser liable for any default by the bailee or by previous indorsers. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 730, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7–506. Delivery without indorsement: right to compel indorsement.

The transferee of a negotiable document of title has a specifically enforceable right to have his transferor supply any necessary indorsement but the transfer becomes a negotiation only as of the time the indorsement is supplied. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 730, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7–507. Warranties on negotiations or transfer of receipt or bill.

Where a person negotiates or transfers a document of title for value otherwise than as a mere intermediary under the next following section, then unless otherwise agreed he warrants to his immediate purchaser only in addition to any warranty made in selling the goods

(a) that the document is genuine; and

(b) that he has no knowledge of any fact which would impair its validity or worth; and

(c) that his negotiation or transfer is rightful and fully effective with respect to the title to the document and the goods it represents.

§ 28:7-508. Warranties of collecting bank as to documents.

A collecting bank or other intermediary known to be entrusted with documents on behalf of another or with collection of a draft or other claim against delivery of documents warrants by such delivery of the documents only its own good faith and authority. This rule applies even though the intermediary has purchased or made advances against the claim or draft to be collected. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 730, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-509. Receipt or bill: when adequate compliance with commercial contract.

The question whether a document is adequate to fulfill the obligations of a contract for sale or the conditions of a credit is governed by the articles on sales (article 2) and on letters of credit (article 5). (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 730, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

Part 6.—Warehouse Receipts and Bills of Lading: Miscellaneous Provisions

§ 28:7-601. Lost and missing documents.

(1) If a document has been lost, stolen, or destroyed, a court may order delivery of the goods or issuance of a substitute document and the bailee may without liability to any person comply with such order. If the document was negotiable the claimant must post security approved by the court to indemnify any person who may suffer loss as a result of non-surrender of the document. If the document was not negotiable, such security may be required at the discretion of the court. The court may also in its discretion order payment of the bailee's reasonable costs and counsel fees.

(2) A bailee who without court order delivers goods to a person claiming under a missing negotiable document is liable to any person injured thereby, and if the delivery is not in good faith becomes liable for conversion. Delivery in good faith is not conversion if made in accordance with a filed classification or tariff or, where no classification or tariff is filed, if the claimant posts security with the bailee in an amount at least double the value of the goods at the time of posting to indemnify any person injured by the delivery who files a notice of claim within one year after the delivery. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 730, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-602. Attachment of goods covered by a negotiable document.

Except where the document was originally issued upon delivery of the goods by a person who had no power to dispose of them, no lien attaches by virtue of any judicial process to goods in the possession of a bailee for which a negotiable document of title is outstanding unless the document be first surrendered to the bailee or its negotiation enjoined, and the bailee shall not be compelled to deliver the goods pursuant to process until the document is surrendered to him or impounded by the court. One who purchases the document for value without notice of the process or injunction takes free of the lien imposed by judicial process. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 731, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-603. Conflicting claims; interpleader.

If more than one person claims title or possession of the goods, the bailee is excused from delivery until he has had a reasonable time to ascertain the validity of the adverse claims or to bring an action to compel all claimants to interplead and may compel such interpleader, either in defending an action for non-delivery of the goods, or by original action, which ever is appropriate. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 731, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

28:8–405. Lost, destroyed, and stolen securities.
28:8–406. Duty of authenticating trustee, transfer agent or registrar.
28:8–407. Limitation of actions.

PART 1.—SHORT TITLE AND GENERAL MATTERS

§ 28:8–101. Short title.

This article shall be known and may be cited as Uniform Commercial Code—Investment Securities. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 732, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1.)

§ 28:8–102. Definitions and index of definitions.

(1) In this article unless the context otherwise requires

(a) A "security" is an instrument which

(i) is issued in bearer or registered form; and

(ii) is of a type commonly dealt in upon securities exchanges or markets or commonly recognized in any area in which it is issued or dealt in as a medium for investment; and

(iii) is either one of a class or series or by its terms is divisible into a class or series of instruments; and

(iv) evidences a share, participation or other interest in property or in an enterprise or evidences an obligation of the issuer.

(b) A writing which is a security is governed by this article and not by Uniform Commercial Code—Commercial Paper even though it also meets the requirements of that article. This article does not apply to money.

(c) A security is in "registered form" when it specifies a person entitled to the security or to the rights it evidences and when its transfer may be registered upon books maintained for that purpose by or on behalf of an issuer or the security so states.

(d) A security is in "bearer form" when it runs to bearer according to its terms and not by reason of any indorsement.

(2) A "subsequent purchaser" is a person who takes other than by original issue.

(3) A "clearing corporation" is a corporation all of the capital stock of which is held by or for a national securities exchange or association registered under a statute of the United States such as the Securities Exchange Act of 1934.

(4) A "custodian bank" is any bank or trust company which is supervised and examined by state or federal authority having supervision over banks and which is acting as custodian for a clearing corporation.

(5) Other definitions applying to this article or to specified parts thereof and the sections in which they appear are:

"Bona fide purchaser". Section 28:8–302.

"Broker". Section 28:8–303.

"Guarantee of the signature". Section 28:8–402.

"Intermediary bank". Section 28:4–105.

"Issuer". Section 28:8–201.

"Overissue". Section 28:8–104.

(6) In addition article 1 contains general definitions and principles of construction and interpretation applicable throughout this article. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 732, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8–103. Issuer's lien.

A lien upon a security in favor of an issuer thereof is valid against a purchaser only if the right of the issuer to such lien is noted conspicuously on the security. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 733, Pub. L. 88–243, §1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8–104. Effect of overissue; "overissue".

(1) The provisions of this article which validate a security or compel its issue or reissue do not apply to the extent that validation, issue or reissue would result in overissue; but

(a) if an identical security which does not constitute an overissue is reasonably available for purchase, the person entitled to issue or validation may compel the issuer to purchase and deliver such a security to him against surrender of the security, if any, which he holds; or

(b) if a security is not so available for purchase, the person entitled to issue or validation may recover from the issuer the price he or the last purchaser for value paid for it with interest from the date of his demand.

(2) "Overissue" means the issue of securities in excess of the amount which the issuer has corporate power to issue. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 733, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8–105. Securities negotiable; presumptions.

(1) Securities governed by this article are negotiable instruments.

(2) In any action on a security

(a) unless specifically denied in the pleadings, each signature on the security or in a necessary indorsement is admitted;

(b) when the effectiveness of a signature is put in issue the burden of establishing it is on the party claiming under the signature but the signature is presumed to be genuine or authorized;

(c) when signatures are admitted or established production of the instrument entitles a holder to recover on it unless the defendant establishes a defense or a defect going to the validity of the security; and

(d) after it is shown that a defense or defect exists the plaintiff has the burden of establishing that he or some person under whom he claims is a person against whom the defense or defect is ineffective (section 28: 8–202).

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 733, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8–106. Applicability.

The validity of a security and the rights and duties of the issuer with respect to registration of transfer are governed by the law (including the conflict of laws rules) of the jurisdiction of organization of the issuer. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 733, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8–107. Securities deliverable; action for price.

(1) Unless otherwise agreed and subject to any applicable law or regulation respecting short sales, a person obligated to deliver securities may deliver any security of the specified issue in bearer form or registered in the name of the transferee or indorsed to him or in blank.

(2) When the buyer fails to pay the price as it comes due under a contract of sales the seller may recover the price

(a) of securities accepted by the buyer; and

(b) of other securities if efforts at their resale would be unduly burdensome or if there is no readily available market for their resale.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 733, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

PART 2.—ISSUE—ISSUER

§ 28:8–201. "Issuer".

(1) With respect to obligations on or defenses to a security "issuer" includes a person who

(a) places or authorizes the placing of his name on a security (otherwise than as authenticating trustee, registrar, transfer agent or the like) to evidence that it represents a share, participation or other interest in his property or in an enterprise or to evidence his duty to perform an obligation evidenced by the security; or

(b) directly or indirectly creates fractional interests in his rights or property which fractional interests are evidenced by securities; or

(c) becomes responsible for or in place of any person described as an issuer in this section.

(2) With respect to obligations on or defenses to a security a guarantor is an issuer to the extent of his guaranty whether or not his obligation is noted on the security.

(3) With respect to registration of transfer (part 4 of this article) "issuer" means a person on whose behalf transfer books are maintained. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 734, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8–202. Issuer's responsibility and defenses; notice of defect or defense.

(1) Even against a purchaser for value and without notice, the terms of a security include those stated on the security and those made part of the security by reference to another instrument, indenture or document or to a constitution, statute, ordinance, rule, regulation, order or the like to the extent that the terms so referred to do not conflict with the stated terms. Such a reference does not of itself charge a purchaser for value with notice of a defect going to the validity of the security even though the security expressly states that a person accepting it admits such notice.

(2)(a) A security other than one issued by a government or governmental agency or unit even though issued with a defect going to its validity is valid in the hands of a purchaser for value and without notice of the particular defect unless the defect involves a violation of constitutional provisions in which case the security is valid in the hands of a subsequent purchaser for value and without notice of the defect.

(b) The rule of subparagraph (a) applies to an issuer which is a government or governmental agency or unit only if either there has been substantial compliance with the legal requirements governing the issue or the issuer has received a substantial consideration for the issue as a whole or for the particular security and a stated purpose of the issue is one for which the issuer has power to borrow money or issue the security.

(3) Except as otherwise provided in the case of certain unauthorized signatures on issue (section 28:8–205), lack of genuineness of a security is a complete defense even against a purchaser for value and without notice.

(4) All other defenses of the issuer including nondelivery and conditional delivery of the security are ineffective against a purchaser for value who has taken without notice of the particular defense.

(5) Nothing in this section shall be construed to affect the right of a party to a "when, as and if issued" or a "when distributed" contract to cancel the contract in the event of a material change in the character of the security which is the subject of the contract or in the plan or arrangement pursuant to which such security is to be issued or distributed. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 734, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8–203. Staleness as notice of defects or defenses.

(1) After an act or event which creates a right to immediate performance of the principal obligation evidenced by the security or which sets a date on or after which the security is to be presented or surrendered for redemption or exchange, a purchaser is charged with notice of any defect in its issue or defense of the issuer

(a) if the act or event is one requiring the payment of money or the delivery of securities or both on presentation or surrender of the security and such funds or securities are available on the date set for payment or exchange and he takes the security more than one year after that date; and

(b) if the act or event is not covered by paragraph (a) and he takes the security more than two years after the date set for surrender or presentation or the date on which such performance became due.

(2) A call which has been revoked is not within subsection (1). (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 735, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8–204. Effect of issuer's restrictions on transfer.

Unless noted conspicuously on the security a restriction on transfer imposed by the issuer even though otherwise lawful is ineffective except against a person with actual knowledge of it. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 735, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8–205. Effect of unauthorized signature on issue.

An unauthorized signature placed on a security prior to or in the course of issue is ineffective that the signature is effective in favor of a purchaser for value and without notice of the lack of authority if the signing has been done by

(a) an authenticating trustee, registrar, transfer agent or other person entrusted by the issuer with the signing of the security or of similar securities or their immediate preparation for signing; or

(b) an employee of the issuer or of any of the foregoing entrusted with responsible handling of the security.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 735, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-206. Completion or alteration of instrument.

(1) Where a security contains the signatures necessary to its issue or transfer but is incomplete in any other respect

(a) any person may complete it by filling in the blanks as authorized; and

(b) even though the blanks are incorrectly filled in, the security as completed is enforceable by a purchaser who took it for value and without notice of such incorrectness.

(2) A complete security which has been improperly altered even though fraudulently remains enforceable but only according to its original terms. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 735, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-207. Rights of issuer with respect to registered owners.

(1) Prior to due presentment for registration of transfer of a security in registered form the issuer or indenture trustee may treat the registered owner as the person exclusively entitled to vote, to receive notifications and otherwise to exercise all the rights and powers of an owner.

(2) Nothing in this article shall be construed to affect the liability of the registered owner of a security for calls, assessments or the like. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 735, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-208. Effect of signature of authenticating trustee, registrar or transfer agent.

(1) A person placing his signature upon a security as authenticating trustee, registrar, transfer agent or the like warrants to a purchaser for value without notice of the particular defect that

(a) the security is genuine; and

(b) his own participation in the issue of the security is within his capacity and within the scope of the authorization received by him from the issuer; and

(c) he has reasonable grounds to believe that the security is in the form and within the amount the issuer is authorized to issue.

(2) Unless otherwise agreed, a person by so placing his signature does not assume responsibility for the validity of the security in other respects. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 736, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

Part 3.—Purchase

§ 28:8-301. Rights acquired by purchaser; "adverse claim"; title acquired by bona fide purchaser.

(1) Upon delivery of a security the purchaser acquires the rights in the security which his transferor had or had actual authority to convey except that a purchaser who has himself been a party to any fraud or illegality affecting the security or who as a prior holder had notice of an adverse claim cannot improve his position by taking from a later bona fide purchaser. "Adverse claim" includes a claim that a transfer was or would be wrongful or that a particular adverse person is the owner of or has an interest in the security.

(2) A bona fide purchaser in addition to acquiring the rights of a purchaser also acquires the security free of any adverse claim.

(3) A purchaser of a limited interest acquires rights only to the extent of the interest purchased. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 736, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-302. "Bona fide purchaser".

A "bona fide purchaser" is a purchaser for value in good faith and without notice of any adverse claim who takes delivery of a security in bearer form or of one in registered form issued to him or indorsed to him or in blank. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 736, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-303. "Broker".

"Broker" means a person engaged for all or part of his time in the business of buying and selling securities, who in the transaction concerned acts for, or buys a security from or sells a security to a customer. Nothing in this article determines the capacity in which a person acts for purposes of any other statute or rule to which such person is subject. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 736, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-304. Notice to purchaser of adverse claims.

(1) A purchaser (including a broker for the seller or buyer but excluding an intermediary bank) of a security is charged with notice of adverse claims if

(a) the security whether in bearer or registered form has been indorsed "for collection" or "for surrender" or for some other purpose not involving transfer; or

(b) the security is in bearer form and has on it an unambiguous statement that it is the property of a person other than the transferor. The mere writing of a name on a security is not such a statement.

(2) The fact that the purchaser (including a broker for the seller or buyer) has notice that the security is held for a third person or is registered in the name of or indorsed by a fiduciary does not create a duty of inquiry into the rightfulness of the transfer or constitute notice of adverse claims. If, however, the purchaser (excluding an intermediary bank) has knowledge that the proceeds are being used or that the transaction is for the individual benefit of the fiduciary or otherwise in breach of duty, the purchaser is charged with notice of adverse claims. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 736, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-305. Staleness as notice of adverse claims.

An act or event which creates a right to immediate performance of the principal obligation evidenced by the security or which sets a date on or after which the security is to be presented or surrendered for redemption or exchange does not of itself constitute any notice of adverse claims except in the case of a purchase

(a) after one year from any date set for such presentment or surrender for redemption or exchange; or

(b) after six months from any date set for payment of money against presentation or surrender of the security if funds are available for payment on that date.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 737, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-306. Warranties on presentment and transfer.

(1) A person who presents a security for registration of transfer or for payment or exchange warrants to the issuer that he is entitled to the registration, payment or exchange. But a purchaser for value without notice of adverse claims who receives a new, reissued or re-registered security on registration of transfer warrants only that he has no knowlege of any unauthorized signature (section 28:8-311) in a necessary indorsement.

(2) A person by transferring a security to a purchaser for value warrants only that

(a) his transfer is effective and rightful; and

(b) the security is genuine and has not been materially altered; and

(c) he knows no fact which might impair the validity of the security.

(3) Where a security is delivered by an intermediary known to be entrusted with delivery of the security on behalf of another or with collection of a draft or other claim against such delivery, the intermediary by such delivery warrants only his own good faith and authority even though he has purchased or made advances against the claim to be collected against the delivery.

(4) A pledge or other holder for security who redelivers the security received, or after payment and on order of the debtor delivers that security to a third person makes only the warranties of an intermediary under subsection (3).

(5) A broker gives to his customer and to the issuer and a purchaser the warranties provided in this section and has the rights and privileges of a purchaser under this section. The warranties of and in favor of the broker acting as an agent are in addition to applicable warranties given by and in favor of his customer. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 737, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-307. Effect of delivery without indorsement; right to compel indorsement.

Where a security in registered form has been delivered to a purchaser without a necessary indorsement he may become a bona fide purchaser only as of the time the indorsement is supplied, but against the transferor the transfer is complete upon delivery and the purchaser has a specifically enforceable right to have any necessary indorsement supplied. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 737, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-308. Indorsement, how made; special indorsement; indorser not a guarantor; partial assignment.

(1) An indorsement of a security in registered form is made when an appropriate person signs on it or on a separate document an assignment or transfer of the security or a power to assign or transfer it or when the signature of such person is written without more upon the back of the security.

(2) An indorsement may be in blank or special. An indorsement in blank includes an indorsement to bearer. A special indorsement specifies the person to whom the security is to be transferred, or who has power to transfer it. A holder may convert a blank indorsement into a special indorsement.

(3) "An appropriate person" in subsection (1) means

(a) the person specified by the security or by special indorsement to be entitled to the security; or

(b) where the person so specified as described as a fiduciary but is no longer serving in the described capacity,—either that person or his successor; or

(c) where the security or indorsement so specifies more than one person as fiduciaries and one or more are no longer serving in the described capacity,—the remaining fiduciary or fiduciaries, whether or not a successor has been appointed or qualified; or

(d) where the person so specified is an individual and is without capacity to act by virtue of death, incompetence, infancy or otherwise,—his executor, administrator, guardian or like fiduciary; or

(e) where the security or indorsement so specifies more than one person as tenants by the entirety or with right of survivorship and by reason of death all cannot sign,—the survivor or survivors; or

(f) a person having power to sign under applicable law or controlling instrument; or

(g) to the extent that any of the foregoing persons may act through an agent,—his authorized agent.

(4) Unless otherwise agreed the indorser by his indorsement assumes no obligation that the security will be honored by the issuer.

(5) An indorsement purporting to be only of part of a security representing units intended by the issuer to be separately transferable is effective to the extent of the indorsement.

(6) Whether the person signing is appropriate is determined as of the date of signing and an indorsement by such a person does not become unauthorized for the purposes of this article by virtue of any subsequent change of circumstances.

(7) Failure of a fiduciary to comply with a controlling instrument or with the law of the state having jurisdiction of the fiduciary relationship, including any law requiring the fiduciary to obtain court approval of the transfer, does not render his indorsement unauthorized for the purposes of this article. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 738, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-309. Effect of indorsement without delivery.

An indorsement of a security whether special or in blank does not constitute a transfer until delivery of the security on which it appears or if the indorsement is on a separate document until delivery of both the document and the security. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 738, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-310. Indorsement of security in bearer form.

An indorsement of a security in bearer form may give notice of adverse claims (section 28:8-304) but does not otherwise affect any right to registration the holder may possess. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 738, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8–311. Effect of unauthorized indorsement.

Unless the owner has ratified an unauthorized indorsement or is otherwise precluded from asserting its ineffectiveness

(a) he may assert its ineffectiveness against the issuer or any purchaser other than a purchaser for value and without notice of adverse claims who has in good faith received a new, reissued or re-registered security on registration of transfer; and

(b) an issuer who registers the transfer of a security upon the unauthorized indorsement is subject to liability for improper registration (section 28:8–404).

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 739, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8–312. Effect of guaranteeing signature or indorsement.

(1) Any person guaranteeing a signature of an indorser of a security warrants that at the time of signing

(a) the signature was genuine; and

(b) the signer was an appropriate person to indorse (section 28:8–308); and

(c) the signer had legal capacity to sign.

But the guarantor does not otherwise warrant the rightfulness of the particular transfer.

(2) Any person may guarantee an indorsement of a security and by so doing warrants not only the signature (subsection 1) but also the rightfulness of the particular transfer in all respects. But no issuer may require a guarantee of indorsement as a condition to registration of transfer.

(3) The foregoing warranties are made to any person taking or dealing with the security in reliance on the guarantee and the guarantor is liable to such person for any loss resulting from breach of the warranties. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 739, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8–313. When delivery to the purchaser occurs; purchaser's broker as holder.

(1) Delivery to a purchaser occurs when

(a) he or a person designated by him acquires possession of a security; or

(b) his broker acquires possession of a security specially indorsed to or issued in the name of the purchaser; or

(c) his broker sends him confirmation of the purchase and also by book entry or otherwise identifies a specific security in the broker's possession as belonging to the purchaser; or

(d) with respect to an identified security to be delivered while still in the possession of a third person when that person acknowledges that he holds for the purchaser; or

(e) appropriate entries on the books of a clearing corporation are made under section 28:8–320.

(2) The purchaser is the owner of a security held for him by his broker, but is not the holder except as specified in subparagraphs (b), (c) and (e) of subsection (1). Where a security is part of a fungible bulk the purchaser is the owner of a proportionate property interest in the fungible bulk.

(3) Notice of an adverse claim received by the broker or by the purchaser after the broker takes delivery as a holder for value is not effective either as to the broker or as to the purchaser. However, as between the broker and the purchaser the purchaser may demand delivery of an equivalent security as to which no notice of an adverse claim has been received. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 739, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8–314. Duty to deliver, when completed.

(1) Unless otherwise agreed where a sale of a security is made on an exchange or otherwise through brokers

(a) the selling customer fulfills his duty to deliver when he places such a security in the possession of the selling broker or of a person designated by the broker or if requested causes an acknowledgement to be made to the selling broker that it is held for him; and

(b) the selling broker including a correspondent broker acting for a selling customer fulfills his duty to deliver by placing the security or a like security in the possession of the buying broker or a person designated by him or by effecting clearance of the sale in accordance with the rules of the exchange on which the transaction took place.

(2) Except as otherwise provided in this section and unless otherwise agreed, a transferor's duty to deliver a security under a contract of purchase is not fulfilled until he places the security in form to be negotiated by the purchaser in the possession of the purchaser or of a person designated by him or at the purchaser's request causes an acknowledgment to be made to the purchaser that it is held for him. Unless made on an exchange a sale to a broker purchasing for his own account is within this subsection and not within subsection (1). (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 740, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8–315. Action against purchaser based upon wrongful transfer.

(1) Any person against whom the transfer of a security is wrongful for any reason, including his incapacity, may against anyone except a bona fide purchaser reclaim possession of the security or obtain possession of any new security evidencing all or part of the same rights or have damages.

(2) If the transfer is wrongful because of an unauthorized indorsement, the owner may also reclaim or obtain possession of the security or new security even from a bona fide purchaser if the ineffectiveness of the purported indorsement can be asserted against him under the provisions of this article on unauthorized indorsements (section 28:8–311).

(3) The right to obtain or reclaim possession of a security may be specifically enforced and its transfer enjoined and the security impounded pending the litigation. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 740, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8–316. Purchaser's right to requisites for registration of transfer on books.

Unless otherwise agreed the transferor must on due demand supply his purchaser with any proof of his authority to transfer or with any other requisite which may be necessary to obtain registration of the transfer of the security but if the transfer is not for value a transferor need not do so unless the purchaser furnishes the necessary expenses. Failure to comply with a demand made within a reasonable time gives the purchaser the right to reject or rescind the transfer. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 740, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8–317. Attachment or levy upon security.

(1) No attachment or levy upon a security or any share or other interest evidenced thereby which is outstanding shall be valid until the security is actually seized by the officer making the attachment or levy but a security which has been surrendered to the issuer may be attached or levied upon at the source.

(2) A creditor whose debtor is the owner of a security shall be entitled to such aid from courts of appropriate jurisdiction, by injunction or otherwise, in reaching such security or in satisfying the claim by means thereof as is allowed at law or in equity in regard to property which cannot readily be attached or levied upon by ordinary legal process. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 740, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8–318. No conversion by good faith delivery.

An agent or bailee who in good faith (including observance of reasonable commercial standards if he is in the business of buying, selling or otherwise dealing with securities) has received securities and sold, pledged or delivered them according to the instructions of the principal is not liable for conversion or for participation in breach of fiduciary duty although the principal had no right to dispose of them. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 741, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8–319. Statute of frauds.

A contract for the sale of securities is not enforceable by way of action or defense unless

(a) there is some writing signed by the party against whom enforcement is sought or by his authorized agent or broker sufficient to indicate that a contract has been made for sale of a stated quantity of described securities at a defined or stated price; or

(b) delivery of the security has been accepted or payment has been made but the contract is enforceable under this provision only to the extent of such delivery or payment; or

(c) within a reasonable time a writing in confirmation of the sale or purchase and sufficient against the sender under paragraph (a) has been received by the party against whom enforcement is sought and he has failed to send written objection to its contents within ten days after its receipt; or

(d) the party against whom enforcement is sought admits in his pleading, testimony or otherwise in court that a contract was made for sale of a stated quantity of described securities at a defined or stated price.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 741, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8–320. Transfer or pledge within a central depository system.

(1) If a security

(a) is in the custody of a clearing corporation or of a custodian bank or a nominee of either subject to the instructions of the clearing corporation; and

(b) is in bearer form or indorsed in blank by an appropriate person or registered in the name of the clearing corporation or custodian bank or a nominee of either; and

(c) is shown on the account of a transferor or pledgor on the books of the clearing corporation;

then, in addition to other methods, a transfer or pledge of the security or any interest therein may be effected by the making of appropriate entries on the books of the clearing corporation reducing the account of the transferor or pledgor and increasing the account of the transferee or pledgee by the amount of the obligation or the number of shares or rights transferred or pledged.

(2) Under this section entries may be with respect to like securities or interests therein as a part of a fungible bulk and may refer merely to a quantity of a particular security without reference to the name of the registered owner, certificate or bond number or the like and, in appropriate cases, may be on a net basis taking into account other transfers or pledges of the same security.

(3) A transfer or pledge under this section has the effect of a delivery of a security in bearer form or duly indorsed in blank (section 28:8–301) representing the amount of the obligation or the number of shares or rights transferred or pledged. If a pledge or the creation of a security interest is intended, the making of entries has the effect of a taking of delivery by the pledgee or a secured party (sections 28:9–304 and 28:9–305). A transferee or pledgee under this section is a holder.

(4) A transfer or pledge under this section does not constitute a registration of transfer under part 4 of this article.

(5) That entries made on the books of the clearing corporation as provided in subsection (1) are not appropriate does not affect the validity or effect of the entries nor the liabilities or obligations of the clearing corporation to any person adversely affected thereby. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 741, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

Part 4.—Registration

§ 28:8–401. Duty of issuer to register transfer.

(1) Where a security in registered form is presented to the issuer with a request to register transfer, the issuer is under a duty to register the transfer as requested if

(a) the security is indorsed by the appropriate person or persons (section 28:8–308); and

(b) reasonable assurance is given that those indorsements are genuine and effective (section 28:8–402); and

(c) the issuer has no duty to inquire into adverse claims or has discharged any such duty (section 28:8–403); and

(d) any applicable law relating to the collection of taxes has been complied with; and

(e) the transfer is in fact rightful or is to a bona fide purchaser.

(2) Where an issuer is under a duty to register a transfer of a security the issuer is also liable to the person presenting it for registration or his principal for loss resulting from any unreasonable delay in registration or from failure or refusal to register the transfer. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 742, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8–402. Assurance that indorsements are effective.

(1) The issuer may require the following assurance that each necessary indorsement (section 28:8–308) is genuine and effective

(a) in all cases, a guarantee of the signature (subsection (1) of section 28:8–312) of the person indorsing; and

(b) where the indorsement is by an agent, appropriate assurance of authority to sign;

(c) where the indorsement is by a fiduciary, appropriate evidence of appointment or incumbency;

(d) where there is more than one fiduciary, reasonable assurance that all who are required to sign have done so;

(e) where the indorsement is by a person not covered by any of the foregoing, assurance appropriate to the case corresponding as nearly as may be to the foregoing.

(2) A "guarantee of the signature" in subsection (1) means a guarantee signed by or on behalf of a person reasonably believed by the issuer to be responsible. The issuer may adopt standards with respect to responsibility provided such standards are not manifestly unreasonable.

(3) "Appropriate evidence of appointment or incumbency" in subsection (1) means

(a) in the case of a fiduciary appointed or qualified by a court, a certificate issued by or under the direction or supervision of that court or an officer thereof and dated within sixty days before the date of presentation for transfer; or

(b) in any other case, a copy of a document showing the appointment or a certificate issued by or on behalf of a person reasonably believed by the issuer to be responsible or, in the absence of such a document or certificate, other evidence reasonably deemed by the issuer to be appropriate. The issuer may adopt standards with respect to such evidence provided such standards are not manifestly unreasonable. The issuer is not charged with notice of the contents of any document obtained pursuant to this paragraph (b) except to the extent that the contents relate directly to the appointment or incumbency.

(4) The issuer may elect to require reasonable assurance beyond that specified in this section but if it does so and for a purpose other than that specified in subsection 3(b) both requires and obtains a copy of a will, trust, indenture, articles of co-partnership, by-laws or other controlling instrument it is charged with notice of all matters contained therein affecting the transfer. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 742, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8–403. Limited duty of inquiry.

(1) An issuer to whom a security is presented for registration is under a duty to inquire into adverse claims if

(a) a written notification of an adverse claim is received at a time and in a manner which affords the issuer a reasonable opportunity to act on it prior to the issuance of a new, reissued or re-registered security and the notification identifies the claimant, the registered owner and the issue of which the security is a part and provides an address for communications directed to the claimant; or

(b) the issuer is charged with notice of an adverse claim from a controlling instrument which it has elected to require under subsection (4) of section 28:8–402.

(2) The issuer may discharge any duty of inquiry by any reasonable means, including notifying an adverse claimant by registered or certified mail at the address furnished by him or if there be no such address at his residence or regular place of business that the security has been presented for registration of transfer by a named person, and that the transfer will be registered unless within thirty days from the date of mailing the notification, either

(a) an appropriate restraining order, injunction or other process issues from a court of competent jurisdiction; or

(b) an indemnity bond sufficient in the issuer's judgment to protect the issuer and any transfer agent, registrar or other agent of the issuer involved, from any loss which it or they may suffer by complying with the adverse claim is filed with the issuer.

(3) Unless an issuer is charged with notice of an adverse claim from a controlling instrument which it has elected to require under subsection (4) of section 28:8–402 or receives notification of an adverse claim under subsection (1) of this section, where a security presented for registration is indorsed by the appropriate person or persons the issuer is under no duty to inquire into adverse claims. In particular

(a) an issuer registering a security in the name of a person who is a fiduciary or who is described as a fiduciary is not bound to inquire into the existence, extent, or correct description of the fiduciary relationship and thereafter the issuer may assume without inquiry that the newly registered owner continues to be the fiduciary until the issuer receives written notice that the fiduciary is no longer acting as such with respect to the particular security;

(b) an issuer registering transfer on an indorsement by a fiduciary is not bound to inquire whether the transfer is made in compliance with a controlling instrument or with the law of the state having jurisdiction of the fiduciary relationship, including any law requiring the fiduciary to obtain court approval of the transfer; and

(c) the issuer is not charged with notice of the contents of any court record or file or other recorded or unrecorded document even though the document is in its possession and even though the transfer is made on the indorsement of a fiduciary to the fiduciary himself or to his nominee.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 743, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-404. Liability and non-liability for registration.

(1) Except as otherwise provided in any law relating to the collection of taxes, the issuer is not liable to the owner or any other person suffering loss as a result of the registration of a transfer of a security if

(a) there were on or with the security the necessary indorsements (section 28:8-308); and

(b) the issuer had no duty to inquire into adverse claims or has discharged any such duty (section 28:8-403).

(2) Where an issuer has registered a transfer of a security to a person not entitled to it the issuer on demand must deliver a like security to the true owner unless

(a) the registration was pursuant to subsection (1); or

(b) the owner is precluded from asserting any claim for registering the transfer under subsection (1) of the following section; or

(c) such delivery would result in overissue, in which case the issuer's liability is governed by section 28:8-104.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 744, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-405. Lost, destroyed and stolen securities.

(1) Where a security has been lost, apparently destroyed or wrongfully taken and the owner fails to notify the issuer of that fact within a reasonable time after he has notice of it and the issuer registers a transfer of the security before receiving such a notification, the owner is precluded from asserting against the issuer any claim for registering the transfer under the preceding section or any claim to a new security under this section.

(2) Where the owner of a security claims that the security has been lost, destroyed or wrongfully taken, the issuer must issue a new security in place of the original security if the owner

(a) so requests before the issuer has notice that the security has been acquired by a bona fide purchaser; and

(b) files with the issuer a sufficient indemnity bond; and

(c) satisfies any other reasonable requirements imposed by the issuer.

(3) If, after the issue of the new security, a bona fide purchaser of the original security presents it for registration of transfer, the issuer must register the transfer unless registration would result in overissue, in which event the issuer's liability is governed by section 28:8-104. In addition to any rights on the indemnity bond, the issuer may recover the new security from the person to whom it was issued or any person taking under him except a bona fide purchaser. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 744, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-406. Duty of authenticating trustee, transfer agent or registrar.

(1) Where a person acts as authenticating trustee, transfer agent, registrar, or other agent for an issuer in the registration of transfers of its securities or in the issue of new securities or in the cancellation of surrendered securities

(a) he is under a duty to the issuer to exercise good faith and due diligence in performing his functions; and

(b) he has with regard to the particular functions he performs the same obligation to the holder or owner of the security and has the same rights and privileges as the issuer has in regard to those functions.

(2) Notice to an authenticating trustee, transfer agent, registrar or other such agent is notice to the issuer with respect to the functions performed by the agent. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 744, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-407. Limitation of actions.

(1) In the event of registration, either before or after this subtitle becomes effective, of a transfer or purported transfer of a security to a person not entitled to it, no action of any kind, legal or equitable, to compel the issue, reissue or delivery of a like security or to obtain damages or any other relief as a result of or in connection with such registration may be brought, subject to subsection (2), by the true owner or any other person against an issuer, authenticating trustee, transfer agent, registrar, or other agent for an issuer in the registration of transfers of its securities, more than eight years after the date on which such registration to a person not entitled has taken place.

(2) The time limitations in subsections (1) and (3) of this section may not be tolled or suspended for any reason. This section is additional to, and does not prevent or affect the application of, any other statute of limitations as a defense to any action. This section applies to claims or causes of action which have accrued before this subtitle becomes effective as well as to those which accrue after this subtitle becomes effective. This section does not apply to any action against an issuer which at the time of such registration has fewer than fifty persons registered upon books maintained for that purpose as holders of the class and series, if any, of the security so registered to the person not entitled to it.

(3) If the eight year period specified in this section expires prior to one year after the effective date of this subtitle, such period is extended to one year after such effective date. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 745, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

28:9–507. Secured party's liability for failure to comply with this part.

Part 1.—Short Title, Applicability and Definitions

§ 28:9–101. Short title.

This article shall be known and may be cited as Uniform Commercial Code—Secured Transactions. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 746, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9–102. Policy and scope of article.

(1) Except as otherwise provided in section 28:9–103 on multiple state transactions and in section 28:9–104 on excluded transactions, this article applies so far as concerns any personal property and fixtures within the jurisdiction of the District

(a) to any transaction (regardless of its form) which is intended to create a security interest in personal property or fixtures including goods, documents, instruments, general intangibles, chattel paper, accounts or contract rights; and also

(b) to any sale of accounts, contract rights or chattel paper.

(2) This article applies to security interests created by contract including pledge, assignment, chattel mortgage, chattel trust, trust deed, factor's lien, equipment trust, conditional sale, trust receipt, other lien or title retention contract and lease or consignment intended as security. This article does not apply to statutory liens except as provided in section 28:9–310.

(3) The application of this article to a security interest in a secured obligation is not affected by the fact that the obligation is itself secured by a transaction or interest to which this article does not apply. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 746, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9–103. Accounts, contract rights, general intangibles and equipment relating to another jurisdiction; and incoming goods already subject to a security interest.

(1) If the office where the assignor of accounts or contract rights keep his records concerning them is in the District, the validity and perfection of a security interest therein and the possibility and effect of proper filing is governed by this article; otherwise by the law (including the conflict of laws rules) of the jurisdiction where such office is located.

(2) If the chief place of business of a debtor is in the District, this article governs the validity and perfection of a security interest and the possibility and effect of proper filing with regard to general intangibles or with regard to goods of a type which are normally used in more than one jurisdiction (such as automotive equipment, rolling stock, airplanes, road building equipment, commercial harvesting equipment, construction machinery and the like) if such goods are classified as equipment or classified as inventory by reason of their being leased by the debtor to others. Otherwise, the law (including the conflict of laws rules) of the jurisdiction where such chief place of business is located shall govern. If the chief place of business is located in a jurisdiction which does not provide for perfection of the security interest by filing or recording in that jurisdiction, then the security interest may be perfected by filing in the District. For the purpose of determining the validity and perfection of a security interest in an airplane, the chief place of business of a debtor who is a foreign air carrier under the Federal Aviation Act of 1958, as amended, is the designated office of the agent upon whom service of process may be made on behalf of the debtor.

(3) If personal property other than that governed by subsections (1) and (2) is already subject to a security interest when it is brought into the District, the validity of the security interest in the District is to be determined by the law (including the conflict of laws rules) of the jurisdiction where the property was when the security interest attached. However, if the parties to the transaction understood at the time that the security interest attached that the property would be kept in the District and it was brought into the District within 30 days after the security interest attached for purposes other than transportation through the District, then the validity of the security interest in the District is to be determined by the law of the District. If the security interest was already perfected under the law of the jurisdiction where the property was when the security interest attached and before being brought into the District, the security interest continues perfected in the District for four months and also thereafter if within the four month period it is perfected in the District. The security interest may also be perfected in the District after the expiration of the four month period; in such case perfection dates from the time of perfection in the District. If the security interest was not perfected under the law of the jurisdiction where the property was when the security interest attached and before being brought into the District, it may be perfected in the District; in such case perfection dates from the time of perfection in the District.

(4) Notwithstanding subsections (2) and (3), if personal property is covered by a certificate of title issued under a statute of the District or any other jurisdiction which requires indication on a certificate of title of any security interest in the property as a condition of perfection, then the perfection is governed by the law of the jurisdiction which issued the certificate.

(5) Notwithstanding subsection (1) and section 28:9-302, if the office where the assignor of accounts or contracts rights keeps his records concerning them is not located in a jurisdiction which is a part of the United States, its territories or possessions, and the accounts or contract rights are within the jurisdiction of the District or the transaction which creates the security interest otherwise bears an appropriate relation to the District, this article governs the validity and perfection of the security interest and the security interest may only be perfected by notification to the account debtor. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 747, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-104. Transactions excluded from article.

This article does not apply

(a) to a security interest subject to any statute of the United States such as the Ship Mortgage Act, 1920, to the extent that such statute governs the rights of parties to and third parties affected by transactions in particular types of property; or

(b) to a landlord's lien; or

(c) to a lien given by statute or other rule of law for services or materials except as provided in section 28:9-310 on priority of such liens; or

(d) to a transfer of a claim for wages, salary or other compensation of an employee; or

(e) to an equipment trust covering railway rolling stock; or

(f) to a sale of accounts, contract rights or chattel paper as part of a sale of the business out of which they arose, or an assignment of accounts, contract rights or chattel paper which is for the purpose of collection only, or a transfer of a contract right to an assignee who is also to do the performance under the contract; or

(g) to a transfer of an interest or claim in or under any policy of insurance; or

(h) to a right represented by a judgment; or

(i) to any right of set-off; or

(j) except to the extent that provision is made for fixtures in section 28:9-313, to the creation or transfer of an interest in or lien on real estate, including a lease or rents thereunder; or

(k) to a transfer in whole or in part of any of the following: any claim arising out of tort; any deposit, savings, passbook or like account maintained with a bank, savings and loan association, credit union or like organization.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 748, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-105. Definitions and index of definitions.

(1) In this article unless the context otherwise requires:

(a) "Account debtor" means the person who is obligated on an account, chattel paper, contract right or general intangible;

(b) "Chattel paper" means a writing or writings which evidence both a monetary obligation and a security interest in or a lease of specific goods. When a transaction is evidenced both by such a security agreement or a lease and by an instrument or a series of instruments, the group of writings taken together constitutes chattel paper;

(c) "Collateral" means the property subject to a security interest, and includes accounts, contract rights and chattel paper which have been sold;

(d) "Debtor" means the person who owes payment or other performance of the obligation secured, whether or not he owns or has rights in the collateral, and includes the seller of accounts, contract rights or chattel paper. Where the debtor and the owner of the collateral are not the same person, the term "debtor" means the owner of the collateral in any provision of the article dealing with the collateral, the obligor in any provision dealing with the obligation, and may include both where the context so requires;

(e) "Document" means document of title as defined in the general definitions of article 1 (section 28:1–201);

(f) "Goods" includes all things which are movable at the time the security interest attaches or which are fixtures (section 28:9–313), but does not include money, documents, instruments, accounts, chattel paper, general intangibles, contract rights and other things in action. "Goods" also include the unborn young of animals and growing crops;

(g) "Instrument" means a negotiable instrument (defined in section 28:3–104), or a security (defined in section 28:8–102) or any other writing which evidences a right to the payment of money and is not itself a security agreement or lease and is of a type which is in ordinary course of business transferred by delivery with any necessary indorsement or assignment;

(h) "Security agreement" means an agreement which creates or provides for a security interest;

(i) "Secured party" means a lender, seller or other person in whose favor there is a security interest, including a person to whom accounts, contract rights or chattel paper have been sold. When the holders of obligations issued under an indenture of trust, equipment trust agreement or the like are represented by a trustee or other person, the representative is the secured party.

§ 28:9–106. Definitions: "account"; "contract right"; "general intangibles".

"Account" means any right to payment for goods sold or leased or for services rendered which is not evidenced by an instrument or chattel paper. "Contract right" means any right to payment under a contract not yet earned by performance and not evidenced by an instrument or chattel paper. "General intangibles" means any personal property (including things in action) other than goods, accounts, contract rights, chattel paper, documents and instruments. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 750, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9–107. Definitions: "purchase money security interest".

A security interest is a "purchase money security interest" to the extent that it is

(a) taken or retained by the seller of the collateral to secure all or part of its price; or

(b) taken by a person who by making advances or incurring an obligation gives value to enable the debtor to acquire rights in or the use of collateral if such value is in fact so used.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 750, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9–108. When after-acquired collateral not security for antecedent debt.

Where a secured party makes an advance, incurs an obligation, releases a perfected security interest, or otherwise gives new value which is to be secured in whole or in part by after-acquired property his security interest in the after-acquired collateral shall be deemed to be taken for new value and not as security for an antecedent debt if the debtor acquires his rights in such collateral either in the ordinary course of his business or under a contract of purchase made pursuant to the security agreement within a reasonable time after new value is given. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 750, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9–109. Classification of goods; "consumer goods"; "equipment"; "farm products"; "inventory".

Goods are

(1) "consumer goods" if they are used or bought for use primarily for personal, family or household purposes;

(2) "equipment" if they are used or bought for use primarily in business (including farming or a profession) or by a debtor who is a non-profit organization or a governmental subdivision or agency or if the goods are not included in the definitions of inventory, farm products or consumer goods;

(3) "farm products" if they are crops or livestock or supplies used or produced in farming operations or if they are products of crops or livestock in their unmanufactured states (such as ginned cotton, woolclip, maple syrup, milk and eggs), and if they are in the possession of a debtor engaged in raising, fattening, grazing or other farming operations. If goods are farm products they are neither equipment nor inventory;

(4) "inventory" if they are held by a person who holds them for sale or lease or to be furnished under contracts of service or if he has so furnished them, or if they are raw materials, work in process or materials used or consumed in a business. Inventory of a person is not to be classified as his equipment. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 750, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9–110. Sufficiency of description.

For the purposes of this article any description of personal property or real estate is sufficient whether or not it is specific if it reasonably identifies what is described. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 750, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9–111. Applicability of bulk transfer laws.

The creation of a security interest is not a bulk transfer under article 6 (see section 28:6–103). (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 750, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9–112. Where collateral is not owned by debtor.

Unless otherwise agreed, when a secured party knows that collateral is owned by a person who is not the debtor, the owner of the collateral is entitled to receive from the secured party any surplus under section 28:9–502(2) or under section 28:9–504(1), and is not liable for the debt or for any deficiency after resale, and he has the same right as the debtor.

(a) to receive statements under section 28:9–208;

(b) to receive notice of and to object to a secured party's proposal to retain the collateral in satisfaction of the indebtedness under section 28:9–505;

(c) to redeem the collateral under section 28:9–506;

(d) to obtain injunctive or other relief under section 28:9–507(1); and

(e) to recover losses caused to him under section 28:9–208(2).

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 751, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9–113. Security interests arising under article on sales.

A security interest arising solely under the article on sales (article 2) is subject to the provisions of this article except that to the extent that and so long as the debtor does not have or does not lawfully obtain possession of the goods

(a) no security agreement is necessary to make the security interest enforceable; and

(b) no filing is required to perfect the security interest; and

(c) the rights of the secured party on default by the debtor are governed by the article on sales (article 2).

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 751, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

Part 2.—Validity of Security Agreement and Rights of Parties Thereto

§ 28:9–201. General validity of security agreement.

Except as otherwise provided by this title a security agreement is effective according to its terms between the parties, against purchasers of the collateral and against creditors. Nothing in this article validates any charge or practice illegal under any statute or regulation thereunder governing usury, small loans, retail installment sales, or the like, or extends the application of any such statute or regulation to any transaction not otherwise subject thereto. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 751, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9–202. Title to collateral immaterial.

Each provision of this article with regard to rights, obligations and remedies applies whether title to collateral is in the secured party or in the debtor. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 751, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9–203. Enforceability of security interest; proceeds, formal requisites.

(1) Subject to the provisions of section 28:4–208 on the security interest of a collecting bank and section 28:9–113 on a security interest arising under the article on sales, a security interest is not enforceable against the debtor or third parties unless

(a) the collateral is in the possession of the secured party; or

(b) the debtor has signed a security agreement which contains a description of the collateral and in addition, when the security interest covers crops or oil, gas or minerals to be extracted or timber to be cut, a description of the land concerned. In describing collateral, the word "proceeds" is sufficient without further description to cover proceeds of any character.

(2) A transaction, although subject to this article, is also subject to chapter 20 of Title 2, relating to pawnbrokers, chapter 6 of Title 26, relating to money lenders, chapter 7 of Title 40, relating to liens on motor vehicles, and chapter 9 of Title 40, relating to installment sales of motor vehicles, and in the case of conflict between the provisions of this article and any such statute, the provisions of such statute control. Failure to comply with any applicable statute has only the effect which is specified therein. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 751, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9–204. When security interest attaches; after-acquired property; future advances.

(1) A security interest cannot attach until there is agreement (subsection (3) of section 28:1–201) that it attach and value is given and the debtor has rights in the collateral. It attaches as soon as all of the events in the preceding sentence have taken place unless explicit agreement postpones the time of attaching.

(2) For the purposes of this section the debtor has no rights

(a) in crops until they are planted or otherwise become growing crops, in the young of livestock until they are conceived;

(b) in fish until caught, in oil, gas or minerals until they are extracted, in timber until it is cut;

(c) in a contract right until the contract has been made;

(d) in an account until it comes into existence.

(3) Except as provided in subsection (4) a security agreement may provide that collateral, whenever acquired, shall secure all obligations covered by the security agreement.

(4) No security interest attaches under an after-acquired property clause

(a) to crops which become such more than one year after the security agreement is executed except that a security interest in crops which is given in conjunction with a lease or a land purchase or improvement transaction evidenced by a contract, mortgage or deed of trust may if so agreed attach to crops to be grown on the land concerned during the period of such real estate transaction;

(b) to consumer goods other than accessions (section 28:9–314) when given as additional security unless the debtor acquires rights in them within ten days after the secured party gives value.

(5) Obligations covered by a security agreement may include future advances or other value whether or not the advances or value are given pursuant to commitment. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 752, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9–205. Use or disposition of collateral without accounting permissible.

A security interest is not invalid or fraudulent against creditors by reason of liberty in the debtor to use, commingle or dispose of all or part of the collateral (including returned or repossessed goods) or to collect or compromise accounts, contract rights or chattel paper, or to accept the return of goods or make repossessions, or to use, commingle or dispose of proceeds, or by reason of the failure of the secured party to require the debtor to account for proceeds or replace collateral. This section does not relax the requirements of possession where perfection of a security interest depends upon possession of the collateral by the secured party or by a bailee. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 752, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9–206. Agreement not to assert defenses against assignee; modification of sales warranties where security agreement exists.

(1) Subject to any statute or decision which establishes a different rule for buyers or lessees of consumer goods, an agreement by a buyer or lessee that he will not assert against an assignee any claim or defense which he may have against the seller or lessor is enforceable by an assignee who takes his assignment for value, in good faith and without notice of a claim or defense, except as to defenses of a type which may be asserted against a holder in due course of a negotiable instrument under the article on commercial paper (article 3). A buyer who as part of one transaction signs both a negotiable instrument and a security agreement makes such an agreement.

(2) When a seller retains a purchase money security interest in goods the article on sales (article 2) governs the sale and any disclaimer, limitation or modification of the seller's warranties. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 752, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9–207. Rights and duties when collateral is in secured party's possession.

(1) A secured party must use reasonable care in the custody and preservation of collateral in his possession. In the case of an instrument or chattel paper reasonable care includes taking necessary steps to preserve rights against prior parties unless otherwise agreed.

(2) Unless otherwise agreed, when collateral is in the secured party's possession

(a) reasonable expenses (including the cost of any insurance and payment of taxes or other charges) incurred in the custody, preservation, use or operation of the collateral are chargeable to the debtor and are secured by the collateral;

(b) the risk of accidental loss or damage is on the debtor to the extent of any deficiency in any effective insurance coverage;

(c) the secured party may hold as additional security any increase or profits (except money) received from the collateral, but money so received, unless remitted to the debtor, shall be applied in reduction of the secured obligation;

(d) the secured party must keep the collateral identifiable but fungible collateral may be commingled;

(e) the secured party may repledge the collateral upon terms which do not impair the debtor's right to redeem it.

(3) A secured party is liable for any loss caused by his failure to meet any obligation imposed by the preceding subsections but does not lose his security interest.

(4) A secured party may use or operate the collateral for the purpose of preserving the collateral or its value or pursuant to the order of a court of appropriate jurisdiction or, except in the case of consumer goods, in the manner and to the extent provided in the security agreement. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 753, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9–208. Request for statement of account or list of collateral.

(1) A debtor may sign a statement indicating what he believes to be the aggregate amount of unpaid indebtedness as of a specified date and may send it to the secured party with a request that the statement be approved or corrected and returned to the debtor. When the security agreement or any other record kept by the secured party identifies the collateral a debtor may similarly request the secured party to approve or correct a list of the collateral.

(2) The secured party must comply with such a request within two weeks after receipt by sending a written correction or approval. If the secured party claims a security interest in all of a particular type of collateral owned by the debtor he may indicate that fact in his reply and need not approve or correct an itemized list of such collateral. If the secured party without reasonable excuse fails to comply he is liable for any loss caused to the debtor thereby; and if the debtor has properly included in his request a good faith statement of the obligation or a list of the collateral or both the secured party may claim a security interest only as shown in the statement against persons misled by his failure to comply. If he no longer has an interest in the obligation or collateral at the time the request is received he must A successor in interest is not subject to this section until a request is received by him.

(3) A debtor is entitled to such a statement once every six months without charge. The secured party disclose the name and address of any successor in interest known to him and he is liable for any loss caused to the debtor as a result of failure to disclose. may require payment of a charge not exceeding $10 for each additional statement furnished. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 753, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

PART 3.—RIGHTS OF THIRD PARTIES; PERFECTED AND UNPERFECTED SECURITY INTERESTS; RULES OF PRIORITY

§ 28:9–301. Persons who take priority over unperfected security interests; "lien creditor".

(1) Except as otherwise provided in subsection (2), an unperfected security interest is subordinate to the rights of

(a) persons entitled to priority under section 28:9–312;

(b) a person who becomes a lien creditor without knowledge of the security interest and before it is perfected;

(c) in the case of goods, instruments, documents, and chattel paper, a person who is not a secured party and who is a transferee in bulk or other buyer not in ordinary course of business to the extent that he gives value and receives delivery of the collateral without knowledge of the security interest and before it is perfected;

(d) in the case of accounts, contract rights, and general intangibles, a person who is not a secured party and who is a transferee to the extent that he gives value without knowledge of the security interest and before it is perfected.

(2) If the secured party files with respect to a purchase money security interest before or within ten days after the collateral comes into possession of the debtor, he takes priority over the rights of a transferee in bulk or of a lien creditor which arise between the time the security interest attaches and the time of filing.

(3) A "lien creditor" means a creditor who has acquired a lien on the property involved by attachment, levy or the like and includes an assignee for benefit of creditors from the time of assignment, and a trustee in bankruptcy from the date of the filing of the petition or a receiver in equity from the time of appointment. Unless all the creditors represented had knowledge of the security interest such a representative of creditors is a lien creditor without knowledge even though he personally has knowledge of the security interest. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 754, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9–302. When filing is required to perfect security interest; security interests to which filing provisions of this article do not apply.

(1) A financing statement must be filed to perfect all security interests except the following:

(a) a security interest in collateral in possession of the secured party under section 28:9–305;

(b) a security interest temporarily perfected in instruments or documents without delivery under section 28:9–304 or in proceeds for a 10 day period under section 28:9–306;

(c) a purchase money security interest in farm equipment having a purchase price not in excess of $2,500; but filing is required for a fixture under section 28:9–313 or for a motor vehicle required to be licensed;

(d) a purchase money security interest in consumer goods; but filing is required for a fixture under section 28:9–313 or for a motor vehicle required to be licensed;

(e) an assignment of accounts or contract rights which does not alone or in conjunction with other assignments to the same assignee transfer a significant part of the outstanding accounts or contract rights of the assignor;

(f) a security interest of a collecting bank (section 28:4–208) or arising under the article on sales (see section 28:9–113) or covered in subsection (3) of this section.

(2) If a secured party assigns a perfected security interest, no filing under this article is required in order to continue the perfected status of the security interest against creditors of and transferees from the original debtor.

(3) The filing provisions of this article do not apply to a security interest properly subject to a statute

(a) of the United States which provides for a national registration or filing of all security interests in such property; or

(b) of the United States pertaining to the District which provides for central filing of security interests in a motor vehicle or trailer which is not inventory held for sale for which a certificate of title is required to be issued under the provisions of chapter 7 of Title 40.

(4) A security interest in property covered by a statute described in subsection (3) can be perfected only by registration or filing under that statute or by indication of the security interest on a certificate of title or a duplicate thereof by a public official. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 754, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9–303. When security interest is perfected; continuity of perfection.

(1) A security interest is perfected when it has attached and when all of the applicable steps required for perfection have been taken. Such steps are specified in sections 28:9–302, 28:9–304, 28:9–305, and 28:9–306. If such steps are taken before the security interest attaches, it is perfected at the time when it attaches.

(2) If a security interest is originally perfected in any way permitted under this article and is subsequently perfected in some other way under this article, without an intermediate period when it was unperfected, the security interest shall be deemed to be perfected continuously for the purposes of this article. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 755, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9–304. Perfection of security interest in instruments, documents, and goods covered by documents; perfection by permissive filing; temporary perfection without filing or transfer of possession.

(1) A security interest in chattel paper or negotiable documents may be perfected by filing. A security interest in instruments (other than instruments which constitute part of chattel paper) can be perfected only by the secured party's taking possession, except as provided in subsections (4) and (5).

(2) During the period that goods are in the possession of the issuer of a negotiable document therefor, a security interest in the goods is perfected by perfecting a security interest in the document, and any security interest in the goods otherwise perfected during such period is subject thereto.

(3) A security interest in goods in the possession of a bailee other than one who has issued a negotiable document therefor is perfected by issuance of a document in the name of the secured party or by the bailee's receipt of notification of the secured party's interest or by filing as to the goods.

(4) A security interest in instruments or negotiable documents is perfected without filing or the taking of possession for a period of 21 days from the time it attaches to the extent that it arises for new value given under a written security agreement.

(5) A security interest remains perfected for a period of 21 days without filing where a secured party having a perfected security interest in an instrument, a negotiable document or goods in possession of a bailee other than one who has issued a negotiable document therefor

(a) makes available to the debtor the goods or documents representing the goods for the purpose of ultimate sale or exchange or for the purpose of loading, unloading, storing, shipping, transshipping, manufacturing, processing or otherwise dealing with them in a manner preliminary to their sale or exchange; or

(b) delivers the instrument to the debtor for the purpose of ultimate sale or exchange or of presentation, collection, renewal or registration of transfer.

(6) After the 21 day period in subsections (4) and (5) perfection depends upon compliance with applicable provisions of this article. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 755, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9–305. When possession by secured party perfects security interest without filing.

A security interest in letters of credit and advices of credit (subsection (2)(a) of section 28:5–116), goods, instruments, negotiable documents or chattel paper may be perfected by the secured party's taking possession of the collateral. If such collateral other than goods covered by a negotiable document is held by a bailee, the secured party is deemed to have possession from the time the bailee receives notification of the secured party's interest. A security interest is perfected by possession from the time possession is taken without relation back and continues only so long as possession is retained, unless otherwise specified in this article. The security interest may be otherwise perfected as provided in this article before or after the period of possession by the secured party. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 756, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9–306. "Proceeds"; secured party's rights on disposition of collateral.

(1) "Proceeds" includes whatever is received when collateral or proceeds is sold, exchanged, collected or otherwise disposed of. The term also includes the account arising when the right to payment is earned under a contract right. Money, checks and the like are "cash proceeds" All other proceeds are "non-cash proceeds".

(2) Except where this article otherwise provides, a security interest continues in collateral notwithstanding sale, exchange or other disposition thereof by the debtor unless his action was authorized by the secured party in the security agreement or otherwise, and also continues in any identifiable proceeds including collections received by the debtor.

(3) The security interest in proceeds is a continuously perfected security interest if the interest in the original collateral was perfected but it ceases to be a perfected security interest and becomes unperfected ten days after receipt of the proceeds by the debtor unless

(a) a filed financing statement covering the original collateral also covers proceeds; or

(b) the security interest in the proceeds is perfected before the expiration of the ten day period.

(4) In the event of insolvency proceedings instituted by or against a debtor, a secured party with a perfected security interest in proceeds has a perfected security interest.

(a) in identifiable non-cash proceeds;

(b) in identifiable cash proceeds in the form of money which is not commingled with other money or deposited in a bank account prior to the insolvency proceedings;

(c) in identifiable cash proceeds in the form of checks and the like which are not deposited in a bank account prior to the insolvency proceedings; and

(d) in all cash and bank accounts of the debtor, if other cash proceeds have been commingled or deposited in a bank account, but the perfected security interest under this paragraph (d) is

(i) subject to any right of set-off; and

(ii) limited to an amount not greater than the amount of any cash proceeds received by the debtor within ten days before the institution of the insolvency proceedings and commingled or deposited in a bank account prior to the insolvency proceedings less the amount of cash proceeds received by the debtor and paid over to the secured party during the ten day period.

(5) If a sale of goods results in an account or chattel paper which is transferred by the seller to a secured party, and if the goods are returned to or are repossessed by the seller or the secured party, the following rules determine priorities:

(a) If the goods were collateral at the time of sale for an indebtedness of the seller which is still unpaid, the original security interest attaches again to the goods and continues as a perfected security interest if it was perfected at the time when the goods were sold. If the security interest was originally perfected by a filing which is still effective, nothing further is required to continue the perfected status; in any other case, the secured party must take possession of the returned or repossessed goods or must file.

(b) An unpaid transferee of the chattel paper has a security interest in the goods against the transferor. Such security interest is prior to a security interest asserted under paragraph (a) to the extent that the transferee of the chattel paper was entitled to priority under section 28.9–308.

(c) An unpaid transferee of the account has a security interest in the goods against the transferor. Such security interest is subordinate to a security interest asserted under paragraph (a).

(d) A security interest of an unpaid transferee asserted under paragraph (b) or (c) must be perfected for protection against creditors of the transferor and purchasers of the returned or repossessed goods.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 756, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9–307. Protection of buyers of goods.

(1) A buyer in ordinary course of business (subsection (9) of section 28:1–201) other than a person buying farm products from a person engaged in farming operations takes free of a security interest created by his seller even though the security interest is perfected and even though the buyer knows of its existence.

(2) In the case of consumer goods and in the case of farm equipment having an original purchase price not in excess of $2,500 (other than fixtures, see section 28:9–313), a buyer takes free of a security interest even though perfected if he buys without knowledge of the security interest, for value and for his own personal, family or household purposes or his own farming operations unless prior to the purchase the secured party has filed a financing statement covering such goods. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 757, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9–308. Purchase of chattel paper and non-negotiable instruments.

A purchaser of chattel paper or a non-negotiable instrument who gives new value and takes possession of it in the ordinary course of his business and without knowledge that the specific paper or instrument is subject to a security interest has priority over a security interest which is perfected under section 28:9–304 (permissive filing and temporary perfection). A purchaser of chattel paper who gives new value and takes possession of it in the ordinary course of his business has priority over a security interest in chattel paper which is claimed merely as proceeds of inventory subject to a security interest (section 28:9–306), even though he knows that the specific paper is subject to the security interest. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 758, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9–309. Protection of purchasers of instruments and documents.

Nothing in this article limits the rights of a holder in due course of a negotiable instrument (section 28:3–302) or a holder to whom a negotiable document of title has been duly negotiated (section 28:7–501) or a bona fide purchased of a security (section 28:8–301) and such holders or purchasers take priority over an earlier security interest even though perfected. Filing under this article does not constitute notice of the security interest to such holders or purchasers. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 758, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9–310. Priority of certain liens arising by operation of law.

When a person in the ordinary course of his business furnishes services or materials with respect to goods subject to a security interest, a lien upon goods in the possession of such person given by statute or rule of law for such materials or services takes priority over a perfected security interest unless the lien is statutory and the statute expressly provides otherwise. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 758, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9–311. Alienability of debtor's rights: judicial process.

The debtor's rights in collateral may be voluntarily or involuntarily transferred (by way of sale, creation of a security interest, attachment, levy, garnishment or other judicial process) notwithstanding a provision in the security agreement prohibiting any transfer or making the transfer constitute a default. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 758, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9–312. Priorities among conflicting security interests in the same collateral.

(1) The rules of priority stated in the following sections shall govern where applicable: section 28:4–208 with respect to the security interest of collecting banks in items being collected, accompanying documents and proceeds; section 28:9–301 on certain priorities; section 28:9–304 on goods covered by documents; section 28:9–306 on proceeds and repossessions; section 28:9–307 on buyers of goods; section 28:9–308 on possessory against non-possessory interests in chattel paper or non-negotiable instruments; section 28:9–309 on security interests in negotiable instruments, documents or securities; section 28:9–310 on priorities between perfected security interests and liens by operation of law; section 28:9–313 on security interests in fixtures as against interests in real estate; section 28:9–314 on security interests in accessions as against interest in goods; section 28:9–315 on conflicting security interests where goods lose their identity or become part of a product; and section 28:9–316 on contractual subordination.

(2) A perfected security interest in crops for new value given to enable the debtor to produce the crops during the production season and given not more than three months before the crops become growing crops by planting or otherwise takes priority over an earlier perfected security interest to the extent that such earlier interest secures obligations due more than six months before the crops become growing crops by planting or otherwise, even though the person giving new value had knowledge of the earlier security interest.

(3) A purchase money security interest in inventory collateral has priority over a conflicting security interest in the same collateral if

(a) the purchase money security interest is perfected at the time the debtor receives possession of the collateral; and

(b) any secured party whose security interest is known to the holder of the purchase money security interest or who, prior to the date of the filing made by the holder of the purchase money security interest, had filed a financing statement covering the same items or type of inventory, has received notification of the purchase money security interest before the debtor receives possession of the collateral covered by the purchase money security interest; and

(c) such notification states that the person giving the notice has or expects to acquire a purchase money security interest in inventory of the debtor, describing such inventory by item or type.

(4) A purchase money security interest in collateral other than inventory has priority over a conflicting security interest in the same collateral if the purchase money security interest is perfected at the time the debtor receives possession of the collateral or within ten days thereafter.

(5) In all cases not governed by other rules stated in this section (including cases of purchase money security interests which do not qualify for the special priorities set forth in subsections (3) and (4) of this section), priority between conflicting security interests in the same collateral shall be determined as follows:

(a) in the order of filing if both are perfected by filing, regardless of which security interest attached first under section 28:9–204(1) and whether it attached before or after filing;

(b) in the order of perfection unless both are perfected by filing, regardless of which security interest attached first under section 28:9–204(1) and, in the case of a filed security interest, whether it attached before or after filing; and

(c) in the order of attachment under section 28:9–204(1) so long as neither is perfected.

(6) For the purpose of the priority rules of the immediately preceding subsection, a continuously perfected security interest shall be treated at all times as if perfected by filing if it was originally so perfected and it shall be treated at all times as if perfected otherwise than by filing if it was originally perfected otherwise than by filing. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 758, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9–313. Priority of security interests in fixtures.

(1) The rules of this section do not apply to goods incorporated into a structure in the manner of lumber, bricks, tile, cement, glass, metal work and the like and no security interest in them exists under this article unless the structure remains personal property under applicable law. The law of the District other than this subtitle determines whether and when other goods becomes fixtures. This subtitle does not prevent creation of an encumbrance upon fixtures or real estate pursuant to the law applicable to real estate.

(2) A security interest which attaches to goods before they become fixtures takes priority as to the goods over the claims of all persons who have an interest in the real estate except as stated in subsection (4).

(3) A security interest which attaches to goods after they become fixtures is valid against all persons subsequently acquiring interests in the real estate except as stated in subsection (4) but is invalid against any person with an interest in the real estate at the time the security interest attaches to the goods who has not in writing consented to the security interests or disclaimed an interest in the goods as fixtures.

(4) The security interests described in subsections (2) and (3) do not take priority over

(a) a subsequent purchaser for value of any interest in the real estate; or

(b) a creditor with a lien on the real estate subsequently obtained by judicial proceedings; or

(c) a creditor with a prior encumbrance of record on the real estate to the extent that he makes subsequent advances

if the subsequent purchase is made, the lien by judicial proceedings is obtained, or the subsequent advance under the prior encumbrance is made or contracted for without knowledge of the security interest and before it is perfected. A purchaser of the real estate at a foreclosure sale other than an encumbrancer purchasing at his own foreclosure sale is a subsequent purchaser within this section.

(5) When under subsections (2) or (3) and (4) a secured party has priority over the claims of all persons who have interests in the real estate, he may, on default, subject to the provisions of part 5, remove his collateral from the real estate but he must reimburse any encumbrancer or owner of the real estate who is not the debtor and who has not otherwise agreed for the cost of repair of any physical injury, but not for any diminution in value of the real estate caused by the absence of the goods removed or by any necessity for replacing them. A person entitled to reimbursement may refuse permission to remove until the secured party gives adequate security for the performance of this obligation. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 759, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9–314. Accessions.

(1) A security interest in goods which attaches before they are installed in or affixed to other goods taxes priority as to the goods installed or affixed (called in this section "accessions") over the claims of all persons to the whole except as stated in subsection (3) and subject to section 28:9–315(1).

(2) A security interest which attaches to goods after they become part of a whole is valid against all persons subsequently acquiring interests in the whole except as stated in subsection (3) but is invalid against any person with an interest in the whole at the time the security interest attaches to the goods who has not in writing consented to the security interest or disclaimed an interest in the goods as part of the whole.

(3) The security interests described in subsections (1) and (2) do not take priority over

(a) a subsequent purchaser for value of any interest in the whole; or

(b) a creditor with a lien on the whole subsequently obtained by judicial proceedings; or

(c) a creditor with a prior perfected security interest in the whole to the extent that he makes subsequent advances if the subsequent purchase is made, the lien by judicial proceedings obtained or the subsequent advance under the prior perfected security interest is made or contracted for without knowledge of the security interest and before it is perfected. A purchaser of the whole at a foreclosure sale other than the holder of a perfected security interest purchasing at his own foreclosure sale is a subsequent purchaser within this section.

(4) When under subsections (1) or (2) and (3) a secured party has an interest in accessions which has priority over the claims of all persons who have interests in the whole, he may on default subject to the provisions of part 5 remove his collateral from the whole but he must reimburse any encumbrancer or owner of the whole who is not the debtor and who has not otherwise agreed for the cost of repair of any physical injury but not for any diminution in value of the whole caused by the absence of the goods removed or by any necessity for replacing them. A person entitled to reimbursement may refuse permission to remove until the secured party gives adequate security for the performance of this obligation. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 760, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9–315. Priority when goods are commingled or processed.

(1) If a security interest in goods was perfected and subsequently the goods or a part thereof have become part of a product or mass, the security interest continues in the productor mass if

(a) the goods are so manufactured, processed, assembled, or commingled that their identity is lost in the product or mass; or

(b) a financing statement covering the original goods also covers the product into which the goods have been manufactured, processed or assembled.

In a case to which paragraph (b) applies, no separate security interest in that part of the original goods which has been manufactured, processed or assembled into the product may be claimed under section 28:9–314.

(2) When under subsection (1) more than one security interest attaches to the product or mass, they rank equally according to the ratio that the cost of the goods to which each interest originally attached bears to the cost of the total product or mass. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 761, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9–316. Priority subject to subordination.

Nothing in this article prevents subordination by agreement by any person entitled to priority. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 761, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9–317. Secured party not obligated on contract of debtor.

The mere existence of a security interest or authority given to the debtor to dispose of or use collateral does not impose contract or tort liability upon the secured party for the debtor's acts or omissions. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 761, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9–318. Defenses against assignee; modification of contract after notification of assignment; term prohibiting assignment ineffective; identification and proof of assignment.

(1) Unless an account debtor has made an enforceable agreement not to assert defenses or claims arising out of a sale as provided in section 28:9–206 the rights of an assignee are subject to

(a) all the terms of the contract between the account debtor and assignor and any defense or claim arising therefrom; and

(b) any other defense or claim of the account debtor against the assignor which accrues before the account debtor receives notification of the assignment.

(2) So far as the right to payment under an assigned contract right has not already become an account, and notwithstanding notification of the assignment, any modification of or substitution for the contract made in good faith and in accordance with reasonable commercial standards is effective against an assignee unless the account debtor has otherwise agreed but the assignee acquires corresponding rights under the modified or substituted contract. The assignment may provide that such modification or substitution is a breach by the assignor.

(3) The account debtor is authorized to pay the assignor until the account debtor receives notification that the account has been assigned and that payment is to be made to the assignee. A notification which does not reasonably identify the rights assigned is ineffective. If requested by the account debtor, the assignee must seasonably furnish reasonable proof that the assignment has been made and unless he does so the account debtor may pay the assignor.

(4) A term in any contract between an account debtor and an assignor which prohibits assignment of an account or contract right to which they are parties is ineffective. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 761, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

Part 4.—Filing

§ 28:9–401. Place of filing; erroneous filing; removal of collateral.

(1) The proper place to file in order to perfect a security interest is, in all cases, in the office of the Recorder of Deeds of the District. In this article, "filing officer" means said Recorder.

(2) A filing which is made in good faith in an improper place is nevertheless effective with regard to any collateral as to which the filing complied with the requirements of this article and is also effective with regard to collateral covered by the financing statement against any person who has knowledge of the contents of such financing statement.

(3) A filing which is made in the proper place continues effective even though the debtor's residence or place of business or the location of the collateral or its use, whichever controlled the original filing, is thereafter changed.

(4) If collateral is brought into the District from another jurisdiction, the rules stated in section 28:9–103 determine whether filing is necessary in the District. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 762, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9–402. Formal requisites of financing statement; amendments.

(1) A financing statement is sufficient if it is signed by the debtor and the secured party, gives an address of the secured party from which information concerning the security interest may be obtained, gives a mailing address of the debtor and contains a statement indicating the types, or describing the items, of collateral. A financing statement may be filed before a security agreement is made or a security interest otherwise attaches. When the financing statement covers crops growing or to be grown or goods which are or are to become fixtures, the statement must also contain a description of the real estate concerned. A copy of the security agreement is sufficient as a financing statement if it contains the above information and is signed by both parties.

(2) A financing statement which otherwise complies with subsection (1) is sufficient although it is signed only by the secured party when it is filed to perfect a security interest in

(a) collateral already subject to a security interest in another jurisdiction when it is brought into the District. Such a financing statement must state that the collateral was brought into the District under such circumstances.

(b) proceeds under section 28:9-306 if the security interest in the original collateral was perfected. Such a financing statement must describe the original collateral.

(3) A form substantially as follows is sufficient to comply with subsection (1):

Name of debtor (or assignor)_____
Address_____
Name of secured party (or assignee)_____
Address_____

1. This financing statement covers the following (or items) of property:

(Describe)_____

2. (If collateral is crops) The above described crops are growing or are to be grown on:

(Describe Real Estate)_____

3. (If collateral is goods which are or are to become fixtures) The above described goods are affixed or to be affixed to:

(Describe Real Estate)_____

4. (If proceeds or products of collateral are claimed) Proceeds—Products of the collateral are also covered.

Signature of Debtor (or Assignor)_____
Signature of Secured Party (or Assignee)_____

(4) The term "financing statement" as used in this article means the original financing statement and any amendments but if any amendment adds collateral, it is effective as to the added collateral only from the filing date of the amendment.

(5) A financing statement substantially complying with the requirements of this section is effective even though it contains minor errors which are not seriously misleading. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 762, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-403. What constitutes filing; duration of filing; effect of lapsed filing; duties of filing officer.

(1) Presentation for filing of a financing statement and tender of the filing fee or acceptance of the statement by the filing officer constitutes filing under this article.

(2) A filed financing statement which states a maturity date of the obligation secured of five years or less is effective until such maturity date and thereafter for a period of sixty days. Any other filed financing statement is effective for a period of five years from the date of filing. The effectiveness of a filed financing statement lapses on the expiration of such sixty day period after a stated maturity date or on the expiration of such five year period, as the case may be, unless a continuation statement is filed prior to the lapse. Upon such lapse the security interest becomes unperfected. A filed financing statement which states that the obligation secured is payable on demand is effective for five years from the date of filing.

(3) A continuation statement may be filed by the secured party (i) within six months before and sixty days after a stated maturity date of five years or less, and (ii) otherwise within six months prior to the expiration of the five year period specified in subsection (2). Any such continuation statement must be signed by the secured party, identify the original statement by file number and state that the original statement is still effective. Upon timely filing of the continuation statement, the effectiveness of the original statement is continued for five years after the last date to which the filing was effective whereupon it lapses in the same manner as provided in subsection (2) unless another continuation statement is filed prior to such lapse. Succeeding continuation statements may be filed in the same manner to continue the effectiveness of the original statement. Unless a statute on disposition of public records provides otherwise, the filing officer may remove a lapsed statement from the files and destroy it.

(4) A filing officer shall mark each statement with a consecutive file number and with the date and hour of filing and shall hold the statement for public inspection. In addition the filing officer shall index the statements according to the name of the debtor and shall note in the index the file number and the address of the debtor given in the statement.

(5) The uniform fee for filing, indexing and furnishing filing data for an original or a continuation statement shall be $2.00. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 763, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-404. Termination statement.

(1) Whenever there is no outstanding secured obligation and no commitment to make advances, incur obligations or otherwise give value, the secured party must on written demand by the debtor send the debtor a statement that he no longer claims a security interest under the financing statement, which shall be identified by file number. A termination statement signed by a person other than the secured party of record must include or be accompanied by the assignment or a statement by the secured party of record that he has assigned the security interest to the signer of the termination statement. The uniform fee for filing and indexing such an assignment or statement thereof shall be $2.00. If the affected secured party fails to send such a termination statement within ten days after proper demand therefor he shall be liable to the debtor for one hundred dollars, and in addition for any loss caused to the debtor by such failure.

(2) On presentation to the filing officer of such a termination statement he must note it in the index. The filing officer shall remove from the files, mark "terminated" and send or deliver to the secured party the financing statement and any continuation statement, statement of assignment or statement of release pertaining thereto.

(3) The uniform fee for filing and indexing a termination statement including sending or delivering the financing statement shall be $2.00. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 764, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-405. Assignment of security interest; duties of filing officer; fees.

(1) A financing statement may disclose an assignment of a security interest in the collateral described in the statement by indication in the statement of the name and address of the assignee or by an assignment itself or a copy thereof on the face or back of the statement. Either the original secured party or the assignee may sign this statement as the secured party. On presentation to the filing officer of such a financing statement the filing officer shall mark the same as provided in section 28:9-403(4). The uniform fee for filing, indexing and furnishing filing data for a financing statement so indicating an assignment shall be $2.00.

(2) A secured party may assign of record all or a part of his rights under a financing statement by the filing of a separate written statement of assignment signed by the secured party of record and setting forth the name of the secured party of record and the debtor, the file number and the date of filing of the financing statement and the name and address of the assignee and containing a description of the collateral assigned. A copy of the assignment is sufficient as a separate statement if it complies with the preceding sentence. On presentation to the filing officer of such a separate statement, the filing officer shall mark such separate statement with the date and hour of the filing. He shall note the assignment on the index of the financing statement. The uniform fee for filing, indexing and furnishing filing data about such a separate statement of assignment shall be $2.00.

(3) After the disclosure of filing of an assignment under this section, the assignee is the secured party of record. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 764, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-406. Release of collateral; duties of filing officer; fees.

A secured party of record may by his signed statement release all or a part of any collateral described in a filed financing statement. The statement of release is sufficient if it contains a description of the collateral being released, the name and address of the debtor, the name and address of the secured party, and the file number of the financing statement. Upon presentation of such a statement to the filing officer he shall attach the statement of release to the instrument to which it relates and shall enter on the released instrument and on the index record thereof the word "released", the date of filing of the statement of release, and a facsimile of his signature. The uniform fee for filing and noting such a statement of release shall be $2.00. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 765, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-407. Information from filing officer.

(1) If the person filing any financing statement, termination statement, statement of assignment, or statement of release, furnishes the filing officer a copy thereof, the filing officer shall upon request note upon the copy the file number and date and hour of the filing of the original and deliver or send the copy to such person.

(2) Upon request of any person, the filing officer shall issue his certificate showing whether there is on file on the date and hour stated therein, any presently effective financing statement naming a particular debtor and any statement of assignment thereof and if there is, giving the date and hour of filing of each such statement and the names and addresses of each secured party therein. The uniform fee for such a certificate shall be $1.00 plus $0.50 for each financing statement and for each statement of assignment reported therein. Upon request the filing officer shall furnish a copy of any filed financing, continuation or termination statement or statement of assignment or release for a uniform fee of $3.00 for the first two pages or less, and $1.00 for each additional page, plus $0.50 for certification. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 765, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

PART 5.—DEFAULT

§ 28:9-501. Default; procedure when security agreement covers both real and personal property.

(1) When a debtor is in default under a security agreement, a secured party has the rights and remedies provided in this part and except as limited by subsection (3) those provided in the security agreement. He may reduce his claim to judgment, foreclose or otherwise enforce the security interest by any available judicial procedure. If the collateral is documents the secured party may proceed either as to the documents or as to the goods covered thereby. A secured party in possession has the rights, remedies and duties provided in section 28:9–207. The rights and remedies referred to in this subsection are cumulative.

(2) After default, the debtor has the rights and remedies provided in this part, those provided in the security agreement and those provided in section 28:9–207.

(3) To the extent that they give rights to the debtor and impose duties on the secured party, the rules stated in the subsections referred to below may not be waived or varied except as provided with respect to compulsory disposition of collateral (subsection (1) of section 28:9–505) and with respect to redemption of collateral (section 28:9–506) but the parties may by agreement determine the standards by which the fulfillment of these rights and duties is to be measured if such standards are not manifestly unreasonable:

(a) subsection (2) of section 28:9–502 and subsection (2) of section 28:9–504 insofar as they require accounting for surplus proceeds of collateral;

(b) subsection (3) of section 28:9–504 and subsection (1) of section 28:9–505 which deal with disposition of collateral;

(c) subsection (2) of section 28:9–505 which deals with acceptance of collateral as discharge of obligation;

(d) section 28:9–506 which deals with redemption of collateral; and

(e) subsection (1) of section 28:9–507 which deals with the secured party's liability for failure to comply with this part.

(4) If the security agreement covers both real and personal property, the secured party may proceed under this part as to the personal property or he may proceed as to both the real and the personal property in accordance with his rights and remedies in respect of the real property in which case the provisions of this part do not apply.

(5) When a secured party has reduced his claim to judgment the lien of any levy which may be made upon his collateral by virtue of any execution based upon the judgment shall relate back to the date of the perfection of the security interest in such collateral. A judicial sale, pursuant to such execution, is a foreclosure of the security interest by judicial procedure within the meaning of this section, and the secured party may purchase at the sale and thereafter hold the collateral free of any other requirements of this article. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 765, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9–502. Collection rights of secured party.

(1) When so agreed and in any event on default the secured party is entitled to notify an account debtor or the obligor on an instrument to make payment to him whether or not the assignor was theretofore making collections on the collateral, and also to take control of any proceeds to which he is entitled under section 28:9–306.

(2) A secured party who by agreement is entitled to charge back uncollected collateral or otherwise to full or limited recourse against the debtor and who undertakes to collect from the account debtors or obligors must proceed in a commercially reasonable manner and may deduct his reasonable expenses of realization from the collections. If the security agreement secures an indebtedness, the secured party must account to the debtor for any surplus, and unless otherwise agreed, the debtor is liable for any deficiency. But, if the underlying transaction was a sale of accounts, contract rights, or chattel paper, the debtor is entitled to any surplus or is liable for any deficiency only if the security agreement so provides. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 766, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9–503. Secured party's right to take possession after default.

Unless otherwise agreed a secured party has on default the right to take possession of the collateral. In taking possession a secured party may proceed without judicial process if this can be done without breach of the peace or may proceed by action. If the security agreement so provides the secured party may require the debtor to assemble the collateral and make it available to the secured party at a place to be designated by the secured party which is reasonably convenient to both parties. Without removal a secured party may render equipment unusable. and may dispose of collateral on the debtor's premises under section 28:9–504. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 766, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9–504. Secured party's right to dispose of collateral after default; effect of disposition.

(1) A secured party after default may sell, lease or otherwise dispose of any or all of the collateral in its then condition or following any commercially reasonable preparation or processing. Any sale of goods is subject to the article on sales (article 2). The proceeds of disposition shall be applied in the order following to

(a) the reasonable expenses of retaking, holding, preparing for sale, selling and the like and, to the extent provided for in the agreement and not prohibited by law, the reasonable attorneys' fees and legal expenses incurred by the secured party;

(b) the satisfaction of indebtedness secured by the security interest under which the disposition is made;

(c) the satisfaction of indebtedness secured by any subordinate security interest in the collateral if written notification of demand therefor is received before distribution of the proceeds is completed. If requested by the secured party, the holder of a subordinate security interest must seasonably furnish reasonable proof of his interest, and unless he does so, the secured party need not comply with his demand.

(2) If the security interest secures an indebtedness, the secured party must account to the debtor for any surplus, and, unless otherwise agreed, the debtor is liable for any deficiency. But if the underlying transaction was a sale of accounts, contract rights, or chattel paper, the debtor is entitled to any surplus or is liable for any deficiency only if the security agreement so provides.

(3) Disposition of the collateral may be by public or private proceedings and may be made by way of one or more contracts. Sale or other disposition may be as a unit or in parcels and at any time and place and on any terms but every aspect of the disposition including the method, manner, time, place and terms must be commercially reasonable. Unless collateral is perishable or threatens to decline speedily in value or is of a type customarily sold on a recognized market, reasonable notification of the time and place of any public sale or reasonable notification of the time after which any private sale or other intended disposition is to be made shall be sent by the secured party to the debtor, and except in the case of consumer goods to any other person who has a security interest in the collateral and who has duly filed a financing statement indexed in the name of the debtor in the District or who is known by the secured party to have a security interest in the collateral. The secured party may buy at any public sale and if the collateral is of a type customarily sold in a recognized market or is of a type which is the subject of widely distributed standard price quotations he may buy at private sale.

(4) When collateral is disposed of by a secured party after default, the disposition transfers to a purchaser for value all of the debtor's rights therein, discharges the security interest under which it is made and any security interest or lien subordinate thereto. The purchaser takes free of all such rights and interests even though the secured party fails to comply with the requirements of this Part or of any judicial proceedings

(a) in the case of a public sale, if the purchaser has no knowledge of any defects in the sale and if he does not buy in collusion with the secured party, other bidders or the person conducting the sale; or

(b) in any other case, if the purchaser acts in good faith.

(5) A person who is liable to a secured party under a guaranty, indorsement, repurchase agreement or the like and who receives a transfer of collateral from the secured party or is subrogated to his rights has thereafter the rights and duties of the secured party. Such a transfer of collateral is not a sale or disposition of the collateral under this article. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 766, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9–505. Compulsory disposition of collateral; acceptance of the collateral as discharge of obligation.

(1) If the debtor has paid sixty per cent of the cash price in the case of a purchase money security interest in consumer goods or sixty per cent of the loan in the case of another security interest in consumer goods, and has not signed after default a statement renouncing or modifying his rights under this part a secured party who has taken possession of collateral must dispose of it under section 28:9–504 and if he fails to do so within ninety days after he takes possession the debtor at his option may recover in conversion or under section 28:9–507(1) on secured party's liability.

(2) In any other case involving consumer goods or any other collateral a secured party in possession may, after default, propose to retain the collateral in satisfaction of the obligation. Written notice of such proposal shall be sent to the debtor and except in the case of consumer goods to any other secured party who has a security interest in the collateral and who has duly filed a financing statement indexed in the name of the debtor in the District or is known by the secured party in possession to have a security interest in it. If the debtor or other person entitled to receive notification objects in writing within thirty days from the receipt of the notification or if any other secured party objects in writing within thirty days after the secured party obtains possession the secured party must dispose of the collateral under section 28:9–504. In the absence of such written objection the secured party may retain the collateral in satisfaction of the debtor's obligation. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 768, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9–506. Debtor's right to redeem collateral.

At any time before the secured party has disposed of collateral or entered into a contract for its disposition under section 28:9–504 or before the obligation has been discharged under section 28:9–505(2) the debtor or any other secured party may unless otherwise agreed in writing after default redeem the collateral by tendering fulfillment of all obligations secured by the collateral as well as the expenses reasonably incurred by the secured party in retaking, holding and preparing the collateral for disposition, in arranging for the sale, and to the extent provided in the agreement and not prohibited by law, his reasonable attorneys' fees and legal expenses. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 768, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9–507. Secured party's liability for failure to comply with this part.

(1) If it is established that the secured party is not proceeding in accordance with the provisions of this Part disposition may be ordered or restrained on appropriate terms and conditions. If the disposition has occurred the debtor or any person entitled to notification or whose security interest has been made known to the secured party prior to the disposition has a right to recover from the secured party any loss caused by a failure to comply with the provisions of this Part. If the collateral is consumer goods, the debtor has a right to recover in any event an amount not less than the credit service charge plus ten per cent of the principal amount of the debt or the time price differential plus ten per cent of the cash price.

(2) The fact that a better price could have been obtained by a sale at a different time or in a different method from that selected by the secured party is not of itself sufficient to establish that the sale was not made in a commercially reasonable manner. If the secured party either sells the collateral in the usual manner in any recognized market therefor or if he sells at the price current in such market at the time of his sale or if he has otherwise sold in conformity with reasonable commercial practices among dealers in the type of property sold he has sold in a commercially reasonable manner. The principles stated in the two preceding sentences with respect to sales also apply as may be appropriate to other types of disposition. A disposition which has been approved in any judicial proceeding or by any bona fide creditors' committee or representative of creditors shall conclusively be deemed to be commercially reasonable, but this sentence does not indicate that any such approval must be obtained in any case nor does it indicate that any disposition not so approved is not commercially reasonable. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 768, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:10–101. (Omitted.)

§ 28:10–102. (Omitted.)

§ 28:10–103. Inconsistent laws; what law governs.

Except as provided by section 28:10–104, if any provision of law is inconsistent with this subtitle, this subtitle shall govern, unless this subtitle or the inconsistent provision of the other law specifically provides otherwise. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 769, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:10–104. Laws not repealed.

(1) The article on documents of title (article 7) does not repeal or modify any laws prescribing the form or contents of documents of title or the services or facilities to be afforded by bailees, or otherwise regulating bailees' businesses in respects not specifically dealt with herein; but the fact that such laws are violated does not affect the status of a document of title which otherwise complies with the definition of a document of title (section 28:1–201).

(2) This subtitle does not supersede or modify the District of Columbia Uniform Act for Simplification of Fiduciary Security Transfers, approved July 5, 1960 (74 Stat. 322), being all of subchapter II of chapter 23 of Title 28 of the District of Columbia Code, 1961 edition, and if in any respect there is any inconsistency between that Act and article 8 of this subtitle relating to investment securities, the provisions of that Act, rather than article 8, control. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 769, Pub. L. 88–243, § 1.)

ENACTING CLAUSE

Section 1 of act Aug. 30, 1964, Pub. L. 88–509, 78 Stat. 667 provided in part: "That the general and permanent laws of the District of Columbia, relating to commercial instruments and transactions, not embraced in 'Subtitle I—Uniform Commercial Code" of title 28, District of Columbia Code, which was enacted by Public Law 88–243, are revised, codified, and enacted as 'Subtitle II—Other Commercial Transactions', of title 28, and may be cited as 'D.C. Code, § ——', as follows:"

EFFECTIVE DATE

Section 7 of act Aug. 30, 1964, Pub. L. 88–509, 78 Stat. 679, provided: "This Act takes effect on January 1, 1965."

APPROPRIATIONS

Section 6 of act Aug. 30, 1964, Pub. L. 88–509, 78 Stat. 679, provided: "There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of subtitle II of title 28, District of Columbia Code, as set out in section 1 of this Act." [Chapters 21 to 35.]

BRITISH STATUTES OMITTED

Section 8(a) of act Aug. 30, 1964, Pub. L. 88–509, 78 Stat. 679, provided: "The following British statutes, deemed to have been in force in the District of Columbia by virtue of the Act of Mar. 1, 1901, ch. 854, sec. 1, have no further force, as such, in the District:

"21 Henry III (1236), Alex. Brit. Stat., p. 36, D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28–2803;

"24 Geo. II, ch. 23, §§ 1, 2 (1751), Alex. Brit. Stat., pp. 768–770, D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §§ 28–2801, 28–2802."

REPEAL AND PRESERVATION OF RIGHTS AND LIABILITIES

Section 8(b) of act Aug. 30, 1964, Pub. L. 88–509, 78 Stat. 679, provided: "The sections of the Acts or parts of Acts, enumerated in the schedule below, are repeated. Any rights or liabilities existing under the sections so repealed, and any cases or proceedings instituted under, or growing out of them, are not affected by the repeal. However, laws becoming effective after June 1, 1964, and inconsistent with this Act, supersede it to the extent of the inconsistency." [The "schedule below" referred to in text is set out as a part of Pub. L. 88–509.]

Chapter 21.—ASSIGNMENT FOR BENEFIT OF CREDITORS

28–2107. Preferences prohibited.
28–2108. Proceedings for benefit of all creditors.
28–2109. Assignment to hinder or defraud creditors.
28–2110. Notice to creditors.

§ 28–2101. Form of assignment.

In a voluntary assignment for the benefit of creditors, the debtor shall annex to the assignment (1) an inventory, under oath or affirmation, of his estate, real and personal, according to the best of his knowledge, (2) a list of his creditors, their respective residences and places of business, if known, and (3) the amounts of their respective demands. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 667, Pub. L. 88–509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28–2601 (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1256, ch. 854, § 435).

Section is based on first clause of section 28–2601, the balance of that section being consolidated with section 28–2610, as section 28–2102 of this revision.

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. Decisions under prior law

All parts of a deed of assignment for the benefit of creditors will be considered in arriving at the general intention of the instrument, and if consistent with the language two constructions can be given, that is to be adopted which will render it legal and operative rather than illegal and void. Cissell v. Johnston (4 App. D.C. 335).

An attempt to limit the benefit of the trust to such creditors only as shall release their demands if not paid in full is a preference within the meaning of act Feb. 24, 1893, 27 Stat. 474, and void, and all liabilities within the provisions of the assignment shall be paid pro rata from the assets thereof. Id.

Assignment by debtor to a creditor of a fund due him under a contract with District of Columbia for erection of school buildings, with directions to the assignee after paying his own claim, to distribute the residue among certain other creditors, passes the legal title to the fund and creates a trust for creditors named although at the time some of them had no knowledge of the transaction and did not assent to it. Smith v. Herrell (11 App. D.C. 425).

Confession of judgment by an insolvent debtor in favor of a bona fide creditor is not such a preference as is prohibited by act Feb. 24, 1893, 27 Stat. 474, § 2, declaring void preferences of one creditor over another. Strasburger v. Dodge (12 App. D.C. 37).

Under laws of Maryland the general words of an assignment for benefit of creditors are restricted by particular description of a schedule which is made part of it; and where such assignment executed in Washington, D.C., purports to convey a life estate of the assignor in lands in Maryland as expressed in schedule, the assignee will take only such life estate, although assignment purports to convey all of assignor's property. Keane v. Chamberlain (14 App. D.C. 84).

§ 28–2102. Extent of assignment—Assets exempt.

An assignment vests in the assignee the title to all property, except what is legally exempt, belonging to the debtor at the time of making the assignment and comprehended within its general terms. The inventory annexed to an assignment is not conclusive as to the amount of the debtor's estate.

An assignment for the benefit of creditors does not include or cover property exempt from levy or sale on execution unless the exemption is expressly waived. The court may direct the manner in which exempt property may be ascertained and set aside before a sale by a trustee. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 667, Pub. L. 88–509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §§ 28–2601, 28–2610 (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1256, 1258, ch. 854, §§ 435, 444).

Section is based on last clause of section 28–2601 and all of section 28–2610. The first clause of section 28–2601 is set out as section 28–2101 of this revision.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 28–2103. Assignee.

Only a resident of the District of Columbia may be an assignee in an assignment for the benefit of creditors. His asset shall appear in writing in, or at the end of, or indorsed on, the assignment. An assignment is invalid unless acknowledged and recorded within five days after its execution in the land records of the District. A trust created by an assignment shall be executed under the supervision and control of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 668, Pub. L. 88–509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28–2602 (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1257, ch. 854, § 436; June 25, 1936, 49 Stat. 1921, ch. 804; June 25, 1948, 62 Stat. 991, ch. 646, § 32(b); May 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 107, ch. 139, § 127).

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Jurisdiction of municipal court 1
Right to maintain action 2
Validity of deed of trust 3

1. Jurisdiction of municipal court

Where dispute between judgment creditor and garnishee involved much less than $3,000 jurisdiction of Municipal Court for District of Columbia, Civil Division, such court had jurisdiction to decide that there were funds in garnishee's hands which should be subjected to payment of judgment, and in so deciding such court was not administering or supervising a trust which should have been under supervision and control of United States District Court and which was in an amount far in excess of such $3,000 jurisdictional amount, notwithstanding that garnishee, in acquiring assets and funds of judgment debtor, may have acted as trustee for benefit of creditors in transactions totalling some $35,000. Pinkston v. Carter (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 150 A. 2d 629).

2. Right to maintain action

Assignment is admissible in evidence in a suit by the assignee to show his right to maintain the action. Mazza v. Russell (47 App. D. C. 87).

3. Validity of deed of trust

Where deed of trust conveying assets of company was not recorded within five days from date of execution as required by this section, company had its principal place of business in District of Columbia but trustee was not resident of district as required, deed reserved surplus for benefit of company's stockholders, no creditors were named therein, deed authorized trustee to operate business as far as seemed practicable to trustee and person who executed deed as secretary for company had not held that office or any other office for some eight months, deed was invalid and did not create a lien or right superior to that of attaching judgment creditor, and claim of trustee to commission must yield to claim of judgment creditor. Pinkston v. Carter (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 150 A. 2d 629).

§ 28–2104. Bond of assignee.

Immediately upon the filing for record of an assignment for the benefit of creditors, the assignee shall execute and file in the clerk's office of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia his bond to the United States, in an amount and with security to be approved by a judge thereof, conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties according to law, and the court may from time to time require the assignee, or a trustee appointed in his place, to give additional security when required by the interests of the creditors. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 668, Pub. L. 88–509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28–2603 (Mar 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1257, ch. 854, § 437; June 25, 1936, 49 Stat. 1921, ch. 804; June 25, 1948, 62 Stat. 991, ch. 646, § 32(b); May 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 107, ch. 139, § 127).

The reference to "the justice holding the equity court" is changed to read "a judge thereof" inasmuch as the distinction between law and equity has been abolished.

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

§ 28–2105. Non-performance by assignee—Trustee.

If an assignee named in an assignment for the benefit of creditors fails or refuses to comply with any of the requirements of sections 21–2103 and 21–2104, a judge of the District Court may, on the application of the assignor or a creditor interested in the assignment, remove the assignee and appoint a trustee in his place to execute the trusts created by the assignment, who shall give bond as the court may require. And the court may accept the resignation of an assignee or trustee, and in case of his resignation, death, or removal from the District, appoint a trustee in his place. The court, for cause shown, on the application of an interested person, may remove an assignee or trustee and appoint a trustee in his place, and make and enforce all orders necessary to put the newly appointed trustee in possession of all property covered by the assignment. Upon the death of an assignee or trustee the court may require his executor or administrator to settle his account and to deliver over to his successor all property belonging to the trust, in default of which the successor may bring suit upon the bond of the deceased assignee or trustee or upon the bond of the executor or administrator, accordingly as the assignee or trustee, executor or administrator is the party in default. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 668, Pub. L. 88–509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28–2604 (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1257, ch. 854, § 438; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 530, ch. 1329).

The reference to "the justice holding the equity court" has been changed to read "a judge of the District Court" inasmuch as the distinction between law and equity has been abolished. The words "moneys, books, papers and other effects" following "property" are deleted as redundant and surplusage.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 28–2106. Duties of assignee.

An assignee or trustee, after giving bond, shall collect and take into his possession all the property covered by the assignment, and to that end he may bring suit in his own name to recover debts due or property belonging to the assignor and embraced in the assignment. The court may require the assignor to be examined under oath touching his property, and may make all orders necessary to prevent any fraudulent transfer of or change in the property of the assignor. The assignee or trustee shall return inventories of the assets coming to his hands and, upon the direction of the court, sell and dispose of them; and his conveyance of any property of the assignor, real or personal, transfers the entire title of the assignor therein to the purchaser. When the assets have been converted into money the assignee or trustee shall settle his accounts and make distribution among the creditors, under the direction of the court, according to the usual course of proceeding in creditor's suits. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 668, Pub. L. 88–509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28–2605 (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1257, ch. 854, § 439).

The reference to proceedings "in equity" is deleted in the last sentence inasmuch as the distinction between law and equity has been abolished.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 28–2107. Preferences prohibited.

A provision in a voluntary assignment made for the payment of one debt or liability in preference to another is void, and all debts and liabilities within the provisions of the assignment shall be paid pro rata from the assets. This section does not affect the priority of liens and incumbrances created bona fide and existing before the execution of the assignment. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 669, Pub. L. 88–509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28–2606 (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1258, ch. 854, § 440).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 28–2108. Proceedings for benefit of all creditors.

A proceeding instituted under this chapter by one or more creditors is deemed to be for the equal benefit of all creditors, but the court may make such allowance to the creditor or creditors instituting the same, out of the fund to be distributed, or expenses, including counsel fees, as may be just and equitable. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 669, Pub. L. 88–509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

Revision Notes

§ 28–2109. Assignment to hinder or defraud creditors.

This chapter does not prevent a creditor otherwise entitled from attacking an assignment as made to hinder or defraud the creditors of the assignor. When the court finds an assignment to have been made with that intent, it may enjoin any proceeding thereunder, and upon finally decreeing the assignment to be void may appoint a trustee with power to take possession of all the property of the debtor, and may make and enforce all orders necessary to put him in possession of the property. The trustee shall qualify in the same manner and perform the same duties as the trustees provided for by this chapter. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 669, Pub. L. 88–509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28–2608 (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1258, ch. 854, § 442).

Changes are made in phraseology.

Cross Reference

Fraudulent conveyances, generally, see § 28–3101 et. seq.

§ 28–2110. Notice to creditors.

The court shall require a trustee, whether named in the assignment or appointed by the court, in pursuance of this chapter, to give notice as the court may think proper to all the creditors of the assignor to produce and prove their respective claims against the assignor before the auditor of the court, to the end that they may be fairly adjudicated and the creditors may share equally the assets of the insolvent assignor, subject, however, to any legal priorities created by valid incumbrances antedating the assignment. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 669, Pub. L. 88–509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28–2609 (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1258, ch. 854, § 443).

Changes are made in phraseology.

Chapter 23.—ASSIGNMENT OF CHOSES IN ACTION

Sec.
28–2301. Assignment of judgment or money decree.
28–2302. Assignment of bond or obligation.
28–2303. Assignment of nonnegotiable contract.
28–2304. General assignments including choses in action.
28–2305. Contract to assign future salary or wages.

§ 28–2301. Assignment of judgment or money decree.

A judgment or money decree may be assigned in writing, and upon the assignment thereof being filed in the clerk's office the assignee may maintain an action or sue out an execution on the judgment in his own name, as the original plaintiff might have done. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 669, Pub. L. 88–509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28–2501 (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1256, ch. 854, § 431).

The reference to "a scire facias" is deleted as obsolete under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

Changes are made in phraseology.

Judgment improperly entered 3

1. Attorneys' equitable lien

The interest in client's judgment of attorneys created by contingent fee contract was not equivalent to an assignment of a cause of action and resulting judgment, but rather attorneys' interest was like an equitable lien, and, hence, attorneys, in seeking to enforce collection of the judgment for benefit of client and themselves upon refusal of client to do so, was not required to observe provisions of statute relating to assignment of judgments. Falcone and Millstein v. Hall et al. (1256, 235 F. 2d 860, 98 U.S. App. D.C. 363).

2. Decree for alimony

"A decree ordering the payment of a periodical allowance of alimony in the future is not assignable," although accrued alimony (under an order which it was beyond the power of the court in its discretion to modify or vacate) may be assigned. Lynham v. Hufty (44 App. D. C. 589).

3. Judgment improperly entered

Where the rules require that judgment shall not be entered for four days after verdict, a judgment improperly entered by the clerk within that time is not absolutely void, and may be assigned. Hutchinson v. Brown (8 App. D.C. 157).

§ 28–2302. Assignment of bond or obligation.

An obligee named in a bond or obligation under seal for the payment of money may assign it in writing and the assignee may maintain an action thereon in his own name (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 669, Pub. L. 88–509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28–2502 (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1256, ch. 854, § 432).

A minor change is made in phraseology.

§ 28–2303. Assignment of nonnegotiable contract.

An owner of a nonnegotiable written agreement for the payment of money, including a nonnegotiable bill of exchange and a promissory note, or for the delivery of personal property, an open account, debt, and demand of a liquidated character, except a claim against the United States or the salary of a public officer, may assign it in writing, and the assignee may maintain an action thereon in his own name. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 669, Pub. L. 88–509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28–2503 (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1256, ch. 854, § 433).

Changes are made in phraseology.

Purpose 4

1. Action by assignor after assignment

Evidence tending to prove that action was brought, not in the name of the assignee, or in the name of the assignor to the use of the assignee, but by the assignor after his assignment, was properly excluded where such defense had not been pleaded. Pierce v. Gillet & Co. (1935, 75 F. 2d 675, 64 App. D.C. 156).

Where corporation had sold its claim against defendant prior to commencement of its action against defendant, corporation had no right to enforce such claim. York Blouse Corp. v. Kaplowitz Bros. (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 97 A. 2d 465).

In action by corporation, which had sold its claim against defendant prior to bringing of action, for purchase price of certain merchandise, allegedly sold and delivered, request of corporation for leave to add as additional parties plaintiff the stockholders of corporation was properly denied. Id.

Where assignors assigned claims for the purpose of permitting assignee to manager the litigation and there was no evidence of fraud or any other circumstances which raised any questions as to assignee's legal title to the claims he was asserting, assignee had the right to maintain an action on the claims assigned in his own name. Compton v. Atwell (D.C. Mun. App. 1952, 86 A. 2d 623).

2. Indispensable party

When the rights of an assignee will be affected by an action, the assignee is an indispensable party. York Blouse Corp. v. Kaplowitz Bros. (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 97 A. 2d 465).

3. Possessory action

Owners' agent for management of realty, who was made assignee of leases from agent for former owners, had a right to bring a possessory action against tenant in his own name under the right of an assignee of a nonnegotiable instrument to sue in his own name. Koehne v. Harvey (D.C. Mun. App. 1946, 45 A. 2d 780).

4. Purpose

Obvious purpose of this section was to vest in the assignee the right to sue in his own name. Since the procedural right had not been previously available to him, as the real party in interest, he is able to sue in the name of his assignor. District of Columbia v. Hamilton National Bank (D.C. Mun. App. 1950, 76 A. 2d 60).

5. Real party in interest

Where defendant owed four small accounts and three of his creditors made written assignment, purporting to be absolute, of their accounts to the fourth creditor, but the creditors had orally agreed that assignments were only for purpose of enabling one creditor to sue, action brought by assignee was within exception provided by Municipal Court Rules allowing a party to sue in his own name without joining party for whose benefit action was brought. Compton v. Atwell (1953, 207 F. 2d 139, 93 U.S. App. D.C. 99).

Where corporation had sold its claim against defendant prior to commencement of its action against defendant, assignee was the real party in interest and indispensable party. York Blouse Corp. v. Kaplowitz Bros. (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 97 A. 2d 465).

When substantive law gives an assignee the right to sue in his own name and rule of court requires suit by the real party in interest, action on assigned claim must be brought by the assignee in his own name. Id.

6. Single cause of action

Creditor has no right to split up a single cause of action, either by the institution in his own name of separate suits upon separate fractions thereof, or by the assignment of such several parts to several persons without knowledge and consent of the debtor, so as to require the latter to respond to different actions and to incur accumulation. Sincell v. Davis (24 App. D.C. 218).

A single cause of action may be assigned, and the assignee may sue upon it in his own name, usually subject to all the equities existing between the assignor and the debtor; but this does not authorize the distribution of a single cause of action into fractional parts, and their assignment to several persons without the consent of the debtor. Id.

7. Stock certificates

It is well settled that certificates of stock are not negotiable instruments. At the same time, they are so constantly used as collateral and passed from hand to hand, when the blank transfer and power of attorney on their backs has been formally executed by the party to whom they were issued, that the general custom in the city of Washington is to regard the holder as the owner for the purpose of selling or pledging them. National Safe Deposit Sav. & Trust Co. v. Hibbs (32 App. D.C. 459, affirmed 33 S. Ct. 818, 229 U.S. 391, 57 L. Ed. 1241).

While indorsed certificates of stock do not become negotiable instruments in a strictly legal sense, they nevertheless so approximate them that the ordinary rules of agency and estoppel which apply in the case of chattels are applied to them with great liberality in the behalf of an innocent purchaser. Id.

8. Subscriptions to capital stock of corporation

Subscriptions to the capital stock of a corporation may be assigned by the corporation, so as to give the assignee a right to sue in his own name. Crook v. International Trust Co. (32 App. D.C. 490).

§ 28–2304. General assignments including choses in action.

In a general assignment which includes choses in action, it is not necessary to execute a separate assignment of each chose in action, but the assignee, by virtue of the general assignment, may sue in his own name on the several choses in action included therein. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 670, Pub. L. 88–509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28–2504 (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1256, ch. 854, § 434).

The reference to the "Municipal Court" is changed to "Criminal Division of the Court of General Sessions" in view of the change in name by Public Law 88–241.

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. Action by assignor after assignment

As defenses must be pleaded the court did not err in excluding evidence even though it might have proved that the action was not in the name of the assignee, or in the name of the assignor to the use of the assignee, as the practice was at common law, but an action by an assignor after his assignment. Pierce v. Gillet & Co. (1935, 75 F. 2d 675, 64 App. D.C. 156).

§ 28–2305. Contract to assign future salary or wages.

(a) A contract attempting or purporting to transfer or assign salary or wages to be earned by the debtor, if made in the District of Columbia, is invalid and contrary to public policy and unenforceable, and if made outside the District of Columbia, is unenforceable in any court within the District of Columbia.

(b) Whoever, in the District of Columbia demands or receives from a debtor an assignment of salary or wages to be thereafter earned by the debtor, or notifies an employer that he holds an assignment of such salary or wages, upon conviction shall be fined not more than $200 or imprisoned not more than sixty days. Prosecutions under this subsection shall be upon information filed in the Criminal Division of the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions by the Corporation Counsel of the District of Columbia or one of his assistants. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 670, Pub. L. 88–509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28–2505 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 434–A, as added Dec. 20, 1944, 58 Stat. 819, ch. 610, § 3).

The phrase "after the date of such contract" is deleted as redundant in view of the provision relating to salary or wages "to be earned", indicating it relates to future salary and wages.

Changes are made in phraseology.

Chapter 25.—BONDS AND UNDERTAKINGS

Sec.
28–2501. Definitions.
28–2502. Action on bond in a penal sum containing an avoidance condition.
28–2503. Action on bond to United States—Interest by private person.
28–2504. Fiduciary's bond—Discharge only after accounting.

§ 28–2501. Definitions.

A bond, when required by or referred to in this Code, means an obligation in a certain sum or penalty, subject to a condition, on breach of which it is to become absolute and enforceable by action.

An undertaking means an agreement entered into by a party to a suit or proceeding, with or without sureties, upon which a judgment or decree may be rendered in the same suit or proceeding against the party and his sureties, if any, the party and sureties submitting themselves to the jurisdiction of the court for that purpose. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 670, Pub. L. 88–509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

The definition of a bond is from section 28–2401, and the definition of an undertaking is from section 28–2402.

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Automobile negligence action against nonresident 1
Bonds and undertakings distinguished 2
Purpose and effect 3

1. Automobile negligence action against nonresident

The undertaking in favor of a nonresident defendant which is required of a plaintiff who institutes automobile negligence action in District of Columbia against such nonresident by service of process on Director of Vehicles and Traffic, is such an "undertaking" as is defined as an agreement by a party to a suit upon which a judgment or decree may be rendered in same suit or proceeding in which it has been filed. Dew v. Simon (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 95 A. 2d 482).

2. Bonds and undertakings distinguished

Unlike the ordinary appeal bond, which is an obligation under seal, with a fixed penalty, and a definite condition, limited to become effective or otherwise by the determination of the appeal, an undertaking is without seal, or fixed penalty, and without condition; and is simply a promise or an assumption of liability, to perform a judgment, or to pay damages and costs. Tenney v. Taylor (1 App. D.C. 223).

3. Purpose and effect

While an undertaking differs in form from the bond, its essential purpose and effect are the same as those of the bond, to give the guaranty of an additional person as security for the costs that might be incurred and the damages that might result to an appellee by the prosecution of an appeal that prevents him from realizing his claim as speedily and as effectively as he might otherwise have done. Tenney v. Taylor (1 App. D.C. 223).

§ 28–2502. Action on bonds in a penal sum containing an avoidance condition.

A bond in a penal sum, containing a condition that it shall be void on the payment of a certain sum of money, or the performance of an act or of certain duties, has the same effect for the purpose of maintaining an action upon it as if it contained a covenant to pay the money or perform the act or the duties specified in the condition. But the damages to be recovered for a breach, or successive breaches, of the condition, as against the sureties therein, may not exceed the penalty of the bond. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 670, Pub. L. 88–509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28–2405 (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1265, ch. 854, § 480).

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Construction 1
Forgery 2
Sureties 3

1. Construction

In suit against sureties bond is to be strictly construed. United States v. Maloney (4 App. D.C. 505).

Recitals in bond, and all material traversable matter set forth in breaches assigned and which have not been traversed are to be taken as admitted and withdrawn from the province of the jury. Id.

2. Forgery

Surety can not plead forgery of principal's name to bond when surety executes it after its purported execution by the principal. United States v. Boyd (8 App. D.C. 440).

3. Sureties

By the execution of a bond and its return to the principal or his agent for delivery to the obligee the surety becomes estopped to set up any condition not known to that obligee, upon which his signature has been obtained. United States v. Boyd (8 App. D.C. 440).

Discontinuance of a suit as to the principal will not, in the absence of explanation, be sufficient to release the sureties on his bond who were named as codefendants. Starr v. United States (8 App. D.C. 552, reversed on other grounds 17 S. Ct. 223, 164 U.S. 627, 41 L. Ed. 577).

§ 28–2503. Action on bond to United States—Interest by private person.

When a bond is executed to the United States by a fiduciary or public officer, conditioned for the performance of certain duties, in the performance of which private persons are interested, a person aggrieved by a breach of the condition may maintain an action thereon in his own name against the obligor and his sureties to recover damages for the injury suffered by him in consequence of the breach. The custodian of the bond shall furnish a certified copy thereof to the party for that purpose on payment of the legal fees therefor. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 670, Pub. L. 88–509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28–2406 (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1265, ch. 854, § 481; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 530, ch. 1329).

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Action on official bond 1
Disbursing officer 2
Plumbing inspector 3
Questions on appeal 4

1. Action on official bond

Action on an official bond running to the District of Columbia cannot be maintained by one not a party thereto, in the absence of the consent of the District or an express statute authorizing such action. District of Columbia to Use of Langellotti v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. (1921, 271 F. 383, 50 App. D.C. 309).

2. Disbursing officer

Although bond required of a disbursing officer of the Government when first filed was not properly executed and it was returned to the principal who properly executed it, there is no presumption against its genuineness, in a suit by the Government against the surety, and in such transaction the relation between the Government and the disbursing officer is not that of principal and agent. Howgate v. United States (3 App. D.C. 277, affirmed 17 S. Ct. 682, 166 U.S. 571, 41 L. Ed. 1119).

In action by United States on the bond of an alleged delinquent disbursing officer, a duly authenticated transcript from the Treasury Department of the accounts of the disbursing officer offered in evidence by the United States is not admissible, for it does not include all transactions with the United States during term of service, but only those transactions connected with the appropriations for which such official is alleged to be in default need be shown by such transcript. Goff v. United States (22 App. D.C. 512).

3. Plumbing inspector

Those injured by neglect of the inspector of plumbing in the performance of his official duties may maintain an action in the name of the District of Columbia to his use on the bond given by the inspector, under a plumbing regulation requiring the inspector to give a bond of $5,000, "conditioned for the faithful performance of the duties of his office." District of Columbia v. Ball (22 App. D.C. 543).

Plumbing regulations of District of Columbia requiring inspector of plumbing to give bond with sureties for benefit of persons aggrieved by his acts of neglect, is valid, although the act of Congress of April 23, 1892 (27 Stat. 21, ch. 53) authorizing appointment of inspector of plumbing does not require bond. Id.

One who purchases house in which plumbing is defective without knowledge of such facts existing, may maintain action on official bond of inspector of plumbing for failure to inspect plumbing when the house was in the course of construction. Id.

4. Questions on appeal

Where person claiming to have posted collateral under agreement for surety bond for release of certain alien did not, in suit for recovery for alleged breach of such agreement, mention this section providing cause of action for those aggrieved by breach of bond given to United States to secure performance of a duty, this section could not be relied upon on appeal. Chong Moe Dan v. Maryland Casualty Co. of Baltimore (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 93 A. 2d 286).

§ 28–2504. Fiduciary's bond—Discharge only after accounting.

A person appointed by order or decree of the court to a fiduciary office may not discharge his bond for the due performance of his duties, by receipts, releases, or acquittances from himself, as attorney for parties interested, to himself as fiduciary; but the funds or estate for the application whereof he is responsible shall be considered as remaining in his hands, and the bond shall continue in force as against both principal and sureties until the funds or estate are fully accounted for and paid over or delivered to the parties interested therein, or their attorney, other than himself. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 671, Pub. L. 88–509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28–2407 (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1265, ch. 854, § 482).

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. Sale trustee

Bond of a trustee appointed by court in an equity cause to sell real estate which runs to the United States, can be put in suit by person injuriously affected and in such suit the United States is the nominal plaintiff only. Morse v. United States ex rel. Hine (29 App. D.C. 433).

When decree for sale of infant's real estate is void for want of jurisdiction, the bond of trustee appointed to make the sale is void also, and the surety may show such invalidity in a suit against him on the bond by the United States. Id.

This section does not apply where payment was by the sale trustee to himself as testamentary trustee. United States Fidelity & Guar. Co. v. Klein (1932, 54 F. 2d 828, 60 App. D.C. 354, certiorari denied 52 S. Ct. 394, 285 U.S. 544, 76 L. Ed. 936).

SUBCHAPTER II.—COMPUTATION OF TIME

28–2711. Daylight-saving time.

SUBCHAPTER I.—BUSINESS HOLIDAYS

§ 28–2701. Holidays designated—Time for performing acts extended.

The following days in each year, namely, the first day of January, commonly called New Year's Day; the twenty-second day of February, known as Washington's Birthday; the Fourth of July; the thirtieth day of May, commonly called Decoration Day; the first Monday in September, known as Labor Day; the twenty-fifth day of December, commonly called Christmas Day; every Saturday, after twelve o'clock noon; any day appointed or recommended by the President of the United States as a day of public feasting or thanksgiving, and the day of the inauguration of the President, in every fourth year are holidays in the District for all purposes. When a day set apart as a legal holiday falls on Sunday the next succeeding day is a holiday. In such cases, and when a Sunday and a holiday fall on successive days, all commercial paper falling due on any of those days shall, for all purposes of presenting for payment or acceptance, be deemed to mature and be presentable for payment or acceptance on the next secular business day succeeding. Every Saturday is a holiday in the District for (1) every bank or banking institution having an office or banking house located within the District, (2) every Federal savings and loan association whose main office is in the District, and (3) every building association, building and loan association, or savings and loan association, incorporated or unincorporated, organized and operating under the laws of and having an office located within the District. An act which would otherwise be required, authorized, or permitted to be performed on Saturday in the District at the office or banking house of, or by, any such bank or bank institution, Federal savings and loan association, building association, building and loan association, or savings and loan association, if Saturday were not a holiday, shall or may be so performed on the next succeeding business day, and liability or loss of rights of any kind may not result from such delay. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 671, Pub. L. 88–509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28–616 (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1404, ch. 854, § 1389; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 543, ch. 1329; July 13, 1946, 60 Stat. 534, ch. 576, Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 774, Pub. L. 88–243, § 15(a)(2)).

The first three sentences of section 28–616 were repealed by Public Law 88–243. The balance constitutes this section.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Judicial notice 1
Saturday half-holiday 2

1. Judicial notice

Municipal Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia took judicial notice that Criminal Division of the Municipal Court was in session on Monday, July 5, 1943, for the arraignment and trial of persons held under arrest and unable to give collateral or bond, notwithstanding that that Monday was a legal holiday. Burns v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1944, 34 A. 2d 714).

2. Saturday half-holiday

Saturday half-holiday not excluded in computing 30 days' notice required under § 1219, D.C. 1901 (§ 45–902). Ocumpaugh v. Norton (24 App. D.C. 296). See, also, McCoy v. Duehay (1922, 279 F. 1001, 51 App. D.C. 363); Morse v. Brainerd (42 App. D.C. 448); Swenk v. Nicholls (39 App. D.C. 350).

SUBCHAPTER II.—COMPUTATION OF TIME

§ 28–2711. Daylight-saving time.

The Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia may advance the standard time applicable to the District one hour for the period commencing not earlier than the last Sunday of April and ending not later than the last Sunday of October, of each year. Any such time established by the Commissioners under the authority of this section, during the period of the year for which it is applicable, is the standard time for the District of Columbia. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 672, Pub. L. 88–509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28–2804 (Apr. 28, 1953, 67 Stat. 23, ch. 30; July 2, 1956, 70 Stat. 482, ch. 491).

Changes are made in phraseology.

This chapter is based upon Public Law 86–584, the District of Columbia Uniform Act for Simplification of Fiduciary Security Transfer.

28–2908. Terretorial applicability.
28–2909. Tax obligations.

§ 28–2901. Definitions.

In this chapter, unless the context otherwise requires:

(1) "assignment" includes a written stock power, bond power, bill of sale, deed, declaration of trust or other instrument of transfer;

(2) "claim of beneficial interest" includes a claim of any interest by a decedent's legatee, distributee, heir or creditor, a beneficiary under a trust, a ward, a beneficial owner of a security registered in the name of a nominee, or a minor owner of a security registered in the name of a custodian, or a claim of a similar interest, whether the claim is asserted by the claimant or by a fiduciary or by any other authorized person on his behalf, and includes a claim that the transfer would be in breach of fiduciary duties;

(3) "corporation" means a private or public corporation, association or trust issuing a security;

(4) "fiduciary" means an executor, administrator, trustee, guardian, committee, conservator, curator, tutor, custodian, or nominee;

(5) "person" includes an individual, a corporation, government or governmental subdivision or agency, business trust, estate, trust, partnership or association, two or more persons having a joint or common interest, or other legal or commercial entity;

(6) "security" includes a share of stock, bond, debenture, note or other security issued by a corporation which is registered as to ownership on the books of the corporation;

(7) "transfer" means a change on the books of a corporation in the registered ownership of a security;

(8) "transfer agent" means a person employed or authorized by a corporation to transfer securities issued by the corporation.

Arabic numbers are substituted for lower-case letters in designating the clauses, to conform to the style of the revision. The terms defined are not capitalized in the definitions unless they are capitalized in their normal usage in the text.

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

§ 28–2902. Registration in name of a fiduciary.

A corporation or transfer agent registering a security in the name of a person who is a fiduciary or who is described as a fiduciary is not bound to inquire into the existence, extent, or correct description of the fiduciary relationship, and thereafter the corporation and its transfer agent may assume without inquiry that the newly registered owner continues to be the fiduciary until the corporation or transfer agent receives written notice that the fiduciary is no longer acting as such with respect to the particular security. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 672, Pub. L. 88–509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code § 28–2322 (July 5, 1960, 74 Stat. 322, Pub. L. 86–584, § 2).

§ 28–2903. Assignment by fiduciary.

Except as otherwise provided by this chapter, a corporation or transfer agent making a transfer of a security pursuant to an assignment by a fiduciary:

(1) may assume without inquiry that the assignment, even though to the fiduciary himself or his nominee, is within his authority and capacity and is not in breach of his fiduciary duties;

(2) may assume without inquiry that the fiduciary has complied with any controlling instrument and with the law of the jurisdiction governing the fiduciary relationship, including any law requiring the fiduciary to obtain court approval of the transfer; and

(3) is not charged with notice of and is not bound to obtain or examine any court record or recorded or unrecorded document relating to the fiduciary relationship or the assignment, even though the record or document is in its possession.

(Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 673, Pub. L. 88–509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28–2323 (July 5, 1960, 74 Stat. 322, Pub. L. 86–584, § 3).

Arabic numbers are substituted for letters in designating clauses, to conform to the style of the revision.

§ 28–2904. Evidence of appointment of incumbency.

A corporation or transfer agent making a transfer pursuant to an assignment by a fiduciary who is not the registered owner shall require the following evidence of appointment or incumbency:

(1) in the case of a fiduciary appointed or qualified by a court, a certificate issued by or under the direction or supervision of the court or an officer thereof, and dated within sixty days before the transfer; or

(2) in any other case, a copy of a document showing the appointment or a certificate issued by or on behalf of a person reasonably believed by the corporation or transfer agent to be responsible or, in the absence of such a document or certificate, other evidence reasonably deemed by the corporation or transfer agent to be appropriate. Corporations and transfer agents may adopt reasonable standards with respect to evidence of appointment or incumbency under this subsection. Neither the corporation nor transfer agent is charged with notice of the contents of any document obtained pursuant to this subsection except to the extent that the contents relate directly to the appointment or incumbency.

(Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 673, Pub. L. 88–509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28–2324 (July 5, 1960, 74 Stat. 323, Pub. L. 86–584, § 4).

Arabic numbers are substituted for letters in designating clauses, to conform to the style of the revision.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 28–2905. Adverse claims.

(a) A person asserting a claim of beneficial interest adverse to the transfer of a security pursuant to an assignment by a fiduciary may notify in writing the corporation or transfer agent of the claim. The corporation or transfer agent is not put on notice unless the written notice (1) identifies the claimant, the registered owner, and the issue of which the security is a part, (2) provides an address for communications directed to the claimant, and (3) is received before the transfer. This chapter does not relieve the corporation or transfer agent of any liability for making or refusing to make the transfer after it is so put on notice, unless it proceeds in the manner authorized by subsection (b).

(b) As soon as practicable after the presentation of a security for transfer pursuant to an assignment by a fiduciary, a corporation or transfer agent which has received notice of a claim of beneficial interest adverse to the transfer may send notice of the presentation by registered or certified mail to the claimant at the address given by him. If the corporation or transfer agent so mails such a notice it shall withhold the transfer for thirty days after the mailing and shall then make the transfer unless restrained by a court order. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 673, Pub. L. 88–509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28–2325 (July 5, 1960, 74 Stat. 323, Pub. L. 86–584, § 5).

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 28–2906. Nonliability of corporation and transfer agent.

A corporation or transfer agent does not incur liability to any person by making a transfer or otherwise acting in a manner authorized by this chapter. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 674, Pub. L. 88–509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28–2326 (July 5, 1960, 74 Stat. 323, Pub. L. 86–584, § 6).

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

§ 28–2907. Nonliability of third persons.

(a) A person who participates in the acquisition, disposition, assignment or transfer of a security by or to a fiduciary including a person who guarantees the signature of the fiduciary is not liable for participation in any breach of fiduciary duty by reason of failure to inquire whether the transaction involves such a breach unless it is shown that he acted with actual knowledge that the proceeds of the transaction were being or were to be used wrongfully for the individual benefit of the fiduciary or that the transaction was otherwise in breach of duty.

(b) When a corporation or transfer agent makes a transfer pursuant to an assignment by a fiduciary, a person who guaranteed the signature of the fiduciary is not liable on the guarantee to any person to whom the corporation or transfer agent by reason of this chapter incurs no liability.

(c) This section does not impose any liability upon the corporation or its transfer agent. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 674, Pub. L. 88–509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28–2327 (July 5, 1960, 74 Stat. 324, Pub. L. 86–584, § 7).

Minor changes are made in phraseology.

§ 28–2908. Territorial application.

(a) The rights and duties of a corporation and its transfer agents in registering a security in the name of a fiduciary or in making a transfer of a security pursuant to an assignment by a fiduciary are governed by the law of the jurisdiction under whose laws the corporation is organized.

(b) This chapter applies to the rights and duties of a person other than the corporation and its transfer agents with regard to acts and omissions in the District of Columbia in connection with the acquisition, disposition, assignment or transfer of a security by or to a fiduciary and of a person who guarantees in the District of Columbia the signature of a fiduciary in connection with such a transaction. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 674, Pub. L. 88–509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28–2328 (July 5, 1960, 74 Stat. 324, Pub. L. 86–584, § 8).

§ 28–2909. Tax obligations.

This chapter does not affect any obligation of a corporation or transfer agent with respect to estate, inheritance, succession, or other taxes imposed by the laws of the District of Columbia. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 674, Pub. L. 88–509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Chapter 31.—FRAUDULENT CONVEYANCES

Sec.
28–3101. Intent to defraud creditors.
28–3102. Intent to defraud purchasers.
28–3103. Fiduciaries' suit to vacate fraudulent transaction.

§ 28–3101. Intent to defraud creditors.

A conveyance or assignment, in writing or otherwise, of an estate or interest in land or its rents and profits, or in goods or things in action, and a charge upon the same, and a bond or other evidence of debt given, or judgment or decree suffered, with the intent to hinder or defraud persons having just claims or demands, of their lawful suits, damages, or demands, is void as against the persons so hindered or defrauded

This section does not affect the title of a purchaser for value, unless it appears that he had previous notice of the fraudulent intent of his immediate grantor, or of the fraud rendering void the title of the grantor. The question of fraudulent intent is a question of fact and not of law. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 674, Pub. L. 88–509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28–3101 (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1368, ch. 854, § 1120).

The word "delay" in the phrase "hinder, delay, or defraud" is deleted as redundant.

Changes are made in phraseology.

1. In general

By the terms of the statute a final judgment at common law is made a lien, not only upon the legal, but as well upon the equitable, interests in real estate of the judgment debtor from the date when the same is rendered, and this section likewise makes every conveyance of lands with intent to defraud creditors not merely voidable, but void. Reilly v. Sabin (1936, 81 F. 2d 259, 65 App. D.C. 125).

Where it did not appear that anyone but plaintiff was hindered, delayed, or defrauded by transfer of property sought to be set aside as fraudulent, judgment to the extent that it avoided transfer as against other persons should be modified. Brady v. Games (1942, 128 F. 2d 754, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 47).

A court should not enrich a fraudulent grantee at expense of parties not responsible for original grantor's attempt to avoid creditors. Hurwitz v. Hurwitz (1943, 136 F. 2d 796, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 66, 148 A.L.R. 226).

Every case involving question whether debtor made fraudulent conveyances depends on its own circumstances. Beaton Co. v. Berberich (1943, 135 F. 2d 831, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 377).

Even if a conveyance is, on its face, presumptively fraudulent, it is susceptible of explanation. Snider v. Kelly (1943, 135 F. 2d 817, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 363, certiorari denied 64 S. Ct. 62, 320 U.S. 764, 88 L. Ed. 456).

2. Consideration

Where there was substantial evidence to support findings that note and deed of trust recorded on date prior to date when the United States filed notice of tax lien were without consideration and in fraud of creditors, such findings were not clearly erroneous and hence judgment based on such findings would be affirmed. H. Milloff and S. Milloff v. United States and A. Goldkind (1962, 306 F. 2d 783, 113 U.S. App. D.C. 176).

In action for judgment declaring plaintiff to be common-law wife of a defendant, and as such entitled to an inchoate right of dower in certain realty allegedly conveyed by him to his daughter before establishment of marriage, evidence, including undisputed testimony that defendant paid $4,000 for property in question and conveyed it to his daughter, for $10 which was the entire consideration, established that codefendant was not a purchaser for valuable consideration within meaning of this section. Leonardo v. Leonardo et ano. (1958, 251 F. 2d 22, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 119).

Words "valuable consideration" as used in portion of this section providing that such section shall not be construed to impair title of a purchaser for a "valuable consideration" means fair equivalent of the property conveyed. Id.

The sum of $10, constituting the entire consideration allegedly paid for realty worth $4,000, did not constitute "valuable consideration" within meaning of that term as used in this section providing that certain conveyances of realty made with intent of defrauding creditors shall be void except as against a purchaser for a valuable consideration, without notice. Id.

3. Construction

This section providing that conveyances made with intent of defrauding certain persons shall be void is entitled to liberal construction. Leonardo v. Leonardo et ano. (1958, 251 F. 2d 22, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 119).

4. Duty of court

Where issue regarding whether conveyance is fraudulent is presented to trial court, its duty is to determine from circumstances surrounding transaction of parties whether the intent proscribed by this section was present and in doing so, it should apply the rule that the parties intend the natural and probable consequences of their acts, and if the inevitable consequences of a conveyance are to hinder, delay or defraud creditors, the court must so hold notwithstanding denial of such intent by the parties. Snider v. Kelly (1943, 135 F. 2d 817, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 363, certiorari denied 64 S. Ct. 62, 320 U.S. 764, 88 L. Ed. 456).

5. Evidence

Fraud must be shown by clear and convincing evidence and by evidence which is not equivocal that is, equally consistent with either honesty or deceit, but circumstantial evidence is sufficient to prove fraud. Wynne et al. v. Boone et al. (1951, 191 F. 2d 220, 88 U.S. App. D.C. 363).

Evidence sustained trial court's judgment setting aside, as in fraud of creditors, conveyances of realty. Id.

5.50. Fraudulent conveyance

Where company extended credit to its customers and received promissory notes which were endorsed in blank without recourse to bank as security for credit extended to the company ranging from 60 to 65 percent of the face value of pledged notes and company acted as bank's agent for collection and remitted payments to a special account at the bank which was used to reduce debt owed by company to bank, and company submitted quarterly reports to bank indicating status of collections from consumer-debtors and company's book accounts indicated that consumer notes were pledged to the bank, the transfer of security from the company to the bank was not a fraudulent conveyance under District of Columbia law providing that transfers which are intended to hinder, delay or defraud creditors or transferor are voidable. M. Stevan, Trustee etc. v. Union Trust Company etc., et al. (1963, 316 F. 2d 687, 115 U.S. App. D.C. 36).

6. Good faith

In determining whether debtor's conveyances are fraudulent, the vital question is the good faith of the transactions. Beaton Co. v. Berberich (1943, 135 F. 2d 831, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 377).

7. Intent of parties

In suit to set aside, as fraud on creditors, conveyances of realty, where grantee was found to be in same position as grantor, so far as knowledge and intent were concerned, and conveyance was found to have been fraudulent, neither grantor nor grantee could claim to have been injured by creditor's pursuit of one remedy rather than another. Wynne et al. v. Boone et al. (1951, 191 F. 2d 220, 88 U.S. App. D.C. 363).

In creditor's suit to declare void certain transfers of title and of interests by debtor to others, record sustained determination that the transactions were consistent with an honest purpose and were free from fraud and wrongdoing. Beaton Co. v. Berberich (1943, 135 F. 2d 831, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 377).

Where it appears from all surrounding circumstances that acts of parties are consistent with an honest purpose, it is not an inevitable consequence that conveyance will hinder, delay or defraud creditors, and the court should find accordingly. Snider v. Kelly (1943, 135 F. 2d 817, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 363, certiorari denied 64 S. Ct. 62, 320 U.S. 764, 88 L. Ed. 456).

8. Mortgages

A mortgage made with intent to hinder, delay, or defraud the bankrupt's creditors may be declared void Universal Dealers Co. v. Cromelin (1940, 109 F. 2d 828, 71 App. D.C. 234, certiorari denied 60 S. Ct. 1088, 310 U.S. 641, 84 L. Ed. 1409).

The giving of the mortgage followed by withholding it from record pursuant to an agreement or understanding, operated to hinder, delay, and defraud the bankrupt's creditors as the parties are presumed to intend the natural and probable consequences of their own acts and whatever may have been the intention of the petitioner is immaterial. In re Nolan Motor Co., Inc. (1938, 25 F. Supp. 186, affirmed 109 F. 2d 282, 711 App. D.C. 234, certiorari denied 60 S. Ct. 1088, 310 U.S. 641, 84 L. Ed. 1409).

9. Other persons

Under this section providing that every conveyance of realty made with intent to defraud creditors or "other persons" having just claims shall be void as against persons so defrauded, a wife, in regard to her property rights arising from marriage, is one of the "other persons" protected. Leonardo v. Leonardo et ano. (1958, 251 F. 2d 22, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 119).

9.50. Pleading, sufficiency of Judgment creditor's complaint alleging fraudulent conveyances of real estate was sufficient to allege fraudulent intent on part of debtor in making conveyance. F. S. Bowen Electric Co., Inc. v. J. D. Hedin Construction Co., Inc. (1963, 316 F. 2d 362, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 361).

10. Presumptions

In determining whether debtor made fraudulent transfer, certain rebuttable presumptions go into balance, in creditor's favor, but if it appears from circumstances that challenged acts of parties to transfer are consistent with an honest purpose, the presumptions are overcome. Beaton Co. v. Berberich (1943, 135 F. 2d 831, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 377).

11. Question of fact

In District of Columbia, fraud is matter of fact, and therefore, where creditors established that conveyance had been made and recorded with intent to defraud, it would not be necessary to success of their suit to set aside conveyance that they proved that grantor was insolvent. Wynne et al. v. Boone et al. (1951, 191 F. 2d 220, 88 U.S. App. D.C. 363).

Under this section, the question of fraudulent intent is a "question of fact" and not a "question of law". Snider v. Kelly (1943, 135 F. 2d 817, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 363, certiorari denied 64 S. Ct. 62, 320 U.S. 764, 88 L. Ed. 456).

12. Quitclaim deeds

Where circumstances indicated that debtor was not owner of property or any part of it but at best had a claim which, in hands of creditor, might have had some nuisance value as a cloud on title, that real owner was debtor's brother and that deed from debtor to brother was in nature of a quitclaim to clear brother's title, evidence sustained findings and conclusion that conveyance did not violate this section regarding fraudulent conveyances. Snider v. Kelly (1943, 135 F. 2d 817, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 363, certiorari denied 64 S. Ct. 62, 320 U.S. 764, 88 L. Ed. 456).

13. Review

Finding that payment by insolvent corporation of its debt to its sole stockholder and managing director was made with intent to hinder or delay a creditor was not clearly erroneous and supported conclusion that transfer was void as against creditor. Ferro Inc., and Powell Jr. v. John Thompson Beacon Windows, Ltd. (1960, 278 F. 2d 280, 107 U.S. App. D.C. 400).

On appeal from judgment setting aside conveyance as fraud on creditors, sole function of Court of Appeals is to decide whether or not trial judge was clearly in error in being convinced by evidence presented, and it is not function of Court of Appeals to weigh evidence and it is not necessary that Court of Appeals itself find evidence on issue of fraud to be clear and convincing. Wynne et al. v. Boone et al. (1951, 191 F. 2d 220, 88 U.S. App. D.C. 363).

13.50 Summary judgment

Evidence in hearing on motion for summary judgment in action to set aside fraudulent conveyances showed existence of genuine issue of fact as to debtor's alleged fraudulent intent precluding summary judgment. F. S. Bowen Electric Co., Inc. v. J. D. Hedin Construction Co., Inc. (1963, 316 F. 2d 362, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 361).

14. Transfer to wife of bankrupt

Where there was a fraudulent transfer of bankrupt's property to wife, conveyance was set aside in equity. Harding v. Aaronson (1934, 69 F. 2d 845, 63 App. D.C. 107).

§ 28–3102. Intent to defraud purchasers.

A conveyance of an estate or interest in land, or its rents and profits, and a charge upon the same, made or created with the intent to defraud prior or subsequent purchasers for a valuable consideration of the same lands, rents, or profits, are void, as against the purchasers. Such a conveyance or charge is not deemed fraudulent in favor of a subsequent purchaser who has actual or legal notice thereof at the time of his purchase, unless it appears that the grantee in the conveyance, or the person to be benefited by the charge, was privy to the fraud intended. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 675, Pub. L. 88–509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

1. Question of fact

In action for breach of contract for conveyance of realty, questions of good faith and collusive intent are questions of fact requiring submission to the jury. Buchanan v. Farmer (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 62 A. 2d 367).

§ 28–3103. Fiduciary's suit to vacate fraudulent transaction.

An executor, administrator, receiver, assignee, or trustee of an estate, or of the property and effects of an insolvent estate, corporation, association, partnership, or individual, may, for the benefit of creditors and others interested in the estate or property so held in trust, disaffirm, treat as void, and resist all acts done, transfers, and agreements made in fraud of the rights of a creditor, including themselves and others interested in an estate or property held by or of right belonging to him or the estate. Whoever, in fraud of the rights of creditors and others receives, takes, or in any manner interferes with the estate, property, or effects of a deceased person or insolvent corporation, association, partnership, or individual is liable, in the proper action, to the executors, administrators, receivers, or trustees of the estate or property for the same, or the value of any property or effects so received or taken, and for all damages caused by such acts to the trust estate. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 675, Pub. L. 88–509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Action to avoid deed 1
Increase of rights 2
Trust, enforcement of 3

1. Action to avoid deed

Section authorizes executors to file suit setting aside or canceling a deed executed by testator and to collect the expenses incident thereto. Ramsey v. Curtis (1950, 182 F. 2d 687, 86 U.S. App. D.C. 386).

2. Increase of rights

This section is "procedural", and the person for whose benefit transfer is sought to be set aside can get no increased substantive rights because administrator is bringing the suit. Hurwitz v. Hurwitz (1943, 136 F. 2d 796, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 66, 148 A.L.R. 226).

Where administratrix of deceased grantor sought to set aside transfers that allegedly had illegal purpose of defeating creditors and administratrix did not seek to benefit creditors, but to set aside the transfers for benefit of grantor's heirs, the heirs obtained no additional rights because their interests were represented by administratrix. Id.

3. Trust, enforcement of

Administratrix of deceased grantor could enforce "resulting trust" and recover proceeds of realty on behalf of heirs of grantor, notwithstanding evidence that transfers which administratrix sought to set aside had illegal purpose of defeating grantor's creditors. Hurwitz v. Hurwitz (1943, 136 F. 2d 796, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 66, 148 A.L.R. 226).

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Additional loan as usury 1
Bonus or commission as usury 2
Incomplete transaction 3

1. Additional loan as usury

Usury sustained based on additional loan payable to intermediary. Quinn v. National Mtg. & Inv. Co. (1932, 57 F. 2d 410, 61 App. D.C. 44).

2. Bonus as usury

A commission or bonus paid to same person who is entitled to interest is to be considered as additional "interest" for purpose of usury law. Industrial Bank Washington, Inc., et al. v. Page (1957, 249 2d 938, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 33).

Where bank was offering to make loan at six percent with one person commission and consent to such contract was obtained when borrower signed note and in writing approved settlement sheet containing item of the one percent commission, the contract was within the eight percent provision of the usury statute, precluding borrower from recovering the amount of interest. Id.

"Bonus" being a sum paid to the creditor for the continued use of the money, clearly counts as interest for the purpose of the usury law; and a bonus, which, when added to the nominal interest on a 2-year extension exceeded 8 percent, was usurious. Bowen v. Mount Vernon Sav. Bank (1939, 105 F. 2d 796, 70 App. D.C. 273).

3. Incomplete transaction

Where transaction contemplated, with usurious rates, never took place, claim of usury could not be sustained Rosslyn Steel & Cement Co. v. Etchison (1932, 57 F. 2d 409, 61 App. D.C. 43).

§ 28–3302. Rate of interest not expressed and on judgments.

The rate of interest in the District upon the loan or forbearance of money, goods, or things in action, and the rate to be allowed in judgments and decrees, in the absence of express contract, is 6 percent per annum. Interest, when authorized by law, on judgments against the District of Columbia, is at the rate of not exceeding 4 percent per annum. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 675, Pub. L. 88–509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

1. Judgments

While act April 22, 1870, 16 Stat. 91, ch. 59, fixed the rate of interest on judgments it did not cause such judgments or decrees to bear interest which would not have borne interest previously thereto. Washington & G. R. Co. v. Tobriner (1893, 13 S. Ct. 557, 147 U.S. 571, 37 L. Ed. 284).

If a judgment regularly rendered in the Supreme (District) Court of the District in a common-law action of tort cannot bear interest a fortiori it should not be permitted to run upon the judgment of the court of claims. Gray v. District of Columbia (1 App. D.C. 20).

2. Legal rates

When debtor defaults, compensation equal to value of the money, which is legal interest upon it, will be permitted during time the party is in default, provided a claim is made in declaration for the interest. District of Columbia v. Metropolitan R. Co. (8 App. D.C. 322, affirmed 25 S. Ct. 28, 195 U.S. 322, 49 L. Ed. 219).

All that plaintiff was entitled to recover was the principal sum, with interest at the legal rate after the termination of the contract rate, less the credits which she admitted. Richards v. Bippus (18 App. D.C. 293).

3. Occasional loans on real estate

A nonresident who makes occasional loans on real estate is not engaged "in the business" of loaning money. Zirkle v. Daly (1932, 54 F. 2d 455, 60 App. D.C. 344).

4. Usury

"When the promise to pay a sum above the legal interest depends upon a contingency, and not upon any happening of a certain event, the loan is not usurious." Whelpley v. Ross (25 App. D.C. 207).

Illegality of the transaction does not affect the obligation to pay a tax, and though the accruals represented legally uncollectible usury, there was at all times a reasonable expectation that they would be paid, and this fact is enough to constitute them income to the same extent as if the several amounts were actually paid. Barker v. Magruder (1938, 95 F. 2d 122, 68 App. D.C. 211).

Usury law protects the maker in spite of knowledge. The same financial pressure which forced him to submit to usury in the first place may force him to renew. To permit a mere renewal or extension of the contract to purge the usury would defeat the purpose of the statute. Bowen v. Mount Vernon Sav. Bank (1939, 105 F. 2d 796, 70 App. D.C. 273).

§ 28–3303. Usury defined.

If a person or corporation contracts in the District.

(1) verbally, to pay a greater rate of interest than 6 percent per annum, or

(2) in writing, to pay a greater rate than 8 percent per annum, the creditor shall forfeit the whole of the interest so contracted to be received.

This section does not affect sections 26–601 to 26–611. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 675, Pub. L. 88–509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28–2703 (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1377, ch. 854, § 1180; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 542, ch. 1329; Apr. 19, 1920, 41 Stat. 568, ch. 153, § 1).

The last sentence is substituted for the proviso.

The use of provisos is discontinued because most "provisos" are not true provisos and simply reflect the use of legalistic terminology which is being corrected in the codification bills generally.

Changes are made in phraseology.

1. In general

Money exacted by the lender from the borrower for the use of money in excess of the legal rate allowed by this section is usury under whatever name or pretense the exaction, extension, or forebearance may be designated. Von Rosen v. Dean (1930, 41 F. 2d 982, 59 App. D.C. 359).

It is the agreement and not necessarily its performance which renders debit usurious. Holcombe v. O'Sullivan (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 93 A. 2d 96).

2. Bonus as usury

Where face amount of promissory note was $2,133 payable three years after date with interest at six percent per annum, but only $1,933 was advanced to maker of note, with $200 constituting a bonus, such note was usurious unde rusury statute. Holcombe v. O'Sullivan (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 93 A. 2d 96).

Note or obligation is affected with usury if principal makes the loan, knowing that his agent has exacted a bonus or commission, though for his own sole benefit, which, with the interest payable to the principal, would amount to more than the rate permitted by law. Richards v. Bippus (18 App. D.C. 293).

3. Burden of proof

Under usury statute burden is upon borrower to show that contract was usurious. Industrial Bank of Washington, Inc., et al. v. Page (1957, 249 F. 2d 938, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 33).

In action on promissorffiy note defendant had burden of proving alleged usury but defendant was not required to prove usury where usury was established by plaintiff's evidence. Holcombe v. O'Sullivan (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 93 A. 2d 96).

Burden of proof is upon the borrower to show that the lender knew or was chargeable with the knowledge that his agent exacted a commission in obtaining loan for borrower in excess of the legal rate of interest. Such knowledge may be implied as well as actual. Searl v. Earll (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 62 A. 2d 374).

4. Commissions

A commission or bonus paid to same person who is entitled to interest is to be considered as additional "interest" for purpose of usury law. Industrial Bank of Washington, Inc., et al. v. Page (1957, 249 F. 2d 938, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 33).

Where bank was offering to make loan at six percent with one percent commission and consent to such contract was obtained when borrower signed note and in writing approved settlement sheet containing item of the one percent commission, the contract was within the eight percent provision of the usury statute, precluding borrower from recovering the amount of interest, Id.

The usury statute may be violated by deducting a commission in advance as well as by any other means by which money in excess of legal rate is exacted. Holcombe v. O'Sullivan (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 93 A. 2d 96).

Where a lender's agent with the lenders' knowledge and approval, takes the borrower's separate promissory note payable to himself for his compensation for obtaining the loan for the borrower, the agent cannot recover on the note when the interest on the principal loan plus the agent's commission exceeds the legal rate. Searl v. Earll (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 62 A. 2d 374).

This section may be violated by deducting a commission in advance as well as by any other means by which money in excess of the legal rate is exacted. Hartman v. Lubar (D.C. Mun. App. 1946, 49 A. 2d 553).

5. Construction

The Loan Shark Law, § 26–601 et seq., the usury law, this section and § 28–2704 et seq., and the statute regarding financial institutions, § 47–1701 et seq. are to be read together and when so read constitute a comprehensive code for business of lending money in the District of Columbia. Hartman v. Lubar (1943, 133 F. 2d 44, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 95, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 1329, 319 U.S. 767, 87 L. Ed. 1716, rehearing denied 64 S. Ct. 30, 320 U.S. 808, 88 L. Ed. 488).

6. Defense

Usury can be invoked as a defense but not as an affirmative cause of action; that is, usury may be used as a shield but not as a sword. Royall v. Yudelevit et al. (1953, 161 F. Supp. 217, reversed on other grounds 268 F. 2d 577).

Where there is a single consideration for one or more promises and any part of the transaction is illegal, the promises are wholly unenforceable. Searl v. Earll (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 62 A. 2d 374).

7. Forfeiture

Under this section providing as to a usurious contract that creditor shall forfeit the whole of the interest, forfeiture applies not only to the usurious excess, but also to the lawful interest included in the contract rate, and this section forfeits all of the interest contracted for, if unpaid, or permits recovery, if paid by action within one year after payment. Searl et ano. v. Earll (1955, 221 F. 2d 24, 95 U.S. App. D.C. 151).

8. Holder in due course

In suit between makers of promissory notes aggregating $10,200, secured by deeds of trust on realty, and endorse of such notes, involving issue as to whether the loan transaction was usurious, evidence sustained finding that the endorsee was not, as he claimed, a holder in due course for value without notice, but that he had actually and knowingly lent money to makers and had used payee as an intermediary to avoid the usury statute. Meredith et al. v. Cabell et al. (1954, 211 F. 2d 810, 94 U.S. App. D.C. 73).

9. Judgment

In suit between makers of promissory notes aggregating $10,200, secured by deeds of trust on realty, and endorsee of such notes who was in fact the actual lender, involving issue as to whether the loan transaction was unsurious, evidence sustained finding that the endorsee had advanced to the makers, in return for the notes, only the sum of $7,510, of which $5,476.10 had been repaid, and warranted judgment that, unless unpaid balance be paid within 30 days, trustees designated in deeds of trust might sell property to satisfy amount found to be due. Meredith et al. v. Cabell et al. (1954, 211 F. 2d 810, 94 U.S. App. D.C. 73).

10. Knowledge of holder

One who acquires promissory notes with knowledge of usury in their inception is not a bona fide holder for value. Mollohan v. Masters (45 App. D.C. 414, certiorari denied 37 S. Ct. 245, 242 U.S. 652, 61 L. Ed. 546).

11. Laws applicable to contract

In absence of evidence to contrary it would be presumed that a promissory note which was dated at Washington, D.C., the place of payment being blank, was made in District of Columbia and was payable at place of making and was therefore subject to District of Columbia usury law. Holcombe v. O'Sullivan (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 93 A. 2d 96).

Usurious contract examined and held to be subject to laws of District of Columbia, although expressly declared to be made pursuant to laws of Virginia. Washington Nat. Bldg. & Loan Assn. v. Pifer (31 App. D.C. 434, 14 Ann. Cas. 734). See also, Croissant v. Empire State Realty Co. (29 App. D.C. 538).

Where agreement made in Maryland between defendant and certain individuals provided that the individuals should organize a corporation to acquire land in District of Columbia, the corporation to erect buildings thereon and execute to individuals a $19,000 mortgage thereon payable in one year, to be assigned to defendant upon payment of $15,000 to the corporation, and mortgage note was delivered in District of Columbia, where defendant paid the $15,000 and corporation paid the note in full one year later, as between the corporation and defendant the contract was made in District of Columbia, the laws of which permitted corporation to recover money usuriously exacted. Plitt v. Seven Corners Realty (App. D.C. 1945, 149 F. 2d 832).

12. Liability of agent

An agent was personally liable for unlawful interest which he turned over to his principal with knowledge that the principal was not entitled thereto. Searl et ano. v. Earll (1955, 221 F. 2d 24, 95 U.S. App. D.C. 151).

In suit to recover the unpaid balance on a note given by defendants to plaintiff as commission for securing a loan from plaintiff's wife with counterclaim for usury, plaintiff was subject to separate liability and to a suit individually without joinder of his wife as principal. Id.

13. Limitations

In suit to recover the unpaid balance of a note with defense of usury, where concealment by plaintiff from defendants of the fact that the lender was his wife constituted fraud, bar of limitations against assertion of the defense of usury did not begin to run against the defendants until the fraud was discovered. Searl et ano. v. Earll (1955, 221 F. 2d 24, 95 U.S. App. D.C. 151).

14. Occasional loans on real estate

A nonresident who makes occasional loans on real estate is not engaged "in the business" of loaning money within the meaning of the Loan Shark Law. Zirkle v. Daly (1932, 54 F. 2d 455, 60 App. D.C. 344).

15. Prepayment charge

Even if premium charged by lender for privilege of permitting borrower to prepay entire amount of outstanding balance on note secured by deed of trust on realty could be considered as interest, transaction was not usurious where total amount of interest paid plus the premium was less than lawful maximum interest computed to date the loan was paid. Atlantic Life Ins. Co. of Richmond, Va. v. Wolf (D.C. Mun. App. 1947, 54 A. 2d 641).

Where neither note nor deed of trust on realty securing the note contained any provision permitting repayment by borrower before specified date of maturity, or vested any right or option of acceleration in borrower, the charge of premium to permit borrower to prepay entire amount of outstanding balance on note could not be considered as "interest", as regards usury. Id.

16. Purchase at discount

It is not usurious to purchase a note at a discount. Elliott v. Schlein (D.C. Mun. App. 1954, 104 A. 2d 418).

Where discounted notes were taken by creditor in payment of debt and not as security therefor, there was no mortgage so as to render the transaction usurious though the parties agreed that if proceeds realized exceeded amount of debt, debtors should be reimbursed accordingly and that in case of deficiency they would make it up. Krevait v. Turover (D.C. Mun. App. 1944, 39 A. 2d 207).

Where defendants owed plaintiffs money which they could not pay, it was not usury for defendant to give and plaintiff to receive in payment of the debt notes at a discount of 3 percent of their face value multiplied by the number of years required for the maturity of the notes. Id.

It is not usurious to purchase a note at a discount or to accept in payment of a debt a note at less than its face value. Id.

A purchase of negotiable paper in market overt "at a heavy discount below the face value" does not show usury. Metropolitan Loan & Trust Co. v. Schafer (44 App. D.C. 356).

17. Set-off

Usurious interest cannot be set off against the principal debt. Presbrey v. Thomas (1 App. D.C. 171).

When usurious interest has been paid or taken, the sole and exclusive remedy for the borrower is by a suit within 12 months to recover the amount of the usury; and the usurious interest could not be made the subject of set-off or counterclaim, when after the lapse of 12 months suit is instituted for the recovery of the principal claim. Lawrence v. Middle States Loan Bldg. & Constr. Co. (7 App. D.C. 161).

"A defense of usury good against one obligation will not constitute a valid offset against a distinct and independent obligation, though between the same parties." Metropolitan Loan & Trust Co. v. Schafer (44 App. D.C. 356).

"If suit is brought on the principal debt after payment of usurious interest, such usury may be made a valid set-off against the principal debt. Usury upon obligations paid and canceled can not be used as a set-off against a subsequent obligation even between the same parties, either in law or in equity." Id.

18. Sufficiency of pleading

In suit to recover the unpaid balance on a note, counterclaim was a sufficient pleading of the defense of usury as a vindication of the defendant's legal right or the remedying of a legal wrong. Searl et ano. v. Earll (1955, 221 F. 2d 24, 95 U.S. App. D.C. 151).

19. Summary judgment

Assuming original contracts and engagements were illegal and void because of violation of usury statutes and "loan shark law", claims of complaint that parties entered into agreements purporting to settle and compromise original contracts and engagements and that settlement agreements did not eliminate illegality presented complex issues of fact and law and mixed questions of law and fact not susceptible of disposition by summary judgment. Indian Lake Estates, Inc. v. Lichtman (1962, 311 F. 2d 776, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 90).

§ 28–3304. Action to recover usury paid.

If a person or corporation in the District directly or indirectly takes or receives a greater amount of interest than is declared by this chapter to be lawful, whether in advance or not, the person or corporation paying the same may within one year after the date of payment sue for and recover the amount of the unlawful interest so paid. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 676, Pub. L. 88–509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

1. Admissibility of evidence

Where there was evidence that indorsee finance company for which trustee brought replevin suit to recover chattels named in chattel trust deed securing a note was in the business of lending money rather than solely that of discounting notes in the sense of buying from a creditor an existing obligation at less than face value, proffered evidence consisting of court trials of five municipal court cases in which finance company sued to recover on notes assigned to it was material to defendant's defense that finance company was in business of lending money at rate of interest greater than 6 percent, without required license and should have been admitted. Hartman v. Lubar (D.C. Mun. App. 1946, 49 A. 2d 553).

2. Cancellation

A suit for cancellation of note and deed of trust on ground of usury, regarded as suit for declaratory judgment that complete defense existed to the obligation on the note, was not barred by this section or three-year general statute, § 12–201. Hill v. Hawes (1944, 144 F. 2d 511, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 168).

This section applies to recovery of any payments made on usurious obligation in excess of amount necessary to extinguish the note, though cancellation of usurious obligation was not barred. Id.

3. Commissions

Commissions deducted in advance by the lender constitute usury. Von Rosen v. Dean (1930, 41 F. 2d 982, 59 App. D.C. 359).

4. Construction

The time limitation in this section permitting recovery of all interest paid on a usurious transaction provided suit is begun within one year from date of such payment, is not a general statute of limitations but is a limitation imposed by statute which created right and is limitation of right itself. Earll v. Searl (D.C. Mun. App. 1954, 101 A. 2d 248).

5. Defenses

There are no limitations on claim of usury as a defense in a suit based on usurious obligations. Hill v. Hawes (1944, 144 F. 2d 511, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 168).

Although plaintiff's action to recover unpaid balance on note given by defendants to plaintiff as commission for obtaining a loan was brought more than one year after last payment, usury would defeat recovery protanto on the note, but affirmative relief by way of recovery of payments made was barred by this section. Earll v. Searl (D.C. Mun. App. 1954, 101 A. 2d 248).

6. Inferences

Where defendant had subpoenas duces tecum served upon officers of indorsee finance company for which trustee was maintaining replevin suit to compel them to produce at trial all records regarding the company for purpose of showing that company was in business of lending money at rate of interest greater than 6 percent without required license, and officers failed to produce the records, jury could infer from failure to produce subpoenaed records that contents thereof would have been unfavorable to trustee's case. Hartman v. Lubar (D.C. Mun. App. 1946, 49 R. 2d 553).

7. Interest forfeited

Whole of the interest contracted to be paid by the terms of the trust is forfeited as usury when the trust deed for amount in addition to the loan was payable to an intermediary who professed to sell the same to the actual lender. Quinn v. National Mtg. & Inv. Co. (1932, 57 F. 2d 410, 61 App. D.C. 44).

This section authorizing recovery of all "unlawful interest" paid on a loan, does not limit recovery to the amount above the lawful rate of interest, but authorizes recovery of the whole of the interest paid. Cockrell v. First Federal Savings & Loan Ass'n (1943, 33 A. 2d 621).

8. Joint action

Action for recovery of usury brought by joint makers of note within one year after last payment on debt by one of the makers was not barred, even as to maker who had made no payment on debt for more than one year. Knott v. Jackson (1943, 31 A. 2d 662).

Where makers related by marriage or blood executed a joint and several note secured by joint deed of trust on two properties, and proceeds of note were used by them under an apparent joint agreement, the three joint makers could maintain joint action and obtain joint judgment for usury admittedly paid, even though they could not show exactly what amount each had individually paid. Id.

9. Laches

An action to cancel usurious obligation was not barred by laches, in view of this section allowing recovery of usurious payments made within one year before suit, regardless of date of the note, since refusal of cancellation would merely result in circuity of action. Hill v. Hawes (1944, 144 F. 2d 511, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 168).

10. Pleading

Where borrowers sought to recover usurious interest more than one year after last payment, lender's agent did not waive defense of one year time limitation by failing to plead it in view of fact that time limitation was imposed by this section which created the right and unlike statute of limitations it did not have to be pleaded in defense. Earll v. Searl (D.C. Mun. App. 1954, 101 A. 2d 248).

Where both the original and amended complaints were based on a claim for usury paid on account of a loan to plaintiff and it was apparent that defendants were not misled by an amendment setting up different dates and amounts, the amendment did not set up a "new cause of action" barred by limitations. Cockrell v. First Federal Savings & Loan Ass'n (1943, 33 A. 2d 621).

11. Purchase at discount

Evidence did not sustain finding that lender was purchaser of note secured by trust deed and was not in fact the lender of the amount loaned thereon but established that the pretense of buying the note from the vendor was nothing more than an attempt to cover up the usurious loan, and hence the borrower was entitled to recover usurious interest paid. Elliott v. Schlein (D.C. Mun. App. 1954, 104 A. 2d 418).

12. Questions for jury

In action by joint makers of note for recovery of usury, question whether $50 payment made by lender to his attorney on account of expenses and fees in connection with the loan was proper charge against the borrowers was properly submitted to jury. Knott v. Jackson (1943, 31 A. 2d 662).

Where joint makers of note instituted joint action for recovery of usury but lender contended that one maker, upon making payment more than one year before institution of action, was released from all obligation under note and that as a consequence her claim was barred by one-year limitation of this section, question whether such maker was released from further personal liability at time she made the payment was properly submitted to jury. Id.

13. Repayment of loan

One-year limitation runs, not from the time that usurious interest may have been deducted, but from the time the last payment was made. "Until that time the full amount of the deduction had not been paid by her. There could be no usurious interest collected until the appellee had paid the full amount she received, together with legal interest." Brown v. Slocum (30 App. D.C. 576).

Section 28–2703 et seq. relating to usury do not destroy the obligation to repay the principal on account of the usury, but requires a forfeiture of all interest contracted for, if unpaid, or permits its recovery, if paid, by action begun within one year after payment. Cockrell v. First Federal Savings & Loan Ass'n (1943, 33 A. 2d 621).

An action to recover usurious interest paid can only be maintained after last payment on debt has been made. Knott v. Jackson (1943, 31 A. 2d 662).

A loan transaction which would be free from usury if loan were paid at agreed maturity date is not rendered usurious by borrower's voluntary repayment of loan before maturity, even though, by reason of such repayment, amount of interest received by lender exceeds lawful interest computed to day the loan is paid, provided that total interest received by lender does not exceed lawful interest computed to maturity date stipulated in loan contract. Atlantic Life Ins. Co. of Richmond, Va. v. Wolf (D.C. Mun. App. 1947, 54 A. 2d 641).

14. Running of period

In action to recover unpaid balance on note given by defendants to plaintiff as commisison for obtaining a loan which was made by plaintiff's wife to defendants through straw party, one year time limitation would not be extended in absence of evidence of fraud on part of plaintiff in concealing name of actual lender Earll v. Searl (D.C. Mun. App. 1954, 101 A. 2d 248).

15. Sufficiency of evidence

In replevin by trustee of indorsee finance company to recover chattels named in trust deed securing a note, evidence that loan was usurious, in that an amount in excess of legal rate was deducted in advance and that plaintiff knew the amount deducted in advance, was sufficient to make defense of illegality available to defendant. Hartman v. Lubar (D.C. Mun. App. 1946, 49 A. 2d 553).

§ 28–3305. Unlawful interest credited on principal debt.

In an action upon a contract for the payment of money with interest at a rate forbidden by law, any payment of interest that may have been made on account of the contract is deemed to be payment made on account of the principal debt; and judgment shall be rendered for no more than the balance found due after deducting and properly crediting the interest so paid. A bona fide indorsee of negotiable paper purchased before due is not affected by any usury exacted by a former holder of the paper unless he had notice of the usury before his purchase. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 676, Pub. L. 88–509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28–2705 (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1378, ch. 854, § 1182; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 542, ch. 1329).

Changes are made in phraseology.

Recovery of interest 3

1. Innocent holders for value

No relief to borrowers of money at usurious rates against innocent holders for value. Whipp v. Glueck (1932, 58 F. 2d 523, 61 App. D. C. 118).

2. Maker of new notes

Quaere, whether maker of new notes to take the place of former usurious notes to which he was a party can take advantage of this section and plead usury as a defense to all except the principal sum due. King v. Curtin (31 App. D.C. 23).

3. Recovery of interest

Finance company, which was not a holder in due course of promissory note calling for usurious rate of interest, was not entitled to recover any interest on note. J. W. Beatty v. Franklin Investment Co. Inc. (1963, 319 F. 2d 712, 115 U.S. App. D.C. 311).

§ 28–3306. Parties compelled to testify.

When in an action to recover a debt the defendant claims that payment of unlawful interest on the debt has been made to the plaintiff or those under whom he claims, which the defendant is entitled to have credited on the principal of the debt, the plaintiff or the party who received the unlawful interest may be examined as a witness to prove the payment, and may not be excused from testifying in relation thereto. A creditor who is made defendant in a proceeding for discovery as to payments of unlawful interest made to him may not be excused from answering. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 676, Pub. L. 88–509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

Revision Notes

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28–2706 (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1378, ch. 854, § 1183).
